TRANSLATOR'S PREFACE.

DIFFERENT parts of the Roman Breviary have long been translated for the use of the faithful in English-speaking countries. Nearly all the common books of devotion contain the ordinary form of Vespers and Compline, and there are Vesper books, containing the whole of that office, for every day in the year. There are also translations of Prime, Terce, Sext, and None. Of Mattins and Lauds, however, there have only been published those for a few days, such as Christmas and the last three days of the Holy Week, and the copious extracts which are contained in the English version of Guéranger's Liturgical Year.

The object of the Translator in the present work has been to supply this deficiency by laying open to the English reader the whole of the Prayer of the Church. He thinks that this may be grateful to a considerable number of English-speaking Catholics, who would wish, at any rate at times, to read the Service of the Church, but are debarred from doing so by ignorance of the Latin language; and more especially so to converts who have been accustomed to the daily office while Anglicans. Even to some of the clergy, he is not without hope that this version may be of interest, since he has taken great pains to elucidate difficult passages, to explain the historical and other allusions, and, above all, to verify the references to the Holy Scriptures. If the book should fall into the hands of persons who are not Catholics, he ventures to hope that it may at any rate be the means of softening some prejudices.

It is now nearly nine years ago since the Translator began his work, and he cannot conceal from himself that when he did so, he did not fully realise either how vast a work it has proved to be, or how little he was himself fitted to execute it satisfactorily. He has bestowed a great deal of reading and investigation upon it, and he has enjoyed the advantage of a learned friend's revision; but at the moment of giving it to the public he feels anything but well content with it, and can only protest that it is his best, and that it is, in his judgment, better that the work should be done thus imperfectly than not at all.

In considering the work, the reader will please to understand that the following are the principles which have been followed. The book is a translation from the Latin, and where the original texts are Hebrew, Chaldee, or Greek, it is not these texts but the Breviary Latin rendering of them which is translated into English, the aim of the Translator having been merely to give a rendering, in as good, plain, manly, and idiomatic English as he could command, of the Latin Service-book of the Church. Accordingly, whenever the Latin has a distinct sense of its own—as, for instance, in Ps. lxxv. 5—that sense is given simply without any remark, and the divergence from the original is only pointed out in footnotes in a few cases where it appeared desirable to know both renderings in order to understand the context. Moreover, in the Psalter, and in a few other places, the Rev. James McSwiney, S.J., to whom the Translator has to acknowledge so many obligations, has been kind enough to bracket the words which are not, now, to be found in the Hebrew at all. In the case of a single word in Lam. iv. 7, Dr Gesenius' rendering of the Hebrew is put in the text, and the literal translation of the Latin in a footnote.

In cases where the Latin is obscure, either in its rendering of the Scripture, or elsewhere, the original has been referred to when possible, in order to find what the Latin is probably intended to mean, and here the Translator has again to acknowledge his indebtedness to the learned Jesuit already named, for his assistance in a work for which the Translator's own knowledge only most imperfectly qualifies him.

It will be gathered from the above that the Translator has not followed any existing version exactly in the rendering of the Holy Scripture. The version, or rather series of versions—for there are many different recensions of the text,—generally called the Doway Bible, does not much commend itself to the English ear, and is indeed, especially in the earlier recensions, difficult to understand for any one who does not know Latin, and indeed other languages also; and moreover, none of the recensions possess that ecclesiastical authority which is enjoyed, for instance, in Italy, by the Italian version of Archbishop Martini. Under these circumstances, it has been the custom for English-speaking Catholics, in compiling books of devotion, to make renderings of the Latin at their own convenience, and indeed in the recently published Hortus Animæ, which bears the imprimatur of the Cardinal Archbishop of Westminster, the Psalms in the Little Office of the Blessed Virgin were translated from the Hebrew without any regard to the Latin at all. The present Translator has therefore felt himself abundantly justified in using any good English at his command, while adhering to the sense of the Latin, of which he trusts that his text will be found a faithful rendering.

As regards the proper names in the Old Testament, it has seemed to him most convenient to use the transliteration from the Hebrew which is most commonly used by the Jews, as well as by the general world, in this country, instead of reproducing the Vulgate's imperfect transliteration of the imperfect transliteration of the LXX. from the Hebrew. But where the names, even of the same persons, occur in quotations from the New Testament, the transliteration is equally made from the original, and therefore the Greek form preserved.

In those parts of the office which are not taken from the Scriptures, such as the readings from the Fathers, the Translator has not been careful to give the same word-for-word rendering as in the passages from Scripture. The genius of the Latin language, its long and involved sentences, and such forms as the Ablative Absolute, would make a translation like a school-boy's exercise a piece of very inelegant English composition, and almost intolerable as a devotional formula. His aim, therefore, has been to reflect the ideas of the Latin in the best English mirror he can command, and he must deprecate criticism upon the mere ground of freedom of translation. Besides this, he has only to call attention to the treatment of the quotations from Scripture found in the extracts from the Fathers and in the biographical notices. Where (a) the quotations are very fragmentary, he has usually given them in full, but wherever this has been done to a very considerable extent, as by the insertion of whole clauses or sentences, it is indicated either by a footnote or by the inserted words being put in brackets; and where (β) the quotations are from some version of the Scriptures different to the present Vulgate, such as the so-called Itala, or literally translated from the LXX., or seem to be inaccurate quotations from memory, or various readings created by copyists' blunders, he has harmonised them with the rest of his text, as it seemed to him that to embalm these eccentricities in an English rendering would be, even were it always possible, a mere useless piece of Antiquarianism. An exception is made in the case of a few passages where the sense is clearly and curiously affected, and these have been invariably pointed out in footnotes.

In the biographical sketches of the lives of the Saints, a few passages will be found inserted in brackets. These are almost always proper names, dates, or geographical identifications. They have been inserted with the idea of making these biographies more interesting and valuable, and are almost always taken either from Alban Butler's Lives of the Saints, or from the very valuable French work in seventeen volumes, intituled, Les Petits Bollandistes. The constant changes in the Translator's place of abode, and his frequent journeys, rendered it naturally impossible for him to have always at hand a copy of the Acta Sanctorum themselves, even had it been needful for his purpose.

The poetical portions of the Breviary have given the Translator peculiar trouble. Only a few, and those of the more obscure, of the Hymns, are presented in his own paraphrase. For the rest, he has sought to obtain the use of the versions which, as far as he could judge, combined the largest amount of poetical merit with accuracy in rendering the sense of the originals, and he has not felt it necessary to take into consideration the religious opinions of those by whom such translations have been executed. In all his applications, he has been met with uniform courtesy and compliance with his wishes, and he here begs to ask pardon for any breach of copyright which he may have unknowingly committed by reprinting hymns of which he did not know the translator. The source whence each is taken has always been indicated.

A great number of the hymns are by the late Rev. E. Caswall, of the Birmingham Oratory, who died during the printing of the work. (R.I.P.) The Translator expresses his thanks for his constant obliging kindness.

H. E. Cardinal Newman has permitted the Translator the use of all his published hymns. The hymn for Prime has never been published before, except in a little book printed by the present Translator a few years ago, and for which he obtained it from the illustrious writer. H. E. has also had the goodness to prepare the doxologies, altering with the Office, belonging to his own hymns.

The Rev. Dr Littledale contributes a considerable number of hymns, some of which are original, and written expressly for this work.

The elegant hymns for Midsummer Day, one of which is written expressly for this book, are by a noble friend, who desires to remain anonymous.

The Translator begs finally to express his sincere thanks to the Rev. Dr Wallace, the Rev. W. J. Blew, Rev. W. J. Copeland, Mr J. D. Chambers, the Messrs Novello, and all others to whom he is indebted for the use of copyright hymns. The Translator tenders to all his thankful acknowledgment. In regard to the hymns, the alteration in the last verse, caused by certain Festivals and Seasons, depends in the original upon the scansion. This distinction, viz., why one hymn should alter and another not, could not be rationally adopted in the English, where the metres are not always the same as in the Latin. The Translator, therefore, has provided for the alteration of all the unchanging hymns, viz., those of the Small Hours, while the hymns of Mattins, Lauds, and Vespers, which change with the Office, do not here undergo the alteration of the last verse.

Besides the hymns proper, there are a good many passages, such as the Blessings at Mattins, and some of the Antiphons and Responsories, which are either in actual verse or else written with some peculiar rhyme or rhythm. There are also a certain number of puns. Great care has been taken, as far as possible, to reproduce these quaint features. They will jar upon the ear of the English reader, but he may rest assured that they cannot offend him more than the originals would have offended a Roman of the classical age, and to suppress them would have been to give a false idea of the book. They are usually printed as prose, as they are in the original.

The feature in which this translation is, so far, more convenient than the original, is the fact that all the references to Holy Scripture, (except such as are very commonly known, or have been given shortly before,) are given, either in footnotes, or, where they occur in the text, (not itself Scripture,) in brackets inserted in it. The mere work with a Concordance which this has entailed has been very great, but the Translator ventures to think the object was well worth it.

The other footnotes are exclusively aimed at the elucidation of the text. The historical ones are chiefly from Alban Butler or Les Petits Bollandistes. Those on Scripture are mostly from the annotated English Bible published by the late Dr Kenrick, Archbishop of New York, a most valuable work, unhappily but little known in this country. Those on Isaiah are mainly from Lowth; those on Daniel from Dr Pusey; those from the Targums on the Holy Torah, from Etheridge's translation; those from the other Targums, from the Latin version in Walton's Biblia Polyglotta. The source has always been indicated, except where one note closely follows another.

Most part of this work has been submitted in MS., the whole of it in proof, and part even in revise, to the friendly criticism of the Rev. James McSwiney, S.J., whom the Translator has already mentioned, and to whom he desires here to express his sincerest thanks for the long pains and unwearied patience and kindness which year after year he has expended upon this matter. He begs also to thank the Superiors of the Society of JESUS for allowing him the assistance of so valuable a member of their body. It must, however, be distinctly understood that the work of Father McSwiney has been almost entirely confined to excision and pointing out blunders, and that he is objectively responsible for nothing except the bracketing the passages in the Psalter, as before mentioned, and a very few of the footnotes.

However, notwithstanding the amount of pains and repeated revision, and the extraordinary excellence with which the printers have done their work, and for which the Translator desires to make to them his sincerely felt and thankful acknowledgments, it must needs be that so very large a work, printed for the first time, contains a considerable number of oversights. Some of these are already visible to the Translator. He prefers, however, to leave them to the indulgence of the reader, rather than revise every word again, in order to encumber the book with a page or pages of errata and corrigenda.

The translator desires in conclusion to protest that if, (which he hopes and believes is not the case,) either the translation itself, or the footnotes, should contain anything which a faithful Catholic ought not to have written, he has written such passage inadvertently.

RICHMOND, June 27, 1879.

PREFACE TO THE PRESENT EDITION.

IT is now twenty-eight years since the first English Translation of the Breviary was made, and had the Translator lived to publish this new edition, it would have appeared a long time ago, for the work was far advanced, and some portion of it had been printed, before his death.

This present edition is for use in England; and it is peculiar in that it has added to it a translation of the Martyrology, which will be found in its proper place in the Office.

The Rev. James McSwiney, S.J., and Mr J. H. Stevenson, who were engaged with the Translator at the time of his death in seeing the work through the press, were good enough to carry it on until some three years ago, when the death of the Rev. J. McSwiney occurred. This misfortune caused delay, but after a time his place was filled by the Rev. James O'Donohoe, S.J., and once again the work went on.

The undertaking has been found to be very complicated in a way which was not at first foreseen, and although a very complete manuscript of the unprinted part of the book was left, except three of the recent offices, and they were partly written, the difficulties have been great.

There have been constant delays owing to unforeseen circumstances, and needless to say the absence of the Translator himself has been keenly felt throughout. Frequently it has occurred that points which he could have decided by a stroke of the pen have had to be made the subject of much consideration as well as correspondence, for the anxiety of those engaged on the work has been to complete it if possible exactly as he would have wished it, and, although the result may fall short, no pains have been spared to attain this end.

Thanks are offered to all who have given permission to use their existing translations of hymns, and in one or two cases for new translations.

That such a work as this should be entirely free from mistakes or oversights is hardly possible, and more especially considering the circumstances under which it has been finished; the indulgence therefore of the reader is craved, owing to the extreme difficulty of the task which has been undertaken.

G. BUTE.

The Pie.[1]

THERE is an Office for every day, and this Office is either (1) Double, (2) Semi-double, or (3) Simple.

CHAPTER I. OF DOUBLE OFFICES.

The Office is Double from Maundy Thursday to Easter Tuesday, both inclusive, on Low Sunday, on Ascension Day, on Whitsun Day, and the Monday and Tuesday following, on Trinity Sunday, on Corpus Christi, and on the Dedication Feast of the Church where the service is held, or to which the person praying is attached; on every Feast-day in the Kalendar marked Double, and on the Octave-day of every Feast which has an Octave; moreover, upon the Feast of the Patron or Patrons, or Titular or Titulars, of the place or Church, and upon the Feast or Feasts of any Saint or Saints which any particular Church, Order, or Congregation may have been used and have obtained, or shall obtain, the Sanction of the Apostolic See to observe solemnly, either with a special Office, or with the Common Office, even although such Feast be not to be found in the Roman Kalendar. Moreover, the Office for the Dead is said as a Double upon All Souls' Day, and upon the day of the death or burial of the Deceased for whom it is said, even as is directed in the Office itself.

2. A Double Feast is kept or commemorated upon its own day, unless it should be transferred or entirely omitted according to Chapter X. of this Pie.

3. A Double Feast has the whole of both First and Second Vespers, unless it clash with another like Office, as treated of in Chapter XI. of this Pie, and the whole Office is then of the Double from the Vespers on the first evening till Compline on the second, both inclusive—unless something special be ordered in its own place. The Office of the Dead, however, has only one Vesper Service, Mattins, and Lauds, as given in its own place.

4. On a Double, the Antiphons at both Vespers, at Mattins, and at Lauds (but not at Prime, Terce, Sext, None, or Compline,) are doubled, that is to say, are repeated entire both before and after the Psalm or Canticle to which they respectively belong.

5. At Mattins on a Double are always said three Nocturns, being nine Psalms and nine Lessons, that is to say, three Psalms and three Lessons in each Nocturn. The only exceptions are Easter and Pentecost, with the two days succeeding in each case, when there is only one Nocturn, with three Psalms and three Lessons, as there given.

6. On a Double, the Prayers called Preces are omitted at Compline and Prime, as also the Common Commemorations of the Blessed Virgin, &c., at Vespers and Lauds.

7. As for anything else, see the Chapters of this Pie treating specially of each detail.

CHAPTER II. OF SEMI-DOUBLE OFFICES.

The Office is Semi-double upon all Sundays (except Low Sunday, which is Double); upon all days within Octaves; upon all Feasts which are marked Semi-double in the Kalendar, and also upon any Feasts peculiar to particular places or Congregations, which, in the said places or Congregations it has been usual to keep more solemnly than if they were Simples.

2. A Semi-double Feast is either kept or commemorated upon its own day, or entirely omitted, according to Chapter X. of this Pie.

3. A Semi-double Feast has the whole of the Office, from Vespers on the first evening till Compline on the second, both inclusive, like a Double; but the Antiphons are not doubled—that is to say, before the Psalm or Canticle only the first few words of the Antiphon are said, namely, those as far as the asterisk (*), although at the end of the Psalm or Canticle the whole Antiphon is said entire.

4. At Mattins are said three Nocturns, with three Psalms and three Lessons in each, except within the Octaves of Easter and Pentecost, when there is only one Nocturn, with three Psalms and three Lessons. Also on Sundays, when the Office is of the Sunday, there are twelve Psalms in the first Nocturn, instead of three.

5. As to anything else, see the Chapters of this Pie treating specially of each detail.

CHAPTER III. OF SIMPLE OFFICES.

The Office is Simple on all Week-days when the Service is of such; upon all days in the Kalendar which are not marked Double, or Semi-double, or of an Octave; and in the Simple Office of the Blessed Virgin on Saturdays, as appointed in Chapter VIII.

2. The Office of a Simple Feast is said upon its own day, but is liable to be overborne by any Office having Nine Lessons, or by that of the Blessed Virgin on Saturday, or by that of a Week-day having the precedence over it according to Chapter V. and Chapter IX.

3. The Simple Feast has only one Vesper Office, namely, the first, when the Service is of the Week-day till the Chapter, exclusive, and then of the Feast from the Chapter, inclusive, till the end, what is of the Feast being as if of a Semi-double. However, should this evening be occupied

[1] I.e., parti-coloured. This quaint name is owing to the General Rubrics being usually printed in black and red.

by the Vespers of an Office of Nine Lessons, the Simple is only commemorated, as regulated in Chapter XI. A Simple Office always ends with None, inclusive, and has nothing afterwards, not even a Commemoration.

4. At Mattins, the Office is of the Feast till the Hymn, inclusive; after which are said the Psalms and Antiphons of the Week-day. Then the Office continues of the Feast, according to what is said in Chapter XXVI.

5. As to anything else, see the Chapters of this Pie treating specially of each detail.

Chapter IV. Of Sundays.

The Office of the Sunday is always said on the Sundays in Advent, and on those from Septuagesima to Low Sunday, both inclusive, any Double or Semi-double Feast whatsoever being transferred or reduced to a mere Commemoration or entirely omitted to make room for them, (as prescribed in Chapter X.,) unless it be a Double Feast of the First Class. Such Feast is then observed, with a Commemoration of the Sunday, except on the first Sundays of Advent and Lent, and Passion, Palm, Easter, Low, Pentecost, and Trinity Sundays, which yield to nothing. See, as to this, Chapter IX. On other Sundays in the year, the Office is of the Sunday unless the day be occupied by a Double Office, in which case the Service is of the Double, with a Commemoration of the Sunday at both Vespers and at Lauds, and for the Ninth Lesson, the seventh of the Sunday, or the seventh, eighth, and ninth read as one; as prescribed in Chapter IX. A Semi-double clashing with a Sunday is commemorated, according to Chapter X.

2. On the Sundays within the Octaves of Christmas, Twelfth-Day, Ascension Day, and Corpus Christi, the Service is of the Octave with such variations as are given in their own place, with Commemoration of the Octave and without either Preces or the Common Commemorations. On Sundays within other Octaves, the Service is of the Sunday as given in the Psalter and in the Proper Office of the Season, with Commemoration of the Octave, but without Preces or the Common Commemorations. If a Sunday and an Octave-day clash, the Office is of the Octave-day, being Double, with Commemoration and Ninth Lesson of the Sunday. The only exception is with the Octave-day of Twelfth-Day, when, the Service of the Sunday having been said on Saturday, no notice of it is taken on the Octave-day.

3. Offices are given for six Sundays after the Epiphany and for twenty-four after Pentecost, so that there shall be no blank upon any of the thirty Sundays which may occur between Twelfth-Day and Septuagesima, and between Pentecost and Advent, albeit they may perhaps only be commemorated. Those which are over and not wanted after Twelfth-Day before Septuagesima are inserted and used up between the 23rd after Pentecost, and the next before Advent, in the following order—

4. If there are 25 Sundays after Pentecost, the 24th is the 6th after the Epiphany: if 26—the 24th, the 5th; and the 25th, the 6th: if 27—the 24th, the 4th; the 25th, the 5th; and the 26th, the 6th: if 28—the 24th, the 3rd; the 25th, the 4th; the 26th, the 5th; and the 27th, the 6th. It sometimes happens that there are only 23 Sundays after Pentecost; in which case, that next before Advent still keeps its place, and the Office of the 23rd Sunday is said upon the preceding Saturday, if that day be not occupied by an Office of Nine Lessons, or, if so occupied, upon the nearest day in that week not so occupied, a Simple Feast being in such case only commemorated. On this occasion the Office will be of the Week-day, substituting only the three Lessons, the Antiphon at the Song of Zacharias, and the Prayer of the Sunday for those of the Week-day (which are omitted.) However, if the whole of that week be occupied by Offices of Nine Lessons, even if transferred thither or belonging to an Octave, then on the Saturday the Ninth Lesson is the seventh of the Sunday, or the seventh, eighth, and ninth, read as one, and at Lauds (only) there is made Commemoration of the Sunday, by its own Antiphon for the Song of Zacharias and its own Prayer with the Verse and Answer of the Saturday.

5. It will sometimes occur that the 3rd, 4th, 5th, or 6th Sunday after the Epiphany is left over and there is no room for it after Pentecost. In that case it is placed on the Saturday or other day in the week preceding Septuagesima, in the same manner as described in the foregoing section.

6. What to do when the 2nd Sunday after Twelfth-Day is Septuagesima, is prescribed in a special Rubric on the subject at p. 201, Note 2.

7. When, in the Breviary, mention is made of the First Sunday of such-and-such a month, the Sunday meant is that which is on or nearest to the 1st day of such month: thus, if the 1st day of the month be a Monday, Tuesday, or Wednesday, the first Sunday of that month is the Sunday before, albeit actually in the preceding month, but if the 1st day of the month be a Thursday, Friday, or Saturday, the first Sunday of the month is the Sunday after. However, the first Sunday of Advent is not taken to be the first Sunday of December, but that which is either on or nearest to the Feast of St Andrew, viz., November 30.

8. The Sunday Office is Semi-double and begins with Vespers on Saturday, lasting till Compline on Sunday, inclusive. See, however, the case of its clashing with other Offices, Chapter XI.

9. At Mattins there are Three Nocturns, as in the Psalter, and Nine Lessons, as in the Office of the Season.

10. As to anything else, see the Chapters of this Pie, treating specially of such detail.

Chapter V. Of Week-days.

The Week-day Office, that is to say, the Simple Office of the Season, as contained in the Psalter and the Proper Office of the Season, is always said in Advent and Lent, and on Ember Days, Eves, and Rogation Monday, except when there is a Double or Semi-double Office, or that belonging to some Octave, on which occasions the Week-day is only commemorated, as given in Chapter IX. If a Simple Feast occur upon one of these Week-days, it is only commemorated. Moreover, the Office of the Week-day is said upon any day in the Kalendar to which no Feast is assigned, which is not within any Octave, and which is not occupied by the Simple Saturday Office of the Blessed Virgin, or by any Feast peculiar to the Church or place where the Service takes place or to which the person praying belongs.

2. In Advent and Lent, and on Ember Days, Eves, and Rogation Monday, the Office of the Week-day begins with Mattins; on other days in the year it begins where the Office of the preceding day ends: thus—if the day before have been Double or Semi-double, it begins with Mattins; if a Simple, with Vespers. Moreover, if upon Ember Wednesday and Friday in September, upon Ash Wednesday, or upon any Eve, there fall a Simple Feast, which is to be commemorated, this Simple Feast is deprived of its First Vespers, which are then of the Week-day (unless they be the Second Vespers of some Office of Nine Lessons) as in the Psalter, without Preces, but with the Prayer of the preceding Sunday, and a Commemoration of the Simple Feast. See Chapter XI. The Office of the Week-day ends with None, if there follow a Double or Semi-double, but if there follow a Simple, the Office of which is to be said, then Vespers are of the Week-day till the Chapter exclusive, and with the Chapter begins the Office of the said Simple, without any further notice of the Week-day.

3. At Mattins is said one Nocturn, with twelve Psalms and three Lessons, as in the Psalter, and the Proper Office of the Season.

4. From the above rules are entirely excepted the Offices of Maundy Thursday, Good Friday, Holy Saturday, Easter Week, and Whitsun Week, which are perfectly special, as regulated in their own places.

5. As for anything else, see the Chapters of this Pie treating specially of each detail.

Chapter VI. Of Eves.

The Office of the Eve is said upon all Eves which are Fasts,[1] (and which are marked in the Kalendar with the word "Eve,") unless there occur on such a day an Office with Nine Lessons, or the Office of some Octave. In such a case the Ninth Lesson of the said Office is omitted or read as one with the Eighth, and for the Ninth Lesson is read the whole or the first part of the Homily for the Eve; and the Eve is commemorated at Lauds (only) by the Antiphon at the Song of Zacharias and the Verse and Answer belonging to the Week-day, with the Prayer of the Eve. However, there are some exceptions, which here follow.

2. If the Eve should be a Sunday, the Office of the Eve is said on Saturday, or, if Saturday be occupied as mentioned above, it is commemorated, as there directed. The two exceptions are the Eves of Christmas and Twelfth-Day, the Offices of which are said even on Sunday, as is noted in their own place. However, if on the day of the Eve should be some Feast of great local importance in a particular place, or one of those generally more important which are enumerated hereafter in Chapter IX.,—as for instance, if Corpus Christi fell upon Midsummer Eve,—no notice whatever is taken of the Eve in the Office. The solitary exception is the Eve of Twelfth-Day. Moreover, in Advent, Lent, and on the days of Quarter-Tense, no notice whatever is taken of an Eve.

3. The Office of the Eve begins with Mattins and ends with None.

4. The Office of an Eve is entirely that of the Week-day, (Responsories included,) except the Three Lessons[2] and the Prayer. Long Preces are said as in Advent or Lent, and also the Common Commemorations. For anything else there are special Rubrics hereafter.

5. There are four exceptional cases: α. Whitsun Eve, which is a Semi-double with Three Nocturns. β. Christmas Eve, which is a Double, from Lauds to None, both inclusive. γ, δ. The Eves of Twelfth-Day and of the Ascension. See all these in their own places.

Chapter VII. Of Octaves.

An Octave is the repetition of an Office, or at the least the Commemoration of it, if some Sunday or Festival intervene, for eight days, one after the other, being the Feast itself and seven days following. This honour is paid to the Passover, when our Lord rose again, to Ascension Day, to Whitsun Day, to the Feast of Corpus Christi, to the Dedication of the particular Church, to the Patronal or Titular Feast of the place or Church, and to Feasts of other Saints which may have been customarily so treated in any particular Church, Congregation, or Order. No Octaves are kept between Ash Wednesday and Easter, nor during the Octave of Pentecost, nor between December 17 and Christmas; and even if one of these days, namely, Ash Wednesday, Whitsun Day, or December 17, should come in the middle of an Octave which has already been kept for some days, their arrival breaks it off at once.

2. Also, in the cases of Easter and Pentecost the Office of the Octave is not said after None on the next Saturday.

3. Any Double or Semi-double Feast which falls on any day[3] within an Octave, is observed, and so also is observed any Feast which may be thither transferred, but there is then made a Commemoration of the Octave, at both the Vespers and at Lauds, unless the Feast observed be one of those more important, hereafter enumerated in Chapter IX., and whereon no Octave is commemorated; however, an exception is made in favour of the Octaves of Christmas, Twelfth-Day, and Corpus Christi, which are always at least commemorated, whatsoever be the Feast which may occur during their Octaves. However, within the Octaves of Easter and Pentecost no Feast whatsoever is kept, even should it be that of the principal Patron or Titular or of the Dedication of the particular Church. All are transferred out of the Octave, if this can be done, or are reduced to mere commemorations, as laid down in Chapter X. Within the Octave of Twelfth-Day (except the Octave-day itself) may be observed only Double Feasts of the First Class, and that with Commemoration of the Octave. Within the Octave of Corpus Christi, only Doubles are observed, and they only those which naturally occur there; others are not to be transferred thither, unless they be Feasts of the First or Second Class; and Commemoration is always made of the Octave. Semi-doubles occurring within this

[1] There are a good many Eves which are not Fasts, at least in certain countries, but they appear to have been so formerly, and it is the custom still to recite the Office, including the Long Preces, as if they had remained so.

[2] For the Blessings on them, see the Summary of Blessings and Absolutions hereafter.

[3] Except, of course, the Feast itself, the Octave-day, and the Sunday.

Octave are reduced to mere Commemorations. See Chapter X. Simples which occur within any Octave are merely commemorated, except upon Easter Monday and Tuesday, and Whitsun Monday and Tuesday, when all notice of Simples is omitted. See Chapter IX. The Service upon Sundays within Octaves is as prescribed above, in the Chapter upon Sundays (IV.) If two Octaves clash (as, for instance, that of Midsummer Day with that of Corpus Christi, or that of a local Patron or Titular with some other) when the Office is not of some Festival with Nine Lessons or of the Sunday, it is of that Octave whose Feast is of the higher rank, with Commemoration of the other. As for the case of Feasts falling on the actual Octave-days, see Chapter X.

4. The Office of a day within an Octave has three Nocturns, that is to say, at Mattins nine Psalms and nine Lessons. The only exceptions are the Octaves of Easter and Pentecost, when there is only one Nocturn. Everything is as on the Festival, except the Lessons. Of these, the first three are always from Scripture according to the Season, except within the Octave of the Assumption, when those days on which the Office is of the Octave have Scripture Lessons of their own, taken from the Song of Songs. The Lessons of the Second and Third Nocturns are always given in their own places. It may happen that an Octave is kept somewhere for some local Patron or Titular Feast, where there are no special authorised Lessons for the Second and Third Nocturn:[1] in this case Lessons are to be taken out of the Common Office, if the subject be some Saint or Saints, or, if otherwise, the Lessons of the Feast-day repeated.

5. On the days within the Octave the Office is Semi-double, and on the Octave-day itself Double. The Vespers every day are the same as the Second Vespers of the Feast, except the First Vespers of the Octave-day, which are the same as the First Vespers of the Feast, unless some special direction be given to the contrary.

6. Within Octaves the Common Commemorations of the Saints are not said at Vespers and Lauds, nor Preces at Prime and Compline, even if the Office be of a Sunday or Semi-double. For anything else, see the Chapters of this Pie treating specially of each detail.

Chapter VIII. Of the Office of the Blessed Virgin as a Simple on Saturday.

On every Saturday in the year, with the exceptions hereafter immediately noted, the Simple Office of the Blessed Virgin as placed at the end of the Common Office for her Festivals, is said in preference to the Office of the Week-day or the Office of any other Simple Festival, such simple Festival, if it occur, being merely commemorated. The exceptions are the Saturdays in Advent and Lent, the Ember Saturdays, Eves, Saturdays to which the Sunday Office may be transferred according to this Pie, IV. 4, 5, Saturdays on which Nine Lessons may be read, and the Saturdays within the Octaves of Easter and Whitsun Day.

2. When this Office is not said, neither is it commemorated. On Semi-doubles the Blessed Virgin (if her Little Office is not going to be said) has her Common Commemoration at Vespers and Lauds, along with the others, but that is all.

3. This Office begins with the Chapter at Vespers on Friday, like other Simple Offices, and similarly, has a Commemoration at the Friday Vespers, should those belong to some Office of Nine Lessons, unless such Office be of the Blessed Virgin, when the Commemoration of the Simple Office is omitted. If such Commemoration be made it consists of the Antiphon at her Song, the Verse and Answer, and the Prayer of the Little Office Vespers; and no other Commemoration of her is made.

4. At Mattins, the Invitatory and Hymn are of her; then follows the one Nocturn of the Week-day, with its own Psalms and Antiphons; Verse and Answer, Absolution, two Responsories, Blessings, and Third Lesson of the Blessed Virgin, with two Lessons from Scripture and the Hymn "We praise Thee, O God, &c.," all as at the end of the Common, as are also Lauds, Prime, Terce, Sext, and None.

5. Preces are said at Prime and Compline, and the Common Commemorations (except her's) at Lauds. After None, nothing is said of her, unless she is commemorated, among the other Common Commemorations, in the First Vespers of Sunday.

Chapter IX. Of Commemorations.

If there come upon the day of a Simple Feast (a) an Office of Nine Lessons, either always, or transferred thither, (b) a Sunday, (c) some day belonging to an Octave, (d) a Saturday, or (e) the Office of some Sunday transferred to a Week-day, then there is made a Commemoration of the Simple Feast, at First Vespers and at Lauds.

2. Week-days in Advent and Lent, Ember Days, Eves, and Rogation Monday, are commemorated only, if a Feast of Nine Lessons comes upon them, but their Office takes precedence of a simple Feast, which, in them, is only commemorated.

3. If a Double Feast fall upon a Sunday between Pentecost and Advent, between Twelfth-Day and Septuagesima, or between Low Sunday and Pentecost, the Sunday is commemorated at both Vespers and at Lauds. A Double Feast falling upon any of the other Sundays is either transferred or reduced to a mere Commemoration, as laid down in Chapter X., unless it should be the principal Patron, or Titular, or the Feast of the Dedication of the Church, (and this applies only to the Church itself, not to every Side-Chapel or Altar,) in which case such Patronal, Titular, or Dedication Festival is in that particular place or Church only, kept instead of the Sunday, but with a Commemoration of the Sunday at both Vespers and at Lauds. However, from this liability are excepted the first Sundays in Advent and Lent, Passion, Palm, Easter, Low, Pentecost, and Trinity Sundays, which cannot be displaced, and any such Festival occurring on them is to be transferred, as likewise any Feast of the First Class falling on these Sundays.

4. An Octave is always commemorated, if its office be displaced by a Feast of Nine Lessons or a Sunday, unless such Feast be that of the Patron, the Titular, or the Dedication of the particular place, which kind of Feasts admit of no Commemoration at First Vespers or at Lauds, whether of a Simple, or of an Eve, (unless it be Twelfth-Day Eve,) or of the Second Vespers of another Festival going before it, unless such Festival be one of those in this chapter hereafter specially enumerated, or of an Octave-day, or of the Second Vespers of a Sunday, unless that Sunday be one of those of Advent, or one of those between Septuagesima and Low Sunday, both inclusive, which Sundays, as also the Week-days of Advent and Lent, the Ember Days and Rogation Monday, are always commemorated in whatsoever Office it be. If such Festival fall on any Sunday, or upon the Octave-day of some Feast which has an Octave, the Sunday or Octave-day is commemorated at both Vespers and at Lauds. As regards, however, the Second Vespers of such Festival, a Commemoration is made of the First Vespers of any Double, Semi-double, or Sunday occupying the next day, but not of anything else.

[1] There is, however, an approved Octavarium Romanum, or Offices for Octaves, which will meet nearly every possible contingency.

5. The same rule is applied everywhere to certain great Festivals in the year, viz., Christmas Day, (on which day there is no Commemoration of St Anastasia in the Office, but only in the Dawn Mass,) Twelfth-Day, Maundy Thursday, Good Friday, Holy Saturday, Easter Day, Easter Monday, Easter Tuesday, Ascension Day, Whitsun Day, Whitsun Monday, Whitsun Tuesday, Corpus Christi, the Most Sacred Heart of Jesus, St Joseph, Midsummer Day, the Holy Apostles Peter and Paul, the Immaculate Conception, Lady Day and the Assumption of Blessed Mary, All Saints, St Thomas of Canterbury,[1] St George, St Augustine of Canterbury, and the Feast of the Dedication of the particular Church. The rules as to Commemorations on all these are everywhere the same as if they were the local Patron.

6. There is a second and lower class of Festivals, viz., New Year's Day, the Holy Name, Trinity Sunday, Candlemas, the Visitation, the Nativity and the Solemnity of the Most Holy Rosary of Blessed Mary, the Feasts of the Eleven Apostles, of the Evangelists, of the Patronage of St Joseph, of the Most Precious Blood of our Lord Jesus Christ, of the Finding of the Holy Cross, of St Joachim, father of the Blessed Virgin Mary, of St Anne, mother of the Same, of St Lawrence, of St Gregory the Great, of St Edward, and Michaelmas. At the First Vespers of these (unless there be a special direction to the contrary) a Commemoration is made of the Second Vespers of a Double, should there have been one that day unless the contrary be specially indicated—but not of a Sunday, of a day within an Octave, nor of a Semi-double, any more than on Festivals of the highest class. If Simple Festivals or Eves fall on the same days as these Festivals, they have the Ninth Lesson at Mattins and a Commemoration at Lauds only. At Second Vespers a Commemoration is made of any Festival whatever—even a Simple, and of a day within an Octave, if the Office of that is to occupy the next day. The Octaves of Christmas, Twelfth-Day, and Corpus Christi are special cases; they are always commemorated at Vespers and Lauds, whatever be the Office of the day.

7. If Sundays and Week-days of Advent and Lent are to be commemorated, it is done at both Vespers and at Lauds; if Ember Days, Eves, and Rogation Monday, at Lauds only; if Simple Feasts (unless in the cases mentioned above) at First Vespers and Lauds; if other Sundays or Octaves, at both Vespers and at Lauds. When a Double or Semi-double is reduced to a mere Commemoration, it is commemorated at both Vespers and at Lauds in the same way as if it were an Octave-day or a Sunday, unless the superseding Feast be a Double of the First Class, in which case no notice of a suppressed Double or Semi-double is taken at all, except that the First Vespers of such suppressed Double or Semi-double are commemorated in the Second Vespers of a Double of the First Class, occupying the immediately preceding day.

8. A Commemoration is made thus. After the Prayer of the Office for the day are recited (1) the Antiphons for the Song of the Blessed Virgin or of Zacharias, according as the occasion be Vespers or Lauds, then (2) the Verse and Answer after the Hymn from the same, and then (3) the Prayer, preceded by "Let us Pray," which would have been used in the superseded Office which is to be commemorated. It sometimes happens, where both the Office of the day and the Office of a Simple Feast to be commemorated have their Antiphons and Verse and Answer from the Common Office for Saints of the class, that the Antiphon and Verse and Answer in the Commemoration would naturally be the same as those in the Office for the day, and, to avoid this, those of the Commemoration are taken from Lauds at First Vespers, and from First Vespers at Lauds —unless a special direction be given to the contrary.[2] In like manner, if the Festival of St Angela (or of any other Holy Woman with an Office of Nine Lessons) fell on a Friday, and the Simple Office of the Blessed Virgin were to be said on the Saturday, the Verse and Answer in the Commemoration of the Blessed Virgin at the Second Vespers of St Angela would naturally be "Grace is poured into thy lips —Therefore God hath blessed thee for ever," but these are the same Verse and Answer as would already have been said after the Hymn of St Angela, therefore, in the Commemoration of the Blessed Virgin, the Verse and Answer are taken from the ensuing Lauds, viz., "Blessed art thou among women—And blessed is the Fruit of thy Womb." And the same system is adopted in the case of the Prayer; if the Office for the day and the Office to be commemorated have both the same Prayer out of one of the Common Offices, then for the Commemoration a different Prayer is taken from the same Common Office. If the Office to be commemorated has been reduced to the form of a Simple Office, and the Antiphons, &c., are taken from the Common Office of the Feast of the day, then at First Vespers such Antiphons, &c., must be taken from the Second Vespers of the Common, and if the Feast has both First and

[1] In England St Thomas is the patron of the secular clergy, and for them therefore the feast is of the First Class, but among some of the regulars it is only of the Second Class. In the present translation it is given as of the First Class; but where it is treated as of the Second Class, the second half of the Vespers on Innocents' Day is of the Innocents, with a Commemoration of him; and his Commemoration is made after that of the Innocents, while the Octave of the Innocents lasts.

[2] A standing instance is the First Vespers of St Angela on May 30, at which there is always a Commemoration of the First Vespers of St Petronilla. Both the Office and the Commemoration are from the Common Office for a Virgin not a Martyr, but the Antiphon and Verse and Answer for St Petronilla are taken from Lauds, viz., "The kingdom of heaven, &c.," and "Grace is poured, &c.," because "Come, Bride of Christ, &c.," and "In thy comeliness, &c.," have already been used for St Angela. And at Lauds the case is reversed.

Second Vespers the Antiphon, &c., at Lauds must be taken from First Vespers, while at Second Vespers the Antiphon will be taken from Lauds and the Verse from First Vespers unless a special direction be given to the contrary. An exception, however, is made when a Commemoration of a Holy Virgin is made on the Feast of another Holy Virgin; in this case the Antiphon for the Commemoration at First Vespers must be taken from Lauds. When the reduced Feast is not commemorated at Second Vespers the rules given above for the Commemoration of Simple Feasts must be followed.

9. Whenever in an Office of Nine Lessons, Commemoration is made of any Sunday or Week-day which has an Homily of its own, then such Homily is the Ninth Lesson at Mattins, being either the first part only, or the whole three used continuously together as one.

10. So too if Commemoration be made of a Simple Feast, in an Office with Nine Lessons, the Ninth Lesson is of the Simple Feast; and if the Simple Feast have two Lessons, then both are read together as one. But this Lesson of the Feast is omitted, if the Office of the day be that of a Sunday which has a Ninth Responsory instead of the Hymn, "We praise Thee, O God, &c.," and also when the Ninth Lesson is occupied by an Homily, as prescribed above; neither is it read in any Office in which there are only three Lessons (as, for instance, within the Octaves of Easter and Pentecost.) Moreover, when Commemoration is made of a day within an Octave, the Ninth Lesson is not of the Octave albeit it have a proper Gospel and Homily. So also, when a Double or Semi-double has been reduced to a mere Commemoration, the historical Lessons of the Second Nocturn of the said suppressed Double or Semi-double are read together as one Lesson, forming the Ninth Lesson of the superior Office which has superseded the Double or Semi-double, except if the Office of Corpus Christi be said on any day within that Octave, in which case any Ninth Lesson of this sort is omitted.

11. If several Commemorations are to be made, their order of precedence is as follows. First, a privileged Sunday; second, an Octave; third, a Greater Double; fourth, a Double reduced to a Simple Commemoration; fifth, a Common Sunday; sixth, a day within the Octave of Corpus Christi; seventh, a Semi-double; eighth, a day within an Octave when reduced to a Simple Commemoration; ninth a Week-day in Advent or Lent, an Ember Day, Eve, or Rogation Day; tenth, for a Friday evening, the Simple Office of the Blessed Virgin, if it is to be said next day; lastly, a Simple Feast; and not till after a Simple (if there be one) are made the Common Commemorations of the Blessed Virgin, St Joseph, &c., or of the Cross only, as the Season may be. The place of the local Patron in these Common Commemorations is determined according to his rank.[1] As to these Common Commemorations, see Chapter XXXV.

Chapter X. Of Transferences.

If any Double Feast fall upon a Sunday in Advent, or upon any Sunday between Septuagesima and Low Sunday, both inclusive, upon Christmas Eve and Christmas Day, upon New Year's Day, from Jan. 6 to 13, both inclusive, on Ash Wednesday, in Holy Week, or Easter Week, on Ascension Day, or any day from Whitsun Eve to Trinity Sunday, both inclusive, on Corpus Christi or its Octave, on the Feast of the Most Sacred Heart of Jesus, on Dec. 8, on Lady Day, on Aug. 15, on Midsummer Day, on March 19, on June 29, or on Nov. 1, then such Feast is transferred to the nearest day which is not occupied by a Double or Semi-double. The only exception is that Midsummer Day and the Feast of SS. Peter and Paul may be kept upon the Octave of Corpus Christi or on the Feast of the Most Sacred Heart of Jesus. Moreover, the special Feast of a particular Church or place may, but only in that particular Church or place, be kept upon the Second, Third, and Fourth Sundays of Lent and Advent, upon Septuagesima, Sexagesima, and Quinquagesima, and upon a day within the Octave of Twelfth-Day.[2] A solemn primary Feast occurring on the Feast of the Most Sacred Heart of Jesus will take precedence of the latter. Candlemas Day possesses this special privilege, viz., that if it fall on a Sunday of the Second Class, it is transferred only to Monday, however occupied. Moreover, if Midsummer Day be Corpus Christi, the Feast of St John is transferred only to the next day, and has Commemoration of the Octave. St John is only commemorated in the Second Vespers of Corpus Christi, and on the following days the Office is of the Octave of Corpus Christi, with Commemoration of the Octave of St John. In this case July 1 is reckoned to be the Octave-day of both, and the Service is of the Octave-day of Corpus Christi, with a Commemoration of the Octave-day of St John at both Vespers and at Lauds.

The above rule is invariable. If a Feast which has an Octave is transferred, its Octave is not transferred with it; all is done as if the Feast had occupied its usual place. And if the Feast be transferred beyond what would ordinarily be its own Octave-day, it is that year kept without any Octave at all; unless, indeed, it be a Feast which has some local privilege to the contrary.

Ordinary or lesser Doubles, with the exception of the Feasts of those Saints who are styled Doctors of the Church, are not transferred if their observance is impeded by that of some Sunday or greater Festival or Office, but upon their own day they have a Commemoration at both Vespers and at Lauds, and the Ninth Lesson at Mattins,—that is to say, if the rules applicable to the Feasts superseding them permit of such Commemoration; if not, such Double Feast is for that year entirely omitted (see Chapter IX. par. 7-10, and par. 8 of the present Chapter.) The same rules apply to any other Double Feasts for which it may be impossible to find any day within the year to which to transfer them. When ordinary or lesser Double Feasts, even though they are not of Doctors, are impeded every year by a higher Office, they are permanently fixed on the first free day.

2. If a Double of the First or Second Class as enumerated in Chap. IX. par. 5, 6, fall upon an Octave-day, the Service is of the Festival with Commemoration of the Octave, unless the day be New Year's Day or January 13; any Festival falling upon these two days must be transferred; but if the Festival falling upon the Octave-day be not of the First or Second Class, it is transferred if it be a Greater Double, or the Feast of a Doctor of the Church; if not, it is reduced to a mere Commemoration at both Vespers and at Lauds with the Ninth Lesson at Mattins as above.

3. If some Double[1] Feast falling within an Octave is superseded by some higher Feast, it is transferred to the next day not similarly occupied, if it be of the Second Class, or a Greater Double, or the Feast of a Doctor of the Church, and is kept with Commemoration of the Octave.[2] If it be an ordinary lesser Double, it is simply reduced to Commemoration at both Vespers and Lauds, with the Ninth Lesson at Mattins, as above.

4. Sundays within the year other than those above mentioned are superseded even by an ordinary or lesser Double Feast. The Sunday then has a Commemoration at both Vespers and Lauds, and a Ninth Lesson at Mattins. See Chap. IX.

5. If a Semi-double Feast fall upon any of the days above enumerated, or within the Octave of Corpus Christi, or upon any Sunday, it either has a Commemoration at both Vespers and at Lauds, and the historical Lessons of its Second Nocturn are read as one for the Ninth Lesson at Mattins, or it is totally omitted as above directed in the case of ordinary or lesser Doubles. But if a Semi-double Feast is impeded every year by a higher Office, it is permanently fixed on the first free day, as in the case of ordinary or lesser Double Feasts.

6. If two or more Feasts of Nine Lessons fall on the same day, the higher in rank is observed, and the others commemorated as above. If they are all of the same rank, a Primary Feast will take precedence of a Secondary, and generally the more worthy or solemn is observed, and the others reduced to a mere Commemoration or omitted altogether, unless they be Feasts of Doctors of the Church or higher, when they are transferred.

7. If several are to be transferred, the order of precedence is observed as above, and, lastly, if none is more worthy or solemn than another, they are taken by priority of date.

8. A Simple Feast is never transferred. If it comes on a day when it cannot be kept, it is commemorated, and if it cannot be commemorated, it is omitted altogether.

9. If a Feast of Nine Lessons which has the Commemoration of a Simple be transferred, the Commemoration is not transferred with it, but is made, if it can be made, upon its own day, with the Ninth Lesson, if it have one, and the Office of the day admits of it. The Feast to which it was originally joined is utterly divorced from it. And the same rule applies to a Commemoration made on an Eve, if the Feast to which the Eve belongs fall on Monday, and so the Eve be kept on Saturday; the Commemoration of the Simple stands unchanged for the Sunday.

CHAPTER XI. OF CONCURRENCE.

By Concurrence (as opposed to Occurrence, which is two Offices falling on the same day,) is meant the case of the Second Vespers of one Office falling on the same evening as the First Vespers of another.

2. If they are two Doubles of the same rank, the Vespers are divided; the former is observed up to the Chapter, and the latter from the Chapter, inclusive[3]—unless there be some special direction to the contrary. If they are not of the same rank, they are treated according to Chapters IX. and X. Hence the highest class have the whole of both First and Second Vespers, with a Commemoration, if proper, of lesser Feasts. But if the Second Vespers of a Feast of the Second Class fall on the same evening as the First Vespers of a Feast of the First Class, then the whole is of the Feast of the First Class, with a Commemoration of the Feast of the Second Class. As regards precedence, among Feasts of the same Class, the Feasts of our Lord go before all others, so as to have the whole of both Vespers; so those of the Blessed Virgin go before those of other Saints; so also those of Angels, of St Joseph, and of the Apostles [and Evangelists] before others; and those of Saints particularly venerated in the place before the rest.

3. If the Second Vespers of a Double fall on the same evening with the First Vespers of a Semi-double, a Sunday, a day within an Octave, a Simple Feast, or the Simple Office of the Blessed Virgin on Saturday, the Service is all of the Double, with a Commemoration of the other, unless indeed it be one of those Doubles which, according to Chapter IX., exclude certain Commemorations. When the day after any Office of Nine Lessons is a Week-day kept as such, no notice of the Week-day so ensuing is taken in the Second Vespers of the Feast; but if it be in Advent or Lent, the Week-day is commemorated as usual. Also a Commemoration is made of a Simple which is to be commemorated in the First Vespers of an Office of Nine Lessons occupying the next day, although this Commemoration cannot be said to proceed from the Second Vespers of the former Office of Nine Lessons concurring with the First Vespers of the Simple, seeing that the Simple has no Office, but is because the Simple occurs on the same day with the latter Office of Nine Lessons.

4. If the Second Vespers of a Semi-double, of a Sunday, or of a day within an Octave fall on the same evening with the First Vespers of a Double, the Service is all of the Double, with a Commemoration of the other, unless the Double be one of those which, according to Chapter IX., exclude such Commemoration. If the Second Vespers of a Semi-double fall on the same evening with the First Vespers of another Semi-double or of a Sunday, the Service is of the former up to the Chapter, and of the latter, from the Chapter, inclusive. But if the Second Vespers of a Semi-double fall on the same evening with the First Vespers of a day within an Octave, the Service is all of the former, with a Commemoration of the latter. But if the Second Vespers of a Semi-double fall on the same evening with the First Vespers of a Simple, or of the Simple Office

[1] This must be understood of the Feast of a Doctor of the Church, of a Greater Double, a Double of the Second Class, or of a Double of the First Class as mentioned in the latter part of IX. 3. The end of this paragraph contains a special direction for the suppression instead of the transference of the ordinary or lesser Doubles.

[2] That is, if it is not transferred beyond it.

[3] The Frontal and Vestments are, from the beginning, of the colour which will be proper at the Song of the Blessed Virgin.

of the Blessed Virgin on Saturday, the Service is all of the former, with a Commemoration of the latter.

5. If the First Vespers of a Semi-double, a day within an Octave, or a Simple, fall on Sunday evening, the Service is all of Sunday, with a Commemoration of the other.

6. If the Second Vespers of a day within an Octave fall upon the same evening with the First Vespers of a Sunday, the Service is of the former up to the Chapter, and of the latter, from the Chapter, inclusive, with a Commemoration of the Octave. If the Second Vespers of a day within an Octave falls upon the same evening with the First Vespers of a Semi-double, the Service is all of the latter, with a Commemoration of the Octave. Second Vespers of a day within an Octave can never properly be said to fall on the same evening with the First Vespers of a Simple, because a Simple in such a position is always deprived of its Office by that of the next day, but there is a Commemoration, just as there is at the next Lauds.

7. If the Second Vespers of one Octave-day fall on the same evening with the First Vespers of another Octave-day, other things being equal, the Service is of the latter, from the Chapter inclusive, with a Commemoration of the former, except when the Second Vespers of the Octave of Corpus Christi fall on the same evening with the First Vespers of the Octave of St John the Baptist, when the Service is all of Corpus Christi, with a Commemoration of St John, (which Commemoration is made though the Feast of the Most Sacred Heart occur), and except also when special directions are given. If the Second Vespers of an Octave-day fall on the same evening with the First Vespers of a Common Double, (even one which has got there by transference,) other things being equal, the Service is of the Octave-day up to the Chapter, and of the ensuing Double, from the Chapter, inclusive—except the Octave-days of the Primary Feasts of the Blessed Virgin, of the Feasts of the Holy Angels, of St John the Baptist, of St Joseph, and of Apostles, which Octaves have the whole Service, the Double being only commemorated. But if the ensuing Feast be a Greater Double, (even one there by transference,) such Double has the whole Service, with a Commemoration of the Octave—except in the case of the Octave-days of Twelfth-Day, of Easter Day, of the Ascension, and of other primary Feasts of our Lord, when the ensuing Feast is only commemorated. However, if the ensuing Feast be one of the Doubles enumerated in Chapter IX., par. 6, it has the whole Service, the Octave being only commemorated, [and if one of the highest class, there is no Commemoration.] If, however, the Feasts of which the Octaves concur are of different rite, or dignity, the Vespers will be all of the Octave of the Feast which is of higher rite, or a primary Feast, or of greater dignity, with a Commemoration of the other, and likewise when an Octave concurs with a Double, exception being always made of the Octaves of the above-named Feasts of our Lord and the Blessed Virgin.

8. A Simple never has any Second Vespers; its Office ends absolutely with None.

9. A Week-day kept as such cannot be said to have either First or Second Vespers, the Week-day Office being merely a means of filling up space between other Offices. The Commemorations made of them in Advent or Lent or at other times are by occurrence, not concurrence, and to fulfil the rule of the Church. They cannot extend before midnight; for instance, if Vespers on Shrove Tuesday were of the Week-day, the Prayer would be that of Quinquagesima Sunday, and the Long Preces would not be said.

10. However, if a Simple Feast fall on a Week-day to be kept as such (for instance, on Ash Wednesday) it is deprived of its First Vespers, and has only a Commemoration, whatever be the Office on the preceding evening, or, if it fall on Maundy Thursday, all observance of it is omitted. This is not because the Week-day has First Vespers, which is not the case, but because it would be unseemly for the Simple, which has only a Commemoration at Lauds, to have First Vespers.

CHAPTER XII. HOW TO FIND THE OFFICE FOR THE DAY.

If any one wishes to find the Office for the ensuing day,[1] let him look in the Kalendar and in the Table of Moveable Feasts,[2] and do as he finds there.

2. If the Office be of the Season, that is to say, of some Sunday or Week-day kept as such, the places to look in are the Psalter and the Proper Office of the Season; the former contains the general outline of the Service, with the Psalms, and some other things, and the latter, the Lessons and Responsories, with some Antiphons, the Prayers, &c., which are not in the Psalter. The Invitatories, Hymns, Chapters, Verses and Answers, Short Responsories and Antiphons, given in the Proper Office of the Season for certain times, are said instead of those in the Psalter; when there are no others, those in the Psalter are used.

3. If the Office be of a Saint, the place to look is the Common Office of Saints and the Proper Office of Saints; what is not in the Proper is taken from the Common. And the Lessons (not the Responsories) from Scripture are usually those from the Proper Office of the Season.[3]

CHAPTER XIII. MATTINS.

Mattins are always said in the following manner according to the Office of the day, except on certain days, when special directions are given. The "Our Father," the "Hail Mary," and the "I believe in God" are first said inaudibly. Then the Officiant makes the sign of the Cross upon his mouth with the thumb of his right hand, saying aloud at the same time, "O LORD, open Thou my lips." To which is answered, "And my mouth shall show forth Thy praise." Then he opens his hand and signs himself again, with the extended fingers, from the forehead to the breast, and from the left shoulder to the right, saying, "Make haste, O God, to deliver me." And so on, as is to be found at the beginning of the Psalter. The same rite is to be observed at the beginning of every Canonical Hour.

---

[1] Which is reckoned to begin with Vespers.

[2] But this process is now always superseded by the simple plan of consulting the Ordo Recitandi Divini Officii, or Ecclesiastical Kalendar, published yearly in all dioceses of the Latin Church. In this translation of the Breviary the Table of Moveable Feasts is omitted, as it is entirely useless, owing to the multiplicity of yearly almanacks.

[3] Here follow six more paragraphs, describing the contents of the book, which it appears unnecessary to translate.

Then is said the Invitatory proper to the Office of the day, either of the Season or of a Feast, with the Psalm, "O come, let us sing unto the Lord,"—all as is to be found at the beginning of the Psalter.[1] When the Psalm is done, and the Invitatory repeated for the last time, the Hymn proper to the Office of the day is recited.

2. After this, upon all Doubles and Semi-doubles follow nine Psalms, (upon Sundays there are more, as will be found in the Psalter,) with the Antiphons and Verses proper to the Office of the day, either of the Season or Feast, together with nine Lessons, and either eight or nine Responsories, as marked in the proper place. The whole is divided into Three Nocturns, as follows—

3. In the First Nocturn are said three Psalms with three Antiphons, after every Psalm an Antiphon: but in the Easter-time, that is, from Low Sunday to Whitsun Day, (except in the Office of the Ascension,) the three Psalms of each Nocturn are said with only one Antiphon, which is repeated after the third Psalm. At the end of the Antiphon after the third Psalm in each Nocturn, is said a Verse and Response, then the "Our Father,"—"And lead us not into temptation," to which is answered, "But deliver us from evil," then the Absolution, that is, the Prayer "Graciously hear," then the Blessing is asked and pronounced, "May the Eternal Father," and the other forms which are marked for the first and every other Lesson. After this are read three Lessons from Scripture, which are those proper to the Season, unless special Lessons are assigned. After each Lesson follows a Responsory taken from the Office of the day, which is always the case, whatever the Lessons be; as, for instance, on a Saint's Day when no special Lessons are assigned and the three Lessons from Scripture are accordingly taken from the Proper Office of the Season, the Responsories are nevertheless taken from the Office of the Saint.

4. In the last Responsory of each Nocturn is said "Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, and to the Holy Ghost," (without "As it was in the beginning, &c.") And then part of the Responsory is repeated again, unless a direction be given to the contrary.

5. In the Second Nocturn are said three more Psalms, with Antiphons, a Verse and Response, the "Our Father—And lead us not into temptation." Answer, "But deliver us from evil," the Absolution, "May His grace and mercy," the Blessings, and the rest, with three more Lessons, taken from some discourse, or from the Life of the Saint whose Office is being said, if it be a Saint's Day, and after each Lesson a Responsory.

6. In the Third Nocturn are said three more Psalms, with Antiphons, a Verse and Response, the "Our Father—And lead us not into temptation," Answer, "But deliver us from evil," the Absolution, "May the Almighty," the Blessings, and the rest, as before, with three more Lessons taken from some Commentary on the Gospel for the day or Feast. After the two first Lessons (that is, the seventh and eighth of the whole) is said a Responsory, one after each. Sometimes there is also a Responsory said after the third (ninth) Lesson, which will be found marked in its proper place. In the last Responsory, whether it be the eighth or ninth, is said the "Glory be to the Father" as in the third and sixth, unless the contrary is specially directed. If there is no ninth Responsory, the last lesson is immediately followed by the Hymn, "We praise Thee, O God."

7. On plain Week-days and Simple Feasts only three Lessons are read. In that case the Office is the same as above, except that instead of three Nocturns only one is said. This Nocturn is always that of the Week-day, whether the Office be said of the Week-day or of a Saint, and consists of twelve Psalms, and six Antiphons arranged as in the Psalter. In the Easter-time there is only one Antiphon, that is "Alleluia."

8. After the Psalms and Antiphons follows a Verse and Response. This is to be found in the Psalter, if the Office be of a Week-day. If the Office is of a Saint, it is taken from the Common of Saints of that Class, which is to be found in the same place. Then is said the "Our Father—And lead us not into temptation," Answer, "But deliver us from evil," an Absolution and Blessing, &c., as will be laid down more at length in the Chapter on Absolutions and Blessings. Then are read three Lessons. If the Office is of a Week-day, these are all from the Scripture, as appointed for the Season. If the Office is of a Saint, if there is one special Lesson appointed, the two first only are of Scripture, in which case the third may be read along with the second, as one, at option; if two special Lessons be appointed, then only the first Lesson is from Scripture, in which case the whole three may be read together as one.

9. After each Lesson is said a Responsory; if the Office be of the Week-day, they will be found marked after the Lessons; if the Office be of a Feast they are taken from the Common of Saints of the Class according to the rule given in Chapter XXVII., as will be laid down more at length in the chapter on Verses and Responsories. In the case of a Saint's Day, it will be observed that only two Responsories are said, the third Lesson being followed by the Hymn "We praise Thee, O God." The same is the case in Easter-time. In both these cases therefore the second Responsory, being the last, is said with the "Glory be to the Father, &c.," and the partial repetition of the Responsory itself.

Chapter XIV. Lauds.

When the Hymn "We praise Thee, O God," or the ninth Responsory, as the case may be, has been said, the Officiant makes the sign of the Cross, saying, "Make haste, O God, to deliver me," to which is answered, "Make haste to help me, O Lord," and so on, as at Mattins. But instead of the Invitatory there follow at once the Psalms, with the Canticle, (which is on Sundays the Song of the Three Children in the burning fiery furnace, "O all ye works of the Lord,") all as contained in the Psalter, with the Antiphons proper to the Office of the day. The same Psalms and Canticle are said upon every Sunday in the year, on every day in Easter-time, and upon every Feast whatsoever, even Simples, except only the Sundays from Septuagesima to Palm Sunday inclusively. Upon the Sundays from Septuagesima to Palm Sunday inclusively the Office is said as marked in its proper place. The Office on Week-days not in Easter-time is said as given in the Psalter.

[1] These invitatories vary with the Office, but are invariably divided into two portions by an asterisk (*). The entire invitatory is repeated twice before the Psalm, and once after the first, third, and fifth of the five sections (each consisting of two verses) into which the Psalm is divided. After the second and fourth sections, is repeated only that part of the Invitatory which follows the asterisk, and which usually, though not always, consists of the words, "O come, let us worship Him." The Psalm finished and the entire Invitatory repeated, the doxology of two verses is said as another section, and then is repeated first the second portion of the Invitatory, and then the whole of it once more.

2. If no proper Antiphons are assigned, if the Office be of the Sunday, those are said which are given in the Psalter; if the Office be of a Feast, Double or Simple, they are taken from the Common of Saints of that Class. After the Psalms follow the Chapter, the Hymn, the Verse and Response, the Antiphon for the Canticle "Blessed be the Lord God of Israel," the said Canticle itself, and the Prayer; all taken from the Office of the day.

3. When the short Responsory prayers called the "Preces" are to be said, they are said before the Prayer; and when the Antiphons, Verses, Responses and Prayers in memory of the Cross, of the Blessed Virgin Mary, of St Joseph, of the Apostles, of the Patron of the Church, Country, Diocese or Place, and for Peace are to be said, they are said after the Prayer of the day. If a Prayer is likewise to be said in memory of some Saint with a Simple Feast, such Prayer is to be said, with its proper Antiphon, Verse and Response, before the Commemoration of the Cross; for which fuller directions are given in the special chapter on the subject.

4. Before the Prayer the Officiant always says, "Hear my prayer, O Lord," to which is answered, "And let my cry come unto Thee."[1] Then he says, "Let us pray," and proceeds. After the last Prayer is again said, "Hear my prayer, O Lord," Answer, "And let my cry come unto Thee."[1] Then, "Bless we the Lord," Answer, "Thanks be to God." "May the souls of the faithful, through the mercy of God, rest in peace," Answer, "Amen." If the Office is not to be at once continued, the "Our Father" is then recited inaudibly; after which the Officiant says, "The Lord give us His peace," Answer, "And life eternal. Amen." After this, one of the Antiphons of the Blessed Virgin Mary, from the end of Compline, is said, unless Mass, the Office of the Dead, the Penitential Psalms, or the Litany are to follow at once. If the Office is to be continued, the Antiphon of the Blessed Virgin is said when it is over. Respecting the Office of the Dead, the Penitential Psalms and the Litany, directions are given in their proper place.

CHAPTER XV. PRIME.

At the beginning of Prime the "Our Father," the "Hail, Mary," and the "I believe in God" are said inaudibly. Then follows, "Make haste, O God, to deliver me," and the rest precisely as at Lauds. But after the "Alleluia," or, "Ceaseless praise, &c.," is said the Hymn, "The Star of morn, &c." Then follow the Psalms, as appointed in the Psalter, according to the day of the week, except on Feasts and in Easter-time, when the Psalms said are the three (1) Ps. liii. "Save me, O God, by Thy Name," (2) Ps. cxviii. 1-16, "Blessed are the undefiled—I will not forget Thy word," and (3) Ps. cxviii. 17-32, "Deal bountifully with Thy servant—Thou hast enlarged my heart." Only one Antiphon is said after all the Psalms, which Antiphon is the same as the first Antiphon at Lauds.

Here it is to be observed that only one Antiphon is said at Prime, Terce, Sext, and None, one to each, which Antiphon on Feasts is the same as the first, second, third, and fifth at Lauds, respectively; but this matter is treated of more fully further on in the chapter on Antiphons.

2. Immediately after the Antiphon on every Sunday in the year, on every day in Easter-time, and on every Feast whatsoever, even Simples, is read the Chapter from 1 Tim. i. 17, "Unto the King Eternal." When the Office is said of a Week-day not in Easter-time, the Chapter is the one from Zacharias viii. 19, "Love peace." Then follows the short Responsory: "Christ, Thou Son of the Living God, have mercy on us." After the short Responsory, if the Office be not of a Double or within an Octave, follow the short Responsory prayers called the "Preces," which begin, "Lord, have mercy upon us," as given in the Psalter. When the Officiant says the words, "Our help is in the Name of the Lord," he makes the sign of the Cross from his forehead to his breast. Then follows the "I confess to God Almighty," "Almighty God, have mercy on us," "May the Almighty and Merciful Lord."[2] When the Office is of a Week-day and Preces have been said at Lauds, other Preces are added, as may be found in the Psalter in the Office of Prime on Week-days. But if the Office of the day be Double or within an Octave, the Preces are entirely omitted, with the Confession, and the Officiant, immediately after the short Responsory, says, "Hear my prayer, O Lord," Answer, "And let my cry come unto Thee," "Let us pray," and he says the Prayer, "O Lord God Almighty."

3. Then, if the Little Office of the Blessed Virgin is said, it is done at once; otherwise after the Prayer "O Lord God Almighty," is repeated "Hear my prayer, O Lord," Answer, "And let my cry come unto Thee," then, "Bless we the Lord," Answer, "Thanks be to God," and in choir the Martyrology for the day is read at once. All that follows, beginning with "Precious in the sight of the Lord," is to be said by all in or out of choir, whether they have read the Martyrology or not. At the end is read one of the short Lessons, varying with the Season, which are to be found in the Psalter at the end of Prime. But on Feasts and some other days, instead of one of these short Lessons is read the Chapter appointed for None; which days are marked in their place.

CHAPTER XVI. TERCE, SEXT, AND NONE.

Terce, Sext, and None are all similar to one another. At the beginning the "Our Father" and the "Hail, Mary" are said inaudibly. Then follows, "Make haste, O God, to deliver me," and the rest as at Mattins, Lauds, and Prime. After the "Alleluia" or "Ceaseless praise, &c.," follow the Hymn and the Psalms, as given in the Psalter. One Antiphon is said at each Hour, taken on Feasts and some other occasions from Lauds, viz., at Terce the second, at Sext the third, and at None the fifth, as described above. After the Psalms and Antiphons are said the Chapter and the short Responsory, according to the Office of the day; on Sundays and Week-days they are either specially assigned in the Proper Office of the Season, or are read as in the Psalter; on Feasts they are either special, or taken from the Common of Saints of that Class. After the short Responsory the Officiant says, "Hear my prayer, O LORD," Answer, "And let my cry come unto Thee," "Let us pray," and he says the proper Prayer of the day.

---

[1] Instead of this a person in or above Deacon's orders says, "The Lord be with you," and is answered, "And with thy spirit."

[2] Here follow in the original some directions for the saying of the Confession by clergymen, before others, and alone.

2. After the Prayer is repeated "Hear my prayer, O LORD," Answer, "And let my cry come unto Thee." Then, "Bless we the Lord," Answer, "Thanks be to God," "May the souls of the faithful, through the mercy of God, rest in peace," Answer, "Amen." The "Our Father" is then recited inaudibly; as will be more fully explained hereafter in the chapter on the Lord's Prayer and the Angelic Salutation.

CHAPTER XVII. VESPERS.

Vespers begin the same as Terce, Sext, and None; but immediately after the "Alleluia" or "Ceaseless praise, &c.," there are said five Psalms, with the same number of Antiphons, taken from the Office of the day; but it is to be observed that the Antiphons on Sundays and Week-days observed as such, are almost invariably those in the Psalter.

2. After the Psalms and Antiphons follow the Chapter, the Hymn, the Verse and Response, the Antiphon for the Canticle "My soul doth magnify the Lord," the said Canticle itself, and the Prayer; all taken from the Office of the day.

3. When the Preces are to be said, they are said before the Prayer; and when the Commemorations of the Cross, of the Blessed Virgin Mary, of St Joseph, the Apostles, and of the Patron of the Church, Country, Diocese, or Place, and the Prayer for Peace, are to be said, they are said after the Prayer of the day. Vespers conclude in the same way as Terce, Sext, and None.

CHAPTER XVIII. COMPLINE.

The Blessing having been asked and pronounced, Compline begins at once with the short Lesson, as given in the Psalter. Then follow, "Our help is in the Name of the LORD," Answer, "Who hath made heaven and earth." Then the "Our Father" inaudibly, the "I confess to God Almighty," "Almighty God, have mercy on us," "May the Almighty and merciful Lord," then "Turn us, O God of our salvation," Answer, "And cause Thine anger toward us to cease," "Make haste, O God, to deliver me," and so on, followed by the Psalms, (which are always the same) under one Antiphon, the Hymn, the Chapter, the short Responsory, and the Canticle, "Lord, now lettest Thou Thy servant," with its own Antiphon, all as is to be found at the end of the Psalter. After the Antiphon "Save us," if the Office is not Double or within an Octave are said the Preces, which begin "Lord, have mercy upon us;" but if the Office be Double or within an Octave, the Officiant says at once, "Hear my prayer, O LORD," Answer, "And let my cry come unto Thee," "Let us pray," and he proceeds with the Prayer, "Visit, O Lord, we beseech Thee," and the rest, exactly as in the Psalter.

2. After the Verse, "May Almighty God," follows one of the Antiphons of the Blessed Virgin Mary, with its Verse and Response, and Prayer, according to the Season, as is to be found at the end of the Psalter, after Compline. And after the Verse, "God's most mighty," the "Our Father," the "Hail, Mary," and the "I believe in God," are said inaudibly.

CHAPTER XIX. THE INVITATORY.

In every Office an Invitatory is said at Mattins, with the Psalm, "O come, let us sing unto the LORD," in the manner in which it will be found given for ordinary Sundays, at the beginning of the Psalter. The Invitatory varies with the Office, with which it will be found either in the Psalter or the Office proper to the particular Season, or in the Proper, or Common Office of Saints.

2. The only exception is on Twelfth-Day, and on Maundy Thursday, Good Friday, and Holy Saturday, when Mattins begin immediately after the "I believe in God" with the Antiphon for the first Psalm of the Nocturns. Likewise no Invitatory is said at the beginning of a dirge, except on All Souls' Day, the day of death or burial, and when the whole three Nocturns of the Dirge are to be said.

CHAPTER XX. THE HYMNS.

A Hymn is said at each of the Canonical Hours, except in the Office of the Dead, and from Maundy Thursday inclusively to the Vespers of Saturday before Low Sunday exclusively.

2. At Mattins the Hymn is said immediately after the last repetition of the Invitatory, except on Twelfth-Day, when the Office begins as mentioned in the last chapter; at Lauds and Vespers it is said after the Chapter; at Prime, Terce, Sext, and None it is said before the Psalms; and at Compline after the Psalms.

3. The Hymns in the Psalter are said if the Office is of a Sunday or a Week-day, when no special Hymns are appointed in the Proper Office of the Season, that is, from the Octave of Whitsun Day to Advent (excepting only the Sunday within the Octave of Corpus Christi) and from the Octave of Twelfth-Day to the first Sunday in Lent, exclusively. If the Office is of a Feast, the Hymns are either special, or taken from the Office common to all Saints of the particular Class. When a Feast has three special historic Hymns, and the special Hymn cannot be said in First Vespers, then this Hymn is said at Mattins, the Hymn for Mattins at Lauds, and the Hymn for Lauds at Second Vespers; but if the Second Vespers are not of such Feast, the Hymn for Vespers is joined to the Hymn for Mattins, with one common concluding Verse.

4. From Christmas to Twelfth-Day, on Corpus Christi and throughout the Octave, and whenever the Office is said of the Blessed Virgin Mary, even in Easter-time, and whether with nine or three Lessons, the last verse of the Hymns [at Prime, Terce, Sext, None, and Compline] is altered in honour of the Incarnation.[1]

[1] The divergence of this translation from the original in the matter of these alterations is explained in the Translator's Preface.

5. Likewise on Twelfth-Day and throughout the Octave the last verse of these Hymns is altered in honour of the Revelation of our Lord to the Gentiles.

6. From Low Sunday to Ascension Day, on Whitsun Day and throughout the Octave, the last verse of these Hymns is altered in honour of the Resurrection of our Lord from the dead.

7. On Ascension Day and until Whitsun Day the last verse of these Hymns is altered in honour of the Ascension of our Lord into Heaven.

8. On the Feast of the Transfiguration of our Lord the last verse of these Hymns is altered in honour of that Mystery. These are the only changes which the Hymns ever undergo.

CHAPTER XXI. THE ANTIPHONS.

Throughout the whole of the Divine Office the Psalms are never said without Antiphons, either for each Psalm or each group of Psalms; which Antiphons vary with the Office of the day.

2. Except in Advent and Easter-time, if the Office be of a Sunday or Week-day, at Mattins, Vespers, and Compline, those Antiphons are said which are to be found in the Psalter, even when the day is a Simple Feast. In Advent special Antiphons are given in the Office proper to that Season, and in Easter-time only one Antiphon is said, that is, "Alleluia." At Lauds, Prime, Terce, Sext, and None those Antiphons are said which are appointed in the Proper Office of the Season, and if none are so appointed, those are said which are given in the Psalter.

3. When the first Sunday of any particular month is mentioned, that Sunday is meant which is on or nearest to, either before or after, the first day of the month named. And at Vespers on the Saturday the Antiphon for the Canticle, "My soul doth magnify the Lord," is to be taken from the Sunday, and will be found with the Sunday in its proper place. This Saturday Antiphon is always taken from that book of Scripture which is to be read at Mattins on the Sunday.

4. On all days when nine Lessons are read the Antiphons at Vespers are the same as those at Lauds, unless special ones are appointed. And likewise at Prime, Terce, Sext, and None, if special Antiphons are not appointed, when Lauds has had proper Antiphons, these are taken in turn, one to each Hour, omitting the fourth; so that the first Antiphon is said at Prime, the second at Terce, the third at Sext, and the fifth at None. All which has been explained before in Chapter XVI.

5. On Week-days in Advent, if there are no proper Antiphons at Lauds, the Antiphons for the four short Hours are taken from the Lauds of the Sunday before.

6. In Easter-time, whether the Office for the day has nine Lessons or three, there is only one Antiphon to each Nocturn, which Antiphon is to be found in the Psalter, or in its proper place. Likewise in Easter-time the word "Alleluia" is added to every Antiphon said, if it be not there already. On the contrary, from Septuagesima to Easter, if the word "Alleluia" occur it is omitted, and nothing is said in its place.

7. Upon Double Feasts at Mattins, Lauds, and Vespers (but not at Prime, Terce, Sext, None, and Compline,) the Antiphons are said from beginning to end before, as well as after, the Psalms and Canticles. And this is one of the reasons why these Feasts get the name of Doubles. At the short Hours on these days and throughout the whole Office on Semi-doubles, Simples, and Week-days, the first words only of the Antiphon are said before the Psalm, but it is said entire at the end. Should the Antiphon happen to consist of the opening words of the Psalm or Canticle to which it belongs, the beginning of such Psalm or Canticle is not repeated. Such Psalm or Canticle in that case begins with the next words after those which form the Antiphon. This does not cause any difference in the rule as to whether the Antiphon is to be said before the Psalm entire or not. As, for instance, the first Psalm at Vespers on Sunday is Psalm cix., which begins, "The LORD said unto my Lord, Sit Thou at My right hand, Until I make Thine enemies Thy footstool," to which the Antiphon is, "The LORD said unto my Lord, Sit Thou at My right hand." As it is a Semi-double, the first words only of the Antiphon are said before the Psalm, "The LORD said." Then the Psalm begins with the words, "Unto my Lord, Sit Thou at My right hand, Until I make Thine enemies Thy footstool." But if "Alleluia" occur at the end of the Antiphon or of the portion said the Psalm begins as usual.

8. Whenever proper Antiphons are given in the Office of the day, these Antiphons are invariably to be substituted for those in the Psalter, or the Common Office of each Class of Saints.

9. When a Commemoration is to be made at Lauds or Vespers, it is done by reciting once the Antiphon which would be said at Lauds at the Canticle "Blessed be the Lord God of Israel," and at Vespers at the Canticle "My soul doth magnify the Lord," with the Verse and Response which would follow the Hymn, and the Prayer which would be said, were the Office of that of which the Commemoration is made.

10. The Antiphons of the Blessed Virgin Mary, with their Verses and Responses and Prayers, which are to be found after Compline, are said as directed further on in Chapter XXXVI.

CHAPTER XXII. THE PSALMS.

Upon Sundays and Week-days the Psalms are said as they are arranged in the Psalter, unless some special direction to the contrary is given in the Office for the Season. On Feasts the Psalms are said as directed in the Proper Office, or in the Common of the Saints of each Class.

2. The Psalms appointed for Lauds on Sunday, with the Canticle "O all ye Works of the Lord," are said also on every Feast in the year, and on every day whatsoever in Easter-time.

3. At Prime the Psalm "O give thanks unto the LORD," and the others there given are said on every Sunday when the Office is of the Sunday, even if it be within an Octave, from the third Sunday after Whitsun Day inclusively till Christmas exclusively, and likewise from the second Sunday after Twelfth-Day inclusively till Septuagesima exclusively. From Septuagesima till Easter is said instead Psalm xcii.,

"The Lord reigneth," because the Psalm "O give thanks unto the Lord" is at that time said at Lauds after Psalm l., "Have mercy upon me, O God," as will be found directed in the proper place. Upon the Sundays from Low Sunday inclusively to Ascension Day exclusively are said the three Psalms, "Save me, O God, by Thy Name," "Blessed are the undefiled," and "Deal bountifully with Thy servant," as on Feasts, but with the addition of the Creed of St Athanasius. Outside Easter-time when the Office is of a Week-day, there is substituted for the Psalm "O give thanks unto the Lord" one of those which are given in the Psalter for that purpose, under the heading of the Office for Prime on Week-days. But on every day in Easter-time, upon every Feast-day in the year, and on every Saturday, whether the Office be of the Blessed Virgin or of the Saturday, even if a Double Feast is to be kept on the Sunday, the Psalms said are the three, "Save me, O God, by Thy Name," "Blessed are the undefiled," and "Deal bountifully with Thy servant."

4. On every Sunday in the year if the Office is of the Sunday, the Creed of St Athanasius, "Whosoever will be saved," is added to the Psalms at Prime, as is directed in Chapter XXXIII.

5. At Terce, Sext, None, and Compline the Psalms are the same on every day in the year.

6. It is to be remarked that the first four Psalms at Vespers on Sundays are likewise said on nearly every Feast in the year. The fifth changes much oftener. But these changes, whether of the fifth or of any of the first four, are all marked in their proper place. If a Feast has an Octave, the same Psalms are said every day at Vespers during the Octave as have been said at the Second Vespers of the Feast, except on the evening of the seventh day, being the First Vespers of the Octave-day, when the Vespers are the same as the First Vespers of the Feast.

7. At the end of every Psalm is said this Hymn:

"Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, * and to the Holy Ghost.

"As it was in the beginning, is now, and ever shall be, world without end. Amen."

Except at the end of Psalms lxii., "O God, Thou art my God: early will I seek Thee," and cxlviii., "Praise ye the Lord from the heavens," which are severally united in groups with others, in which case the "Glory be to the Father" and the Antiphon are said after the group, as if that were only one Psalm. Moreover, the "Glory be to the Father" is not said at the end of the Psalms on Maundy Thursday, Good Friday, and Holy Saturday, nor in the Office for the Dead. In the latter case there is said instead:

"O Lord, give them eternal rest,
"And let the everlasting light shine upon them."

Which words are said in the plural even though the Office is being recited for one dead person.

8. For the sake of uniformity an asterisk (*) is put in the middle of every verse where the pause is to be made in saying or singing.

Chapter XXIII. The Canticles.

Canticles are said every day at Lauds, Vespers, and Compline. When the Office is of a Sunday or Week-day these are as given in the Psalter.

2. On all Feasts whatsoever, and every day in Easter-time, the first Canticle at Lauds is the same as on Sundays, that is, "O all ye Works of the Lord," at the end of which the "Glory be to the Father" is not said as it is at the end of the other Canticles, nor is "Amen" answered. The other Canticles which are appointed in the Psalter for Lauds on Week-days are said only when the Office is of the Week-day out of Easter-time.

3. The three Canticles, "Blessed be the Lord God of Israel," "My soul doth magnify the Lord," and "Lord, now lettest Thou Thy servant," are always said every day at Lauds, Vespers, and Compline respectively.

Chapter XXIV. The Verses and Responses.

A Verse and Response are always said at Mattins after the last Psalm and Antiphon of each Nocturn, whether there be one or three. At Lauds and Vespers they are said immediately after the Hymn. At Prime, Terce, Sext, None, and Compline they are said together with the short Responsory, at the end, after the "Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, and to the Holy Ghost," and the repetition.

2. On Easter Sunday and till the Vespers of the Saturday before Low Sunday, the Verse and Response are said only at Mattins.

3. In Commemorations a Verse and Response are said as prescribed in Chapter XXI. 9, "On Antiphons."

4. In Easter-time the word "Alleluia" is added to every Verse and every Response, except those which form part of Preces, those at Prime, "V. Precious in the sight of the Lord. R. Is the death of His Saints," and those which form part of the Responsories at Mattins.

5. In the Office of a Simple Feast, when there is only one Nocturn, the Verse and Response which follow it are taken from the Office Common to Saints of that Class. On Mondays and Thursdays they are taken from the First Nocturn of the Common Office; on Tuesdays and Fridays from the Second; on Wednesdays from the Third.

6. If special Verses and Responses are not assigned for Lauds and Vespers, those are said which are given in the Psalter.

Chapter XXV. The Absolutions and Blessings before the Lessons.

At Mattins when nine Lessons are read they are preceded by Absolutions and Blessings as given in the Psalter; the only exception being the Dirge, and the Mattins of Maundy Thursday, Good Friday, and Holy Saturday, called the Office of the Darkness, in which cases they are altogether omitted.

2. When only three Lessons are read, if they are all from Scripture, the Absolution and Blessings will be, on Monday and Thursday, "Graciously hear," "May the Eternal Father," "May the Son," and "May the grace;" on Tuesday and Friday, "May His loving-kindness and mercy," "God the Father," "May Christ to all His people give," and "May the Spirit's fire;" and on Wednesday and Saturday, "May the Almighty and merciful Lord," "May the Gospel's," "God's most mighty," and "May He That is the Angels' King."

3. But if only three Lessons are read, and they are all from a Homily upon the Gospel for the day, the Absolution is taken as above, according to the day of the week, but the Blessings are, "May the Gospel's holy Lection," "God's most mighty," and "May He That is the Angels' King." If the Office be of a Saint, the Absolution is likewise taken according to the day of the week, but the Blessings are "May His blessing," "He whose birth-day we are keeping," and "May He That is the Angels' King."

4. When the Office on Saturday is said of the Blessed Virgin Mary, the Absolution and Blessings are those which belong to her Little Office, which will be found near the end of the Breviary, namely, "By the Prayers," "Bless us, Mary," "With the Lord," and "He to Whom."

Chapter XXVI. The Lessons.

Three Lessons are read at the end of each Nocturn of Mattins, after the Psalms and Antiphons, with a Verse and Response, Absolution, and Blessings, all as above. On Doubles and Semi-doubles there are three Nocturns, and consequently nine Lessons; on Week-days and Simples one Nocturn and three Lessons.

2. When nine Lessons are read, the first three are always out of Holy Scripture, and if no special ones are assigned, those are read which are given for that day in the Proper Office of the Season. If the Office be of a Saint, the fourth, fifth, and sixth Lesson, viz., those of the Second Nocturn, are either taken from his Life, or from some appropriate Sermon or Treatise; if no special ones are assigned, they are taken from the Office common to all Saints of that Class. If only one or two special Lessons are given, then the three are made up out of the Common, in which case it is optional to read the whole, namely, if two Lessons are to be read from the Common, to read the second and third as one, or if one, to read all three as one. If the Office be of a Sunday, or of any other day in the year having nine Lessons, or within an Octave, three proper Lessons are always assigned from some appropriate Sermon or Treatise. In the Third Nocturn are always read three Lessons from some Homily in Exposition of the Gospel for the day, which Lessons are, like the Gospel itself, either special, or, if the Office be of a Saint, most frequently from the Common of Saints. Before the first of these is always read the beginning of the Gospel which forms the subject of the Homily, even within Octaves. The only exceptions to these rules are the Dirge and the Office of the Darkness on the three nights before Easter.

3. If the Office be one of Nine Lessons, in which the Hymn "We praise Thee, O God" is to be said instead of a ninth Responsory, and some Saint who has a proper Lesson is to be commemorated, then the ninth Lesson is the Lesson of the Saint. If the Saint have two Lessons, they are read together as one in the ninth place.[1] In either case the ninth Lesson belonging to the Office of the day is either omitted, or read as one Lesson joined on to the eighth. If the day happen to be a Sunday, or a Week-day which has three Lessons on a special Gospel, then no Lesson of the Saint is read, but the ninth Lesson will be that of the Homily; and it is optional to read the three joined together as one, or the first only.

4. On a day when there are only three Lessons, if the Office be of the Week-day, they are all from the Scripture, unless special Lessons are appointed from an Homily on the Gospel, in which case these latter are read, and the Lessons from Scripture altogether omitted. If, however, the Office be of a Saint, if he has two proper Lessons they are read in the second and third places, and in the first is read the first Lesson from Scripture, or the whole three together as one. If the Saint have only one proper Lesson, that is read in the third place; the first Lesson is the first from Scripture, and the second either the second, or the second and third together. Which rule is likewise to be observed in the Office of the Blessed Virgin Mary on Saturdays.

5. Lessons from Scripture are given for nearly every day in the year, and they are always read in order, whatever the Office is, unless other Lessons be specially appointed on certain days.

6. The different books of Scripture are nearly always appointed to be begun on a Sunday. Should it happen that that day is occupied by a Feast with special Lessons, the book so prevented from being begun must be begun on the next day which is free. In this case, that the whole book may not get behind-hand, the Lessons proper to the day to which the commencement of the new book is transferred are to be read joined to them in the form of three Lessons, or else entirely omitted. If it possibly happened that even more was to be read, the total number of Lessons would be simply divided into groups in the above manner.

7. Should it happen in Easter-time that one of the Catholic Epistles, or in November, one of the Minor Prophets is prevented from being begun upon the proper day by some Feast occurring with special Lessons, it is to be begun upon the next free day, in the manner described above. Should however another book be to be begun upon the next free day, the displaced book may be begun on some day previous to its normal one. But if this is impossible, it must at any rate be read, even if another book be begun immediately. It may be remarked that in either of the latter cases the whole book may be read through at once. If two books be begun on the same day, the beginning must be the beginning of a Lesson—as, for instance, if Book A., divided into three Lessons, be transferred to the day when Book B. is begun, the Lessons will be, First, A. 1, Second, A. 2 and 3, Third, B. 1, 2, and 3.

8. Lessons from Scripture are given for as many weeks as there can be under any circumstances between Twelfth-Day and Septuagesima, and between Whitsun Day and Advent. If owing to Septuagesima falling earlier there are fewer weeks between Twelfth-Day and Septuagesima, the Lessons appointed for the superfluous weeks are simply never read at all, even though by this arrangement a certain amount of St Paul's Epistles is not read in that year at all. The same is to be done with the Lessons from the Books of Kings appointed for weeks which may not occur between the Octave of Whitsun Day and the first week in August. If, moreover, the Office for one of the Sundays after Twelfth-Day be read not on the proper Sunday but by anticipation on some other day, the Lessons read will be those of the Sunday so anticipated, and those on the following days be those for the days which follow the anticipated Sunday, the Lessons belonging to the actual days on which the anticipated Office is read being altogether omitted. And in the same manner if Lessons are appointed for five weeks in a particular month and that month happen that year to have only four, the omission must be made as directed in the special rubrics to be found in the proper place.

9. If a Feast have special Lessons from Scripture, these are always read in place of the ordinary Lessons for the day, which are not read at all, unless they are the commencement of a new book, when they are transferred, as given in sections 6 and 7. Likewise if a Feast with Nine Lessons is kept in Lent, on the Ember Days, on Rogation Monday, or on Ascension Eve, the Lessons from Scripture, that is, the first, second, and third Lessons, are taken from the Office common to Saints of the Class, because, although the Feast have not proper Lessons, there are no Lessons from Scripture belonging to the day. However if one of these days is an Octave-day, the three first Lessons will be the same as those read on the Feast of which it is the Octave. If it be a day within an Octave, the three first Lessons are those in the Common Office. And the same rule is to be observed regarding the Lessons in the other Nocturns, when they are specially arranged for the Feast, or when a Feast of Nine Lessons is being kept which has not got approved proper Lessons.

10. Unless special directions are given to the contrary, before the Lessons of the First Nocturn is given out the place from which they are taken; likewise in the Second Nocturn if the Lessons are from a Sermon or Treatise, the name of the author is announced, but not otherwise; and likewise also before the Lessons in the Third Nocturn the title of the Homily, naming the author, is given.

11. At the end of every Lesson he who has read it says, "But Thou, O Lord, have mercy upon us," to which is answered, "Thanks be to God." And the same is done after the short Lessons at the beginning of Compline, and the end of Prime (after the Verse "Precious.") The only exceptions are the Dirge, and the three nights before Easter, where special directions are given.

CHAPTER XXVII. THE RESPONSORIES AFTER THE LESSONS.

At Mattins a Responsory is said after every Lesson.

2. But on every Feast of Nine Lessons, (except that of the Holy Innocents if it falls on a Week-day,) and on every Sunday from Low Sunday inclusively to Advent Sunday exclusively, and from the Sunday after Christmas inclusively to Septuagesima exclusively, only eight regular Responsories are said, and, instead, after the ninth Lesson is said the Hymn "We praise Thee, O God." At the end of the third, sixth, and last Responsory, whether it be eighth or ninth, is said "Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, and to the Holy Ghost," (but not "As it was in the beginning, &c.,") followed by the repetition of part of the Responsory. The only exceptions are the Dirge, and Passion-tide, which are given in their place. The words "Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, and to the Holy Ghost" will sometimes be found given in the first Responsory also.

3. Nine Responsories are said on the Sundays in Advent, and between Septuagesima and Palm Sunday inclusively, and likewise on the three nights before Easter, for then the Hymn "We praise Thee, O God" is not said.

4. When three Lessons only are read, if the Office is of a Feast, and also every day in Easter-tide, namely, between Low Sunday and Ascension Day, except Rogation Monday, which has three Responsories, only two Responsories are said, because after the third Lesson is said the Hymn "We praise Thee, O God." These Responsories on Feasts are taken from the Common Office of Saints of the Class, and in Easter-time from the preceding Sunday, thus, unless proper ones be appointed—On Monday and Thursday the first and second Responsories of the First Nocturn, on Tuesday and Friday of the Second, and on Wednesday of the Third.

5. On plain Week-days out of Easter-time three Responsories are said, (because the Hymn "We praise Thee, O God" is not then said,) which are taken from the Sunday before, on Monday and Thursday from the First Nocturn, on Tuesday and Friday from the Second, and on Wednesday and Saturday (if the Office is of the Saturday) from the Third. In the Third Nocturn of the Sundays between the Third Sunday after Whitsun Day inclusively and Advent Sunday exclusively, there is only one Responsory, namely, the seventh, which can be said on a Week-day, because there is no ninth, and the Responsory "One Seraph cried unto another," which is the eighth, is only said on Sundays. In this case therefore on Wednesday and Saturday the first Responsory is the seventh of the Sunday, and the second and third are those which are to be said as the second and third of the Monday, or if none be assigned, the second and third of the First Nocturn of the Sunday. From the Octave of Twelfth-Day to Septuagesima, proper Responsories are given for every day, except the Saturdays, in which are said the Responsories of the Wednesday preceding.

6. When no special Responsories are given, they are taken from the first Sunday of the month, or the beginning of the Book of Scripture which is then being read. When proper Responsories are given for every day in the first week of the month, they are to be repeated on the same days of each succeeding week until further notice. Where proper Responsories are not given for the Week-days, they are taken from the Sunday in the order explained above.

7. If a Double Feast falls on a Sunday, and so prevents the Responsories of the First Nocturn of the Sunday being said, they are transferred to the first free day in the week, to the total omission of any proper Responsories which that Week-day may happen to have. If there is no Week-day free, they are carried on to the next Sunday, if it has none of its own; if it has, to a free day in that week. If there is no free day, they are entirely omitted. If a Week-day have proper Responsories, and they are not said by reason of a Feast, they are not carried on at all, but simply omitted.

8. In Easter-time, in the Responsory, the word "Alleluia" is inserted before the Verse.

CHAPTER XXVIII. THE SHORT RESPONSORIES IN THE HOURS.

A short Responsory is said after the Chapter at Prime, Terce, Sext, None, and Compline, except from Maundy Thursday till None on Saturday before Low Sunday inclusively, during which time it is omitted. At Prime and Compline it is always as given in the Psalter. In the other Hours it varies with the Office, and is to be found either in the Psalter or the Proper Office of the Season or Feast, or the Common of Saints.

2. At the end of the short Responsory is said "Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, and to the Holy Ghost," (but not "As it was in the beginning, &c.,") followed by the repetition of part of the Responsory. In Passion-tide this is not done, but instead the whole Responsory is repeated.

3. In the short Responsory at Prime the following changes are made—Instead of the words "Thou That sittest at the right hand of the Father," in Advent, except only the Feast of the Immaculate Conception of the Blessed Virgin Mary and its Octave, is said "Thou That art to come into the world," from Christmas to Twelfth-Day, at Corpus Christi and throughout its Octave, and in all Offices whatsoever of the Blessed Virgin Mary, and within their Octaves, if they have any, even though the Office be not of the Octave, "Thou That wast born of the Virgin Mary." On Twelfth-Day and throughout its Octave, and on the Feast of the Transfiguration, "Thou That art manifested unto us this day." From Low Sunday inclusively to Ascension Day exclusively, except in Offices of the Blessed Virgin Mary, "Thou That hast arisen from the dead." From Ascension Day inclusively to Whitsun Day exclusively, "Thou That art gone up above the stars." At Whitsun-tide and all the rest of the year, "Thou That sittest at the right hand of the Father."

4. The short Responsories for the other Hours which are given for Advent Sunday are used throughout Advent, whenever the Office is of the Season. Likewise those given on the first Sunday in Lent are used till Passion Sunday exclusively. Those given on Passion Sunday are used till Maundy Thursday exclusively. Those given on Low Sunday are used till Ascension Day exclusively. Those given on any Feast having an Octave are used every day during the Octave, when the Office is of the Octave. In all Offices whatsoever of the Blessed Virgin Mary, except only the Assumption, the short Responsories are taken from the Common Office of Virgins.

5. In Easter-time, from Low Sunday to the Saturday after Whitsun Day inclusively, whatsoever the Office be, the word "Alleluia" is repeated twice after the short Responsory, and twice again after the Verse, as the repetition of the latter part of the Responsory, and once also after the Verse and the Answer. Thus it is said ten times, twice after the Responsory both times it is said, twice after the Verse, twice after the Responsory again, once after the Verse, and once after the Answer. Out of Easter-time, although the word "Alleluia" is sometimes introduced into the short Responsories at Terce, Sext, and None, it does not thereby affect Prime and Compline.

CHAPTER XXIX. THE CHAPTERS.

A Chapter is always said at Vespers, Lauds, and the other Hours, after the Psalms and Antiphons, and at Compline after the Hymn, except from Maundy Thursday to the Saturday before Low Sunday, and in the Office of the Dead.

2. The Chapters at Prime and Compline are always the same, being those given in the Psalter. The Chapters given in the Psalter for First and Second Vespers, Lauds, and the Hours on Sundays, are said from the third Sunday after Whitsun Day till Advent Sunday, and from the second after Twelfth-Day till Septuagesima. The Chapters for the Week-days are said after the Octave of Twelfth-Day till the First Sunday in Lent, and after the Octave of Whitsun Day till Advent Sunday. The Chapters for the other Seasons and for Feasts are given in the Offices to which they belong.

3. On all the Sundays from Advent till the Octave of Twelfth-Day, and from Septuagesima till the third Sunday after Whitsun Day, and on every day in Easter-time, and upon all Feasts, the Chapter given at the First Vespers is also said at Lauds, at Terce, and at the Second Vespers. There are a few exceptions, which are marked in their place.

4. On Week-days in Easter-time the Chapter at Prime is that from 1 Tim. i. 17, "Unto the King eternal," as on Sundays and Feasts. After the Chapter is always answered, "Thanks be to God."

CHAPTER XXX. THE PRAYER OR COLLECT.

The Prayer is said at Vespers and Lauds immediately after the Antiphon at the Canticles "My soul doth magnify the Lord" and "Blessed be the Lord God of Israel" respectively, unless the short Responsory prayers called the "Preces" are to be said, in which case it is said after the Preces. At Compline the Prayer is said after the Antiphon "O Lord, save us waking," unless Preces are to be said, when it is said after them.

2. The Prayers for Prime and Compline, given in the Psalter, are said every day in the year, except the three days before Easter, when the Service is as it is given in its proper place. The same Prayer which is said at First Vespers is likewise said at every other Hour, except Prime and Compline. But in Lent, and on the Ember Days, Eves, and Rogation Monday, the Prayer which has been said at Lauds is said only at Terce, Sext, and None. In the Vespers, if they are of the Week-day, the Collect said is either a special one, as in Lent, or that of the preceding Sunday, as on ordinary Week-days. When the Office is of a Week-day and no special Prayer is given, that of the preceding Sunday is used. In the same way in Octaves the Prayer of the Feast is used up to the Octave-day, inclusively, unless a special one be assigned.

3. Before the Prayer the Officiant always says,[1] "Hear my prayer, O LORD," to which is answered, "And let my cry come unto Thee;" then he says, "Let us pray," and proceeds with the Prayer. After the Prayers is answered "Amen," then, if it is the last or only Prayer, the Officiant says again, "Hear my prayer, O LORD," Answer, "And let my cry come unto Thee." Then "Bless we the Lord," Answer, "Thanks be to God," "May the souls of the faithful, through the mercy of God, rest in peace," Answer, "Amen." Then if the Antiphon of the Blessed Virgin Mary is to be said, there follows the "Our Father" inaudibly, "The Lord give us His peace," Answer, "And life eternal, Amen," and the Antiphon. But the Office stops short after "Thanks be to God" before the "Precious" at Prime, and the Blessing at Compline, or when the Little Office of the Blessed Virgin Mary, or the Office of the Dead, or the Penitential Psalms, or the Litany is immediately to follow. If there are more prayers than one, they are said after the Prayer for the day, each preceded by its own Antiphon, Verse and Response, and the words "Let us pray."

4. If the Prayer is addressed to God the Father, it ends "through our Lord Jesus Christ, Thy Son, Who liveth and reigneth with Thee in the unity of the Holy Ghost, one God, world without end. Amen." If the Prayer is addressed to God the Son, it ends, "Who livest and reignest with God the Father, in the unity of the Holy Ghost, one God, world without end. Amen." If the Prayer be addressed to God the Father, and God the Son be mentioned in it, it ends "through the Same our Lord, &c.," and if God the Holy Ghost be mentioned, instead of "in the unity of the Holy Ghost" there is said "in the unity of the Same Holy Spirit, &c."

5. If more than one Prayer be said, the ending "through our Lord, &c.," is only said with the first and last. The others are said without any ending, but "Let us pray" is said before each. The only exceptions are the Office of the Dead, where will be found in its proper place what is to be done, and the Litany, where the Prayers are all joined on one to the other.

Chapter XXXI. The Hymn, "We praise Thee, O God."

The Hymn "We praise Thee, O God," is said on every Feast whatsoever, and throughout all Octaves, except only the Feast of the Holy Innocents if it falls on a Week-day, though it is said on the Octave. It is said likewise on all Sundays from Easter inclusively to Advent exclusively, and from Christmas inclusively to Septuagesima exclusively, and every day from Low Sunday to Ascension Day, except Rogation Monday.

2. It is not said on the Sundays in Advent and from Septuagesima to Palm Sunday, both inclusively, nor on plain Week-days out of Easter-time.

3. Whenever it is said, the ninth or third Responsory is omitted.

4. Whenever it is not said, there is said a ninth or third Responsory, and as soon as the Hymn or the Responsory is over, Lauds begin, except on Christmas night, when particular directions are given.

Chapter XXXII. The Lord's Prayer and the Angelic Salutation.

The Lord's Prayer, which begins "Our Father," and the Angelic Salutation, which begins "Hail, Mary," are said inaudibly before every Hour, except Compline. At Compline, after the Blessing has been asked and given, comes the Lesson from 1 Peter v. 8, "Brethren, be sober," then "Our help is in the Name of the Lord," Answer, "Who hath made heaven and earth," and then the "Our Father" alone is said inaudibly. Moreover at the very end of Compline the "Our Father," the "Hail, Mary," and the "I believe in God" are said inaudibly. At the end of every Hour the "Our Father" is said inaudibly, unless the Little Office of the Blessed Virgin Mary follow at once, or another of the Canonical Hours, in which case the "Our Father" is said after that. If Compline immediately follows Vespers, as soon as "Amen" has been answered to "May the souls, &c.," is said "Command Thy Blessing, O Lord."

2. Whenever the words "And lead us not into temptation" are said aloud at the end of the Lord's Prayer, the two first words "Our Father" are also said aloud. In any other case it is all said inaudibly, except when Preces are said at Lauds and Vespers on Week-days, in which case the Officiant says the whole of the Lord's Prayer aloud.

3. The Angelic Salutation is said before each of the Hours in the Little Office of the Blessed Virgin Mary, unless they be added on to the Canonical Office, in which case it is omitted, as having been already said, at the beginning of the whole.

Chapter XXXIII. The Apostles' Creed and the Creed of St Athanasius.

The Apostles' Creed is always said before Mattins and Prime, and at the end of Compline altogether inaudibly. If it is to be said in the Preces at Prime and Compline the words "I believe in God" are said aloud, and likewise those at the end, "the Resurrection of the body," to which is answered "and the life everlasting. Amen."

2. The Creed of St Athanasius is said at Prime, after the Psalm "Deal bountifully with Thy servant," on all Sundays, when the Office is of the Sunday, except the Sundays after Christmas, Twelfth-Day, Ascension Day, and Corpus Christi Day, and Easter and Whitsun Day, when only the three usual Psalms are said, as on Feasts. It is said on the Sundays within other Octaves, and on Trinity Sunday, but otherwise never. The Hymn "Glory be to the Father, &c.," is added to it, as to the Psalms.

Chapter XXXIV. The Preces.

The Preces are certain Verses and Responses which are sometimes said before the Prayer. They begin either with "Lord, have mercy upon us" or the Lord's Prayer.

2. The Preces for Prime and Compline on Sundays, given in the Psalter, are not said on Doubles, nor within Octaves, nor on the Eve of Twelfth-Day, nor on the Friday and Saturday after the Octave of the Ascension.

3. The Preces for Lauds and the other Hours on Week-days, given in the Psalter, are said only on Week-days in Advent, Lent, the Ember Days, and Eves which are fasts, but not on Christmas Eve, nor the Ember Days at Whitsuntide. They are said kneeling. In the rest of the year only the Sunday Preces are said, and that standing.

4. On the Week-days in Advent, and Lent, and the Ember Days, Preces are said at Vespers, if they are of the day. And at Compline the same as on Sundays, but kneeling. The Preces are said kneeling till the words "Bless we the Lord" after the Prayer.

5. On Eves the Week-day Preces are not said at Vespers or Compline, because the Vespers are part of the Feast. But if the Eve of St Matthias fall on Shrove Tuesday, the Week-day Preces are said at Vespers, though the Prayer is not that of the Eve, but of the preceding Sunday. The same is the case when the Week-day Office is said on Ember Friday or Ember Saturday in September, when no Feast of Nine Lessons falls on them; Preces are said on the Friday, although the Prayer to be said is not that of the Ember Day but of the preceding Sunday.

6. The Psalm "Have mercy upon me, O God," is said with the Preces at Vespers only, and "Out of the depths" at Lauds. In the Office of the Dead those Psalms are said which are there appointed.

CHAPTER XXXV. THE COMMON COMMEMORATIONS, OR SUFFRAGES OF THE SAINTS.

The Common Commemorations, or Suffrages of the Saints, which are given in the Psalter, are said at the end of Vespers and Lauds from the Octave of Twelfth-Day till Passion Sunday exclusively, and from the Octave of Whitsun Day till Advent exclusively, on Sundays, Week-days, and Feasts, whenever the Office is not Double nor the day within an Octave. After the Commemoration of the Apostles is made a Commemoration of St George, Patron of England, except in the diocese of Hexham, where there is made instead a Commemoration of St Cuthbert, and before the Commemoration of St George there is made in the diocese of Northampton a Commemoration of St Thomas of Canterbury, and in that of Plymouth of St Boniface of Maintz, and after it in the diocese of Portsmouth a Commemoration of St Edmund of Canterbury.[1] The last is always the Suffrage for Peace. On Week-days there is prefixed that Commemoration of the Cross which is given in the Psalter after Lauds for Monday.

2. In Easter-time the only Suffrage said is the Commemoration of the Cross for that Season. It is not said on Doubles, nor within Octaves, nor in the Votive Offices of the Blessed Sacrament and the Passion.

3. If a Commemoration of a Feast is made, it is always put before the Suffrages, even that of the Cross.

4. The Commemoration of the Blessed Virgin Mary is omitted if her Little Office is said, or the Office of the day is of her.

CHAPTER XXXVI. THE ANTIPHONS OF THE BLESSED VIRGIN MARY AT THE END OF THE OFFICE.

The Antiphons of the Blessed Virgin Mary which are given in the Psalter at the end of Compline are said according to the season of the year, as there prescribed, except on the three days before Easter.

2. They are said only at the end of Compline, and at the end of Lauds, or that aggregation of Offices into which Lauds enters. (However in Choir they are said every time the Choir is to be left.) They are said kneeling, except from Saturday evening to Sunday evening both inclusive, and throughout the whole of Easter-time. They are not said in the morning if the Office is to be immediately followed by the Dirge, the Penitential Psalms, or the Litany, or Mass.

CHAPTER XXXVII. THE LITTLE OFFICE, &c.

There are proper Rubrics at the end of the Breviary with directions about the Little Office of the Blessed Virgin Mary, the Office of the Dead, the Penitential Psalms, the Litany, and the Gradual Psalms.

2. In Easter-time if the Little Office of the Blessed Virgin Mary be joined to the Church Office, the word "Alleluia" is added neither to the Antiphons, Verses and Answers, nor Responsories.

[1] This custom is peculiar to England, and is contrary to the general rule; the original rubric reads, "There is added [to the other Common Commemorations] a Commemoration of the Patron or Titular of the Church [in which the service is read, or to which the person saying the Office is attached, but only if such Church have been consecrated or solemnly blessed], which is inserted either before or after the Commemorations of St Joseph and of the Apostles according to his rank." But there is a privilege in the Province of Westminster according to which it is permitted: "That in the suffrages of the Saints and in the Prayer A cunctis, a Commemoration shall be made of St George only, and the Commemoration of any other Saint shall be omitted, except in the case of the Regular Orders as to the Commemoration of their own founders, and any particular cases exempted by grace of the Holy See." A grace of this sort has been granted, as stated above, with regard to the Dioceses of Hexham, Northampton, Plymouth, and Portsmouth.

TWO EASY TABLES,

COMPILED FROM THE PIE.

And in which it can be seen at a glance what is to be done
(1) When the Second Vespers of one Office fall on the same evening with the First Vespers of another Office.
(2) When two Offices fall on the same day.

To use these Tables, find the little square in which lines drawn from the designations of the two Offices meet at right angles, and then look what direction is given underneath the Table, with the number inscribed in the square.

For instance, in Table A a Double of the Second Class meets a Semi-double in a square containing the numeral 4. And 4 gives the Rule "all of the former, with a Commemoration of the latter," but if the case be reversed they meet in 1, and the Service is "all of the latter, nothing of the former." And so in Table B, the case of a Double of the Second Class and a Semi-double falling on the same day is provided for in 4 and 3, and it is ordered that the Semi-double be commemorated and the Double of the Second Class observed. 0 indicates a case which either cannot occur, or which is the subject of special directions in its own place. However, it is first needful to know the rank of the different Offices.

6. All of the more important, but with a Commemoration of the less important; if equal, Vespers of the latter from the Chapter inclusive.

Note.

At the First Vespers of the Octave-days of the Ascension and of Corpus Christi and of other Primary Feasts of our Lord, the whole Service is of the Octave. If a Double Feast have occupied the day, it is only commemorated, unless it be of the First or Second Class, in which case the Service is of it, with a Commemoration of the First Vespers of the Octave.

If the Second Vespers of the Octave-days of the Feasts of our Lord which are Primary and more solemn, such as those of Twelfth-Day, Easter, the Ascension, and the others, clash with the First Vespers of a Double (including the Octave-day of St John the Baptist), the Double is only commemorated, unless it be of the First or Second Class, the Patron, Titular, or Dedication Feast of the particular Church, in which cases the Service is of the Double, with a Commemoration of the Second Vespers of the Octave.

On the Octave-days of Primary Feasts of the Blessed Virgin, the Angels, St John the Baptist, St Joseph, and the Holy Apostles, there is only a Commemoration made of an Ordinary or Lesser Double that precedes or follows.

If a Double or Semi-double Feast have been reduced to the condition of a Simple according to the Pie, Chap. x., and a Double of the First Class fall upon the day before, the reduced Feast is commemorated at the Second Vespers of the Double of the First Class only if it is to be commemorated at the Lauds of the succeeding day, that is to say of its own day; but upon Doubles of the Second Class such a reduced Feast is commemorated at both Vespers in the same way as an Octave-day or a Sunday would be; but a day within an Octave is not commemorated unless the next day's Office be of the same.

When several Commemorations are to be made, they are arranged in the order of 1, Privileged Sunday; 2, Octave-Day; 3, Greater Double; 4, Reduced Double; 5, Ordinary Sunday; 6, Day within the Octave of Corpus Christi; 7, Semi-double; 8, Day within an Octave, reduced to the form of Simple; 9, Greater Week-day or Eve; 10, Simple.

2. The former is observed, and the latter transferred.
3. The latter is observed, and the former commemorated.
4. The former is observed, and the latter commemorated.
5. The former is altogether omitted, and the latter observed.
6. The former is observed, and the latter altogether omitted.
7. The more important is observed, and the less important commemorated.
8. The more important is observed, and the less important transferred.

Note.

A Double of any sort, even the Patron, Titular, or Dedication Feast of the particular Church, if it fall on Dec. 24, Whitsun Eve, Jan. 1 or 13, Ash Wednesday, Holy, Easter, or Whitsun Weeks, Ascension Day, Corpus Christi Day, March 25, Aug. 15, Dec. 8, Midsummer Day, March 19, June 29, or Nov. 1, is transferred, if it can be transferred, but if not, it is simply commemorated upon its own day, or totally omitted, as may be directed in the Pie.

Within the Octave of the Epiphany no Feast can be kept except Double Feasts of the First Class, and that with Commemoration of the Octave. Other Feasts of Nine Lessons are permanently fixed on the first free day after the Octave; Simples are commemorated only. Within the Octave of Corpus Christi, Semi-doubles are reduced to the rank of Simples and commemorated, neither can Doubles be transferred thither unless they be of the First or Second Class, and a Commemoration is always made of the Octave. Within those Octaves, in which the observance of Feasts is allowed, a Semi-double, if it fall on a Sunday, is commemorated as prescribed by the Pie.

The Octaves of Christmas, Twelfth-Day, and Corpus Christi, are commemorated at every Vespers and Lauds, whatever be the Office.

Other Octaves, which are not in the Kalendar,[1] are not observed from Ash Wednesday to Low Sunday, or Whitsun Eve to Trinity Sunday, both inclusive, or from Dec. 17 to Jan. 6.

[1] But in the diocese of Hexham there is a special privilege permitting the observance of an Octave in honour of St Cuthbert.

An Octave-day can never be transferred. Therefore, if Corpus Christi fall on Midsummer Day, and the Feast of St John were consequently kept on June 25, July 1 would be kept as the Octave of Corpus Christi, with a Commemoration of the Octave of St John at both Vespers and at Lauds.

If some other Saints be mentioned in the Kalendar on the same day with the Patron or Titular, the Feast of the Patron or Titular alone is observed. If the other Feast be a Double or Semi-double, it is permanently fixed on the first free day and kept as a Semi-double. If it is a Double of the First or Second Class, it is similarly transferred and kept as on its own day.[1]

The Week-days of Advent and Lent, if not kept as such, are always commemorated at both Vespers and Lauds, whatever be the Office; Ember Days, Eves, and Rogation Monday, at Lauds only. But if an Eve fall in Advent or Lent, on an Ember Day, a Double of the First Class, or the Patronal, Titular, or Dedication Feast of the particular Church, no notice is taken of it, even in Lauds.

PRAYERS. ABSOLUTIONS AND BLESSINGS.

A PRAYER BEFORE A SERVICE.

O Lord, open Thou my mouth that I may bless Thy Holy Name. Cleanse my heart from all vain, evil, and wandering thoughts; enlighten my understanding; kindle my affections, that I may pray to, and praise Thee with attention and devotion; and may worthily be heard before the presence of Thy Divine Majesty. Through Christ our Lord. Amen.

Lord, in union with that Divine Intention wherewith Thou didst Thyself praise God, while as Thou wast on earth, I offer these Hours unto Thee.

A PRAYER AFTER A SERVICE.

In respect of which Pope Leo X. has granted to all persons who after saying the Divine Office shall devoutly recite it on their knees, condonation of the shortcomings and faults committed by them from human frailty in saying the Office.

To the Most Holy and undivided Trinity, to the Manhood of our Lord JESUS Christ Crucified, to the fruitful Virginity of the most blessed and most glorious Mary, always a Virgin, and to the holiness of all the Saints be ascribed everlasting praise, honour, and glory, by all creatures, and to us be granted the forgiveness of all our sins, world without end. Amen.

Verse. Blessed be the womb of the Virgin Mary which bore the Son of the Eternal Father.

Answer. And blessed be the paps which gave suck to Christ our Lord.

Then are said the Lord's Prayer and the Angelic Salutation.

Summary of the Absolutions and Blessings pronounced at Mattins.

In the First Nocturn, and on Monday and Thursday.

Absolution.

Graciously hear, O Lord Jesus Christ, the prayers of Thy servants, and have mercy upon us: Who livest and reignest with the Father, and the Holy Ghost, world without end. Amen.

First Blessing.

May the Eternal Father bless us
With an eternal blessing. Amen.

Second Blessing.

May the Son, the Sole-begotten,
Mercifully bless and keep us. Amen.

Third Blessing.

May the grace of God the Spirit
All our heart and mind enlighten. Amen.

In the Second Nocturn, and on Tuesday and Friday.

Absolution.

May His loving-kindness and mercy help us, Who liveth and reigneth with the Father, and the Holy Ghost, world without end. Amen.

Fourth Blessing.

God the Father Omnipotent,
Be to us merciful and clement. Amen.

Fifth Blessing.

May Christ to all His people give,
For ever in His sight to live. Amen.

Sixth Blessing.

May the Spirit's fire Divine
In our hearts enkindled shine. Amen.

In the Third Nocturn, and on Wednesday and Saturday.

Absolution.

May the Almighty and merciful Lord loose us from the bonds of our sins. Amen.

Seventh Blessing.

May the Gospel's holy lection
Be our safety and protection. Amen.

Eighth Blessing.

God's most mighty strength alway
Be His people's staff and stay. Amen.

For Feasts of Saints.

He (or she or they) whose feast-day we are keeping,
Be our Advocate (or Advocates) with God.

For Feasts of the Blessed Virgin.

She whose feast-day we are keeping—
Mary, blessed Maid of Maidens,
Be our Advocate with God.

Ninth Blessing.

May He that is the Angels' King
To that high realm His people bring. Amen.

Or, if another Gospel and Homily are to be begun,

May the Gospel's glorious word
Cleansing to our souls afford.

On days of Three Lessons the Absolution and Blessings are as above, according to the Week-day, with the following exceptions: First Blessing on Wednesday or Saturday, (not the Simple Office of the Blessed Virgin,) if the First Lesson be not Gospel with Homily,

May His blessing be upon us
Who doth live and reign for ever.

Whenever the First Lesson is Gospel with Homily, the Blessings are from the Third Nocturn.

If the Office be of a Saint or Saints, the Blessings are:

First Blessing.

May His blessing be upon us
Who doth live and reign for ever.

Second Blessing.

He (or she or they) whose feast-day we are keeping,
Be our Advocate (or Advocates) with God.

Third Blessing.

May He that is the Angels' King
To that high realm His people bring. Amen.

The Absolution and Blessings in the Simple Office of the Blessed Virgin for Saturdays are peculiar to that Office, and are given in their own place.

The Psalter,

OR,

BOOK OF PSALMS,

DIVIDED ACCORDING TO THE DAYS OF THE WEEK, TOGETHER WITH THE ORDINARY OFFICE FOR THE DIFFERENT SEASONS.

MATTINS,[1] OR MORNING PRAYER.

FOR THE LORD'S DAY, SUNDAY.

Before Mattins, and every other Hour, except Lauds and Compline, there is said inaudibly,[2]

OUR Father, Who art in heaven, Hallowed be Thy Name. Thy kingdom come. Thy will be done on earth, as it is in heaven. Give us this day our daily bread. And forgive us our trespasses, as we forgive them that trespass against us. And lead us not into temptation; but deliver us from evil. Amen.

HAIL, Mary, full of grace; The Lord is with thee: blessed art thou among women, and blessed is the fruit of thy womb, JESUS.

Holy Mary, Mother of God, pray for us sinners, now and at the hour of our death. Amen.

At the beginning of Mattins and Prime, and at the end of Compline, is then said inaudibly the Apostles' Creed.

I BELIEVE in God the Father Almighty, Maker of heaven and earth. And in JESUS Christ, His only Son, our Lord: Who was conceived by the Holy Ghost, born of the Virgin Mary, suffered under Pontius Pilate, was crucified, dead, and buried: He descended into hell: the third day He rose again from the dead: He ascended into heaven, and sitteth on the right hand of God the Father Almighty: from thence He shall come to judge the quick and the dead. I believe in the Holy Ghost, the Holy Catholic Church, the Communion of Saints, the Forgiveness of sins, the Resurrection of the body, and the Life everlasting. Amen.

Then is said aloud:

Verse.[3] ✠ O LORD, open Thou my lips.

Answer. And my mouth shall show forth Thy praise.

Verse.[4] ✠ Make haste, O God, to deliver me.

Answer. Make haste to help me, O LORD.

Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, and to the Holy Ghost.

[5] As it was in the beginning, is now, and ever shall be, world without end. Amen, Alleluia.[6]

From Septuagesima Sunday to Maundy Thursday instead of Alleluia is said:

---

[1] The proper hour for Mattins is midnight, at which time it is said in many Convents. In others it is said at 2 or 5 A.M. In the Cathedral of Rome (St John Lateran's) and other Churches of the same country, the hour is about 7 A.M. It is allowable to say it at any hour after the sun has begun to decline, and an ordinary practice is to do so late in the afternoon.

[2] The reason why the Lord's Prayer and the Apostles' Creed are recited inaudibly during the Office seems to be, that in the early Church these formulæ were concealed from the unbaptized until very shortly before their baptism. Now, all were allowed to be present at the Office, of which these formulæ are a part, and therefore they were then so said that the unbaptized could not hear them. The "Hail, Mary," having been added as a sort of appendix to the Lord's Prayer, follows the same rule with it. The Lord's Prayer is said aloud during the Canon of the Mass, because only the faithful were then present.

[3] Ps. l. 17.

[4] Ps. lxix. 2.

[5] The Greek original of this Doxology does not contain the words, "As it was in the beginning" (inserted against the Arians), but runs thus: "Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, and to the Holy Ghost, both now, and ever, and to the ages of ages. Amen."

[6] Or rather, "Hal'lu-YAH," "Praise-ye-the-Eternal," a Hebrew phrase which occurs repeatedly in the Bible. The sound of these words causes the Church such joy that she denies herself their use during her penitential season. But in order not to remit the praise of God, she substitutes for the Hebrew phrase a short rhyming Latin one, of similar meaning.

Ceaseless praise to Thee be given,
O Eternal King of heaven.

Then is said Psalm xciv. with the Invitatory. The Invitatory here given is said from the Octave of the Epiphany to Septuagesima Sunday, and from the Octave of Pentecost to Advent Sunday.

Invitatory. Let us worship the Lord, for * He is our Maker.

Repetition. Let us worship the Lord, for * He is our Maker.

Psalm XCIV.[1]

[Vulgate and LXX., "A song of praise by David."]

O COME, let us sing unto the LORD, let us make a joyful noise to the God of our Salvation: let us come before His presence with thanksgiving, and make a joyful noise unto Him with psalms.

Let us worship the Lord, for He is our Maker.

For the LORD is a great God, and a great King above all gods: for the Lord will not cast off His people: for in His hand are all the ends of the earth; and the heights of the hills are His also.

He is our Maker.

For the sea is His, and He made it: and His hands formed the dry land: [2] O come, let us worship and fall down; let us cry unto the LORD our Maker. * For He is the Lord our God; and we are His people, and the sheep of His pasture.

Let us worship the Lord, for He is our Maker.

To-day if ye will hear His voice, harden not your heart; as in "the Provocation," and as in the day of "Temptation" in the wilderness: when your fathers tempted Me, proved Me, and saw My works.[3] He is our Maker.

Forty years long was I grieved with that generation[4] and said, It is a people that do alway err in their heart, and they have not known My ways: unto whom I sware in My wrath that they should not enter into My rest.

Let us worship the Lord, for He is our Maker.

Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, and to the Holy Ghost. As it was in the beginning, is now, and ever shall be, world without end. Amen.

He is our Maker.

Let us worship the Lord, for He is our Maker.

The following Hymn is then said, from the Octave of the Epiphany to the First Sunday in Lent, and from the first Sunday of October to Advent.

HYMN.[5]

TO-DAY the Blessed Three in One
Began the earth and skies;
To-day a Conqueror, God the Son,
Did from the grave arise;
We too will wake, and, in despite
Of sloth and languor, all unite,
As Psalmists bid, through the dim night
Waiting with wistful eyes.

So may He hear, and heed each vow,
And prayer to Him addrest;
And grant an instant cleansing now,
A future glorious rest.
So may He plentifully shower,
On all who hymn His love and power,
In this most still and sacred hour,
His sweetest gifts and best.

Father of purity and light!
Thy presence if we win,
'Twill shield us from the deeds of night,
The burning darts of sin;
Lest aught defiled or dissolute
Relax our bodies or imbrute,
And fires eternal be the fruit
Of fire now lit within.

Fix in our hearts, Redeemer dear,
The ever-gushing spring
Of grace to cleanse, of life to cheer
Souls sick and sorrowing.
Thee, bounteous Father, we entreat,
And only Son, awful and sweet,
And life-creating Paraclete,
The Everlasting King.
Amen.

Instead of the foregoing the following Hymn is said from the Octave of Pentecost to the first Sunday of October.

HYMN.[6]

LET us arise and watch by night,
And meditate always;
And chant as in our Maker's sight
United hymns of praise.

So singing with the saints in bliss,
With them we may attain
Life everlasting after this,
And heaven for earthly pain.

Grant this, O Father, Only Son,
And Spirit, God of grace,
To whom all worship shall be done
In every time and place.
Amen.

When the Invitatories, Hymns, &c., are different from the above they are given in the Office to which they belong.

First Nocturn, or Watch of the Night.

Antiphon for Advent. Behold, there cometh the King.

Antiphon for the rest of the year. Serve the LORD.

Antiphon for Paschal time. Alleluia.

Psalm I.

BLESSED is the man that walketh not in the counsel of the ungodly, nor standeth in the way of sinners, * nor sitteth in the seat of the scoffers:

---

[1] This Psalm is not given in the original from the Vulgate, but from some other Latin translation.

[2] Here it is usual to kneel till the *.

[3] The occasion here referred to is that described in Exodus xvii. 1-7. The children of Israël while travelling through the desert became rebellious from want of water. It was given them from the smitten rock. Then is added: "And he [Moses] called the name of the place Temptation" (Hebrew and LXX. add "and Provocation"), "because of the chiding of the children of Israël, and because they tempted the LORD, saying: Is the LORD among us, or not?"

[4] Namely, that particular generation which had come out of Egypt. The next clauses relate to that which is written in Numbers xiv. 22: "Because all these men which have seen My glory, and My miracles, which I did in Egypt, and in the wilderness, have tempted Me now these ten times, and have not hearkened to My voice, surely they shall not see the land which I sware unto their fathers, neither shall any of them that provoked Me see it." And this is confirmed with an oath, in verse 28: "As truly as I live, saith the LORD, as ye have spoken in Mine ears, so will I do to you: your carcases shall fall in this wilderness."

[5] Ascribed to Pope St Gregory the Great, but altered, one verse omitted, and the last verse added. Translation by the late Card. Newman.

[6] Also ascribed to Pope St Gregory the Great, although somewhat altered. Translation by the late Card. Newman.

But his delight is in the Law of the LORD; * and in His Law doth he meditate day and night.

And he shall be like a tree planted by the rivers of water, * that bringeth forth his fruit in his season:

His leaf also shall not wither: * and whatsoever he doeth shall prosper.

Not so are the ungodly, not so: * but are like the chaff which the wind driveth away from the face of the earth.

Therefore the ungodly shall not stand in the judgment: * nor sinners in the congregation of the righteous.

For the LORD knoweth the way of the righteous: * but the way of the ungodly shall perish.

Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, * and to the Holy Ghost.

As it was in the beginning, is now, and ever shall be, * world without end. Amen.

This Doxology is said at the end of every Psalm unless special directions are given to the contrary.

Psalm II.

[In Acts iv. 25, 26, the authorship of this Psalm is attributed to David.]

WHY do the heathen rage, * and the peoples devise a vain thing?

The kings of the earth set themselves, and the rulers take counsel together * against the LORD, and against His Anointed.

Let us break their bands asunder: * and cast away their yoke from us.

He That sitteth in the heavens shall laugh them to scorn: * and the Lord shall have them in derision.

Then shall He speak unto them in His wrath: * and plague them in His sore displeasure.

Yet hath He set me for King upon His holy hill of Zion * to declare His decree.

The LORD hath said unto me: * Thou art My Son, this day have I begotten thee.

Ask of Me, and I shall give thee the heathen for thine inheritance, * and the uttermost parts of the earth for thy possession.

Thou shalt rule them with a rod of iron, * and shalt dash them in pieces like a potter's vessel.

Be wise now, therefore, O ye kings; * be instructed, ye judges of the earth.

Serve the LORD with fear: * and rejoice with trembling before Him.

Lay hold of instruction, lest the Lord be angry, * and ye perish from the righteous way.

When His wrath is kindled suddenly, * blessed are all they that put their trust in Him.

Psalm III.

[Intituled "A Psalm of David, when he fled from Absalom his son." See the history in 2 Kings (Sam.) xv., xvi., xviii.]

LORD, how are they increased that trouble me? * many are they that rise up against me.

Many there be that say of my soul: * There is no help for him in his God.[1]

But Thou, O LORD, art a shield for me, * my glory, and the Lifter up of mine head.

I cried unto the LORD with my voice: * and He heard me out of His holy hill.[2]

I laid me down and slept; * I awaked, for the LORD sustained me.

I will not be afraid of thousands of people that have set themselves against me round about: * arise, O LORD, save me, O my God.

For Thou hast smitten all them that fought against me without a cause[3]: * Thou hast broken the teeth of the ungodly.

Salvation belongeth unto the LORD: * and Thy blessing is upon Thy people.[2]

Psalm VI.

[Intituled "A Psalm of David." The title also contains directions, probably musical, the meaning of which is now uncertain.]

O LORD, rebuke me not in Thine anger: * neither chasten me in Thine hot displeasure.

Have mercy upon me, O LORD, for I am weak: * O LORD, heal me, for my bones are shaken.

My soul also is sore vexed: * but Thou, O LORD, how long?

Return, O LORD, deliver my soul: * O save me for Thy mercy's sake.

For in death there is no one that remembereth Thee: * and in the grave who shall give Thee thanks?

I am weary with my groaning, every night I wash my bed: * I water my couch with my tears.

Mine eye is grown dim because of grief: * I am waxen old because of all mine enemies.

Depart from me, all ye workers of iniquity: * for the LORD hath heard the voice of my weeping.

The LORD hath heard my supplication: * the LORD hath received my prayer.

Let all mine enemies be ashamed and sore vexed: * let them return and be ashamed suddenly.

Antiphon for Advent. Behold, there cometh the King, even the Most High, with great power, to save the nations. Alleluia.

Antiphon for the rest of the year. [4] Serve the LORD with fear, and rejoice with trembling before Him.

In Paschal time there is only one Antiphon to the whole Nocturn.

Second Antiphon for Advent. Strengthen ye.

Second Antiphon for the rest of the year. God is a righteous judge.

Psalm VII.

[Intituled "An Hymn of David, which he sang unto the LORD concerning the words of Cush the Benjamite." This Cush is supposed to be the same as Shimei, whose cursing of David is narrated in 2 Kings (Sam.) xvi. 7, 8, or else a nickname for Saul.]

---

[1] Here occur in the Hebrew the letters SLH, or "Selah." The meaning of this is uncertain. Gesenius thinks "it seems to have been used to mark a short pause in singing the words of the Psalm, so that the singer would be silent, while the instrumental music continued."

[2] SLH, again.

[3] But the Hebrew reads, not, "without a cause," but, "on the jaw-bone."

[4] Ps. ii. 11.

O LORD my God, in Thee do I take refuge : * save me from all them that persecute me, and deliver me.

Lest he tear my soul like a lion, * while there is none to deliver, or to save.

O Lord my God, if I have done this, * if there be iniquity in mine hands;

If I have requited with evil them that requited me [with good], * may I then flee empty before mine enemies.

Let the enemy persecute my soul, and take it, yea, let him tread down my life upon the earth, * and lay mine honour in the dust.[1]

Arise, O Lord, in Thine anger : * and lift up Thyself against the borders of mine enemies.

And awake for me, O Lord my God, according to the decree that Thou hast made : * so shall the congregation of the people compass Thee about.

For their sakes, therefore, return Thou on high : * the Lord judgeth the peoples.

Judge me, O Lord, according to my righteousness, * and according to mine integrity that is in me.

O let the wickedness of the wicked come to an end, and establish the just; * God trieth the hearts and reins.

Mine help is righteous, coming from the Lord, * Who saveth the upright in heart.

God is a righteous judge, strong and patient : * is He not provoked every day?

If ye turn not, He will whet His sword : * He hath bent His bow and made it ready.

And hath fitted thereon the instruments of death, * He hath ordained His arrows against the persecutors.

Behold, he travaileth with iniquity : * he hath conceived mischief, and brought forth falsehood.

He made a pit and digged it : * and is fallen into the ditch which he made.

His mischief shall return upon his own head : * and his iniquity shall come down upon his own pate.

I will praise the Lord according to His righteousness : * and will sing praise to the name of the Lord Most High.

Psalm VIII.

[Intituled "A Psalm of David." It has also a title which seems to show that it was a song for the vintage.]

O LORD, our Lord, * how excellent is Thy Name in all the earth!

For Thy glory is exalted * above the heavens.

[2] Out of the mouth of babes and sucklings hast Thou perfected praise because of Thine enemies, * that Thou mightest destroy the enemy and the avenger.

When I consider Thine heavens, the work of Thy fingers : * the moon and the stars which Thou hast ordained :

What is man, that Thou art mindful of him? * or the son of man, that Thou visitest him?

Thou hast made him a little lower than the angels, Thou hast crowned him with glory and honour, * and madest him to have dominion over the works of Thine hands.

Thou hast put all things under his feet, * all sheep and oxen, yea, and the beasts of the field.

The fowl of the air, and the fish of the sea, * that pass through the paths of the sea.

O Lord, our Lord, * how excellent is Thy Name in all the earth!

Psalm IX.

[Intituled "A Psalm of David." It has also a superscription the meaning of which is not now certain. The Targum connects it with the slaying of Goliath.]

I WILL praise Thee, O Lord, with mine whole heart : * I will show forth all Thy marvellous works.

I will be glad and rejoice in Thee : * I will sing praise to Thy Name, O Thou Most High.

When mine enemies are turned back, * they shall fall and perish at Thy presence.

For Thou hast maintained my right and my cause : * Thou satest in the throne judging right.

Thou hast rebuked the heathen, and the wicked are perished : * Thou hast put out their name for ever, even for ever and ever.

The swords of the enemy have failed utterly : * and their cities Thou hast destroyed.

Their memorial is perished with a crash : * and the Lord endureth for ever.

He hath prepared His throne for judgment : * and He shall judge the world in righteousness, He shall minister judgment to the people in uprightness.

The Lord also is a refuge for the poor : * a refuge in times of trouble.

And let them that know Thy name put their trust in Thee : * for Thou, Lord, hast not forsaken them that seek Thee.

Sing praises to the Lord, Who dwelleth in Zion : * declare among the people His doings.

For when He maketh inquisition for blood He remembereth them : * He forgetteth not the cry of the afflicted.

Have mercy upon me, O Lord : * consider my trouble [which I suffer] of them that hate me.

Thou That liftest me up from the gates of death : * that I may show forth all Thy praises in the gates of the daughter of Zion!

I will rejoice in Thy salvation : * the heathen are sunk down in the pit that they made.

In the net which they hid, * is their own foot taken.

The Lord is known when He executeth judgment : * the wicked is snared in the work of his own hands.[3]

---

[1] SLH.

[2] This verse was quoted by our Lord, concerning those who cried Hosannah on Palm Sunday, Matthew xxi. 16.

[3] Here occurs :—"Instrumental music—SLH." This is a strong argument in favour of Gesenius' opinion, see p. 3, note 1.

The wicked shall be turned into hell: * all the nations that forget God.

For the needy shall not alway be forgotten: * the expectation of the poor shall not perish for ever.

Arise, O Lord, let not man prevail: * let the heathen be judged in Thy sight.

Put Thou a master over them, O Lord: * let the nations know themselves to be but men.[1]

Why standest Thou afar off, O Lord, * why hidest Thou Thyself in times of trouble?

The wicked in his pride doth persecute the poor: * they are taken in the devices that they have imagined.

For the wicked is praised according to his soul's desire: * and the unrighteous is deemed blessed.

The wicked provoketh the Lord: * in the greatness of his scornful indignation he doth not care.

God is not before his eyes: * his ways are always grievous.

Thy judgments are far out of his sight: * he hath dominion over his enemies.

He hath said in his heart: * I shall not be moved unto generation and generation, yea, I shall never be in adversity.

His mouth is full of cursing, and bitterness, and fraud: * under his tongue is mischief and sorrow.

He sitteth in the lurking-places with the rich: in the secret places * doth he murder the innocent.

His eyes are privily set against the poor: * he lieth in wait secretly, as a lion in his den.

He lieth in wait to catch the poor: * to catch the poor when he draweth him [after him].

In his snare doth he bring him down: * yet shall he himself totter and fall down, when he hath mastered the poor.

He hath said in his heart: God hath forgotten: * He turneth away His face so that He shall never see it.

Arise, O Lord, O God, lift up Thine hand: * forget not the afflicted.

Wherefore doth the wicked provoke God? * for he hath said in his heart: He will not require it.

Thou seest it, for Thou beholdest labour and sorrow: * to deliver them into Thine own hand.

The poor leaveth himself unto Thee: * Thou wilt be the helper of the fatherless.

Break Thou the arm of the wicked and the evil man: * his wickedness shall be sought after and shall not be found.

The Lord shall be King for ever and ever: * the heathen shall perish out of His land.

The Lord hath heard the petition of the poor: * Thine ear hath heard the desire of his heart.

To judge the fatherless and the oppressed, * that man may magnify himself no more upon earth.

Psalm X.

[Intituled "Of David." There is also a superscription perhaps musical, but now of uncertain meaning.]

IN the Lord put I my trust; how say ye to my soul, * Flee as a bird to the mountain?

For lo, the wicked bend their bow, they make ready their arrows in the quiver, * that they may privily shoot at the upright in heart.

For they have destroyed that which Thou hast established: * and what hath the righteous done?

The Lord is in His holy temple: * the Lord's throne is in heaven.

His eyes behold the poor: * His eyelids try the children of men.

The Lord trieth the righteous and the wicked: * but he that loveth iniquity hateth his own soul.

Upon the wicked He shall rain snares: * fire, and brimstone, and an horrible tempest, this shall be the portion of their cup.

For the righteous Lord loveth righteousness: * His countenance doth behold uprightness.

Antiphon for Advent. [2] Strengthen ye the weak hands: be strong; say: Behold, our God will come, and save us, Alleluia.

Antiphon for the rest of the year. [3] God is a righteous judge, strong, and patient: is He not provoked every day?

Third Antiphon for Advent. Rejoice, all ye.

Third Antiphon for the rest of the year. Thou shalt keep us.

Psalm XI.

[Intituled "A Psalm of David," with some other words, of meaning now uncertain, as before.]

HELP, Lord, for the godly man ceaseth: * for the truth faileth from among the children of men.

They speak vanity every one with his neighbour: * with flattering lips, with a double heart, do they speak.

The Lord shall cut off all flattering lips, * and the tongue that speaketh proud things.

Who have said: With our tongue will we prevail, our lips are our own: * who is lord over us?

For the oppression of the poor, and the sighing of the needy, * now will I arise, saith the Lord.

I will set him in safety: * I will deal faithfully with him.

The words of the Lord are pure words: * silver tried in a furnace, purged of dross, purified seven times.

Thou shalt keep us, O Lord, and preserve us * from this generation for ever.

The wicked walk on every side: * the increase of men is according to Thy secret counsel.

Psalm XII.

[This Psalm has the same title as the last.]

HOW long wilt Thou forget me, O Lord? for ever? * How long hidest Thou Thy face from me?

How long shall I take counsel

---

[1] SLH. Here, according to the present Hebrew text, ends Ps. ix.

[2] Isa. xxxv. 3, 4.

[3] Ps. vii. 12.

in my soul, * having sorrow in mine heart daily?

How long shall mine enemy be exalted over me? * Consider, and hear me, O LORD my God.

Lighten mine eyes, lest I sleep the sleep of death: * lest mine enemy say: I have prevailed against him.

Those that trouble me will rejoice if I am moved: * but I have trusted in Thy mercy.

Mine heart shall rejoice in Thy salvation; I will sing unto the LORD because He hath dealt bountifully with me: * and I will sing praise to the name of the Lord Most High.

Psalm XIII.

[Same title as Psalm x.]

THE fool hath said in his heart: * There is no God.

They are corrupt, and have become abominable in their works: * there is none that doeth good, no, not one.

The LORD looked down from heaven upon the children of men: * to see if there were any that did understand, or seek God.

They are all gone aside, they are altogether become unprofitable: * there is none that doeth good, no, not one.

[1] Their throat is an open sepulchre: with their tongues they have used deceit: * the poison of asps is under their lips.

Their mouth is full of cursing and bitterness: * their feet are swift to shed blood.

Destruction and misery are in their ways, and the way of peace they have not known: * there is no fear of God before their eyes.

Have all the workers of iniquity no knowledge, * who eat up my people as they would eat bread?

They call not upon the LORD: * there were they in great fear, where no fear was;

For the Lord is in the generation of the righteous: ye have shamed the counsel of the poor: * because the LORD is his hope.

O that the salvation of Israël were come out of Zion! * when the LORD bringeth back the captivity of His people, Jacob shall rejoice and Israël shall be glad.

Psalm XIV.

[Intituled "A Psalm of David."]

LORD, who shall abide in Thy tabernacle? * who shall dwell in Thine holy hill?

He that walketh uprightly, * and worketh righteousness.

He that speaketh the truth in his heart, * he that deceiveth not with his tongue.

He that hath not done evil to his neighbour, * nor taken up a reproach against his neighbour.

In whose eyes a vile person is despised: * but he honoureth them that fear the LORD.

He that sweareth to his neighbour, and deceiveth him not, * he that putteth not out his money to usury, nor taketh reward against the innocent.

He that doeth these things, * shall never be moved.

[Intituled a work "of David," but the specifically descriptive word is not now of certain meaning.]

PRESERVE me, O Lord, for in Thee do I put my trust : * I have said unto the LORD : Thou art my God, for Thou hast no need of my goods.

To the Saints that are in His land, * He hath made all my will admirable.

Their sorrows are multiplied, * that hasten after [a strange god].

In their assemblies for bloodshedding will I have no part : * nor mention their names with my lips.

The LORD is the portion of mine inheritance, and of my cup : * Thou art He That shalt restore mine inheritance unto me.

The lines are fallen unto me in pleasant places : * yea, I have a goodly heritage.

I will bless the LORD, Who hath given me counsel : * my reins also instruct me in the night seasons.

I have set the LORD always before my face : * because He is at my right hand, I shall never be moved.

Therefore mine heart is glad, and my tongue rejoiceth : * my flesh also shall rest in hope,

For Thou wilt not leave my soul in hell : * neither wilt Thou suffer Thine Holy One to see corruption.

Thou hast shown me the path of life, Thou shalt fill me with joy in Thy presence : * at Thy right hand there are pleasures for evermore.

Psalm XVI.

[Intituled "A Prayer of David."]

HEAR my right, O LORD, * attend unto my cry.

Give ear unto my prayer, * that goeth not out of feigned lips.

Let my sentence come forth from Thy presence : * let Thine eyes behold the things that are equal.

Thou hast proved mine heart, and visited it by night : * Thou hast tried me with fire, and found no wickedness in me.

That my mouth may not speak concerning the works of men : * by the words of Thy lips I have kept me to strait paths.

Hold up my goings in Thy paths, * that my footsteps slip not.

I have called upon Thee, for Thou hast heard me, O God ; * incline Thine ear unto me, and hear my speech.

Show Thy marvellous loving-kindness, * O Thou That savest them which put their trust in Thee !

From those that rise up against Thy right hand keep me, * as the apple of the eye.

Hide me under the shadow of Thy wings, * from the face of the wicked that oppress me.

Mine enemies compass my soul round about, they are inclosed in their own fat : * with their mouth they speak proudly.

They that drave me out have now compassed me : * they have set their eyes bowing down to the earth.

They have lain in wait for me, as a lion that is ready for his prey : * and as it were a young lion lurking in secret places.

Arise, O LORD, disappoint him, and cast him down : * deliver my soul from the wicked, Thy sword from them that hate Thine hand.

O LORD, part them in their life from the precious things of the earth: * their belly is filled with Thine hidden treasure.

Antiphon for the rest of the year. [2] By the words of Thy lips I have kept me to strait paths.

Third Antiphon for Advent. Behold, I come.

Third Antiphon for the rest of the year. I will love Thee.

When this Antiphon is used the Psalm begins with the words, "O Lord, my strength."

Psalm XVII.

[After a superscription, of meaning now uncertain, the title of this Psalm proceeds, "Of David, the servant of the Lord, who spake unto the Lord the words of this song, in the day that the Lord delivered him from the hand of all his enemies, and from the hand of Saul: and he said:—" It is found also, with a few slight differences, in 2 Kings (Sam.) xxii.]

I WILL love Thee, O Lord, my strength: * the Lord is my rock, and my fortress, and my Deliverer.

My God, mine Helper, * in Whom I trust.

My buckler, and the horn of my salvation, * and my refuge.

I called upon the Lord with praises, * and am saved from mine enemies.

The sorrows of death compassed me: * and the floods of wickedness made me afraid.

The sorrows of hell compassed me about: * the snares of death came upon me.

In my distress I called upon the Lord, * and cried unto my God.

And He heard my voice out of His holy temple: * and my cry came before Him, even into His ears.

The earth shook and trembled: * the foundations of the hills moved and quaked, because He was wroth.

There went up a smoke in His wrath, and fire burst forth before His presence: * coals were kindled by it.

He bowed the heavens also, and came down: * and darkness was under His feet.

And He rode upon the Cherubim [3] and did fly: * yea, He did fly upon the wings of the wind.

And He made darkness His secret place, His pavilion round about Him: * dark waters, thick clouds of the skies.

At the brightness that was before Him, the thick clouds passed, * hailstones and coals of fire.

The Lord also thundered in the heavens, and the Highest uttered His voice: * hailstones and coals of fire.

Yea, He sent out His arrows and scattered them: * He shot out many lightnings and discomfited them.

And the fountains of waters were seen, * and the foundations of the world were discovered.

At Thy rebuke, O Lord, * at the blast of the breath of Thy wrath!

He sent from above, and took me; * and drew me out of many waters.

He delivered me from the strongest of mine enemies, and from them which hated me: * for they were too strong for me.

They came upon me in the day of my calamity, * but the Lord was my stay.

He brought me forth also into a large place: * He delivered me because He delighted in me.

And the Lord shall reward me according to my righteousness, * and according to the cleanness of mine hands shall He recompense me.

For I have kept the ways of the Lord, * and have not wickedly departed from my God.

For all His judgments were before me: * and I did not put away His statutes from me.

I shall also be upright with Him, * and keep myself from mine iniquity.

And the Lord shall reward me according to my righteousness, * and according to the cleanness of mine hands in His eye-sight.

With the holy Thou shalt be holy, * and with the innocent Thou shalt be innocent.

And with the pure Thou shalt be pure, * and with the contentious Thou shalt be contentious.

For Thou wilt save the afflicted people, * and bring down high looks.

For Thou lightest my lamp, O Lord: * my God, enlighten my darkness!

For by Thee shall I be delivered from temptation, * and by my God shall I leap over a wall.

As for my God, His way is perfect; the word of the Lord is tried in the fire: * He is a buckler to all those that trust in Him.

For who is God save the Lord? * or who is God save our God?

It is God that girdeth me with strength, * and maketh my way perfect.

He maketh my feet like hinds' feet, * and setteth me upon mine high places.

He teacheth my hands to war, * and maketh mine arms like a bow of brass.

Thou hast also given me the shield of Thy salvation: * and Thy right hand hath holden me up.

Thy correction also hath made me great: * and Thy chastening it is that shall teach me.

Thou hast enlarged my steps under me, * and my feet have not slipped.

I will pursue mine enemies and overtake them: * neither will I turn again till they be consumed.

[1] John i. 36.

[2] Ps. xvi. 4.

[3] Of these creatures, frequently mentioned in connection with the Divine manifestation, an elaborate account will be found in Ezekiel i. (First Sunday of November), and more shortly in Apoc. iv. (Tuesday in Third Week after Easter).

I will wound them that they shall not be able to rise: * they shall fall under my feet.

Thou hast girded me also with strength unto the battle, * and hast subdued under me those that rose up against me.

And hast made mine enemies to turn their back toward me, * and hast destroyed them that hate me.

They cried, but there was none to save them, even unto the LORD, * but He answered them not.

And I will beat them small, as the dust before the wind: * I will cast them out as the dirt in the streets.

Thou shalt deliver me from the gainsayings of the people: * Thou shalt make me the head of the heathen.

A people whom I knew not have served me: * as soon as they heard of me they obeyed me.

The strangers feigned obedience unto me: * the strangers were wearied out, and stumbled in their paths.

The LORD liveth, and blessed be my God: * and let the God of my salvation be exalted!

It is Thou, O God, That avengest me, and subduest the people under me. * Thou art my deliverer from my wrathful adversaries.

And Thou shalt lift me up above those that rise up against me: * Thou shalt deliver me from the wicked man.

Therefore will I give thanks unto Thee, O LORD, among the heathen, * and sing praises unto Thy name.

Great deliverance giveth He to His king, and showeth mercy to His Anointed, to David, * and to his seed for evermore.

THIRD NOCTURN, OR WATCH OF THE NIGHT.

Antiphon for Advent. The Angel Gabriel.

Antiphon for the rest of the year. There is no speech.

Antiphon for Paschal time. Alleluia.

Psalm XVIII.

[Intituled "A Psalm of David," with the same farther obscure superscription, as in Pss. xii. and xiii.]

THE heavens declare the glory of God, * and the firmament showeth His handy-work.

Day unto day uttereth speech, * and night unto night showeth knowledge.

There is no speech nor language, * where their voice is not heard.

Their sound is gone out through all the earth: * and their words to the ends of the world.

He hath set His tabernacle in the sun:[1] * which is as a bridegroom coming out of his chamber.

He rejoiceth as a strong man to run a race: * his going forth is from the end of the heaven.

And his circuit unto the ends of it: * and there is nothing hid from the heat thereof.

The law of the LORD is perfect, converting the soul: * the testimony of the LORD is sure, making wise the simple.

The statutes of the LORD are right, rejoicing the heart: * the commandment of the LORD is clear, giving light unto the eyes.

The fear of the LORD is holy, enduring for ever and ever: * the judgments of the LORD are true, righteous altogether.

More to be desired are they than gold and store of precious stones, * sweeter also than honey and the honeycomb.

Verily, Thy servant keepeth them: * in keeping of them there is great reward.

Who can understand his errors? Cleanse Thou me from secret faults: * preserve Thy servant also from the sins of others.

If they get not dominion over me, then shall I be undefiled: * and I shall be cleansed from the great transgression.

Let the words of my mouth, and the meditation of mine heart, * be acceptable in Thy sight for ever,

O LORD mine Helper, * and my Redeemer!

Antiphon for Advent. [2] The Angel Gabriel spake unto Mary, saying: Hail, thou that art full of grace, the Lord is with thee: blessed art thou among women.

In Paschal time only one Antiphon is said to the whole Nocturn.

Second Antiphon for Advent. Mary said.

[This Psalm has the same title as the last.]

THE LORD hear thee in the day of trouble: * the Name of the God of Jacob defend thee.

Send thee help from the sanctuary, * and strengthen thee out of Zion.

Remember all thine offerings, * and accept thy burnt sacrifice.[4]

Grant thee according to thine own heart, * and fulfil all thy counsel.

We will rejoice in Thy salvation: * and in the name of our God will we exult.

The LORD fulfil all thy petitions: * now know I that the LORD saveth His Anointed.

He will hear him from His holy heaven, * strong is the salvation of His right hand.

Some trust in chariots and some in horses: * but we will call upon the name of the LORD our God.

They are brought down and fallen: * but we are risen, and stand upright.

O LORD, save the king: * and hear us in the day when we call upon Thee.

Antiphon for Advent. [5] Mary said: What manner of salutation is this? My soul is troubled. Shall I bear the King? And will He not break the seal of my virginity?

Third Antiphon for Advent. The King.

Third Antiphon for the rest of the year. The king.

When this Antiphon is used the Psalm begins with the words "Shall joy."

Psalm XX.

[This Psalm also bears the same title as the xviiith.]

THE king shall joy in Thy strength, O LORD: * and in Thy salvation how greatly shall he rejoice!

Thou hast given him his heart's desire, * and hast not withholden the request of his lips.[7]

For Thou hast met him with the blessings of sweetness: * Thou hast set a crown of precious stones upon his head.

[1] So the LXX., as well as the Vulgate. Cf. Ps. cii. 19; ciii. 2, 3. The sense seems to be that the physical source of the light and life of this system is represented as a kind of celestial counterpart of the tabernacle, which was the centre of the Divine authority as revealed upon earth. The Hebrew, however, which is supported by St Jerome, reads, "In them (i.e., the starry heavens) hath He set a tabernacle for the sun," and this reading seems to commend itself to Archbishop Kenrick, who suggests that the "tabernacle" may signify the region below the horizon, into which the sun retires nightly, as into a tent, to sleep, and from which he issues in renewed glory every morning. Targum:—"In them hath He set splendour as a tabernacle for the sun."

[2] Luke i. 28.

[3] Ps. xviii. 4.

[4] SLH.

[5] Luke i. 29.

[6] Ps. xix. 2.

[7] SLH.

He asked life of Thee: * and Thou gavest him length of days for ever and ever.

His glory is great in Thy salvation: * honour and great majesty shalt Thou lay upon him.

For Thou wilt give him to be a blessing for ever: * Thou shalt make him exceeding glad with Thy countenance.

For the king trusteth in the LORD, * and, through the mercy of the Most High, he shall not be moved.

Thine hand shall find out all thine enemies: * thy right hand shall find out all those that hate thee.

Thou shalt make them as a fiery oven in the time of thine anger: * the LORD shall cut them off in His wrath, and the fire shall devour them.

Their fruit shalt thou destroy from the earth, * and their seed from among the children of men.

For they intended evil against thee: * they imagined a device, which they were not able to perform.

Therefore shalt thou cast them behind thee: * thou shalt leave their faces lying in thy track.

Be Thou exalted, O LORD, in Thine own strength: * we will sing and praise Thy power.

Antiphon for Advent. The King, even the Most High, cometh; therefore let the hearts of men be purified to go forth to meet Him, for, behold, [1] He will come and will not tarry.

When Thou tookest upon Thee to deliver man, Thou didst not abhor the Virgin's womb:

Thou sittest at the right hand of God, in the glory of the Father:

We believe that Thou shalt come to be our Judge:

LAUDS, OR THE MORNING PRAISES OF GOD.[1]

Sunday.

The Lord's Day.

Verse. ✠ Make haste, O God, to deliver me.

Answer. Make haste to help me, O Lord.

Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, and to the Holy Ghost.

As it was in the beginning, is now, and ever shall be, world without end. Amen, Alleluia.

From Septuagesima Sunday to Maundy Thursday instead of "Alleluia," is said:

Ceaseless praise to Thee be given,
O Eternal King of Heaven.

Then follow at once the Psalms and Antiphons. From the First Sunday in Advent till the Sunday after the Octave of the Epiphany and from Septuagesima Sunday till the Octave of Pentecost (and also on all Feasts), Five Antiphons are given, which are then said in the places here marked. During the rest of the year only Three Antiphons are said, which are given here.

Antiphon. Alleluia.

Psalm XCII.

[The Hebrew and the Targum give no superscription; but the LXX. and the Vulgate have "A Song of Praise by David for the eve of the Sabbath when the earth was established"—i.e., A Song of Praise proper for the close of Friday before the setting-in of the Sabbath; the time of which it is said (Gen. i. 31, ii. 1): "And God saw every thing that He had made, and, behold, it was very good. And the evening and the morning were the sixth day. Thus the heavens and the earth were finished, and all the host of them."]

THE Lord reigneth, He is clothed with majesty: * the Lord is clothed with strength, wherewith He hath girded Himself.

He hath established the world also, * that it cannot be moved.

Thy throne is established of old: * Thou art from everlasting.

The floods have lifted up, O Lord, * the floods have lifted up their voice—

The floods lift up their waves. * —But Mightier than the noise of many waters—

Than the mighty breakers of the sea—* is the Lord on high!

Thy testimonies are very sure: * holiness becometh Thine house, O Lord, for ever!

When there are Five Antiphons the First is repeated, and the Second begun or said through the first time here.

Psalm XCIX.

[Intituled in the Vulgate and the LXX., "A Psalm of Thanksgiving."]

MAKE a joyful noise unto God, all ye lands: * serve the Lord with gladness.

Come before His presence, * with singing.

Know ye that the Lord, He is God: * it is He That hath made us, and not[2] we ourselves:

We are His people, and the sheep of His pasture. * Enter into His gates with thanksgiving, and into His courts with praise: give thanks unto Him,

Praise His Name. For the Lord is good, His mercy is everlasting: * and His truth endureth to all generations.

When there are Five Antiphons the Second is repeated, and the Third begun or said through the first time here.

Psalm LXII.

[Intituled "A Psalm of David, when he was in the wilderness of Judah." This was one of the most perilous periods of David's life, when he was flying from the pursuit of Saul, and hiding in different forests and wildernesses in the south of Palestine. He was betrayed again and again, and had the most hairbreadth escapes. The history will be found in 1 Kings (Sam.) xxii. and xxiii.]

O GOD, Thou art my God, * early will I seek Thee:

My soul thirsteth for Thee, * my flesh longeth for Thee,

In a dry and desert land, without water. * So have I appeared before Thee in the Sanctuary, to see Thy power and Thy glory.

Because Thy loving-kindness is better than life, * my lips shall praise Thee.

Thus will I bless Thee while I live: * and will lift up mine hands in Thy name.

My soul shall be satisfied as with marrow and fatness; * and my mouth shall praise Thee with joyful lips.

When I remember Thee upon my bed, I meditate upon Thee in the night watches: * because Thou hast been mine help:

And in the shadow of Thy wings will I rejoice. My soul followeth hard after Thee: * Thy right hand upholdeth me.

[1] The proper hour for Lauds is the dawn of day. This is reckoned to be about 3 A.M., at which time this Office is said in many Convents. For this purpose it is, in choirs, invariably (except where it forms part of the same service with the Midnight Mass at Christmas) said immediately after and as one service with Mattins. Hence it follows 1st, that it is said late in the afternoon, when Mattins are said at that time, and 2ndly, that the Lord's Prayer and Angelic Salutation are not said at the beginning. This service is constructed on the same general principle as Vespers, and answers to that Office as Prime does to Compline.

[2] The Hebrew tradition attributes the negative to an eccentric spelling, and translates "and His we are."

But those that seek my soul to destroy it, shall go into the lower parts of the earth: * they shall fall by the sword, they shall be a portion for foxes.

But the King shall rejoice in God: every one that sweareth by him shall glory: * for the mouth of them that speak lies shall be stopped.

Here the Doxology, "Glory be to the Father, &c.," is not said.

Psalm LXVI.

[Besides a musical superscription, the Hebrew and the Targum give no title except "A Psalm, a Psalm." But the Vulgate and the LXX. ascribe the authorship to David.]

GOD be merciful unto us, and bless us: * cause His face to shine upon us, and be merciful unto us.[1]

That Thy way may be known upon earth: * Thy saving health among all nations.

Let the people praise Thee, O God: * let all the people praise Thee.

O let the nations be glad and sing for joy: * for Thou judgest the people righteously, and governest the nations upon earth.[2]

Let the people praise Thee, O God, let all the people praise Thee. * The earth hath yielded her increase;

Let God, even our own God, bless us; let God bless us: * and let all the ends of the earth fear Him.

When there are Five Antiphons, the Third is repeated, and the Fourth begun or said through the first time here.

Ordinary Antiphon throughout the year. Alleluia, Alleluia.

Second Ordinary Antiphon. The king commanded.

Antiphon for Paschal time. Alleluia, Alleluia, Alleluia; Alleluia, Alleluia, Alleluia; Alleluia, Alleluia, Alleluia.

Second Antiphon for Paschal time. He That delivered.

THE SONG OF THE THREE HOLY CHILDREN. (Daniel iii. 57.)

[It is well known how the three young comrades of Daniel, Hananiah, Mishaël, and Azariah, called by the heathen, Shadrach, Meshach, and Abednego, were thrown into a furnace for refusing to worship an idol, and remained unhurt amid the flames. In this strange position Azariah offered a long prayer. "And the king's servants, that put them in, ceased not to make the oven hot with resin, pitch, tow, and small wood, so that the flame streamed forth above the furnace forty and nine cubits. But the Angel of the Lord came down into the oven together with Azariah and his fellows, and smote the flame of the fire out of the oven, and made the midst of the furnace as it had been a moist whistling wind, so that the fire touched them not at all, neither hurt nor troubled them. Then the three, as out of one mouth, praised, glorified, and blessed God in the furnace, saying" the Hymn, of which that in the text is a cento. The first five verses are omitted.]

O ALL ye works of the Lord, bless ye the Lord: * praise Him, and exalt Him above all for ever.

O ye Angels of the Lord, bless ye the Lord: * O ye heavens, bless ye the Lord.

O all ye waters that be above the heavens, bless ye the Lord: * O all ye powers of the Lord, bless ye the Lord.

O ye Sun and Moon, bless ye the Lord: * O ye stars of heaven, bless ye the Lord.

O ye showers and dew, bless ye the Lord: * O ye winds of God, bless ye the Lord.

O ye fire and heat, bless ye the Lord: * O ye winter and summer, bless ye the Lord.

O ye dews and rime, bless ye the Lord: * O ye frost and cold, bless ye the Lord.

O ye ice and snow, bless ye the Lord: * O ye nights and days, bless ye the Lord.

O ye light and darkness, bless ye the Lord: * O ye lightnings and clouds, bless ye the Lord.

O let the earth bless the Lord: * let her praise and exalt Him above all for ever!

O ye mountains and hills, bless ye the Lord: * O all ye green things upon the earth, bless ye the Lord.

O ye wells, bless ye the Lord: * O ye seas and floods, bless ye the Lord.

O ye whales, and all that move in the waters, bless ye the Lord: * O all ye fowls of the air, bless ye the Lord.

O all ye beasts and cattle, bless ye the Lord: * O ye children of men, bless ye the Lord.

O let Israël bless the Lord: * let him praise and exalt Him above all for ever!

O ye Priests of the Lord, bless ye the Lord: * O ye servants of the Lord, bless ye the Lord.

O ye spirits and souls of the righteous, bless ye the Lord: * O ye holy and humble men of heart, bless ye the Lord.

O Ananias, Azarias, and Misaël, bless ye the Lord: * praise and exalt Him above all for ever.

[3] Bless we the Father, and the Son, and the Holy Ghost: * let us praise and exalt Him above all for ever.

Blessed art Thou, O Lord, in the firmament of heaven: * and to be praised, and glorified, and exalted above all for ever.

Here the Doxology, "Glory be to the Father, &c.," is not said, nor "Amen" answered. But the other Canticles are treated like ordinary Psalms.

When there are Five Antiphons, the Fourth is repeated, and the Fifth begun or said through the first time here.

Ordinary Antiphon throughout the year. The king commanded, and the Three Children were cast into the furnace, fearing not the flame of the fire, but saying: Blessed be God!

Antiphon for Paschal time. He

[3] This verse is, of course, a later addition; more than two verses are omitted, and the last given is one of those omitted at the beginning.

That delivered the Three Children from the burning fiery furnace, even Christ, is risen from the grave. Alleluia.

Third Antiphon. Alleluia.

Psalm CXLVIII.

[To this Psalm is prefixed "Alleluia." The LXX. connect it with the Prophets Haggai and Zechariah. See Thursday and Friday in the fifth week of November.]

PRAISE ye the Lord from the heavens: * praise Him in the heights.

Praise ye Him, all His Angels: * praise ye Him, all His hosts.

Praise ye Him, sun and moon: * praise Him, all ye stars and light.

Praise Him, ye heavens of heavens: * and all the waters that be above the heavens. Let them praise the Name of the Lord!

For He spake, and they were made[1]: * He commanded, and they were created.

He hath established them for ever and ever: * He hath made a decree which shall not pass.

Praise the Lord from the earth, * ye dragons, and all deeps:—

Fire, hail, snow, ice, stormy wind, * fulfilling His word:—

Mountains, and all hills, * fruitful trees, and all cedars:—

Beasts, and all cattle, * creeping things, and flying fowl:—

Kings of the earth, and all people; * princes, and all judges of the earth:—

Young men, and maidens, old men, and children: let them praise the Name of the Lord—* for His Name alone is exalted!

His glory is above heaven and earth. * He also exalteth the horn of His people,

The praise of all His Saints, * even of the children of Israël, a people near unto Him.

[Here "Alleluia."]

Here the Doxology, "Glory be to the Father, &c.," is not said.

Psalm CXLIX.

[Here "Alleluia."]

SING unto the Lord a new song: * His praise in the congregation of Saints.

Let Israël rejoice in Him That made him: * and let the children of Zion be joyful in their King.

Let them praise His Name in the dance: * let them sing praises unto Him with the timbrel and harp.

For the Lord taketh pleasure in His people: * He also will exalt the meek unto salvation.

Let the Saints be joyful in glory: * let them sing aloud upon their beds:

Let the high praises of God be in their mouth: * and a two-edged sword in their hands;

To execute vengeance upon the heathen, * and punishments upon the people;

To bind their kings with chains, * and their nobles with fetters of iron;

To execute upon them the judgment written: * this honour have all His Saints.

[Here "Alleluia."]

Here the Doxology, "Glory be to the Father, &c.," is not said.

Psalm CL.

[Here "Alleluia."]

PRAISE the Lord in His sanctuary! * praise Him in the firmament of His power!

Praise Him in His mighty acts! * praise Him according to His excellent greatness!

Praise Him with the sound of the trumpet! * praise Him with the psaltery and harp!

Praise Him with the timbrel and dance! * praise Him with stringed instruments and organs!

Praise Him upon the loud cymbals, praise Him upon the high-sounding cymbals! * Let everything that hath breath praise the Lord!

[Here "Alleluia."]

Antiphon. Alleluia, Alleluia, Alleluia.

(The last of Five Antiphons is, of course, repeated here.)

Then follows the Chapter. From the First Sunday in Advent to the Second Sunday after the Epiphany, and from Septuagesima Sunday to the Third Sunday after Pentecost, as also on all Feasts, a special Chapter is given. On the remaining Sundays the Chapter is that given here.

CHAPTER. (Apoc. vii. 12.)

BLESSING, and glory, and wisdom, and thanksgiving, and honour, and power, and might be unto our God for ever and ever. Amen.

Answer. Thanks be to God.

This answer is always made after the Chapter.

Then follows the Hymn. From the First Sunday in Advent till the Octave of the Epiphany and from the First Sunday in Lent till the Octave of Pentecost, as also on all Feasts, a special Hymn is given. On the remaining Sundays the Hymn given here is said, except between the Octave of Pentecost and the first Sunday of October.

HYMN.[2]

FRAMER of the earth and sky,
Ruler of the day and night,
With a glad variety,
Tempering all, and making light;

Gleams upon our dark path flinging,
Cutting short each night begun,
Hark! for chanticleer is singing,
Hark! he chides the lingering sun.

And the morning star replies,
And lets loose the imprison'd day;
And the godless bandit flies
From his haunt, and from his prey.

Shrill it sounds, the storm relenting
Soothes the weary seamen's ears;
Once it wrought a great repenting,
In that flood of Peter's tears.

Rouse we; let the blithesome cry
Of that bird our hearts awaken;
Chide the slumberers as they lie,
And arrest the sin-o'ertaken.

---

[1] Taken from Ps. xxxii. 9.

[2] By St Ambrose, or at least of the Ambrosian school, except the last verse. Translation by the late Card. Newman.

Hope and health are in his strain,
To the fearful and the ailing;
Murder sheathes his blade profane,
Faith revives when faith was failing.

Jesu, Master! when we sin,
Turn on us Thy healing Face;
It will melt the offence within
Into penitential grace:

Beam on our bewildered mind,
Till its dreamy shadows flee;
Stones cry out where Thou hast shined,
Jesu! musical with Thee.

To the Father and the Son,
And the Spirit, Who in heaven
Ever witness, Three and One,
Praise on earth be ever given.
Amen.

The following Hymn is said from the Fourth Sunday after Pentecost till the first Sunday of October.

Hymn.[1]

Paler have grown the shades of night,
And nearer draws the day,
Checkering the sky with streaks of light,
Since we began to pray:

To pray for mercy when we sin,
For cleansing and release,
For ghostly safety, and within
For everlasting peace.

Praise to the Father, as is meet,
Praise to the Only Son,
Praise to the Holy Paraclete,
While endless ages run.
Amen.

Then is said a Verse and Answer. In Advent and from Septuagesima Sunday till the end of Paschal time, as also on all Feasts, a special Verse and Answer are given.

Verse. [2] The Lord reigneth, He is clothed with majesty.

Answer. The Lord is clothed with strength, and hath girded Himself with power.

Then is said the following Song from the Gospel. It has an Antiphon, which is always special, and which is either begun or said through the first time before it, according as the Office is Double or not.

The Song of Zacharias.

[On the occasion of the circumcision of St John the Baptist.—Luke i. 68-79.]

Blessed be the Lord God of Israël, * for He hath visited and redeemed His people.

And hath raised up an horn of salvation for us, * in the house of His servant David:

As He spake by the mouth of His holy Prophets, * which have been since the world began:

That we should be saved from our enemies, * and from the hand of all that hate us:

To perform the mercy promised to our fathers, * and to remember His holy covenant:

The oath which He sware to our father Abraham, * that He would grant unto us,

That we, being delivered out of the hand of our enemies, * might serve Him without fear,

In holiness and righteousness before Him * all the days of our life.

And thou, child, shalt be called the Prophet of the Highest: * for thou shalt go before the face of the Lord to prepare His ways:

To give knowledge of salvation unto His people, * by the remission of their sins;

Through the tender mercy of our God, * whereby the dayspring from on high hath visited us,

To give light to them that sit in darkness, and in the shadow of death, * to guide our feet into the way of peace.

The Doxology, "Glory be to the Father, &c.," is said, and then the Antiphon repeated.

Then is said:

Verse. Hear my prayer, O Lord.

Answer. And let my cry come unto Thee.

Let us pray.

Then follows the Prayer for the day, at the end of which is answered:

Answer. Amen.

Afterwards are made any Commemorations necessary, by the Antiphon for the Song of Zacharias, the Verse and Answer after the Hymn, and the Prayer (preceded by "Let us pray") from the superseded Office which is to be commemorated. After which the following Common Commemorations are made, if required, according to Chapter xxxv. of the General Rubrics.

When more than two Prayers are to be said, the last clause of each (beginning "Through our Lord, &c.," or "Who livest, &c.,") is omitted in all except the first and the last, nor is "Amen" answered except after these two.

(Note that if these Commemorations be said upon a week-day, kept as such, out of Paschal time, they are preceded by the Commemoration of the Cross, given hereafter at the end of the Lauds of Monday.)

I. Commemoration of the Blessed Virgin Mary.

(Omitted if the Office of the day is of the Blessed Virgin, or if her Little Office is to be said.)

Antiphon. O Holy Mary, be thou an help to the helpless, a strength to the fearful, a comfort to the sorrowful; pray for the people, plead for the clergy, make intercession for all women vowed to God; may all that keep thine holy remembrance, feel the might of thine assistance.

Verse. Pray for us, O holy Mother of God.

Answer. That we may be made worthy of the promises of Christ.

Let us pray.

Grant, we beseech Thee, O Lord God, unto all Thy servants, that they may continually enjoy soundness both of mind and of body, and by the glorious intercession of the Blessed Mary, always a Virgin, may be delivered from present sadness, and enter into the joy of Thine eternal gladness.

From the Octave of the Epiphany to Candlemas, the Antiphon is the same, but the rest is as follows:

Verse. After thy delivery thou still remainest a Virgin undefiled.

Answer. Mother of God, pray for us.

---

[1] By Pope St Gregory the Great, but a good deal altered. Translation by the late Card. Newman.

[2] Ps. xcii. 1.

Let us pray.

O GOD, Who, by the fruitful virginity of the Blessed Mary, hast given unto mankind the rewards of everlasting life; grant, we beseech Thee, that we may continually feel the might of her intercession, through whom we have worthily received the Author of our life, our Lord JESUS Christ Thy Son.

II. Commemoration of St Joseph, Patron of the Universal Church.

(Omitted in his Votive Office.)

Antiphon. [1] JESUS Himself began to be about thirty years of age, being (as was supposed) the son of Joseph.

Verse. [2] The mouth of the righteous speaketh wisdom.

Answer. And his tongue talketh judgment.

Let us pray.

O GOD, Who, in Thine unspeakable foreknowledge, didst choose Thy blessed servant Joseph to be the husband of Thine Own most holy Mother; mercifully grant that now that he is in heaven with Thee, we who on earth do reverence him for our defender, may worthily be holpen by the succour of his prayers to Thee on our behalf.

III. Commemoration of the Holy Apostles, Peter and Paul.

(Omitted in the Votive Office of the Apostles.)

Antiphon. [3] These are glorious princes over all the earth, they loved one another in their lives, and in their death they were not divided.

Verse. [4] Their sound is gone out through all the earth.

Answer. And their words to the ends of the world.

Let us pray.

O GOD, Whose Right Hand caught the Blessed Peter when he walked upon the water, and began to sink,[5] and thrice delivered his fellow-Apostle Paul from the deep of the sea, when he suffered shipwreck;[6] graciously hear us, and grant, for the sake of them both, that we also may attain unto everlasting glory.

Note [7].

For Peace.

Antiphon. Give peace in our time, O Lord, because there is none other that fighteth for us, but only Thou, O our God.

---

[1] Luke iii. 23.

[2] Ps. xxxvi. 30.

[3] 2 Kings (Sam.) i. 23.

[4] Ps. xviii. 5.

[5] Matth. xiv. 31.

[6] 2 Cor. xi. 25.

[7] In England in this case, by a special rule, is made

Commemoration of St George, Patron of England.

Antiphon. * The Saints through faith subdued kingdoms, wrought righteousness, obtained promises.

Verse. † O LORD, Thou hast compassed him.

Answer. With Thy favour as with a shield.

Let us pray.

O GOD, Who dost gladden us through the worthy deeds and prayers of Thy blessed Martyr George; mercifully grant that all they that seek Thy favour through him, may effectually obtain the gift of Thy grace.

And thus it is said within the Octave.

In the Diocese of Hexham St George is not commemorated, but instead, the following commemoration is made of St Cuthbert:

Antiphon. Holy Cuthbert, our Protector, grace and glory of our fatherland, look down upon us from Heaven, and pray God for us, that He grant us everlasting joy.

Verse. At the prayers of Blessed Cuthbert and for his sake,

Answer. Be merciful unto Thy people, O Lord.

Let us pray.

O GOD, Who, through the priceless gift of Thy grace, dost make Thine holy ones glorious, mercifully grant, that the prayers of Thy Blessed Confessor and Bishop Cuthbert may help us worthily there to attain, where are the spirits of just men made perfect.

In the Diocese of Northampton the following commemoration of St Thomas of Canterbury is made before that of St George:

Antiphon. * I am the Good Shepherd, and know My sheep, and am known of Mine, and I lay down My life for the sheep.

Verse. * In your patience

Answer. Possess ye your souls.

Let us pray.

O GOD, in defence of Whose Church the glorious Bishop Thomas fell by the swords of wicked men, grant, we beseech Thee, that all that ask his help may obtain wholesome fruit of their petition.

In the Diocese of Plymouth the following commemoration of St Boniface of Maintz is made before that of St George:

Antiphon. Many nations, many thousands of men, did Blessed Boniface gain for Christ, and forasmuch as he made himself like unto an Apostle, he hath purchased unto himself a great reward in Heaven along with the Apostles.

Verse. Be strong in the Lord, be strong.

Answer. That ye may live for ever with God.

---

* Heb. xi. 33.

† Ps. v. 13.

* John x. 14, 15.

* Luke xxi. 19.

Verse. [1] Peace be within thy walls.

Answer. And prosperity within thy palaces.

Let us pray.

O GOD, from Whom all holy desires, all good counsels, and all just works do proceed; give unto Thy servants that peace which the world cannot give, that both our hearts may be set to obey Thy commandments, and also that by Thee we being defended from the fear of our enemies, may pass our time in rest and quietness. Through our Lord Jesus Christ, Thy Son, Who liveth and reigneth with Thee, in the unity of the Holy Ghost, one God, world without end.

Answer. Amen.

From the Monday after Low Sunday till the Eve of the Ascension, instead of the preceding Commemorations, is said the following:

Paschal Commemoration of the Cross.

(Omitted in the Votive Offices of the Blessed Sacrament and of the Passion.)

Antiphon. He That was crucified is risen from the dead, and hath redeemed us. Alleluia, Alleluia.

Verse. [2] Say among the heathen—Alleluia.

Answer. That the Lord reigneth from the tree—Alleluia.

Let us pray.

O GOD, Who didst send Thy Son to suffer death for us upon the Cross, that Thou mightest deliver us from the power of the enemy; grant unto us Thy servants to be made partakers of His Resurrection. Through the Same our Lord Jesus Christ Thy Son, Who liveth and reigneth with Thee in the unity of the Holy Ghost, one God, world without end.

Answer. Amen.

After the last Prayer is said:

Verse. Hear my prayer, O Lord.

Answer. And let my cry come unto Thee.

Verse. Bless we the Lord.

Answer. Thanks be to God.

If the Office of the Dead or the Litany (with or without the Penitential Psalms) is to follow immediately, it is begun here. Otherwise

There is said in rather a low voice:

May the souls of the Faithful through the mercy of God rest in peace.

Answer. Amen.

If Prime is to follow immediately, it is begun here, and what follows is not said till the end of the whole service. Otherwise the Office ends thus:

The Lord's Prayer is said inaudibly:

OUR Father, Who art in heaven, Hallowed be Thy Name. Thy kingdom come. Thy will be done on earth, as it is in heaven. Give us this day our daily bread. And forgive us our trespasses, as we forgive them that trespass against us. And lead us not into temptation; but deliver us from evil. Amen.

Then aloud:

Verse. The Lord give us His peace.

Answer. And life everlasting. Amen.

Then follows one of these Four Antiphons of the Blessed Virgin Mary, according to the season of the year.

I. From the First Sunday in Advent to Candlemas, both inclusive.

Antiphon. [3] Maiden, Mother of Him that redeemed us, thou that abidest

Heaven's open gate, and the Star of the Sea, come, succour the fallen!

Fallen indeed we are, but fain would rise by thy succour.

Thou that beyond nature's course, hast borne in time the Eternal;

Thou that a Virgin before and after that childbirth remainest,

---

Let us pray.

O GOD, Who wast pleased to make the zeal of Thy Blessed Martyr and Bishop Boniface the mean whereby Thou didst cause many peoples to know Thy Name, mercifully grant unto us who honour his memory to be feelingly holpen by the succour of his protection.

(And so it is said within the Octave.)

In the Diocese of Portsmouth the following commemoration of St Edmund of Canterbury is made after that of St George:

Antiphon. He loved righteousness and hated iniquity, and therefore he died in exile.

Verse. Cast out upon a world of woes,
In exile here we roam.
Answer. O Blessed Edmund, by thy prayers,
Gain us the love of home.

Let us pray.

O GOD, Who in the abundance of Thy goodness toward Thy Church hast made her bright by the illustrious life of Thy blessed Confessor and Bishop Edmund, and gladdened her by his glorious and wondrous works, mercifully grant unto Thy servants that they may be bettered in following after his ensample, and shielded by his protection from all things that may rise up against them.

[1] Ps. cxxi. 7.

[2] Ps. xcv. 10, old version.

[3] i.e., it is said for the first time after Vespers, if the Antiphon of the B.V. be to be said, and in any case after Compline, on the Saturday evening before Advent Sunday, and it is still similarly said after Vespers on February 2, but not after Compline on that day. It is ascribed to Hermann the Cripple, a monk of Reichenau, who died A.D. 1052. This translation is in the same rhymeless measure as the original.

From the Archangel's lips the quickening message receiving,
Mother of JESUS and us, turn thine eyes of mercy on sinners.

Verse. The Angel of the Lord announced unto Mary.

Answer. And she conceived by the Holy Ghost.

Let us pray.

WE beseech Thee, O Lord, pour Thy grace into our hearts; that, as we have known the Incarnation of Thy Son Christ by the message of an Angel, so by His Passion and Cross we may be brought unto the glory of the Resurrection. Through the same Christ our Lord.

Answer. Amen.

In and after the First Vespers of Christmas Day the Verse and Answer and Prayer are as follows:

Verse. After thy delivery thou still remainest a Virgin undefiled.

Answer. Mother of God, pray for us.

Let us pray.

O GOD, Who, by the fruitful virginity of the Blessed Mary, hast given unto mankind the rewards of everlasting life; grant, we beseech Thee, that we may continually feel the might of her intercession, through whom we have worthily received the Author of our life, even our Lord JESUS Christ Thy Son.

Answer. Amen.

II. From Candlemas to Maundy Thursday, both exclusive.[1]

Antiphon. Hail, O Mary, Queen of Heaven,
Queen of Angel worlds on high,
Hail, O Rod to Jesse given,
Blessed Portal of the sky,
Hail, O Lady, bright and glorious,
Clad in beauty pure and true,
Virgin! o'er sin's stain victorious,
Sinners for thy succour sue.

Verse. Holy Virgin, my praise by thee accepted be.

Answer. Give me strength against thine enemies.

Let us pray.

GRANT, we beseech Thee, O most merciful God, a succour unto the frailty of our nature, that as we keep ever alive the memory of the holy Mother of God, so by the help of her intercession we may be raised up from the bondage of our sins. Through the same Christ our Lord.

Answer. Amen.

III. From Easter Sunday[2] till the Saturday after Pentecost, both inclusive.

Antiphon. Rejoice! rejoice! thou Queen of Heaven, Alleluia,
For He That thee for Son was given, Alleluia,
As He promised is arisen. Alleluia.
Mother, pray to Him for us. Alleluia.

Verse. Be glad and rejoice, O Virgin Mary, Alleluia,

Answer. For the Lord is risen indeed, Alleluia.

Let us pray.

O GOD, Who art pleased to gladden the whole world by the resurrection of Thy Son our Lord JESUS Christ; grant, we beseech Thee, that by the help of His Mother the Virgin Mary, we may finally attain unto the gladness of life everlasting. Through the same Christ our Lord.

Answer. Amen.

IV. From Trinity Sunday[3] till the Saturday before Advent Sunday, both inclusive.

Antiphon. Hail, O Queen, Mother of mercy! hail, our life, our sweetness, and our hope! To thee we cry, the banished sons of Eve. Toward thee we sigh, weeping and groaning in this vale of tears. Ah, then, thou our Advocate, turn on us those merciful eyes of thine! And, after this our exile, show to us JESUS, the blessed Fruit of thy womb. O merciful, O gracious, O sweet Virgin Mary!

Verse. Pray for us, O holy Mother of God,

Answer. That we may be made worthy of the promises of Christ.

Let us pray.

O ALMIGHTY and everlasting God, Who, by the co-operation of the Holy Ghost, didst make ready both the body and soul of the glorious Virgin and Mother Mary worthily to become a meet dwelling for Thy Son; grant that as we rejoice in her memory, so by her pitiful intercession we may be delivered from the evils that continually hang over us, and finally from everlasting death. Through the same Christ our Lord.

Answer. Amen.

After each of these Antiphons is said this Blessing:

God's most mighty strength alway
Be His people's staff and stay.

Answer. Amen.

Feasts. The above Office, appointed for Sunday, is also said on all Feasts whatsoever, even Simples, and every day in Paschal time.

[1] i.e., it is said for the first time after Compline on Feb. 2 (even if the Feast of the Purification be transferred), and for the last time after Compline on Wednesday in Holy Week. The authorship is unknown; it seems to date from about the eleventh century.

[2] i.e., it is said for the first time after Compline on Easter Eve. The date and authorship are unknown; but a legend has become attached to it to the effect that St Gregory the Great heard the three first lines uttered by an angel, and himself added the fourth, on the same occasion from which was instituted the procession upon St Mark's Day.

[3] i.e., it is said for the first time after Vespers, if the Antiphon of the B.V. be to be said, and in any case after Compline, on the Saturday evening before Trinity Sunday. The last clause is usually admitted to be an exclamation uttered by St Bernard of Clairvaux in the Cathedral of Spires; but the authorship of the rest is disputed, some ascribing it to Hermann the Cripple, others to one Peter of Monsoro, Bishop of Compostella, others to one Adhemar, Bishop of Podium (Puy-en-Velay). It seems to have been well known, at least in Spain, early in the twelfth century.

PRIME, OR THE FIRST HOUR.[1]

Sunday.

THE LORD'S DAY.

Before Prime is said inaudibly the Lord's Prayer, the Angelic Salutation, and the Apostles' Creed.

OUR Father, Who art in heaven, Hallowed be Thy Name. Thy kingdom come. Thy will be done on earth, as it is in heaven. Give us this day our daily bread. And forgive us our trespasses, as we forgive them that trespass against us. And lead us not into temptation; but deliver us from evil. Amen.

HAIL, Mary, full of grace; The Lord is with thee: blessed art thou among women, and blessed is the fruit of thy womb, JESUS.

Holy Mary, Mother of God, pray for us sinners, now and at the hour of our death. Amen.

I BELIEVE in God the Father Almighty, Maker of heaven and earth. And in JESUS Christ, His Only Son, our Lord; Who was conceived by the Holy Ghost, Born of the Virgin Mary, suffered under Pontius Pilate, was crucified, dead, and buried: He descended into hell: the third day He rose again from the dead: He ascended into heaven, and sitteth on the right hand of God the Father Almighty: from thence He shall come to judge the quick and the dead. I believe in the Holy Ghost, the holy Catholic Church, the Communion of Saints, the Forgiveness of sins, the Resurrection of the body, and the Life everlasting. Amen.

Then is said aloud:

Verse. ✠ Make haste, O God, to deliver me.

Answer. Make haste to help me, O LORD.

Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, and to the Holy Ghost.

As it was in the beginning, is now, and ever shall be, world without end. Amen. Alleluia.

From Septuagesima Sunday to Maundy Thursday instead of "Alleluia" is said:

Ceaseless praise to Thee be given,
O Eternal King of heaven.

Then is said the following:

HYMN.[2]

THE star of morn to night succeeds,
We therefore meekly pray,
May God, in all our words and deeds,
Keep us from harm this day.

May He in love restrain us still
From tones of strife and words of ill,
And wrap around and close our eyes
To earth's absorbing vanities.

May wrath and thoughts that gender shame
Ne'er in our breasts abide,
And painful abstinences tame
Of wanton flesh the pride;

So when the weary day is o'er
And night and stillness come once more,
Blameless and clean from spot of earth
We may repeat with reverent mirth—

To God the Father glory be,
And to His Only Son,
And to the Spirit, One and Three,
While endless ages run.
Amen.

The last verse is sometimes said thus, altered in honour of the Incarnation:

JESU, the Virgin-born, to Thee
Eternal praise be given,
With Father, Spirit, One and Three,
Here as it is in heaven.
Amen.

In Paschal time it is said thus, altered in honour of the Resurrection:

To Father, Son, and Paraclete,
The slain and risen Son,
Be praise and glory, as is meet,
While endless ages run.
Amen.

It is also occasionally otherwise altered, which occasions are marked in their places.

Then follow the Psalms. They are all said under one Antiphon, and when Five Antiphons have been said at Lauds, the First of these Five is the Antiphon at Prime, otherwise that given here is used.

Antiphon. Alleluia.

Psalm LIII.

[The superscription of this Psalm, after some words which are probably a musical direction, proceeds "[A Psalm] of David, when the Ziphim came and said to Saul, Doth not David hide himself with us?" This was during the same period of his life in the South in which he composed Ps. lxii. The Ziphim, or peasantry of the neighbourhood of Ziph, betrayed him twice to Saul, and both times, especially the first, he was in imminent peril. 1 Kings (Sam.) xxiii. 19-29, xxvi.]

SAVE me, O God, in Thy Name, * and judge me in Thy power.

[1] Prime is the first service of the Church for the day-time, Mattins and Lauds being for the middle and close of night. Its proper hour is when the sun has fairly risen, and day begun, which is reckoned to be about 6 A.M., about which time it is generally said in choirs. Sometimes Mattins, Lauds, and Prime are said together early in the morning, forming the complete morning service of the Church. It is from this aggregation that the "Morning Prayer" of the Anglican Prayer Book is derived.

[2] Another Ambrosian hymn. Translation by the late Card. Newman.

Hear my prayer, O God: * give ear to the words of my mouth.

For strangers are risen up against me, and oppressors seek after my soul: * and have not set God before them.[1]

Behold God is mine Helper: * and the Lord upholdeth my soul.

Reward Thou evil unto mine enemies: * and cut them off in Thy truth.

I will freely sacrifice unto Thee: * and praise Thy Name, O Lord, for it is good.

For Thou hast delivered me out of all trouble: * and mine eye hath seen [my desire] upon mine enemies.

The following Psalm, "O give thanks unto the Lord," is said only on Sundays, when the Office is of the Sunday, nor is it said from Easter to Pentecost, both inclusive. Moreover it is not said on or after Septuagesima Sunday till Easter, but then is substituted for it Psalm xcii., "The Lord reigneth" (given at the beginning of Lauds).

Psalm CXVII.

[From some verses it seems as though this Psalm was written for the Feast of Tabernacles, and perhaps as a processional at the entry of the King (David?) into the place of worship. The Vulgate and the LXX. prefix the word Alleluia.]

O GIVE thanks unto the Lord, for He is good: * for His mercy endureth for ever.

Let Israël now say that He is good: * for His mercy endureth for ever.

Let the house of Aaron now say, * that His mercy endureth for ever.

Let them now that fear the Lord say, * that His mercy endureth for ever.

I called upon the Lord in distress: * and the Lord heard me [and set me] at large.

The Lord is on my side: * I will not fear what man can do unto me.

The Lord is on my side: * and I shall see [my desire upon] them that hate me.

It is better to put confidence in the Lord, * than to put confidence in man.

It is better to trust in the Lord, * than to trust in princes.

All nations compassed me about: * but in the Name of the Lord![2] I was avenged on them.

They compassed me about, yea, they compassed me about: * but in the Name of the Lord! I was avenged on them.

They compassed me about like bees; they burnt out as the fire of thorns: * but in the Name of the Lord! I was avenged on them.

They thrust sore at me, that I might fall: * but the Lord helped me.

The Lord is my strength and my song, * and is become my salvation.

The voice of rejoicing and salvation * is in the tabernacles[3] of the righteous.

The right hand of the Lord hath done valiantly. The right hand of the Lord hath exalted me: * the right hand of the Lord hath done valiantly.

I shall not die, but live, * and declare the works of the Lord.

The Lord hath chastened me sore: * but He hath not given me over unto death.

Open to me the gates of righteousness; I will go into them and praise the Lord. * This is the gate of the Lord, into which the righteous shall enter.

I will praise Thee, for Thou hast heard me, * and art become my salvation.

[4] The stone which the builders refused * is become the head-stone of the corner.

This is the Lord's doing: * and it is marvellous in our eyes.

This is the day which the Lord hath made: * let us rejoice and be glad in it.

Save me now, O Lord! O Lord, send Thou prosperity. * Blessed be he that cometh in the Name of the Lord![5]

We have blessed you out of the house of the Lord. * God is the Lord and hath showed us light:

Keep the solemn feast-day with leafy boughs, * even unto the horns of the Altar.[6]

Thou art my God, and I will praise Thee: * Thou art my God, and I will exalt Thee.

I will give thanks unto Thee, for Thou hast heard me, * and art become my salvation.

O give thanks unto the Lord, for He is good: * for His mercy endureth for ever.

Psalm CXVIII.[7]

א

BLESSED are the undefiled in the way, * who walk in the law of the Lord.

Blessed are they that keep His testimonies: * that seek Him with the whole heart.

For they that work iniquity, * walk not in His ways.

Thou hast commanded us * to keep Thy precepts diligently.

O that my ways were directed * to keep Thy statutes.

Then shall I not be ashamed, * when I have respect unto all Thy commandments.

[1] SLH.

[2] Probably a war cry.

[3] The allusion is to the ceremonial of the Feast of Tabernacles, Lev. xxiii. 42, "Ye shall dwell in booths seven days."

[4] These two verses were quoted by our Lord. Matth. xxi. 42; Mark xii. 10.

[5] Notice that this is the very verse which was sung during the Palm Sunday procession. The word Hosanna is a corruption of its third and fourth words—viz., "Hoshy'ah na."

[6] Lev. xxiii. 40. "And ye shall take you on the first day the boughs of goodly trees, branches of palm-trees, and the boughs of thick trees, and willows of the brook; and ye shall rejoice before the Lord your God seven days." As to the Feast of Tabernacles, the Jewish tradition understands by "goodly trees" the citron, and by "thick trees" the myrtle. Branches of willow were fastened to the corners of the altar.

[7] This long poem in praise of the Divine Law, which the Church recites every day and all day, is A B C Darian. Its 176 verses are divided into twenty-two sections, of eight verses each, in each of which sections all the verses begin with the same letter of the Hebrew alphabet. The first eight, therefore, begin with Aleph, which somewhat corresponds to A.

I will praise Thee with uprightness of heart, * when I shall have learned Thy righteous judgments.

I will keep Thy statutes: * O forsake me not utterly.

Here the Doxology, "Glory be to the Father, &c.," is not said.

ב[1]

WHEREWITHAL shall a young man keep his way? * By taking heed unto Thy word.

With my whole heart have I sought Thee: * O let me not wander from Thy commandments!

Thy word have I hid in mine heart, * that I might not sin against Thee.

Blessed art Thou, O LORD: * teach me Thy statutes!

With my lips * have I declared all the judgments of Thy mouth.

I have rejoiced in the way of Thy testimonies, * as much as in all riches.

I will meditate on Thy precepts, * and have respect unto Thy ways.

I will delight myself in Thy statutes: * I will not forget Thy word.

Continuation of the same Psalm.

ג[2]

DEAL bountifully with Thy servant, quicken me, * and I will keep Thy word.

Open Thou mine eyes, * that I may behold wondrous things out of Thy law.

I am a stranger in the earth: * hide not Thy commandments from me.

My soul is an-hungered for the longing that it hath unto Thy judgments * at all times.

Thou hast rebuked the proud: * they are cursed that do err from Thy commandments.

Remove from me reproach and contempt: * for I have kept Thy testimonies.

Princes also did sit and speak against me: * but Thy servant did meditate on Thy statutes.

Thy testimonies also are my delight, * and Thy precepts my counsellors.

Here the Doxology, "Glory be to the Father, &c.," is not said.

ד[3]

MY soul cleaveth unto the ground: * quicken Thou me according to Thy word.

I have declared my ways and Thou heardest me: * teach me Thy statutes.

Make me to understand the way of Thy precepts: * so shall I talk of Thy wondrous works.

My soul sleepeth for heaviness: * strengthen Thou me according unto Thy word.

Remove from me the way of lying: * and grant me Thy law graciously.

I have chosen the way of truth: * Thy judgments have I not forgotten.

I cleave unto Thy testimonies, O LORD: * put me not to shame!

I have run the way of Thy commandments, * since Thou hast enlarged mine heart.

The following Creed is only said on Sundays when the Office is of the Sunday, and on Trinity Sunday. The exceptions are Easter and Pentecost Sundays, when it is not said, because they are treated as Festivals.

THE CREED OF ST ATHANASIUS.[4]

WHOSOEVER willeth to be safe, * before all things it is necessary that he hold the Catholic Faith.

Which faith except every one do keep whole and undefiled, * without doubt he shall perish eternally.

Now the Catholic Faith is this, * that we worship One God in Trinity, and Trinity in Unity.

Neither confounding the Persons, * nor dividing the Substance.

For there is one Person of the Father, another of the Son, * and another of the Holy Ghost.

But the Godhead of the Father, of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost is One, * the Glory Equal, the Majesty Co-Eternal.

Such as the Father is, such is the Son, * and such is the Holy Ghost.

The Father Uncreated, the Son Uncreated, * and the Holy Ghost Uncreated.

The Father Infinite, the Son Infinite, * and the Holy Ghost Infinite.

The Father Eternal, the Son Eternal, * and the Holy Ghost Eternal.

And yet They are not Three Eternals, * but One Eternal.

As also They are not Three Uncreated, nor Three Infinites, * but One Uncreated, and One Infinite.

So likewise the Father is Almighty, the Son Almighty, * and the Holy Ghost Almighty.

And yet They are not Three Almighties, * but One Almighty.

So the Father is God, the Son God, * and the Holy Ghost God.

And yet They are not Three Gods, * but One God.

So the Father is Lord, the Son Lord, * and the Holy Ghost Lord.

And yet They are not Three Lords, * but One Lord.

For, like as we are compelled by Christian truth to acknowledge every Person by Himself to be God and Lord, * so are we forbidden by the Catholic Religion to say, there be Three Gods or Three Lords.

The Father is made of none, * neither created, nor begotten.

The Son is of the Father alone: * not made, nor created, but Begotten.

The Holy Ghost is of the Father, and the Son: * not made, nor created, nor begotten, but Proceeding.

[1] Here begins the letter Beth, somewhat represented by B.

[2] Here begins the letter Ghimel, answering partly to our G.

[3] Here begins the letter Daleth, answering partly to our D.

[4] The translation largely follows that in the Rev. A. E. Burn's 'Introduction to the Creeds.' The origin and date of this hymn have been the subject of much discussion. "It is agreed that it was not written by St Athanasius, and that it was written in Latin." In the opinion of Mr Burn the indications point to the South of Gaul as its place of origin, and to the decade A.D. 420-430 as the period of its composition.

So there is One Father, not Three Fathers; One Son, not Three Sons; * One Holy Ghost, not Three Holy Ghosts.

And in this Trinity is nothing afore or after, nothing is greater or less; * but the whole Three Persons are Co-Eternal together, and Co-Equal.

So that in all things, as is aforesaid, * the Unity in Trinity, and the Trinity in Unity is to be worshipped.

He therefore that willeth to be safe, * let him thus think of the Trinity.

But it is necessary to eternal salvation, * that he also believe faithfully the Incarnation of our Lord Jesus Christ.

The right Faith therefore is, that we believe and confess, * that our Lord Jesus Christ, the Son of God, is God and Man.

God, of the Substance of the Father, Begotten before the worlds: * and Man, of the substance of His mother, born in the world.

Perfect God, Perfect Man, * of a reasoning Soul and human Flesh subsisting.

Equal to the Father as touching His Godhead, * inferior to the Father as touching His Manhood.

Who, although He be God and Man, * yet He is not Two, but One Christ.

One, however, not by conversion of the Godhead into Flesh, * but by taking of the Manhood into God.

One altogether, not by confusion of Substance, * but by Unity of Person.

For as the reasoning soul and flesh is one man, * so God and Man is One Christ.

Who suffered for our salvation, descended into hell, * rose again the third day from the dead.

He ascended into heaven, He sitteth on the right hand of the Father, God Almighty, * from whence He shall come to judge the quick and the dead.

At Whose coming all men shall rise again with their bodies, * and shall give account for their own works.

And they that have done good shall go into life eternal, * but they that have done evil into eternal fire.

This is the Catholic Faith, * which except a man believe faithfully and firmly, he cannot be safe.

Here is said the Doxology, "Glory be to the Father, &c."

Monday.

Psalm XXIII.

[Intituled "A Psalm of David." The Vulgate and the LXX. add "for the first day of the week."]

THE earth is the LORD's and the fulness thereof; * the world, and they that dwell therein.

For He hath founded it upon the seas, * and established it upon the floods.

Who shall ascend into the mountain of the LORD? * or who shall stand in His holy place?

He that hath clean hands and a pure heart, * who hath not lifted up his soul unto vanity, nor sworn deceitfully unto his neighbour.

He shall receive a blessing from the LORD, * and mercy from the God of his salvation.

This is the generation of them that seek Him, * that seek the face of the God of Jacob.[1]

Lift up your gates, O ye princes, and be ye lift up, ye everlasting doors! * and the King of glory shall come in.

Who is this King of glory? * The LORD strong and mighty, the LORD mighty in battle.

Lift up your gates, O ye princes, and be ye lift up, ye everlasting doors! * and the King of glory shall come in.

Who is this King of glory? * The LORD of hosts, He is the King of glory.[2]

Tuesday.

Psalm XXIV.

[Intituled "Of David." This Psalm is A B C Darian.]

UNTO Thee, O LORD, do I lift up my soul: * O my God, I trust in Thee, let me not be ashamed.

Neither let mine enemies triumph over me: * for none that wait on Thee shall be ashamed:

Let them be ashamed that transgress * without cause.

Show me Thy ways, O LORD, * and teach me Thy paths.

Lead me in Thy truth and teach me; * for Thou art the God of my salvation: and on Thee do I wait all the day.

Remember, O LORD, Thy tender mercies, * and Thy loving-kindnesses, which have been ever of old.

Remember not the sins of my youth, * nor my transgressions:

According to Thy mercy remember Thou me, * for Thy goodness' sake, O LORD.

Good and upright is the LORD; * therefore will He teach sinners in the way.

The meek will He guide in judgment: * the meek will He teach His way.

All the paths of the LORD are mercy and truth, * unto such as keep His covenant and His testimonies.

For Thy Name's sake, O LORD, pardon mine iniquity; * for it is great.

What man is he that feareth the LORD? * him shall He teach in the way that He shall choose.

His soul shall dwell at ease: * and his seed shall inherit the earth.

The LORD is a strong rock unto them that fear Him; * and His covenant shall be made known to them.

Mine eyes are ever toward the LORD: * for He shall pluck my feet out of the net.

Turn Thee unto me, and have mercy upon me, * for I am desolate and afflicted.

The troubles of mine heart are enlarged: * O bring me out of my distresses.

Look upon mine affliction and my pain: * and forgive all my sins.

Consider mine enemies, for they are many: * and they hate me with cruel hatred.

O keep my soul, and deliver me: * let me not be ashamed, for I put my trust in Thee.

The undefiled and the upright cleave to me: * for I wait on Thee.

Redeem Israël, O God, * out of all his troubles!

Wednesday.

Psalm XXV.

[Intituled "Of David."]

JUDGE me, O LORD, for I have walked in mine innocence: * I have trusted also in the LORD; I shall not slide.

Examine me, O LORD, and prove me: * try as by fire my reins and mine heart.

For Thy loving-kindness is before mine eyes: * and I have walked in Thy truth.

I have not sat with vain persons, * neither will I go in with wrong-doers.

I hate the congregation of evil doers: * and will not sit with the wicked.

I will wash mine hands in innocency, * and I will compass Thine Altar, O LORD.

That I may hear the voice of thanksgiving, * and tell of all Thy wondrous works.

LORD, I have loved the beauty of Thine house, * and the place where Thy glory dwelleth.

Make not my soul to perish with sinners, O God, * nor my life with bloody men:

In whose hands is mischief, * and their right hand is full of bribes.

But as for me, I will walk in mine innocence: * redeem me, and be merciful unto me.

My foot standeth in uprightness: * in the congregations will I bless Thee, O LORD.

Thursday.

Psalm XXII.

[Intituled "A Psalm of David."]

THE LORD is my Shepherd, I shall not want. * He maketh me to lie down in green pastures:

He leadeth me beside the still waters. * He restoreth my soul:

---

[1] SLH.

[2] SLH.

He leadeth me in the paths of righteousness, * for His Name's sake.

Yea, though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death, I will fear no evil: * for Thou art with me:

Thy rod and Thy staff * they comfort me.

Thou preparest a table before me, * in the presence of mine enemies:

Thou anointest mine head with oil: * and mine overflowing cup, O how goodly is it!

Surely Thy mercy shall follow me * all the days of my life:

And I will dwell in the house of the LORD * for ever.

Friday.

Psalm XXI.

[Intituled "A Psalm of David." It has a musical (?) superscription, from part of which it appears that it was written for a tune called "The hind of the morning."]

MY God, my God, look upon me[1]: why hast Thou forsaken me? * the voice of mine offences keepeth Thy deliverance far from me.

O my God, I cry in the day-time, and Thou hearest not: * and in the night season—and still it is not foolishness in me.

But Thou dwellest in holiness, * O Thou Praise of Israël!

Our fathers trusted in Thee: * they trusted, and Thou didst deliver them.

They cried unto Thee, and were delivered: * they trusted in Thee, and were not confounded.

But I am a worm and no man: * a reproach of men, and despised of the people.

[2] All they that see me laugh me to scorn: * they shoot out the lip, and shake their head:

He trusted in the LORD, let Him rescue him: * let Him deliver him, seeing He delighteth in him.

But Thou art He That took me out of the womb: * Thou art mine hope from my mother's breasts. I was cast upon Thee from the womb:

Thou art my God from my mother's belly. * Be not far from me:

For trouble is near: * for there is none to help.

Many bulls have compassed me: * strong bulls have beset me round.

They gaped upon me with their mouths, * as a ravening and a roaring lion.

I am poured out like water, * and all my bones are out of joint;

Mine heart is like melting wax * in the midst of my bowels.

My strength is dried up like a potsherd, and my tongue cleaveth to my jaws: * and Thou hast brought me into the dust of death.

For many dogs have compassed me: * the assembly of the wicked have inclosed me.

They pierced mine hands and my feet: * they have told all my bones:

They look and stare upon me. * They part my garments among them, and upon my vesture do they cast lots.

But let not Thine help be far from me; O LORD, * haste Thee to save me.

O God, deliver my soul from the sword: * my darling from the power of the dog!

Save me from the lion's mouth; * and mine affliction from the horns of the unicorns.

I will declare Thy name unto my brethren: * in the midst of the congregation will I praise Thee.

Ye that fear the LORD, praise Him: * all ye seed of Jacob, glorify Him;

Let all the seed of Israël fear Him. * For He hath not despised nor abhorred the prayer of the poor;

Neither hath He hid His face from me: * but when I cried unto Him, He heard me.

My praise shall be of Thee in the great congregation: * I will pay my vows before them that fear Him.

The poor shall eat and be satisfied, and they shall praise the LORD that seek Him: * their heart shall live for ever.

All the ends of the earth * shall remember and turn unto the LORD.

And all the kindreds of the nations * shall worship before Him.

For the kingdom is the LORD'S: * and He hath dominion among the nations.

All they that be fat upon earth shall eat and worship: * all they that go down to the dust shall fall down before Him:

My soul also shall live unto Him; * and my seed shall serve Him:

The generation to come shall tell it unto the Lord: * and the heavens shall declare His righteousness unto a people that shall be born, whom the Lord hath made.

[1] Ps. cxxxix. 2.

[2] Ps. lviii. 2, 3.

[3] Ps. lx. 9.

[4] Ps. lxiv. 6.

[5] Called the "Trisagion" in the Eastern Church. Its legendary origin is that it was learnt from angels by a boy who was carried up into the air during a tempest at Constantinople in the time of St Proclus (A.D. 434). It is probably much older than his time. Photius thought it was adapted from Ps. xli. 2.

[6] Ps. cii. 1-5.

TERCE, OR THE THIRD HOUR.[1]

Office for every day in the Week.

At the beginning of Terce the Lord's Prayer and the Angelic Salutation are said inaudibly.

OUR Father, Who art in heaven, Hallowed be Thy Name. Thy kingdom come. Thy will be done on earth, as it is in heaven. Give us this day our daily bread. And forgive us our trespasses, as we forgive them that trespass against us. And lead us not into temptation; but deliver us from evil. Amen.

HAIL, Mary, full of grace; The Lord is with thee: blessed art thou among women, and blessed is the fruit of thy womb, JESUS.

Holy Mary, Mother of God, pray for us sinners, now, and at the hour of our death. Amen.

Then is said aloud:

Verse. ✠ Make haste, O God, to deliver me.

Answer. Make haste to help me, O LORD.

Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, and to the Holy Ghost.

As it was in the beginning, is now, and ever shall be, world without end. Amen. Alleluia.

From Septuagesima Sunday to Maundy Thursday instead of "Alleluia" is said:

Ceaseless praise to Thee be given,
O Eternal King of heaven.

Then is said the following:

HYMN.[2]

COME, Holy Ghost, Who ever One,
Reignest with Father and with Son,
[3] It is the hour, our souls possess
With Thy full flood of holiness.

Let flesh, and heart, and lips, and mind,
Sound forth our witness to mankind;
And love light up our mortal frame
Till others catch the living flame.

Now to the Father, to the Son,
And to the Spirit, Three in One,
Be praise, and thanks, and glory given,
By men on earth, by Saints in heaven.
Amen.

The last verse is sometimes said thus, altered in honour of the Incarnation:

JESU, the Virgin-born, to Thee,
To Father, Spirit, One and Three,
Be praise, and thanks, and glory given,
By men on earth, by Saints in heaven.
Amen.

In Paschal time it is said thus, altered in honour of the Resurrection:

JESU, our Risen Lord, to Thee,
To Father, Spirit, One and Three,
Be praise, and thanks, and glory given,
By men on earth, by Saints in heaven.
Amen.

It is also occasionally otherwise altered, which occasions are marked in their places.

Then follow six sections of Psalm CXVIII. They are all said under one Antiphon, and when Five Antiphons have been said at Lauds, the Second of these Five is the Antiphon at Terce. Otherwise those given here are used.

Ordinary Antiphon for Sundays; and for every day in Paschal time. Alleluia.

Ordinary Antiphon for Week-days. Lead me.

In Advent the Antiphon is the Second Antiphon which has been said at Lauds on Sunday, unless the day have a set of its own.

Antiphon in Lent. Behold now is the day.

Antiphon in Passiontide. O Lord, Thou hast judged.

Continuation of Psalm CXVIII.

ה[4]

TEACH me, O LORD, the way of Thy statutes: * and I shall keep it unto the end.

Give me understanding, and I shall keep Thy law: * yea, I shall observe it with my whole heart.

Lead me in the path of Thy commandments: * for therein do I delight.

Incline mine heart unto Thy testimonies, * and not to covetousness.

Turn away mine eyes from beholding vanity: * quicken Thou me in Thy way.

Stablish Thy word unto Thy servant, * that he may fear Thee.

Turn away my reproach, which I dread: * for Thy judgments are good.

Behold, I have longed after Thy precepts: * quicken me in Thy righteousness.

Here the Doxology, "Glory be to the Father, &c.," is not said.

---

[1] The proper hour of Terce is 9 A.M., about which time it is generally said in communities before the Community Mass.

[2] Another hymn of the Ambrosian school. Translation by the late Card. Newman.

[3] It was at this the third hour that the Holy Ghost descended on the day of Pentecost.—Acts ii. 15.

[4] Here begins the letter He, an aspirate, nearly represented by our H.

ו[1]

LET Thy mercy come also unto me, O LORD: * even Thy salvation, according to Thy word.

So shall I have wherewith to answer him that reproacheth me: * for I trust in Thy word.

And take not the word of truth utterly out of my mouth: * for I have hoped in Thy judgments.

So shall I keep Thy law continually, * for ever and ever.

And I will walk at liberty: * for I seek Thy precepts.

I will speak of Thy testimonies also before kings: * and will not be ashamed.

And I will delight myself in Thy commandments, * which I have loved.

Mine hands also will I lift up unto Thy commandments, which I have loved: * and I will meditate in Thy statutes.

Continuation of the same Psalm.

ז[2]

REMEMBER Thy word unto Thy servant, * upon which Thou hast caused me to hope.

This is my comfort in mine affliction, * that Thy word hath quickened me.

The proud have behaved themselves very wickedly: * yet have I not turned aside from Thy law.

I remembered Thy judgments of old, O LORD: * and have comforted myself.

Horror hath taken hold upon me, * because of the wicked that forsake Thy law.

Thy statutes have been my songs * in the house of my pilgrimage.

I have remembered Thy Name, O LORD, in the night, * and have kept Thy law.

This I had, * because I kept Thy precepts.

Here the Doxology, "Glory be to the Father, &c.," is not said.

ח[3]

THOU art my portion, O LORD, * I have said that I would keep Thy law.

I entreated Thy favour with my whole heart: * be merciful unto me according to Thy word.

I thought on my ways, * and turned my feet unto Thy testimonies.

I made haste, and delayed not * to keep Thy commandments.

The bands of the wicked have compassed me about: * yet have I not forgotten Thy law.

At midnight I will rise to give thanks unto Thee, * because of Thy righteous judgments.

I am the companion of all them that fear Thee, * and of them that keep Thy precepts.

The earth, O LORD, is full of Thy mercy: * teach me Thy statutes.

Continuation of the same Psalm.

ט[4]

THOU hast dealt well with Thy servant, O LORD, * according to Thy word.

Teach me goodness, and judgment, and knowledge: * for I have believed Thy commandments.

Before I was afflicted, I went astray: * therefore now I have kept Thy word.

Thou art good, * and in Thy goodness teach me Thy statutes.

The proud have dealt very wickedly with me: * but I will keep Thy precepts with my whole heart.

Their heart is curdled as milk:[5] * but I delight in Thy law.

It is good for me that Thou hast afflicted me: * that I might learn Thy statutes.

The law of Thy mouth is better unto me, * than thousands of gold and silver.

Here the Doxology, "Glory be to the Father, &c.," is not said.

י[6]

THINE hands have made me and fashioned me: * give me understanding, that I may learn Thy commandments.

They that fear Thee will be glad when they see me: * because I have hoped in Thy word.

I know, O LORD, that Thy judgments are right, * and that Thou in faithfulness hast afflicted me.

Let Thy merciful kindness be for my comfort, * according to Thy word unto Thy servant.

Let Thy tender mercies come unto me, that I may live: * for Thy law is my delight.

Let the proud be ashamed, for they dealt wrongfully with me without a cause: * but I will meditate in Thy precepts.

Let those that fear Thee turn unto me, * and those that know Thy testimonies.

Let mine heart be undefiled in Thy statutes, * that I be not ashamed.

Ordinary Antiphon for Sundays. Alleluia, Alleluia, Alleluia.

Antiphon for every day in Paschal time. Alleluia, Alleluia, Alleluia, Alleluia.

MY soul fainteth for Thy salvation: * but I hope in Thy word.

For I am become like a wine-skin in time of frost: * yet do I not forget Thy statutes.

How many are the days of Thy servant? * when wilt Thou execute judgment on them that persecute me?

The wicked have spoken lies unto me, * which are not after Thy law.

All Thy commandments are faithful: * they persecute me wrongfully, help Thou me.

They had almost consumed me upon earth: * but I forsook not Thy precepts.

Quicken me after Thy loving-kindness: * so shall I keep the testimony of Thy mouth.

Here the Doxology, "Glory be to the Father, &c.," is not said.

ל [1]

FOR ever, O Lord, * Thy word is settled in heaven.

Thy faithfulness is unto all generations: * Thou hast established the earth, and it abideth.

The day continueth by Thine ordinance: * for all things serve Thee.

Unless Thy law had been my delight, * then perchance I should have perished in mine affliction.

I will never forget Thy precepts: * for with them Thou hast quickened me.

I am Thine, save me: * for I have sought Thy precepts.

The wicked have waited for me, to destroy me: * but I considered Thy testimonies.

I have seen an end of all perfection: * but Thy commandment is exceeding broad.

Continuation of the same Psalm.

מ [2]

O HOW I love Thy law, O Lord! * it is my meditation all the day.

Thou, through Thy commandments, hast made me wiser than mine enemies: * for they are ever with me.

I have more understanding than all my teachers: * for Thy testimonies are my meditation.

I understand more than the ancients, * because I keep Thy precepts.

I have refrained my feet from every evil way; * that I might keep Thy word.

I have not departed from Thy judgments: * for Thou hast taught me.

How sweet are Thy words unto my taste! * yea, sweeter than honey to my mouth.

Through Thy precepts I get understanding: * therefore I hate every false way.

Here the Doxology, "Glory be to the Father, &c.," is not said.

נ [3]

THY word is a lamp unto my feet, * and a light unto my path.

I have sworn, and am stedfastly purposed, * to keep Thy righteous judgments.

I am afflicted very much, O Lord: * quicken me according to Thy word.

Accept, I beseech Thee, the free-will offerings of my mouth, O Lord: * and teach me Thy judgments.

My soul is continually in mine hand: * yet do I not forget Thy law.

The wicked have laid a snare for me: * yet I erred not from Thy precepts.

Uphold me according to Thy word, and I shall live: * and let me not be ashamed of mine hope.

Hold Thou me up and I shall be safe: * and I will have respect unto Thy statutes continually.

Thou hast trodden down all them that err from Thy statutes: * for their thought is falsehood.

I hold all the wicked of the earth as liars: * therefore I love Thy testimonies.

Make Thou my flesh to tremble for fear of Thee: * for I am afraid of Thy judgments.

Here the Doxology, "Glory be to the Father, &c.," is not said.

ע [5]

I HAVE done judgment and justice: * leave me not to mine oppressors.

Be surety for Thy servant for good: * let not the proud oppress me.

Mine eyes fail for Thy salvation, * and for the word of Thy righteousness.

Deal with Thy servant according unto Thy mercy: * and teach me Thy statutes.

I am Thy servant: * give me understanding, that I may know Thy testimonies.

It is time for Thee, Lord, to work: * they have made void Thy law.

CHAPTER. (1 Cor. xv. 20.)

NOW is Christ risen from the dead, the first-fruits of them that sleep; for since by man came death, by man came also the resurrection of the dead. For as in Adam all die, even so in Christ shall all be made alive.

[1] John xx. 20.

NONE, OR THE NINTH HOUR.[1]

Office for every day in the Week.

At the beginning of None the Lord's Prayer and the Angelic Salutation are said inaudibly.

OUR Father, Who art in heaven, Hallowed be Thy Name. Thy kingdom come. Thy will be done on earth, as it is in heaven. Give us this day our daily bread. And forgive us our trespasses, as we forgive them that trespass against us. And lead us not into temptation; but deliver us from evil. Amen.

HAIL, Mary, full of grace; The Lord is with thee: blessed art thou among women, and blessed is the fruit of thy womb, JESUS.

Holy Mary, Mother of God, pray for us sinners, now, and at the hour of our death. Amen.

Then is said aloud:

Verse. ✠ Make haste, O God, to deliver me.

Answer. Make haste to help me, O LORD.

Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, and to the Holy Ghost.

As it was in the beginning, is now, and ever shall be, world without end. Amen. Alleluia.

From Septuagesima Sunday to Maundy Thursday instead of "Alleluia" is said:

Ceaseless praise to Thee be given,
O Eternal King of heaven.

HYMN.[2]

O GOD, Unchangeable and True,
Of all the Light and Power,
Dispensing light in silence through
Every successive hour;

Lord, brighten our declining day,
That it may never wane,
Till death, when all things round decay,
Brings back the morn again.

This grace on Thy redeemed confer,
Father, Co-equal Son,
And Holy Ghost, the Comforter,
Eternal Three in One.
Amen.

The last verse is sometimes said thus, altered in honour of the Incarnation:

JESU, the Virgin-born, to Thee,
Eternal praise be given,
With Father, Spirit, One and Three,
Here as it is in heaven.
Amen.

In Paschal time it is said thus, altered in honour of the Resurrection:

To Father, Son, and Paraclete,
The slain and risen Son,
Be praise and glory, as is meet,
While endless ages run.
Amen.

It is also occasionally otherwise altered, which occasions are marked in their places.

Then follow six sections of Psalm CXVIII. They are all said under one Antiphon, and when Five Antiphons have been said at Lauds, the Fifth of these Five is the Antiphon at None. Otherwise those given here are used.

Ordinary Antiphon for Sundays and for every day in Paschal time. Alleluia.

Ordinary Antiphon for Week-days. Look Thou upon me.

In Advent the Antiphon is the Fifth Antiphon which has been said at Lauds on Sunday, unless the day have a set of its own.

Antiphon for Week-days in Lent. Let us approve ourselves.

Antiphon for Week-days in Passiontide. Did not they reward me evil for good?

Continuation of Psalm CXVIII.

פ[3]

THY testimonies are wonderful: * therefore doth my soul keep them.

The unfolding of Thy words giveth light: * yea, it giveth understanding unto the simple.

I opened my mouth and panted: * for I longed for Thy commandments.

Look Thou upon me, and be merciful unto me, * as Thou usest to do unto those that love Thy Name.

Order my steps in Thy word: * and let not any iniquity have dominion over me.

Deliver me from the oppression of man: * and I will keep Thy precepts.

Make Thy face to shine upon Thy servant: * and teach me Thy statutes.

Rivers of water run down mine eyes: * because they keep not Thy law.

The Doxology, "Glory be to the Father, &c.," is not said.

---

[1] The proper hour for None is 3 P.M., but in Choirs it varies.

[2] Another hymn of the Ambrosian school, with one word altered. Translation by the late Card. Newman.

[3] Here begins the letter Pe, represented by P, Ph, F.

צ[1]

RIGHTEOUS art Thou, O Lord: * and upright are Thy judgments.

Thy testimonies that Thou hast commanded are righteous, * and very faithful.

My zeal hath consumed me, * because mine enemies have forgotten Thy words.

Thy word is tried to the uttermost: * and Thy servant loveth it.

I am small and despised: * yet do I not forget Thy precepts.

Thy righteousness is an everlasting righteousness: * and Thy law is the truth.

Trouble and anguish have taken hold upon me: * Thy commandments are my delight.

The righteousness of Thy testimonies is everlasting: * give me understanding, and I shall live.

Continuation of the same Psalm.

ק[2]

I CRIED with my whole heart, hear me, O Lord: * I will keep Thy statutes.

I cried unto Thee, save me: * and I will keep Thy commandments.

Before the dawning of the morning, I cried: * for I hoped in Thy word.

Mine eyes look up to Thee early: * that I may meditate in Thy word.

Hear my voice according unto Thy loving-kindness, O Lord: * and quicken me according to Thy judgment.

They that persecute me draw nigh to sin: * but are far from Thy law.

Thou art near, O Lord: * and all Thy ways are truth.

Concerning Thy testimonies I have known of old: * that Thou hast founded them for ever.

The Doxology, "Glory be to the Father, &c.," is not said.

ר[3]

CONSIDER mine affliction, and deliver me: * for I do not forget Thy law.

Give judgment concerning me, and deliver me: * quicken me for the sake of Thy word.

Salvation is far from the wicked: * for they seek not Thy statutes.

Great are Thy tender mercies, O Lord: * quicken me according to Thy judgments.

Many are my persecutors, and mine enemies: * yet do I not turn aside from Thy testimonies.

I beheld the transgressors, and was grieved: * because they kept not Thy word.

Consider how I love Thy precepts, O Lord: * quicken me according to Thy loving-kindness.

Thy word is true from the beginning: * and every one of Thy righteous judgments endureth for ever.

Continuation of the same Psalm.

ש[4]

PRINCES have persecuted me without a cause: * but mine heart standeth in awe of Thy word.

I will rejoice at Thy word, * as one that findeth great spoil.

I hate and abhor wickedness: * but Thy law do I love.

Seven times a day do I praise Thee, * because of Thy righteous judgments.

Great peace have they that love Thy law: * and for them there are no stumbling-blocks.

Lord, I hope for Thy salvation: * and I love Thy commandments.

My soul hath kept Thy testimonies, * and loved them exceedingly.

I have kept Thy precepts and Thy testimonies; * for all my ways are before Thee.

The Doxology, "Glory be to the Father, &c.," is not said.

ת[5]

LET my cry come near before Thee, O Lord: * give me understanding according to Thy word.

Let my supplication come before Thee: * deliver me according to Thy word.

My lips shall utter praise, * when Thou hast taught me Thy statutes.

My tongue shall speak of Thy word: * for all Thy commandments are righteousness.

Let Thine hand help me: * for I have chosen Thy precepts.

I have longed for Thy salvation, O Lord: * and Thy law is my delight.

My soul shall live, and it shall praise Thee: * and Thy judgments shall help me.

I have gone astray like a lost sheep: * seek Thy servant: for I do not forget Thy commandments.

Ordinary Antiphon for Sundays. Alleluia, Alleluia, Alleluia.

Antiphon for every day in Paschal time. Alleluia, Alleluia, Alleluia, Alleluia.

Monday at Mattins.

THE SECOND DAY OF THE WEEK.

All as on Sundays, except as otherwise given here.

Invitatory. O come, * let us sing unto the Lord.

When this Invitatory is used the Psalm begins with the words, "Let us make a joyful noise."

Invitatory in Paschal time. Alleluia, Alleluia, * Alleluia.

On Simple Feasts the Invitatory is special.

On Simple Feasts the Hymn is special, but on Week-days kept as such the following is said from the Octave of the Epiphany till the first Monday in Lent, and from the Octave of Pentecost to Advent. The Hymns for the other seasons are given in the proper office of the Seasons.

Hymn.[1]

SLEEP has refreshed our limbs, we spring
From off our bed, and rise;
Lord, on Thy suppliants while they sing,
Look with a Father's eyes.

Be Thou the first on every tongue,
The first in every heart;
That all our doings all day long,
Holiest! from Thee may start.

Cleanse Thou the gloom, and bid the light
Its healing beams renew;
The sins, which have crept in with night,
With night shall vanish too.

Our bosoms, Lord, unburthen Thou,
Let nothing there offend;
That those who hymn Thy praises now
May hymn them to the end.

Grant this, O Father, Only Son,
And Spirit, God of grace,
To whom all worship shall be done
In every time and place.
Amen.

Only one Nocturn is said.

Antiphon. The Lord is the defence.

In Paschal time there is only one Antiphon to the whole Nocturn, Alleluia.

Psalm XXVI.

[Intituled "Of David." The Vulgate and the LXX. add "before his anointing." See 2 Kings (Sam.) ii. 4. Monday, fifth week after Pentecost.]

THE Lord is my light and my salvation; * whom shall I fear?

The Lord is the defence of my life: * of whom shall I be afraid?

When the evil-doers come upon me, * to eat up my flesh,

Mine enemies that trouble me, * they stumble and fall.

Though an host should encamp against me, * mine heart shall not fear.

Though war should rise against me, * in this will I be confident.

One thing have I desired of the Lord, that will I seek after, * that I may dwell in the house of the Lord all the days of my life,

To behold the beauty of the Lord, * and to visit His temple.

For He hath hidden me in His pavilion: * in the secret of His tabernacle hath He hidden me in the day of trouble.

He hath set me up upon a rock: * and now hath He lifted up mine head above mine enemies.

I will offer in His tabernacle the sacrifice of joy: * I will sing, yea, I will sing praises unto the Lord.

Hear, O Lord, when I cry with my voice: * have mercy on me and answer me.

My heart said unto Thee, My face hath sought Thee: * Thy face, Lord, will I seek.

Hide not Thy face far from me: * turn not away in anger from Thy servant.

Be Thou mine Helper, * neither leave me, nor forsake me, O God of my salvation.

When my father and my mother forsake me, * then the Lord taketh me up.

Teach me Thy way, O Lord: * and lead me in a plain path, because of mine enemies.

Deliver me not over unto the will of mine enemies: * for false witnesses are risen up against me, and iniquity hath belied itself.

I believe that I shall yet see the goodness of the Lord * in the land of the living.

Wait on the Lord, be of good courage: * and thine heart shall be strengthened, wait, I say, on the Lord.

Psalm XXVII.

[Also intituled "Of David."]

UNTO Thee will I cry, O Lord; my God, be not silent to me: * lest, if Thou be silent to me, I become like them that go down into the pit.

Hear the voice of my supplication, O Lord, when I cry unto Thee, * when I lift up mine hands toward Thine holy temple.

---

[1] Another hymn of the Ambrosian school, with two words altered. Translation by the late Card. Newman.

Draw me not away with the wicked: * and destroy me not with the workers of iniquity.

Who speak peace with their neighbour: * but mischief is in their hearts.

Give them according to their deeds, * and according to the wickedness of their inventions.

Give them after the works of their hands: * render to them their desert.

Because they regard not the works of the LORD, or the operation of His hands, * Thou shalt destroy them, and not build them up.

Blessed be the LORD: * because He hath heard the voice of my supplication.

The LORD is my strength and my shield: * mine heart trusted in Him and I am holpen.

And my flesh greatly rejoiceth: * and with my whole heart I will praise Him.

The LORD is the strength of His people: * and He is the saving strength of His Anointed.

O Lord, save Thy people, and bless Thine inheritance: * and govern them, and lift them up for ever.

Antiphon. [1] The LORD is the defence of my life.

Second Antiphon. Worship.

Psalm XXVIII.

[Intituled "A Psalm of David." The Vulgate and the LXX. add "for the going forth from the tabernacle, or ending of the tabernacle," apparently meaning the conclusion of the Feast of Tabernacles.]

GIVE unto the LORD, O ye sons of God: * give unto the Lord young rams.

Give unto the LORD glory and honour, give unto the LORD the glory due unto His Name: * worship the LORD in His holy courts.

The voice of the LORD is upon the waters, the God of glory thundereth: * the LORD is upon many waters.

The voice of the LORD is powerful: * the voice of the LORD is full of majesty.

The voice of the LORD breaketh the cedars: * yea, the LORD breaketh the cedars of Lebanon.

He smiteth them down as though it were a calf in Lebanon, * and the beloved [forest is felled] like a young wild bull.[2]

The voice of the LORD forketh the flames of fire: * the voice of the LORD shaketh the wilderness, yea, the LORD also shaketh the [3] wilderness of Kadesh.

The voice of the LORD maketh the hinds to calve, and discovereth the thickets: * and in His temple, every one uttereth His glory.

The LORD fixeth the flood: * yea, the LORD sitteth King for ever.

The LORD will give strength unto His people: * the LORD will bless His people with peace.

Psalm XXIX.

[Intituled "A song of rejoicing at the opening of the house of David." The palace, for the inauguration of which this song was written, is thus mentioned in 2 Kings (Sam.) v. 9-11. "So David dwelt in the fort" (on Sion) "and called it the city of David. And David built round about from Millo and inward. And David went on, and grew great; and the LORD God of Hosts was with him. And Hiram, King of Tyre, sent messengers to David, and cedar-trees, and carpenters, and masons; and they built David an house."]

I WILL extol Thee, O LORD, for Thou hast lifted me up, * and hast not made my foes to rejoice over me.

O LORD my God, I cried unto Thee, * and Thou hast healed me.

O LORD, Thou hast brought up my soul from the grave: * Thou hast saved me from being one of them that go down into the pit.

Sing unto the LORD, O ye Saints of His! * and give thanks to the memorial of His holiness.

For there is terror in His anger: * and in His favour is life.

Weeping may endure for a night: * but joy cometh in the morning.

And I, in my prosperity I said: I shall never be moved.

LORD, in Thy favour, * Thou hast made my glory to stand so fast.

Thou didst hide Thy face from me, * and I was troubled.

I cried unto Thee, O LORD: * and unto my God I made supplication:

What profit is there in my blood, * when I go down to corruption?

Shall the dust praise Thee, * or shall it declare Thy truth?

The LORD heard me, and had mercy upon me: * the LORD became mine Helper.

Thou hast turned for me my mourning into rejoicing: * Thou hast put off my sackcloth, and girded me with gladness.

To the end that my glory may sing praise unto Thee, and may not be silent: * O LORD my God, I will give thanks unto Thee for ever.

Antiphon. [4] Worship the LORD in His holy courts.

Third Antiphon. Deliver me.

Psalm XXX.

[Intituled "A Psalm of David" with the same farther superscription as Pss. xii. xiii. The Vulgate and the LXX. add "of haste" or "distraction," meaning apparently that David wrote it, on recovering from the mental condition in which he had exclaimed (v. 23), "I am cut off from before Thine eyes."]

IN Thee, O LORD, do I put my trust, let me never be ashamed: * deliver me in Thy righteousness.

Bow down Thine ear unto me: * deliver me speedily.

Be Thou to me a God, a Preserver, and an house of defence, * to save me.

For Thou art my strength and my refuge: * and for Thy Name's sake Thou wilt lead me and nourish me.

Thou wilt pull me out of the net, that they have laid privily for me: * for Thou art my Preserver.

---

[1] Ps. xxvi. 1.

[2] The Hebrew is, "He also maketh them to skip like a calf, Lebanon and Shiryon" (oftener called Hermon) "like young wild cattle."

[3] That is, the deserts to the south of Palestine, amid which is found the town of Kadesh-Barnea.

[4] Ps. xxviii. 2.

[1] Into Thine hands I commend my spirit: * Thou hast redeemed me, O Lord God of truth!

I have hated them that regard * lying vanities.

But I trust in the Lord: * I will be glad and rejoice in Thy mercy.

For Thou hast considered my trouble: * Thou hast saved my soul in adversity;

And hast not shut me up into the hand of the enemy: * Thou hast set my feet in a wide place.

Have mercy upon me, O Lord, for I am in trouble: * mine eye is consumed with grief, my soul, and my belly.

For my life is spent with grief, * and my years with sighing.

My strength faileth because of mine affliction, * and my bones are consumed.

I was a reproach among all mine enemies, and among my neighbours specially, * and a fear to mine acquaintance.

They that did see me without fled from me: * I am forgotten as a dead man out of mind.

I am like a broken vessel: * for I have heard the slander of many on every side:

When they took counsel together against me, * they devised to take away my life.

But I trusted in Thee, O Lord: * I said: Thou art my God, my lot is in Thine hand.

Deliver me from the hand of mine enemies, * and from them that persecute me.

Make Thy face to shine upon Thy servant, save me in Thy mercy: * let me not be ashamed, O Lord, for I have called upon Thee.

Let the wicked be ashamed and let them go down into the grave: * let the lying lips be put to silence;

Which speak grievous things proudly and contemptuously * against the righteous.

O how great is Thy goodness, O Lord, * which Thou hast laid up for them that fear Thee!

Which Thou hast wrought for them that trust in Thee, * before the sons of men!

Thou shalt hide them in the covert of Thy presence * from the troubling of men.

Thou shalt keep them secretly in Thy pavilion * from the strife of tongues.

Blessed be the Lord: * for He hath showed me His marvellous kindness in a strong city.

For I said in mine haste: * I am cut off from before Thine eyes.

Nevertheless Thou heardest the voice of my supplication, * when I cried unto Thee.

O love the Lord, all ye His Saints: * for the Lord loveth truthfulness, and will plentifully reward the proud doers.

Be of good courage and let your heart be strengthened, * all ye that hope in the Lord.

Psalm XXXI.

[Intituled "A didactic (?) poem of David."]

BLESSED are they whose transgressions are forgiven, * and whose sins are covered.

Blessed is the man unto whom the Lord imputeth not iniquity, * and in whose spirit there is no guile.

Because I kept silence, my bones waxed old, * while I groaned all the day long.

For day and night Thine hand was heavy upon me: * I turned in mine anguish while the thorn was fastened in me.[2]

I acknowledged my sin unto Thee: * and mine iniquity I hid not.

I said: I will confess against myself my transgression, unto the Lord: * and Thou forgavest the iniquity of my sin.[3]

For this shall every one that is godly pray unto Thee, * in a seasonable time.

Surely in the floods of great waters, * they shall not come nigh unto him.

Thou art mine hiding-place from the trouble that compasseth me: * O Thou That art my joy! deliver me from them that compass me round about.[3]

I will give thee understanding, and teach thee in the way which thou shalt go: * I will keep Mine eyes upon thee.

Be ye not as the horse and as the mule, * which have no understanding.

Whose mouths thou holdest fast with bit and bridle, * else they will not come unto thee.

Many sorrows shall be to the wicked: * but he that trusteth in the Lord, mercy shall compass him about.

Be glad in the Lord, and rejoice, ye righteous, * and shout for joy, all ye that are upright in heart.

Antiphon. [4] Deliver me in Thy righteousness.

Fourth Antiphon. Praise is comely.

Psalm XXXII.

[The Vulgate and the LXX. ascribe this psalm "to David."]

REJOICE in the Lord, O ye righteous: * praise is comely for the upright.

Praise the Lord with harp: * sing unto Him with the psaltery of ten strings.

Sing unto Him a new song: * play skilfully unto Him with a loud noise.

For the word of the Lord is right: * and all His works are done in truth.

He loveth mercy and judgment: * the earth is full of the goodness of the Lord.

By the word of the Lord were the heavens made, * and all the host of them by the breath of His mouth.

He gathereth the waters of the sea together as an heap: * He layeth up the depths in storehouses.

Let all the earth fear the Lord: * let all the inhabitants of the world stand in awe of Him.

[4] Ps. xxx. 2.

For He spake, and it was done: * He commanded, and it was made.

The Lord bringeth the counsel of the heathen to nought: * He maketh the devices of the people of none effect, and setteth aside the counsel of princes.

But the counsel of the Lord standeth for ever, * the thoughts of His heart to all generations.

Blessed is the nation whose God is the Lord, * the people He hath chosen for His own inheritance.

The Lord looketh from heaven: * He beholdeth all the sons of men.

From the set place of His habitation * He looketh upon all the inhabitants of the earth.

He fashioneth the heart of every one of them: * He considereth all their works.

There is no king saved by the multitude of an host: * a mighty man is not delivered by much strength.

An horse is a vain thing for safety: * by his great strength he shall not escape.

Behold, the eyes of the Lord are upon them that fear Him, * and upon them that hope in His mercy.

To deliver their soul from death, * and to feed them in time of famine.

Our soul waiteth for the Lord: * for He is our help and our shield.

For our heart shall rejoice in Him: * because we have trusted in His holy Name.

Let Thy mercy, O Lord, be upon us, * according as we hope in Thee.

Psalm XXXIII.

[Intituled "Of David, when he changed his behaviour before Abimelech, who drove him away and he departed." This incident is thus described in 1 Kings (Sam.) xxi. 10. "And David arose and fled that day for fear of Saul, and went to Achish" (otherwise called Abimelech) "the King of Gath. And the servants of Achish said unto him: Is not this David the King of the land? Did they not sing one to another of him in dances saying, 'Saul hath slain his thousands, and David his ten thousands'? And David laid up these words in his heart, and was sore afraid of Achish the King of Gath. And he changed his behaviour before them, and feigned himself mad in their hands, and scrabbled on the doors of the gate, and let his spittle fall down upon his beard. Then said Achish to his servants: Lo, ye see the man is mad; wherefore have you brought him to me? Have I need of madmen, that ye have brought this fellow to play the madman in my presence? Shall this fellow come into mine house? xxii. David therefore departed thence, and escaped to the cave of Adullam." This Psalm is A B C Darian.]

I WILL bless the Lord at all times: * His praise shall continually be in my mouth.

My soul shall make her boast in the Lord: * the humble shall hear thereof, and be glad.

O magnify the Lord with me: * and let us exalt His Name together.

I sought the Lord, and He heard me, * and delivered me from all my distress.

Draw near unto Him, and be lightened, * and your faces shall not be ashamed.

This poor man cried, and the Lord heard him, * and saved him out of all his troubles.

The angel of the Lord encampeth round about them that fear Him, * and delivereth them.

O taste and see that the Lord is good: * blessed is the man that trusteth in Him.

O fear the Lord, all ye His Saints: * for there is no want to them that fear Him.

The mighty lack and suffer hunger: * but they that seek the Lord shall not want any good thing.

Come, ye children, hearken unto me: * I will teach you the fear of the Lord.

What man is he that desireth life, * that loveth to see good days?

Keep thy tongue from evil, * and thy lips from speaking guile.

Depart from evil and do good: * seek peace and pursue it.

The eyes of the Lord are upon the righteous: * and His ears are open unto their cry.

But the face of the Lord is against them that do evil, * to cut off the remembrance of them from the earth.

The righteous cry and the Lord heareth, * and delivereth them out of all their troubles.

The Lord is nigh unto them that are of a broken heart, * and saveth such as be of a contrite spirit.

Many are the afflictions of the righteous: * but the Lord will deliver them out of all.

The Lord keepeth all their bones: * not one of them shall be broken.

The death of sinners is grievous: * and they that hate the righteous shall be guilty.

The Lord redeemeth the souls of His servants: * and none of them that trust in Him shall be guilty.

Antiphon. [1] Praise is comely for the upright.

Fifth Antiphon. Fight against them.

Psalm XXXIV.

[Intituled "Of David."]

DO me right, O Lord, against them that strive with me: * fight against them that fight against me.

Take hold of arms and buckler: * and stand up for mine help.

Draw out also the spear, and stop the way against them that persecute me: * say unto my soul: I am thy salvation.

Let them be confounded and put to shame, * that seek after my soul.

Let them be turned backward and brought to confusion, * that devise mine hurt.

Let them be as dust before the wind: * and let the Angel of the Lord drive them.

Let their way be dark and slippery: * and let the Angel of the Lord chase them.

For without cause have they hidden for me the deadly trap of their net: * without cause have they digged a pit for my soul.

Let the snare come upon him at unawares, and let his net, that he hath hid, catch himself: * and into that very snare let him fall.

And my soul shall be joyful in the Lord: * it shall rejoice in His salvation.

All my bones shall say: * Lord, who is like unto Thee?

Who deliverest the poor from them that are too strong for him, * the poor and the needy from them that spoil him?

---

[1] Ps. xxxii. 1.

False witnesses did rise up, * they laid to my charge things that I knew not.

They rewarded me evil for good, * to put all men far off from me.

But as for me, when they were sick, * my clothing was sackcloth.

I humbled my soul with fasting: * and my prayer shall return into mine own bosom.

I behaved myself as though he had been my friend or brother: * I bowed down as one that mourneth and is heavy.

But against me they rejoiced and gathered themselves together: * slanders were collected against me, and I knew it not.

They disappeared, yet they ceased not; they assailed me, they laughed me bitterly to scorn: * they gnashed upon me with their teeth.

Lord, how long wilt Thou look on? * Rescue my soul from their destruction, my darling[1] from the lions.

I will give Thee thanks in the great congregation: * I will praise Thee among much people.

Let not them that are mine enemies wrongfully rejoice over me, * they that hate me without a cause and wink with the eye.

For they spoke to me peaceably: * but by their leasing they stirred up the land to anger against me, yea, they plotted against me.

Yea, they opened their mouth wide against me: * they said, Aha, Aha, our eyes have seen it.

This Thou hast seen, O Lord, keep not silence: * O Lord, be not far from me.

Stir up Thyself, and awake to my judgment, * unto my cause, my God and my Lord.

Judge me, O Lord my God, according to Thy righteousness, * and let them not rejoice over me.

Let them not say in their hearts: Aha, Aha, so would we have it; * neither let them say: We have swallowed him up.

Let them be ashamed and brought to confusion together, * that rejoice at mine hurt.

Let them be clothed with shame and dishonour, * that magnify themselves against me.

Let them shout for joy and be glad, that favour my righteous cause: * and let them that have pleasure in the prosperity of His servant say continually, Let the Lord be magnified.

And my tongue shall speak of Thy righteousness; * of Thy praise, all the day long.

Psalm XXXV.

[Intituled "Of David, the servant of the Lord,"—and a farther superscription not now understood.]

THE wicked saith plainly in his own heart, that he will go on still in sin: * there is no fear of God before his eyes.

For he flattereth himself in his own eyes, * until his iniquity be found hateful.

The words of his mouth are iniquity and deceit: * he willeth not to understand, that he may do good.

He deviseth mischief upon his bed: * he setteth himself in every way that is not good, but he abhorreth not evil.

Thy mercy, O Lord, is in the heavens: * and Thy faithfulness reacheth unto the clouds.

Thy righteousness is like the mountains of God: * Thy judgments are a great deep.

O Lord, Thou preservest man and beast: * How excellent is Thy loving-kindness, O God!

And the children of men * shall put their trust under the shadow of Thy wings.

They shall be abundantly satisfied with the fatness of Thine house, * and Thou shalt make them drink of the river of Thy pleasures.

For with Thee is the fountain of life: * and in Thy light shall we see light.

O continue Thy loving-kindness unto them that know Thee, * and Thy righteousness to the upright in heart.

Let not the foot of pride come against me: * and let not the hand of the wicked remove me.

There are the workers of iniquity fallen: * they are cast out, neither are they able to stand.

Antiphon. [2] Fight against them that fight against me.

Sixth Antiphon. Show.

Psalm XXXVI.

[Intituled "Of David." It is A B C Darian; the first, third, and fifth verses, and so on, begin with the corresponding letters of the alphabet.]

FRET not thyself because of the evil-doers: * neither be thou envious against the workers of iniquity.

For they shall soon dry up like the grass, * and wither quickly as the green herb.

Trust in the Lord, and do good: * and dwell in the land, and thou shalt be fed with the riches thereof.

Delight thyself in the Lord: * and He shall give thee the desires of thine heart.

Show thy way unto the Lord, trust also in Him: * and He shall bring it to pass.

And He shall bring forth thy righteousness as the light, and thy judgment as the noon-day: * rest in the Lord, and make thy prayer unto Him.

Fret not thyself because of him that prospereth in his way, * because of the man that bringeth wicked devices to pass.

Cease from anger and forsake wrath: * fret not thyself to do evil.

For evil-doers shall be cut off: * but those that wait upon the Lord, they shall inherit the earth.

For yet a little while, and the wicked shall not be: * yea, thou shalt search for his place, and thou shalt not find it.

[3] But the meek shall inherit the earth : * and shall delight themselves in the abundance of peace.

[2] Ps. xxxiv. 1.

[3] Matth. v. 4 seems to be quoted from this.

The wicked plotteth against the just, * and gnasheth upon him with his teeth.

But the Lord shall laugh at him : * for He seeth that his day is coming.

The wicked have drawn out the sword, * they have bent their bow,

To cast down the poor and the needy, * to slay such as be upright of heart.

Their sword shall enter into their own hearts : * and their bow shall be broken.

A little that a righteous man hath * is better than great riches of the wicked.

For the arms of the wicked shall be broken ; * but the LORD upholdeth the righteous.

The LORD knoweth the days of the undefiled : * and their inheritance shall be for ever.

They shall not be ashamed in the evil time, and in the days of famine they shall be satisfied : * for the wicked shall perish.

Yea, the enemies of the LORD, no sooner than they be honourable and exalted, * shall pass away, yea, pass away like smoke.

The wicked borroweth and payeth not again : * but the righteous showeth mercy and giveth.

For such as bless him shall inherit the earth : * but they that curse him shall be cut off.

The steps of a [good] man are ordered by the LORD : * and He delighteth in his way.

Though he fall, he shall not be utterly cast down : * for the LORD upholdeth him with His hand.

I have been young, and now am old : * yet have I not seen the righteous forsaken, nor his seed begging bread.

He is ever merciful and lendeth : * and his seed shall be blessed.

Depart from evil and do good : * and dwell for evermore.

For the LORD loveth judgment, and forsaketh not His saints : * they shall be preserved for ever.

The unrighteous shall be punished : * and the seed of the wicked shall be cut off.

But the righteous shall inherit the land : * and dwell therein for ever.

The mouth of the righteous speaketh wisdom, * and his tongue talketh judgment.

The law of his God is in his heart, * none of his steps shall slide.

The wicked watcheth the righteous, * and seeketh to slay him.

But the LORD will not leave him in his hands, * nor condemn him when he is judged.

Wait on the LORD and keep His way, and He shall exalt thee, to inherit the land : * when the wicked are cut off thou shalt see it.

I have seen the wicked in great power, * and exalted like a cedar in Lebanon.

And I passed by, and, lo, he was not : * and I sought him, and his place was not found.

Keep innocency, and look to the thing that is right : * for the peacemaker shall have a reward hereafter.

But the transgressors shall be cut off together : * the end of the wicked is destruction.

But the salvation of the righteous is of the LORD : * and He is their strength in the time of trouble.

And the LORD shall help them, and deliver them : * He shall deliver them from the wicked, and save them, because they trust in Him.

Psalm XXXVII.

[Intituled "A Psalm of David." It has a further superscription of (now) unknown meaning. The Vulgate and the LXX. connect it with the Sabbath.]

O LORD, rebuke me not in Thy wrath, * neither chasten me in Thine hot displeasure.

For Thine arrows stick fast in me : * and Thou hast laid Thine hand heavily upon me.

There is no soundness in my flesh, because of Thine anger : * neither is there any rest in my bones because of my sins.

For mine iniquities are gone over mine head : * and as an heavy burthen they are too heavy for me.

My wounds stink and are corrupt, * because of my foolishness.

I am troubled and bowed down exceedingly : * I go mourning all the day long.

For my loins are filled with a loathsome disease : * and there is no soundness in my flesh.

I am feeble and sore broken : * I groan aloud by reason of the disquietness of mine heart.

Lord, all my desire is before Thee : * and my groaning is not hid from Thee.

Mine heart panteth, my strength faileth me : * as for the light of mine eyes, it also is gone from me.

My friends and my neighbours * draw near, and stand over against me.

And they that are nearest to me stand afar off : * they also that sought after my life have used violence against me.

And they that seek mine hurt have spoken mischievous things, * and imagined falsehoods all the day long.

But I, as a deaf man, hear not, * and as a dumb man that openeth not his mouth.

Thus I was as a man that heareth not, * and in whose mouth are no reproofs.

For in Thee, O LORD, do I hope : * Thou wilt hear me, O Lord my God !

For I said : Let not mine enemies rejoice over me : * when my feet slip they magnify themselves against me.

For I am ready for the scourges : * and my sorrow is continually before me.

For I will declare mine iniquity, * and think upon my sin.

But mine enemies are lively, and they are strengthened against me : * and they that hate me wrongfully are many.

They that render evil for good speak against me, * because I have followed goodness.

Forsake me not, O Lord my God: * be not far from me.

Make haste to help me, * O Lord God of my salvation!

The Responsories are arranged according to the rules in Chapter* xxvii. 4, of the general Rubrics. Thus:—

The Lord's Prayer is said:

Then this Absolution:

GRACIOUSLY hear, O Lord Jesus Christ, the prayers of Thy servants, and have mercy upon us: Who livest and reignest with the Father, and the Holy Ghost, world without end.

Monday at Lauds.

THE SECOND DAY OF THE WEEK.

All as on Sunday, except as otherwise given here.

The Psalms are as follows:

Antiphon. Have mercy.

If this Antiphon be used, the Psalm begins with the words, "Upon me, O God."

Psalm L.

[This Psalm has a musical (?) superscription, and the title then proceeds, "A Psalm of David, when Nathan the Prophet came unto him, after he had gone in to Bath-sheba." The whole history is in 2 Kings (Sam.) xi. xii. (Saturday, 5th week after Pentecost, and 6th Sunday.)]

HAVE mercy upon me, O God, * after Thy great mercy:

And according to the multitude of Thy tender mercies * blot out my transgressions.

Wash me thoroughly from mine iniquity: * and cleanse me from my sin.

For I acknowledge my transgression: * and my sin is ever before me.

Against Thee, Thee only, have I sinned, and done evil in Thy sight: * that Thou mightest be justified when Thou speakest, and be clear when Thou art judged.

For behold, I was shapen in iniquity: * and in sin did my mother conceive me.

For behold Thou desirest truth: * the hidden secrets of Thy wisdom Thou hast made manifest unto me.

Sprinkle me with hyssop, and I shall be clean: * wash me, and I shall be whiter than snow.

Make me to hear joy and gladness: * that the bones which Thou hast broken may rejoice.

Hide Thy face from my sins: * and blot out all mine iniquities.

Create in me a clean heart, O God: * and renew a right spirit within me.

Cast me not away from Thy presence: * and take not Thine holy Spirit from me.

Restore unto me the joy of Thy salvation: * and uphold me with Thy free Spirit.

Then will I teach transgressors Thy ways: * and sinners shall be converted unto Thee.

Deliver me from blood-guiltiness, O God, Thou God of my salvation: * and my tongue shall sing aloud[1] of Thy righteousness.

O LORD, open Thou my lips, * and my mouth shall show forth Thy praise.

For Thou desirest not sacrifice, else would I give it: * Thou delightest not in burnt-offering.

The sacrifice of God is a broken spirit: * a broken and a contrite heart, O God, Thou wilt not despise.

Do good in Thy good pleasure unto Zion: * to build the walls of Jerusalem.

Then shalt Thou be pleased with the sacrifices of righteousness, with burnt-offering and whole burnt-offering: * then shall they offer bullocks upon Thine altar.

Antiphon. Have mercy upon me, O God.

Second Antiphon. Consider.

Psalm V.

[Intituled "A Psalm of David," with a musical (?) superscription.]

GIVE ear unto my words, O LORD, * consider my supplication.

Hearken unto the voice of my cry, * my King and my God!

For unto Thee will I pray. * O LORD, in the morning Thou shalt hear my voice:

In the morning will I stand before Thee and look up. * For Thou art not a God that hath pleasure in wickedness:

Neither shall the evil dwell with Thee, * nor the unrighteous stand in Thy sight:

Thou hatest all workers of iniquity. * Thou shalt destroy all them that speak leasing:

The LORD abhorreth the bloody and deceitful man. * But as for me, in the multitude of Thy mercy

I will come into Thine house: * I will worship toward Thine holy temple in Thy fear.

Lead me, O LORD, in Thy righteousness, * because of mine enemies; make my way straight before Thy face.

For there is no faithfulness in their mouth: * their inward part is very wickedness.

Their throat is an open sepulchre; they flatter with their tongue. * Judge Thou them, O God!

Let them fall by their own counsels; cast them out in the multitude of their transgressions, * for they have rebelled against Thee, O Lord!

And let all those that put their trust in Thee, rejoice: * let them ever shout for joy, because Thou dwellest in them:

---

[1] So the Hebrew, the LXX., and all the versions, including Doway, but the Latin text has the curious mistake of exultabit for exaltabit.

Let them also that love Thy Name be joyful in Thee. * For Thou wilt bless the righteous.

O Lord, Thou hast compassed us * with Thy favour as with a shield.

Antiphon. Consider my supplication, O Lord.

Third Antiphon. O God, Thou art my God.

If this Antiphon is used, the Psalm begins with the words, "Early will I seek Thee."

Psalms LXII., LXVI.

O God, Thou art my God, &c. (pp. 13, 14).

Antiphon. O God, Thou art my God, early will I seek Thee.

Fourth Antiphon. Thine anger is turned away.

THE SONG OF ISAIAH THE PROPHET.

[Isa. xii. 1. The description of the restoration of Israël in Isa. xi. (Second Sunday in Advent) is continued to the end of that Chapter, and this Song is then introduced by the words, "And in that day thou shalt say:—"]

O LORD, I will praise Thee, though Thou wast angry with me, * Thine anger is turned away, and Thou comfortest me.

Behold, God is my salvation: * I will trust and not be afraid:

For the Lord is my strength and my song: * He also is become my salvation.

Therefore with joy shall ye draw water out of the wells of the Saviour: * and in that day shall ye say: Praise the Lord and call upon His Name!

Declare His doings among the people, * tell them that His Name is exalted.

Sing unto the Lord, for He hath done glorious things: * make ye this known in all the earth.

Cry aloud and shout, thou inhabitant of Zion: * for great is the Holy One of Israël in the midst of thee!

Antiphon. Thine anger is turned away, and Thou comfortest me.

Fifth Antiphon. Praise ye.

If this Antiphon be used, the Psalm begins with the words "the Lord from the heavens."

Psalms CXLVIII., CXLIX., CL.

Praise ye the Lord from the heavens, &c. (p. 15).

Antiphon. Praise ye the Lord from the heavens.

From Advent Sunday till the Octave of the Epiphany and from the First Sunday in Lent till the Octave of Pentecost special Chapters are given. At other times the following is said on all week-days observed as such.

CHAPTER. (Rom. xiii. 12.)

THE night is far spent, the day is at hand: let us therefore cast off the works of darkness, and let us put on the armour of light: let us walk honestly as in the day.

HYMN.[1]

OF the Father Effluence bright,
Out of Light evolving light,
Light from Light, unfailing Ray,
Day creative of the day.

Truest Sun, upon us stream
With Thy calm perpetual beam,
In the Spirit's still sunshine
Making sense and thought divine.

Seek we too the Father's face,
Father of almighty grace,
And of majesty excelling,
Who can purge our tainted dwelling;

Who can aid us, who can break
Teeth of envious foes, and make
Hours of loss and pain succeed,
Guiding safe each duteous deed.

And, infusing self-control,
Fragrant chastity of soul,
Faith's keen flame to soar on high,
Incorrupt simplicity.

Christ Himself for food be given,
Faith become the cup of heaven,
Out of which the joy is quaff'd
Of the Spirit's sobering draught.

With that joy replenishèd
Morn shall glow with modest red,
Noon with beaming face be bright,
Eve be soft without twilight.

It has dawned:—upon our way,
Father, in Thy Word, this day,
In Thy Father, Word Divine,
From Thy cloudy pillar shine.

To the Father and the Son,
And the Spirit, Three and One,
As of old, and as in heaven,
Now and here be glory given.
Amen.

Verse. [2] Thou hast satisfied us early with Thy mercy.

Answer. We rejoice and are glad.

Antiphon for the Song of Zacharias. Blessed * be the Lord God of Israël.

Psalm CXXIX.

[Intituled "A Song of Degrees." The meaning of this title is not certain. The Psalms so called may perhaps, like the "Graduals" of the Roman Liturgy, be "step-songs," intended to be sung during processions, Liturgical or of pilgrims.]

OUT of the depths have I cried unto Thee, O LORD! * Lord, hear my voice.

Let Thine ears be attentive * to the voice of my supplication.

If Thou, LORD, shouldest mark iniquities, * O Lord, who shall stand?

But there is forgiveness with Thee: * because of Thy law, I wait for Thee, O LORD!

My soul waiteth on His word: * my soul hopeth in the Lord.

From the morning watch even until night * let Israël hope in the LORD:

For with the LORD there is mercy, * and with Him is plenteous redemption.

And He shall redeem Israël, * from all his iniquities.

Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, and to the Holy Ghost.

As it was in the beginning, is now, and ever shall be, world without end. Amen.

Verse. [8] Turn us again, O LORD God of hosts!

Answer. And cause Thy face to shine, and we shall be saved.

Verse. [9] Arise, O Christ, and help us.

Answer. And deliver us for Thy Name's sake.

Verse. Hear my prayer, O LORD.

Answer. And let my cry come unto Thee.

Let us pray.

Then follows the Prayer of the Day.

All proceeds to the end of the service as on Sunday, except that when Suffrages are said, the following is said before the Commemoration of the Blessed Virgin Mary.

Commemoration of the Cross.

Antiphon. Through Thy Cross's holy sign, JESUS, guard this soul of mine, from my ghostly enemy.

Verse. [10] Let all the earth worship Thee, and sing unto Thee.

Answer. Let them sing praises unto Thy Name, O Lord!

Let us pray.

O LORD, we beseech Thee, keep us in continual peace, whom it hath pleased Thee to redeem by the tree of the Holy Cross.

Tuesday at Mattins.

THE THIRD DAY OF THE WEEK.

All as on Sunday, except as otherwise given here.

Invitatory. Let us make a joyful noise to * the God of our salvation.

Invitatory in Paschal time. Alleluia, Alleluia, * Alleluia.

On Simple Feasts the Invitatory is special.

On Simple Feasts the Hymn is special, but on Week-days kept as such the following is said from the Octave of the Epiphany till the first Tuesday in Lent, and from the Octave of Pentecost till Advent. The Hymns for the other Seasons are given in the proper Office of the Seasons.

HYMN.[1]

O GOD from God, and Light from Light,
Who art Thyself the Day,
Our chants shall break the clouds of night;
Be with us while we pray.

Chase Thou the gloom that haunts the mind,
The thronging shades of hell,
The sloth and drowsiness that bind
The senses with a spell.

Lord, to their sins indulgent be,
Who, in this hour forlorn,
By faith in what they do not see,
With songs prevent the morn.

Grant this, O Father, Only Son,
And Spirit, God of grace,
To Whom all worship shall be done
In every time and place.
Amen.

Only one Nocturn is said.

Antiphon. That I sin not.

In Paschal time there is only one Antiphon to the whole Nocturn, Alleluia.

Psalm XXXVIII.

[Intituled "A Psalm of David," with a farther notice of meaning now uncertain. It is addressed to Jeduthun, concerning whom it is said, in 1 Par. (Chron.) xvi. 42, that David appointed, along with the Priests who officiated before the Ark, "Heman and Jeduthun, and the rest that were chosen, who are expressed by name, to give thanks to the LORD, because His mercy endureth for ever. And with them Heman and Jeduthun, with trumpets and cymbals, for those that should make a sound, and with musical instruments of God." The Targum says that it was to be used by Jeduthun for his watch in the Sanctuary.]

I SAID: I will take heed unto my ways, * that I sin not with my tongue.

I kept a watch upon my mouth, * while the wicked stood up against me.

I was dumb, and humbled myself, I held my peace even from good: * and my sorrow was stirred up afresh.

Mine heart was hot within me: * and while I was musing the fire kindled.

I spake with my tongue: * LORD, make me to know mine end;

And the measure of my days what it is; * that I may know how frail I am.

Behold, Thou hast made my days as a span: * and mine age is as nothing before Thee.

Verily every man living * is altogether vanity.[2]

Surely every man flitteth by like a shade: * he is disquieted also in vain.

He heapeth up riches, * and knoweth not who shall gather them.

And now for what wait I? Is it not for the Lord? * and mine hope is with Thee.

Deliver me from all my transgressions: * Thou hast given me for a reproach unto the foolish.

I was dumb and opened not my mouth, because Thou didst it: * remove Thy strokes away from me.

I am consumed by the blow of Thine hand: * Thou, with rebukes dost correct man for iniquity.

And Thou makest his beauty to consume away like a spider's web: * surely every man is disquieted in vain.[3]

Hear my prayer, O LORD, and my cry: * give ear unto my tears.

Hold not Thy peace: for I am a stranger with Thee, and a sojourner, * as all my fathers were.

O spare me, that I may recover strength, before I go hence, * and be no more.

Psalm XXXIX.

[Intituled "A Psalm of David" and with the same (now) uncertain superscription as Ps. xii.]

I WAITED patiently for the LORD, * and He inclined unto me,

And heard my cry: * He brought me up also out of an horrible pit, and out of the miry clay.

And set my feet upon a rock; * and ordered my goings.

And He hath put a new song in my mouth, * even praise unto our God.

Many shall see it, and fear, * and shall trust in the LORD.

Blessed is that man whose trust is the Name of the LORD: * and who respecteth not pride and lying vanities.

Many, O LORD my God, are Thy wonderful works which Thou hast done: * and in Thy thoughts there is none like unto Thee.

If I would declare and speak of them, * they are more than can be numbered.

Sacrifice and offering Thou hast not desired; * but mine ears hast Thou opened.

Burnt-offering and sin-offering hast Thou not required: * then said I: Lo, I come.

In the beginning of the book it is written of me that I should fulfil Thy will: * O my God, I delight to do it, yea, Thy law is within mine heart.

I have preached Thy righteousness in the great congregation: * lo, I have not refrained my lips: O LORD, Thou knowest.

I have not hidden Thy righteousness within mine heart: * I have declared Thy faithfulness and Thy salvation.

I have not concealed Thy loving-kindness, and Thy truth * from the great congregation.

Withhold not Thou Thy tender mercies from me, O LORD: * let Thy loving-kindness and Thy truth continually preserve me.

For countless evils have compassed me about: * mine iniquities have taken hold upon me, and I am not able to look up.

They are more in number than the hairs of mine head: * and mine heart faileth me.

Be pleased, O LORD, to deliver me: * O LORD, look upon me to help me.

Let them be ashamed and confounded together that seek after my soul, * to destroy it.

Let them be driven backward, and put to shame, * that wish me evil.

Let them quickly bear their shame, * that say unto me: Aha, Aha.

Let all those that seek Thee rejoice and be glad in Thee: * and let such as love Thy salvation say continually: The LORD be magnified.

But I am poor and needy: * the Lord thinketh upon me.

Thou art mine Helper and my Deliverer: * make no tarrying, O God.

Antiphon. [1] That I sin not with my tongue.

Second Antiphon. Heal.

Psalm XL.

[Intituled "A Psalm of David," with some other words, of meaning now uncertain, as in some other Psalms.]

BLESSED is he that considereth the poor and needy: * the LORD will deliver him in time of trouble.

The LORD preserve him, and quicken him, and make him to be blessed upon the earth: * and deliver him not unto the will of his enemies!

The LORD strengthen him upon his bed of suffering! * Thou hast made all his bed in his sickness.

As for me, I said: LORD, be merciful unto me: * heal my soul, for I have sinned against Thee.

Mine enemies speak evil of me: * When shall he die, and his name perish?

If he came to see me he spake vanity: * his heart gathereth iniquity to itself.

He went out, * and told it.

All they that hate me whispered together against me: * against me did they devise mine hurt.

They plotted together to do me evil: * Now that he lieth, surely he shall rise up no more.

Yea, mine own familiar friend in whom I trusted, * who did eat of my bread, hath lifted up his heel against me.[2]

But Thou, O LORD, be merciful unto me, and raise me up: * and I will requite them.

By this I know that Thou delightest in me: * because mine enemy cannot triumph over me.

But as for me, Thou upholdest me, because of mine innocence: * and settest me before Thy face for ever.

Blessed be the LORD God of Israël from everlasting, and to everlasting. * Amen, Amen.[3]

Psalm XLI.

[This Psalm has a superscription, the meaning of which is not now certain, but which seems in part to imply that it was a didactic poem written to be sung by the choir of the Korahites, a family of Levites and singers in the time of David.]

AS the hart panteth after the water-brooks: * so panteth my soul after Thee, O God!

My soul is athirst for God, for the mighty God, for the living God: * when shall I come and appear before God?

My tears have been my meat day and night, * while they daily say unto me: Where is thy God?

When I remember these things, I pour out my soul in me: * for I will go unto the place of the wondrous Tabernacle, even unto the house of God.

With the voice of joy and praise, * the noise of a multitude that keep holiday.

Why art thou cast down, O my soul, * and why art thou disquieted in me?

Hope thou in God, for I shall yet praise Him, * the Health of my countenance and my God.

My soul is cast down within me: * therefore will I remember Thee from the land of Jordan, and from the mountains of Hermon,[4] from the Little Hill.[5]

---

[1] Ps. xxxviii. 2.

[2] Quoted by our Lord. John xiii. 18.

[3] With this Psalm ends the first of the five books into which the Psalter is divided.

[4] A chain of mountains in the north-east of Palestine, stretching down on the eastern side of Jordan.

[5] Or rather, the hill Mizar (viz. the Little), proper name of a mountain on the eastern ridge of Lebanon. May it not be that the Korahites were among the Levitical families which had cities in the north and north-east districts?

Deep calleth unto deep, * at the noise of Thy waterspouts.

All Thy waves and Thy billows * are gone over me.

The Lord hath commanded [the praise of] His loving-kindness in the day-time, * and in the night His song.

Mine shall it be to pray unto the God of my life. * I will say unto God: Thou art my refuge.

Why hast Thou forgotten me? * and why go I mourning, while the enemy oppresseth me?

While my bones are broken, * they that trouble me, even mine enemies, reproach me;

While they say daily unto me: Where is thy God? * Why art thou cast down, O my soul, and why art thou disquieted within me?

Hope thou in God, for I shall yet praise Him: * the Health of my countenance and my God.

Antiphon. [1] Heal my soul, O Lord, for I have sinned against Thee.

Third Antiphon. Mine heart.

Psalm XLIII.

[This Psalm has the same uncertain [? musical] superscription as some others, and the Targum farther ascribes its authorship to David.]

WE have heard with our ears, O God: * our fathers have told us,

What work Thou didst in their days, * and in the times of old.

Thine hand scattered the heathen, and planted them: * Thou didst afflict the people and cast them out.

For they got not the land in possession by their own sword: * neither did their own arm save them.

But Thy right hand, and Thine arm, and the light of Thy countenance: * because Thou hadst a favour unto them.

Thou art my King and my God: * Who commandest victories for Jacob!

Through Thee shall our horn toss our enemies: * through Thy Name will we tread them under that rise up against us.

For I will not trust in my bow: * neither shall my sword save me.

For Thou hast saved us from them that afflicted us, * and hast put to shame them that hated us.

In God will we glory all the day long, * and will praise Thy Name for ever.[2]

But now Thou hast cast off and put us to shame: * and Thou, O God, wilt not go forth with our armies.

Thou hast turned us back behind our enemies: * and they that hate us take spoil for themselves.

Thou hast given us like sheep appointed for meat, * and hast scattered us among the heathen.

Thou hast sold Thy people for nought, * and hast not increased Thy wealth by their price.

Thou makest us a reproach to our neighbours, * a scorn and a derision to them that are round about us.

Thou makest us a by-word among the heathen, * a shaking of the head among the peoples.

My confusion is all day long before me, * and the shame of my face hath covered me,

For the voice of him that reproacheth and blasphemeth, * by reason of the enemy and avenger.

All this is come upon us, yet have we not forgotten Thee: * neither have we dealt falsely in Thy covenant.

Our heart also is not turned back: * neither have our steps strayed from Thy way;

Though Thou hast sore broken us in the place of affliction, * and the shadow of death hath covered us.

If we have forgotten the Name of our God, * or stretched out our hands to a strange god;

Shall not God search this out? * for He knoweth the secrets of the heart.

Yea, for Thy sake are we killed all the day long: * we are counted as sheep for the slaughter.

Awake, why sleepest Thou, O Lord? * arise, and cast us not off for ever.

Wherefore hidest Thou Thy face, * and forgettest our affliction and our oppression?

For our soul is bowed down to the dust: * our belly cleaveth unto the earth.

Arise, O Lord, help us: * and redeem us for Thy Name's sake.

Psalm XLIV.

[This Psalm has a long superscription, the exact meaning of which is not now certain. It seems to have been a marriage-song written to be sung by the Korahites. The Targum ascribes it to the time of Moses, but it seems rather to belong to that of the Jewish Monarchy.]

MINE heart is overflowing with a good matter: * I speak of my works unto the king.

My tongue is the pen * of a ready writer.

Thou art fairer than the children of men, grace is poured into thy lips: * therefore God hath blessed thee for ever.

Gird thy sword upon thy thigh, * O most mighty!

In thy comeliness, and thy beauty, * go forward, fare prosperously, and reign,

Because of truth, and meekness, and righteousness: * and thy right hand shall lead thee wonderfully.

Thine arrows are sharp — (the people shall fall under thee)— * into the heart of the King's enemies.

[3] Thy throne, O God, is for ever and ever: * the sceptre of Thy kingdom is a right sceptre.

Thou hast loved righteousness, and hated iniquity: * therefore, God, thy God, hath anointed thee with the oil of gladness above thy fellows.

Thy garments smell of myrrh, and aloes, and cassia, out of the ivory palaces, * whereby kings' daughters among thine honourable women have made thee glad.

the queen in a vesture of gold, * bedecked with divers colours.

Hearken, O daughter, and consider, and incline thine ear: * forget also thine own people, and thy father's house:

And the King shall greatly desire thy beauty: * for He is the Lord thy God,[1] and Him shall they worship.

And the daughters of Tyre shall entreat thy favour * with gifts, even all the rich among the people.

The King's daughter is all glorious within, * in a vesture of gold, clad in divers colours.

After her shall virgins be brought unto the king: * her fellows shall be brought unto thee.

With gladness and rejoicing shall they be brought: * they shall enter into the King's palace.

Instead of thy fathers shall be thy children: * thou shalt make them princes over all the earth.

They shall be mindful of thy name, * unto all generations.

Therefore shall the people praise thee for ever, * yea, for ever and ever.

Antiphon. [2] Mine heart is overflowing with a good matter.

Fourth Antiphon. Our help.

Psalm XLV.

[This Psalm has a superscription of uncertain meaning, but of which part seems to imply that it was to be sung by treble voices, from the choir of the Korahite family. And the Targum ascribes it, but apparently by a mere guess, to the time when Korah and his fellow-rebels were destroyed by an earthquake in the wilderness, but "the children of Korah died not" (Num. xxvi. 10, 11).]

GOD is our refuge and strength, * our help in trouble, which is come upon us exceedingly.

Therefore will we not fear, though the earth be removed, * and though the mountains be carried into the midst of the sea;

Though the waters thereof roar and be troubled; * though the mountains shake with the swelling thereof.[3]

[There is] a river, the streams whereof make glad the city of God: * the Most High hath hallowed His Tabernacle.

God is in the midst of her, she shall not be moved: * God shall help her right early.

The heathen raged, and the kingdoms were moved: * He uttered His voice, the earth melted.

The Lord of hosts is with us: * the God of Jacob is our refuge.[3]

Come and behold the works of the Lord, what wonders He hath wrought in the earth; * He maketh wars to cease unto the end of the earth.

He breaketh the bow and cutteth the weapons in sunder: * and burneth the shields in the fire.

Be still, and know that I am God: * I will be exalted among the heathen, and I will be exalted in the earth.

The Lord of hosts is with us: * the God of Jacob is our refuge.[3]

Psalm XLVI.

[Intituled "A Psalm of the sons of Korah," with another (now uncertain) direction.]

O CLAP your hands, all ye people: * shout unto God with the voice of triumph.

For the Lord Most High is terrible: * He is a great King over all the earth.

He hath subdued the people under us, * and the nations under our feet.

He hath chosen His own inheritance for us, * the excellency of Jacob, whom He loved.[3]

God is gone up with a shout, * and the Lord with the sound of a trumpet.

Sing praises to our God, sing praises: * sing praises unto our King, sing praises.

For God is the King of all the earth: * sing ye praises with understanding.

God reigneth over the heathen: * God sitteth upon the throne of His holiness.

The princes of the people are gathered together with the God of Abraham: * for the mighty ones of the earth are greatly exalted.

Antiphon. [4] Our help in trouble.

Fifth Antiphon. Great is the Lord.

If this Antiphon be used the Psalm begins with the words, "And greatly to be praised."

Psalm XLVII.

[Intituled "A Song. A Psalm of the sons of Korah." The Vulgate and the LXX. assign it to the second day of the week.]

GREAT is the Lord, and greatly to be praised * in the city of our God, in the mountain of His holiness.

Beautiful for situation, the joy of the whole earth, is mount Zion, * on the sides of the north, the city of the great King.

God is known in her palaces * for a refuge.

For, lo, the kings were assembled: * they passed by together.

They saw, and so they marvelled; they were troubled, they hasted away: * fear took hold upon them

There, pain, as of a woman in travail. * Thou shalt break the ships of Tarshish[5] with a mighty wind.

As we have heard, so have we seen in the city of the Lord of hosts, in the city of our God: * God hath established her for ever.[6]

We have received Thy loving-kindness, O God, * in the midst of Thy temple.

According to Thy Name, O God, so is Thy praise unto the ends of the earth: * Thy right hand is full of righteousness.

For this God is our God for ever and ever: * He shall be our guide for ever.

Psalm XLVIII.

[This Psalm has the same title as Ps. xlvi.]

HEAR this, all ye people: * give ear, all ye inhabitants of the world;

Both low and high: * rich and poor together.

My mouth shall speak of wisdom: * and the meditation of my heart shall be of understanding.

I will incline mine ear to a parable: * I will open my saying upon the harp.

Wherefore should I fear in the day of evil? * The iniquity of them that dog mine heels shall compass me about,—

They that trust in their own strength, * and boast themselves in the multitude of their riches.

Can a man redeem, redeem his brother? * He cannot give to God a ransom for himself—

Nor yet a redemption for his own soul, * if he should work for ever, and live even unto the end.

Nay, though he should not see destruction, when he beholdeth wise men die—* likewise the fool and the brutish person perish,

And leave their wealth to others: * and their grave shall be their house for ever—

Even their dwelling-place to all generations: * they called their lands after their own names.

For man, having been created in honour, hath had no understanding: * he hath made himself like unto the beasts that understand not, and is become like unto them.

This their way is a stumbling-block for themselves: * yet their posterity will approve their sayings.[1]

Like sheep they are laid in the grave: * death will pasture them.

And the upright shall have dominion over them in the morning: * and the beauty of their strength shall waste away in the grave.

But God will redeem my soul from the power of the grave, * when He shall receive me.[1]

Be not thou afraid when one is made rich, * and when the glory of his house is increased.

For when he dieth he shall carry nothing away, * his glory shall not descend with him.

Though while he lived he blessed his soul; * and praised thee when thou didst well to him.

He shall go to the generation of his fathers: * and shall never see light.

Man, having been created in honour, hath had no understanding: * he hath made himself like unto the beasts that understand not, and is become like unto them.

Antiphon. [2]Great is the Lord, and greatly to be praised.

Sixth Antiphon. The God of gods.

If this Antiphon be used, the Psalm begins with the words, "Even the Lord."

Psalm XLIX.

[Intituled "A Psalm of Asaph." This Asaph was a Levite, chief of the singers appointed by David. 1 Par. (Chron.) xvi. 4. "And he (David) appointed certain of the Levites to minister before the Ark of the Lord, and to record, and to thank and praise the Lord God of Israël. Asaph the chief, and next to him Zachariah, Jeiel, Shemiramoth, and Jehiel, and Mattithiah, and Eliab, and Benaiah, and Obed-edom; and Jeiel with psalteries and with harps; but Asaph made a sound with cymbals."]

THE God of gods, even the Lord, hath spoken, * and called the earth,

From the rising of the sun unto the going down thereof. * Out of Zion, the Perfection of beauty, God shall come manifestly, * even our God, and shall not keep silence.

A fire shall devour before Him: * and it shall be very tempestuous round about Him.

He shall call to the heavens from above, * and to the earth, that He may judge His people.

Gather His saints together unto Him, * those that have made a covenant with Him by sacrifice.

And the heavens shall declare His righteousness: * for God is Judge Himself.[3]

Hear, O My people, and I will speak; O Israël, and I will testify against thee; * I am God, even thy God.

I will not reprove thee for thy sacrifices: * for thy burnt-offerings are continually before Me.

I will take no bullock out of thine house, * nor he-goats out of thy folds.

For every beast of the forest is Mine, * the cattle and the bulls upon the mountains.

I know all the birds of the sky: * and the beauty of the field is Mine.

If I were hungry, I would not tell thee: * for the earth is Mine, and the fulness thereof.

Will I eat the flesh of bulls, * or drink the blood of goats?

Offer unto God the sacrifice of praise: * and pay thy vows unto the Most High:

And call upon Me in the day of trouble: * I will deliver thee, and thou shalt glorify Me.

But unto the wicked, God saith: * What hast thou to do to declare My statutes, that thou shouldest take My covenant in thy mouth?

Seeing thou hatest instruction, * and castest My words behind thee?

When thou sawest a thief then thou tookest pleasure in him: * and hast been partaker with adulterers.

Thy mouth aboundeth with evil: * and thy tongue frameth deceit.

Thou satest and spakest against thy brother, and slanderedst thine own mother's son: * these things hast thou done, and I kept silence.

Psalm LI.

[After another uncertain superscription, the title of this Psalm proceeds:—"[A Psalm] of David, when Doeg the Edomite came and told Saul, and said unto him: David is come to the house of Ahimelech." The circumstances may be read in 1 Kings (Sam.) xxii. (Saturday, fourth week after Pentecost). After Doeg told Saul, the latter sent for Ahimelech and the other Priests, and ordered them to execution. "But the servants of the king would not put forth their hand to fall upon the Priests of the LORD. And the king said to Doeg: Turn thou, and fall upon the Priests. And Doeg the Edomite turned and fell upon the Priests, and slew on that day four-score and five persons that did wear a linen ephod." The inhabitants of the Priestly city of Nob were also brutally massacred. One of the sons of Ahimelech escaped and told David.]

WHY boastest thou thyself in mischief, * O thou that art mighty in iniquity?

Thy tongue deviseth unrighteousness all the day long: * like a sharp razor hast thou wrought treachery.

Thou lovest evil more than good; * iniquity rather than to speak of uprightness.[1]

Thou lovest all deadly words, * O thou deceitful tongue!

Therefore God shall destroy thee for ever: * He shall take thee away, and pluck thee out of thy dwelling-place, and root thee out of the land of the living.[1]

The righteous shall see it, and fear, and shall laugh at him, and say: * Lo, this is the man that made not God his strength;

But trusted in the abundance of his riches: * and hardened himself in his wickedness.

But I am like a fruitful olive-tree in the house of God, * I trust in the mercy of God for ever and ever.

I will praise Thee for ever, because Thou hast done it: * and I will wait on Thy name, for it is good before Thy saints.

to Saints of the class, unless something special be appointed. The Lessons are arranged according to the rules in Chapter xxvi. 4 of the general Rubrics. The Hymn, "We praise Thee, O God," is said at the end, instead of a Third Responsory. The Responsories are arranged according to the rules in Chapter xxvii. 4 of the general Rubrics. Thus:—

The Lord's Prayer is said:

OUR Father (inaudibly), Who art in heaven, Hallowed be Thy Name. Thy kingdom come. Thy will be done on earth, as it is in heaven. Give us this day our daily bread. And forgive us our trespasses, as we forgive them that trespass against us. (Aloud.)

Verse. And lead us not into temptation.

Answer. But deliver us from evil.

Then this Absolution:

MAY His loving kindness and mercy help us, Who liveth and reigneth with the Father, and the Holy Ghost, world without end.

Answer. Amen.

Then the Reader says:

Sir, be pleased to give the blessing.

First Blessing, if the Lesson be from Scripture.

God the Father the Almighty
Show on us His grace and mercy.
Answer. Amen.

First Blessing, if the Lesson be of an Homily.

May the Gospel's saving Lord
Bless the reading of His Word.
Answer. Amen.

First Blessing on a Simple Feast.

May His blessing be upon us,
Who doth live and reign for ever.
Answer. Amen.

Then is read the First Lesson from Scripture or from the Homily, or, on a Simple Feast, either the First from Scripture, or, if the Saint or Saints have two Lessons, the whole three Scripture Lessons read together as one.

Then the First Responsory, unless otherwise directed. On a week-day kept as such, this is the First Responsory of the Second Nocturn of the preceding Sunday. On a Simple Feast, it is the first Responsory in the Common Office for the class to which the Saint belongs.

Then the Reader says:

Sir, be pleased to give the blessing.

Second Blessing, if the Lesson be of Scripture.

May Christ to all His people give
For ever in His sight to live.
Answer. Amen.

Second Blessing, if the Lesson be from an Homily.

God's most mighty strength alway
Be His people's staff and stay.
Answer. Amen.

Second Blessing, for a Simple Feast.

He (or She or They) whose feast-day we are keeping
Plead for us before the Lord.
Answer. Amen.

Then is read the Second Lesson, either from the Scripture or from an Homily, or, on a Simple Feast, either the Second and Third Lessons from Scripture read together as one, or, if the Saint or Saints have two Lessons, the first of these.

Then the Second Responsory, unless otherwise directed. On a week-day kept as such, this is the Second Responsory of the preceding Sunday, but in Paschal time there is added to it:

Verse. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, and to the Holy Ghost.

And the Answer of the Responsory is repeated again.

On a Simple Feast the Second Responsory in the Common Office for the class to which the Saint belongs, with the addition of "Glory be to the Father," &c., and the repetition of the Answer.

Then the Reader says:

Sir, be pleased to give the blessing.

Third Blessing, if the Lesson be of Scripture.

May the Spirit's fire divine
In our inmost being shine.
Answer. Amen.

Third Blessing, for a Simple Feast, or if the Lesson be from an Homily.

May He that is the Angels' King
To that high realm His people bring.
Answer. Amen.

Then is read the Third Lesson either from Scripture, or of the Homily, or, on Simple Feasts, the Second or only Lesson of the Saint.

Then, on Simple Feasts and on any day in Paschal time save Rogation Monday is said the Hymn, "We praise Thee, O God." But on week-days kept as such out of Paschal time the Third Responsory of the preceding Sunday.

Tuesday at Lauds.

THE THIRD DAY OF THE WEEK.

All as on Sunday, except as otherwise given here.

The Psalms are as follows:

Antiphon. O Lord.

Psalm L.

Have mercy upon me, &c. (p. 49).

Antiphon. O Lord, blot out my transgressions.

Second Antiphon. The health.

Psalm XLII.

[The Vulgate and the LXX. ascribe this Psalm "to David."]

JUDGE me, O God, and plead my cause against an ungodly nation: * O deliver me from the unjust and deceitful man.

For Thou, O God, art my strength: * why dost Thou cast me off? and why go I mourning, because of the oppression of the enemy?

O send out Thy light and Thy truth: * let them lead me and bring me unto Thine holy hill, and unto Thy tabernacles!

Then will I go unto the Altar of God, * unto God, the Gladdener of my youth!

Upon the harp will I praise Thee, O God, my God! * why art thou cast down, O my soul? and why dost thou disquiet me?

Hope thou in God: for I will still praise Him, * Who is the health of my countenance, and my God.

Antiphon. The health of my countenance, and my God.

Third Antiphon. Early.

Psalms LXII., LXVI.

O God, Thou art my God, &c. (pp. 13, 14).

Antiphon. Early will I seek Thee, O God.

Fourth Antiphon. Save us.

THE SONG OF HEZEKIAH, KING OF JUDAH. (Isa. xxxviii. 10.)

[Intituled "The writing of Hezekiah, King of Judah, when he had been sick, and was recovered of his sickness." The history will be found in 4 (2) Kings xx. (11th Sunday after Pentecost).]

I SAID, In the midst of my days, * I shall go to the gates of the grave:

I looked for the rest of my years. * I said, I shall not see the LORD my God[1] in the land of the living:

I shall behold man no more, * with the dwellers in the land of rest.

Mine age is departed, and is rolled up from me, * as a shepherd's tent:

My life is cut off as by a weaver: my web was scarce begun when He cut me off: * from day even to night wilt Thou make an end of me.

I thought I might live till morning: * as a lion, so doth He break all my bones:

From day even to night wilt Thou make an end of me. * Like a swallow's fledgling so did I twitter, I did coo as a dove:

Mine eyes fail, * with looking upward.

O LORD, I am seized, undertake for me. * What shall I say, or what will He answer me, seeing that He Himself hath done it?

I will call to remembrance before Thee all my years * in the bitterness of my soul.

O Lord, if by these things men live, and in such things is the life of my spirit, so mayest Thou chasten me, and make me to live. * Behold, mine anguish is [turned] into peace:

But Thou hast delivered my soul from destruction: * Thou hast cast all my sins behind Thy back.

For the grave cannot praise Thee, death cannot celebrate Thee: * they that go down into the pit cannot hope for Thy truth.

The living, the living, he shall praise Thee, as I do this day: * the father to the children shall make known Thy truth.

O LORD, save me: * and we will sing our songs all the days of our life in the house of the LORD.

Antiphon. Save us all the days of our life, O Lord.

Fifth Antiphon. Praise ye the LORD.

Psalms CXLVIII., CXLIX., CL.

Praise ye the LORD from the heavens, &c. (p. 15).

Antiphon. Praise ye the LORD from the heavens, all His Angels.

CHAPTER. (Rom. xiii. 12.)

The night is far spent, &c. (as on Monday, p. 50).

[1] "My God" is not in the Hebrew, but the Divine Name is repeated.

HYMN.[1]

DAY'S herald bird
At length is heard,
Telling its morning torch is lit,
And small and still
Christ's accents thrill
Within the heart, rekindling it.

Away, He cries,
With languid eyes,
And sickly slumbers profitless!
I am at hand,
As watchers stand,
In awe, and truth, and holiness.

He will appear,
The hearts to cheer
Of suppliants pale and abstinent;
Who cannot sleep
Because they weep
With holy grief and violent.

Keep us awake,
The fetters break,
JESU! which night has forged for us;
Yea, melt the night
To sinless light,
Till all is bright and glorious.

To Father, Son,
And Spirit, one,
To the Most Holy Trinity,
All praise be given
In earth and heaven,
Now, as of old, and endlessly. Amen.

Verse. [2] Thou hast satisfied us early with Thy mercy.

Answer. We rejoice and are glad.

Antiphon for the Song of Zacharias. The Lord hath raised up * an horn of salvation for us, in the house of His servant David.

Commemoration of the Cross before the other general Commemorations, and Long Preces in Advent and Lent, and on Fast-days, as on Monday.

[2] Ps. lxxxix. 14.

Wednesday at Mattins.

THE FOURTH DAY OF THE WEEK.

All as on Sunday except as otherwise given here.

Invitatory. In Thy hand, O Lord, * are the inmost depths of the earth.

HYMN.[1]

WHO madest all and dost control,
Lord, with Thy touch divine,
Cast out the slumbers of the soul,
The rest that is not Thine.

Look down, Eternal Holiness,
And wash the sins away
Of those, who, rising to confess,
Outstrip the lingering day.

Our hearts and hands by night, O Lord,
We lift them in our need ;
As holy Psalmists give the word,
And holy Paul the deed.

Each sin to Thee of years gone by,
Each hidden stain lies bare ;
We shrink not from Thine awful eye,
But pray that Thou wouldst spare.

Grant this, O Father, Only Son,
And Spirit, God of grace,
To Whom all worship shall be done
In every time and place. Amen.

Only one Nocturn is said.

Antiphon. God bringeth back.

In Paschal time only one Antiphon is said to the whole Nocturn. Alleluia.

Psalm LII.

[Intituled "of David," with a further superscription, perhaps musical, but of a (now) uncertain meaning. The Targum gives it the additional superscription, "to render praise, for the reward of the impious who blasphemed the Name of the Lord." It is a repetition of Ps. xiii.]

THE fool hath said in his heart : * There is no God.

Corrupt are they and have done abominable iniquity : * there is none that doeth good.

God looketh down from heaven upon the children of men, * to see if there be any that will understand, or that will seek God.

Every one of them is gone back, they are altogether become unprofitable : * there is none that doeth good, no, not one.

Have the workers of iniquity no knowledge, * who eat up my people as they eat bread ?

They have not called upon God : * there were they in great fear, where no fear was.

For God hath scattered the bones of them that work that which is pleasing in the sight of men : * they are put to shame, because God hath despised them.

O that the salvation of Israel were come out of Zion ! * when God bringeth back the captivity of His people, Jacob shall rejoice, and Israël shall be glad.

Psalm LIV.

[This Psalm has a superscription of which nothing can now be certainly interpreted, except the ascription of authorship "To David."]

GIVE ear to my prayer, O God, and despise not my supplication : * attend unto me and hear me.

I mourn in my exercise ; * and am troubled, because of the voice of the enemy, and because of the oppression of the wicked.

For they cast iniquity upon me : * and in wrath they hate me.

My heart is sore pained within me : * and the terrors of death are fallen upon me.

Fearfulness and trembling are come upon me : * and darkness hath overwhelmed me.

And I said : O that I had wings like a dove, * for then would I fly away and be at rest !

Lo, then would I wander far off, * and remain in the wilderness.[2]

I waited for Him Who hath delivered me * from distress of spirit and from tempest.

Destroy, O Lord ! divide their tongues : * for I have seen iniquity and strife in the city.

Day and night iniquity goeth round about upon her walls : * trouble also and unrighteousness are in the midst of her.

Usury and guile * depart not from her streets.

For if mine enemy had reproached me, * then I could have borne it.

If he also that hated me had magnified himself against me, * then haply I would have hidden myself from him.

But it was thou, a man likeminded, * my guide and mine acquaintance :

We took pleasant meats together : * we walked unto the house of God in company.

Let death come upon them : * and let them go down quick into hell ;

For wickedness is in their dwellings, * among them.

But as for me I have called upon God : * and the LORD shall save me.

Evening, and morning, and at noon will I complain and cry aloud, * and He shall hear my voice.

[1] Another hymn of the Ambrosian school. Translation by the late Card. Newman.

[2] SLH.

He shall deliver my soul in peace from them that draw nigh against me: * for there were many against me.

God shall hear and afflict them, * even He That abideth of old.[1]

Because they have no changes, therefore they fear not God. * He hath stretched forth His hand to requite them.

They have broken His covenant: the anger of His countenance hath put them to flight, * and His wrath pursueth them.

His words were softer than oil, * yet were they drawn swords.

Cast thy burden upon the LORD, and He shall sustain thee: * He shall never suffer the righteous to be moved.

But Thou, O God, shalt bring them down * into the pit of destruction.

Bloody and deceitful men shall not live out half their days: * but I will trust in Thee, O Lord.

Antiphon. [2] God bringeth back the captivity of His people.

Second Antiphon. For my soul.

Psalm LV.

[This Psalm has a long and very obscure superscription. From part of this it seems that it was written to be sung to a tune called "The dumb dove among foreigners." The authorship is ascribed "To David, when the Philistines took him in Gath." This may either be the occasion described in the note on Ps. xxxiii. (p. 44), or that narrated thus in 1 Kings (Sam.) xxvii. "And David said in his heart: I shall now perish one day by the hand of Saul; there is nothing better for me than that I should speedily escape into the land of the Philistines; and Saul shall despair of me, to seek me any more in any coast of Israël; so shall I escape out of his hand. And David arose, and he passed over, with the six hundred men that were with him, unto Achish, the son of Maoch, king of Gath. . . . And it was told Saul that David was fled to Gath, and he sought no more again for him."]

BE merciful unto me, O God, for man treadeth me down: * he fighteth all the day long, and oppresseth me.

Mine enemies tread me down all the day long: * for they be many that fight against me.

The height of the morning makes me afraid, * but I will trust in Thee.

In God I will praise His word, in God I have put my trust: * I will not fear what flesh can do unto me.

All the day long they wrest my words: * all their thoughts are against me for evil.

They gather themselves together and hide themselves: * they mark my steps.

When they wait for my soul, for nothing shalt Thou deliver them: * in Thine anger Thou shalt cast down the people.

O God, I have declared my life unto Thee, * Thou hast put my tears in Thy sight,

Even as Thou hast promised. * Then shall mine enemies turn back,

In whatsoever day I cry unto Thee: * behold, I know that Thou art my God.

In God will I praise His word, in the LORD will I praise His word: * in God have I put my trust, I will not be afraid what man can do unto me.

Thy vows are upon me, O God, * I will pay them, even praises unto Thee.

For Thou hast delivered my soul from death, and my feet from falling; * that I may walk before God in the light of the living.

Psalm LVI.

[Another long title of uncertain meaning. The Psalm seems to have been written for a tune called "Destroy not," "by David, when he fled from Saul in the cave"—1 Kings (Sam.) xxii. 1—"David therefore departed thence" (viz. from Gath) "and escaped to the cave Adullam." See the note on Ps. xxxiii., p. 44.]

BE merciful unto me, O God, be merciful unto me: * for my soul trusteth in Thee.

Yea, in the shadow of Thy wings will I make my refuge, * until this iniquity be overpast.

I will cry unto God Most High: * unto God, That performeth all things for me.

He hath sent from heaven, and saved me: * He hath given for a reproach them that trod me down.[3]

God hath sent forth His mercy and His truth; * and delivered my soul from among the lions' whelps; I was troubled in my sleep.

As for the sons of men, their teeth are spears and arrows, * and their tongue a sharp sword.

Be Thou exalted, O God, above the heavens: * and let Thy glory be over all the earth.

They prepared a net for my steps; * and bowed down my soul.

They digged a pit before me: * into the midst whereof they are fallen themselves.[3]

Mine heart is ready, O God, mine heart is ready: * I will sing, and give praise.

Awake up, my glory; awake, psaltery and harp: * I will awake early.

I will praise Thee, O Lord, among the people; * and sing unto Thee among the nations.

For Thy mercy is great unto the heavens, * and Thy truth unto the clouds.

Be Thou exalted, O God, above the heavens: * and let Thy glory be above all the earth.

Antiphon. [4] For my soul trusteth in Thee.

Third Antiphon. Judge uprightly.

Psalm LVII.

[This Psalm has the same title as the last, except the historical reference.]

IF ye indeed speak righteousness, * judge uprightly, O ye sons of men.

Yea, in heart ye work wickedness: * your hands weigh out violence in the earth.

God shall break their teeth in their mouth: * the LORD shall break off the great teeth of the lions.

They shall melt away as waters which run down: * He bendeth His bow until they be shattered.

They shall melt away like melting wax: * fire taketh hold upon them and they see not the sun.

As thorns that are plucked up before ever they be grown into a bush: * so even in their greenness, shall He root them up in His anger.

The righteous shall rejoice when he seeth the vengeance: * he shall wash his hands in the blood of the wicked.

And man shall say: Verily, there is a reward for the righteous, * verily there is a God That judgeth the earth.

Psalm LVIII.

[This Psalm has the same title as the two last, with the addition :—"when Saul sent, and they watched the house, to kill him." The occasion is thus described in 1 Kings (Sam.) xix. 11. "Saul also sent messengers unto David's house, to watch him, to slay him in the morning; and Michal, David's wife, told him, saying: If thou save not thy life to-night, to-morrow thou shalt be slain. So Michal let David down through a window, and he went, and fled, and escaped."]

DELIVER me from mine enemies, O my God: * and defend me from them that rise up against me.

Deliver me from the workers of iniquity: * and save me from bloody men.

For, lo, they lie in wait for my life: * the mighty have fallen upon me.

Not for my transgression, not for my sin, O LORD; * I ran and ordered myself without fault.

Awake to meet me, and behold: * O Thou, the LORD God of hosts, the God of Israël!

Awake to visit all the heathen: * be not merciful to any wicked transgressors.[1]

They come at evening and hunger like dogs; * and go round about the city.

Behold, they yelp with their mouth, and a sword is in their lips: * for who, say they, doth hear?

But Thou, O LORD, shalt laugh at them: * Thou shalt bring all the heathen to nought.

O my strength, I will wait upon Thee, for Thou, O God, art my defence: * the mercy of my God shall receive me.

God shall let me see all my desire upon mine enemies: slay them not; * lest my people forget.

Scatter them by Thy power: * and bring them down, O Lord our shield!

For the sin of their mouth, and the words of their lips: * let them even be taken in their pride;

And at the end they shall be spoken of for cursing and lying: * and in the wrath at the end they shall perish.

And they shall know that God ruleth in Jacob, * and unto the ends of the earth.[1]

They shall return at evening, and hunger like dogs: * and go round about the city.

They shall wander up and down for meat; * and grudge if they be not satisfied.

But I will sing of Thy power: * yea, I will sing aloud of Thy mercy in the morning.

For Thou hast been my defence, * and refuge in the day of my trouble.

Unto Thee, O my strength, will I sing, for God is my defence, * the God of my mercy.

Antiphon. [2]Judge uprightly, O ye sons of men.

Fourth Antiphon. Give us.

Psalm LIX.

[This Psalm has a superscription, probably musical, but the meaning of which is now uncertain. It then proceeds :—"Of David, when he strove with Mesopotamia, and with Western Syria, when Joab returned and smote of Edom in the valley of Salt" (viz. the Jordan valley near the Dead Sea) "twelve thousand." The occasion was some very successful wars which David carried on against several neighbouring kings, and which are described in 2 Kings (Sam.) viii. and 1 Par. (Chron.) xviii. The Psalm seems to have been written under some temporary reverses during the campaign.]

O GOD, Thou hast cast us off, and scattered us: * Thou hast been displeased, and hast had mercy upon us.

Thou hast made the earth to tremble, and hast broken it: * heal the breaches thereof, for it shaketh.

Thou hast showed Thy people hard things: * Thou hast made us to drink the wine of astonishment.

Thou hast given a warning to them that fear Thee, * that they may fly from before the bow.[3]

That Thy beloved may be delivered: * save with Thy right hand, and hear me.

God hath spoken in His holiness: * I will rejoice and divide Shechem, and mete out the valley of booths.[4]

Gilead is mine, and Manasseh is mine: * Ephraim also is the strength of mine head.[5]

Judah is my King: * Moab is the vessel [of the triumph] of mine hope.[6]

Give us help from trouble: * for vain is the help of man.

Through God we shall do valiantly: * for He it is That shall tread down our enemies.

Psalm LX.

[Intituled "of David." It has also a musical (?) superscription now of uncertain meaning.]

HEAR my cry, O God: * attend unto my prayer.

From the ends of the earth I cried unto Thee: * when mine heart was overwhelmed, Thou didst lift me up upon a rock.

Thou didst lead me, for Thou hast been a shelter for me, * a strong tower from the enemy.

I will abide in Thy tabernacle for ever: * I will make my refuge in the covert of Thy wings.[1]

For Thou, O God, hast heard my vows: * Thou hast given the heritage to those that fear Thy name.

Thou wilt prolong the King's life: * and his years to many generations.

He shall abide before God for ever: * who will seek for His mercy and truth?

So will I sing praise unto Thy name for ever: * that I may daily perform my vows.

Antiphon. [2] Give us help from trouble, O Lord.

Fifth Antiphon. Doth not my soul.

If this Antiphon be used the Psalm commences with the words "Wait upon God."

Psalm LXI.

[This Psalm has exactly the same superscription as Ps. xxxviii.]

DOTH not my soul wait upon God? * for from Him cometh my salvation.

He only is my God and my salvation: * He is my defence, I shall not be greatly moved.

How long will ye run together against a man? * Do ye slay, all of you [one that is] as a bowing wall and as a tottering fence?

Truly they imagined to cast me down from mine honour, when I ran in my thirst: * they blessed with their mouth and cursed in their heart.[3]

But wait thou on God, O my soul: * for mine expectation is from Him.

For He only is my God and my salvation: * He is mine helper, I shall not be moved.

In God is my salvation and my glory: * He is the God of my strength, and my refuge is in God.

Trust in Him, ye congregation of the people, pour out your heart before him: * God is our help for ever.[3]

Surely the sons of men are vanity, the sons of men are a lie in the balance: * they are a deceit, altogether lighter than vanity.

Trust not in iniquity, and desire not robbery: * if riches increase, set not your heart upon them.

God hath spoken once, these two things have I heard; that power belongeth unto God: also unto Thee, O Lord, belongeth mercy: * for Thou shalt render to every man according to his works.

Psalm LXIII.

[Intituled "A Psalm of David" with a farther superscription of meaning now uncertain.]

HEAR my voice, O God, in my prayer: * preserve my life from fear of the enemy.

Thou hast hidden me from the secret counsel of the wicked, * from the insurrection of the workers of iniquity.

For they whet their tongue like a sword: * they bend their bow, even bitter words, that they may shoot in secret at the perfect.

Suddenly do they shoot at him and fear not: * they encourage themselves in evil purpose.

They commune of laying snares privily: * they say: Who shall see them?

They search out iniquities: * they accomplish a diligent search.

Man shall attain to thoughts that are very deep: * but God shall [still] be exalted.

The arrows of babes have pierced them: * and their tongues are weakened against them.

All that saw them were moved: * and all men feared,

And declared the work of God, * and understood His doings.

The righteous shall be glad in the LORD, and shall trust in Him: * and all the upright in heart shall glory.

Antiphon. [4] Doth not my soul wait upon God?

Sixth Antiphon. O bless our God.

Psalm LXV.

[Except the words "Psalm or Song" the title of this Psalm is not now certainly understood. The Vulgate and the LXX. add "for the uprising."]

MAKE a joyful noise unto God, all ye lands, sing forth the honour of His name: * make His praise glorious.

Say unto God: How terrible art Thou in Thy works, O Lord! * through the greatness of Thy power shall Thine enemies feign to submit themselves unto Thee.

Let all the earth worship Thee, and sing unto Thee: * let them sing praises to Thy Name.[5]

Come and see the works of God; * He is terrible in His counsels toward the children of men.

He turned the sea into dry land, they went through the flood on foot: * there did we rejoice in Him.

He ruleth by His power for ever, His eyes behold the nations: * let not the rebellious exalt themselves.[5]

O bless our God, ye people: * and make the voice of His praise to be heard.

Who holdeth my soul in life: * and suffereth not my feet to be moved.

For Thou, O God, hast proved us: * Thou hast tried us with fire, as silver is tried.

Thou broughtest us into the net, Thou laidst affliction upon our back: * Thou hast caused men to ride over our heads.

We went through fire and through water: * and Thou broughtest us out into a place of refreshment.

I will go into Thine house with burnt-offerings: * I will pay Thee my vows, which my lips have uttered,

And my mouth hath spoken, * when I was in trouble.

I will offer unto Thee burnt-sacrifices of fatlings, with the incense of rams: * I will offer unto Thee bullocks with goats.[1]

Come, hear, all ye that fear God, and I will declare * what He hath done for my soul.

I cried unto Him with my mouth, * and extolled Him with my tongue.

If I regard iniquity in mine heart, * the Lord will not hear me.

Therefore God hath heard me, * and attended to the voice of my prayer.

Blessed be God, * Who hath not turned away my prayer, nor His mercy from me.

Psalm LXVII.

[The meaning of the title of this Psalm, except the ascription of authorship "To David," is now uncertain.]

LET God arise, and let His enemies be scattered: * let them also that hate Him flee before Him.

As smoke is driven away, so let them be driven away: * as wax melteth before the fire, so let the wicked perish at the presence of God.

But let the righteous be glad, and rejoice before God: * yea, let them exceedingly rejoice.

Sing unto God, sing praises to His name: * spread a path before Him That rideth upon the heavens: The LORD[2] is His name.

Rejoice before Him: * fear shall go before the face of Him That is the Father of the fatherless, and the Judge of the widows:

Even God in His holy habitation: * God, That maketh men to be of one mind in an house.

He bringeth out those which are bound with chains, * but they that provoke Him dwell among the graves.

O God, when Thou wentest forth before Thy people, * when Thou didst march through the wilderness—[3]

The earth shook; the heavens also dropped at the presence of the God of Sinai, * at the presence of the God of Israël.

Thou, O God, didst send a plentiful rain[4] upon Thine inheritance: * Thou didst refresh Thine inheritance when it was weary.

Thy flock dwelt therein: * Thou, O God, didst provide in Thy goodness for the poor.

The Lord gave the word * to the great company that published it.

[5] The king of the hosts is [fallen into the hands] of the Well-beloved: * and the fair ones that tarried at home have divided the spoils.

Though ye have lien among the sheep-folds,[6] yet shall ye be as the wings of a dove, covered with silver, * and her tail-feathers with yellow gold.

When the [God] of heaven had scattered kings in it, then white as with snow was Salmon,[7] * that hill of God, that fruitful hill.

An hill of many peaks, a fruitful hill: * why look ye enviously upon the high hills?

This[8] is the hill which God desireth to dwell in: * yea, the LORD will dwell in it unto the end.

The chariots of God are many times ten thousand, even thousands of the blessed: * the Lord is among them; [as] in Sinai, [so] in the Holy place.

Thou hast ascended on high, Thou hast led captivity captive: * Thou hast received gifts among men,

Even them that believe not * that the LORD God dwelleth among them.

Blessed be the Lord daily: * the God of our salvation maketh our way prosperous.[9]

He That is our God is the God of salvation: * and unto the LORD, even the Lord, belong the issues from death.

But God shall wound the head of His enemies: * the hairy scalp of such an one as goeth on still in his trespasses.

The Lord said: I will bring them again from Bashan[10]: * I will bring them back from the depths of the sea.

That thy foot may be dipped in the blood of thine enemies, * the tongue of thy dogs in the same.

They have seen Thy goings, O

[2] "The LORD" is here, as elsewhere, substituted out of profound reverence for the real name of God, the Unspeakable Word, called the "Tetragrammaton," from its four letters.

[3] SLH.

[4] Perhaps the manna is meant.

[5] It need not be remarked that the sense of this verse is very obscure. In the view of the Greek translators there seems to be a play upon the name of David, which signifies "Beloved."

[6] Perhaps an allusion to an army camping out in the fields.

[7] A mountain in Samaria, near Shechem, where David won great victories over some neighbouring kings. See Ps. lix., p. 63. Gesenius thinks that "white as with snow" is to be understood "white with the bleached bones of the slain." But a modern writer, describing a battle in the Soudan, and the defeat and flight of the Dervishes, says, "they broke, and fled, leaving the field white with jibbah-clad corpses, like a meadow dotted with snow-drifts."

[8] Namely, perhaps, the group of hills on which Jerusalem stands, as opposed to the higher and more picturesque mountains at Shechem.

[9] SLH.

[10] The campaign of David related in 2 Kings (Sam.) viii. and 1 Par. (Chron.) xviii. extended to this neighbourhood.

God, * even the goings of my God, my King, Which dwelleth in the sanctuary.

The singers went before, the players on instruments followed after, * among the damsels playing with timbrels.

Bless ye God in the congregations, even the Lord, * ye that are of the fountains of Israël!

There is little Benjamin, * in the joy of his heart,

The princes of Judah, their leaders, * the princes of Zabulon, the princes of Nephthali.

Command it, O God, in Thy strength: * strengthen, O God, that which Thou hast wrought for us.

Because of thy temple at Jerusalem, * shall kings bring presents unto Thee.

Rebuke the beasts of the reeds,[1] the multitude of the bulls with the cows of the people, * [who watch] that they may cut off them that are tried like silver.[2]

Scatter Thou the people that delight in war: ambassadors shall come out of Egypt: * Ethiopia shall soon stretch out her hands unto God.

Sing unto God, ye kingdoms of the earth: * O sing praises unto the Lord.[3]

O sing praises unto God, even unto Him that rideth upon the heaven of heavens * from the day-spring.

Lo, He shall send out His voice, and that a mighty voice. Ascribe ye strength unto God; * over Israël is His excellency, and His strength is in the clouds.

God is wonderful in His holy places: the God of Israël is He That shall give strength and power unto his people: * blessed be God.

The Lessons are arranged according to the rules in Chapter xxvi. 4, of the general Rubrics. The Hymn "We praise Thee, O God," is said at the end, instead of a Third Responsory. The Responsories are arranged according to the Rules in Chapter xxvii. 4, 5, of the General Rubrics. Thus:—

The Lord's Prayer is said:

OUR Father (inaudibly), Who art in heaven, Hallowed be Thy Name. Thy Kingdom come. Thy will be done on earth, as it is in heaven. Give us this day our daily bread. And forgive us our trespasses, as we forgive them that trespass against us. (Aloud.)

---

[1] Perhaps meaning wild buffaloes. As to the comparison of the enemy to wild cattle, compare Ps. xxi. 13, "Many bulls have compassed me, strong bulls have beset me round."

[2] If the words are to be taken thus, the reference is perhaps to David's veterans, but the meaning seems more likely to be "those that submissively offer in tribute pieces of silver."

[3] SLH.

[4] Ps. lxv. 8.

[5] Ps. lv. 9.

[6] Isa. xxxv. 10.

[7] Ps. xx. 6.

[8] Wisd. v. 16.

[9] Ps. cix. 4.

[10] Ps. xxxvi. 31.

Verse. And lead us not into temptation.

Answer. But deliver us from evil.

Then this Absolution:

MAY the Almighty and merciful Lord loose us from the bonds of our sins.

Answer. Amen.

Then the Reader says:

Sir, be pleased to give the blessing.

First Blessing, if the Lesson be from Scripture.

May His blessing be upon us,
Who doth live and reign for ever.
Answer. Amen.

First Blessing, if the Lesson be of an Homily.

May the Gospel's saving Lord
Bless the reading of His Word.
Answer. Amen.

First Blessing on a Simple Feast.

May His blessing be upon us
Who doth live and reign for ever.
Answer. Amen.

Then is read the First Lesson from Scripture or from the Homily, or on a Simple Feast either the First from Scripture, or, if the Saint or Saints have two Lessons, the whole three from Scripture read together as one.

Then the First Responsory, unless otherwise directed. On a week-day kept as such, this is the First Responsory of the preceding Sunday. On a Simple Feast, the First Responsory in the Common Office for the class to which the Saint belongs.

Then the Reader says:

Sir, be pleased to give the blessing.

Second Blessing, if the Lesson be of Scripture or from an Homily.

God's most mighty strength alway
Be His people's staff and stay.
Answer. Amen.

Second Blessing, for a Simple Feast.

He (or She or They) whose feast-day we are keeping
Plead for us before the Lord.
Answer. Amen.

Then is read the Second Lesson, either from Scripture or from an Homily, or on a Simple Feast either the Second and Third Lessons from Scripture read together as one, or if the Saint or Saints have two Lessons, the first of these.

Then the Second Responsory, unless otherwise directed. On a week-day kept as such, this is the Second Responsory of the preceding Sunday, but in Paschal time there is added to it:

Verse. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, and to the Holy Ghost.

And the Answer of the Responsory is repeated again.

Then the Reader says:

Sir, be pleased to give the blessing.

Then is read the Third Lesson either from Scripture, or of the Homily, or on Simple Feasts the Second or only Lesson of the Saint.

Then, on Simple Feasts and on any day in Paschal time is said the Hymn, "We praise Thee, O God." But on week-days kept as such out of Paschal time the Third Responsory of the preceding Sunday.

Wednesday at Lauds.

THE FOURTH DAY OF THE WEEK.

All as on Sundays, except as otherwise given here.

The Psalms are as follows:

Antiphon. Wash me.

Psalm L.

Have mercy upon me, &c., (p. 49).

Antiphon. Wash me throughly from mine iniquity, O Lord.

Second Antiphon. Praise becometh Thee.

If this Antiphon be used the Psalm begins with the words, "O God, in Zion."

Psalm LXIV.

[Intituled "A Psalm. A Song of David," with a musical (?) superscription. The Vulgate adds that its use was prescribed by Jeremiah and Ezekiel to the exiles when they began to return from the Captivity.]

PRAISE becometh Thee, O God, in Zion: * and unto Thee shall the vow be performed in Jerusalem.

Hear my prayer: * unto Thee shall all flesh come.

Iniquities prevail against us: * but as for our transgressions, Thou shalt purge them away.

Blessed is the man whom Thou choosest, and causest to come near unto Thee: * he shall dwell in Thy courts:

We shall be satisfied with the goodness of Thine house: * Thy temple is holy, terrible in righteousness.

Answer us, O God of our salvation: * Thou that art the confidence of all the ends of the earth, and of the uttermost parts of the sea!

Thou that by Thy strength settest fast the mountains, being girded with power: * Thou that stirrest up the depth of the sea, and the noise of his waves!

The heathen shall be troubled. They that dwell in the uttermost parts shall be afraid at Thy tokens: * Thou makest the outgoings of the morning and evening to rejoice.

Thou visitest the earth and waterest it: * Thou greatly enrichest it:

The river of God is full of water: Thou makest ready their corn, * for Thou hast so prepared it.

Drench her furrows, increase the fruits thereof: * the springing thereof shall rejoice at her showers.

Thou crownest the year with Thy goodness: * and Thy fields teem with fruitfulness.

The green places of the wilderness wax fruitful: * and the little hills are girded with joy.

The pastures are clothed with flocks; the valleys also overflow with corn: * they shout for joy, yea, they sing.

Antiphon. Praise becometh Thee, O God, in Zion.

Third Antiphon. O my God.

Psalms LXII., LXVI.

O God, Thou art my God, &c., (pp. 13, 14).

Antiphon. O my God, my lips shall praise Thee while I live.

Fourth Antiphon. The LORD shall judge.

THE SONG OF HANNAH. (1 Kings (Sam.) ii.)

[Composed by her when she brought her son Samuel and presented him to the LORD. See 1 Kings (Sam.) i. ii., (Monday and Tuesday after Trinity Sunday.)]

MINE heart rejoiceth in the LORD, * and mine horn is exalted in my GOD:[1]

My mouth is enlarged over mine enemies: * because I rejoice in Thy salvation.

There is none holy as the LORD; for there is none beside Thee: * neither is there any mighty like our God.

Talk no more * so exceeding proudly.

Let your old arrogancy depart out of your mouth: for the LORD is a God of knowledge, * and by Him thoughts are judged.

The bows of the mighty men are broken, * and they that stumbled are girded with strength.

They that were full have hired out themselves for bread: * and they that were hungry are filled.

So that the barren hath borne fruitfully: * and she that had many children is waxed feeble.

The LORD killeth, and maketh alive: * He bringeth down to the grave, and bringeth up.

The LORD maketh poor, and maketh rich: * He bringeth low, and lifteth up.

He raiseth up the poor out of the dust, * and lifteth up the beggar from the dunghill,

To set them among princes, * and to make them inherit the throne of glory:

---

[1] The Divine Name.

For the pillars of the earth are the LORD's, * and He hath set the world upon them.

He will keep the feet of His saints, and the wicked shall be silent in darkness: * for by his strength shall no man prevail.

The adversaries of the LORD shall be made to fear Him: * out of heaven also shall He thunder upon them.

The LORD shall judge the ends of the earth: and He shall give strength unto His King, * and exalt the horn of His Anointed.

Antiphon. The LORD shall judge the ends of the earth.

Fifth Antiphon. Praise God.

Psalms CXLVIII., CXLIX., CL.

Praise ye the LORD from the heavens, &c., (p. 15).

Antiphon. Praise God, ye heavens of heavens.

CHAPTER. (Rom. xiii. 12.)

The night is far spent, &c., (as on Monday, p. 50).

HYMN.[1]

HAUNTING gloom and flitting shades,
Ghastly shapes, away!
Christ is rising, and pervades
Highest Heaven with day.

He with His bright spear the night
Dazzles and pursues;
Earth wakes up, and glows with light
Of a thousand hues.

Thee, O Christ, and Thee alone,
With a single mind,
We with chant and plaint would own;
To thy flock be kind.

Much it needs Thy light divine,
Spot and stain to clean;
Light of Angels, on us shine
With Thy face serene.

To the Father, and the Son,
And the Holy Ghost,
Here be glory, as is done
By the angelic host.
Amen.

Verse. Thou hast satisfied us early with Thy mercy.

Answer. We rejoice and are glad.

Antiphon for the Song of Zacharias. O Lord, save us * from the hand of all that hate us.

Commemoration of the Cross before the other Commemorations, and Long Preces in Advent and Lent, on the Ember Wednesdays (except that of Pentecost) and on Fast-days, as on Monday.

[1] Hymn founded on hymn in the Cathemerinon of Prudentius; translation by the late Card. Newman.

Thursday at Mattins.

THE FIFTH DAY OF THE WEEK.

All as on Sunday, except as otherwise given here.

Invitatory. It is the Lord That hath made us: * O come, let us worship Him.

HYMN.[1]

ALL tender lights, all hues divine,
The night has swept away;
Shine on us, Lord, and we shall shine
Bright in an inward day.

The spots of guilt, sin's wages base,
Searcher of hearts, we own;
Wash us and robe us in Thy grace,
Who didst for sins atone.

The sluggard soul, that bears their mark,
Shrinks in its silent lair,
Or gropes amid its chambers dark
For Thee, Who art not there.

Redeemer! send Thy piercing rays,
That we may bear to be
Set in the light of Thy pure gaze,
And yet rejoice in Thee.

Grant this, O Father, Only Son,
And Spirit, God of grace,
To whom all worship shall be done
In every time and place.
Amen.

Only one Nocturn is said.

Antiphon. Make haste.

In Paschal time only one Antiphon is said to the whole Nocturn. Alleluia.

Psalm LXVIII.

[Intituled "Of David," with a (now uncertain) musical (?) direction.]

SAVE me, O God; * for the waters are come in unto my soul.

I sink in deep mire, * where there is no standing.

I am come into the depth of the sea, * and the flood overfloweth me.

I am weary of my crying, my throat is dried: * mine eyes fail, while I wait for my God.

They that hate me without a cause, * are more than the hairs of mine head.

They that would destroy me, being mine enemies wrongfully, are mighty: * then I restored that which I took not away.

O God, Thou knowest my foolishness: * and my faults are not hid from Thee.

Let not them that wait on Thee, O Lord, be ashamed for my sake, * Thou LORD of hosts.

Let not those that seek Thee * be confounded for my sake, O God of Israël.

Because for Thy sake I have borne reproach: * shame hath covered my face.

I am become a stranger unto my brethren, * and an alien unto my mother's children.

For the zeal of Thine house hath eaten me up: * and the reproaches of them that reproached Thee are fallen upon me.

And I chastened my soul with fasting: * and that was to my reproach.

I made sackcloth also my garment, * and I became a proverb to them.

They that sat in the gate spake against me, * and I was the song of the drunkards.

But as for me, my prayer is unto Thee, O LORD: * in an acceptable time, O God!

In the multitude of Thy mercy hear me, * in the truth of Thy salvation!

Deliver me out of the mire, that I sink not: * deliver me from them that hate me, and out of the deep waters.

Let not the waterflood overflow me, neither let the deep swallow me up, * and let not the pit shut her mouth upon me.

Hear me, O LORD, for Thy loving-kindness is good: * turn unto me according to the multitude of Thy tender mercies.

And hide not Thy face from Thy servant, * for I am in trouble; hear me speedily.

Draw nigh unto my soul, and redeem it: * deliver me because of mine enemies.

Thou knowest my reproach, and my shame, * and my dishonour.

Mine adversaries are all before Thee: * mine heart hath looked for reproach and bitterness.

And I looked for some to take pity on me, and there was none: * and for comforters, and I found none.

They gave me also gall for meat: * and in my thirst they gave me vinegar to drink.

Let their table be made a snare before them, * and a recompense, and a stumbling-block.

Let their eyes be darkened, that they see not: * and ever bow Thou down their back.

Pour out Thine indignation upon them, * and let Thy wrathful anger take hold of them.

Let their habitation be desolate: * and let none dwell in their tents.

For they persecute him whom

---

[1] Ambrosian hymn; translation by the late Card. Newman.

Thou hast smitten: * and they embitter the pain of my wounds.

Add iniquity unto their iniquity: * and let them not come into Thy righteousness.

Let them be blotted out of the book of the living: * and not be written with the righteous.

But I am poor and sorrowful: * Thy salvation, O God, hath set me up on high.

I will praise the name of God with a psalm, * and will magnify Him with thanksgiving.

And it shall please God better than a young bullock, * that hath horns and hoofs.

Let the humble see this and be glad, * seek God, and your soul shall live.

For the Lord heareth the poor: * and despiseth not His prisoners.

Let the heaven and earth praise Him, * the sea, and everything that moveth therein.

For God will save Zion, * and the cities of Judah shall be built up.

And they shall dwell there, * and have it in possession.

The seed also of His servants shall inherit it, * and they that love His name shall dwell therein.

Psalm LXIX.

[Intituled "Of David, to bring to remembrance" with another (now uncertain) musical (?) superscription. The Vulgate and the LXX. add to remembrance "how the Lord had saved him"; the Targum associates the Psalm with the offering of the incense. This Psalm is a repetition of the last four verses of Ps. xxxix.]

MAKE haste, O God, to deliver me: * make haste to help me, O Lord.

Let them be ashamed and confounded, * that seek after my soul.

Let them be turned backward and put to confusion, * that desire mine hurt.

Let them be turned back with shame, * that say unto me, Aha, Aha.

Let all those that seek Thee be joyful and glad in Thee, * and let such as love Thy salvation say continually: Let the Lord be magnified.

But I am poor and needy: * help me, O God.

Thou art mine help and my deliverer: * O Lord, make no tarrying.

Antiphon. [1] Make haste, O Lord God, to deliver me.

Second Antiphon. Be Thou my God.

Psalm LXX.

[The Vulgate and the LXX. give the heading, "A Psalm of David; of the Sons of Jonadab, and the first Captives." The sons of Jonadab are the descendants of Jonadab, the son of Rechab, of whose faithfulness to observe a nomadic life, and to abstain from wine, it is written in Jer. xxxv. 19: "Therefore thus saith the Lord of Hosts, the God of Israël: Jonadab, the son of Rechab, shall not want a man to stand before me for ever." They had taken refuge at Jerusalem to escape the incursions of Nebuchadnezzar, and the meaning seems to be that when they and others were carried away as captives, they made special use of this Psalm.]

IN Thee, O Lord, have I put my trust, let me never be put to confusion: * deliver me in Thy righteousness, and cause me to escape.

Incline Thine ear unto me, * and save me.

Be Thou my God, my Protector, and my strong habitation, * to save me.

For Thou art my rock, * and my fortress.

Deliver me, O my God, out of the hand of the wicked, * and out of the hand of the unrighteous and cruel man.

For Thou art mine hope, O Lord: * O Lord, Thou art my trust from my youth.

By Thee have I been holden up from the womb: * Thou art my defence from my mother's bowels.

My praise shall be continually of Thee: * I am a wonder unto many: but Thou art my strong refuge.

Let my mouth be filled with Thy praise, that I may sing of Thy glory, * all the day long of Thy greatness.

Cast me not off in the time of old age: * forsake me not when my strength faileth.

For mine enemies speak against me, * and they that lay wait for my soul take counsel together,

Saying: God hath forsaken him: persecute and take him, * for there is none to deliver him.

O God, be not far from me: * O my God, make haste for mine help.

Let them be confounded and consumed that are adversaries to my soul: * let them be covered with reproach and dishonour, that seek mine hurt.

But I will hope continually, * and will yet praise Thee more and more.

My mouth shall show forth Thy righteousness, * Thy salvation all the day.

And because I know not the tale thereof, I will go in the strength of the Lord: * O Lord, I will make mention of Thy righteousness, even of Thine only.

O God, Thou hast taught me from my youth: * and hitherto have I declared Thy wondrous works.

Now also when I am old and grey-headed, * O God, forsake me not,

Until I have showed Thy strength * unto all generations, that are to come.

Thy power and Thy righteousness, O God, are in the highest, Who hast done great things: * O God, who is like unto Thee?

Thou Who hast showed me great and sore troubles, shalt quicken me again: * and bring me up again from the depths of the earth.

Thou hast increased Thy greatness: * and again comforted me.

I will also praise Thee on the psaltery, even Thy truth: * O God, unto Thee will I sing with the harp, O Thou Holy One of Israël!

My lips shall be fain when I sing unto Thee, * and my soul which Thou hast redeemed.

---

[1] Ps. lxix. 1.

My tongue also shall talk of Thy righteousness all the day long: * for they are confounded and brought unto shame that seek mine hurt.

PSALM LXXI.

[Intituled "Of Solomon," that is, written concerning him.]

GIVE the king Thy judgment, O God, * and Thy righteousness unto the king's son.

To judge Thy people with righteousness, * and Thy poor with judgment.

The mountains shall receive peace with the people, * and the little hills righteousness.

He shall judge the poor of the people, and save the children of the needy, * and shall break in pieces the false accuser.

And he shall endure with the sun, and before the moon, * throughout all generations.

He shall come down like rain upon a fleece, * and as showers that water the earth.

In his days shall righteousness flourish, and abundance of peace, * so long as the moon endureth.

He shall have dominion also from sea to sea: * and from the river unto the ends of the earth.

The Ethiopians shall fall before him: * and his enemies shall lick the dust.

The kings of Tarshish, and of the isles shall bring presents: * the kings of Arabia and Saba[1] shall offer gifts.

Yea, all the kings of the earth shall fall down before him: all nations shall serve him.

For he shall deliver the needy from the strong, * the poor also that hath no helper.

He shall spare the poor and needy, * and shall save the souls of the needy.

He shall redeem their soul from fraud and violence: * and precious shall their name be in his sight.

And he shall live, and to him shall be given of the gold of Arabia; prayer also shall be made for him continually; * all the day long shall he be blessed.

And there shall be a staff of bread in the land, upon the top of the mountains; the fruit thereof shall be higher than Lebanon: * and they of the city shall flourish like grass of the earth.

Blessed be his name for ever: * his name endureth as long as the sun.

And in him shall all the kindreds of the earth be blessed: * all nations shall call him blessed.

Blessed be the Lord God of Israël, * Who only doth wondrous things.

And blessed be His glorious Name for ever: * and let the whole earth be filled with his glory: Amen, Amen.[2]

Antiphon. [3] Be Thou my God, my protector.

Third Antiphon. Thou hast redeemed the rod.

Psalm LXXII.

[Intituled "A Psalm of Asaph."]

TRULY God is good to Israël, * to such as are upright in heart.

But as for me, my feet were almost gone: * my steps had well nigh slipped.

For I was envious at the unrighteous, * when I saw the prosperity of the wicked.

For they have no thought of death: * and they are unconcerned in trial.

They are not in trouble as other men, * neither are they plagued like other men.

Therefore pride compasseth them about, * violence and ungodliness cover them as a garment.

Their iniquity ariseth as it were from fatness: * they have more than heart could wish.

They think and speak wickedness: * they speak loftily concerning oppression.

They set their mouth against the heavens, * and their tongue walketh through the earth.

Therefore my people turn aside after them: * and the men of their day run after them.

And they say: How doth God know, * and is there knowledge in the Most High?

Behold, these are the ungodly, who prosper in the world, * they increase in riches.

And I said: Then I have cleansed mine heart in vain, * and washed mine hands in innocency.

For all the day long have I been plagued, * and chastened every morning.

If I say: I will speak thus: * behold, I should disown the generation of Thy children.

And I thought to know this, * it was too hard for me;

Until I went into the Sanctuary of God, * and understood their hereafter.

Surely Thou dost set them in slippery places: * Thou castest them down even in their prosperity.

How are they brought into desolation? In a moment are they perished, * they are utterly consumed because of their wickedness.

As a dream when one awaketh, O Lord, * Thou shalt bring their image to nought in Thy city.

For mine heart was on fire, and I was pricked in my reins; * and I was brought to nothing and knew not:

I became as a beast before Thee: * nevertheless I am continually with Thee:

Thou hast holden me by my right hand, and guided me according to Thy will, * and received me to glory.

For what have I in heaven, * and what is there upon earth that I desire beside Thee?

My flesh and mine heart faileth;

[1] This seems to be Meroë, a province of Ethiopia.

[2] After this, there is the following notification, "The prayers of David, the son of Jesse, are ended," and this is the end of the second of the five books into which the Psalter is divided.

[3] Ps. lxx. 3.

* Thou art the God of mine heart, and God is my portion for ever.

For, lo, they that go far from Thee shall perish: * Thou hast destroyed all them that go a whoring from Thee.

But it is good for me to draw near to God: * to put my trust in the Lord God,

That I may declare all Thy praises, * in the gates of the daughter of Zion.

Psalm LXXIII.

[Intituled "A didactic (?) Psalm of Asaph."]

O GOD, why hast Thou cast us off for ever: * why doth Thine anger smoke against the sheep of Thy pasture?

Remember Thy congregation, * which Thou hast purchased of old.

Thou hast redeemed the rod of Thine inheritance: * Mount Zion wherein Thou hast dwelt.

Lift up Thine hands against their perpetual pride: * even all that the enemy hath done wickedly in the sanctuary!

They also that hate Thee roar, * in the midst of Thy solemn congregation.

They set up their ensigns for trophies * on the pinnacles [of Thy temple] as though it had been the gate [of their own city]; and considered not!

As the fellers in a wood of thick trees, so did they hew down the gates thereof: * they have broken it down with axes and hammers.

They have set on fire Thy Sanctuary: * they have defiled the dwelling-place of Thy name by casting it down to the ground.

The sort of them said in their hearts with one consent: * Let us put away the feast-days of God out of the land.

We see not our signs, there is no more any prophet: * and none knoweth us any more.

O God, how long shall the adversary reproach? * Shall the enemy blaspheme Thy name for ever?

Why withdrawest Thou Thine hand, even Thy right hand, * from Thy bosom for ever?

But God is our King of old, * working salvation in the midst of the earth.

Thou by Thy strength didst make the sea to stand on an heap: * Thou brakest the heads of the dragons in the waters.

Thou brakest the heads of leviathan in pieces: * Thou gavest him to be meat to the people[1] of Ethiopia.

Thou didst cleave the fountains and the floods: * Thou driedst up the rivers of Ethan.[2]

The day is Thine, the night also is Thine: * Thou hast created the light and the sun.

Thou hast set all the borders of the earth: * Thou hast made summer and spring.

Remember this, that the enemy hath reproached the LORD: * and that a foolish people have blasphemed Thy name.

O deliver not unto beasts the souls of them that praise Thee: * and forget not the souls of Thy poor for ever.

Have respect unto Thy covenant: * for the dark places of the earth are full of the habitations of cruelty.

O let not the oppressed return ashamed: * let the poor and needy praise Thy name.

Arise, O God, judge Thine own cause: * remember how the foolish man reproacheth Thee daily.

Forget not the voice of Thine enemies: * the pride of them that hate Thee ascendeth continually.

Antiphon. [3] Thou hast redeemed the rod of Thine inheritance.

Fourth Antiphon. And we will call.

Psalm LXXIV.

[Intituled "A Psalm—A Song of Asaph," with a superscription of meaning now uncertain, but, in part, indicating the tune "Destroy not." The Targum says that it was composed as a thanksgiving at the time when David said "Destroy not thy people," and the occasion meant is probably that of the plague provoked by David's numbering of the people, as related in the last chapter of 2 Kings (Sam.)]

UNTO Thee, O God, will we give thanks: * we will give thanks and call upon Thy name.

We will declare Thy wondrous works: * when I shall take a set time, I will judge uprightly.

The earth and all the inhabitants thereof are dissolved: * I bear up the pillars of it.[4]

I said unto the wicked: Deal not wickedly: * and to the evil-doers: Lift not up your horn on high.

Lift not up your horn on high: * speak not wickedness against God.

For neither from the east, nor from the west, nor from the desert mountains: * for God is the judge:

He putteth down one, and setteth up another: * for in the hand of the LORD there is a cup of strong wine full of mixture.[5]

And he turneth it this way and that: surely the dregs thereof are not wrung out: * all the wicked of the earth shall drink them.

But I will declare for ever: * I will sing praises to the God of Jacob.

All the horns of the wicked also will I break: * and the horns of the righteous shall be exalted.

Psalm LXXV.

[Intituled "A Psalm—A Song of Asaph," with a farther superscription similar to the preceding. The Vulgate and the LXX. add "against the Assyrians"; the meaning probably is that it was found appropriate as a Psalm of thanksgiving after the destruction of the Assyrians (3 (2) Kings xix. 35).]

IN Judah is God known: * His name is great in Israël.

And His tabernacle is in "Peace,"[6] * and His dwelling-place in Zion.

---

[1] People—probably referring to the wild beasts, (as in Proverbs xxx. 25, 26, "The ants are a people not strong—the conies are but a feeble folk") who ate the dead bodies of the Egyptians (whose power seems meant by the leviathan) washed upon the shores of the Red Sea.

[2] Ethan = continuity—"The continuously flowing streams."

[3] Ps. lxxiii. 2.

[4] SLH.

[5] Aromatic herbs, &c., were mixed with wine to make it more intoxicating. See Smith's Dict. of the Bible,—Wine.

[6] Peace—a translation of "Salem."

There brake He the arrows of the bow, * the shield, the sword, and the battle.[1]

When Thou didst make Thy light to shine forth right wondrously from the everlasting hills: * all they that were foolish of heart were troubled:

They have slept their sleep: * and all the men of riches have found nothing in their hands.

At Thy rebuke, O God of Jacob, * they that rode upon horses are cast into a dead sleep.

Thou art to be feared; and who shall withstand Thee, * when once Thou art angry?

Thou didst cause judgment to be heard from heaven: * the earth trembled and was still,

When God arose to judgment, * to save all the meek of the earth.[1]

For the thoughts of man shall praise Thee: * the remainder of his thoughts shall keep holy his days before Thee.

Vow, and pay unto the LORD your God: * all ye that are round about Him bring presents,

Even unto Him That ought to be feared, and that cutteth off the spirit of princes, * to Him That is terrible among the kings of the earth.

Antiphon. [2] And we will call upon Thy name, O Lord.

Fifth Antiphon. Thou art the God.

Psalm LXXVI.

[Intituled "A Psalm of Asaph," with a musical (?) direction, addressed to Jeduthun.]

I CRIED unto the Lord with my voice; * even unto God with my voice, and He gave ear unto me.

In the day of my trouble I sought the Lord; in the night with my hands I sought Him * and failed not.

My soul refused to be comforted: * I remembered God, and rejoiced, and pondered, and my spirit was overwhelmed.[3]

Mine eyes anticipated the night watches: * I was troubled, and spake not.

I have considered the days of old, * and had in mind the everlasting years.

In the night also I commune with mine own heart: * and I mused, and searched out mine own spirit.

Will God cast off for ever? * or will He be favourable no more?

Or will He put away His mercy for ever, * to generation and generation?

Or hath God forgotten to be gracious? * or will He in His anger shut up His tender mercies?[4]

And I said: Now have I begun: * the change cometh of the right hand of the Most High.

I remembered the works of the LORD: * surely I will remember Thy wonders of old.

I will meditate also of all Thy work: * and talk of Thy doings.

Thy way, O God, is in the sanctuary. Who is so great a God as our God? * Thou art the God That doest wonders.

Thou hast declared Thy strength among the people: * Thou hast with Thine arm redeemed Thy people, the sons of Jacob and Joseph.[4]

The waters saw Thee, O God, the waters saw Thee: * and they were afraid, the depths also were troubled.

There was a noise as of many waters, * the clouds sent out a sound.

Thine arrows also went abroad: * the voice of Thy thunder rolled.

Thy lightnings lightened the world: * the earth trembled and shook.

Thy way is in the sea, and Thy paths in the great waters: * and Thy footsteps are not known.

Thou leddest Thy people like a flock, * by the hand of Moses and Aaron.

Psalm LXXVII.

[Intituled "A didactic (?) poem of Asaph."]

GIVE ear, O my people, to my law: * incline your ears to the words of my mouth.

I will open my mouth in parables: * I will utter dark sayings of old.

Which we have heard and known, * and our fathers have told us.

They are not hidden from their children, * in the generation to come:

Showing the praises of the LORD, and His mighty acts, * and His wonderful works that He hath done.

He established also a testimony in Jacob, * and appointed a law in Israël.

Which He commanded our fathers that they should make known to their children: * that the generation to come may know them,

Even the children which shall be born and arise, * and declare them to their children;

That they may set their hope in God, and not forget the works of God, * but keep His commandments.

And may not be as their fathers, * a stubborn and rebellious generation,

A generation that set not their heart aright, * and whose spirit was not steadfast with God.

[5] The children of Ephraim bending and shooting with bows, * turned back in the day of battle.

They kept not the covenant of God, * and refused to walk in His law.

And forgot His works, * and His wonders that He had showed them.

Marvellous things did He in the sight of their fathers, in the land of Egypt, * in the plain of Tanis.[6]

He divided the sea, and caused them to pass through, * and He made the waters to stand as an heap.

[1] SLH. [2] Ps. lxxiv. 2. [3] SLH.

[4] SLH.

[5] The next few verses perhaps relate to the refusal of the children of Israël to invade the Land of Promise when they first reached it, owing to fear of the inhabitants. Numb. xiv.

[6] An ancient city (mentioned here and subsequently) in Lower Egypt, called both by a Shemitic name, Zoan, as well as by its Egyptian name, surrounded by plains, and close to the natural and constant border of Palestine.

In the day-time also He led them with a cloud, * and all the night with a light of fire.

He clave the rock in the wilderness, * and gave them drink as out of the great depth.

He brought water also out of the rock, * and caused waters to run down like rivers.

And they sinned yet more against Him, * and provoked the Most High in the wilderness.

And they tempted God in their hearts, * to ask meat for their lust.

Yea, they spake against God: * they said: Can God furnish a table in the wilderness?

Behold, He smote the rock, and the waters gushed out, * and the streams overflowed.

Can He give bread also, * or furnish a table for His people?

Therefore the Lord heard this, and was wroth: * so a fire was kindled against Jacob, and anger came up against Israël.

Because they believed not in God, * and trusted not in His salvation.

And He commanded the clouds from above, * and opened the doors of heaven.

And rained down manna upon them to eat, * and gave them of the bread of heaven.

Man did eat Angels' bread: * He sent them meat to the full.

He caused an east wind to blow in the heaven: * and by His power He brought in the south wind.

He rained flesh also upon them as dust, * and feathered fowls like as the sand of the sea.

And it fell in the midst of their camp, * round about their habitations.

So they did eat, and were well filled, and He gave them their own desire: * they were not disappointed of their lust.

But while their meat was yet in their mouths: * the wrath of God came upon them,

And slew the fattest of them, * and smote down the chosen men of Israël.

For all this they sinned still, * and believed not in His wondrous works.

Therefore their days were consumed in vanity, * and their years in trouble.

When He slew them, they sought Him: * and they returned, and enquired early after God.

And they remembered that God was their strength, * and the High God their redeemer.

Yet they flattered Him with their mouth, * and lied unto Him with their tongue.

For their heart was not right with Him, * neither were they steadfast in His covenant.

But He being full of compassion, forgave their iniquity, * and destroyed them not.

Yea, many a time did He turn His anger away, * and did not stir up all His wrath.

He remembered also that they were but flesh; * a wind that passeth away and cometh not again.

How often did they provoke Him in the wilderness? * grieve Him to anger in the desert?

Yea, they turned again, and tempted God, * and provoked the Holy One of Israël.

They remembered not His hand, * in the day when He delivered them from the hand of the oppressor.

How He set His signs in Egypt, * and His wonders in the plain of Tanis.

And turned their rivers into blood: * and their floods, that they could not drink.

He sent divers sorts of flies among them, which devoured them: * and frogs, which destroyed them.

He gave also their increase unto the caterpillar, * and their labour unto the locust.

And He destroyed their vines with hail, * and their sycamore trees with frost.

He gave up their cattle also to the hail, * and their flocks to hot thunderbolts.

He cast upon them the fierceness of His anger, * indignation, and wrath, and trouble, by sending evil Angels among them.

He made a way to His anger; He spared not their soul from death, * and cut off their cattle in death with them.

He smote also every first-born in the land of Egypt: * the first-fruits of all their labour in the tabernacles of Ham.

And made His own people to go forth like sheep: * and guided them in the wilderness like a flock.

And He led them on in hope, and they feared not: * and He overwhelmed their enemies in the sea.

And He brought them to the mountain of His Sanctuary, * even the mountain, which His right hand hath purchased.

He cast out the heathen also before them, * and allotted the land among them by line,

And made the tribes of Israël to dwell * in their tents.

Yet they tempted and provoked the Most High God, * and kept not His testimonies.

And turned back, and observed not His covenant, * like their fathers; they were turned aside like a deceitful bow.

They provoked Him to anger with their high places, * and moved Him to jealousy with their graven images.

God heard it and cast them out: * and brought Israël utterly to nought.

He forsook also the tabernacle of Shiloh, * even His tabernacle, where He dwelt among men.

And He delivered their strength into captivity, * and their beauty into the enemy's hand.

He gave His people over also unto the sword: * and cast off His inheritance.

The fire consumed their young men: * and their maidens made no funeral song.

Their priests fell by the sword: * and their widows made no lamentation.

Then the Lord awaked as one out of sleep, * like a mighty man heated with wine.

And He smote His enemies in the hinder part: * He put them to a perpetual shame.

Moreover, He refused the tabernacle of Joseph, * and chose not the tribe of Ephraim.

But chose the tribe of Judah, * Mount Zion, which he loved.

And He built His sanctuary like the horn of an unicorn upon the earth, * which He hath established for ever.

He chose David also His servant, and took him from the sheepfolds: * from following the ewes great with young He brought him,

To feed Jacob His servant, * and Israël His inheritance.

So he fed them according to the integrity of his heart: * and guided them by the skilfulness of his hands.

Antiphon. [1] Thou art the God That dost wonders.

Sixth Antiphon. Be merciful.

Psalm LXXVIII.

[Intituled "A Psalm of Asaph."]

O GOD, the heathen are come into Thine inheritance, Thine holy temple have they defiled: * they have made Jerusalem like an heap of stones in an orchard.

The dead bodies of Thy servants have they given to be meat unto the fowls of the heaven, * the flesh of Thy saints unto the beasts of the earth.

Their blood have they shed like water round about Jerusalem: * and there was none to bury them.

We are become a reproach to our neighbours, * a scorn and derision to them that are round about us.

How long, Lord? wilt Thou be angry for ever? * shall Thy jealousy burn like fire?

Pour out Thy wrath upon the heathen, that have not known Thee, * and upon the kingdoms that have not called upon Thy name!

For they have devoured Jacob, * and laid waste His dwelling-place.

O remember not against us our former iniquities, let Thy tender mercies speedily overtake us: * for we are brought very low.

Help us, O God of our salvation, and for the glory of Thy name deliver us, O Lord: * and forgive our sins, for Thy name's sake.

Lest haply they should say among the heathen: Where is their God? * And make known among the nations in our sight

The vengeance of the blood of Thy servants, which is shed: * let the sighing of the prisoners come before Thee.

According to the greatness of Thine arm, * preserve Thou the children of the slain.

And render unto our neighbours sevenfold into their bosom: * their reproach wherewith they have reproached Thee, O Lord!

But we Thy people, and sheep of Thy pasture, * will give Thee thanks for ever:

We will show forth Thy praise * to all generations.

Psalm LXXIX.

[Intituled "A Psalm of Asaph," with a direction, perhaps musical, the meaning of which is not now certain. The LXX. adds "concerning the Assyrian," probably meaning that it was used as a prayer after the destruction of Jerusalem by Nebuchadnezzar.]

GIVE ear, O Shepherd of Israël, * Thou That leadest Joseph like a flock.

Thou That sittest upon the Cherubim, * shine forth before Ephraim, Benjamin, and Manasseh.

Stir up Thy strength, and come * and save us.

Turn us again, O God, * and cause Thy face to shine, and we shall be saved.

O Lord God of hosts, * how long wilt Thou be angry against the prayer of Thy servant?

Wilt Thou feed us with the bread of tears, * and give us tears to drink in great measure?

Thou makest us a strife unto our neighbours: * and our enemies jest upon us.

Turn us again, O God of hosts: * and cause Thy face to shine, and we shall be saved.

Thou has brought a vine out of Egypt: * Thou hast cast out the heathen and planted it.

Thou preparedst room before it: * Thou didst cause it to take deep root, and it filled the land.

The hills were covered with the shadow of it, * and the cedars of God with the boughs thereof.

She sent out her boughs unto the sea, * and her branches unto the river.[2]

Why hast Thou broken down her hedge? * so that all they which pass by the way do pluck her?

The boar out of the wood doth root it up, * and the wild beast of the field doth devour it.

Return, O God of hosts: * look down from heaven, and behold, and visit this vine;

And protect that Thy right hand hath planted, * and the son of man whom Thou madest strong for Thyself.

It is burnt with fire, and cut down: * they shall perish at the rebuke of Thy countenance.

Let Thine hand be upon the man of Thy right hand, * and upon the son of man whom Thou madest strong for Thyself.

So will we not go back from Thee; * quicken us, and we will call upon Thy name.

Turn us again, O Lord God of hosts: * and cause Thy face to shine, and we shall be saved.

[1] Ps. lxx. 23.

Thursday at Lauds.

THE FIFTH DAY OF THE WEEK.

All as on Sunday, except as otherwise given here.

The Psalms are as follows:

Antiphon. Against Thee, Thee only.

Psalm L.

Have mercy upon me, &c., (p. 49).

Antiphon. Against Thee, Thee only, have I sinned, have mercy upon me, O Lord!

Second Antiphon. Lord.

If this Antiphon be used, the Psalm begins with the words, "Thou hast been."

Psalm LXXXIX.

[Intituled "A Prayer of Moses the man of God."]

LORD, Thou hast been our refuge * in all generations.

Before the mountains were brought forth, or ever the earth and the world were formed, * even from everlasting to everlasting, Thou art God.

Turn not man to destruction; * for Thou sayest, Return, ye children of men.

For a thousand years in Thy sight * are but as yesterday when it is past,

And their years shall be reckoned as nothing, * even as a watch in the night.

In the morning they are like grass which soon fadeth away: in the morning it flourisheth, and then it fadeth away: * in the evening it is cut down, drieth up, and withereth.

For we are consumed by Thine anger: * and by Thy wrath are we troubled.

Thou hast set our iniquities before Thee, * our life in the light of Thy countenance.

For all our days are passed away, * and we are consumed by Thine anger.

The works whereon we toil all our years are but frail structures like a spider's web: * the days of our years are threescore years and ten:

And if by reason of strength they be fourscore years, * yet is their increase but labour and sorrow:

For weakness cometh, * and we are cut off.

Who knoweth the power of Thine anger, * or can measure Thy wrath, that he may fear Thee as Thou oughtest to be feared?

Show Thou the might of Thy right hand; * and apply our hearts to wisdom.

Return, O LORD, how long? * and let it intreat Thee concerning Thy servants.

Thou hast satisfied us early with Thy mercy, * and we rejoice and are glad all our days.

We are gladdened for the days wherein Thou hast afflicted us; * for the years wherein we have seen evil.

Look upon Thy servants, and upon Thy works, * and establish their children.

And let the beauty of the LORD our God be upon us; and establish Thou the work of our hands upon us: * yea, the work of our hands establish Thou it.

Antiphon. Lord, Thou hast been our refuge.

Third Antiphon. I meditate.

Psalms LXII., LXVI.

O God, Thou art my God, &c., (pp. 13, 14).

Antiphon. I meditate upon Thee in the night watches.

Fourth Antiphon. Let us sing.

If this Antiphon be used the Canticle begins with the words, "Unto the LORD."

THE SONG OF MOSES (Exod. xv.)

[On the occasion of the successful escape of the Israëlites through the Red Sea.]

LET us sing unto the LORD, for He hath triumphed gloriously: * the horse and his rider hath He thrown into the sea.

The LORD is my strength and my song, * and He is become my salvation:

He is my God, and I will glorify Him: * my father's God, and I will exalt Him.

The LORD is like a man of war: "THE ALMIGHTY"[1] is His name. * Pharaoh's chariots and his host hath He cast into the sea.

His chosen captains are drowned in the Red Sea. * The depths have covered them: they sank into the bottom as a stone.

Thy right hand, O LORD, is become glorious in power: Thy right hand, O LORD, hath shattered the enemy. * And in the greatness of Thy majesty Thou hast overthrown them that rose up against Thee.

Thou sentest forth Thy wrath,

---

[1] But in the present Hebrew text, here stands again the Divine name.

which consumed them as stubble. * And with the blast of Thy fury the waters were gathered together,

The floods stood upright, * and the depths were congealed in the heart of the sea.

The enemy said: I will pursue and overtake, * I will divide the spoil; my soul shall be sated upon them:

I will draw my sword, * mine hand shall destroy them.

Thy wind blew, and the sea covered them; * they sank as lead in the mighty waters.

Who is like unto Thee, O LORD, among the mighty? * who is like unto Thee, glorious in holiness, terrible, and worthy to be praised, doing wonders?

Thou stretchedst out Thy right hand, and the earth swallowed them. * Thou in Thy mercy hast led forth the people which Thou hast redeemed:

And hast borne them in Thy strength, * unto Thine holy habitation.

The people came up and were angry: * sorrow took hold on the inhabitants of Philistia.

Then the princes of Edom were amazed, the mighty men of Moab, trembling took hold upon them: * all the inhabitants of Chanaan melted away.

Let fear and dread fall upon them, * by the greatness of Thine arm:

Let them be as still as a stone: till Thy people pass over, O LORD, * till Thy people pass over, which Thou hast purchased.

Thou shalt bring them in and plant them in the mountain of Thine inheritance, * in Thy most sure dwelling, which Thou hast made, O LORD:

In the Sanctuary, O Lord, which Thine hands have established. * The LORD shall reign for ever and ever.

For the horse of Pharaoh went in with his chariots and with his horsemen into the sea, * and the LORD brought again the waters of the sea upon them:

But the children of Israël went on dry land * in the midst of the sea.

Antiphon. Let us sing gloriously unto the LORD.

Fifth Antiphon. Praise God.

Psalms CXLVIII., CXLIX., CL.

Praise ye the LORD, &c., (p. 15).

Antiphon. Praise God in His Sanctuary.

CHAPTER. (Rom. xiii. 12.)

The night is far spent, &c., (as on Monday, p. 50).

HYMN.[1]

SEE, the golden dawn is glowing,
While the paly shades are going,
Which have led us far and long,
In a labyrinth of wrong.

May it bring us peace serene;
May it cleanse, as it is clean;
Plain and clear our words be spoke,
And our thoughts without a cloak;

So the day's account shall stand,
Guileless tongue and holy hand,
Steadfast eyes and unbeguiled,
"Flesh as of a little child."

There is One Who from above
Watches how the still hours move
Of our day of service done,
From the dawn to setting sun.

To the Father, and the Son,
And the Spirit, Three and One,
As of old, and as in Heaven,
Now and here be glory given.
Amen.

Verse. Thou hast satisfied us early with Thy mercy.

Answer. We rejoice and are glad.

Antiphon for the Song of Zacharias. Let us serve the Lord * in holiness, and He will deliver us from our enemies.

Commemoration of the Cross before the other Commemorations, and Long Preces in Advent and Lent, and on Fast-days, as on Monday.

[1] Extracted from hymn by Prudentius; translation by the late Card. Newman.

Friday at Mattins.

THE SIXTH DAY OF THE WEEK.

All as on Sunday, except as otherwise given here.

Invitatory. Let us worship the Lord, for * He is our Maker.

Hymn.[1]

MAY the dread Three in One, Who sways
All with His sovereign might,
Accept from us this hymn of praise,
His watchers in the night.

For in the night, when all is still,
We spurn our bed and rise,
To find the balm for ghostly ill,
His bounteous hand supplies.

If e'er by night our envious foe
With guilt our souls would stain,
May the deep streams of mercy flow,
And make us white again;

That so with bodies braced and bright,
And hearts awake within,
All fresh and keen may burn our light,
Undimmed, unsoiled by sin.

Shine on Thine own, Redeemer sweet!
Thy radiance increate
Through the long day shall keep our feet,
In their pure morning state.

Grant this, O Father, Only Son,
And Spirit, God of grace,
To whom all worship shall be done
In every time and place.
Amen.

Only one Nocturn is said.

Antiphon. Sing aloud.

If this Antiphon be used the Psalm begins with the words, "Unto God our strength."

In Paschal time only one Antiphon is said for the whole Nocturn. Alleluia.

Psalm LXXX.

[Intituled "Of Asaph." It has a superscription of meaning now uncertain, but part of which perhaps means that it was a Hymn for the vintage.]

SING aloud unto God our strength: * make a joyful noise unto the God of Jacob.

Take a psalm, and bring hither the timbrel: * the pleasant harp with the psaltery.

Blow the trumpet in the new moon,[2] * in the time appointed, on our solemn feast-day.

For this is a statute for Israël: * and a law of the God of Jacob.

This He ordained in Joseph for a testimony, when he went out of the land of Egypt: * he heard a language that he understood not.

He removed his shoulder from the burden, * his hands were done with slaving over the baskets.

Thou calledst upon Me in trouble, and I delivered thee: * I answered thee in the secret place of thunder: I proved thee at the waters of strife.[3]

Hear, O My people, and I will testify unto thee: * O Israël, if thou wilt hearken unto Me, there shall no strange god be in thee, neither shalt thou worship any strange god.

For I am the Lord thy God, Who brought thee out of the land of Egypt: * open thy mouth wide and I will fill it.

But My people would not hearken unto My voice: * and Israël would not obey Me:

So I gave them up unto their own hearts' lust: * they walked in their own counsels.

O that My people had hearkened unto Me, * that Israël had walked in My ways!

I should quickly have brought their enemies under them, * and turned Mine hand against their adversaries.

The haters of the Lord would have feigned submission unto Him: * but their time should have endured for ever.

He would have fed them also with the finest of the wheat: * and with honey out of the rock would He have satisfied them.

Psalm LXXXI.

[Intituled "A Psalm of Asaph."]

GOD standeth in the congregation of the mighty: * He judgeth among the judges.

How long do ye judge unjustly, * and accept the person of the wicked?[4]

Defend the poor and fatherless: * do justice to the afflicted and needy.

Deliver the poor, * and rid the needy out of the hand of the wicked.

[1] From a hymn of the Ambrosian school, very slightly altered; translation by the late Card. Newman.

[2] The ordinance referred to in this and the next verses is found in Numb. x. "And the Lord spake unto Moses, saying: Make thee two trumpets of silver, of a whole piece shalt thou make them. . . . And in the day of your gladness, and in your solemn days, and in the beginnings of your months, ye shall blow with the trumpets over your burnt-offerings, and over the sacrifices of your peace-offerings; that they may be to you for a memorial before God. I am the Lord your God."

[4] SLH.

They know not, neither do they understand, they walk on in darkness: * all the foundations of the earth are out of course.

[1] I have said: Ye are gods, * and all of you are children of the Most High;

But ye shall die like men: * and fall like one of the princes.

Arise, O God, judge the earth: * for Thou shalt inherit all nations.

Antiphon. [2] Sing aloud unto God our strength.

Second Antiphon. Thou alone.

Psalm LXXXII.

[Intituled "A Song. A Psalm of Asaph."]

O GOD, who shall be likened unto Thee? * hold not Thy peace, and be not still, O God.

For, lo, Thine enemies make a tumult: * and they that hate Thee have lifted up the head.

They have taken crafty counsel against Thy people, * and consulted against Thine holy ones.

They have said: Come and let us cut them off from being a nation: * that the name of Israël may be no more in remembrance.

For they have consulted together with one consent: * they are confederate against Thee: the tabernacles of Edom,[3] and the Ishmaelites.

Of Moab, and the Hagarenes; Gebal, and Ammon, Amalek, * the "Strangers" with the inhabitants of Tyre.

Assur also is joined with them: * they have holpen the children of Lot.[4]

Do unto them as unto Midian,[5] and Sisera: * as unto Jabin, at the brook of Kishon.

They perished at Endor: * they became as dung for the earth.

Make their nobles like Oreb and like Zeeb; * as Zebah and Zalmunna,

All their princes: * who said: Let us take to ourselves the Sanctuary of God in possession.

O my God, make them like a wheel [of whirling dust]; * and as the stubble before the wind!

As the fire that burneth a wood, * and as the flame that setteth the mountains on fire.

So pursue them with Thy tempest, * and trouble them in Thine anger.

Fill their faces with shame: * and they will seek Thy Name, O LORD!

Let them be confounded and troubled for ever: * yea, let them be put to shame and perish.

And let men know that Thy name is the LORD: * Thou alone art the Most High over all the earth.

Psalm LXXXIII.

[Intituled "A Psalm of the sons of Korah." It has the same superscription as Ps. lxx., referring possibly to the vintage. It reads as if it were a pilgrim-song referring to the going up of all the males of Israël to Jerusalem to observe the Feast of Tabernacles, when harvest and vintage were over.]

HOW lovely are Thy tabernacles, O LORD of hosts! * my soul longeth and fainteth for the courts of the LORD:

Mine heart and my flesh * rejoice for the living God.

Yea, the sparrow hath found an house, * and the dove a nest for herself, where she may lay her young,

Even Thine altars, O LORD of hosts, * my King and my God!

Blessed are they that dwell in Thine house, O Lord; * they will be ever praising Thee.[6]

Blessed is the man whose strength is from Thee; * who hath settled in his heart to go up [to thy Sanctuary,] through the vale of tears,[7] to the place which he hath appointed.

He That hath given the Law will give His blessing; they shall go from strength to strength: * they appear before the God of gods in Zion.

O LORD God of hosts, hear my prayer: * give ear, O God of Jacob![8]

Behold, O God, our shield: * and look upon the face of Thine Anointed.

For a day in Thy courts is better * than a thousand.

I had rather be a menial in the house of my God, * than to dwell in the tents of wickedness.

For God loveth mercy and truth: * the LORD will give grace and glory.

No good thing will He withhold from them that walk uprightly. * O LORD of hosts, blessed is the man that trusteth in Thee!

Antiphon. [9] Thou alone art the Most High over all the earth.

Third Antiphon. LORD.

If this Antiphon be used the Psalm begins with the words "Thou hast been favourable."

Psalm LXXXIV.

[Intituled "A Psalm of the sons of Korah," with the usual (now uncertain) superscription.]

LORD, Thou hast been favourable unto Thy land: * Thou hast brought back the captivity of Jacob.

[2] Ps. lxxx. 2.

[3] Of the list of tribes in the next few verses, the Ishmaelites are the inhabitants of Edom; Moab, and the Hagarenes, Gebal, Ammon, Amalek, tribes to the south and south-east of Canaan; the "Strangers" are the Philistines; Assur is Assyria; the children of Lot are the Moabites and Ammonites.

[5] The Midianites invaded Israël during the Judgeship of Gideon, who defeated them. Barak had previously, by a great victory between the Kishon and Endor, delivered his people from the tyranny of Jabin king of the Canaanites, whose general, Sisera, lost his life on the occasion. Oreb and Zeeb were two princes, and Zebah and Zalmunna two kings of the Midianites, whom the Israëlites took prisoners and put to death on the second occasion. See Judges iv.–viii.

[9] Ps. lxxxii. 19.

Thou hast forgiven the iniquity of Thy people: * Thou hast covered all their sins.[1]

Thou hast taken away all Thy wrath: * Thou hast turned Thyself from the fierceness of Thine anger.

Turn us, O God of our salvation, * and cause Thine anger towards us to cease.

Wilt Thou be angry with us for ever? * wilt Thou draw out Thine anger to all generations?

O God, Thou shalt again quicken us: * and Thy people shall rejoice in Thee.

Show us Thy mercy, O LORD! * and grant us Thy salvation.

I will hear what the LORD God will speak in me: * for He will speak peace unto His people,

And to His saints, * and unto them that are changed in heart.

Surely His salvation is nigh them that fear Him, * that glory may dwell in our land.

Mercy and truth have met together: * righteousness and peace have kissed each other.

Truth hath sprung out of the earth: * and righteousness hath looked down from heaven.

Yea, the LORD shall give that which is good: * and our land shall yield her increase.

Righteousness shall go before Him: * and shall set His footsteps in the way.

Psalm LXXXV.

[Intituled "A Prayer of David."]

BOW down Thine ear, O LORD, and hear me: * for I am poor and needy.

Preserve my soul, for I am holy: * O Thou my God, save Thy servant that trusteth in Thee.

Be merciful unto me, O Lord, for I cry unto Thee all the day long: * rejoice the soul of Thy servant, for unto Thee, O Lord, do I lift up my soul.

For Thou, Lord, art good and ready to forgive, * and plenteous in mercy to all them that call upon Thee.

Give ear, O LORD, unto my prayer: * and attend to the voice of my supplication.

In the day of my trouble I called upon Thee, * for Thou hast heard me.

Among the gods there is none like unto Thee, O Lord: * neither are there any works like unto Thy works.

All nations whom Thou hast made shall come and worship before Thee, O Lord: * and shall glorify Thy name.

For Thou art great and doest wondrous things: * Thou art God alone.

Teach me Thy way, O LORD, and I will walk in Thy truth: * let mine heart be glad, that it may fear Thy name.

I will praise Thee, O Lord my God, with all mine heart, * and I will glorify Thy name for evermore.

For great is Thy mercy toward me: * and Thou hast delivered my soul from the lowest hell.

O God, the wicked are risen against me, and the assemblies of violent men have sought after my soul, * and have not set Thee before them.

But Thou, O Lord, art a God full of compassion and gracious, * longsuffering, and plenteous in mercy and truth.

O look upon me, and have mercy upon me: * give Thy strength unto Thy servant, and save the son of Thine handmaid!

Show me a token for good, that they which hate me may see it and be ashamed: * because Thou, O LORD, hast holpen me, and comforted me.

Antiphon. [2] LORD, Thou hast been favourable unto Thy land.

Fourth Antiphon. Her foundation.

If this Antiphon be used the Psalm begins with the words, "Is in the holy mountains."

Psalm LXXXVI.

[Intituled "A Psalm. A Song of the sons of Korah." The Targum adds that it was based upon words of the ancients, perhaps meaning that the two first verses before the SLH were an ancient saying to which the rest was a later addition.]

HER foundation is in the holy mountains: * the LORD loveth the gates of Zion more than all the dwellings of Jacob!

Glorious things are spoken of thee, * O city of God![3]

I will make mention of Rahab[4] and Babylon * that know me.

Behold the "Strangers,"[5] and Tyre, and the people of Ethiopia, * these were there—

And of Zion shall it not be said: This and that man was born in her, * and the Highest Himself hath established her?[6]

The LORD shall make count, when He writeth up the people [and the princes,][7] * of all that are in her.[3]

All they that dwell in thee * are in gladness.

Psalm LXXXVII.

[This Psalm has a long superscription, in which its authorship is attributed to Heman the Ezrahite, one of five brothers, descendants of Zarah, the son of Judah. Four of them were celebrated for wisdom. 3 (1) Kings iv. 31. This Psalm was written for the sons of Korah, and intended to be sung with an accompaniment of pipes and flutes.]

O LORD God of my salvation, * I have cried day and night before Thee.

Like the pierced that lie in the grave, whom Thou rememberest no more: * and they are cast off from Thine hand.

They have laid me in the lowest pit, * in darkness and in the shadow of death.

Thy wrath lieth hard upon me, * and Thou hast afflicted me with all Thy waves.[1]

Thou hast put away mine acquaintance far from me: * they have made me an abomination unto them.

I am shut up, and cannot come forth: * mine eyes fail by reason of affliction.

Lord, I have called daily upon Thee: * I have stretched out my hands unto Thee!

Wilt Thou show wonders to the dead? * or can physicians quicken them, so that they may praise Thee?[1]

Shall Thy loving-kindness be declared in the grave, * and Thy faithfulness in destruction?

Shall Thy wonders be known in the dark, * and Thy righteousness in the land of forgetfulness?

But unto Thee have I cried, O Lord: * and in the morning shall my prayer come before Thee.

Lord, why castest Thou off my prayer, * why hidest Thou Thy face from me?

I am afflicted, and in toil from my youth up: * and when I was lifted up, then was I brought down and troubled:

Thy fierce wrath goeth over me, * and Thy terrors have troubled me.

Fifth Antiphon. Blessed.

Psalm LXXXVIII.

[Intituled "A didactic (?) Poem of Ethan the Ezrahite." This Ethan was a brother of the author of the last Psalm.]

I WILL sing of the mercies * of the Lord for ever.

With my mouth will I make known Thy faithfulness * to all generations.

For Thou hast said: Mercy shall be built up for ever in the heavens: * Thy faithfulness shall be established in them.

I have made a covenant with My chosen, I have sworn unto David My servant: * thy seed will I establish for ever.

And build up thy throne * to all generations.[3]

And the heavens shall praise Thy wonders, O Lord; * Thy faithfulness also in the congregation of the Saints—

For who in heaven can be compared unto the Lord? * Who among the sons of God can be likened unto God?

God, Which is glorious in the assembly of the saints, * great and terrible to all them that are about Him.

O Lord God of hosts, who is like unto Thee? * Thou art strong, O Lord, and Thy faithfulness is round about Thee!

Thou rulest the raging of the sea: * when the waves thereof arise Thou stillest them.

Thou hast broken the "Insolent" one,[4] as one that is slain: * Thou hast scattered Thine enemies with Thy strong arm.

The heavens are Thine, the earth also is Thine, as for the world and the fulness thereof Thou hast founded them: * the North and the South Thou hast created them:

[5] Tabor and Hermon shall rejoice in Thy name. * Thou hast a mighty arm.

Strong is Thine hand, and high Thy right hand: * justice and judgment are the foundations of Thy throne.

Mercy and truth shall go before Thy face. * Blessed is the people that know the joyful sound!

They shall walk, O Lord, in the light of Thy countenance, and in Thy name shall they rejoice all the day: * in Thy righteousness also shall they be exalted.

For thou art the glory of their strength: * and in Thy favour our horn shall be exalted.

For of the Lord is our defence, * and of the Holy One of Israël is our King.

Then Thou spakest in vision to Thine holy ones, and saidst: * I have laid help upon one that is mighty, and have exalted one chosen out of My people.

I have found David My servant: * with Mine holy oil have I anointed him.

For Mine hand shall help him: * Mine arm also shall strengthen him.

The enemy shall prevail nothing against him: * nor the son of wickedness afflict him.

And I will beat down his foes before his face, * and put them that hate him to flight.

And My truth and My mercy shall be with him: * and in My Name shall his horn be exalted.

I will set his hand also in the sea, * and his right hand in the rivers.[6]

He shall cry unto me: Thou art my Father, * my God, and the rock of my salvation.

[7] Also I will make him My first-born, * higher than the kings of the earth.

My mercy will I keep for him for evermore, * and My covenant shall stand fast with him.

[5] Two prominent mountains in the North of Syria.

[6] That is;—"I will make his power to be bounded on the West by the Mediterranean, and on the East by the Tigris and Euphrates."

[7] The next verses are a sort of quotation of the Divine message given by Nathan to David. 2 Kings (Sam.) vii. 14-16.

His seed also will I make to endure for ever, * and his throne as the days of heaven.

But if his children forsake My law, * and walk not in My judgments,—

If they break My statutes, * and keep not My commandments,

Then I will visit their transgressions with the rod, * and their iniquity with stripes.

Nevertheless My loving-kindness will I not utterly take from him, * nor fail in My truth.

My covenant also will I not break, * nor make void the thing that is gone out of My lips.

Once have I sworn by Mine holiness, that I will not lie unto David: * his seed shall endure for ever,

And his throne, as the sun before Me: * and as the full moon for ever, and as the faithful witness in heaven.[1]

But Thou hast cast off and despised, * Thou hast put away Thine Anointed.

Thou hast made void the covenant of Thy servant: * Thou hast profaned his crown [by casting] it to the ground.

Thou hast broken down all his hedges: * Thou hast brought his strongholds to ruin.

All that pass by the way spoil him: * he is a reproach to his neighbours.

Thou hast set up the right hand of his adversaries: * Thou hast made all his enemies to rejoice.

Thou hast turned the edge of his sword, * and hast not upholden him in battle.

Thou hast made his brightness to cease, * and cast his throne down to the ground.

The days of his youth hast Thou shortened: * Thou hast covered him with shame.[2]

How long, Lord, wilt Thou hide Thyself, for ever? * Shall Thy wrath burn like fire?

Remember how short my time is: * wherefore hast Thou made all the sons of men in vain?

What man is he that liveth, and shall not see death? * Shall he deliver his soul from the hand of the grave?[3]

Lord, where are Thy former loving-kindnesses, * which Thou swarest unto David in Thy truth?

Remember, Lord, the reproach of Thy servants, * (that I bear in my bosom) even the reproach of many people—

Wherewith Thine enemies have reproached, O Lord— * wherewith they have reproached the woes of Thine Anointed.

Blessed be the Lord for evermore! * Amen, Amen.[4]

Psalm XCIII.

[The Vulgate and the LXX. ascribe this Psalm to David, and assign it to the fourth day of the week.]

THE Lord God to Whom vengeance belongeth, * the God to Whom vengeance belongeth hath shown Himself.

Lift up Thyself, Thou judge of the earth: * render a reward to the proud.

Lord, how long shall the wicked, * how long shall the wicked triumph?

How long shall they utter and speak iniquity? * all the workers of wickedness boast themselves?

They crush Thy people, O Lord! * and afflict Thine heritage.

They slay the widow and the stranger, * and murder the fatherless.

Yet they say: The Lord shall not see, * neither shall the God of Jacob understand.

Understand, ye brutish among the people! * and ye fools, some time be wise!

He That planted the ear, shall He not hear? * or He That formed the eye, can He not see?

He That chastiseth the heathen, shall not He correct? * He That teacheth man knowledge?

The Lord knoweth the thoughts of men, * that they are vanity.

Blessed is the man whom Thou chastenest, O Lord, * and teachest out of Thy law.

That Thou mayest give him rest from the days of adversity, * until the pit be digged for the wicked.

For the Lord will not cast off His people, * neither will He forsake His inheritance.

Until righteousness return unto judgment, * and all the upright in heart follow it.

Who will rise up for me against the evil-doers? * or who will stand up with me against the workers of iniquity?

Unless the Lord had been mine help, * my soul had almost dwelt in the grave.

When I said: My foot slippeth — * Thy mercy, O Lord, held me up.

In the multitude of the sorrows within mine heart, * Thy comforts delight my soul.

[5] Hath the throne of iniquity fellowship with Thee? — * which frameth mischief by a law?

They that gather themselves together against the soul of the righteous, * and condemn the innocent blood—?

But the Lord is my refuge, * and my God is the stay of my trust.

And He shall bring upon them their own iniquity, and shall cut them off in their own wickedness: * the Lord our God shall cut them off.

Psalm XCV.

[In I Par. (Chron.) xvi. it is stated that David gave this Psalm to Asaph and his brethren upon the day that the ark was brought to Jerusalem. The text is there given somewhat differently, and the whole forms the second part of one Psalm, of which the first part consists of the first fifteen verses of Ps. civ. The Vulgate and the LXX. note that it was sung at the rebuilding of the Temple after the Captivity.]

O SING unto the LORD a new song: * sing unto the LORD, all the earth.

Sing unto the LORD, and bless His Name: * show forth His salvation from day to day.

Declare His glory among the heathen, * His wonders among all people.

For the LORD is great, and greatly to be praised: * He is to be feared above all gods.

For all the gods of the heathen are devils: * but the LORD made the heavens.

Praise and beauty are before Him: * holiness and majesty are in His sanctuary.

Give unto the LORD, O ye kindreds of the people, give unto the LORD glory and honour: * give unto the LORD the glory due unto His name.

Bring sacrifices, and come into His courts: * O worship the LORD in His holy temple!

Let all the earth fear before Him. * Say among the heathen, The LORD reigneth!

He hath established the world also, that it shall not be moved: * He shall judge the people righteously.

Let the heavens rejoice, and let the earth be glad, let the sea roar, and the fulness thereof: * let the fields be joyful and all that is therein.

Then shall all the trees of the wood rejoice before the LORD, for He cometh, * for He cometh to judge the earth.

He shall judge the world with righteousness: * and the people with His truth.[1]

Psalm XCVI.

[The Vulgate and the LXX. have the superscription "[A Psalm] of David when his country was re-established" — perhaps meaning after the usurpation of Absolom.]

THE LORD reigneth; let the earth rejoice: * let the multitude of isles be glad thereof.

Clouds and darkness are round about Him: * righteousness and judgment are the foundation of His throne.

A fire shall go before Him, * and burn up His enemies round about.

His lightnings enlightened the world: * the earth saw and trembled.

The hills melted like wax at the presence of the LORD, * at the presence of the Lord of the whole earth.

The heavens declared His righteousness, * and all the people saw His glory.

Confounded be all they that worship graven images, * and that boast themselves of idols.

Worship Him, all ye His Angels! * Zion heard, and was glad.

And the daughters of Judah rejoiced, * because of Thy judgments, O LORD!

For thou, LORD, art high above all the earth: * Thou art exalted far above all gods.

Ye that love the LORD, hate evil: * the Lord preserveth the souls of His saints; He delivereth them out of the hand of the wicked.

Light is sprung up for the righteous, * and gladness for the upright in heart.

Rejoice in the LORD, ye righteous, * and give thanks to the memorial of His holiness!

The others, as well as what follows, to the end of the Service, are taken from the Second Nocturn of the Office common to Saints of the class, unless something special be appointed. The Lessons are arranged according to the rules in Chapter xxvi. 4 of the general Rubrics. The Hymn, "We praise Thee, O God," is said at the end, instead of a Third Responsory. The Responsories are arranged according to the rules in Chapter xxvii. 4 of the General Rubrics. Thus:—

The Lord's Prayer is said:

OUR Father (inaudibly), Who art in heaven, Hallowed be Thy Name. Thy Kingdom come. Thy will be done on earth, as it is in heaven. Give us this day our daily bread. And forgive us our trespasses, as we forgive them that trespass against us. (Aloud.)

Answer. But deliver us from evil.

Then this Absolution:

MAY His loving kindness and mercy help us, Who liveth and reigneth with the Father, and the Holy Ghost, world without end.

Answer. Amen.

Then the Reader says:

Sir, be pleased to give the blessing.

First Blessing, if the Lesson be from Scripture.

God the Father, the Almighty,
Show on us His grace and mercy.
Answer. Amen.

First Blessing, if the Lesson be of an Homily.

May the Gospel's saving Lord
Bless the reading of His Word.

Then is read the First Lesson from Scripture or from the Homily, or, on a Simple Feast, either the First from Scripture, or, if the Saint or Saints have two Lessons, the whole three Scripture Lessons read together as one.

Then the First Responsory, unless otherwise directed. On a week-day kept as such, this is the First Responsory of the preceding Sunday. On a Simple Feast, it is the First Responsory in the Common Office for the class to which the Saint belongs.

Then the Reader says:

Sir, be pleased to give the blessing.

Second Blessing, if the Lesson be of Scripture.

May Christ to all His people give
For ever in His sight to live.
Answer. Amen.

Second Blessing, if the Lesson be from an Homily.

Be His people's staff and stay.
Answer. Amen.

Second Blessing, for a Simple Feast.

Plead for us before the Lord.
Answer. Amen.

Then is read the Second Lesson, either from the Scripture or from an Homily, or, on a Simple Feast, either the Second and Third Lessons from Scripture read together as one, or, if the Saint or Saints have two Lessons, the first of these.

Then the Second Responsory, unless otherwise directed. On a week-day kept as such, this is the Second Responsory of the preceding Sunday, but in Paschal time there is added to it:

Verse. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, and to the Holy Ghost.

And the Answer of the Responsory is repeated again.

On a Simple Feast the Second Responsory in the Common Office for the class to which the Saint belongs, with the addition of "Glory be to the Father," &c., and the repetition of the Answer.

In our inmost being shine.
Answer. Amen.

Third Blessing, for a Simple Feast, or if the Lesson be from an Homily.

To that high realm His people bring.
Answer. Amen.

Then is read the Third Lesson either from Scripture, or of the Homily, or, on Simple Feasts, the Second or only Lesson of the Saint.

Then, on Simple Feasts and on any day in Paschal time is said the Hymn, "We praise Thee, O God." But on week-days kept as such out of Paschal time the Third Responsory of the preceding Sunday.

HEAR my prayer, O LORD, give ear to my supplication in Thy faithfulness: * answer me, in Thy righteousness.

And enter not into judgment with Thy servant: * for in Thy sight shall no man living be justified.

For the enemy hath persecuted my soul: * he hath smitten my life down to the ground:

He hath made me to dwell in darkness, as those that have been long dead. * Therefore is my spirit overwhelmed within me: mine heart within me is troubled.

I remember the days of old: I meditate on all thy works: * I muse on the works of Thine hands.

I stretch forth mine hands unto Thee: * my soul [thirsteth] after Thee, as a thirsty land.[1]

Hear me speedily, O LORD: * my spirit faileth:

Hide not Thy face from me, * lest I be like unto them that go down into the pit.

Cause me to hear Thy lovingkindness in the morning: * for in Thee do I trust:

Cause me to know the way wherein I should walk: * for I lift up my soul unto Thee.

Deliver me, O LORD, from mine enemies: I flee unto Thee to hide me. * Teach me to do Thy will: for Thou art my God.

Let Thy good Spirit lead me into the land of uprightness. * For Thy name's sake, O LORD, Thou shalt quicken me in Thy righteousness.

Thou shalt bring my soul out of trouble: * and of Thy mercy cut off mine enemies,

And destroy all them that afflict my soul: * for I am Thy servant.

Antiphon. In Thy faithfulness, answer me, O Lord.

Third Antiphon. O Lord.

Psalms LXII., LXVI.

O God, Thou art my God, &c., (pp. 13, 14).

Antiphon. O Lord, cause Thy face to shine upon us.

Fourth Antiphon. O LORD, I have heard.

If this Antiphon be used the Canticle begins with the words, "Thy speech."

THE SONG OF HABAKKUK THE PROPHET. (Hab. iii.)

[Intituled "A prayer of Habakkuk the Prophet" with a direction, perhaps musical.]

O LORD, I have heard tell of Thee: * and was afraid:

O LORD, revive Thy work * in the midst of the years;

In the midst of the years shalt Thou make it known: * in wrath, Thou wilt remember mercy.

God shall come from "the South," * and the Holy One from Mount Paran.[2]

His glory covered the heavens, * and the earth was full of His praise.

His brightness was as the light: * He had horns[3] coming out of His hand:

There was the hiding of His power. * Before Him went death.

And the destroyer went forth at His feet. * He stood and measured the earth:

He beheld, and drove asunder the nations: * and the everlasting mountains were crushed:

[1] SLH.

[2] SLH. "The South" is, in the original, "Teman," the name of a country and nation eastward of Idumea, but used for the south generally. Paran, or Pharan, is an uncultured and mountainous region, lying between Arabia Petræa, Palestine, and Idumea. The passage is an imitation of the words of Moses when blessing the tribes. Deut. xxxiii. 2. "The LORD came from Sinai, and rose up from Seir unto them; He stirred forth from Mount Paran, and He came with ten thousands of Saints: from His right hand went a fiery law for them."

[3] Gesenius says "'Horns' is here used of flashes of lightning, just as the Arabian poets compare the first beams of the rising sun to horns, and call the sun itself a gazelle."

The everlasting hills did bow: * because the Eternal passed by.[1]

I saw the tents of Ethiopia in affliction: * the curtains of the land of Midian did tremble.[2]

Wast Thou displeased against the rivers, O LORD? * was Thine anger against the rivers? Thy wrath against the sea?

That Thou didst ride upon Thine horses, * and Thy chariots were salvation?

Thou didst seize and draw Thy bow, * according to the oaths that Thou utteredst unto the tribes.[3]

Thou didst cleave the rivers of the earth: the mountains saw Thee and they trembled: * the overflowing of the water passed by:

The deep uttered his voice: * he lifted up his hands on high.

The sun and moon stood still in their habitation: * at the light of Thine arrows they went forth, at the shining of Thy glittering spear.

Thou didst tread down the land in indignation: * Thou didst thresh the heathen in anger.

Thou wentest forth for the salvation of Thy people, * even for salvation with Thine Anointed.[4]

Thou didst smite the head of the house of the wicked:[5] * Thou didst lay bare the foundation unto the neck.[6]

Thou didst curse his sceptre, even the head of his fighting men, * when they came out as a whirlwind to scatter me:

Their rejoicing was as the rejoicing of him * that devoureth the poor secretly.

Thou didst make a way in the sea for Thine horses, * through the mire of great waters.

I heard, and my belly trembled: * my lips quivered at the voice:

Let rottenness enter into my bones, * and corruption swarm under me:

That I may rest in the day of trouble: * that I may go up unto our people that are girded.[7]

Although the fig-tree shall not blossom, * neither shall fruit be in the vines:

The labour of the olive shall fail, * and the fields shall yield no meat:

The flock shall be cut off from the fold, * and there shall be no herd in the stalls:

Yet will I rejoice in the LORD: * I will joy in the God of my salvation.[8]

The LORD God is my strength: * and He will make my feet like hinds' feet:

And He will lead me forth, to make me to walk upon mine high places, * as a conqueror, to sing praises unto Him.[9]

Antiphon. O LORD, I have heard Thy speech, and was afraid.

Fifth Antiphon. Praise God.

Psalms CXLVIII., CXLIX., CL.

Praise ye the LORD, from the heavens, &c., (p. 15).

Antiphon. Praise God with the timbrel and dance.

CHAPTER. (Rom. xiii. 12.)

The night is far spent, &c., (as on Monday, p. 50).

HYMN.[10]

GLORY of the eternal Heaven,
  Blessed Hope to mortals given,
Of the Almighty Only Son,
And the Virgin's Holy One;
Raise us, Lord, and we shall rise
  In a sober mood,
And a zeal which glorifies
  Thee from gratitude.

Now the day-star keenly glancing,
Tells us of the sun's advancing;
While the unhealthy shades decline,
Rise within us, Light Divine!
Rise, and, risen, go not hence,
  Stay and make us bright,
Streaming through each cleansèd sense,
  On the outward night.

Then the root of faith shall spread
In the heart new fashionèd;
Gladsome hope shall spring above,
And shall bear the fruit of love.
To the Father, and the Son,
  And the Holy Ghost,
Here be glory, as is done,
  By the Angelic host.
Amen.

Verse. Thou hast satisfied us early with Thy mercy.

Answer. We rejoice and are glad.

Antiphon for the Song of Zacharias. Through the tender mercy of our God * the day-spring from on high hath visited us.

Commemoration of the Cross before the other Commemorations, and Long Preces in Advent and Lent, and on Fast-days, as on Monday.

[1] The present Hebrew simply is "The ways are everlasting to Him."

[2] Proper name of an Arabian nation whose territory lay from the eastern shore of the Ælanitic Gulf as far as the land of Moab.

[3] SLH. [4] Moses? [5] Pharaoh?

[6] SLH. Some critics read "of the rock" instead of "unto the neck."

[7] Accinctum. The Latin translator probably meant "girt," as the dead were girt, cf. John xi. 44.

[8] Jesu Meo. So the Hebrew.

[9] This last clause seems to be only a musical direction, which has got confounded with the text. Some translate it: "Given to the leader of the string band."

Saturday at Mattins.

THE SABBATH.

All as on Sunday, except as otherwise given here.

Invitatory. O come, let us worship * the Lord our God.

HYMN.[1]

FATHER of mercies infinite,
Ruling all things that be,
Who, shrouded in the depth and height,
Art One, and yet art Three;

Accept our chants, accept our tears,
A mingled stream we pour;
Such stream the laden bosom cheers,
To taste Thy sweetness more.

Purge Thou with fire the o'ercharged mind,
Its sores and wounds profound;
And with the watcher's girdle bind
The limbs which sloth has bound.

That they who with their chants by night
Before Thy presence come,
All may be fill'd with strength and light
From their eternal home.

Grant this, O Father, Only Son,
And Spirit, God of grace,
To whom all worship shall be done
In every time and place.
Amen.

Only one Nocturn is said.

Antiphon. For the Lord.

In Paschal time only one Antiphon is said for the whole Nocturn. Alleluia.

Psalm XCVII.

[Intituled "A Psalm." The Vulgate and the LXX. ascribe it to David.]

O SING unto the LORD a new song: * for He hath done marvellous things.

His right hand, and His holy arm, * have gotten Him the victory.

The LORD hath made known His salvation: * His righteousness hath He openly showed in the sight of the heathen.

He hath remembered His mercy, * and His truth towards the house of Israël.

All the ends of the earth have seen * the salvation of our God.

Make a joyful noise unto the LORD, all the earth, * make a loud noise and rejoice, and sing praise.

Sing unto the LORD with the harp, with the harp and the voice of a psalm. * With trumpets and sound of cornet,

Make a joyful noise before the LORD, the King. * Let the sea roar, and the fulness thereof, the world and they that dwell therein.

Let the floods clap their hands, let the hills be joyful together before the LORD. * For He cometh to judge the earth:

With righteousness shall He judge the world, * and the people with equity.

Psalm XCVIII.

[The Vulgate and the LXX. ascribe this Psalm to David.]

THE LORD reigneth, be the people never so impatient: * He sitteth upon the Cherubim, be the earth never so unquiet.

The LORD is great in Zion: * and He is high above all people.

Let them praise Thy great and terrible Name, for it is holy: * and the King's majesty loveth judgment.

Thou dost establish equity: * Thou executest judgment and righteousness in Jacob.

Exalt ye the LORD our God, and worship at His footstool: * for it is holy.

Moses and Aaron among His priests, * and Samuel among them that call upon His name.

They called upon the LORD, and He answered them. * He spake unto them in the cloudy pillar:

They kept His testimonies, * and the ordinance that He gave them.

Thou answeredst them, O LORD our God! * O God, Thou forgavest them, though Thou tookest vengeance of their inventions.

Exalt the LORD our God and worship at His holy hill: * for the LORD our God is Holy.

Antiphon. [2] For the Lord hath done marvellous things.

When the following Psalm, "Make a joyful noise unto God, all ye lands," is to be said at Lauds (as would be the case, for instance, if Christmas Eve fell on a Saturday) it is not said here, nor its Antiphon. But instead is said Psalm xci., "It is a good thing to give thanks unto the LORD," from the Saturday Lauds which are to be displaced, with the Antiphon, "It is a good thing * to give thanks unto the LORD," in which case the Psalm begins with the words "To give thanks unto the LORD."

Second Antiphon. Make a joyful noise.

If this Antiphon be used, the Psalm begins with the words, "Unto GOD, all ye lands."

---

[1] Another hymn of the Ambrosian school, considerably altered; translation by the late Card. Newman.

[2] Ps. xcvii. 1.

Psalm XCIX.

[Intituled "A Psalm of thanksgiving." The Targum has "A Psalm for the Sacrifice of thanksgiving."]

MAKE a joyful noise unto God, all ye lands: * serve the Lord with gladness.

Come before His presence, * with singing.

Know ye that the Lord, He is God: * it is He That hath made us, and not we ourselves:

We are His people, and the sheep of his pasture. * Enter into His gates with thanksgiving, and into His courts with praise: give thanks unto Him,

Praise His Name. For the Lord is good, His mercy is everlasting: * and His truth endureth to all generations.

Psalm C.

[Intituled "A Psalm of David."]

I WILL sing of mercy and judgment, * unto Thee, O Lord!

I will sing and behave myself wisely in a perfect way. * O when wilt Thou come unto me?

I walked within mine house, * in the innocence of mine heart.

I set no wicked thing before mine eyes: * I hate the work of them that turn aside.

A froward heart cleaveth not unto me: * the wicked person that turned aside from me, I would not know.

Whoso privily slandered his neighbour, * him did I expose.

Him that had an high look and a proud heart: * with him I will not eat.

Mine eyes are upon the faithful of the land, that they may dwell with me: * he that walked in a perfect way, he ministered unto me.

He that doeth proud things shall not dwell within mine house: * he that speaketh wickedness was not upright in my sight.

I will early destroy all the wicked of the land: * that I may cut off all wicked doers from the city of the Lord.

Antiphon. [1] Make a joyful noise unto God, all ye lands.

Third Antiphon. O God.

Psalm CI.

[Intituled "A Prayer of the afflicted, when he is overwhelmed, and poureth out his complaint before the Lord."]

HEAR my prayer, O Lord, * and let my cry come unto Thee.

Hide not Thy face from me: * in the day when I am in trouble incline Thine ear unto me.

In the day when I call upon Thee, * answer me speedily.

For my days are wasted away like smoke: * and my bones are consumed as a firebrand.

I am smitten like grass, and mine heart is withered: * for I have forgotten to eat my bread.

By reason of the voice of my groaning * my bones cleave to my flesh.

I am like a pelican of the wilderness: * I am like an owl in his hole.

I watch, * and am as a sparrow alone upon the house-top.

Mine enemies reproached me all the day: * and they that praised me are sworn together against me.

For I have eaten ashes like bread, * and mingled my drink with weeping:

Because of thine indignation and wrath: * for Thou hast lifted me up and cast me down.

My days are like a shadow that declineth: * and I am withered like grass.

But Thou, O Lord, endurest for ever, * and Thy remembrance unto all generations.

Thou shalt arise and have mercy upon Zion: * for the time to favour her, yea, the set time, is come.

For Thy servants take pleasure in her stones: * and have pity on her dust.

So the heathen shall fear Thy name, O Lord, * and all the kings of the earth Thy glory.

When the Lord shall build up Zion, * He shall appear in His glory.

He hath had regard unto the prayer of the destitute, * and hath not despised their supplication.

Let this be written for the generation to come: * and the people which shall be created shall praise the Lord.

For He hath looked down from the height of His sanctuary: * from heaven did the Lord behold the earth:

To hear the groaning of the prisoners, * to loose the children of the slain.

To declare the name of the Lord in Zion, * and His praise in Jerusalem.

When the people are gathered together, * and the kings, to serve the Lord.

[2] He answered him in the way of his strength: * Show me the shortness of my days.

Call me not away in the midst of my days: * Thy years are unto all generations.

Thou, Lord, in the beginning, hast laid the foundation of the earth: * and the heavens are the works of Thine hands.

They shall perish, but Thou remainest: * and they all shall wax old as doth a garment:

And as a vesture shalt Thou change them, and they shall be changed: * but Thou art the Same, and Thy years shall not fail.

The children of Thy servants shall continue: * and their seed shall be established for ever.

[1] Ps. xcix. 1.

[2] "He" may be taken for the "afflicted man" who has just given utterance to his hopes of a brighter future. The Hebrew, (as now pointed,) reads: "He afflicted in the way his (my) strength, he cut short my days." The Alexandrian translators using an unpointed text, took the opening word of the clause to mean, "he answered" instead of "he afflicted" as they might easily do, the letters being the same for either word. The Hebrew text itself is not quite settled.

Psalm CII.

[Intituled "of David."]

BLESS the LORD, O my soul: * and all that is within me, bless His holy name.

Bless the LORD, O my soul, * and forget not all His benefits.

Who forgiveth all thine iniquities: * Who healeth all thy diseases.

Who redeemeth thy life from destruction: * Who crowneth thee with loving-kindness and tender mercies.

Who satisfieth thy desire with good things: * thy youth is renewed like the eagle's.

The LORD executeth mercy, * and judgment for all that are oppressed.

He made known His ways unto Moses, * His will unto the children of Israël.

The LORD is merciful and gracious: * slow to anger, and plenteous in mercy.

He will not always chide: * neither will He keep His anger for ever.

He hath not dealt with us after our sins: * nor rewarded us according to our iniquities.

For as the heaven is high above the earth, * so great is His mercy toward them that fear Him.

As far as the east is from the west, * so far hath He removed our transgressions from us.

Like as a father pitieth his children, so the LORD pitieth them that fear Him. * For He knoweth our frame;

He remembereth that we are dust: * as for man, his days are as grass, as a flower of the field so shall he flourish.

For the wind passeth over it, and it is gone, * and the place thereof shall know it no more.

But the mercy of the LORD is from everlasting * to everlasting upon them that fear Him,

And His righteousness unto children's children; * to such as keep His covenant,

And to those that remember His commandments, * to do them.

The LORD hath prepared His throne in heaven, * and His kingdom shall rule over all.

Bless the LORD, all ye His Angels, * that excel in strength, that do His commandments, to hearken unto the voice of His word.

Bless ye the LORD, all ye His hosts: * ye ministers of His that do His pleasure.

Bless the LORD, all His works: * in all places of His dominion; bless the LORD, O my soul!

Antiphon. [1] O God, let my cry come unto Thee.

Fourth Antiphon. Bless the LORD.

If this Antiphon be used the Psalm begins with the words, "O my soul."

Psalm CIII.

[The Vulgate and the LXX. ascribe this Psalm to David.]

BLESS the LORD, O my soul: * O LORD my God, Thou art very great!

Thou art clothed with honour and majesty, * covering Thyself with light as with a garment!

Who stretchest out the heavens like a curtain, * Who coverest their upper chambers with the waters!

Who makest the clouds Thy chariot, * Who walkest upon the wings of the wind!

Who makest Thine Angels spirits: * and Thy ministers a flame of fire![2]

Who layest the foundations of the earth; * it shall not be removed for ever!

Thou coveredst it with the deep as with a garment, * the waters stood above the mountains.

At Thy rebuke they fled: * at the voice of Thy thunder they hasted fearfully away.

The mountains go up, and the valleys go down, * into the place which Thou hast founded for them.

Thou hast set a bound, that they may not pass over: * that they turn not again to cover the earth.

Who sendeth springs into the valleys: * the waters run among the hills.

All the beasts of the field drink thereof: * the wild asses seek them in their thirst.

By them build the fowls of the heaven their habitation; * they sing among the rocks.

He watereth the hills from His upper chambers: * the earth is satisfied with the fruit of Thy works.

He causeth the grass to grow for the cattle, * and herb for the service of men:

That Thou mayest bring forth food out of the earth, * and wine that maketh glad the heart of man;

Oil to make his face to shine, * and bread to strengthen man's heart.

The trees of the field are filled [with sap], the cedars of Lebanon also, which He hath planted: * there the birds make their nests.

The stork's nest is the highest among them: * the high hills are a refuge for the wild goats, and the rocks for the conies.

He hath appointed the moon for seasons: * the sun knoweth his going down.

Thou makest darkness, and it is night: * wherein all the beasts of the forest do come forth.

The young lions roar after their prey, * and seek their meat from God.

The sun ariseth, and they gather themselves together: * and lay them down in their dens.

Man goeth forth unto his work, * and to his labour, until the evening.

O LORD, how manifold are Thy works! * in wisdom hast Thou made them all: the earth is full of Thy riches.

So is this great and wide sea: * wherein are things creeping innumerable.

Both small and great beasts: * there go the ships;

---

[1] Ps. ci. 1.

[2] So is this passage translated, Heb. i. 7.

There is that Leviathan whom Thou hast made to play with him: * these all wait upon Thee, that Thou mayest give them their meat in due season.

That thou givest them, they gather: * when Thou openest Thine hand, they are all filled with good.

Thou hidest Thy face, they are troubled: * Thou takest away their breath, they die, and return to their dust.

Thou sendest forth Thy spirit, and they are created: * and Thou renewest the face of the earth.

Let the glory of the LORD endure for ever! * the LORD shall rejoice in His works.

He looketh on the earth and maketh it to tremble: * He toucheth the mountains and they smoke.

I will sing unto the LORD as long as I live: * I will sing praise to my God while I have my being.

My meditation of Him shall be sweet: * I will be glad in the LORD.

Let the sinners be consumed out of the earth, and let the wicked be no more: * bless thou the LORD, O my soul![1]

Psalm CIV.

[The first fifteen verses of this Psalm are found in a slightly different edition in I Par. (Chron.) xvi. as the first part of a Psalm given by David to Asaph and his brethren, on the day that the ark was brought to Jerusalem. The rest is our present Psalm xcv., which see with the notes, p. 85. The Vulgate and the LXX. prefix "Alleluia."]

O GIVE thanks unto the LORD, and call upon His name: * make known His deeds among the heathen.

Sing unto Him, and sing psalms unto Him: * talk ye of all His wondrous works.

Glory ye in His holy name: * let the heart of them rejoice that seek the LORD.

Seek the LORD, and be strong: * seek His face evermore.

Remember His marvellous works that He hath done: * His wonders and the judgments of his mouth.

O ye seed of Abraham, His servant, * ye children of Jacob His chosen!

He is the LORD our God: * His judgments are in all the earth.

He hath remembered His covenant for ever, * the word which He commanded to a thousand generations—

[The covenant] that He made with Abraham: * and His oath unto Isaac.

And He confirmed the same unto Jacob for a law, * and to Israël for an everlasting covenant.

Saying: Unto thee will I give the land of Canaan, * the lot of your inheritance.

When they were but a few men in number, * very few, and strangers in it.

And they went from one nation to another, * and from one kingdom to another people.

He suffered no man to do them wrong: * yea, He reproved kings for their sakes.

Touch not Mine anointed, * and do My prophets no harm.[2]

Moreover He called for a famine upon the land: * and brake the whole staff of bread.

He sent a man before them: * Joseph was sold for a servant:

Whose feet they hurt with fetters, the iron entered into his soul. * Until his word came,

The word of the LORD tried him: * the king sent and loosed him; even the ruler of the people, and let him go free.

He made him lord of his house, * and ruler of all his substance.

To instruct his princes at his pleasure, * and teach his elders wisdom.

Israël also came into Egypt, * and Jacob sojourned in the land of Ham.

And He increased His people greatly: * and made them stronger than their enemies.

He turned their heart to hate His people, * and to deal subtilly with his servants.

He sent Moses His servant, * and Aaron whom He had chosen.

He showed signs among them, * and wonders in the land of Ham.

He sent darkness and made it dark: * He made not His words of none effect.

He turned their waters into blood, * and slew their fish.

Their land brought forth frogs, * in the chambers of their kings.

He spake, and there came divers sorts of flies, * and lice in all their coasts.

He gave them hail for rain, * flaming fire in their land.

He smote their vines also and their fig-trees, * and brake the trees of their coasts.

He spake, and the locust came, and the caterpillar, * without number,

And ate up all the herb in their land, * and devoured all the fruit of their ground.

He smote also all the first-born in their land, * the chief of all their travail.

He brought them forth also with silver and gold: * and there was not one feeble person among their tribes.

Egypt was glad when they departed: * for the fear of them fell upon them.

He spread a cloud for a covering, * and fire to give light in the night.

They asked, and the quail came, * and He satisfied them with the bread of heaven.

He opened the rock and the waters gushed out, * the rivers ran through the dry places.

For He remembered His holy promise, * that He made unto Abraham His servant.

And He brought forth His people with joy, * and His chosen with gladness.

And gave them the lands of the heathen, * and they inherited the labour of the peoples.

[1] "Alleluia" is here appended in the Hebrew.

[2] Here ends the portion found in I Par. (Chron.) xvi. 22.

That they might observe His statutes, * and keep His laws.

[Here the Hebrew adds "Alleluia."]

Antiphon. [1] Bless the LORD, O my soul!

Fifth Antiphon. Visit us.

Psalm CV.

[Superscribed "Alleluia."]

O GIVE thanks unto the LORD, for He is good: * for His mercy endureth for ever.

Who can utter the mighty acts of the LORD? * who can show forth all His praise?

Blessed are they that keep judgment, * and they that do righteousness at all times.

Remember us, O LORD, with the favour that Thou showest unto Thy people: * O visit us with Thy salvation:

That I may see the good of Thy chosen, that I may rejoice in the gladness of Thy people, * that Thou mayest be praised in Thine inheritance.

We have sinned with our fathers: * we have done wickedly, we have committed iniquity.

Our fathers considered not Thy wonders in Egypt: * they remembered not the multitude of Thy mercies,

But provoked Him when they went up unto the sea, * even the Red Sea.

Nevertheless He saved them for His name's sake, * that He might make His mighty power to be known.

He rebuked the Red Sea also, and it was dried up: * and He led them through the depths as through the wilderness.

And He saved them from the hand of them that hated them, * and redeemed them from the hand of the enemy.

And the waters covered their enemies: * there was not one of them left.

And they believed His words: * and sang His praise.

They soon forgot His works: * and waited not for His counsel.

And lusted exceedingly in the wilderness: * and tempted God in the desert.

And He gave them their request, * and sent fulness into their soul.

They provoked Moses also in the camp, * and Aaron, the saint of the LORD.

The earth opened and swallowed up Dathan, * and covered the company of Abiram.[2]

And a fire was kindled in their assembly, * the flame burned up the wicked.

[3] They made a calf also in Horeb, * and worshipped the graven image.

Thus they changed their Glory * into the similitude of a calf that eateth grass.

They forgat God their Saviour, * Who had done great things in Egypt, wondrous works in the land of Ham, terrible things by the Red Sea.

Therefore He said that He would cut them off, * had not Moses His chosen stood before Him in the breach,

To turn away His wrath, lest He should destroy them: * yea, they despised the pleasant land;

They believed not His words: but murmured in their tents: * they hearkened not unto the voice of the LORD.

He also lifted up His hand against them, * to overthrow them in the wilderness.

To overthrow their seed also among the nations, * and to scatter them in the lands.

They joined themselves also unto Baal-peor,[4] * and ate the sacrifices of the dead.

And they provoked Him to anger with their inventions: * and the carcasses lay thick among them.

Then stood up Phinehas and made a propitiation: * and the plague was stayed.

And that was counted unto him for righteousness, * unto all generations for evermore.

They angered Him also at the waters of "Provocation,"[5] * so that it went ill with Moses for their sakes; because they provoked his spirit;

So that he spake unadvisedly with his lips.[6] * They did not destroy the nations concerning whom the LORD commanded them:[7]

And they were mingled among the heathen, and learned their works, and served their idols: * and it became a snare to them.

Yea, they sacrificed their sons * and their daughters unto devils.

And shed innocent blood, * even the blood of their sons and of their daughters, whom they sacrificed unto the idols of Chanaan:

And the land was polluted with blood. They were defiled also with their own works, * and went a whoring with their own inventions.

[1] Ps. cii. 1.

[2] Numbers xvi. They tried to stir up a rebellion against Moses and Aaron, upon levelling principles, "and the earth opened her mouth and swallowed them up," while some of their partizans were consumed by a fire which issued from the sanctuary.

[4] i.e., "the Lord of Mount Peor," an idol of the Moabites. The whole history of this lapse of the Israëlites, and how Phinehas stopped the plague by killing one pair of the transgressors, is in Numbers xxv. "And the LORD spake unto Moses, saying: Phinehas, the son of Eleazar, the son of Aaron the Priest, hath turned My wrath away from the children of Israël. . . . Behold, I give unto him My covenant of peace; and he shall have it, and his seed after him, even the covenant of an everlasting Priesthood."

"And the LORD spake unto Moses and Aaron: Because ye believed Me not, to sanctify Me in the eyes of the children of Israël, therefore ye shall not bring this congregation into the land which I have given them."

[7] In Judges i. 21 to the end, is a long list of the districts of idolaters whom they left in Canaan and among whom they lived.

Therefore was the wrath of the Lord kindled against His people, * and He abhorred His own inheritance.

And He gave them into the hand of the heathen: * and they that hated them ruled over them.

Their enemies also oppressed them, and they were brought into subjection under their hand. * Many times did He deliver them,

But they provoked Him with their counsel, * and they were brought low for their iniquity.

But He regarded their affliction, * and heard their cry.

And He remembered His covenant, * and repented according to the multitude of His mercies.

He made them also to be pitied * of all those that carried them captives.

Save us, O Lord our God, * and gather us from among the nations!

To give thanks unto Thy holy Name, * and to triumph in Thy praise.

Blessed be the Lord God of Israël from everlasting to everlasting: * and let all the people say: Amen, Amen.

[The Hebrew adds "Alleluia," which the Vulgate and the LXX. prefix to the next Psalm. Here ends the fourth of the five books into which the Psalter is divided.]

Psalm CVI.

O GIVE thanks unto the Lord, for He is good: * for His mercy endureth for ever.

Let the redeemed of the Lord say so, whom He hath redeemed from the hand of the enemy: * and gathered them out of the lands,

From the rising of the sun and from the setting thereof, * from the north and from the south.

They wandered in the wilderness in a dry land: * they found no pathway to a city to dwell in:

Hungry and thirsty, * their soul fainted in them.

Then they cried unto the Lord in their trouble; * and He delivered them out of their distresses.

And He led them forth by the right way, * that they might go to a city to dwell in.

O that men would praise the Lord for His goodness: * and for His wonderful works to the children of men!

For He satisfieth the longing soul: * and filleth the hungry soul with goodness.

Such as sit in darkness and in the shadow of death, * being bound in affliction and iron.

Because they rebelled against the words of God, * and contemned the counsel of the Most High.

Therefore their heart was brought down with labour: * they fell down, and there was none to help.

Then they cried unto the Lord in their trouble: * and He delivered them out of their distresses.

And He brought them out of darkness and the shadow of death: * and brake their bands in sunder.

O that men would praise the Lord for His goodness: * and for His wonderful works to the children of men!

For He hath broken the gates of brass, * and cut the bars of iron in sunder.

He saved them from the way of their transgression: * for they were afflicted because of their iniquities.

Their soul abhorred all manner of meat: * and they drew near even unto the gates of death.

Then they cried unto the Lord in their trouble: * and He delivered them out of their distresses.

He sent His word and healed them, * and delivered them from their straits.

O that men would praise the Lord for His goodness: * and for His wonderful works to the children of men!

Yea, let them sacrifice the sacrifice of thanksgiving, * and declare His works with rejoicing.

They that go down to the sea in ships, * and do business in great waters;

These see the works of the Lord, * and His wonders in the deep.

He commandeth, and the stormy wind riseth, * and the waves thereof are lifted up.

They mount up to the heaven, and go down again to the depths: * their soul is melted because of trouble.

They reel to and fro, and stagger like a drunken man, * and are at their wits' end.

Then they cry unto the Lord in their trouble, * and He delivereth them out of their distresses.

And He maketh the storm a calm, * and the waves thereof are still.

And they are glad because [the breakers] be quiet: * so He bringeth them unto their desired haven.

O that men would praise the Lord for His goodness: * and for His wonderful works to the children of men!

Let them exalt Him also in the congregation of the people, * and praise Him in the assembly of the elders.

He turneth the rivers into a wilderness, * and the water-springs into dry ground;

A fruitful land into a salt desert, * for the wickedness of them that dwell therein.

He turneth the wilderness into a standing-water, * and dry ground into water-springs.

And there He maketh the hungry to abide, * and they prepare a city to dwell in:

And sow the fields, and plant vineyards, * and bring forth fruits of increase.

He blesseth them also, and they are multiplied greatly: * and He suffereth not their cattle to decrease.

Again they are minished, * and brought low, through oppression, affliction, and sorrow.

He poureth contempt upon princes, * and He causeth them to wander in the wilderness, and in the land where there is no way.

Yet helpeth He the poor from affliction, * and maketh him families like a flock.

The righteous shall see it and rejoice: * and all iniquity shall stop her mouth.

Who is wise, and will observe these things? * even he shall understand the loving-kindness of the LORD.

Antiphon. [1] Visit us with Thy salvation, O LORD.

Sixth Antiphon. I will greatly praise.

Psalm CVII.

[Intituled "A Song. A Psalm of David." It is a compilation of Ps. lvi. 8-12, and Ps. lix. 6-14.]

MINE heart is ready, O God, mine heart is ready: * I will sing and give praise, even with my glory.

Awake up, my glory, awake, psaltery and harp! * I will awake right early.

I will praise Thee, O LORD, among the people: * and sing unto Thee among the nations.

For Thy mercy is great above the heavens: * and Thy truth unto the clouds.

Be Thou exalted, O God, above the heavens, and let Thy glory be above all the earth: * [2] that Thy beloved may be delivered:

Save with Thy right hand and hear me. * God hath spoken in His holiness:

I will rejoice, and divide Shechem, * and mete out the valley of booths.

Gilead is mine; and Manasseh is mine: * Ephraim also is the strength of mine head:

Judah is my King: * Moab is the vessel [of the triumph] of mine hope.

Over Edom will I cast out my shoe: * over the "Strangers" have I triumphed.

Who will bring me into the strong city? * who will lead me into Edom?

Wilt not Thou, O God, Who hast cast us off? * and wilt not Thou go forth with our armies, O God?

Give us help from trouble: * for vain is the help of man.

Through God we shall do valiantly: * and He it is That shall tread down our enemies.

Psalm CVIII.

[Intituled "A Psalm of David," with a superscription, probably musical, but now uncertain.]

HOLD not Thy peace, O God of my praise: * for the mouth of the wicked, and the mouth of the deceitful are opened against me:

They have spoken against me with a lying tongue: they compassed me about also with words of hatred: * and fought against me without a cause.

In return for my love they were mine adversaries: * but I gave myself unto prayer.

And they have rewarded me evil for good, * and hatred for my love.

Set Thou a wicked man over him: * and let the devil stand at his right hand.

When he is judged, let him go forth condemned: * and let his prayer become sin.

Let his days be few; * and let another take his office.

Let his children be fatherless, * and his wife a widow.

Let his children be continually vagabonds, and beg: * and let them be driven out of their dwellings.

Let the extortioner catch all that he hath: * and let the stranger spoil his labour.

Let there be none to extend mercy unto him: * and let there be none to have pity on his little ones.

Let his posterity be cut off: * in one generation let their name be blotted out.

Let the iniquity of his fathers be remembered before the LORD: * and let not the sin of his mother be blotted out.

Let them be before the LORD continually, and let their memory be cut off from the earth. * Because that he remembered not to show mercy,

But persecuted the poor and needy man, * and the broken in heart, that he might slay him.

As he loved cursing, so let it come unto him: * as he delighted not in blessing, so let it be far from him:

As he clothed himself with cursing, like as with a garment, * so let it come into his bowels like water, and like oil into his bones.

Let it be unto him as the garment which covereth him, * and for a girdle wherewith he may be girded continually.

Let this be the reward of mine adversaries from the LORD: * and of them that speak evil against my soul.

And do Thou for me, O LORD, for Thy name's sake, O Lord, * because Thy mercy is good.

Deliver Thou me, for I am poor and needy: * and mine heart is wounded within me.

I am gone like the shadow when it declineth: * and tossed up and down as the locust.

My knees are weak through fasting: * and my flesh faileth of fatness.

I became also a reproach unto them: * they looked upon me, and shaked their heads.

Help me, O LORD my God! * O save me according to Thy mercy.

That they also may know that this is Thine hand: * and Thou, LORD, hast done it!

Let them curse, but bless Thou: * when they arise against me let them be ashamed: but let Thy servant rejoice.

Let mine adversaries be clothed with shame: * and let them be covered with their own confusion as with a mantle.

I will greatly praise the LORD with my mouth: * yea, I will praise Him among the multitude.

[1] Ps. cviii. 30.

[2] Ps. ci. 2.

Saturday at Lauds.

THE SABBATH.

All as on Sunday, except as otherwise given here.

The Psalms are as follows:

Antiphon. Do good.

Psalm L.

Have mercy upon me, &c., (p. 49).

Antiphon. Do good, O Lord, in Thy good pleasure.

Second Antiphon. It is a good thing.

If this Antiphon be used the Psalm begins with the words, "To give thanks."

Psalm XCI.

[Intituled "A Psalm. A Song for the Sabbath Day."]

IT is a good thing to give thanks unto the LORD, * and to sing praises unto Thy name, O Most High!

To show forth Thy loving-kindness in the morning, * and Thy faithfulness in the night;

Upon an instrument of ten strings: * upon the harp with a solemn sound.

For Thou, LORD, hast made me glad through Thy work: * and I will triumph in the works of Thine hands.

O LORD, how great are Thy works! * Thy thoughts are very deep.

A brutish man knoweth not: * neither doth a fool understand this.

When the wicked spring up like grass: * and when all the workers of iniquity are seen, It is that they may be destroyed for ever: * but Thou, LORD, art Most High for evermore.

For, lo, Thine enemies, O LORD, for, lo, Thine enemies shall perish: * and all the workers of iniquity shall be scattered.

But mine horn shall be exalted like the horn of an unicorn: * and mine old age shall be crowned with Thy mercy.[1]

Mine eye also shall look upon mine enemies: * and mine ear shall hear of the wicked that rise up against me.

The righteous shall flourish like the palm tree: * he shall grow like a cedar in Lebanon.

Those that are planted in the house of the LORD, * in the courts of the house of our God shall flourish.

They shall still bring forth fruit in old age: * they shall flourish, to declare:—

That the LORD our God is upright: * and that there is no unrighteousness in Him.

Antiphon. It is a good thing to give thanks unto the LORD.

Third Antiphon. Let all the ends.

Psalms LXII., LXVI.

O God, Thou art my God, &c., (pp. 13, 14).

Antiphon. Let all the ends of the earth fear the Lord.

Fourth Antiphon. Ascribe ye greatness.

THE SONG OF MOSES. (Deut. xxxii.)

[Deut. xxxi. 28: "Gather unto me," (said Moses) "all the elders of your tribes, and your officers, that I may speak these words in their ears, and call heaven and earth to record against them. For I know that after my death ye will utterly corrupt yourselves and turn aside from the way which I have commanded you; and evil will befall you in the latter days; because ye will do evil in the sight of the LORD, to provoke Him to anger through the work of your hands. And Moses spake in the ears of all the congregation of Israël the words of this song, until they were ended:—"]

GIVE ear, O ye heavens, and I will speak; * and hear, O earth, the words of my mouth.

My teaching shall drop as the rain, * my speech shall distil as the dew;

As the small rain upon the tender herb, and as the showers upon the grass: * because I will proclaim the name of the LORD.

Ascribe ye greatness unto our God. * The works of God are perfect: and all His ways are judgment:

A God of truth, and without iniquity, just and right is He. * They have sinned against Him, and by their defilement they are not His children:

They are a perverse and crooked generation. * Do ye thus requite the LORD, O foolish people and unwise?

Is not He thy Father? * That hath bought thee, and made thee, and created thee?

Remember the days of old, * consider generation after generation:

Ask thy father, and he will show thee— * thine elders, and they will tell thee.

---

[1] Hebrew: "I am anointed with fresh oil."

When the Most High divided the nations, * when He separated the sons of Adam,

He set the bounds of the people * according to the number of the children of Israël.

For the Lord's portion is His people: * Jacob is the lot of his inheritance.

He found him in a desert land, * in the waste and howling wilderness:

He led him about and instructed him, * and kept him as the apple of His eye.

As the eagle that stirreth up her young to fly, * and fluttereth over them,

So spread He abroad His wings, and took him, * and bore him on His pinions;

The Lord alone did lead him, * and there was no strange god with him.

He made him ride upon the high places of the earth, * that he might eat the increase of the fields:

And He made him to suck honey out of the rock, * and oil out of the flinty rock:

Butter of kine, and milk of sheep, * with fat of lambs and rams of the breed of Bashan:

And goats, with the fat of wheat, * and to drink the pure blood of the grape.

The "Beloved"[1] waxed fat, and kicked: * he was waxen fat, he was grown plump, he was covered with fatness:

He forsook God That made him, * and departed from the God of his salvation.

They provoked Him to jealousy with strange gods, * and with abominations provoked they Him to anger.

They sacrificed unto devils, and to things that were no gods, * to gods whom they knew not,

New gods that came newly up, * whom their fathers feared not.

The God That begat thee hast thou forsaken, * and hast forgotten God That formed thee.

When the Lord saw it, He was roused to anger, * because of the provoking of His sons and of His daughters.

And He said: I will hide My face from them, * and see what their end shall be:

For they are a very froward generation, * children in whom is no faith.

They have moved Me to jealousy with that which is not God, * and provoked Me to anger with their vanities:

And I will move them to jealousy with those who are not a people, * and provoke them to anger with a foolish nation.

A fire is kindled in Mine anger, * and shall burn unto the lowest hell,

And shall consume the earth with her increase, * and set on fire the foundations of the mountains.

I will heap mischiefs upon them, * and will spend Mine arrows upon them.

They shall be wasted with hunger, * and the birds of the air shall prey on them with a very grievous devouring:

I will send the teeth of beasts upon them, * with the poison of serpents creeping in the dust.

The sword without and terror within shall destroy * both the young man and the virgin, the suckling with the man of grey hairs.

I said: Where are they? * I will make the remembrance of them to cease among men:

But I forbore because of the wrath of the enemy, * lest their adversaries should triumph,

And lest they should say: Our high hand, and not the Lord, * hath done all this.

They are a nation void of counsel, neither is there any understanding in them. * O that they were wise, and that they understood this, and would consider their latter end!

How should one chase a thousand, * and two put ten thousand to flight!

Except their God had sold them, * and the Lord had delivered them up!

For their gods are not as our God, * even our enemies themselves being judges.

Their vine is of the vine of Sodom, * and of the fields of Gomorrah:

Their grapes are grapes of gall, * and their clusters are bitter:

Their wine is the poison of dragons, * and the cruel venom of asps.

Is not this laid up in store with Me, * and sealed up among My treasures?

To Me belongeth vengeance, and I will repay in due time, * to make their foot to slide.

The day of their calamity is at hand, * and the things that shall come upon them make haste.

The Lord shall judge His people, * and take pity on His servants,

When He seeth that their hand is weakened, * and there is none shut up and left, and that they that remained are consumed.

And He shall say: Where are their gods, * in whom they trusted?

Of whose sacrifices they did eat the fat, * and drank the wine of their drink-offerings?

Let them rise up, and help you, * and be your protection in the time of need.

See now that I, even I, am He, * and there is no god with Me:

I kill, and I make alive: I wound and I heal: * neither is there any that can deliver out of Mine hand.

I will lift up Mine hand to heaven, and say: * I live for ever.

If I whet My glittering sword, * and Mine hand take hold on judgment;

I will render vengeance to Mine enemies, * and will requite them that hate Me.

I will make Mine arrows drunk with blood, * and My sword shall devour flesh;

---

[1] Jeshurun—but that this pet-name of the Israëlite people means "Beloved" is not now reckoned certain.

With the blood of the slain * and of the captives, and of the despoiled chief of the enemy.

Rejoice with His people, ye nations: * for He will avenge the blood of His servants,

And will render vengeance to their adversaries, * and will be merciful unto the land of His people.

Antiphon. Ascribe ye greatness unto our God.

Fifth Antiphon. Praise God.

Psalms CXLVIII., CXLIX., CL.

Praise ye the LORD from the heavens, &c., (p. 15).

Antiphon. Praise God upon the loud cymbals.

CHAPTER. (Rom. xiii. 12.)

The night is far spent, &c., (as on Monday, p. 50).

HYMN.[1]

THE dawn is sprinkled o'er the sky,
The day steals softly on;
Its darts are scattered far and nigh,
And all that fraudful is, shall fly
Before the brightening sun;
Spectres of ill, that stalk at will,
And forms of guilt that fright,
And hideous sin, that ventures in
Under the cloak of night.

And of our crimes the tale complete,
Which bows us in Thy sight,
Up to the latest, they shall fleet,
Out-told by our full numbers sweet,
And melted by the light.

To Father, Son, and Spirit, One,
Whom we adore and love,
Be given all praise, now and always,
Here as in Heaven above.
Amen.

Verse. Thou hast satisfied us early with Thy mercy.

Answer. We rejoice and are glad.

Antiphon for the Song of Zacharias. Give light, O Lord, * unto them that sit in darkness, and guide our feet into the way of peace, O Thou God of Israël!

Commemoration of the Cross before the others, and Long Preces in Advent and Lent, and on Fast-days, except the Eves of Christmas and Pentecost.

[1] Hymn of the Ambrosian school, considerably altered; translation by the late Card. Newman.

VESPERS, OR EVENSONG.[1]

Sunday.

The Lord's Day.

At the beginning of Vespers the Lord's Prayer and the Angelic Salutation are said inaudibly.

OUR Father, Who art in heaven, Hallowed be Thy Name. Thy kingdom come. Thy will be done on earth, as it is in heaven. Give us this day our daily bread. And forgive us our trespasses, as we forgive them that trespass against us. And lead us not into temptation; but deliver us from evil. Amen.

HAIL, Mary, full of grace; The Lord is with thee: blessed art thou among women, and blessed is the fruit of thy womb, Jesus.

Holy Mary, Mother of God, pray for us sinners, now, and at the hour of our death. Amen.

Then is said aloud:

Verse. ✠ Make haste, O God, to deliver me.

Answer. Make haste to help me, O Lord.

Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, and to the Holy Ghost.

As it was in the beginning, is now, and ever shall be, world without end. Amen. Alleluia.

From Septuagesima Sunday to Maundy Thursday instead of "Alleluia" is said:

Ceaseless praise to Thee be given,
O Eternal King of heaven.

Then follow the Psalms. They are said under Five Antiphons, except in Paschal time when there is only one, and when these are not specially given, those given here are used.

Antiphon. The Lord said.

If this Antiphon be used the Psalm begins with the words "Unto my Lord."

Antiphon for Paschal time. Alleluia.

Psalm CIX.

[Intituled "A Psalm of David." The first verse was quoted by our Lord.—Matth. xxii. 44; Mark xii. 36; Luke xx. 42.]

THE Lord said unto my Lord: * Sit Thou at My right hand, Until I make Thine enemies * Thy footstool.

The Lord shall send the rod of Thy strength out of Zion: * rule Thou in the midst of Thine enemies.

Thine shall be the dominion in the day of Thy power, amid the brightness of the saints: * from the womb, before the day-star have I begotten Thee.

The Lord hath sworn, and will not repent: * Thou art a Priest for ever after the order of Melchisedek.

The Lord at Thy right hand * shall strike through kings in the day of His wrath.

He shall judge among the heathen, He shall fill the places with dead bodies: * He shall wound the heads over many countries.

He shall drink of the brook in the way: * therefore shall he lift up his head.

Antiphon. The Lord said unto my Lord: * Sit Thou at My right hand.

Second Antiphon. All His commandments.

Psalm CX.

[The Hebrew prefixes "Alleluia," and begins, "I will praise the Lord." The Psalm is A B C Darian.]

I WILL praise Thee, O Lord, with my whole heart: * in the assembly of the upright, and in the congregation.

The works of the Lord are great, * meet to serve for the doing of His will.

His work is honourable and glorious, * and His righteousness endureth for ever.

He hath made a memorial of His wonderful works: the Lord is gracious and full of compassion. * He hath given meat unto them that fear Him:

He will ever be mindful of His covenant. * He will show His people the power of His works,

That He may give them the heritage of the heathen. * The works of His hands are verity and judgment:

All His commandments are sure; they stand fast for ever and ever, * being done in truth and uprightness.

He sent redemption unto His people: He hath commanded His covenant for ever:

Holy and terrible is His Name. * The fear of the Lord is the beginning of wisdom:

A good understanding have all they that do His commandments: * His praise endureth for ever.

Antiphon. [2] All His commandments are sure; they stand fast for ever and ever.

---

[1] The proper hour for Vespers is sunset, reckoned to be about 6 P.M. In private recitation, they ought not usually to be begun before noon.

[2] Ps. cx. 8.

Third Antiphon. In His commandments.

Psalm CXI.

[The Hebrew prefixes "Alleluia." The Vulgate adds to the superscription "on the return of Haggai and Zechariah [from the Captivity]." See Thursday, fifth week in November. The Psalm is A B C Darian.]

BLESSED is the man that feareth the LORD: * that delighteth greatly in His commandments.

His seed shall be mighty upon earth; * the generation of the upright shall be blessed.

Glory and riches shall be in his house: * and his righteousness endureth for ever.

Unto the upright there ariseth light in the darkness: * he is gracious, and full of compassion, and righteous.

Happy is the man that showeth favour and lendeth; he will guide his words with discretion: * surely he shall not be moved for ever:

The righteous shall be in everlasting remembrance. * He shall not be afraid of evil tidings:

His heart is ready, trusting in the LORD. His heart is established, * he shall not be afraid until he see his desire upon his enemies.

He hath dispersed, he hath given to the poor: his righteousness endureth for ever: * his horn shall be exalted with honour.

The wicked shall see it, and be grieved; he shall gnash his teeth, and melt away: * the desire of the wicked shall perish.

Antiphon. In His commandments he delighteth greatly.

Fourth Antiphon. Blessed be the Name.

Psalm CXII.

[The Hebrew prefixes "Alleluia."]

PRAISE the LORD, O ye His servants, * praise the Name of the LORD.

Blessed be the Name of the LORD, * from this time forth, and for evermore!

From the rising of the sun unto the going down of the same, * the LORD'S Name is to be praised.

The LORD is high above all nations, * and His glory above the heavens.

Who is like unto the LORD our God, Who dwelleth on high, * and beholdeth what is lowly in heaven, and in the earth?

He raiseth up the poor out of the dust, * and lifteth the needy out of the dung-hill;

That He may set him with princes, * even with the princes of His people.

He maketh the barren woman to keep house, * and to be a joyful mother of children.

[The Hebrew adds "Alleluia," which the Vulgate and the LXX. prefix to the next Psalm.]

Antiphon. Blessed be the Name of the LORD for evermore.

Fifth Antiphon. We that live.

Psalm CXIII.

WHEN Israël went out of Egypt, * the house of Jacob from a people of strange language,

Judah was His sanctuary, * and Israël His dominion.

The sea saw it and fled: * Jordan was driven back.

The mountains skipped like rams, * and the little hills like lambs.

What ailed thee, O thou sea, that thou fleddest? * and thou Jordan, that thou wast driven back?

Ye mountains, that ye skipped like rams? * and ye little hills, like lambs?

The earth trembled at the presence of the Lord, * at the presence of the God of Jacob:

Who turned the rock into a standing water, * and the flint into a fountain of waters.[1]

Not unto us, O LORD, not unto us: * but unto Thy Name give glory,

For Thy mercy, and for Thy truth's sake. * Wherefore should the heathen say: Where is now their God?

But our God is in the heavens: * He hath done whatsoever He hath pleased.

The idols of the heathen are silver and gold, * the work of men's hands.

They have mouths, but they speak not: * eyes have they, but they see not.

They have ears, but they hear not: * noses have they, but they smell not:

They have hands, but they handle not: feet have they, but they walk not: * neither speak they through their throat.

May they that make them be like unto them: * even every one that trusteth in them.

The house of Israël trusteth in the LORD: * He is their help and their shield.

The house of Aaron trusteth in the LORD: * He is their help and their shield.

They that fear the LORD trust in the LORD: * He is their help and their shield.

The LORD hath been mindful of us, * and blessed us:

He hath blessed the house of Israël: * He hath blessed the house of Aaron.

He hath blessed them that fear the LORD, * both small and great.

The LORD increase you more and more, * you and your children.

Ye are blessed of the LORD, * Who made heaven and earth.

The heaven of heavens is the LORD'S: * but the earth hath He given to the children of men.

The dead shall not praise Thee, O LORD, * neither all they that go down into the grave.

But we that live bless the LORD, * from this time forth for evermore.

[The Hebrew adds "Alleluia."]

Antiphon. We that live bless the LORD.

Antiphon for Paschal time. Alleluia, Alleluia, Alleluia.

---

[1] In the Hebrew here ends Ps. cxiv. and the next words begin cxv.

Here follows the Chapter. When a special one is not given, the following is used:

CHAPTER. (2 Cor. i. 3.)

BLESSED be God, even the Father of our Lord JESUS Christ, the Father of mercies, and the God of all comfort, Who comforteth us in all our tribulation.

Answer. Thanks be to God.

This Answer is always made after the Chapter.

Then follows the Hymn. When a special one is not given, the following is used:

HYMN.[1]

FATHER of Lights, by Whom each day
Is kindled out of night,
Who, when the heavens were made, didst lay
Their rudiments in light;
Thou, Who didst bind and blend in one
The glistening morn and evening pale,
Hear Thou our plaint, when light is gone,
And lawlessness and strife prevail.

Hear, lest the whelming weight of crime
Wreck us with life in view;
Lest thoughts and schemes of sense and time
Earn us a sinner's due.
So may we knock at Heaven's door,
And strive the immortal prize to win,
Continually and evermore
Guarded without and pure within.

Grant this, O Father, Only Son,
And Spirit, God of grace,
To Whom all worship shall be done
In every time and place.
Amen.

Then is said a Verse and Answer. If a special one is not given, the following is used:

Verse. [2] Let my prayer, O Lord, be set forth.

Answer. As incense before Thee.

Then is said the following Canticle from the Gospel. It has an Antiphon which is always special, and which is either begun or said through the first time before it, according as the Office is Double or not.

THE SONG OF THE BLESSED VIRGIN MARY. (Luke i. 46.)

MY soul * doth magnify the Lord:

And my spirit hath rejoiced * in God my Saviour.

For He hath regarded the lowliness of His handmaiden: * for, behold, from henceforth all generations shall call me blessed.

For He That is Mighty hath done to me great things: * and holy is His name.

And His mercy is on them that fear Him, * from generation to generation.

He hath showed strength with His arm: * He hath scattered the proud in the imagination of their heart.

He hath put down the mighty from their seat, * and exalted them of low degree.

He hath filled the hungry with good things, * and the rich He hath sent empty away.

He hath holpen His servant Israël, * in remembrance of His mercy:

As He spake to our fathers, * to Abraham, and to his seed for ever.

The Hymn, "Glory be to the Father, &c.," is said, and then the Antiphon repeated.

Then is said:

Verse. Hear my prayer, O LORD.

Answer. And let my cry come unto Thee.

Let us pray.

Then follows the Prayer for the day, at the end of which is answered:

Answer. Amen.

Afterwards are made any Commemorations necessary, by the Antiphon for the Song of the Blessed Virgin, the Verse and Answer after the Hymn, and the Prayer, (preceded by "Let us pray,") from the superseded Office which is to be commemorated. After which the following Common Commemorations are made, if required, according to Chapter XXXV. of the General Rubrics.

When more than two Prayers are to be said, the last clause of each (beginning "Through our Lord, &c.," or "Who livest, &c.") is omitted in all except the first and the last, nor is "Amen" answered except after these two.

(Note that if these Commemorations, with the exception of those of St Joseph, and SS. Peter and Paul, be said upon a week-day, kept as such, out of Paschal time, they are preceded by the Commemoration of the Cross, given hereafter at the end of the Lauds of Monday.)

I. Commemoration of the Blessed Virgin Mary.

(This Commemoration is omitted if the Office of the day be of the Blessed Virgin, or if her Little Office is to be said.)

Antiphon. O Holy Mary, be thou an help to the helpless, a strength to the fearful, a comfort to the sorrowful; pray for the people, plead for the clergy, make intercession for all women vowed to God; may all that keep thine holy remembrance, feel the might of thine assistance.

Verse. Pray for us, O holy Mother of God.

Answer. That we may be made worthy of the promises of Christ.

Let us pray.

GRANT, we beseech Thee, O Lord God, unto all Thy servants, that they may continually enjoy soundness both of mind and body, and by the glorious intercession of the Blessed Mary, always a Virgin, may be delivered from present sadness, and enter into the joy of Thine eternal gladness.

From the Octave of the Epiphany to Candlemas, the Antiphon is the same, but the rest is as follows:

Verse. After thy delivery thou still remainest a Virgin undefiled.

Answer. Mother of God, pray for us.

Let us pray.

O GOD, Who, by the fruitful virginity of the Blessed Mary, hast given unto mankind the rewards of everlasting life; grant, we beseech Thee, that we may continually feel the might of her intercession, through whom we have worthily received the

In the Diocese of Hexham St George is not commemorated, but instead the following commemoration is made of St Cuthbert:

Antiphon. Holy Cuthbert, our Protector, grace and glory of our fatherland, look down upon us from Heaven, and pray God for us, that He grant us everlasting joy.

Let us pray.

O GOD, Who wast pleased to make the zeal of Thy Blessed Martyr and Bishop Boniface the mean whereby Thou didst cause many peoples to know Thy Name, mercifully grant unto us who honour his memory to be feelingly holpen by the succour of his protection.

Verse. Peace be within thy walls.

Answer. And prosperity within thy palaces.

Let us pray.

O GOD, from Whom all holy desires, all good counsels, and all just works do proceed; give unto Thy servants that peace which the world cannot give, that both our hearts may be set to obey Thy commandments, and also that by Thee we being defended from the fear of our enemies, may pass our time in rest and quietness. Through our Lord JESUS Christ, Thy Son, Who liveth and reigneth with Thee, in the unity of the Holy Ghost, one God, world without end.

Answer. Amen.

From the Monday after Low Sunday till Rogation Tuesday, instead of the preceding Commemorations, is said the following:

Paschal Commemoration of the Cross.

(Omitted in the Votive Offices of the Blessed Sacrament, and of the Passion.)

Answer. That the LORD reigneth from the tree,[1] Alleluia.

Let us pray.

O GOD, Who didst send Thy Son to suffer death for us upon the Cross, that Thou mightest deliver us from the power of the enemy; grant unto us Thy servants to be made partakers of His Resurrection. Then, unless Compline follow, the Lord's Prayer inaudibly:

OUR Father, Who art in heaven, Hallowed be Thy Name. Thy kingdom come. Thy will be done on earth, as it is in heaven. Give us this day our daily bread. And forgive us our trespasses, as we forgive them that trespass against us. And lead us not into temptation; but deliver us from evil. Amen.

Note. When Office is said in Choir, the service is ended with the Antiphon of the Blessed Virgin Mary every time the Choir is left. Otherwise it is only said as given in this book, after Lauds, (or the aggregation of which Lauds forms a part) and Compline. Whenever it is said, except after Compline, it is preceded by:

Verse. ✠ The Lord give us His peace.

Answer. And life everlasting. Amen.

If the Office of the Dead follow immediately, the above prayer for the Faithful departed, and the "Our Father," are omitted.

Feasts. The above Office, appointed for Sunday, is also, speaking in a general sense, used on all Feasts above the rank of Simples.

Monday.

THE SECOND DAY OF THE WEEK.

All as on Sunday, except as otherwise given here.

The Psalms are as follows:

Antiphon. The Lord hath inclined.

In Paschal time only one Antiphon is said, Alleluia.

Psalm CXIV.

[The Vulgate and the LXX. prefix "Alleluia."]

I AM well pleased, because the LORD hath heard * the voice of my supplication:

Because He hath inclined His ear unto me, * therefore will I call upon Him all my days.

The sorrows of death compassed me: * and the straits of hell found me:

Sorrow and trouble did I find. * Then called I upon the name of the LORD:

O LORD, deliver my soul. * Gra-

ness and hated iniquity, and therefore he died in exile.

Verse. Cast out upon a world of woes,
In exile here we roam.

Answer. O Blessed Edmund, by thy prayers,
Gain us the love of home.

Let us pray.

O GOD, Who in the abundance of Thy goodness toward Thy Church hast made her bright by the illustrious life of Thy blessed Confessor and Bishop Edmund, and gladdened her by his glorious and wondrous works, mercifully grant unto Thy servants that they may be bettered in following after his ensample, and shielded by his protection from all things that may rise up against them.

[1] Ps. xcv. 10, old version.

cious is the LORD, and righteous: yea, our God is merciful.

The LORD preserveth the simple: * I was brought low and He helped me.

Return unto thy rest, O my soul: * for the LORD hath dealt bountifully with thee.

For He hath delivered my soul from death, * mine eyes from tears, and my feet from falling.

I will walk before the LORD * in the land of the living.

Antiphon. [1] The Lord hath inclined His ear unto me.

Second Antiphon. I believed.

If this Antiphon be used the Psalm begins with the words, "Therefore have I spoken."

Psalm CXV.

[In the Hebrew this Psalm is a continuation of the last. The Vulgate and the LXX. prefix "Alleluia."]

I BELIEVED, therefore have I spoken: * but I was greatly afflicted.

I said in my haste: * All men are liars.

What shall I render unto the LORD * for all His benefits toward me?

I will take the cup of salvation, * and call upon the name of the LORD.

I will pay my vows unto the LORD in the presence of all His people. * Precious in the sight of the LORD is the death of His Saints.

O LORD, truly I am Thy servant: * I am Thy servant, and the son of Thine handmaid:

Thou hast loosed my bonds. * I will offer to Thee the sacrifice of thanksgiving, and will call upon the name of the LORD.

I will pay my vows unto the LORD, in the presence of all His people: * in the courts of the LORD's house, in the midst of thee, O Jerusalem!

[Here the Hebrew appends "Alleluia," which the Vulgate and the LXX. prefix to the next Psalm.]

Antiphon. I believed, therefore have I spoken.

Third Antiphon. O praise.

If this Antiphon be used the Psalm begins with the words, "The LORD."

Psalm CXVI.

O PRAISE the LORD, all ye nations: * praise Him, all ye people.

For His merciful kindness is great toward us: * and the truth of the LORD endureth for ever.

[Here the Hebrew appends "Alleluia," which the Vulgate and the LXX. prefix to the next Psalm.]

Antiphon. O praise the LORD, all ye nations.

Fourth Antiphon. I cried.

Psalm CXIX.

[This is the first of the "Songs of Degrees," or "Gradual Psalms." See note to Ps. cxxix., p. 51.]

IN my distress I cried unto the LORD, * and He heard me.

Deliver my soul, O LORD, from lying lips, * and from a deceitful tongue.

What shall be given unto thee, or what shall be done unto thee, * thou false tongue?

Sharp arrows of the mighty, * with hot burning coals.

Woe is me! that my sojourn is long: I dwell with the dwellers of Kedar.[2] * My soul hath long dwelt as an exile

With them that hate peace. I was peaceable: * when I spoke unto them, they fought against me without a cause.

Antiphon. [3] I cried, and He heard me.

Fifth Antiphon. From whence cometh.

Psalm CXX.

[Also a Song of Degrees.]

I WILL lift up mine eyes unto the hills, * from whence cometh mine help.

Mine help cometh from the LORD, * Who made heaven and earth.

He will not suffer thy feet to be moved: * He That keepeth thee will not slumber.

Behold, He That keepeth Israël shall neither slumber nor sleep.

The LORD is thy keeper: the LORD is thy shade * upon thy right hand.

The sun shall not smite thee by day, * nor the moon by night.

The LORD shall keep thee from all evil: * the Lord shall keep thy soul.

The LORD shall keep thy coming in and thy going out, * from this time forth and for evermore.

Antiphon. [4] From whence cometh mine help.

Antiphon in Paschal time. Alleluia, Alleluia, Alleluia.

HYMN.[5]

LORD of unbounded space,
Who, lest the sky and main
Should mix, and heaven should lose its place,
Didst the rude waters chain;

Parting the moist and rare,
That rills on earth might flow
To soothe the angry flame, whene'er
It ravens from below;

Pour on us of Thy grace
The everlasting spring,
Lest our frail steps renew the trace
Of the ancient wandering.

May faith in lustre grow,
And rear her star in heaven,
Paling all sparks of earth below
Unquenched by damps of even.

Grant it, O Father, Son,
And Holy Spirit of grace,
To Whom be glory, Three in One,
In every time and place.
Amen.

All proceeds to the end of the service as on Sunday, except that when Suffrages are said, the following is said before the Commemoration of the Blessed Virgin Mary.

Commemoration of the Cross.

(Omitted in the Offices of the Blessed Sacrament, and of the Passion.)

Antiphon. Through Thy Cross's holy sign, Jesus, guard this soul of mine, from my ghostly enemy.

Verse. Let all the earth worship Thee, and sing unto Thee.

Answer. Let them sing praises to Thy name, O Lord.

Let us pray.

O LORD, we beseech Thee, keep us in continual peace, whom Thou hast vouchsafed to redeem by the tree of the Holy Cross.

Simple Feasts. If the Vespers of a Simple Feast be kept on a Monday, the Office is of the Feast, from the Chapter inclusive.

Tuesday.

The Third Day of the Week.

All as on Sunday, except as otherwise given here.

The Psalms are as follows:

Antiphon. Let us go.

In Paschal time only one Antiphon is said, Alleluia.

Psalm CXXI.

[Intituled "A Song of Degrees, of David."]

I WAS glad when they said unto me: * Let us go into the house of the Lord.

Our feet have been wont to stand * within thy gates, O Jerusalem!

Jerusalem is builded as a city * that is compact together:

Whither the tribes go up, the tribes of the Lord, * the testimony of Israël, to give thanks unto the name of the Lord.

For there are set thrones for judgment, * the thrones for the house of David.

Pray for the peace of Jerusalem: * they shall prosper that love thee.

Peace be within thy walls, * and prosperity within thy palaces.

For my brethren and companions' sakes, * I will now say—Peace be within thee!

Because of the house of the LORD our God, * I will seek thy good.

Antiphon. Let us go with gladness into the house of the LORD.

Second Antiphon. O Thou That dwellest.

Psalm CXXII.

[Intituled "A Song of Degrees."]

UNTO Thee lift I up mine eyes, * O Thou That dwellest in the heavens!

Behold, as the eyes of servants * look unto the hand of their masters,

As the eyes of a maiden unto the hand of her mistress: * so our eyes look unto the LORD our God, until that He have mercy on us.

Have mercy upon us, O LORD, have mercy upon us: * for we are exceedingly filled with contempt.

Our soul is exceedingly filled * with the scorning of those that are at ease, and with the contempt of the proud.

Antiphon. O Thou That dwellest in the heavens, have mercy upon us.

Third Antiphon. Our help.

Psalm CXXIII.

[Intituled "A Song of Degrees," to which the Hebrew and the Targum add "of David," but this ascription of authorship does not occur in the Vulgate or the LXX.]

IF it had not been the LORD Who was on our side—now may Israël say—* if it had not been the LORD Who was on our side,

When men rose up against us: * then they had swallowed us up quick,

When their wrath was kindled against us: * then the waters had overwhelmed us,

The stream had gone over our soul: * then the overwhelming waters had gone over our soul.

Blessed be the LORD, * Who hath not given us as a prey to their teeth.

Our soul is escaped as a bird * out of the snare of the fowlers:

The snare is broken, * and we are escaped.

Our help is in the name of the LORD, * Who made heaven and earth.

Antiphon. [1] Our help is in the name of the LORD.

Fourth Antiphon. Do good, O LORD.

Psalm CXXIV.

[Intituled "A Song of Degrees."]

THEY that trust in the LORD shall be as Mount Zion: * he that dwelleth in Jerusalem shall never be moved.

The mountains are round about Jerusalem: * and the LORD is round about His people, from henceforth, and for ever.

For the Lord will not suffer the rod of the wicked to rest upon the lot of the righteous: * lest the righteous put forth their hands unto iniquity.

Do good, O LORD, to the good, * and to them that are upright in their hearts.

As for such as turn aside unto their crooked ways, the LORD shall lead them forth with the workers of iniquity: * peace be upon Israël!

Antiphon. Do good, O LORD, to the good, and to them that are upright in their hearts.

Fifth Antiphon. We were like.

Psalm CXXV.

[Intituled "A Song of Degrees."]

WHEN the LORD turned again the captivity of Zion, * we were like them that come again from sickness.

Then was our mouth filled with laughter, * and our tongue with singing.

Then said they among the heathen: * The LORD hath done great things for them.

The LORD hath done great things for us: * whereof we are glad.

Turn again our captivity, O LORD, * as the streams in the south.

They that sow in tears * shall reap in joy.

They go forth weeping, * sowing their seed;

They shall doubtless come again with rejoicing, * bringing their sheaves with them.

Antiphon. We were like them that come again from sickness.

Antiphon in Paschal time. Alleluia, Alleluia, Alleluia.

HYMN.[2]

ALL-BOUNTIFUL Creator, Who,
When Thou didst mould the world, didst drain
The waters from the mass, that so
Earth might immovable remain;

That its dull clods it might transmute
To golden flowers in vale or wood,
To juice of thirst-allaying fruit,
And grateful herbage spread for food;

Wash Thou our smarting wounds and hot,
In the cool freshness of Thy grace;
Till tears start forth the past to blot,
And cleanse and calm Thy holy place;

Till we obey Thy full behest,
Shun the world's tainted touch and breath,
Joy in what highest is and best,
And gain a spell to baffle death.

Grant it, O Father, Only Son,
And Holy Spirit, God of grace,
To Whom all glory, Three in One,
Be given in every time and place.
Amen.

Antiphon for the Song of the Blessed Virgin. Let my spirit rejoice * in God my Saviour.

Commemoration of the Cross before the other general Commemorations, and Long Preces at certain times as on Monday.

Simple Feasts. If the Vespers of a Simple Feast be kept on a Tuesday, the Office is of the Feast from the Chapter inclusive.

[1] Ps. cxxiii. 8.

[2] Hymn of the Ambrosian school, hardly altered; translation by the late Card. Newman.

Wednesday.

The Fourth Day of the Week.

All as on Sunday, except as otherwise given here.

The Psalms are as follows:

Antiphon. He shall not be ashamed.

In Paschal time only one Antiphon is said, Alleluia.

Psalm CXXVI.

[Intituled "A Song of Degrees, of Solomon." The LXX. omits the ascription to Solomon.]

EXCEPT the Lord build the house, * they labour in vain that build it:

Except the Lord keep the city, * the watchman waketh but in vain.

It is vain for you to rise up early, * rise up when ye are rested, ye that eat the bread of sorrow:

For He giveth His beloved sleep. Lo, children are an heritage of the Lord, * the fruit of the womb is His reward.

As arrows are in the hand of a mighty man, * so are the children of the out-cast.

Happy is the man that hath his desire satisfied with them: * he shall not be ashamed when he speaketh with his enemies in the gate.

Antiphon. He shall not be ashamed when he speaketh with his enemies in the gate.

Second Antiphon. Blessed.

If this Antiphon be used the Psalm commences with the words, "Is every one."

Psalm CXXVII.

[Intituled "A Song of Degrees."]

BLESSED is every one that feareth the Lord, * that walketh in His ways.

For thou shalt eat the labour of thine hands: * happy shalt thou be and it shall be well with thee.

Thy wife shall be as a fruitful vine * on the sides of thine house:

Thy children like olive plants * round about thy table.

Behold, that thus shall the man be blessed * that feareth the Lord.

The Lord bless thee out of Zion: * and mayest thou see the good of Jerusalem all the days of thy life.

Yea, mayest thou see thy children's children, * and peace upon Israël.

Antiphon. Blessed is every one that feareth the Lord.

Third Antiphon. Many a time.

If this Antiphon be used, the Psalm begins with the words, "Have they afflicted me."

Psalm CXXVIII.

[Intituled "A Song of Degrees."]

MANY a time have they warred against me from my youth—* may Israël now say:—

Many a time have they warred against me from my youth: * yet they have not prevailed against me.

[1] The ploughers ploughed upon my back: * they made long their furrows.

The Lord is righteous, He hath broken the necks of the wicked. * Let them all be confounded and turned back that hate Zion.

Let them be as the grass upon the house-tops, * which withereth before it is plucked up:

Wherewith the mower filleth not his hand, * nor he that bindeth sheaves his bosom.

Neither do they that go by say: The blessing of the Lord be upon you! * we bless you in the name of the Lord!

Antiphon. Many a time have they afflicted me from my youth up.

Fourth Antiphon. Out of the depths.

If this Antiphon be used, the Psalm begins with the words, "Have I cried unto Thee."

Psalm CXXIX.

OUT of the depths have I cried unto Thee, O Lord! * Lord, hear my voice.

Let Thine ears be attentive * to the voice of my supplication.

If Thou, Lord, shouldest mark iniquities, * O Lord, who shall stand?

But there is forgiveness with Thee: * because of Thy law, I wait for Thee, O Lord!

My soul doth wait on His word: * my soul hopeth in the Lord.

From the morning watch even until night * let Israël hope in the Lord:

For with the Lord there is mercy, * and with Him is plenteous redemption.

And He shall redeem Israël, * from all his iniquities.

Antiphon. Out of the depths have I cried unto Thee, O Lord.

Fifth Antiphon. Let Israël hope.

Psalm CXXX.

[Intituled "A Song of Degrees," to which the Hebrew and the Vulgate, but not the Targum or the LXX., add "of David."]

LORD, mine heart is not haughty, * nor mine eyes lofty:

Neither do I exercise myself in great matters, * or in wonderful things that are above me.

If I have not thought lowly of myself—* (but lifted up my soul)—

Even as a child that is weaned from his mother: * so be my soul rewarded.

Let Israël hope in the Lord, * from henceforth and for ever.

Antiphon. Let Israël hope in the Lord.

Antiphon in Paschal time. Alleluia, Alleluia, Alleluia.

Hymn.[1]

O LORD, Who throned in the holy height,
Through plains of ether didst diffuse
The dazzling beams of light,
In soft transparent hues;

Who didst, on the fourth day, in heaven,
Light the fierce cresset of the sun,
And the meek moon at even,
And stars that wildly run;

That they might mark and arbitrate
'Twixt alternating night and day,
And tend the train sedate
Of months upon their way;

Clear, Lord, the brooding night within,
And clean these hearts for Thy abode,
Unlock the spell of sin,
Crumble its giant load.

Grant it, O Father, Only Son,
And Holy Spirit, God of grace,
To Whom all praise be done
In every time and place.
Amen.

Antiphon at the Song of the Blessed Virgin. The Lord hath regarded * my lowliness, and He That is mighty hath done in me great things.

Commemoration of the Cross before the other general Commemorations, and Long Preces in Advent and Lent, and on Fast-days, as on Monday.

Simple Feasts. If the Vespers of a Simple Feast be kept on a Wednesday, the Office is of the Feast from the Chapter inclusive.

Thursday.

The Fifth Day of the Week.

All as on Sunday, except as otherwise given here.

The Psalms are as follows:

Antiphon. And all.

In Paschal time only one Antiphon is said, Alleluia.

Psalm CXXXI.

[Intituled "A Song of Degrees." It reads like a Processional for some translation of the Sacred Ark, perhaps that described in 3 (1) Kings vii. (Saturday before 8th Sunday after Pentecost.)]

LORD, remember David, * and all his meekness:

How he sware unto the LORD: * he vowed a vow unto the God of Jacob;—

Surely I will not come into the tabernacle of mine house, * nor go up into my bed;

I will not give sleep to mine eyes, * or slumber to mine eyelids;

I will not give the temples of mine head any rest, until I find out a place for the LORD, * an habitation for the God of Jacob.

[2] Lo, we heard of it at Ephratah: * we found it in the fields of "the Wood."

We will go into His tabernacle: * we will worship in His footprints.

Arise, O LORD, into Thy rest, * Thou and the ark of Thine holiness.

Let Thy priests be clothed with righteousness, * and let Thy Saints shout for joy.

For Thy servant David's sake, * turn not away the face of Thine Anointed.

The LORD hath sworn in truth unto David, and He will not turn from it: * Of the fruit of thy body will I set upon thy throne.

If thy children will keep My covenant, * and My testimony that I shall teach them,

Then their children for ever * shall sit upon thy throne.

For the LORD hath chosen Zion: * He hath chosen it for His habitation.

This is My rest for ever: * here will I dwell, for I have chosen it.

I will abundantly bless her widows: * I will satisfy her poor with bread.

I will clothe her Priests with salvation: * and her Saints shall shout aloud for joy.

There will I make the horn of David to bud: * I have ordained a lamp for Mine Anointed.

His enemies will I clothe with shame: * but upon him shall My sanctification flourish.

Antiphon. And all his meekness.
Second Antiphon. Behold.

If this Antiphon be used, the Psalm begins with the words, "How good and how pleasant."

Psalm CXXXII.

[Intituled "A Song of Degrees," to which the Hebrew and the Vulgate, but not the Targum or the LXX., add "of David."]

BEHOLD, how good and how pleasant it is * for brethren to dwell together in unity.

[3] It is like the precious ointment upon the head, * that ran down upon the beard, even Aaron's beard,

That went down to the skirts of his garments. * As the dew of Hermon, that descendeth upon the mountains of Zion;[4]

For there the LORD commanded the blessing, * even life for evermore.

Antiphon. Behold, how good and how pleasant it is for brethren to dwell together in unity.
Third Antiphon. Whatsoever.

Psalm CXXXIV.

[To this Psalm is prefixed "Alleluia."]

PRAISE ye the Name of the LORD, * praise Him, O ye servants of the LORD!

Ye that stand in the house of the LORD, * in the courts of the house of our God:

Praise the LORD, for the LORD

---

[1] Hymn of the Ambrosian school, somewhat altered; translation by the late Card. Newman.

[2] This verse relates to the fetching of the ark from Kirjath-jearim, (literally "The town-of-the-woods,") which stood at the borders of the territory of Ephraim, here called Ephratah. See 2 Kings (Sam.) vi. (Thursday, 5th week after Pentecost.)

[3] The reference is to the unction of Aaron with holy chrism at his consecration, described in Lev. viii. 12.

[4] Probably not the mountain at Jerusalem, but one of the chain of Hermon, which is once mentioned elsewhere. Deut. iv. 48.

is good: * sing praises unto His Name, for it is pleasant.

For the LORD hath chosen Jacob unto Himself, * and Israël for His peculiar treasure.

For I know that the LORD is great, * and that our Lord is above all gods.

Whatsoever the LORD pleased, that did He in heaven and in earth, * in the seas, and all deep places:

Causing the vapours to ascend from the ends of the earth: * He maketh lightnings for the rain;

He bringeth the wind out of His treasures. * He smote the first-born of Egypt, from man even unto beast.

He sent tokens and wonders into the midst of thee, O Egypt, * upon Pharaoh and upon all his servants.

He smote great nations, * and slew mighty kings.

[1] Sihon, king of the Amorites, and Og, king of Bashan, * and all the kingdoms of Canaan.

And gave their land for an heritage, * an heritage unto Israël His people.

Thy Name, O LORD, endureth for ever! * Thy memorial, O LORD, throughout all generations!

For the LORD will judge His people, * and will repent Himself concerning His servants.

The idols of the heathen are silver and gold, * the work of men's hands.

A mouth have they, but they speak not: * eyes have they, but they see not.

Ears have they, but they hear not: * neither is there any breath in their mouths.

Let them that make them be made like unto them, * and every one that trusteth in them.

Bless the LORD, O house of Israël! * bless the LORD, O house of Aaron!

Bless the LORD, O house of Levi! * ye that fear the LORD, bless the LORD!

Blessed be the LORD out of Zion, * Which dwelleth at Jerusalem!

[The Hebrew adds "Alleluia," which the Vulgate places at the beginning of the next Psalm.]

Antiphon. Whatsoever the LORD pleased, that did He.

Fourth Antiphon. For His mercy.

Psalm CXXXV.

[It is not improbable that this Psalm was sung at the Dedication of the Temple, for, in 2 Par. (Chron.) vii. 3, it is said that when the congregation on that occasion saw the fire miraculously descending upon the sacrifice, "they bowed themselves with their faces to the ground upon the pavement, and worshipped, and praised 'the LORD, for He is good, for his mercy endureth for ever.'" It looks very like a continuation of the song given by David to certain singers, 1 Par. (Chron.) xvi. 7, especially as it is afterwards said that some of them were chosen "to give thanks to the LORD, because His mercy endureth for ever." Some consider that the latter verses refer to the return from the captivity, but these may be an addition.]

O GIVE thanks unto the LORD, for He is good! * for His mercy endureth for ever.

O give thanks unto the God of gods! * for His mercy endureth for ever.

O give thanks to the Lord of lords! * for His mercy endureth for ever.

To Him Who Alone doeth great wonders—* for His mercy endureth for ever.

To Him That by wisdom made the heavens—* for His mercy endureth for ever.

To Him That spread out the earth above the waters—* for His mercy endureth for ever.

To Him That made great lights — * for His mercy endureth for ever.

The sun to rule by day — * for His mercy endureth for ever.

The moon and stars to rule by night—* for His mercy endureth for ever.

To Him That smote Egypt in their first-born—* for His mercy endureth for ever.

To Him That brought out Israël from among them—* for His mercy endureth for ever.

With a strong hand and with a stretched out arm—* for His mercy endureth for ever.

To Him That divided the Red Sea into parts — * for His mercy endureth for ever.

And made Israël to pass through the midst of it — * for His mercy endureth for ever.

But overthrew Pharaoh and his host in the Red Sea — * for His mercy endureth for ever.

To Him That led His people through the wilderness—* for His mercy endureth for ever.

To Him That smote great kings — * for His mercy endureth for ever.

And slew mighty kings—* for His mercy endureth for ever.

Sihon, king of the Amorites — * for His mercy endureth for ever.

And Og, the king of Bashan — * for His mercy endureth for ever.

And gave their land for an heritage—* for His mercy endureth for ever.

Even an heritage unto Israël His servant—* for His mercy endureth for ever.

Who remembered us in our low estate—* for His mercy endureth for ever.

And hath redeemed us from our enemies—* for His mercy endureth for ever.

Who giveth food to all flesh — * for His mercy endureth for ever.

O give thanks unto the God of heaven! * for His mercy endureth for ever.

O give thanks unto the Lord of lords! * for His mercy endureth for ever.

Antiphon. For His mercy endureth for ever.

Fifth Antiphon. Sing us one of the songs.

---

[1] Sihon, a king of the Amorites, reigning in Heshbon; Og, a giant, king of Bashan. They were both defeated and slain by the Israëlites. Num. xxi.

Psalm CXXXVI.

[The Vulgate and the LXX. connect this Psalm with the name of Jeremiah. They also style it a Psalm of David, the apparent meaning of which would seem to be that it was composed in imitation of his poems.]

BY the rivers of Babylon, there we sat down, yea, we wept, * when we remembered Zion.

We hung our harps upon the willows * in the midst thereof.

For there they that carried us away captive required of us * a song;

And they that had taken us said: * Sing us one of the songs of Zion.

How shall we sing the Lord's song * in a strange land?

If I forget thee, O Jerusalem, * let my right hand forget her cunning—

Let my tongue cleave to the roof of my mouth, * if I do not remember thee,—

If I prefer not Jerusalem * above my chief joy.

Remember, O Lord, the children of Edom, * in the day of Jerusalem:

Who said: Rase it, rase it * even to the foundation thereof.

O daughter of Babylon, doomed to destruction, * happy shall he be that rewardeth thee, as thou hast served us!

Happy shall he be that taketh, * and dasheth thy little ones against the rock.

Antiphon. Sing us one of the songs of Zion.

Antiphon in Paschal time. Alleluia, Alleluia, Alleluia.

Hymn.[1]

O GOD, Who hast given
The sea and the sky,
To fish and to bird
For a dwelling to keep,
Both sons of the waters
One low and one high,
Ambitious of heaven,
Or sunk in the deep;

Save, Lord, Thy servants,
Whom Thou hast new made
In a laver of blood
Lest they trespass and die;
Lest pride should elate,
Or sin should degrade,
And they stumble on earth
Or be dizzied on high.

To the Father, and Son,
And the Spirit be done,
Now and always,
Glory and Praise.
Amen.

Antiphon at the Song of the Blessed Virgin. O God, * show strength with Thine arm: put down the mighty, and exalt them of low degree.

Commemoration of the Cross before the other general Commemorations and Long Preces in Advent and Lent, and on Fast-days, as on Monday.

Friday.

The Sixth Day of the Week.

All as on Sunday, except as otherwise given here.

The Psalms are as follows:

Antiphon. Behold the Angels.

In Paschal time only one Antiphon is said, Alleluia.

Psalm CXXXVII.

[Intituled "Of David," to which the LXX. adds "of Haggai and Zechariah," the meaning apparently being that it was his composition, but that they made some special regulation as to its use.]

I WILL praise Thee, O Lord, with my whole heart: * because Thou hast heard the words of my mouth.

Before the Angels will I sing praise unto Thee. * I will worship toward Thine holy temple, and praise Thy Name.

For Thy loving-kindness, and for Thy truth: * for Thou hast magnified Thine holy Name above every name.

In whatsoever day I call upon Thee, answer me: * Thou wilt strengthen my soul exceedingly.

Let all the kings of the earth praise Thee, O Lord, * for they have heard all the words of Thy mouth.

Yea, let them sing of the ways of the Lord: * that great is the glory of the Lord.

For the Lord is high, yet hath He respect unto the lowly: * but the proud He knoweth from afar.

Though I walk in the midst of trouble Thou wilt revive me: * Thou shalt stretch forth Thine hand against the wrath of mine enemies, and Thy right hand shall save me.

The Lord will give recompense on my behalf: * Thy mercy, O Lord, endureth for ever: forsake not the works of Thine own hands.

Antiphon. Before the Angels will I sing praise unto Thee, O my God.

Second Antiphon. O Lord.

If this Antiphon be used the Psalm commences with the words, "Thou hast searched me."

Psalm CXXXVIII.

[Intituled "A Psalm of David," with a musical (?) direction, the meaning of which is not now certain.]

O LORD, Thou hast searched me, and known me: * Thou knowest my down-sitting and mine up-rising:

Thou understandest my thoughts afar off. * Thou searchest my path, and my line,

And art acquainted with all my ways: * before there is a word on my tongue.

Lo, O Lord, Thou knowest all things both new and old: * Thou hast made me, and laid Thine hand upon me.

Such knowledge is too wonderful for me: * it is high, and I cannot attain unto it.

Whither shall I go from Thy Spirit? * or whither shall I flee from Thy presence?

If I ascend up into heaven, Thou are there: * if I go down into hell, Thou art there.

If I take the wings of the morning, * and dwell in the uttermost parts of the sea;—

---

[1] Hymn of the Ambrosian school, slightly altered; translation by the late Card. Newman.

Even there shall Thine hand lead me, * and Thy right hand shall hold me.

If I say: Surely the darkness shall cover me: * even the night shall be light about me in my pleasures.

For the darkness is not darkness to Thee: and the night shineth as the day: * the darkness and the light to Thee are both alike.

For Thou didst form my reins: * Thou hast upholden me from my mother's womb.

I will praise Thee, for Thy greatness is terrible: * marvellous are Thy works: and that my soul knoweth right well.

My bones were not hid from Thee, when Thou madest me in secret: * nor my substance in the lower parts of the earth.

Thine eyes beheld my substance yet being imperfect: and in Thy book all were written: * day by day were they to be fashioned, when as yet there was none of them.

But to me, O God, Thy friends are exceeding honourable: * their power is waxen right strong.

If I should count them, they are more in number than the sand: * I arose, and am still with Thee.

Surely Thou wilt slay the wicked, O God: * depart from me, ye bloody men.

For ye say in thought: * In vain shall Thy people take Thy cities.

Do not I hate them, O LORD, that hate Thee? * and am not I grieved at those that rise up against Thee?

I hate them with perfect hatred: * they are to me as enemies.

Search me, O God, and know mine heart: * try me and know my thoughts.

And see if there be any wicked way in me: * and lead me in the way everlasting.

Antiphon. O LORD, Thou hast searched me and known me.

Third Antiphon. Preserve me.

Psalm CXXXIX.

[Intituled "A Psalm of David," with the same musical (?) direction as before.]

DELIVER me, O LORD, from the evil man: * preserve me from the wicked man:

Which imagine mischiefs in their heart: * continually are they gathered together for war.

They have sharpened their tongues like a serpent: * adders' poison is under their lips.[1]

Keep me, O LORD, from the hands of the wicked: * and preserve me from the evil man:

Who purpose to overthrow my goings. * The proud have hid a snare for me:

And spread a net with cords: * by the way-side have they set a trap for me.[1]

I said unto the LORD: Thou art my God: * hear the voice of my supplication, O LORD!

O LORD, my Lord, Thou Strength of my salvation, * Thou hast covered mine head in the day of battle!

Give me not up, O LORD, to the desires of the wicked: * they take counsel together against me: forsake me not, lest they exalt themselves.[1]

As for the head of those that compass me about, * let the mischief of their own lips cover them.

Let burning coals fall upon them; let them be cast into the fire: * when they are in trouble they will not be able to stand.

An evil-speaker shall not prosper in the earth: * evil shall hunt the wicked man, to overthrow him.

I know that the LORD will maintain the cause of the afflicted, * and will revenge the poor.

Surely the righteous shall give thanks unto Thy Name; * and the upright shall dwell in Thy presence.

Antiphon. Preserve me, O Lord, from the wicked man.

Fourth Antiphon. LORD.

If this Antiphon be used, the Psalm begins with the words, "I cry unto Thee."

Psalm CXL.

[Intituled "A Psalm of David."]

LORD, I cry unto Thee: hear me! * give ear unto my voice when I cry unto Thee.

Let my prayer be set forth as incense before Thee: * the lifting-up of mine hands as the evening sacrifice.

Set a watch, O LORD, before my mouth: * keep the door of my lips.

Incline not mine heart to any evil word, * to excuse myself in my sins,

With men that work wickedness; * and let me not eat of their dainties.

Let the righteous smite me in kindness: and let him reprove me: * but the oil of the wicked shall not anoint mine head:

For yet my prayer shall be against their lusts. * [2] Their judges shall be left [to their fate beside] in the hands of the rock:

[And] they [that have wreaked their vengeance on them] shall hear my words, that they are mighty. * Like clods of earth broken by the ploughman,

So are our bones scattered at the grave's mouth. * But mine eyes are unto Thee, O LORD, my Lord: in Thee is my trust, leave not my life to destruction.

Keep me from the snare which they have laid for me, * and the gins of the workers of iniquity.

The wicked shall fall into their own net; * as for me, I dwell alone, until I depart hence.

Antiphon. LORD, I cry unto Thee, hear me.

Fifth Antiphon. O Lord, let my portion.

---

[1] SLH.

[2] The Targum is, "They are torn away from the house of instruction by the strong hands of their judges." The Syriac, "And their judges are crushed by the strong hand." Messrs Jennings and Lowe render, "When their judges have been thrown down the sides of the rock, then they shall hear my words as welcome;" and continue, "When the usurping rulers have been deposed, and the disappointed rabble has executed its vengeance on them, it shall bethink it again of David's divinely constituted authority, and gladly recall him to the throne. This is the only rational interpretation of the verse. For the mode of punishment mentioned, cf. 2 Chron. xxv. 12, Luke iv. 29."

Psalm CXLI.

[Intituled "A didactic (?) Psalm of David. A Prayer when he was in the cave," namely, on the same occasion as that on which he wrote Psalm lvi. See note on that Psalm, p. 62.]

I CRIED unto the LORD with my voice: * with my voice unto the LORD did I make supplication.

I pour out my complaint before Him: * before Him also I show my trouble.

When my spirit faileth from me, * then Thou knewest my path.

In the way wherein I walked * have they privily laid a snare for me.

I looked on the right hand, and beheld: * but there was no man that would know me:

Refuge failed me: * and no man cared for my soul.

I cried unto Thee, O LORD! * I said: Thou art my refuge, and my portion in the land of the living.

Attend unto my cry, * for I am brought very low:

Deliver me from my persecutors: * for they are stronger than I.

Bring my soul out of prison, that I may praise Thy Name: * the righteous wait for me, till Thou deal bountifully with me.

Antiphon. O Lord, let my portion be in the land of the living.

Antiphon in Paschal time. Alleluia, Alleluia, Alleluia.

HYMN.[1]

WHOM all obey,—
Maker of man! Who from Thy height
Badest the dull earth bring to light
All creeping things, and the fierce might
Of beasts of prey;—

And the huge make
Of wild or gentler animal,
Springing from nothing at Thy call,
To serve in their due time, and all
For sinners' sake;

Shield us from ill!
Come it by passion's sudden stress,
Lurk in our mind's habitual dress,
Or through our actions seek to press
Upon our will.

Vouchsafe the prize
Of sacred joy's perpetual mood,
And service-seeking gratitude,
And love to quell each strife or feud,
If it arise.

Grant it, O Lord!
To Whom, the Father, Only Son,
And Holy Spirit, Three in One,
In heaven and earth all praise be done
With one accord.
Amen.

Antiphon at the Song of the Blessed Virgin. He hath put down the mighty, * that persecute His Saints: and hath exalted them of low degree, that confess His Christ.

Commemoration of the Cross before the other general Commemorations, and Long Preces in Advent and Lent, and on Fast-days, as on Monday.

Simple Feasts. If the Vespers of a Simple Feast be kept on a Friday, the service is of the Feast from the Chapter inclusive.

Saturday.

THE SABBATH.

All as on Sunday, except as otherwise given here.

The Psalms are as follows:

Antiphon. Blessed.

If this Antiphon be used, the Psalm begins with the words, "Be the LORD my God."

In Paschal time only one Antiphon is said, Alleluia.

Psalm CXLIII.

[Intituled "Of David." The Vulgate and the LXX. add "against Goliath."]

BLESSED be the LORD my God, Which teacheth mine hands to war, * and my fingers to fight.

My goodness, and my fortress: * my strength, and my Deliverer:

My shield, and He in Whom I trust: * Who subdueth my people under me.

LORD, what is man, that Thou takest knowledge of him? * or the son of man, that Thou makest account of him?

Man is like to vanity: * his days are as a shadow that passeth away.

Bow Thy heavens, O LORD, and come down: * touch the mountains, and they shall smoke.

Cast forth the bright lightning, and scatter them: * send out Thine arrows, and make them to quake.

Send Thine hand from above: rid me, and deliver me out of great waters, * from the hand of strange children:

Whose mouth speaketh vanity: * and their right hand is a right hand of falsehood.

I will sing a new song unto Thee, O God; * upon a psaltery of ten strings will I sing praises unto Thee:

Who hast given salvation unto kings: * Who deliveredst David Thy servant from the hurtful sword. Rid me,

And deliver me from the hand of strange children, whose mouth speaketh vanity: * and their right hand is a right hand of falsehood:

Whose sons may be as saplings grown up * in their youth;

Their daughters decked out, * adorned after the similitude of the temple:

Their garners full, * affording stores upon store:

Their sheep fruitful in young, countless in their pastures: * their oxen fat:

There is no breach in their walls, nor inroad: * nor wailing in their streets.

Happy is that people, that is in such a case: * happy is that people whose God is the Lord.

Antiphon. Blessed be the LORD my God.

Second Antiphon. Every day.

Psalm CXLIV.

[Intituled "David's song of praise." It is A B C Darian.]

I WILL extol Thee, my God, O King! * and I will bless Thy name for ever and ever.

---

[1] Hymn of the Ambrosian school, considerably altered; translation by the late Card. Newman.

Every day will I bless Thee; * and I will praise Thy name for ever and ever.

Great is the Lord, and greatly to be praised: * and His greatness is unsearchable.

One generation shall praise Thy works to another, * and shall declare Thy mighty acts.

They shall speak of the glorious honour of Thy Majesty, * and tell of Thy wondrous works.

And men shall speak of the might of Thy terrible acts, * and declare Thy greatness.

They shall abundantly utter the record of Thy great goodness, * and shall sing of Thy righteousness.

The Lord is gracious and full of compassion: * slow to anger and of great mercy.

The Lord is good to all, * and His tender mercies are over all His works.

May all Thy works praise Thee, O Lord! * and let Thy saints bless Thee!

They shall speak of the glory of Thy kingdom, * and talk of Thy power;

To make known to the sons of men Thy mighty acts, * and the glorious majesty of Thy kingdom.

Thy kingdom is an everlasting kingdom, * and Thy dominion endureth throughout all generations!

The Lord is faithful in all His words, * and holy in all His works.

The Lord upholdeth all that fall, * and raiseth up all those that be bowed down.

The eyes of all wait upon Thee, O Lord! * and Thou givest them their meat in due season.

Thou openest Thine hand, * and fillest all things living with plenteousness.

The Lord is righteous in all His ways, * and holy in all His works.

The Lord is nigh unto all them that call upon Him, * to all that call upon Him in truth.

He will fulfil the desire of them that fear Him: * He also will hear their cry and will save them.

The Lord preserveth all them that love Him, * but all the wicked will He destroy.

My mouth shall speak the praise of the Lord; * and let all flesh bless His holy Name for ever and ever.

Antiphon. Every day will I bless Thee, O Lord.

Third Antiphon. While I live.

Psalm CXLV.

[To this Psalm is prefixed "Alleluia." The Vulgate and the LXX. connect it with the names of Haggai and Zechariah.]

PRAISE the Lord, O my soul; while I live will I praise the Lord: * I will sing praises unto my God while I have being.

Put not your trust in princes, * in the son of man, in whom is no help.

His breath goeth forth, and he returneth to his earth: * in that very day their thoughts perish.

Happy is he that hath the God of Jacob for his help, his hope is in the Lord his God: * Who made heaven and earth, the sea, and all that therein is:

Who keepeth truth for ever. Who executeth judgment for the oppressed: * Who giveth food to the hungry.

The Lord looseth the prisoners: * the Lord openeth the eyes of the blind:

The Lord raiseth them that are bowed down: * the Lord loveth the righteous:

The Lord preserveth the strangers; He defendeth the fatherless and widow: * but the way of the wicked He will turn aside.

The Lord shall reign for ever! even thy God, O Zion, * unto all generations!

[The Hebrew adds "Alleluia," which the Vulgate and the LXX. prefix to the next Psalm.]

Antiphon. While I live will I praise the Lord.

Fourth Antiphon. Let the praise of our God.

Psalm CXLVI.

[The Vulgate and the LXX., as stated, prefix "Alleluia," and the LXX. adds "of Haggai and Zechariah."]

PRAISE ye the Lord, for it is good to sing praises: * the praise of our God is pleasant and comely.

The Lord doth build up Jerusalem: * He gathereth together the outcasts of Israël.

He healeth the broken in heart, * and bindeth up their wounds.

He telleth the number of the stars; * and calleth them all by their names.

Great is our Lord, and of great power: * and His understanding is infinite.

The Lord lifteth up the meek; * but He casteth the wicked down to the ground.

Sing unto the Lord with thanksgiving: * sing praise upon the harp unto our God.

Who covereth the heaven with clouds: * and prepareth rain for the earth,

Who maketh grass to grow upon the mountains, * and herbs for the service of men:

He giveth to the beast his food, * and to the young ravens which cry unto Him.

He delighteth not in the strength of an horse; * neither taketh He pleasure in the legs of a man.

The Lord taketh pleasure in them that fear Him, * and in those that hope in His mercy.

Antiphon. Let the praise of our God be pleasant.

Fifth Antiphon. Praise the Lord.

If this Antiphon be used the Psalm begins with the words, "O Jerusalem."

Psalm CXLVII.

[In the Hebrew this is the continuation of the preceding Psalm. The Vulgate and the LXX. prefix "Alleluia," and the LXX. adds "of Haggai and Zechariah."]

PRAISE the Lord, O Jerusalem! * praise thy God, O Zion!

For He hath strengthened the bars of thy gates: * He hath blessed thy children within thee:

He maketh peace in thy borders: * and filleth thee with the finest of the wheat.

He sendeth forth His commandment upon earth: * His word runneth very swiftly.

He giveth snow like wool: * He scattereth the hoar-frost like ashes.

He casteth forth His ice like morsels: * who can stand before His cold?

He sendeth out His word, and melteth them: * He causeth His wind to blow, and the waters flow.

He declareth His word unto Jacob, * His statutes and His judgments unto Israël.

He hath not dealt so with any nation: * neither hath He made known to them His judgments.

[The Hebrew adds "Alleluia," which the Vulgate and the LXX. prefix to the next Psalm.]

Antiphon. Praise the LORD, O Jerusalem.

Antiphon in Paschal time. Alleluia, Alleluia, Alleluia.

From Advent Sunday till the Octave of the Epiphany, and from Septuagesima Sunday till the Octave of Pentecost special Chapters are given.

At other times the following is said:

CHAPTER. (Rom. xi. 33.)

O THE depth of the riches and wisdom and knowledge of God: how unsearchable are His judgments and His ways past finding out!

The following Hymn and Verse and Answer is used during the same seasons as the above Chapter, and likewise from Septuagesima to Lent.

HYMN.[1]

THE red sun is gone,
Thou Light of the heart,
Blessed Three, Holy One,
To Thy servants a sun
Everlasting impart.

There were Lauds in the morn,
Here are Vespers at even:
Oh, may we adorn
Thy temple new born
With our voices in Heaven.

To the Father be praise,
And praise to the Son,
And the Spirit always,
While the infinite days
Of eternity run.
Amen.

Verse. Let the evening prayer ascend unto Thee, O Lord.

Answer. And let there descend upon us Thy mercy.

The following Antiphon is said only from the Octave of the Epiphany till Septuagesima.

Antiphon at the Song of the Blessed Virgin. God hath holpen His servant Israël: * as He spake to Abraham and to his seed, to exalt them of low degree for ever and ever.

Prayer of the succeeding Sunday.

---

[1] Hymn of the Ambrosian school, altered almost beyond recognition; translation by the late Card. Newman.

COMPLINE.[1]

Office for every day in the Week.

At the beginning of Compline the Reader says:

Sir, be pleased to give the blessing.

The Blessing.

May the Almighty Lord grant us a quiet night and a perfect end.
Answer. Amen.

Then is read this Short Lesson.

Short Lesson. (1 Pet. v. 8.)

BRETHREN, be sober, be vigilant: because your adversary the devil as a roaring lion walketh about, seeking whom he may devour: whom resist ye, stedfast in the faith.
But Thou, O Lord, have mercy upon us.
Answer. Thanks be to God.
Verse. ✠ [2] Our help is in the Name of the Lord.
Answer. Who made heaven and earth.

Then the Lord's Prayer is said inaudibly.

OUR Father, Who art in heaven, Hallowed be Thy Name. Thy kingdom come. Thy will be done on earth, as it is in heaven. Give us this day our daily bread. And forgive us our trespasses, as we forgive them that trespass against us. And lead us not into temptation; but deliver us from evil. Amen.

After this is said the General Confession and Absolution.

I CONFESS to God Almighty, to the Blessed Mary, always a Virgin, to the Blessed Michael the Archangel, to the Blessed John the Baptist, to the Holy Apostles Peter and Paul, and to all the Saints, that I have sinned exceedingly in thought, word, and deed, by my fault, by my fault, by my most grievous fault. Therefore I beseech the Blessed Mary, always a Virgin, the Blessed Michael the Archangel, the Blessed John the Baptist, the Holy Apostles Peter and Paul, and all the Saints, to pray to the Lord our God for me.

The Absolution.

ALMIGHTY God have mercy on us, forgive us our sins, and bring us to life everlasting.
Answer. Amen.

✠ MAY the Almighty and merciful Lord grant us pardon, absolution, and remission of all our sins.
Answer. Amen.
Verse. [3] Turn us, O God of our salvation.
Answer. And cause Thine anger toward us to cease.
Verse. ✠ Make haste, O God, to deliver me.
Answer. Make haste to help me, O Lord.
Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, and to the Holy Ghost.
As it was in the beginning, is now, and ever shall be, world without end. Amen. Alleluia.

From the Saturday before Septuagesima Sunday to Maundy Thursday instead of "Alleluia" is said:

Ceaseless praise to Thee be given,
O Eternal King of heaven.

Then follow the Psalms. They are all said under one Antiphon.

Antiphon. Have mercy.
Antiphon in Paschal time. Alleluia.

Psalm IV.

[Intituled "A Psalm of David," with a musical (?) direction of (now) uncertain meaning.]

WHEN I called, the God of my righteousness heard me: * Thou hast enlarged me when I was in distress:
Have mercy upon me, * and hear my prayer.
O ye sons of men, how long will ye be dull of heart? * Why will ye love vanity, and seek after leasing?[4]
But know that the Lord hath set apart for Himself him that is holy: * the Lord will hear me when I call unto Him.
Be ye angry and sin not: * what ye speak in your heart, repent upon your bed.[4]
Offer the sacrifices of righteousness, and put your trust in the Lord. * There be many that say: Who will show us any good?
Lord, Thou hast set upon us the light of Thy countenance. * Thou hast put gladness in my heart,

[1] Compline (Completorium) is the last office of the Church, and is proper to the end of the evening before going to bed, reckoned to be about 9 p.m., but it may be said any time before midnight. It is very frequently recited along with Vespers, thus forming the complete Evening Service of the Church, and it is from this aggregation that the "Evening Prayer" of the Anglican Prayer Book is derived.

[2] Ps. cxxiii. 8.

[3] Ps. lxxxiv. 5.

[4] SLH.

More than in the time that their corn, and wine, and oil * increased.

I will both lay me down in peace, * and sleep,

For Thou, LORD, only * makest me to dwell in safety.

Psalm XXX.

[The first eight verses of Psalm xxx., p. 42.]

IN Thee, O LORD, do I put my trust, let me never be ashamed; * deliver me in Thy righteousness.

Bow down Thine ear to me, * deliver me speedily.

Be Thou to me a God, a Preserver, and an house of defence, * to save me.

For Thou art my strength and my refuge, * and for Thy Name's sake Thou wilt lead me and nourish me.

Thou wilt pull me out of the net, that they have laid privily for me, * for Thou art my Preserver.

Into Thine hands I commend my spirit: * Thou hast redeemed me, O LORD God of truth!

Psalm XC.

[The Vulgate and the LXX. give the heading, "A Psalm of praise of David."]

HE that dwelleth in the help of the Most High, * shall abide under the shadow of the God of heaven.

He will say to the LORD: Thou art my refuge, and my fortress, * my God, in Him will I trust.

For He shall deliver me from the snare of the fowler, * and from the noisome pestilence.

He shall cover thee with His wings, * and under His feathers shalt thou trust:

His truth shall be thy shield. * Thou shalt not be afraid for the terror by night;

For the arrow that flieth by day, for the pestilence that walketh in darkness, * for the evil spirit that wasteth at noon-day.

A thousand shall fall at thy side, and ten thousand at thy right hand: * but it shall not come nigh thee.

Yea, with thine eyes shalt thou behold: * and see the reward of the wicked.

Because Thou, O LORD, art my trust: * thou hast made the Most High thy refuge.

There shall no evil befall thee, * neither shall any plague come nigh thy dwelling.

For He hath given His Angels charge over thee, * to keep thee in all thy ways:

They shall bear thee up in their hands, * lest haply thou dash thy foot against a stone.

Thou shalt tread upon the adder and the cockatrice: * the lion also and the dragon shalt thou trample under feet.

Because he hath set his trust upon Me, therefore will I deliver him: * I will defend him because he hath known My Name.

He shall call upon Me, and I will answer him: * I am with him in trouble: I will deliver him and glorify him.

With long life will I satisfy him: * and show him My salvation.

Psalm CXXXIII.

[Intituled "A Song of Degrees."]

BEHOLD now, bless ye the LORD, * all ye servants of the LORD.

Which stand in the house of the LORD, * even in the courts of the house of our God,

By night. Lift up your hands toward the sanctuary, * and bless the LORD.

The LORD That made heaven and earth, * bless thee out of Zion!

Antiphon. [1] Have mercy upon me, O Lord, and hear my prayer.

Antiphon in Paschal time. Alleluia, Alleluia, Alleluia.

Then is said the following:

HYMN.[2]

NOW that the day-light dies away,
By all Thy grace and love,
Thee, Maker of the world, we pray
To watch our bed above.

Let dreams depart and phantoms fly,
The offspring of the night,
Keep us, like shrines, beneath Thine eye,
Pure in our foes' despite.

This grace on Thy redeemed confer,
Father, Co-equal Son,
And Holy Ghost, the Comforter,
Eternal Three in One.
Amen.

The last verse is sometimes said thus, altered in honour of the Incarnation:

JESU, the Virgin-born, to Thee
Eternal praise be given,
With Father, Spirit, One and Three,
Here as it is in heaven.
Amen.

In Paschal time it is said thus, altered in honour of the Resurrection:

To Father, Son, and Paraclete,
The slain and risen Son,
Be praise and glory, as is meet,
While endless ages run.
Amen.

It is also occasionally otherwise altered, which occasions are marked in their places.

Then follows the

CHAPTER. (Jer. xiv. 9.)

YET Thou, O LORD, art in the midst of us, and Thine holy Name is called upon us:[3] leave us not, O Lord our God.

Answer. Thanks be to God.

---

[1] Ps. iv. 2.

[2] Hymn of the Ambrosian school, very slightly altered; translation by the late Card. Newman.

[3] The allusion seems to be to the invocation of the Name upon Israël by the Priests, Numb. vi. 22. "And the LORD spake unto Moses, saying: Speak unto Aaron, and unto his sons, saying, On this wise shall ye bless the children of Israël, saying unto them—The LORD bless thee and keep thee; the LORD make His face shine upon thee, and be gracious unto thee; the LORD lift up His countenance upon thee, and give thee peace—and they shall put My Name upon the children of Israël; and I will bless them."

Then the Short Responsory.

[1] Into Thine hands, O Lord, I commend my spirit.
Answer. Into Thine hands, O Lord, I commend my spirit.
Verse. Thou hast redeemed us, O LORD God of truth.
Answer. I commend my spirit.
Verse. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, and to the Holy Ghost.
Answer. Into Thine hands, O Lord, I commend my spirit.
Verse. [2] Keep us, O Lord, as the apple of the eye.
Answer. Hide us under the shadow of Thy wings.

From the Saturday after Easter inclusive to the Saturday after Pentecost exclusive, the above is said thus:

Into Thine hands, O Lord, I commend my spirit. Alleluia, Alleluia.

Verse. Thou hast redeemed us, O LORD God of truth.
Answer. Alleluia, Alleluia.

Answer. Into Thine hands, O Lord, I commend my spirit. Alleluia, Alleluia.
Verse. Keep us, O Lord, as the apple of the eye. Alleluia.
Answer. Hide us under the shadow of Thy wings. Alleluia.

Then is said the following Canticle from the Gospel, with its Antiphon.

Antiphon. O Lord, keep us.

THE SONG OF SIMEON. (Luke ii. 29.)

[Uttered by Simeon at the presentation of our LORD in the Temple. "Then took he Him up in his arms, and blessed God, and said :—"]

LORD, now lettest Thou Thy servant depart in peace, * according to Thy word :

For mine eyes have seen * Thy Salvation,

Which Thou hast prepared * before the face of all people ;

A Light to lighten the Gentiles, * and the glory of Thy people Israël.

The Doxology, "Glory be to the Father, &c.," is said.

Antiphon. O Lord, keep us waking, guard us sleeping: that we may wake with Christ and rest in peace.

In Paschal time, "Alleluia."

Then follow these short prayers, called the Preces. They are omitted on Doubles and within Octaves. In Advent, Lent, and the Ember Days they are said kneeling.

Kyrie eléison.
Answer. Christe eléison.
Kyrie eléison.

OUR Father, (inaudibly,) Who art in heaven, Hallowed be Thy Name. Thy kingdom come. Thy will be done on earth, as it is in heaven. Give us this day our daily bread. And forgive us our trespasses, as we forgive them that trespass against us. (Aloud.)

Answer. But deliver us from evil.

From thence He shall come to judge the quick and the dead. I believe in the Holy Ghost, the Holy Catholic Church, the Communion of Saints, the Forgiveness of sins, (aloud)
Verse. The Resurrection of the body.
Answer. And the Life everlasting. Amen.
Verse. [3] Blessed art Thou, O Lord God of our fathers,
Answer. And to be praised and glorified above all for ever.

Answer. To keep us without sin.
Verse. Have mercy upon us, O LORD.
Answer. Have mercy upon us.
Verse. O LORD, let Thy mercy lighten upon us.
Answer. As our trust is in Thee.

Here the service is resumed, when the above has been omitted.

Verse. Hear my prayer, O LORD.
Answer. And let my cry come unto Thee.

Let us pray.

VISIT, we beseech Thee, O Lord, this habitation,[4] and drive far from it all snares of the enemy : let Thine holy Angels dwell herein, to keep us in peace, and may Thy blessing be always upon us. Through our Lord JESUS Christ, Thy Son, Who liveth and reigneth with Thee, in the unity of the Holy Ghost, one God, world without end.
Answer. Amen.
Verse. Hear my prayer, O LORD.
Answer. And let my cry come unto Thee.

[1] Ps. xxx. 6.

[2] Ps. xvi. 8.

[4] This Office was originally the last Prayer before going to rest for the monks of the Order of St Benedict.

Verse. Bless we the Lord.
Answer. Thanks be to God.

The Blessing.

May the Almighty and Merciful Lord, ✠ the Father, the Son, and the Holy Ghost, bless and keep us.
Answer. Amen.

Then follows immediately one of these Four Antiphons of the Blessed Virgin Mary, according to the season of the year.

I. From the Vespers of the Saturday before Advent Sunday till those of Candlemas, both inclusive.

Antiphon. Maiden! Mother of Him Who redeemed us, thou that abidest
Heaven's open gate, and the Star of the Sea, come, succour the fallen!
Fallen indeed we are, but fain would rise by thy succour.
Thou that beyond nature's course hast borne in time the Eternal;
Thou that a Virgin before, and after that childbirth remainest,
From the Archangel's lips the quickening message receiving,
Mother of JESUS and us, turn thine eyes of mercy on sinners.

Verse. The Angel of the Lord announced unto Mary,
Answer. And she conceived of the Holy Ghost.

Let us pray.

WE beseech Thee, O Lord, pour Thy grace into our hearts; that, as we have known the Incarnation of Thy Son JESUS Christ by the message of an Angel, so by His Passion and Cross we may be brought unto the glory of His Resurrection. Through the same Christ our Lord.
Answer. Amen.

From the First Vespers of Christmas inclusive, the Verse and Answer and Prayer are as follows:

Verse. After thy delivery thou still remainest a Virgin undefiled.
Answer. Mother of God, pray for us.

Let us pray.

O GOD, Who, by the fruitful virginity of the Blessed Mary, hast given unto mankind the rewards of everlasting life; grant, we beseech Thee, that we may continually feel the might of her intercession; through whom we have worthily received the Author of our life, our Lord JESUS Christ Thy Son.
Answer. Amen.

II. From the Compline of the 2nd day of February inclusive to Maundy Thursday exclusive.

Antiphon. Hail, O Mary, Queen of heaven,
Queen of Angel worlds on high,
Hail, O Rod to Jesse given,
Blessed Portal of the sky,

Hail, O Lady, bright and glorious,
Clad in beauty, pure and true,
Virgin! o'er sin's stain victorious,
Sinners for thy succour sue.

Verse. Holy Virgin, my praise by thee accepted be.
Answer. Give me strength against thine enemies.

Let us pray.

MOST merciful God, grant, we beseech Thee, a succour unto the frailty of our nature, that as we keep ever alive the memory of the holy Mother of God, so by the help of her intercession we may be raised up from the bondage of our sins. Through the same Christ our Lord.
Answer. Amen.

III. From the First Compline of Easter inclusive till the First Vespers of Trinity Sunday exclusive.

Antiphon. Rejoice! rejoice! thou Queen of Heaven, Alleluia,
For He That thee for Son was given, Alleluia,
As He promised is arisen. Alleluia.
Mother, pray to Him for us, Alleluia.

Verse. Be glad and rejoice, O Virgin Mary, Alleluia,
Answer. For the Lord is risen indeed. Alleluia.

Let us pray.

O GOD, Who dost vouchsafe to gladden the whole world by the resurrection of Thy Son our Lord JESUS Christ; grant, we beseech Thee, that by the help of His Mother the Virgin Mary, we may finally attain unto the gladness of life everlasting. Through the same Christ our Lord.
Answer. Amen.

IV. From the First Vespers of Trinity Sunday inclusive till the Vespers of Saturday before Advent Sunday exclusive.

Antiphon. Hail, O Queen, Mother of mercy! hail, our life, our sweetness, and our hope. To thee we cry, the banished sons of Eve. Toward thee we sigh, weeping and groaning in this vale of tears. Ah, then, thou our Advocate, turn on us those merciful eyes of thine! And, after this our exile, show to us JESUS, the blessed Fruit of thy womb. O most merciful, O most gracious, O most sweet Virgin Mary![1]

Verse. Pray for us, holy Mother of God.
Answer. That we may be made worthy of the promises of Christ.

---

[1] Of these four Antiphons, "Maiden Mother" is ascribed to Hermann the Cripple, a monk of Reichenau, who died A.D. 1052. The authorship of the second is unknown: it seems to date from about the eleventh century. The date and authorship of the third are likewise unknown; but a legend has become attached to it, to the effect that St Gregory the Great heard the three first lines uttered by an angel, and himself added the fourth, on the same occasion on which was instituted the procession upon St Mark's Day. The authorship of "Hail, O Queen" is disputed. The last clause is usually admitted to be an exclamation uttered by St Bernard of Clairvaux in the cathedral of Spires. But the authorship of the rest is disputed, some ascribing it to Hermann the Cripple, others to one Peter of Monsoro, bishop of Compostella, others to one Adhemar, bishop of Podium (Puy-en-Velay). It seems to have been well known, at least in Spain, early in the twelfth century.

Let us pray.

O ALMIGHTY and everlasting God, Who, by the co-operation of the Holy Ghost, didst make ready both the body and soul of the glorious Virgin and Mother Mary worthily to become a meet dwelling for Thy Son; grant that as we rejoice in her memory, so by her pitiful intercession we may be delivered from the evils that continually hang over us, and finally from everlasting death. Through the same Christ our Lord.

Answer. Amen.

After each of these Antiphons is said this Blessing:

God's most mighty strength alway
Be His people's staff and stay.

Answer. Amen.

Lastly, whether Mattins be to follow immediately, or not, the Lord's Prayer, the Angelic Salutation, and the Apostles' Creed are said inaudibly.

OUR Father, Who art in heaven, Hallowed be Thy Name. Thy kingdom come. Thy will be done on earth, as it is in heaven. Give us this day our daily bread. And forgive us our trespasses, as we forgive them that trespass against us. And lead us not into temptation; but deliver us from evil. Amen.

HAIL, Mary, full of grace; the Lord is with thee: blessed art thou among women, and blessed is the fruit of thy womb, JESUS.

Holy Mary, Mother of God, pray for us sinners, now, and at the hour of our death. Amen.

I BELIEVE in God, the Father Almighty, Maker of heaven and earth. And in JESUS Christ, His Only Son, our Lord, Who was conceived by the Holy Ghost, born of the Virgin Mary, suffered under Pontius Pilate, was crucified, dead, and buried: He descended into hell: the third day He rose again from the dead: He ascended into heaven, and sitteth at the right hand of God the Father Almighty: from thence He shall come to judge both the quick and the dead. I believe in the Holy Ghost, the Holy Catholic Church, the Communion of Saints, the Forgiveness of sins, the Resurrection of the body, and the life everlasting. Amen.

Thus ends the Office of Compline throughout the year, in which Office the words, "May the souls, &c.," are omitted, and the Verse and Answer, "The Lord give us, &c.," are not said before the Antiphon of the Blessed Virgin.

The Proper Office of the Season.

Advent, or Coming-Time.

In Advent the Common Commemorations are never said at Lauds and Vespers. During Advent Simple Feasts are not observed, but merely commemorated. If a Feast of a higher rank falls after Advent Sunday it is commemorated; or transferred to the next day not so impeded, except a Feast of the First Class, of which the Immaculate Conception is one.

Saturday before Advent Sunday.

VESPERS.

All of the Saturday except the following.
The Chapter is taken from Lauds.

Hymn.[1]

CREATOR of the starry pole,
Saviour of all who live,
And light of every faithful soul,
JESU, these prayers receive.

Who sooner than our foe malign
Should triumph, from above
Didst come, to be the medicine
Of a sick world, in love;

And the deep wounds to cleanse and cure
Of a whole race, didst go,
Pure Victim, from a Virgin pure,
The bitter Cross unto.

Who hast a Name, and hast a Power,
The height and depth to sway,
And Angels bow, and devils cower,
In transport or dismay;

Thou too shalt be our Judge at length;
Lord, in Thy grace bestow
Thy weapons of celestial strength,
And snatch us from the foe.

Honour and glory, power and praise,
To Father, and to Son,
And Holy Ghost, be paid always,
The Eternal Three in One. Amen.

Verse. [2] Drop down, ye heavens, from above, and let the skies pour down the Righteous One.

Answer. Let the earth open, and let her bring forth the Saviour.

Antiphon at the Song of the Blessed Virgin. [3] Behold, the name of the LORD * cometh from far, and the whole earth is full of His glory.

Prayer from Lauds.

Advent Sunday.

The First Lord's Day in Coming-Time.

MATTINS.

Invitatory. The Lord, He is our King that is to come. * O come, let us worship Him.

Hymn.[4]

SUPERNAL Word, proceeding from
The Eternal Father's breast;
And in the end of ages come,
To aid a world distrest;

Enlighten, Lord, and set on fire,
Our spirits with Thy love,
That, dead to earth, they may aspire
And live to joys above.

That, when the judgment-seat on high
Shall fix the sinner's doom,
And to the just a glad voice cry,
Come to your destined home;

Safe from the black and yawning lake
Of restless, endless pain,
We may the face of God partake,
The bliss of heaven attain.

To God the Father, God the Son,
And Holy Ghost, to Thee,
As heretofore, when time is done,
Unending glory be. Amen.

FIRST NOCTURN.

First Lesson. (Isa. i. 1.)

THE vision of Isaiah, the son of Amoz, which he saw concerning Judah and Jerusalem, in the days of [5] Uzziah, Jotham, Ahaz, and Hezekiah, kings of Judah. Hear, O heavens, and give ear, O earth, for the LORD hath spoken: I have nourished and brought up children: and they have rebelled against Me. The ox knoweth his owner, and the ass his master's crib: but Israël doth not know Me, and My people doth not consider.

First Responsory.

I look from afar, and, behold, I see the Power of God coming, [6] and a cloud covering all the land. [7] Go ye out to meet Him, and say: [8] Tell us if Thou art He, [9] That shalt reign over God's people Israël.

Verse. [10] Both low and high, rich and poor together.

Answer. Go ye out to meet Him, and say.

Verse. [11] Give ear, O Shepherd of Israël, Thou That leadest Joseph like a flock.

---

[1] Another hymn of the Ambrosian school, altered almost beyond recognition; one verse omitted; translation by the late Card. Newman.

[2] Isa. xlv. 8.

[3] Isa. xxx. 27.

[4] Hymn of the Ambrosian school, very much altered; translation by the late Card. Newman.

[5] Uzziah, Jotham, and Ahaz were the great-grandfather, grandfather, and father of their successor on the throne of Judah, Hezekiah, concerning whom see the eleventh week after Pentecost. According to the common tradition, Isaiah survived Hezekiah and was martyred under his son Manasseh. Lowth thinks that the prophecy which forms the first chapter was uttered towards the end of the reign of Jotham when "the LORD began to send, against Judah, Rezin, the king of Syria, and Pekah, the son of Remaliah," king of Israël. 4 (2) Kings xv. 37.

[6] Ezek. xxxviii. 9.

[7] Matth. xxv. 6.

[8] Matth. xi. 3; Luke vii. 19.

[9] 1 Kings (Sam.) ix. 17.

[10] Ps. xlviii. 3.

[11] Ps. lxxix. 2.

Answer. Tell us if Thou art He.

Verse. [1] Lift up your gates, O ye princes; and be ye lift up, ye everlasting doors, and the King of glory shall come in.

Answer. That shalt reign over God's people Israël.

Verse. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, and to the Holy Ghost.

Answer. I look from afar, and, behold, I see the Power of God coming, and a cloud covering all the land. Go ye out to meet Him, and say: Tell us if Thou art He, That shalt reign over God's people Israël.

Second Lesson.

WOE to the sinful nation, a people laden with iniquity, a seed of evil-doers, children that are corrupters: they have forsaken the LORD, they have provoked the Holy One of Israël unto anger: they are gone away backward. Upon what part shall I smite you any more, ye that revolt more and more? The whole head is sick, and the whole heart faint: from the sole of the foot even unto the head there is no soundness in it, but wounds and bruises and putrifying sores: they have not been closed, neither bound up, neither mollified with ointment.

Second Responsory.

[2] I saw in the night visions, and, behold, the Son of man came with the clouds of heaven, and there was given Him a Kingdom, and glory: and all people, nations, and languages shall serve Him.

Verse. His dominion is an everlasting dominion which shall not pass away, and His Kingdom that which shall not be destroyed.

Answer. And all people, nations, and languages shall serve Him.

Third Lesson.

YOUR country is desolate, your cities are burned with fire; your land, strangers devour it in your presence, and it is desolate, as overthrown by strangers. And the daughter of Zion is left as a cottage in a vineyard, and as a lodge in a garden of cucumbers, and as a besieged city. Except the LORD of hosts had left unto us a seed, we should have been as Sodom, and we should have been like unto Gomorrah.

Third Responsory.

[3] The Angel Gabriel was sent to Mary, a Virgin espoused to Joseph, to bring unto her the word of the Lord: and [4] when the Virgin saw the light she was afraid. Fear not, Mary, for thou hast found grace from the Lord. Behold, thou shalt conceive and bring forth a son, and He shall be called the Son of the Highest.

Verse. The Lord God shall give unto Him the throne of His father David, and He shall reign over the house of Jacob for ever.

Answer. Behold, thou shalt conceive, and bring forth a son, and He shall be called the Son of the Highest.

Verse. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, and to the Holy Ghost.

Answer. Behold, thou shalt conceive and bring forth a son, and He shall be called the Son of the Highest.

SECOND NOCTURN.

Fourth Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Sermons of [5] Pope St Leo [the Great,] (8th on the December Fast, and almsgiving.)

OUR Saviour Himself instructed His disciples concerning the times and seasons of the coming of the Kingdom of God and the end of the world, and He hath given the same teaching to the Church by the mouth of His Apostles. In connection with this subject then, Our Lord biddeth us beware lest we let our hearts grow heavy through excess of meat and drink, and worldly thoughts. Dearly beloved brethren, we know how that this warning applieth particularly to us. We know that that day is coming, and though for a season we know not the very hour, yet this we know, that it is near.

Fourth Responsory.

[6] Hail, Mary, full of grace; the Lord is with thee: the Holy Ghost shall come upon thee, and the power of the Highest shall overshadow thee: therefore also that Holy Thing Which shall be born of thee shall be called the Son of God.

Verse. How shall this be, seeing I know not a man? And the Angel answered and said unto her,—

Answer. The Holy Ghost shall come upon thee, and the power of the Highest shall overshadow thee; therefore also that Holy Thing Which shall be born of thee shall be called the Son of God.

Fifth Lesson.

LET every man then make himself ready against the coming of the Lord, so that He may not find him making his belly his god, or the world his chief care. Dearly beloved brethren, it is a matter of every day experience that fulness of drink dulleth the keenness of the mind, and that excess of eating unnerveth the strength of the will. The very stomach protesteth that gluttony doth harm to the bodily health, unless temperance get the better of desire, and the thought of the indigestion afterward check the indulgence of the moment.

Fifth Responsory.

[7] We look for the Saviour, the Lord JESUS Christ; Who shall change our vile body, that it may be fashioned like unto His glorious Body.

Verse. [8] We should live soberly, and righteously, and godly in this present world, looking for that blessed hope, and the glorious appearing of the great God.

Answer. Who shall change our vile body, that it may be fashioned like unto His glorious Body.

Sixth Lesson.

THE body without the soul hath no desires; its sensibility cometh from the same source as its movements. And it is the duty of a man with a reasonable soul to deny something to his lower nature and to keep back the outer man from things unseemly. Then will his soul free from fleshly cravings, sit often at leisure in the palace of the mind, dwelling on the wisdom of God. There, when the roar and rattle of earthly cares are stilled, will she feed on holy thoughts and entertain herself with the expectation of the everlasting joy.

[1] O my Lord, send I pray Thee, Him Whom Thou wilt send; see the affliction of Thy people. As Thou hast promised, come and deliver us.

Verse. [2] Give ear, O Shepherd of Israël, Thou That leadest Joseph like a flock, Thou That sittest upon the Cherubim!

Answer. As Thou hast promised, come.

Verse. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, and to the Holy Ghost.

Answer. And deliver us.

THIRD NOCTURN.

Seventh Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Holy Gospel according to Luke (xxi. 25.)

AT that time: JESUS said unto His disciples; There shall be signs in the sun, and in the moon, and in the stars, and upon the earth distress of nations. And so on.

Homily by [3] Pope St Gregory [the Great,] (1st on the Gospels.)

Our Lord and Saviour wisheth to find us ready at His second coming. Therefore He telleth us what will be the evils of the world as it groweth old, that He may wean our hearts from worldly affections. Here we read what great convulsions will go before the end, that, if we will not fear God in our prosperity, we may at least be scourged into fearing His judgment when it is at hand.

Seventh Responsory.

[4] Behold, the Virgin shall conceive, and bear a son, saith the Lord, [5] and His name shall be called Wonderful, the Mighty God.

Verse. He shall sit upon the throne of David, and upon his kingdom for ever.

Answer. And His name shall be called Wonderful, the Mighty God.

Eighth Lesson.

IMMEDIATELY before the passage which hath just been read from the Gospel, are found the following words of our Lord,—"Nation shall rise against nation, and kingdom against kingdom, and great earthquakes shall be in divers places, and pestilences and famines." Then, after a few more verses, cometh to-day's Gospel. "There shall be signs in the sun, and in the moon, and in the stars; and upon the earth distress of nations with perplexity, the sea and the waves roaring." Now some of these things are come to pass already, and we fear the others are not far off.

Eighth Responsory.

[6] Hear the word of the LORD, O ye nations, and declare it in the ends of the earth, and in the isles afar off, and say: Our Saviour shall come.

Verse. Declare it and make it known, lift up your voice and cry aloud.

Answer. And in the isles afar off, and say: Our Saviour shall come.

Ninth Lesson.

IN these our days we see nation rise against nation, and their distress over all the earth, more than we read in books hath ever come to pass of old time. Ye know also how often we hear of earthquakes overwhelming countless cities in other parts of the world. As for pestilences, we suffer from them ourselves, with hardly any intermission. As yet we do not see signs in the sun, and in the moon, and in the stars; but the changes of seasons and climates warn us that we may look for these also before long.

The Hymn, "We praise Thee, O God," is not said in the Office of the Season till Christmas. A Ninth Responsory is said instead.

Ninth Responsory.

[7] Behold, the days come, saith the LORD, that I will raise unto David a righteous Branch; and a King shall reign in wisdom and shall execute judgment and justice in the earth: and this is His name whereby He shall be called; The LORD our Righteous one.

Verse. In His days Judah shall be saved, and Israël shall dwell safely.

Answer. And this is His name whereby He shall be called.

Verse. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, and to the Holy Ghost.

Answer. The LORD our Righteous one.

LAUDS.

First Antiphon. [8] In that day * the mountains shall drop down sweet wine, and the hills shall flow with milk and honey. Alleluia.

Second Antiphon. [9] Sing, O daughter of Zion, * and rejoice with all the heart, O daughter of Jerusalem. Alleluia.

Third Antiphon. [10] Behold, the LORD shall come, * and all His saints with Him; and it shall come to pass in that day that the light shall be great. Alleluia.

Chapter. (Rom. xiii. 11.)

MY brethren, it is now high time to awake out of sleep. For now is our salvation nearer than when we believed.

Hymn.[12]

HARK, a joyful voice is thrilling,
And each dim and winding way
Of the Ancient Temple filling;
Dreams, depart! for it is day.

Christ is coming! from thy bed,
Earth-bound soul, awake and spring,—
With the sun new-risen to shed
Health on human suffering.

Lo! to grant a pardon free,
Comes a willing Lamb from Heaven;
Sad and tearful, hasten we,
One and all, to be forgiven.

MATTINS.

Invitatory and Hymn as on the last Sunday.

First Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Book of the Prophet Isaiah (i. 16.)

[5] WASH you, make you clean, put away the evil of your imaginations from before Mine eyes; cease to do evil, learn to do well: seek judgment, relieve the oppressed, judge the fatherless, plead for the widow. Come now, and let us reason together, saith the LORD. Though your sins be as scarlet, they shall be as white as snow; and though they be red like crimson, they shall be as wool.

First Responsory.

Receive, O Virgin Mary, receive the word of the Lord, which is sent thee by His Angel: thou shalt conceive, and shalt bring forth God and Man together. And thou shalt be called blessed among all women.
Verse. Thou shalt bring forth a son, and remain a maiden undefiled: thou shalt conceive and be a Mother, still Virgin unspotted.
Answer. And thou shalt be called blessed among all women.

Second Lesson.

IF ye be willing and obedient, ye shall eat the good of the land. But if ye refuse and provoke Me to anger, ye shall be devoured with the sword, for the mouth of the LORD hath spoken it. How is the faithful city become an harlot! It was full of judgment; righteousness lodged in it; but now murderers. Thy silver is become dross; thy wine mixed with water. Thy princes are rebellious and companions of thieves; every one loveth gifts and followeth after rewards. They judge not the fatherless, neither doth the cause of the widow come unto them.

Second Responsory.

Verse. [7] In His days shall righteousness flourish and abundance of peace.
Answer. And will have mercy upon His afflicted.

MATTINS.

First Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Book of the Prophet Isaiah (ii. 1.)

[3] THE word that Isaiah, the son of Amoz, saw concerning Judah and Jerusalem. And it shall come to pass in the last days that the mountain of the LORD'S house shall be established in the top of the mountains and shall be exalted above the hills: and all nations shall flow unto it. And many people shall go and say: Come ye, and let us go up to the mountain of the LORD, and to the house of the God of Jacob; and He will teach us of His ways, and we will walk in His paths, for out of Zion shall go forth the law, and the word of the LORD from Jerusalem.

First Responsory.

[4] O ye mountains of Israël, shoot forth your branches and blossom and bring forth fruit. [5] The day of the LORD is at hand to come.

Verse. Drop down, ye heavens, from above, and let the skies pour down the Righteous One: let the earth open, and let her bring forth the Saviour.

Answer. The day of the LORD is at hand to come.

Second Lesson.

AND He shall judge among the nations, and shall rebuke many people: and they shall beat their swords into ploughshares, and their spears into pruning-hooks: nation shall not lift up sword against nation, neither shall they learn war any more. O house of Jacob, come ye, and let us walk in the light of the LORD. For Thou hast forsaken Thy people, the house of Jacob; because they be replenished as aforetime, and have soothsayers like the Philistines, and cleave unto the children of strangers.

Second Responsory.

Let the mountains break forth into singing, and the hills bring forth righteousness: for the Lord, the Light of the world, cometh with power.

Verse. [6] Out of Zion shall go forth the law, and the word of the LORD from Jerusalem.

Answer. For the Lord, the Light of the world, cometh with power.

Third Lesson.

THEIR land is full of silver and gold, neither is there any end of their treasures: their land also is full of horses, neither is there any end of their chariots. Their land also is full of idols: they worship the work of their own hands, that which their own fingers have made. And the mean man boweth down, and the great man humbleth himself; therefore forgive them not.

MATTINS.

Invitatory and Hymn as on Sunday.

First Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Book of the Prophet Isaiah (iii. 1.)

FOR behold, the Lord, the LORD of Hosts, doth take away from Jerusalem and from Judah the strength and the might, the whole stay of bread and the whole stay of water: the mighty man and the man of war: the judge, and the Prophet, and the soothsayer, and the ancient: the captain of fifty, and the honourable man, and the counsellor, and the cunning artificer, and the eloquent orator. And I will give children to be their princes; and [3] boys shall rule over them.

First Responsory.

Christ our King cometh. [4] And John hath testified of Him, that He is the Lamb that should come!

Verse. [5] The kings shall shut their mouths at Him, all nations shall serve Him.

Answer. And John hath testified of Him, that He is the Lamb that should come!

Second Lesson.

AND the people shall oppress every one another, and every one his neighbour: the child shall behave himself proudly against the ancient, and the base against the honourable. For a man shall take hold of his brother of the house of his father, saying; Thou hast clothing, be thou our ruler: and let this ruin be under thy hand. And in that day shall he swear, saying: I am not an healer, and in my house is neither bread, nor clothing: make me not a ruler of the people.

Second Responsory.

Of a long time said Ezekiel the Prophet: [6] I saw the gate shut: behold, God went forth from it before the ages for the salvation of the world. And it was shut again, for it is a figure of the Virgin, in that after child-birth she remained a Virgin still.

Verse. The Lord alone shall enter by the gate that thou sawest.

Answer. And it was shut again, for it is a figure of the Virgin, in that after child-birth she remained a Virgin still.

Third Lesson.

FOR Jerusalem is ruined, and Judah is fallen: because their tongue and their imaginations are against the LORD, to provoke the eyes of His glory. The show of their countenance doth witness against them; and they declare their sin as Sodom, they hide it not. Woe unto their soul, for their evil is repaid unto them. Say unto the righteous that it shall be well with him, for he shall eat the fruit of his doings. Woe unto the wicked, it shall be ill with him; for the reward of his hands shall be given him.

First Responsory.

Second Lesson. [1] (v. 1.)

I WILL sing to my well-beloved a song of my beloved touching his vineyard. My well-beloved hath a vineyard in a very fruitful hill. And he fenced it, and gathered out the stones thereof, and planted it with the choicest vine, and built a tower in the midst of it, and also made a wine-press therein: and he looked that it should bring forth grapes, and it brought forth wild grapes. And now, O inhabitants of Jerusalem, and men of Judah, judge betwixt me and my vineyard. First Lesson.

IN the year that King Uzziah died, I saw the Lord sitting upon a throne, high and lifted up, and His train filled the temple. Above it stood the [2] Seraphim; each one had six wings; with twain he covered his face, and with twain he covered his feet, and with twain he did fly. Second Lesson.

AND the posts of the door moved at the voice of him that cried, and the house was filled with smoke. Then said I: Woe is me, for I am silent, because I am a man of unclean lips, and I dwell in the midst of a people of unclean lips, and mine eyes have seen the King, the LORD of hosts. Then flew one of the Seraphim unto me, having a live coal in his hand, which he had taken with the tongs from off the altar. First Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Book of the Prophet Isaiah (vii. 1.)

AND it came to pass in the days of Ahaz, the son of Jotham, the son of Uzziah, king of Judah, that Rezin, the king of Syria, and Pekah, the son of Remaliah, king of Israël, went up toward Jerusalem, to war against it: but could not prevail against it. And it was told the house of David, saying: Syria is confederate with Ephraim. And his heart was moved, and the heart of his people, as the trees of the wood are moved with the wind. Then said the LORD unto Isaiah: Go forth to meet Ahaz, thou, and he that is left, even Jashub thy son, at the end of the conduit of the upper pool, in the highway of the fuller's field.

First Responsory.

Behold, the Virgin, &c., (Seventh Responsory on Sunday.)

Second Lesson.

AND say unto him: Take heed and be quiet: fear not; neither be faint-hearted for the two tails of these smoking firebrands, for the fierce anger of Rezin, king of Syria, and of the son of Remaliah; because Syria, Ephraim, and the son of Remaliah, have taken evil counsel against thee, saying: Let us go up against Judah, and vex it, and take it for ourselves, and set a king in the midst of it, even the son of Tabeal.

Second Responsory.

Third Lesson. (10.)

MOREOVER the LORD spake again unto Ahaz, saying: Ask thee a sign of the LORD thy God either in the depth beneath or in the height above. But Ahaz said: I will not ask, neither will I tempt the LORD. And he said: Hear ye now, ye house of David: Is it a small thing for you to weary men, but will ye weary my God also? Therefore the LORD Himself shall give you a sign. Behold the Virgin shall conceive, and bear a son, and shall call his name Emmanuel. Butter and honey shall he eat, until he may know to refuse the evil, and choose the good.

The Second Lord's Day in Coming-Time.

MATTINS.

Invitatory and Hymn as on the last Sunday.

FIRST NOCTURN.

First Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Book of the Prophet Isaiah (xi. 1.)

[2] AND there shall come forth a rod out of the stem of Jesse, and a flower shall grow out of his roots. And the Spirit of the LORD shall rest upon him; the Spirit of wisdom, and understanding, the Spirit of counsel and might, the Spirit of knowledge and of godliness: and he shall be filled with the Spirit of the fear of the LORD. He shall not judge after the sight of his eyes, neither reprove after the hearing of his ears; but with righteousness shall he judge the poor, and reprove with equity for the meek of the earth.

First Responsory.

[3] Thy salvation cometh quickly, O Jerusalem; why art thou wasted with sorrow? Is there no counsellor in thee, that pangs have taken thee? Fear not, for I will save thee and deliver thee.

---

[1] Matth. ii. 15. (Hos. xi. 1.)

[2] Ch. viii. commences with the birth of Maher-shalal-hash-baz the son of Isaiah and "the Prophetess," giving occasion to a prophecy stretching to the end of ch. xii., foretelling the deliverance of Israël not only from Rezin and Pekah, but from her other enemies, and an ultimate time of blessedness and prosperity. The passage in the text is to be understood of the Messiah. (Rom. xv. 12.)

[3] A paraphrase of Micah iv. 8-10.

Verse. [1] For I am the LORD, thy God, the Holy One of Israël, thy Saviour.

Answer. Fear not, for I will save thee, and deliver thee.

Second Lesson.

AND he shall smite the earth with the rod of his mouth, and with the breath of his lips shall he slay the wicked. And righteousness shall be the girdle of his loins, and faithfulness the girdle of his reins. The wolf shall dwell with the lamb, and the leopard shall lie down with the kid; the calf and the young lion and the fatling together, and a little child shall lead them. The heifer and the she-bear shall feed: their young ones shall lie down together, and the lion shall eat straw like the ox.

Second Responsory.

[2] Behold, the LORD shall come, and all His saints with Him, and it shall come to pass in that day that the light shall be great; and they shall go out from Jerusalem like clean water; and the LORD shall be King for ever, over all the earth.

Verse. Behold, the Lord cometh with an host, and in His hand are the kingdom, and power, and dominion.

Answer. Over all the earth.

Third Lesson.

AND the sucking child shall play on the hole of the asp; and the weaned child shall put his hand on the cockatrice' den. They shall not hurt, nor destroy in all My holy mountain, for the earth shall be full of the knowledge of the LORD, as the waters cover the sea. In that day there shall be a root of Jesse, which shall stand as an ensign of the people, to it shall the Gentiles seek; and the place of his rest shall be glorious.

Third Responsory.

O, thou city of Jerusalem, weep not, for the Lord hath repented Him concerning thee. And He will take away from thee all distress.

Verse. [3] Behold, the LORD shall come with might, and His arm shall rule.

Answer. And He will take away from thee all distress.

Verse. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, and to the Holy Ghost.

Answer. And He will take away from thee all distress.

SECOND NOCTURN.

Fourth Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Commentary on the Prophecies of Isaiah made by [4] St Jerome, Priest [at Bethlehem,] (Book iv. c. xi.)

"AND there shall come forth a rod out of the stem of Jesse." From the beginning of the Book of this Prophet till the xiiith chapter, where commenceth the vision, or burden of Babylon, the whole of the vision of Isaiah, the son of Amoz, is one continual prophecy of Christ. We must explain it part by part, for if we were to take it all at once, the memory of the reader would be confused. According to the Jewish commentators, the rod and the flower would both relate to the Lord Himself. They take the rod to mean the sceptre of His Royal dominion, and the flower the loveliness of His beauty.

Fourth Responsory.

Behold, there cometh the Lord, our defender, the Holy One of Israël, wearing a royal crown upon His head.

Verse. [5] And His dominion shall be from sea even to sea, and from the river even to the ends of the earth.

Answer. Wearing a royal crown upon His head.

Fifth Lesson.

WE, however, understand that the rod out of the root of Jesse signifieth the holy Virgin Mary. She was a clean stem that had as yet put forth no shoot; as we have read above: "Behold, the Virgin shall conceive and bear a son." (Isa. vii. 14.) And the flower we believe to mean the Lord our Redeemer, Who hath elsewhere compared Himself to a flower; "I am a flower of the plain, and a lily of the valleys." (Cant. ii. 1.)

Fifth Responsory.

[6] As a mother comforteth her children, so will I comfort you, saith the Lord; My help also cometh unto you out of Jerusalem, the city which I have chosen. And when ye see this, your heart shall rejoice.

Verse. [7] I will place salvation in Zion and in Jerusalem My glory.

Answer. And when ye shall see this, your heart shall rejoice.

Sixth Lesson.

THE Spirit of the Lord then shall rest upon this flower; this flower which shall come forth from the stem and roots of Jesse by means of the Virgin Mary. And truly the Spirit of the Lord did rest upon our Redeemer. It is written that "In Him dwelleth all the fulness of the Godhead bodily." (Col. ii. 9.) The Spirit was not shed on Him by measure, as it is upon the Saints. To Him we may apply the words of the Hebrew Gospel used by the Nazarenes; "The whole fountain of the Holy Ghost shall be poured forth upon Him:" "The Lord is a spirit, and where the Spirit of the Lord is, there is liberty." (2 Cor. iii. 17.)

Sixth Responsory.

[8] Thou shalt yet plant vines upon thy mountains, O Jerusalem: thou shalt sing for joy, for the day of the Lord cometh; arise, O Zion, and turn unto the Lord thy God; rejoice and be glad, O Jacob. For thy Saviour cometh from the midst of the nations.

Verse. Sing aloud for joy, O daughter of Zion; shout with gladness, O daughter of Jerusalem.

Answer. For thy Saviour cometh from the midst of the nations.

Verse. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, and to the Holy Ghost.

Answer. For thy Saviour cometh from the midst of the nations.

[6] Isa. lxvi. 13, 14.

[7] Isa. xlvi. 13.

[8] Jer. xxxi. 5.

THIRD NOCTURN.

Seventh Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Holy Gospel according to Matthew (xi. 2.)

AT that time: When John had heard in the prison the works of Christ, he sent two of his disciples, and said unto Him: Art Thou He That should come, or do we look for another? And so on.

Homily by Pope St Gregory [the Great,] (10*th Homily on the Gospels.*)

The sight of so many signs and so many mighty works should have been a source of wonder, and not a stumbling-block. And yet the unfaithful found these very works a rock of offence, when they afterwards saw Him Who had worked so many miracles dying on the Cross. Hence Paul saith: "We preach Christ crucified, unto the Jews a stumbling-block and unto the Gentiles foolishness." (1 Cor. i. 23.) It is indeed folly in the eyes of men to say that the Author of life died for men: and thus men put as a stumbling-block to hinder them from coming to JESUS, the very thing that doth oblige them the most unto Him. For the more humbling God hath undergone for man's sake, the more worthy is He that man should worship Him.

Seventh Responsory.

The Lord shall go forth out of Samaria unto the gate that looketh toward the East; and He shall come into Bethlehem, walking upon the waters of the redemption of Judah. Then shall every one be saved: for, behold, He cometh.

Verse. [1] And in mercy shall His throne be established, and He shall sit upon it in truth.

Answer. Then shall every one be saved: for, behold, He cometh.

Eighth Lesson.

"AND blessed is he, whosoever shall not be offended in Me." Now what is this, but a plain mention of that time, when He afterwards humbled Himself, becoming obedient unto death, even the death of the Cross? It is as if He said: "I indeed do wonderful works, but the day will come when I shall not refuse to suffer shame and evil treatment. Take heed then, ye who now worship Me for the works' sake, that when I come to die ye despise Me not for My death's sake."

Eighth Responsory.

Make haste, O LORD, make no tarrying. And deliver Thy people.

Verse. O Lord, come and make no tarrying: loose the bonds of Thy people.

Answer. And deliver Thy people.

Ninth Lesson.

AND, as the disciples of John departed, what did JESUS say unto the multitudes concerning this same John? Let us hear. "What went ye out into the wilderness to see? A reed shaken with the wind?" Here our Lord teacheth not by assertion, but by negation. Now a reed is a thing so made that as soon as the wind bloweth upon it, it bendeth it over toward the opposite quarter. And the fleshly-minded man is like a human reed. As he is praised or blamed so he bendeth himself in the one direction or the other.

Ninth Responsory.

Behold, the Lord cometh down with glory, and His host is with Him. To visit His people in peace, and to establish them in life everlasting.

Verse. Behold, our Lord cometh with an host.

Answer. To visit His people in peace, and to establish them in life everlasting.

Verse. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, and to the Holy Ghost.

Answer. To visit His people in peace, and to establish them in life everlasting.

The Lesson is taken from the Book of the Prophet Isaiah (xiii. 1.)

[1] THE burden of Babylon, which Isaiah, the son of Amoz, did see. Lift ye up a banner upon the cloudy mountain, exalt the voice, beckon with the hand, and let the nobles enter in at the gates. I have commanded My sanctified ones, I have also called My mighty ones for Mine anger, even them that rejoice in My highness. The noise of a multitude in the mountains, like as of a great people: a tumultuous noise of kings; even of nations gathered together.

First Responsory.

Receive, O Virgin Mary, &c., (First Responsory on the Monday in the First Week.)

Second Lesson.

THE LORD of hosts mustereth the host of the battle, they come from a far country, from the end of heaven; even the LORD and the weapons of His indignation, to destroy the whole land. Howl ye, for the day of the LORD is at hand; it shall come as a destruction from the [2] Lord. Therefore shall all hands be faint, and every man's heart shall melt, and they shall be afraid. Pangs and sorrows shall take hold of them, they shall be in pain as a woman that travaileth; they shall be amazed one at another, their faces shall be as scorched faces.

Third Lesson.

BEHOLD, the day of the LORD cometh, cruel, and full of wrath and fierce anger, to lay the land desolate, and He shall destroy the sinners thereof out of it. For the stars of heaven, and the constellations thereof, shall not give their light: the sun shall be darkened in his going forth, and the moon shall not cause her light to shine. And I will punish the world for their evil, and the wicked for their iniquity; and I will cause the arrogancy of the unfaithful to cease, and will lay low the haughtiness of the terrible.

Second Lesson.

AND it shall come to pass in the day that the LORD shall give thee rest from thy sorrow, and from thy fear, and from the hard bondage, wherein thou wast made to serve: that thou shalt take up this proverb against the King of Babylon, and say: How hath the oppressor ceased, the exaction ceased? First Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Book of the Prophet Isaiah (xvi. 1.)[3]

[4] SEND forth the Lamb, O Lord, the Ruler of the land, from the rock in the wilderness unto the mount of the daughter of Zion. For it shall be, that as a wandering bird, and as fledglings that fly from the nest, so the daughters of Moab shall be at the fords of Arnon. Take counsel, call together a council; make thy shadow as the night, in the midst of the noon-day: hide the outcasts, and bewray not him that wandereth. [5] Mine outcasts shall dwell with thee: Moab, be thou a cover to them from the face of the spoiler.

First Responsory.

Christ our King, &c., (First Responsory on Wednesday in the First Week.)

Second Lesson.

[6] For the grinding down is at an end, the beggar ceaseth, they that trod down the land are consumed. And in mercy shall the throne be established, and He shall sit upon it in truth in the tabernacle of David, judging and seeking judgment, and executing justice speedily. We have heard of the pride of Moab, he is very proud: his haughtiness, and his pride, and his wrath are greater than his strength.

Second Responsory.

Of a long time, &c., (Second Responsory on Wednesday in the First Week.)

Third Lesson.

THEREFORE shall Moab howl unto Moab, every one shall howl: tell her strokes, ye that rejoice in the "Walls-of-brick."[7] For the fields of Heshbon languish, the lords of the nations have broken down the vine of Sibmah: their scourge is come even unto Jazer, they wandered through the wilderness, her branches are left desolate, they are gone over the sea.

Third Responsory.

Behold, the LORD, &c., (Second Responsory on Sunday,) with this addition,

[1] In the intervening verses the ghost of the king of Babylon is described entering the netherworld, and greeted with vindictive joy by the ghosts of his wronged victims, who find him at last reduced to their own level. They address him as Lucifer, i.e., the morning-star, now dropped out of that (political) firmament of which he had used to be the brightest luminary.

[2] Isa. lx. 2.

[3] This is an extract from the prophecy against Moab, comprised in chaps. xv. and xvi.

[4] The opening words are of extreme difficulty, and translators are much divided. Lowth, on divers grounds, renders it, "I (God) will send forth the son of the ruler of the land from Selah (Petra) in the desert unto the Mount of the daughter of Zion" —i.e., in the misfortunes of Moab, the son of their king will escape from the country and seek an asylum at Jerusalem.

[5] According to Lowth:—"Let the outcasts of Moab sojourn with thee"—(viz. with Judah) —"be thou a cover to them," &c.

[6] Lowth suggests that the reference is to the misfortunes inflicted upon Judah by Israël in the time of Ahaz, the cessation of which left them at liberty to show hospitality.

Second Lesson.

Third Lesson. (v. 11.)

First Lesson.

The Lesson taken from the Book of the Prophet Isaiah (xxiv. 1.)

[4] BEHOLD, the LORD shall make the earth empty, and make it waste, and afflict the surface thereof; and scatter abroad the inhabitants thereof. And it shall be, as with the people, so with the priest; as with the servant, so with his master; as with the maid, so with her mistress; as with the buyer, so with the seller; as with the lender, so with the borrower; as with the creditor, so with the debtor. The land shall be utterly emptied, and utterly spoiled. For the LORD hath spoken this word.

[2] The Divine Name.

[3] John i. 27.

[4] Delivered probably in the beginning of Hezekiah's reign; but concerning the particular subject of the chapter, interpreters are not at all agreed.

Second Lesson.

THE earth mourneth and fadeth away, and languisheth; the world fadeth away, the haughty people of the earth do languish. The earth also is defiled under the inhabitants thereof; because they have transgressed the laws, changed the ordinance, broken the everlasting covenant. Therefore shall the curse devour the earth, and they that dwell therein are guilty, therefore they that till it shall become mad, and few men shall be left.

Second Responsory.

As a mother, &c., (Fifth Responsory on Sunday.)

Third Lesson.

THE new wine mourneth, the vine languisheth, all the merry-hearted do sigh. The mirth of tabrets ceaseth, the noise of them that rejoice endeth, the joy of the harp ceaseth. They shall not drink wine with a song; strong drink shall be bitter to them that drink it. The city of confusion is broken down, every house is shut up that no man may come in. There is a cry for wine in the streets; all joy is darkened, the mirth of the land is gone. In the city is left desolation, and the gate is smitten with destruction. For thus it shall be in the midst of the land, among the people; as a few olives that remain after the olive-tree is shaken, and as the gleaning grapes when the vintage is done. Those shall lift up their voice and sing praises; when the LORD is magnified they shall cry aloud from the sea. Wherefore glorify ye the LORD in your teaching, even the name of the LORD God of Israel in the isles of the sea. From the uttermost part of the earth have we heard the voice of praise, even glory to the Righteous One.

MATTINS.

Invitatory and Hymn as on the First Sunday.

First Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Book of Isaiah (xxv. 1.)

O LORD, Thou art my God, I will exalt Thee, I will also praise Thy name; for Thou hast done wonderful things, Thy counsels of old are faithful. Amen. For Thou hast made of a city an heap, of a defenced city a ruin, a house of strangers, so that it is no more a city, neither shall it ever be built any more. Therefore shall the strong people glorify Thee, the city of the terrible nations shall fear Thee. For Thou hast been a strength to the needy in his distress; a refuge from the storm, a shadow from the heat.

First Responsory.

The Lord shall go forth, &c., (Seventh Responsory on Sunday.)

Second Lesson.

FOR the blast of the terrible ones is as a storm against the wall. Thou shalt bring down the noise of strangers, as the heat in a dry place; and Thou shalt bring low the blast of the terrible ones even as the heat with the shadow of a cloud. And in this mountain shall the LORD of hosts make unto all people a feast of fat things, a feast of wines on the lees, of fat things full of marrow, of wines on the lees well refined. And He will destroy in this mountain the face of the band tied upon all people, and the veil that is spread over all nations.

Second Responsory.

Make haste, &c., (Eighth Responsory on Sunday.)

Third Lesson.

HE will utterly destroy death for ever; and the Lord [3] GOD will wipe away tears from all faces, and the rebuke of His people shall He take away from off all the earth; for the LORD hath spoken it. And it shall be said in that day: Lo, this is our God, we have waited for Him, and He will save us; this is the LORD, we have waited for Him, we will be glad and rejoice in His salvation. For on this mountain shall the hand of the LORD rest; and Moab shall be trodden down under Him, even as straw is trodden down on the threshing-floor. And He shall spread forth His hands in the midst of them, as he that swimmeth spreadeth forth his hands to swim; and He shall bring down their pride together with the spoils of their hands. And the bulwark of thine high walls shall He bring down, lay low, and bring to the ground, even to the dust.

FIRST NOCTURN.

First Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Book of the Prophet Isaiah (xxvi. 1.)

IN that day shall this song be sung in the land of Judah. [5] Zion is our strong city, the Saviour will God appoint in her for walls and bulwarks. Open ye the gates, that the righteous nation which keepeth the truth may enter in. The former wandering is past: Thou shalt keep lasting peace, because our trust is stayed on Thee. Ye trust in the Lord for ever, in the Lord God mighty for ever. For He bringeth down them that dwell on high, the lofty city, He shall lay it low, He shall lay it low, even to the ground, He shall bring it even to the dust. The foot shall tread it down, even the feet of the poor, and the steps of the needy.

First Responsory.

[6] Behold, the Lord shall appear upon a white cloud, and ten thousand of His saints with Him; and He shall have on His vesture, and on His thigh a name written: King of kings, and Lord of lords.

Verse. He shall appear and not lie; though He tarry, wait for Him, because He will surely come.

Answer. And ten thousand of His saints with Him; and He shall have on His vesture, and on His thigh a name written: King of kings, and Lord of lords.

Second Lesson.

THE way of the just is upright, the path wherein the just walketh is upright. Yea, in the way of Thy judgments, O Lord, have we waited for Thee; the desire of our soul is to Thy name, and to the remembrance of Thee. With my soul have I desired Thee in the night; yea, with mine inmost spirit will I seek Thee early. When Thy judgments are in the earth, the inhabitants of the world will learn righteousness. Though mercy be shown to the wicked, yet will he not learn righteousness; in the land of uprightness will he deal unjustly, and will not behold the majesty of the Lord.

Second Responsory.

[7] Thou, Bethlehem, art the city of the Most High God, out of thee shall He come forth That is to be Ruler in Israël; Whose goings forth have been from of old, from everlasting, and now shall He be great unto the ends of the earth. And this Man shall be the peace in our land, when He shall come.

Verse. He shall speak peace unto the Gentiles, and shall have dominion from sea to sea.

Answer. And this Man shall be the peace in our land, when He shall come.

Third Lesson.

LORD, [8] let Thy hand be lifted up, and let them not see; let them see and be ashamed for their envy at the people; yea, let the fire devour Thine enemies. Lord, Thou wilt ordain peace for us, for Thou hast also wrought all our works for us. O Lord, our God, other lords beside Thee have had dominion over us; but by Thee only will we make mention of Thy name. They are dead, they shall not live, the giants shall not rise. Therefore hast Thou visited and destroyed them, and made all their memory to perish.

Third Responsory.

[9] He That shall come, will come, and will not tarry; and there shall no more be fear in our borders. For He is our Saviour.

Verse. [10] He shall tread down all our iniquities, and cast all our sins into the depths of the sea.

Answer. For He is our Saviour.

Verse. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, and to the Holy Ghost.

Answer. For He is our Saviour.

SECOND NOCTURN.

Fourth Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Sermons of Pope St Leo [the Great,] (Second on the December Fast, and Almsgiving.)

DEARLY beloved brethren, with the care which becometh us as the shepherd of your souls, we urge upon you the rigid observance of this December Fast. The month of December hath come round again, and with it this devout custom of the Church. The fruits of the year, which is drawing to a close, are now all gathered in, and we most meetly offer our abstinence to God as a sacrifice of thanksgiving. And what can be more useful than fasting, that exercise by which we draw nigh to God, make a stand against the devil, and overcome the softer enticements of sin?

Fourth Responsory.

Weep not, O Egypt, for the Ruler cometh unto thee, and the depths shall be moved at His presence. To deliver His people out of the hand of the mighty.

Verse. Behold, the Lord of hosts, thy God, cometh with great power.

Answer. To deliver His people out of the hand of the mighty.

Fifth Lesson.

FASTING hath ever been the bread of strength. From abstinence proceed pure thoughts, reasonable desires, and healthy counsels. By voluntary mortifications the flesh dieth to lust, and the soul is renewed in might. But since fasting is not the only mean whereby we get health for our souls, let us add to our fasting works of mercy. Let us spend in good deeds what we take from indulgence. Let our fast become the banquet of the poor.

Fifth Responsory.

[1] Her time is near to come, and her days shall not be prolonged. For the LORD will have mercy on Jacob, and Israël shall be saved.

Verse. [2] Turn again, O Virgin of Israël, turn again to thy cities.

Answer. For the LORD shall have mercy on Judah, and Israël shall be saved.

Sixth Lesson.

LET us defend the widow and serve the orphan; let us comfort the afflicted and reconcile the estranged; let us take in the wanderer and succour the oppressed; let us clothe the naked and cherish the sick. And may every one of us that shall offer to the God of all goodness this Advent sacrifice of fasting and alms be by Him fitted to receive an eternal reward in His heavenly kingdom! We fast on Wednesday and Friday; and there is likewise a Vigil on Saturday at the Church of St Peter, that by his good prayers we may the more effectually obtain what we ask for, through our Lord JESUS Christ, Who with the Father and the Holy Ghost, liveth and reigneth, one God, world without end. Amen.

Sixth Responsory.

[3] The Lord shall come down like rain upon a fleece. In His days shall righteousness flourish, and abundance of peace.

Verse. All the kings of the earth shall fall down before Him, all nations shall serve Him.

Answer. In His days shall righteousness flourish, and abundance of peace.

Verse. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, and to the Holy Ghost.

Answer. In His days shall righteousness flourish, and abundance of peace.

THIRD NOCTURN.

Seventh Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Holy Gospel according to John (i. 19.)

AT that time: The Jews sent Priests and Levites from Jerusalem to John to ask him: Who art thou? And so on.

Homily by Pope St Gregory [the Great,] (7th on the Gospels.)

Dearly beloved brethren, the first thing which striketh us in to-day's Gospel is the lowly-mindedness of John. He was so great that it was thought he might be the Christ; yet he soberly chose rather to seem only what he really was, than to let the belief of men invest him with a dignity which did not belong to him; for "he confessed, and denied not, but confessed, I am not the Christ," at the same time he would not deny what he was in reality; and thus his very truth-speaking made him a member of Him Whose title he would not by falsehood take. In that he arrogated not to himself the name of Christ, he became a member of Christ. While he humbly strove to confess his own weakness, he earned by his simplicity a part in the grandeur of his Master.

Seventh Responsory.

O Lord, come and make no tarrying; loosen the bonds of Thy people. And gather again into their own land them that are scattered abroad.

Verse. [4] O Lord, stir up Thy strength, and come and save us.

Answer. And gather again into their own land them that are scattered abroad.

Eighth Lesson.

IN considering this subject we find an apparent contradiction between one of John's statements, and the saying of our Redeemer recorded in another part of the Gospel. (Matth. xvii. 10-12.) When His disciples asked our Lord regarding the coming of Elias, He answered: "Elias is come already, and they knew him not, but have done unto him whatsoever they listed." "And if ye will receive it, this" (that is, John) "is Elias." (Matth. xi. 14.) But when John was asked if he was Elias, he answered, "I am not." How comes it then, dearly beloved brethren, that we find the Truth Itself asserting what the prophet of the Truth denied? It must evidently be that our Lord meant one thing and John another, when the Lord said, "This is," and John, "I am not." For how can he be the prophet of truth, if he speak not according to the word of Him Who is the Eternal Truth?

Eighth Responsory.

[5] Behold, there shall be a root of Jesse, which shall come for salvation unto the people, to it shall the Gentiles seek, and His name shall be glorious.

Verse. [1] The Lord God shall give unto Him the throne of His father David, and He shall reign over the house of Jacob for ever.

Answer. And His name shall be glorious.

Ninth Lesson.

LET us then more minutely examine these words, and we shall find that there is no real contradiction. When the Angel announced to Zacharias the coming birth of John he said: "He shall go before Him in the spirit and power of Elias," (Luke i. 17.) As the old Elias will come again before the Second Advent of the Lord, so did John, as the new Elias, go before the First Advent, in the spirit and power of Elias. As the old Elias will be the Fore-runner of the Judge, so the new Elias was the Fore-runner of the Saviour. John then was Elias in spirit, but not in person; and our Lord asserteth of the spirit what John denieth of the person.

Ninth Responsory.

[2] The Lord will teach us of His ways, and we will walk in His paths. For out of Zion shall go forth the law, and the word of the LORD from Jerusalem.

Verse. Come ye, and let us go up to the mountain of the LORD, and to the house of the God of Jacob.

Answer. For out of Zion shall go forth the law, and the word of the LORD from Jerusalem.

Verse. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, and to the Holy Ghost.

Answer. For out of Zion shall go forth the law, and the word of the LORD from Jerusalem.

Hymn and Verse and Answer as on the First Saturday.

Antiphon at the Song of the Blessed Virgin (unless supplanted by the great Antiphon, O Wisdom.) [7] Blessed art thou, * O Mary, that hast believed the Lord: for there shall be a performance of those things which were told thee from the Lord. Alleluia.

After "Bless we the Lord" are said the Vespers of the Dead.

The Seven Days preceding Christmas Eve are marked by the Church with two observances; 1st, The series of Antiphons called the Great O's, and 2nd, by a special series of Antiphons at Lauds. The rules which apply to them are different.

1. The Great O's.

The Great O's are a series of Antiphons at the Song of the Blessed Virgin, one for every evening from Dec. 17 to 23 inclusive. They supplant any other Antiphon of the Office of the Season, (as, for instance, if the 17th Dec. should be the Third Sunday of Advent, the Antiphon, "Blessed art thou" is displaced for "O Wisdom.") The Great O's however can be supplanted by Feasts, (as, for instance, "O Wisdom" and "O Adonai" by the Feast of the Expectation, and "O Day-Spring," by the Feast of St Thomas,) and then they are treated as the Antiphon for the Week-day, forming part of the Commemoration. They are always said entire both before and after the Canticle, like the Antiphon on Double Feasts.

2. Special series of Antiphons at Lauds.

The following series of Antiphons are used on Week-days at Lauds, and, consequently, the First, Second, Third, and Fifth at Prime, Terce, Sext, and None, on the seven days preceding Christmas Eve, beginning like the Great O's on the 17th Dec. They differ from the Great O's in that they can be wholly supplanted. This is always the case on two days, which are necessarily, one a Sunday, and the other the Feast of St Thomas. Therefore five sets only are given. If the 17th be the Sunday, the series is begun on Monday.

The set which fall upon the day when the Feast of St Thomas occurs are transferred to the next Saturday, and said then, except the Fourth, which is omitted, and the Antiphon, "My teaching shall drop, &c." said in its place. If, however, the Sunday to follow be Christmas Eve, then on Saturday are said the Antiphons of the Lauds of the Fourth Sunday in Advent, except the Fourth, which is omitted, and the Antiphon "My teaching shall drop, &c." said in its place. The Antiphon at the Song of Zacharias and the Prayer will then be those proper to the Day, as Ember Saturday. In this case the set of Antiphons which fell upon the day occupied by the Feast of St Thomas will be altogether omitted; and the Antiphon "My teaching shall drop, &c." will likewise be altogether omitted should the Feast of St Thomas come on the Saturday.

Here follow the five sets of Antiphons.

First set.

First Antiphon. Behold, the Lord cometh, * [14] the Prince of the Kings of the earth: blessed are they that are ready to go forth to meet Him.

Second Antiphon. [15] When the Son of man cometh, * shall He find faith on the earth?

Third Antiphon. [16] Behold, the fulness * of the time is come, when God sent forth His Son into the world.

Fourth Antiphon. [17] With joy * shall ye draw water out of the wells of the Saviour.

Fifth Antiphon. The Lord goeth forth * from His holy place; He cometh to save His people.

Second set.

First Antiphon. [18] Drop down, ye heavens, from above, * and let the skies pour down the Righteous One: let the earth open and let her bring forth the Saviour.

Second Antiphon. [19] Send forth the Lamb, O Lord, * the Ruler of the land, from the rock of the wilderness unto the mount of the daughter of Zion.

Third Antiphon. [20] That Thy way, O Lord, * may be known upon earth, Thy saving health among all nations.

Fourth Antiphon. [21] O Lord, * reward them that wait for Thee, and let Thy Prophets be found faithful.

Fifth Antiphon. [22] The law was given by Moses, * but grace and truth came by JESUS Christ.

Third set.

First Antiphon. The Prophets foretold * that the Saviour should be born of the Virgin Mary.

Second Antiphon. [23] The Spirit of the Lord * is upon Me, because He hath anointed Me to preach the Gospel to the poor.

Third Antiphon. [24] For Zion's sake * will I not hold my peace, until her Righteous One go forth as brightness.

Fourth Antiphon. Behold, the Lord cometh, * [25] to sit among princes, and to inherit the throne of glory.

Fifth Antiphon. Tell it out among the people, * and say: Behold, God our Saviour cometh.

Fourth set.

First Antiphon. The Lord, the Almighty, * cometh out of Zion, to save His people.

If the Saturday be not Christmas Eve, the Antiphons will be one of the above sets, as directed by the Rubric above, with the exception of the Fourth (i.e., that for the Song of Moses), which will be as follows:

Fourth Antiphon. [6] My teaching shall drop * as the rain, and our God shall come down upon us as the dew.

On the Feast of St Thomas, at the Commemoration of the Week-day at Lauds, the Antiphon is as follows:

Antiphon. Fear not: * yet five days and the Lord shall come unto you.

If the Feast of St Thomas should happen to be transferred to the Monday, this last Antiphon is said at the Song of Zacharias on the Fourth Sunday of Advent, instead of the Antiphon, "Hail, Mary, &c."

23rd Dec.

On this day the Antiphon at the Song of Zacharias is:

Behold, all things are fulfilled, * which were spoken by the angel concerning the Virgin Mary.

First Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Book of the Prophet Isaiah (xxviii. 1.)

WOE to the [7] crown of pride, to the drunkards of Ephraim, to the fading flower of their glorious beauty; which are upon the head of the fat valley, overcome with wine. Behold the Lord is mighty and strong, as a tempest of hail, and as a destroying storm, as a flood of mighty waters overflowing, sent forth over the breadth of the land. The crown of pride, the drunkards of Ephraim, shall be trodden under foot.

First Responsory.

Behold, the Lord shall appear, &c., (First Responsory on Sunday.)

Second Lesson.

AND the fading flower of their glorious beauty, which is upon the head of the fat valley, shall be as the hasty fruit before the ripening of Autumn; which when he that looketh upon it seeth, while it is yet in his hand, he eateth it up. In that day shall the LORD of hosts be for a crown of glory, and for a diadem of beauty unto the residue of His people; and for a spirit of judgment to him that sitteth in judgment, and for strength to them that turn from the battle to the gate. But they also have erred through wine, and through strong drink are out of the way: the priest and the prophet have erred through strong drink, they are swallowed up of wine.

Second Responsory.

Thou, Bethlehem, &c., (Second Responsory on Sunday.)

Third Lesson. (16.)

THEREFORE thus saith the Lord [8] GOD: Behold I lay in Zion for a foundation a stone, a tried stone, a precious corner-stone, a sure foundation. Let not him that believeth make haste. Justice also will I lay to the plummet and righteousness to the line: and the hail shall sweep away the refuge of lies, and the waters shall overflow the hiding-place. MATTINS.

Hymn as on the First Sunday.

First Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Book of the Prophet Isaiah (xxx. 18.)

THE LORD waiteth that He may be gracious unto you; and therefore will He be exalted, that He may have mercy upon you, for the LORD is a God of judgment; blessed are all they that wait for Him. For the people of Zion shall dwell in Jerusalem, thou shalt weep no more, He will be very gracious unto thee; at the voice of thy cry when He shall hear it, He will answer thee. Though the LORD give you bread in scarcity and water in short measure: yet will He not make thy teacher to fly from thee any more; and thine eyes shall see thy teacher.

First Responsory.

Weep not, O Egypt, &c., (Fourth Responsory on Sunday.)

Second Lesson. (v. 22.)

THOU shalt say unto it, [1] Get thee hence, and the rain shall fall upon thy seed, that thou shalt sow the ground withal; and the bread of the increase of the earth shall be fat and plenteous. In that day shall thy lambs feed in large pastures; thine oxen likewise, and the young asses that till the ground shall eat mixed provender, as that which hath been winnowed on the threshing-floor. And there shall be upon every high mountain, and upon every high hill rivers of running waters, in the day of the great slaughter, when the [2] towers fall.

Second Responsory.

Her time is near to come, &c., (Fifth Responsory on Sunday.)

Third Lesson.

MOREOVER, the light of the moon shall be as the light of the sun, and the light of the sun shall be sevenfold, as the light of seven days, in the day that the LORD bindeth up the breach of His people, and healeth the stroke of their wound. Behold, the name of the LORD cometh from far, burning with His anger, and the burden thereof is heavy: His lips are full of indignation, and His tongue as a devouring fire. His breath, as an overflowing stream, shall reach to the midst of the neck, to destroy the nations to the uttermost, and as a bridle causing them to err shall it be in the jaws of the peoples.

The Fourth Day in Quarter-Week.

MATTINS.

Invitatory as on Sunday.
Hymn as on the First Sunday.

First Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Holy Gospel according to Luke (i. 26.)

AT that time: The Angel Gabriel was sent from God, unto a city of Galilee, named Nazareth, to a virgin espoused to a man whose name was Joseph, of the house of David: and the virgin's name was Mary. And so on.

Homily by [5] St Ambrose, Bishop [of Milan,] (Bk. ii. on Luke.)

The mysteries of God are unsearchable, and it is especially declared by a Prophet, that a man can hardly know His counsels. (Wisd. ix. 13.) Nevertheless, some things have been revealed to us, and we may gather from some of the words and works of the Lord our Saviour, that there was a special purpose of God, in the fact that she who was chosen to be the mother of the Lord was espoused to a man. Why did not the power of the Highest overshadow her before she was so espoused? Perhaps it was lest any might blasphemously say that she had conceived in adultery the Holy One.

First Responsory.

[6] O thou that bringest good tidings of peace to Jerusalem, lift up thy voice with strength! Say unto the cities of Judah, and to the inhabitants of Jerusalem: Behold, our God will come, for Whom we waited.

Verse. O thou that tellest good tidings to Zion: get thee up into the high mountain, lift up thy voice with strength.

[4] Isa. lii. 1, 2.

[5] Dec. 7.

[6] Isa. xl. 9, 10.

Answer. Say unto the cities of Judah, and to the inhabitants of Jerusalem: Behold, our God will come, for Whom we waited.

Second Lesson.

"AND the Angel came in unto her." Let us learn from this Virgin how to bear ourselves, let us learn her modesty, let us learn by her devout utterance, above all let us learn by the holy mystery enacted. It is the part of a maiden to be timid, to avoid the advances of men, and to shrink from men's addresses. Would that our women would learn from the example of modesty here set before us. She upon whom the stare of men had never been fixed was alone in her chamber, and she found herself alone with Angels. There was neither companion nor witness there, that what passed might not be debased in gossip: and the Angel saluted her.

Second Responsory.

[1] There shall come a Star out of Jacob, and a Man shall rise out of Israël, and shall smite through all the princes of the aliens. And all the earth shall be His possession.

Verse. [2] All kings shall fall down before Him, all nations shall serve Him.

Answer. And all the earth shall be His possession.

Third Lesson.

THE message of God to the Virgin was a mystery, which it was not lawful for the mouth of men, but only of Angels, to utter. For the first time on earth the words are spoken: "The Holy Ghost shall come upon thee." The holy maiden heareth, and believeth. At length she said: "Behold the handmaid of the Lord: be it unto me according to thy word." Here is an example of lowliness, here is a pattern of true devotion. At the very moment that she is told she is chosen to be the mother of the Lord she at once declareth herself His handmaid. The knowledge that she was mother of God caused in the heart of Mary only an act of humility.

Third Responsory.

The Lord, the Ruler, cometh quickly. [3] And His name shall be called Emmanuel.

Verse. [4] In His days shall righteousness flourish, and abundance of peace.

Answer. And His name shall be called Emmanuel.

Verse. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, and to the Holy Ghost.

Answer. And His name shall be called Emmanuel.

First Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Book of the Prophet Isaiah (xxxiii. 1.)

[5] WOE to thee that spoilest, shall not thou also be spoiled? and dealest scornfully, shall not they also deal scornfully with thee? When thou shalt cease to spoil, thou shalt be spoiled; when thou shalt be weary and make an end to deal scornfully, they shall deal scornfully with thee. [6] O LORD, be gracious unto us; for we have waited for Thee: be Thou our arm every morning, our salvation also in the time of trouble.

First Responsory.

Answer. Made an High Priest for ever after the order of Melchisedek.

Third Lesson. (14.)

[4] THE sinners in Zion are afraid, fearfulness hath surprised the hypocrites. Who among you can dwell with the devouring fire? who among you shall dwell with everlasting burnings? He that walketh righteously, and speaketh uprightly, he that refuseth the gain of leasing, and shaketh his hands from holding of bribes, that stoppeth his ears from hearing of blood, and shutteth his eyes from seeing evil. He shall dwell on high, his place of defence shall be the munitions of rocks: bread shall be given him, his waters shall be sure. His eyes shall see the King in his beauty: they shall behold the land that is very far off.

Third Responsory.

[5] The Gentiles shall see thy Righteous One, and all kings thy Glorious one. And thou shalt be called by a new name, which the mouth of the LORD hath named.

Verse. Thou shalt also be a crown of glory in the hand of the LORD, and a royal diadem in the hand of thy God.

Answer. And thou shalt be called by a new name, which the mouth of the LORD hath named.

Verse. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, and to the Holy Ghost.

Answer. And thou shalt be called by a new name, which the mouth of the LORD hath named.

First Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Holy Gospel according to Luke (i. 39.)

AT that time: Mary arose, and went into the hill country with haste, into a city of Judah, and entered into the house of Zacharias, and saluted Elizabeth. And so on.

Homily by St Ambrose, Bishop [of Milan,] (Commentary on Luke, Bk. ii. c. i.)

When any one asketh another for credence, he is bound to give some reasonable ground. And so the Angel, when he announced to Mary the counsel of God, gave, as a proof, the conception of Elizabeth, then aged and barren, that Mary might perceive, by this example, that with God nothing is impossible. When the holy Virgin had heard it, she arose and went to visit her cousin. She did not go to see if what she had heard was true, because she did not believe God, or because she knew not who the messenger had been, or yet because she doubted the fact adduced in proof. She went joyfully as one who hath received a mercy in answer to his vow goeth to pay the same. She went with devotion, as a godly person goeth to execute a religious duty. She went into the hill country in joyful haste. And is it not something that she went up into the hills? God was already in her womb, and her feeling bore her continually upward. The grace of the Holy Spirit knoweth no slow working.

First Responsory.

Send forth the Lamb, O Lord, the Ruler of the land; from the rock in the wilderness unto the mount of the daughter of Zion.

Verse. Show us Thy mercy, O LORD, and grant us Thy salvation.

Answer. From the rock in the wilderness unto the mount of the daughter of Zion.

Second Lesson.

GODLY women will learn from the example of the Mother of God to take a tender care of their kinswomen who are with child. In pursuance of this charity, Mary, who had hitherto remained alone at home, was not deterred by her maidenly shyness from entering on a public journey; she faced for this end the hardships of mountain travelling; and encountered with a sense of duty the weary length of the way. The Virgin left her home, and went into the hill country with haste, unmindful of the trouble, and remembering only the office to which her cousinly love prompted her, in spite of the delicacy of her sex. Maidens will learn from her not to idle about from house to house, to loiter in the streets, nor to take part in conversations in public. Mary, as she was hasteful to pass through the public roads, so was she slow again to enter on them: she abode with her cousin about three months.

[5] Isa. lxii. 2, 3.

[6] Isa. lxvi. 10.

Second Responsory.

Drop down, ye heavens, from above, and let the skies pour down the Righteous One. Let the earth open, and let her bring forth the Saviour.

Verse. Send forth the Lamb, O Lord, the Ruler of the land, from the rock in the wilderness unto the mount of the daughter of Zion.

Answer. Let the earth open, and let her bring forth the Saviour.

Third Lesson.

AS the modesty of Mary is a pattern for the imitation of all maidens, so also is her humility. She went to see Elizabeth, like one cousin going to visit another, and as the younger to the elder. Not only did she first go, but she first saluted Elizabeth. Now, the purer a virgin is, the humbler ought she to be. She will know how to submit herself to her elders. She that professeth chastity ought to be a very mistress of humility. Lowly-mindedness is at once the very ground in which devotion groweth, and the first and principal rule of its teaching. In this act of the Virgin then we see the greater going to visit and to succour the lesser—Mary to Elizabeth, Christ to John.

Third Responsory.

The waste places have brought forth sweet-smelling buds for Israël; for, behold, our God will come with power. And His brightness is with Him.

Verse. [1] Out of Zion the perfection of beauty, our God shall come manifestly.

Answer. And His brightness is with Him.

Verse. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, and to the Holy Ghost.

Answer. And His brightness is with Him.

First Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Holy Gospel according to Luke (iii. 1.)

IN the fifteenth year of the reign of Tiberius Cæsar, Pontius Pilate being governor of Judæa. And so on.

Homily by Pope St Gregory [the Great,] (20th on the Gospels.)

The date, at which the Fore-runner of our Redeemer entered on his public office of preaching, is indicated to us by the name of the ruler of the Roman Commonwealth, and by those of the princes of Palestine. The time of his preaching is indicated by these names, because he came as the Fore-runner of Him Who was to be the Redeemer of some Jews and many Gentiles. Moreover in the enumeration of these worldly monarchs there is a foreshadowing of the fact, that the Gentiles were about to be gathered into one, and the Jews to be scattered abroad in punishment of their unbelief; in the whole heathen Commonwealth we find the title of one Emperor, but in the small kingdom of Judæa are mentioned four masters.

First Responsory.

There shall come forth a rod out of the stem of Jesse, and a flower shall grow out of his roots. And righteousness shall be the girdle of his loins, and faithfulness the girdle of his reins.

Verse. And the Spirit of the LORD shall rest upon him: the spirit of wisdom and understanding: the spirit of counsel and might.

Answer. And righteousness shall be the girdle of his loins, and faithfulness the girdle of his reins.

Second Lesson.

THE blessed voice of the Saviour itself hath said, "Every kingdom divided against itself is brought to desolation" (Luke xi. 17.) And we may well look for the ruin of the Jewish state when we see it divided among so many rulers. We observe likewise that the names of the reigning priests as well as kings are given. The Evangelist Luke hath left on record the chiefs both of the monarchy and of the priesthood who held office when John the Baptist began to preach, because John preached Him Who is at once our Priest and our King.

---

[1] Ps. xlix. 2.

[2] Luke i. 44.

[3] John i. 15.

Second Responsory.

[1] Behold, the root of Jesse that shall arise to bring forth judgment to the Gentiles, in him shall the Gentiles trust. And his name shall be blessed for ever.

Verse. [2] The Kings shall shut their mouths at him, to him shall the Gentiles seek.

Answer. And his name shall be blessed for ever.

Third Lesson.

"AND he came into all the country about Jordan, preaching the baptism of repentance[3] for the remission of sins." It is evident from these words that John the Baptist not only preached, but also administered the baptism of repentance, and yet that baptism of repentance which he gave, was not really a baptism for the remission of sins. For there is only one baptism for the remission of sins, and that is our Christian baptism. It is worthy of note here that the words used are, "preaching the baptism of repentance for the remission of sins," for he himself owned that his baptism was not the true baptism that washes away sin. Even as the Eternal Word of God made Flesh was greater than the preacher that went before Him, so was His holy baptism, by which our sins are washed away, far greater than that baptism of repentance which the Fore-runner preached, and which could never wash away sin.

Third Responsory.

O Lord, come, and make no tarrying: loosen the bonds of Thy people. And gather together into their own land them that are scattered abroad.

Verse. Stir up, O Lord, Thy power, and come among us, to save us.

Answer. And gather together into their own land them that are scattered abroad.

Verse. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, and to the Holy Ghost.

Answer. And gather together into their own land them that are scattered abroad.

FIRST NOCTURN.

First Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Book of the Prophet Isaiah (xxxv. 1.)

THE wilderness and the solitary place shall be glad, and the desert shall rejoice and blossom as the lily. It shall blossom abundantly, and rejoice, even with joy and singing. The glory of Lebanon is given unto it, the excellency of Carmel and Sharon; they shall see the glory of the LORD and the excellency of our God. Strengthen ye the weak hands and confirm the feeble knees. Say to them that are of a fearful heart: Be strong, and fear not, behold, your God will come with recompense of vengeance; God Himself will come and save you. Then the eyes of the blind shall be opened, and the ears of the deaf shall be unstopped. Then shall the lame man leap as an hart, and the tongue of the dumb shall sing: for in the wilderness are waters broken out, and streams in the desert. And the parched ground shall become a pool, and the thirsty land springs of water.

First Responsory.

Blow ye the trumpet in Zion, call together the nations, tell it out among the people, and say: Behold, God our Saviour cometh.

Verse. Tell it out and make it to be heard; speak aloud and cry—

Answer. Behold, God our Saviour cometh.

Second Lesson.

IN the habitations where dragons lay shall rise the green freshness of the reed and the bulrush. And an highway shall be there and a way, and it shall be called, The way of holiness: the unclean shall not pass over it, and it shall be unto you a straight way, that fools shall not err therein. No lion shall be there, nor any ravenous beast shall go up thereon, it shall not be found there: but the redeemed shall walk there, and the ransomed of the LORD shall return and come to Zion with songs; and everlasting joy upon their heads, they shall obtain joy and gladness, and sorrow and sighing shall flee away.

[3] The translator holds himself justified in adopting this rendering of "metanoia," (lit. "change of mind,") by the authority of Archbishop Kenrick in his version of the New Testament. (Matth. iii. 2.)

Second Responsory.

The sceptre shall not depart from Judah, nor the law-giver from his loins, until he that shall be sent cometh. And unto him shall the longing of the Gentiles be.

Verse. [1] His eyes shall be bright with wine, and his teeth white with milk.

Answer. And unto him shall the desire of the Gentiles be.

Third Lesson (xli. 1.)

[2] KEEP silence before Me, O islands, and let the peoples renew their strength; let them come near and then let them speak; let us come near together to judgment. Who raised up the [3] righteous man from the East, and called him to follow Him? Who gave the nations before him, and made him to rule over kings? Who gave them as the dust to his sword, as driven stubble to his bow? He pursueth them, he passeth safely, his feet see not the way! Who hath wrought and done it, calling the generations from the beginning? I, the LORD, the First and the Last, I am He.

Third Responsory.

[4] I must decrease, but He must increase: He it is Who, coming after me is preferred before me: Whose shoe's latchet I am not worthy to unloose.

Verse. [5] I baptize you with water; but He shall baptize you with the Holy Ghost.

Answer. Whose shoe's latchet I am not worthy to unloose.

Verse. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, and to the Holy Ghost.

Answer. Whose shoe's latchet I am not worthy to unloose.

SECOND NOCTURN.

Fourth Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Sermons of Pope St Leo [the Great,] (1st on the December Fast, and almsgiving.)

DEARLY beloved brethren, if we study attentively the history of the creation of our race, we shall find that man was made in the image of God, that his ways also might be an imitation of the ways of his Maker. This is the natural, real, and highest dignity to which we are capable of attaining, that the goodness of the Divine nature should have a reflection in us, as in a glass. As a mean of reaching this dignity, we are daily offered the grace of our Saviour, for as in the first Adam all men are fallen, so in the Second Adam can all men be raised up again (1 Cor. xv. 22).

Fourth Responsory.

[6] Unto us shall a Child be born, and His name shall be called the Mighty God. He shall sit upon the throne of His father David, and shall reign, and the government shall be upon His shoulder.

Verse. [7] In Him shall all the kindreds of the earth be blessed; all nations shall serve Him.

Answer. He shall sit upon the throne of His father David, and shall reign, and the government shall be upon His shoulder.

Fifth Lesson.

OUR restoration from the consequences of Adam's fall is sheer mercy of God, and nothing else; we should not have loved Him unless He had first loved us, (1 John iv. 19,) and scattered the darkness of our ignorance by the light of His truth. This the Lord promised by the mouth of Isaiah, where He saith, (Isa. xlii. 16,) "I will bring the blind by a way that they knew not, and I will lead them in paths that they have not known: I will make darkness light before them, and crooked things straight. These things will I do unto them and not forsake them." And again, (Isa. lxv. 1, 2; Rom. x. 20,) "I was found of them that sought Me not; I was made manifest unto them that asked not after Me."

Fifth Responsory.

[8] Behold, the fulness of the time is come, wherein God hath sent forth His Son into the world, born of a Virgin, made under the law: to redeem them that were under the law.

Verse. [9] God, for His great love wherewith He loved us, hath [10] sent His own Son in the likeness of sinful flesh.

Answer. To redeem them that were under the law.

Sixth Lesson.

AND we know from the Apostle John how God fulfilled His promise, (1 John v. 20.) "We know that the Son of God is come, and hath given us an understanding, that we may know Him That is True, and be in Him That is True, even in His Son." And again, (iv. 19,) "Let us therefore love God, because He first loved us." For His great love then wherewith he hath loved us, (Eph. ii. 4,) God reneweth His likeness in us. And, moreover, in order that He may find in us the reflection of His goodness, He giveth us that whereby to work along with Himself, (Who worketh all in all,) lighting, as it were, candles in our dark minds, and kindling in us the fire of His love, to make us love not Himself only, but likewise, in Him, whatsoever He loveth.

Sixth Responsory.

[11] O virgin of Israël, turn again to thy cities. How long wilt thou go about sorrowing? Thou shalt bring forth the Lord thy Saviour, a new offering in the earth; men shall walk in paths of salvation.

Answer. How long wilt thou go about sorrowing? Thou shalt bring forth the Lord thy Saviour, a new offering in the earth.

Verse. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, and to the Holy Ghost.

Answer. Men shall walk in paths of salvation.

THIRD NOCTURN.

Seventh Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Holy Gospel according to Luke (iii. 1.)

IN the fifteenth year of the reign of Tiberius Cæsar, Pontius Pilate being governor of Judæa. And so on.

Homily by Pope St Gregory [the Great,] (20th on the Gospels.)

"John said unto the multitude, that came forth to be baptised of him: O generation of vipers, who hath warned you to flee from the wrath to come?" "The wrath to come" in one sense signifieth the great vengeance of the Latter Day: the sinner that repenteth not of his sin now, will have no mean whereby to flee from punishment then. Let us remark that addressing evil children copying the example of evil parents, the Baptist calleth them a generation of vipers: in that they were envious at the righteous, and persecuted them; that they repaid evil for evil; that they hunted out ways of harming their neighbours,—in all these things following the pattern of carnal parents, the prophet likeneth them to a venomous brood hatched from a venomous stock.

Seventh Responsory.

[1] I have sworn, saith the Lord, that I will not be wroth any more with the earth; for the mountains and the hills shall receive My righteousness. And the covenant of My peace shall be in Jerusalem.

Verse. [2] My salvation is near to come, and My righteousness to be revealed.

Answer. And the covenant of My peace shall be in Jerusalem.

Eighth Lesson.

WE also have sinned, we have fallen into wicked habits. What must we do, if we would flee from the wrath to come? Let us hear John. "Bring forth fruits worthy of repentance." In which words let us remark that the Friend of the Bridegroom demandeth not only fruits of repentance, but fruits worthy of repentance. The former are one thing, and the latter another. In considering then what are fruits worthy of repentance, we may remark that if we had done nothing unlawful we might have had free use of things which are lawful, and been able to sanctify ourselves without abstaining from indulgence in the things of the world.

Eighth Responsory.

[3] We will not go back from Thee. Thou, O Lord, shalt quicken us, and we will call upon Thy name. Cause Thy face to shine upon us, and we shall be saved.

Verse. [4] Remember us, O LORD, with the favour that Thou showest unto Thy people; O visit us with Thy salvation.

Answer. Cause Thy face to shine upon us, and we shall be saved.

Ninth Lesson.

BUT if any one, for example, hath fallen into fornication, or perhaps, into what is much worse, adultery, he ought to make up for his lawless pleasure by abstaining in some degree from lawful enjoyments. He that hath sinned less is not bound to mortify himself as much as he that hath sinned more, nor he that is innocent like him that is guilty. Let every one hearing these words "bring forth fruits worthy of repentance," proceed to judge himself by his own conscience, and the more he perceiveth that he hath sinned, the greater penance let him do.

Ninth Responsory.

[5] Consider how great this man is, who is entered in for the salvation of the nations; he is King of Righteousness; without descent, nor end of life.

Verse. The Fore-runner is for us entered, made an High Priest for ever after the order of Melchisedek.

Answer. Without descent, nor end of life.

Verse. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, and to the Holy Ghost.

Answer. Without descent, nor end of life.

First Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Book of the Prophet Isaiah (li. 1.)

HEARKEN to me, ye that follow after righteousness and seek the LORD! Look unto the rock whence ye are hewn, and to the hole of the pit whence ye are dug. Look unto Abraham your father, and unto Sarah that bare you; for I called him when he was alone, and blessed him, and increased him. Therefore the LORD shall comfort Zion; He also will comfort all her waste places: and He will make her wilderness a place of delights, and her desert like the garden of the LORD. Joy and gladness shall be found therein, thanksgiving, and the voice of praise.

First Responsory.

I have sworn, &c., (Seventh Responsory on Sunday.)

Second Lesson.

HEARKEN unto Me, My people, and give ear unto Me, O My nation: for a law shall proceed from Me, and I will make My judgment to rest for a light of the people. My Righteous One is near, My Saviour is gone forth, and Mine arms shall judge the people: the isles shall wait upon Me, and on Mine arm shall they trust. Lift up your eyes to the heavens, and look upon the earth beneath; for the heavens shall vanish away like smoke, and the earth shall wax old like a garment, and they that dwell therein shall perish in like manner: but My salvation shall be for ever, and My righteousness shall not pass away.

Second Responsory.

We will not go back, &c., (Eighth Responsory on Sunday.)

Third Lesson.

HEARKEN unto me, ye that know righteousness, My people in whose heart is My law: fear ye not the reproach of men, neither be ye afraid of their revilings. For the worm shall eat them up like a garment, and the moth shall eat them like wool: but My salvation shall be for ever, and My righteousness from generation to generation.

Hymn as on the First Sunday.

First Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Book of the Prophet Isaiah (lxiv. 1.)

O THAT Thou wouldest rend the heavens, that Thou wouldest come down! that the mountains might flow down at Thy presence! They would pass away like a fire that is burnt out, the fires would cause the waters to boil, to make Thy name known to Thine adversaries, that the nations may tremble at Thy presence! When Thou doest terrible things we shall not abide it: Thou camest down, the mountains flowed down at Thy presence. From the beginning of the world men have not heard, nor perceived by the ear; the eye hath not seen, O God, beside Thee, what Thou hast prepared for them that wait for Thee!

First Responsory.

Blow ye the trumpet, &c., (First Responsory on Sunday.)

Second Lesson.

THOU meetest him that rejoiceth, and worketh righteousness; they will remember Thee in Thy ways: behold, Thou art wroth, for we have sinned: in those was continuance and we shall be saved. But we are all as an unclean thing, and all our righteousnesses are as filthy rags: [2] and we all do fade as a leaf, and our iniquities, like the wind, have taken us away. There is none that calleth upon Thy name, that stirreth up himself to take hold of Thee: Thou hast hid Thy face from us, and hast consumed us by the hand of our iniquities.

Second Responsory.

The sceptre shall not depart, &c., (Second Responsory on Sunday.)

Third Lesson.

AND now, O LORD, Thou art our Father; we are clay, and Thou our Potter, and we all are the work of Thine hand. Be not wroth very sore, O LORD, neither remember our iniquity for ever: behold, see, we are all Thy people. The city of Thy sanctuary is a wilderness, Zion is a wilderness, Jerusalem a desolation. Our holy and our beautiful house, where our fathers praised Thee, is burned up with fire, and all our pleasant things are laid waste.

Hymn as on the First Sunday.

First Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Book of the Prophet Isaiah (lxvi. 5.)

HEAR the word of the LORD, ye that tremble at His word; your brethren that hated you, and cast you out for My name's sake, said: Let the LORD be glorified, and we shall see it in your joy—but they shall be ashamed. A voice of people from the city, a voice from the temple, a voice of the LORD that rendereth recompense to His enemies. Before she travailed, she brought forth: before her pain came she was delivered of a man child. Who hath heard such a thing? or who hath seen such things? Shall the earth bring forth in one day? or shall a nation be born at once? for as soon as Zion travailed she brought forth her children.

First Responsory.

Unto us shall a Child, &c., (Fourth Responsory on Sunday.)

Second Lesson.

SHALL not I Myself bring forth, saith the LORD, That make others to bring forth? Shall I Myself be barren, That cause others to beget children? saith the Lord thy God. Rejoice ye with Jerusalem, and be glad with her, all ye that love her: rejoice for joy with her, all ye that mourn for her, that ye may suck, and be satisfied with the breasts of her consolations: that ye may milk out, and be delighted with the abundance of her glory. For thus saith the LORD: Behold, I will extend the glory of the Gentiles to her like a flowing stream, whereof ye shall suck; ye shall be borne upon her breasts, and be dandled upon her knees.

AS one whom his mother comforteth, so will I comfort you, and ye shall be comforted in Jerusalem. When ye see this, your heart shall rejoice, and your bones shall flourish like an herb: and the hand of the LORD shall be known towards His servants, and His indignation towards His enemies. For, behold, the LORD will come with fire; and His chariots like a whirlwind, to render His anger with fury, and His rebuke with flames of fire: for by fire and by His sword will the LORD plead with all flesh, and the slain of the LORD shall be many.

Christmas Eve,

The Eve of the Lord's Birth.

If Christmas Eve does not fall on a Sunday, the Office is of the Eve. If it fall on a Sunday, the Office is of the Sunday, save that the Invitatory is of the Eve; all is then of the Sunday till the Verse and Answer of the Third Nocturn: the Verse and Answer, Gospel and Homily, are then of the Eve; what follows is of the Eve, and at Lauds there is a Commemoration of the Sunday.

MATTINS.

Of the week-day, except the following.

Invitatory. This day ye shall know that the Lord cometh: *[1] and in the morning, then ye shall see His glory.

Hymn as on the First Sunday.

Verse. This day ye shall know that the Lord cometh.
Answer. And in the morning, then ye shall see His glory.

First [or Seventh] Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Holy Gospel according to Matthew (i. 18.)

WHEN as Mary, the Mother of JESUS, was espoused to Joseph, before they came together, she was found with child of the Holy Ghost. And so on.

Homily by St Jerome, Priest [at Bethlehem,] (1st Bk. of Commentaries, on Matth. i.)

Why was the Lord conceived of an espoused virgin rather than of a free? First, for the sake of the genealogy of Mary, which we have obtained by that of Joseph. Secondly, because she was thus saved from being stoned by the Jews as an adulteress. Thirdly, that Himself and His mother might have a guardian on their journey into Egypt. To these, Ignatius, the martyr of Antioch, has added a fourth reason: namely, that the birth might take place unknown to the devil, who would naturally suppose that Mary had conceived by Joseph.

First [or Seventh] Responsory.

[2] Sanctify yourselves to-day, and be ready: for on the morrow ye shall see the majesty of God upon you.
Verse. This day ye shall know that the Lord cometh, and in the morning, then ye shall see—
Answer. The majesty of God upon you.

Second [or Eighth] Lesson.

"BEFORE they came together, she was found with child of the Holy Ghost." She was found, that is, by Joseph, but by no one else. He had already almost an husband's privilege to know all that concerned her. "Before they came together." This doth not imply that they ever did come together: the Scripture merely showeth the absolute fact that up to this time they had not done so.

Second [or Eighth] Responsory.

[3] Stand still, and ye shall see the help of the Lord with you: O Judah and Jerusalem, fear not. To-morrow ye shall go out, and the Lord will be with you.
Verse. Sanctify yourselves, O ye children of Israël, and be ready.
Answer. To-morrow ye shall go out, and the Lord will be with you.

Third [or Ninth] Lesson.

"THEN Joseph her husband, being a just man, and not willing to make her a public example, was minded to put her away privily." If any man be joined to a fornicatress they become one body; and according to the law they that are privy to a crime are thereby guilty. How then can it be that Joseph is described as a just man, at the very time he was compounding the criminality of his espoused? It must have been that he knew her to be pure, and yet understood not the mystery of her pregnancy, but, while he wondered at that which had happened, was willing to hold his peace.

Third [or Ninth] Responsory.

Sanctify yourselves, O ye children of Israël, saith the Lord: for on the morrow the Lord will come down. And will take away from you all sickness.[1]

Whereunto they all replied with one voice, that they would far rather die for Christ's sake, whereupon he kindled the fire and they were consumed, and were born in heaven upon that same day whereupon it had pleased Christ to be born into this world to save it.

Hymn.[6]

JESUS, the Ransomer of man,
Who, ere created light began,
Didst from the Sovereign Father spring,
His power and glory equalling.

Thou brightness of Thy Father's rays,
Thou hope and end of all our ways:
With gracious ears the prayers attend,
Which round the world to Thee ascend.

Remember, Lord, that heretofore,
When Thee Thy Virgin Mother bore,
Thou from her womb didst breathe our air,
And human nature for us bear.

To Thee, this present solemn day,
We yearly adorations pay;
The world's Redeemer Thee we own,
Descending from Thy Father's throne.

The joyful heavens, earth and main,
With whatsoever they contain,
In new, harmonious accents sing
New life restored by the new-born King.

We, ransomed by that bloody tide,
That issued from Thy sacred side,
With double hymns of heart and voice,
For this Thy natal day rejoice.

To JESUS, from a Virgin sprung,
Be glory given, and praises sung:
The like to God the Father be,
And Holy Ghost eternally. Amen.

First Lesson. [9] (Isa. ix. 1.)

AT the first He lightly afflicted the land of Zabulon and the land of Naphtali: and afterward did more grievously afflict the way of the sea, beyond Jordan, Galilee of the Gentiles. The people that walked in darkness have seen a great light: they that dwell in the land of the shadow of death, upon them hath the light shined. Thou hast multiplied the nation and [10] not increased the joy. They shall joy before Thee according to the joy in harvest, as men rejoice when they divide the spoil. For Thou hast broken the yoke of his burden, and the staff of his shoulder, and the rod of his oppressor, as in the day of Midian. For every battle of the warrior is with confused noise, and garments rolled in blood, and it shall be with burning and fuel of fire. For unto us a Child is born, and unto us a Son is given: and the government is upon His shoulder, and His name shall be called Wonderful, Counsellor, The Mighty God, The Everlasting Father, the Prince of Peace.

---

[1] Nativitas.

[2] This passage is in 3 (1) Kings x. 23, 24, and relates to Solomon, but by translating his name, which, in the Hebrew, means "Peaceful," it is made to apply to Christ the true "Prince of Peace."

[3] Luke ii. 6, 7.

[4] Luke xxi. 31.

[5] Luke xxi. 28.

[6] This hymn, except the last verse, is of the Ambrosian school, though altered almost beyond recognition: the translation is extracted from the "Hortus Animæ."

[7] Cf. Ps. xviii.

[8] Cf. Isa. ix. 6.

[9] But the title is not given out. Lowth translates the first words: "In the former time He debased the land of Zabulon, &c.," (referring to the invasion under Tiglath Pileser,) "but in the latter time He hath made it glorious, even the way of the sea, &c."

[10] The Hebrew tradition, accepted by Lowth, attributes the negative to an eccentric spelling, and translates: "and increased their joy."

First Responsory.

This is the day whereon the King of heaven was pleased to be born of a Virgin, that He might bring back to heaven man who was lost. There is joy among the hosts of Angels, because eternal salvation hath appeared unto men.

Verse. [1] Glory to God in the highest, and on earth peace, to men of goodwill.[2]

Answer. There is joy among the hosts of Angels, because eternal salvation hath appeared unto men.

Verse. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, and to the Holy Ghost.

Answer. This is the day whereon the King of heaven was pleased to be born of a Virgin, that He might bring back to heaven man who was lost. There is joy among the hosts of Angels, because eternal salvation hath appeared unto men.

Second Lesson. [3] (Isa. xl. 1.)

COMFORT ye, comfort ye, My people, saith your God. Speak ye comfortably to Jerusalem, and cry unto her that her warfare is accomplished, that her iniquity is pardoned; for she hath received of the LORD'S hand double for all her sins. The voice of him that crieth in the wilderness: Prepare ye the way of the LORD, make straight in the desert an highway for our God. Every valley shall be exalted, and every mountain and hill shall be made low: and the crooked shall be made straight, and the rough places plain. And the glory of the LORD shall be revealed, and all flesh shall see it together; for the mouth of the LORD hath spoken it. The voice said, Cry. And I said: What shall I cry? All flesh is grass, and all the goodliness thereof is as the flower of the field. The grass withereth and the flower fadeth, because the spirit of the LORD bloweth upon it: surely the people is grass. The grass withereth and the flower fadeth: but the word of our [4] Lord endureth for ever.

Second Responsory.

This day is the true peace come down unto us from heaven. This day throughout the whole world the skies drop down sweetness.

Verse. This day is the daybreak of our new redemption, of the restoring of the old, of everlasting joy.

Answer. This day throughout the whole world the skies drop down sweetness.

Third Lesson. [5] (Isa. lii. 1.)

AWAKE, awake, put on thy strength, O Zion: put on thy beautiful garments, O Jerusalem, thou city of the Holy One! for henceforth there shall no more come into thee the uncircumcised and the unclean. Shake thyself from the dust, arise, sit down, O Jerusalem: loose thyself from the bands of thy neck, O captive daughter of Zion! For thus saith the LORD: Ye have sold yourselves for nought, and ye shall be redeemed without money. For thus saith the Lord [6] GOD: My people went down aforetime into Egypt, to sojourn there: and the Assyrian oppressed them without cause. Now, therefore, what have I here, saith the LORD, that My people is taken away for nought? They that rule over them do evil, saith the LORD, and My name continually every day is blasphemed. Therefore My people shall know My Name in that day: they shall know that I am He That spake, behold, it is I.

Third Responsory.

O ye shepherds, speak, and tell us what ye have seen; who is appeared in the earth? We saw the new-born Child, and Angels singing praise to the Lord.

Verse. Speak; what have ye seen? And tell us of the Birth of Christ.

Answer. We saw the new-born Child, and Angels singing praise to the Lord.

Verse. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, and to the Holy Ghost.

Answer. We saw the new-born Child, and Angels singing praise to the Lord.

SECOND NOCTURN.

First Antiphon. We have drunk in Thy loving-kindness, * O God, in the midst of Thy temple.

Psalm XLVII.

Great is the LORD, &c., (p. 55.)

Second Antiphon. In the Lord's days * shall abundance of peace arise and flourish.

Psalm LXXI.

Give the king Thy judgments, &c., (p. 72.)

Third Antiphon. Truth is sprung out of the earth, * and righteousness hath looked down from heaven.

Psalm LXXXIV.

LORD, Thou hast been favourable, &c., (p. 81.)

Verse. [7] Thou art fairer than the children of men.

Answer. Grace is poured into thy lips.

Fourth Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Sermons of Pope St Leo [the Great,] (1st for Christmas.)

DEARLY beloved brethren, "Unto us is born this day a Saviour," (Luke ii. 11.) Let us rejoice. It would be unlawful to be sad to-day, for to-day is Life's Birthday: the Birthday of that Life, Which, for us dying creatures, taketh away the sting of death, and bringeth the bright promise of the eternal gladness hereafter. It would be unlawful for any man to refuse to partake in our rejoicing. All men have an equal share in the great cause of our joy, for, since our Lord, Who is the destroyer of sin and of death, findeth that all are bound under the condemnation, He is come to make all free. Rejoice, O thou that art holy, thou drawest nearer to thy crown! Rejoice, O thou that art sinful, thy Saviour offereth thee pardon! Rejoice also, O thou Gentile, God calleth thee to life! For the Son of God, when the fulness of the time was come, which had been fixed by the unsearchable counsel of God, took upon Him the nature of man, that He might reconcile that nature to Him Who made it, and so the devil, the inventor of death, is met and beaten in that very flesh which hath been the field of his victory.

Fourth Responsory.

How great is this mystery, how wonderful is the teaching of the faith! The beasts saw the new-born Lord lying in a manger. Blessed is that Virgin whose womb was made meet to bear our Lord Christ.

Verse. Hail, Mary, full of grace: the Lord is with thee.

Answer. Blessed is that Virgin whose womb was made meet to bear our Lord Christ.

Fifth Lesson.

WHEN our Lord entered the field of battle against the devil, He did so with a great and wonderful fairness. Being Himself the Almighty, He laid aside His uncreated Majesty to fight with our cruel enemy in our weak flesh. He brought against him the very shape, the very nature of our mortality, "yet without sin." (Heb. iv. 15.) His birth however was not a birth like other births—for no other is born pure, nay, not the little child whose life endureth but a day on the earth.[1] To His birth alone the throes of human passion had not contributed, in His alone no consequence of sin had had part. For His Mother was chosen a Virgin of the kingly lineage of David, and when she was to grow heavy with the sacred Child, her soul had already conceived Him before her body. She knew the counsel of God announced to her by the Angel, lest the unwonted events should alarm her. The future Mother of God knew what was to be wrought in her by the Holy Ghost, and that her modesty was absolutely safe.

Fifth Responsory.

Blessed is God's holy Mother, Mary, maiden undefiled. This day hath she brought forth the Saviour of the world.

Verse. [2] Blessed is she that believed; for there is a performance of all those things which were told her from the Lord.

Answer. This day hath she brought forth the Saviour of the world.

Sixth Lesson.

THEREFORE, dearly beloved brethren, let us give thanks to God the Father, through His Son, in the Holy Ghost: Who, "for His great love wherewith He loved us," hath had mercy on us: and, "even when we were dead in sins, hath quickened us together with Christ," (Eph. ii. 4, 5,) that in Him we might be a new creature, and a new workmanship. Let us then put off the old man with his deeds (Col. iii. 9); and, having obtained a share in the Sonship of Christ, let us renounce the deeds of the flesh. Learn, O Christian, how great thou art, who hast been made partaker of the Divine nature, (2 Pet. i. 4,) and fall not again by corrupt conversation into the beggarly elements above which thou art lifted. Remember Whose Body it is Whereof thou art made a member, and Who is its Head, (1 Cor. vi. 15.) Remember that it is He That hath delivered thee from the power of darkness and hath translated thee into God's light, and God's kingdom, (Col. i. 13.)

Sixth Responsory.

O Mary, how holy and how spotless is thy virginity — I am too dull to praise thee! For thou hast borne in thy breast Him Whom the heavens cannot contain.[3]

Verse. Blessed art thou among women, and blessed is the fruit of thy womb.

Answer. For thou hast borne in thy breast Him Whom the heavens cannot contain.

Verse. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, and to the Holy Ghost.

Answer. For thou hast borne in thy breast Him Whom the heavens cannot contain.

THIRD NOCTURN.

First Antiphon. He shall cry unto Me, (Alleluia) * Thou art My Father, (Alleluia.)

Psalm LXXXVIII.

I will sing of the mercies, &c., (p. 83.)

Second Antiphon. Let the heavens rejoice, * and let the earth be glad before the LORD, for He cometh.

Psalm XCV.

O sing unto the LORD, &c., (p. 85.)

Third Antiphon. The Lord hath made known, (Alleluia,) * His salvation, (Alleluia.)

Psalm XCVII.

O sing unto the LORD, &c., (p. 89.)

Verse. He shall cry unto Me, (Alleluia.)

Answer. Thou art My Father, (Alleluia.)

Seventh Blessing.

May the Gospel's saving Lord
Bless the reading of His Word.

Seventh Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Holy Gospel according to Luke (ii. 1.)

AT that time: There went out a decree from Cæsar Augustus that all the world should be enrolled. And so on.

Homily by Pope St Gregory [the Great,] (8*th on the Gospels.*)

By God's mercy we are to say three Masses to-day, so that there is not much time left for preaching; but at the same time the occasion of the Lord's Birth-day itself obliges me to speak a few words. I will first ask why, when the Lord was to be born, the world was enrolled? Was it not to herald the appearing of Him by Whom the elect are enrolled in the book of life? Whereas the Prophet saith of the reprobate: "Let them be blotted out of the book of the living, and not be written with the righteous." (Ps. lxviii. 29.) Then, the Lord is born in Bethlehem. Now the name Bethlehem signifieth "the House of Bread," and thus it is the birth-place of Him Who hath said, "I am the Living Bread, Which came down from heaven." (John vi. 51.) We see then that this name of Bethlehem was prophetically given to the place where Christ was born, because it was there that He was to appear in the flesh by Whom the souls of the faithful are fed unto life eternal. He was born, not in His Mother's house, but away from home. And this is a mystery, showing that this our mortality into which He was born was not the home of Him Who is begotten of the Father before the worlds.

[2] Luke i. 45.

[3] 3 (1) Kings viii. 27.

Seventh Responsory.

Blessed be the womb of the Virgin Mary, which bore the Son of the Eternal Father, and blessed be the paps which give suck to Christ our Lord. This day hath He been pleased for the salvation of the world to be born of a Virgin.

Verse. This day which is breaking is holy: O come, ye Gentiles, and worship the Lord.

Answer. This day hath he been pleased for the salvation of the world to be born of a Virgin.

Eighth Blessing.

May the Gospel's glorious word,
Cleansing to our souls afford.

Eighth Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Holy Gospel according to Luke (ii. 15.)

AT that time: The shepherds said one to another: Let us now go even unto Bethlehem, and see this thing which is come to pass, which the Lord hath made known unto us. And so on.

Homily by St Ambrose, Bishop [of Milan,] (Book ii. on Luke ii.)

Behold the beginning of the Church. Christ is born, and the shepherds watch; shepherds, to gather together the scattered sheep of the Gentiles, and to lead them into the fold of Christ, that they might no longer be a prey to the ravages of spiritual wolves in the night of this world's darkness. And that shepherd is wide awake, whom the Good Shepherd stirreth up. The flock then is the people, the night is the world, and the shepherds are the Priests. And perhaps he is a shepherd to whom it is said, "Be watchful and strengthen," (Apoc. iii. 2,)[1] for God hath ordained as the shepherds of His flock not Bishops only, but also Angels.

Eighth Responsory.

[2] The Word was made flesh, and dwelt among us. And we beheld His glory, the glory as of the Only-begotten of the Father, full of grace and truth.

Verse. All things were made by Him, and without Him was not anything made.

Answer. And we beheld His glory, the glory as of the Only-begotten of the Father, full of grace and truth.

Verse. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, and to the Holy Ghost.

Answer. And we beheld His glory, the glory as of the Only-begotten of the Father, full of grace and truth.

Ninth Blessing.

Christ That sent the Gospel preacher,
In his meaning be our Teacher.

Ninth Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Holy Gospel according to John (i. 1.)

IN the beginning was the Word, and the Word was with God, and the Word was God. And so on.

Homily by St Austin, Bishop [of Hippo,] (1st Tract on John.)

Lest thou shouldest think all things mean, as thou art accustomed to think of things human, hear and digest this—"The Word was God." Now perhaps there will come forward some Arian unbeliever, and say that the Word of God was a creature. How can the Word of God be a creature, when it was by the Word that all creatures were made? If He be a creature, then there must have been some other Word, not a creature, by which He was made. And what Word is that? If thou sayest that it was by the word of the Word Himself that He was made, I tell thee that God had no other, but One Only-begotten Son. But if thou say not that it was by the word of the Word Himself that He was made, thou art forced to confess that He by Whom all things were made was not Himself made at all. Believe the Gospel.

The Hymn, "We praise thee, O God, &c." is said.

After this the Service proceeds as follows:[3]

Verse. Hear my prayer, O LORD.

Chapter. (Heb. i. 1.)

GOD, Who by divers portions and in divers manners spake in time past unto the fathers by the Prophets: hath in these last days spoken unto us by His Son, Whom He hath appointed heir of all things, by Whom also He made the worlds.

Hymn.[3]

FROM where the sunrise had its birth,
Unto the farthest bounds of earth,
The Virgin Mary's Child we sing,
With notes of gladness, Christ the King.

Blest Maker of the world, He came
And clad Him in a servant's frame,
Our flesh with His own Flesh to aid,
Lest those should perish whom He made.

His Mother pure becomes the place
Wherein abides celestial grace,
She bears within her maiden breast
A secret by herself unguessed.

Soon rises in that modest shrine
The Temple of the Lord Divine:
The stainless and unwedded one
Within her womb conceived the Son.

Him in that wondrous birth she bore
Whom Gabriel announced before;
Whom John while yet unborn perceived,
And, leaping in the womb, believed.

On hay reclined, the Lord Most High,
Within a manger deigned to lie:
And He who feeds the birds of air
Vouchsafed a little milk to share.

The Heavenly choirs now rejoice,
The Angels lift to God their voice,
The Shepherd Who the world hath made
Before the shepherds lies displayed.

O Lord, from spotless Virgin sprung,
All glory unto Thee be sung,
To Father, and to Spirit be
Like honour paid eternally. Amen.

Verse. The Lord hath made known.—Alleluia.

Answer. His salvation. Alleluia.

Antiphon at the Song of Zacharias. Glory to God in the highest, * and on earth peace, to men of good-will. Alleluia, Alleluia.

Prayer throughout the Office.

GRANT, we beseech Thee, Almighty God, that we who groan under the burthen of our sins, may, by the new Birth of Thine Only-begotten Son in the flesh, mercifully be freed and delivered. Through the Same our Lord JESUS Christ Thy Son, Who liveth and reigneth with Thee, in the unity of the Holy Ghost, one God, world without end. Amen.

PRIME.

Prime is said at dawn.

Antiphon. O ye shepherds, &c., (First Antiphon at Lauds.)

In the short Responsory instead of the Verse "Thou That sittest at the right hand of the Father," is said:

Verse. Thou That wast born of the Virgin Mary.

And the same alteration is made every day till Twelfth Day.

MARTYROLOGY.

On the 26th day of December, was born into the higher life—

At Jerusalem, holy Stephen, the first Martyr. He was stoned by the Jews not long after the Ascension of the Lord.

At Rome, holy Marinus, of the Senatorial order. He was arrested under the Emperor Numerian and the Præfect Marcian, on the charge of being a Christian. He was tortured as they used to do to slaves, on the rack and with iron claws. They threw him into a furnace, but the fire was turned into dew, and he was delivered. He was thrown to wild beasts, but they left him unharmed. He was led again to the altar, and, when he prayed, the idols fell down. Then they smote him with the sword, and he became more than conqueror through up-lifting of his testimony.

Likewise, at Rome, on this day was laid to sleep [in the year 269] beside the Appian Road the holy Pope Denys, who worked hard for the Church, and is a bright ensample of faith.

At the same place [in the year 417], the holy Pope and confessor Zosimus.

In Mesopotamia, the holy Bishop Archelaus, well known for his teaching and holiness.

At Verona [in the year 380], holy Bishop Zeno.

At Rome, holy Theodore, the chamberlain of St Peter's church, of whom mention is made by blessed Pope Gregory.

And in divers places an exceeding great multitude of holy Martyrs and Confessors and holy Virgins.

Chapter at the end. (Heb. i. 11.)

THEY shall perish, but Thou remainest, and they all shall wax old as doth a garment, and as a vesture shalt Thou change them, and they shall be changed: but Thou art the Same, and Thy years shall not fail.

FIRST NOCTURN.

First Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Acts of the Apostles (vi. 2.)

IN those days, when the number of the disciples was multiplied, there arose a murmuring of the Grecians against the Hebrews, because their widows were neglected in the daily ministration. Then the twelve called the multitude of the disciples unto them, and said: It is not reasonable that we should leave the Word of God, and serve tables. Wherefore, brethren, look ye out among you seven men of honest report, full of the Holy Ghost and wisdom, whom we may appoint over this business. But we will give ourselves continually to prayer, and to the ministry of the word.

First Responsory.

And Stephen, full of grace and power, did great wonders and miracles among the people.

Verse. There arose certain of the synagogue, disputing with Stephen; and they were not able to resist the wisdom, and the Spirit which spake.

Answer. Did great wonders and miracles among the people.

---

[1] Acts vi. 8.

[2] The name Stephen means a crown.

[3] The original has a rhyme.

Second Lesson.

AND the saying pleased the whole multitude. And they chose Stephen, a man full of faith and of the Holy Ghost, and Philip, and Prochorus, and Nicanor, and Timon, and Parmenas, and Nicolas, a proselyte of Antioch. Whom they set before the Apostles: and when they had prayed, they laid their hands on them. And the word of God increased; and the multitude of the disciples multiplied in Jerusalem greatly; and a great multitude of the priests were obedient to the faith. And Stephen, full of grace and power, did great wonders and miracles among the people.

Second Responsory.

[1] All that sat in the council, looking steadfastly on Stephen, saw his face as it had been the face of an angel standing among them.

Verse. Full of grace and power, he did great wonders and miracles among the people.

Answer. His face as it had been the face of an angel standing among them.

Third Lesson.

THEN there arose certain of the synagogue, which is called the synagogue of the Libertines, and Cyrenians, and Alexandrians, and of them of Cilicia and of Asia, disputing with Stephen. And they were not able to resist the wisdom and the Spirit which spake. Then they suborned men, which said they had heard him speak blasphemous words against Moses and against God. And they stirred up the people, and the elders, and the scribes; and came upon him, and caught him, and brought him to the council, and set up false witnesses, which said: This man ceaseth not to speak words against this holy place, and the law.

Third Responsory.

[2] The blessed Stephen looked up steadfastly into heaven, and saw the glory of God, and said:—Behold, I see the heavens opened, and the Son of Man standing at the right hand of the power of God.

Verse. But Stephen, being full of the Holy Ghost, looked up steadfastly into heaven, and saw the glory of God, and said:—

Answer. Behold, I see the heavens opened, and the Son of Man standing at the right hand of the power of God.

Verse. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, and to the Holy Ghost.

Answer. Behold, I see the heavens opened, and the Son of Man standing at the right hand of the power of God.

SECOND NOCTURN.

Fourth Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Sermons of St Fulgentius, Bishop [of Ruspa.][3] (On St Stephen.)

YESTERDAY we were celebrating the birth in time of our Eternal King; to-day we celebrate the victory, through suffering, of one of His soldiers. Yesterday our King was pleased to come forth from His royal palace of the Virgin's womb, clothed in a robe of flesh, to visit the world; to-day His soldier, laying aside the tabernacle of the body, entereth in triumph into the heavenly palaces. The One, preserving unchanged that glory of the Godhead which He had before the world was, girded Himself with the form of a servant, and entered the arena of this world to fight sin; the other taketh off the garments of this corruptible body, and entereth into the heavenly mansions, where he will reign for ever. The One cometh down, veiled in flesh; the other goeth up, clothed in a robe of glory, red with blood.

Fourth Responsory.

[4] They stoned Stephen, calling upon God and saying: Lord Jesus Christ, receive my spirit; and lay not this sin to their charge.

Verse. And he kneeled down, and cried with a loud voice, saying:—

Answer. Lord Jesus Christ, receive my spirit; and lay not this sin to their charge.

Fifth Lesson.

THE One cometh down amid the jubilation of angels; the other goeth up amid the stoning of the Jews. Yesterday the holy angels were singing, "Glory to God in the highest;" to-day there is joy among them, for they receive Stephen into their company. Yesterday the Lord came forth from the Virgin's womb; to-day His soldier is delivered from the prison of the body. Yesterday Christ was for our sakes wrapped in swaddling bands; to-day He girdeth Stephen with a robe of immortality. Yesterday the new-born Christ lay in a narrow manger; to-day Stephen entereth victorious into the boundless heavens. The Lord came down alone that He might raise many up; our King humbled Himself that He might set His soldiers in high places.

Fifth Responsory.

[5] They ran upon him with one accord, and cast him out of the city, calling upon God, and saying: Lord Jesus, receive my spirit.

Verse. And the witnesses laid down their clothes at a young man's feet, whose name was Saul; and they stoned Stephen, calling upon God, and saying:—

Answer. Lord Jesus, receive my spirit.

Sixth Lesson.

MY brethren, it behoveth us to consider with what arms Stephen was able, amid all the cruelty of the Jews, to remain more than conqueror, and worthily to attain to so blessed a triumph. Stephen, in that struggle which brought him to the crown whereof his name is a prophecy, had for armour the love of God and man, and by it he remained victorious on all hands. The love of God strengthened him against the cruelty of the Jews; and the love of his neighbour made him pray even for his murderers.

[1] Acts vi. 15.

[2] Acts vii. 55.

[3] Now called Alfaques, in the district of Tunis, in North Africa. The Martyrology (Jan. 1) says that "in the persecution by the Vandals he suffered much for the Catholic faith, and, on account of his great learning, was banished by the Arians into the isle of Sardinia; but, afterward permitted to return to his Bishopric, renowned for his life and preaching, made an holy end." Born, A.D. 468. Died, 533.

[4] Acts vii. 59, 60.

[5] Acts vii. 56-58.

Through love he rebuked the wandering, that they might be corrected; through love he prayed for them that stoned him, that they might not be punished. By the might of his love he overcame Saul his cruel persecutor; and earned for a comrade in heaven, the very man who had done him to death upon earth.

Sixth Responsory.

The ungodly fell upon the righteous, to put him to death. But he received the stones with joy, that he might earn a crown of glory.

Verse. They stopped their ears, and ran upon him with one accord.

Answer. But he received the stones with joy, that he might earn a crown of glory.

Verse. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, and to the Holy Ghost.

Answer. But he received the stones with joy, that he might earn a crown of glory.

THIRD NOCTURN.

Seventh Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Holy Gospel according to Matthew (xxiii. 34.)

AT that time: JESUS said unto the Scribes and Pharisees: Behold, I send unto you Prophets, and wise men, and Scribes; and some of them ye shall kill and crucify. And so on.

Homily on this passage by St Jerome, Priest [at Bethlehem.] (Bk. iv. Commentary on Matth. xxiii.)

We have already remarked that the Lord's words, "Fill ye up the measure of your fathers," (32,) refer in the first place to Himself, Whom the Jews afterwards put to death. In a secondary sense it may likewise be applied to His disciples, of whom He saith, "Behold, I send unto you Prophets, and wise men, and Scribes." Here observe that, according to the Apostle writing to the Corinthians, (1 Cor. xii. 4,) there are diversities of gifts among Christ's followers. Some are Prophets of that which is to come; some are wise men, who know the due season for rebuke and exhortation; some are Scribes learned in the law. And of these they stoned Stephen, slew Paul with the sword, crucified Peter, and scourged the Disciples mentioned in the Acts of the Apostles. (v. 40; xvi. 23.)

Seventh Responsory.

Stephen, the servant of God, who was stoned by the Jews, saw the heavens opened: he saw and entered in. Blessed is he, unto whom the heavens were opened.

Verse. While his poor body was crushed by the hurtling shower of stones, God's brightness broke upon him out of the heavenly palaces.

Answer. Blessed is he unto whom the heavens were opened.

Eighth Lesson.

IT is a subject of dispute among commentators who is meant by Zacharias the son of Barachias. We read of several persons of the name of Zacharias. But here, in order to prevent any mistake, it is particularly said, "Whom ye slew between the temple and the altar." I have read various opinions in various places upon this question, and I will give each. First, some hold that Zacharias the son of Barachias is the eleventh of the twelve Minor Prophets; and this opinion is supported by the father's name. But the Bible nowhere telleth us that this Prophet was slain between the temple and the altar; and it is hardly possible that he can have been, for in his time it could scarcely be said that even the ruins of the temple were in existence. Secondly, others maintain that this Zacharias was Zacharias, the father of John the Baptist. This interpretation is derived from the dreams of the Apocryphal Gospels, wherein it is asserted that he was martyred for preaching Christ's coming.

Eighth Responsory.

The gates of heaven were opened to Christ's blessed martyr Stephen, and he is the first of all the martyrs. Wherefore he reigneth crowned in heaven.

Verse. For he was the first to make an offering of his death to that Saviour Who vouchsafed to suffer death for us.

Answer. Wherefore he reigneth crowned in heaven.

Verse. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, and to the Holy Ghost.

Answer. Wherefore he reigneth crowned in heaven.

Ninth Lesson.

A THIRD school will have it that this Zacharias, the son of Barachias, was that Zacharias of whom we read, in 2 Chron. xxiv. 22, that he was slain by Joash, king of Judah, between the temple and the altar. Against this it is to be remarked, that that Zacharias was not the son of Barachias, but of Jehoiada the priest; whence it is written, "Joash remembered not the kindness which Jehoiada his father had done to him." The question therefore ariseth, if this opinion be true, why, the name and manner of death both agreeing with this explanation, Zacharias is called the son, not of Jehoiada, but of Barachias. In Hebrew, Barachias signifieth the Blessed of the LORD, and Jehoiada proves his Righteousness. In the Gospel used by the Nazarenes the name of Jehoiada is used instead of Barachias.

LAUDS.

MARTYROLOGY.

Upon the 27th day of December were born into the better life—

At Ephesus, the holy Apostle and Evangelist John. After the writing of his Gospel after his return from exile, and after the Revelation which God gave unto him, he lived on until the time of the Emperor Trajan, and founded and governed the churches of all Asia. He died of old age in the sixty-eighth year after the death of Christ [about the year 101], and was buried hard by the city of Ephesus.

At Alexandria, holy Maximus, Pope of that See, who was eminently worthy to be called a confessor [in the year 282].

At Constantinople the holy brethren Theodore [Grapt] and Theophanes. They were bred up from their childhood in the monastery of St Saba, and afterwards stoutly contended for the honouring of holy images against the Emperor Leo the Armenian, for the which he caused them to be beaten and sent into exile, and after his death they still stoutly withstood the Emperor Theophilus, who was held captive by the same ungodliness, for the which he also caused them to be again beaten and driven into exile. Theodore died in prison, but Theophanes, after that peace was given back to the Church, was made Bishop of Nice, and fell asleep in peace in the Lord [ninth century].

Likewise, at Constantinople, the holy virgin Niceras, who was eminent for her holiness, in the time of the Emperor Arcadius [about the year 440].

MATTINS.

FIRST NOCTURN.

First Lesson.

Here beginneth the First Epistle of the Blessed Apostle John (i. 1.)

THAT Which was from the beginning, Which we have heard, Which we have seen with our eyes, Which we have looked upon, and our hands have handled, of the Word of life, (and the Life was manifested, and we have seen It, and bear witness, and show unto you that Eternal Life, Which was with the Father, and was manifested unto us) That Which we have seen and heard declare we unto you, that ye also may have fellowship with us, and our fellowship be with the Father, and with His Son JESUS Christ. And these things we write unto you that ye may rejoice, and that your joy may be full. This then is the message which we have heard of Him, and declare unto you: That God is light, and in Him is no darkness at all.

---

[1] Acts viii. 2.

[2] When this is the first or last Prayer, it has, of course, the usual termination, "Through our Lord, &c."

First Responsory.

Very worshipful is blessed John, which leaned on the Lord's Breast at supper. To Him did Christ upon the Cross commit His mother, maiden to maiden.

Verse. The Lord chose him for his clean maidenhood, and loved him more than all the rest.

Answer. To him did Christ upon the Cross commit His mother, maiden to maiden.

Second Lesson.

IF we say that we have fellowship with Him, and walk in darkness, we lie, and do not the truth. But if we walk in the light, as He is in the light, we have fellowship one with another, and the blood of JESUS Christ His Son cleanseth us from all sin. If we say that we have no sin, we deceive ourselves, and the truth is not in us. If we confess our sins, He is faithful and just to forgive us our sins, and to cleanse us from all unrighteousness. If we say that we have not sinned, we make Him a liar, and His word is not in us.

Second Responsory.

[1] This is the disciple which testifieth of these things, and wrote these things. And we know that his testimony is true.

Verse. He drank in the rivers of the Gospel from the Lord's Breast as from an holy fountain.

Answer. And we know that his testimony is true.

Third Lesson. (ii. 1.)

MY little children, these things write I unto you, that ye sin not. And if any man sin, we have an advocate with the Father, JESUS Christ the righteous: and He is the propitiation for our sins; and not for ours only, but also for the sins of the whole world. And hereby we do know that we know Him, if we keep His commandments. He that saith, I know Him, and keepeth not His commandments, is a liar, and the truth is not in him. But whoso keepeth His word, in him verily is the love of God perfected.

Third Responsory.

This is that most blessed Evangelist and Apostle John. Who was found worthy that the Lord should honour him more than all the rest, by a special privilege of love.

Verse. [2] This is the disciple whom JESUS loved, which also leaned on the Lord's Breast at supper.

Answer. Who was found worthy that the Lord should honour him more than all the rest, by a special privilege of love.

Verse. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, and to the Holy Ghost.

Answer. Who was found worthy that the Lord should honour him more than all the rest, by a special privilege of love.

SECOND NOCTURN.

Fourth Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Book on Ecclesiastical writers, written by St Jerome, Priest [at Bethlehem.]

THE Apostle John "whom JESUS loved" was a son of Zebedee, and brother of the Apostle James, who was beheaded by Herod soon after our Lord suffered. He was the last of the Evangelists to write his Gospel, which he published at the request of the Bishops of Asia, against Cerinthus and other heretics, and particularly against the then spreading doctrine of the Ebionites, who asserted that Christ had had no existence before Mary. It was therefore needful for the Evangelist to declare His Eternal and Divine Generation.

Fourth Responsory.

[3] Him that overcometh will I make a pillar in My temple, saith the Lord, and I will write My name upon him, and the name of the city, which is New Jerusalem.

Verse. [4] To him that overcometh will I give to eat of the tree of life, which is in the midst of the Paradise of My God.

Answer. And I will write My name upon him, and the name of the city, which is New Jerusalem.

Fifth Lesson.

IN the fourteenth year after Nero, Domitian stirred up the second persecution, and John was exiled to the island of Patmos, where he wrote his Apocalypse, which hath been explained by Justin the Martyr and Irenæus. When Domitian was killed, the Senate annulled all his acts, on account of his savage cruelty, and the Apostle returned to Ephesus, during the reign of Nerva. He remained at Ephesus until the time of Trajan, and founded and governed all the Churches of Asia. There, in an extreme old age, he died, in the sixty-eighth year after the Lord's passion, and was buried near the city.

Fifth Responsory.

JESUS loved him, because his singular gift of purity made him more worthy of love. He chose him for a virgin unto Himself, and he remaineth a virgin for ever.

Verse. At the end, when He was dying upon the Cross, to him did He commit His mother, maiden to maiden.

Answer. He chose him for a virgin unto Himself, and he remaineth a virgin for ever.

Sixth Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Commentary upon the Epistle to the Galatians, by the same author (iii. 6.)

THE Blessed Evangelist John lived at Ephesus down to an extreme old age, and, at length, when he was with difficulty carried to the Church, and was not able to exhort the congregation at length, he was used simply to say at each meeting, "My little children, love one another." At last the disciples and brethren were weary with hearing these words continually, and asked him, "Master, wherefore ever sayest thou this only?" Whereto he replied to them, (worthy of John,) "It is the commandment of the Lord, and if this only be done, it is enough."

[2] John xxi. 20.

[3] Apoc. iii. 12.

[4] Apoc. ii. 7.

Sixth Responsory.

[1] IN the midst of the congregation did the Lord open his mouth. And filled him with the spirit of wisdom and understanding.

Verse. He made him rich with joy and gladness.

Answer. And filled him with the spirit of wisdom and understanding.

Verse. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, and to the Holy Ghost.

Answer. And filled him with the spirit of wisdom and understanding.

THIRD NOCTURN.

Seventh Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Holy Gospel according to John (xxi. 19.)

AT that time: JESUS saith unto Peter: Follow Me. Peter, turning about, seeth the disciple whom JESUS loved, following. And so on.

Homily on this passage by St Austin, Bishop [of Hippo,] (124*th Tract on John.*)

The Church knoweth of two different lives which God hath revealed and blessed: one is the life of faith, the other the life of knowledge: one the life of this pilgrimage, the other the life of the eternal mansions; one the life of work, the other the life of rest: one the life of the journey, the other the life of home; one the life of action, the other the life of contemplation. The one escheweth evil and doeth good; the other hath no evil to eschew, and only an exceeding good to enjoy. The one striveth with the enemy, the other hath no enemies, and reigneth.

Seventh Responsory.

[2] In that day will I take thee, O My servant, and will make thee as a signet before Me. For I have chosen thee, saith the LORD.

Verse. [3] Be thou faithful unto death, and I will give thee a crown of life.

Answer. For I have chosen thee, saith the LORD.

Eighth Lesson.

THE one succoureth the needy; the other is where there are no needy to succour. The one forgiveth them that trespass against it, that its own trespasses may be forgiven; the other neither hath trespasses to forgive nor to be forgiven. The one is chastened with evil, lest it be exalted above measure by good; the other enjoyeth such a fulness of grace that it feeleth no evil, and cleaveth so firmly unto the Highest Good, that it hath no temptation to pride.

Eighth Responsory.

This is that John which leaned on the Lord's Breast at supper—even that blessed Apostle unto whom were made known the secret things of heaven.

Verse. He drank in the rivers of the Gospel from the Lord's Breast, as from an holy fountain.

Answer. Even that blessed Apostle unto whom were made known the secret things of heaven.

Verse. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, and to the Holy Ghost.

Answer. Even that blessed Apostle unto whom were made known the secret things of heaven.

Ninth Lesson.

WHEREFORE the one is good, but still sorrowful; the other is better and perfectly blessed. And of these two lives there are types, of the one in the Apostle Peter, of the other in John. The one laboureth here even unto the end, and findeth its end hereafter; the other stretcheth out into the hereafter, and in eternity findeth no end. Therefore is it said unto the one, "Follow Me;" but of the other, "If I will that he tarry till I come, what is that to thee? Follow thou Me." What is the meaning of these words? who can know? who can understand? what is it? is it "Follow thou Me, imitating Me in the bearing of earthly sorrow; let him tarry till I come again, bringing the everlasting reward?"

LAUDS.

First Antiphon. Very worshipful * is blessed John, which leaned on the Lord's Breast at supper.

Verse. This is the disciple which testifieth of these things.

Answer. And we know that his testimony is true.

MATTINS.

Hymn.[3]

THE moody tyrant hears aghast
News that the King of kings, at last,
Hath come to rule o'er Israël's name,
And David's Royal throne to claim.

Mad at the tidings is his cry!
"A King, who drives me forth, is nigh—
Haste ye, my guard, with hand on glaive,
Till ye in blood all cradles lave."

What is the gain of such a sin?
What doth his crime for Herod win?
Saved only from so many slain,
Away uninjured Christ is ta'en.

JESU, to Thee be glory paid,
Born for us of a stainless maid;
To Father, and to Spirit blest,
Like praise be evermore addrest. Amen.

FIRST NOCTURN.

First Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Book of the Prophet Jeremiah (xxxi. 15.)

THUS saith the LORD: A voice was heard in the "Lofty City,"[4] lamentation and weeping, and great mourning, Rachel weeping for her children, refused to be comforted for them, because they were not. Thus saith the LORD: Refrain thy voice from weeping, and thine eyes from tears: for thy work shall be rewarded, saith the LORD, and they shall come again from the land of the enemy. And there is hope in thine end, saith the LORD, and thy children shall come again to their own border.

First Responsory.

[5] An hundred, forty, and four thousand, which were redeemed from the earth; these are they which were not defiled with women. For they remained virgins; therefore are they kings before God, and the Lamb of God is with them.

Verse. These are they which came out of great tribulation, and have washed their robes in the Blood of the Lamb.

Answer. For they remained virgins; therefore are they kings before God, and the Lamb of God is with them.

[5] Apoc. xiv. 2, 4; vii. 14.

Second Lesson.

I HAVE surely heard Ephraim bemoaning himself thus: Thou hast chastised me; and I was chastised as a bullock unaccustomed to the yoke. Turn Thou me, and I shall be turned; for Thou art the LORD my God. For after that Thou hadst turned me, I repented: and after that Thou hadst instructed me, I smote upon my thigh: I was ashamed, yea, even confounded, because I did bear the reproach of my youth. Is Ephraim My dear son? Is he a beloved child? For since I spake against him, I do earnestly remember him still.

Second Responsory.

[1] I heard under the altar the voices of them that were slain, saying: How long dost Thou not avenge our blood? And it was said unto them from God: Rest yet for a little season, until the number of your brethren be fulfilled.

Verse. I saw under the altar of God the souls of them that were slain for the Word of God, and for the testimony which they held, and they cried with a loud voice, saying:

Answer. How long dost Thou not avenge our blood? And it was said unto them from God: Rest yet for a little season, until the number of your brethren be fulfilled.

Third Lesson.

SET thee up way-marks, make thee [2] monuments of thy grief, set thine heart toward the high-way, even the way which thou wentest: turn again, O Virgin of Israël, turn again to these thy cities. How long wilt thou wander hither and thither, O thou back-sliding daughter? for the LORD hath created a new thing in the earth: a woman shall compass a man. Thus saith the LORD of hosts, the God of Israël: As yet they shall use this speech in the land of Judah, and in the cities thereof, when I shall bring again their captivity: The LORD bless thee, O habitation of righteousness, and mountain of holiness!

Third Responsory.

[3] They worshipped Him That liveth for ever and ever. And cast their crowns before the throne of the Lord their God.

Verse. And they fell down upon their faces before the throne, and blessed Him That liveth for ever and ever.

Answer. And cast their crowns before the throne of the Lord their God.

Verse. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, and to the Holy Ghost.

Answer. And cast their crowns before the throne of the Lord their God.

SECOND NOCTURN.

Fourth Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Sermons of [4] St Austin, Bishop [of Hippo.] (10*th on the Saints.*)

DEARLY beloved brethren, to-day we keep the birthday of those children, who, as we are informed by the Gospel, were massacred by the savage King Herod. Therefore let earth rejoice with exceeding joy, for she is the mother of these heavenly soldiers, and of this numerous host. The love of the vile Herod could never have crowned these blessed ones as hath his hatred. For the Church testifieth by this holy solemnity, that whereas iniquity did specially abound against these little saints, so much the more were heavenly blessings poured out upon them.

Fourth Responsory.

[5] The blood of Thy saints have they shed like water round about Jerusalem. And there was none to bury them.

Verse. The dead bodies of Thy servants have they given to be meat unto the fowls of the air, the flesh of Thy saints unto the beasts of the earth.

Answer. And there was none to bury them.

Fifth Lesson.

BLESSED art thou, O Bethlehem in the land of Judah, which hast suffered the cruelty of King Herod in the slaughter of thy children; who art found worthy to offer at once to God a whole white-robed army of guileless martyrs! Surely, it is well to keep their birth-day, even that blessed birthday which gave them from earth to heaven, more blessed than the day that brought them out of their mother's womb. Scarcely had they entered on the life that now is, when they obtained that glorious life which is to come.

Fifth Responsory.

These holy ones suffered for Thy sake, O Lord: take vengeance for them. For day by day they cry unto Thee.

Verse. Avenge, O Lord, the blood of Thy saints which is shed.

Answer. For day by day they cry unto Thee.

Sixth Lesson.

WE praise the death of other martyrs because it was the crowning act of an undaunted and persistent testimony; but these were crowned at once. He That maketh an end to this present life, gave to them at its very gates that eternal blessedness which we hope for at its close. They whom the wickedness of Herod tore from their mothers' breasts are rightfully called the flowers of martyrdom; hardly had these buds of the Church shown their heads above the soil, in the winter of unbelief, when the frost of persecution nipped them.

Sixth Responsory.

[6] These are they which have not defiled their garments. They shall walk with Me in white, for they are worthy.

Verse. These are they which were not defiled with women: for they are virgins.

Answer. They shall walk with Me in white, for they are worthy.

Verse. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, and to the Holy Ghost.

Answer. They shall walk with Me in white, for they are worthy.

THIRD NOCTURN.

First Antiphon. [1] The Righteous live * for evermore; their reward also is with the Lord.

Second Antiphon. These are they which came out of great tribulation, and have washed their robes in the blood of the Lamb.

Third Antiphon. Behold, how great with God is the reward * of His Saints:[2] yea, they who died for Christ's sake shall live for ever and ever.

Seventh Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Holy Gospel according to Matthew (ii. 13.)

AT that time: The angel of the Lord appeareth to Joseph in a dream, saying: Arise, and take the young Child, and His mother, and flee into Egypt: and be thou there until I bring thee word. And so on.

Homily by St Jerome, Priest [at Bethlehem.] (Book i. Comment. on Matth. ii.)

He took the young Child, and His mother, and fled into Egypt, by night and in darkness; and the darkness of that night was a figure of the darkness of ignorance in which they left the unbelievers from whom they fled. But when they returned into Judæa, we learn not from the Gospel that it was by night, or in darkness; which is an image of that light which will lighten the Jews, when, at the end of the world, they shall receive back the faith, which now lighteneth the Gentiles, even as Judæa received Christ returning from Egypt.

Seventh Responsory.

The saints sung a new song before the throne of God and the Lamb: and their voices were echoed on earth.

Verse. These were redeemed from among men, being the first-fruits unto God, and to the Lamb, and in their mouth was found no guile.

Answer. And their voices were echoed on earth.

Eighth Blessing.

They whose feast-day we are keeping,
Be our advocates with God.

Eighth Lesson.

"THAT it might be fulfilled which was spoken of the Lord by the Prophet, saying: Out of Egypt have I called My Son." Those who go about to deny the authority of the Hebrew Scriptures, ask where any such passage is to be found in the Septuagint. But, although they find it not there, I tell them that the fact of its being written in the Prophet Hosea (xi. 1) can be proved by the texts which I have lately[3] published.

Eighth Responsory.

I saw under the Altar of God the souls of them that were slain for the word of God, which they held, and they cried with a loud voice: Avenge, O Lord, the blood of Thy saints, which is shed.

Verse. Under the throne of God all the saints cry aloud:

Answer. Avenge, O Lord, the blood of Thy saints, which is shed.

If this day be Sunday the following is added:

Verse. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, and to the Holy Ghost.

Answer. Avenge, O Lord, the blood of Thy saints, which is shed.

Ninth Lesson.

"THEN was fulfilled that which was spoken by Jeremy the Prophet, saying; In Rama was there a voice heard, weeping and great mourning; Rachel weeping for her children." The child of Rachel was Benjamin, and Bethlehem is not a town belonging to his tribe. We must therefore seek another reason why Rachel should weep for the children of Judah, to whom Bethlehem belongeth, as for her own. The plain answer is that she is buried at Ephrath close to Bethlehem, and she is called Mother on account of the resting-place of her earthly tabernacle being there. It is possible also that she is called Mother because the tribes of Judah and Benjamin were joined together, and Herod slew not only all the children that were in Bethlehem, but also in all the coasts thereof.

If it be Sunday, the Hymn, "We praise Thee, O God, &c.," is said, but if not, then the following:

Ninth Responsory.

What are these which are arrayed in white robes? and whence came they? And he said to me: These are they which came out of great tribulation, and have washed their robes, and made them white in the Blood of the Lamb.

Verse. I saw under the Altar of God the souls of them which were slain for the word of God, and for the testimony which they held.

Answer. These are they which came out of great tribulation, and have washed their robes, and made them white in the Blood of the Lamb.

Verse. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, and to the Holy Ghost.

Answer. These are they which came out of great tribulation, and have washed their robes, and made them white in the Blood of the Lamb.

LAUDS.

First Antiphon. Herod was exceeding wroth, * and slew many children in Bethlehem Judah, the city of David.

Second Antiphon. Herod slew many children * from two years old, and under, for the Lord's sake.

Antiphon. Under the throne of God, * &c., (Fifth Antiphon at Lauds.)

Chapter as at the end of Prime.

VESPERS.

All as the Second Vespers of Christmas, till the Chapter.

Then of St Thomas of Canterbury (where he is of the First Class), from the Office of One Martyr and the following.

Prayer.

O GOD, in defence of Whose Church the glorious Bishop Thomas fell by the swords of wicked men, grant, we beseech Thee, that all that ask his help, may obtain wholesome fruit of their petition. Through our Lord JESUS Christ Thy Son, Who liveth and reigneth with Thee, in the unity of the Holy Ghost, one God, world without end. Amen.

A Commemoration is made of the Holy Innocents.

Antiphon. Innocent babes were killed for Christ's sake, yea, the unrighteous king slew the sucklings: now they follow the Lamb whithersoever He goeth, they are without fault before the throne of God, and say continually: Glory be to Thee, O Lord.

Verse. Under the throne of God all the saints cry aloud:

Answer. Avenge our blood, O our God.

Prayer as during the day.

If this be Saturday evening, a Commemoration is then made of the Sunday, taken from the Lauds of that day, which will be found under December 30, (p. 171.)

Then, in any case, a Commemoration of Christmas (and, where St Thomas of Canterbury is not of the First Class, Commemorations of St Stephen, and of St John, from the Second Vespers of each respectively).

Dec. 29.

St Thomas, Archbishop of Canterbury, Martyr.

The Feast of St Thomas, Archbishop [of Canterbury,] Martyr.

Double of the First[2] Class, with an Octave.

All from the Common Office for One Martyr, except what is otherwise given here.

MATTINS.

FIRST NOCTURN.

Lessons from Acts xx. 17, as in the Common Office for a Martyr.

---

[1] Additional verses from the same hymn by Aurelius Prudentius Clemens; translation by the late Rev. Dr Neale.

[2] In England St Thomas is the patron of the secular clergy, and for them therefore the feast is of the First Class, but among some of the regulars it is only of the Second Class. In the present translation it is given as of the First Class; but where it is treated as of the Second Class, the second half of the Vespers on Innocents' Day is of the Innocents, with a Commemoration of him; and his Commemoration is made after that of the Innocents, while the Octave of the Innocents lasts.

SECOND NOCTURN.

THOMAS was born in London, [in the year of our Lord 1117,] and succeeded Theobald in the Archbishopric of Canterbury [in 1162]. He had previously filled with great distinction the office of Lord Chancellor, and showed an indomitable firmness in his duty as Primate. When Henry II., King of England, in an assembly of the Bishops and great men of his realm, endeavoured to pass laws detrimental to the advantage and dignity of the Church, he opposed himself so steadily to the king's wishes, that, neither promises, nor threats availing to shake him, he was about to be cast into prison, had he not made good his escape in time. The whole of his kinsfolk without regard to age or sex, his friends, and his advisers, were then banished the kingdom, and those who were able, were bound by an oath to make their way to the presence of Thomas, in the hope that though careless of his own sufferings, he might yield at the sight of their misery. But neither flesh and blood, nor the pleadings of natural affection could make him swerve from the line of his pastoral duty.

Fifth Lesson.

HE betook himself to Pope Alexander III., by whom he was graciously received, and who committed him to the care of the Cistercians at Pontigni. As soon as this came to the knowledge of King Henry, he sent threatening letters to the monks, in order to drive Thomas from this shelter. The saint was unwilling that the Cistercian Order should suffer on his account, and therefore voluntarily withdrew from Pontigni, and accepted the invitation of Lewis VII., King of France, to go to his court. He remained here, until his banishment was recalled at the intercession of the Pope and of the King of France, and he returned to England amid great public joy. He was quietly continuing the work of a faithful shepherd of souls, when certain calumniators denounced him to the king as a plotter against the crown and the public peace. Henry, deceived by these libels, cried out that it was hard that one priest should never let him have quiet in his kingdom.

Sixth Lesson.

SOME wicked servants of the king, hearing his words, and thinking to do him pleasure, betook themselves to Canterbury to rid him of the Archbishop. They entered the cathedral in the evening as Thomas was proceeding to assist at Evensong. The clergy in attendance on him, conscious of the attempt about to be made, wished to bolt the doors. But the saint caused them to be again opened, saying, "The Church of God is not to be made a castle of, and for the cause of God's Church I am willing to die." He then said to his murderers, "I charge you in the name of the Almighty God to hurt none of my people." With these words he fell on his knees, and commended himself to God, to the Blessed Virgin Mary, to St Denis, and to the other holy Patrons of the Church of Canterbury. He presently offered his sacred head for the stroke of death, and received it from the swords of those wicked men with the same constancy with which he had withstood the commands of the unrighteous king. The murderers pulled out his brains and strewed them all about the floor of the Church. He testified on the 29th day of December, in the [53rd] year of [his own age and of] our Lord 1170, and, being afterwards honoured with many miracles, was canonised by Pope Alexander III. [in 1173].

THIRD NOCTURN.

Seventh Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Holy Gospel according to John (x. 11.)

AT that time: Jesus said unto the Pharisees: I am the Good Shepherd. The Good Shepherd giveth His life for the sheep. And so on.

Homily by [1] St John Chrysostom, Patriarch [of Constantinople.] (59*th on John.*)

Dearly beloved brethren, the Bishops of the Church hold a great office, an office that needeth much that wisdom and strength whereof Christ hath given us an example. We must learn of Him to lay down our lives for the sheep and never to leave them; and to fight bravely against the wolf. This is the difference between the true shepherd and the hireling. The one leaveth the sheep and seeketh his own safety, but the other recketh not of his own safety, so as he may watch over the sheep. Christ then having given us the pattern of a good shepherd, warneth us against two enemies; first, the thief that cometh not but to kill and to steal, and, secondly, the hireling that standeth by, and defendeth not them that are committed to his charge.

Eighth Lesson.

EZECHIEL hath said of old time, (xxxiv. 2): "Woe be to the shepherds of Israël! do they not feed themselves? Should not the shepherds feed the flocks?" But they did the contrary, a great wickedness and the root of many evils. "Therefore," he saith, "they brought not back that which was gone astray: neither did they search for that which was lost: neither did they bind up that which was broken, nor strengthen that which was sick; for they fed themselves, and not the flock." And Paul hath the same in other words, where he saith, (Phil. ii. 21): "All seek their own, not the things which are Jesus Christ's."

Ninth Lesson.

CHRIST showeth Himself very different from either the thief or the hireling; whereas the thief cometh to destroy, He came that they might have life, and that they might have it more abundantly. The hireling fleeth, but He layeth down His life for the sheep, that the sheep perish not. When then the Jews went about to kill Him, He ceased not to teach: He gave not up them that believed in Him, but stood steadfast and died. Wherefore He hath good title often to say, "I am the Good Shepherd." It was but a little while, and He showed us how He could lay down His life for the sheep. And if it appeareth not as yet how they have life, and have it more abundantly, (but it shall appear, in the world which is to come,) we may well be persuaded of the truth of the second promise, who have seen the fulfilment of the first.

---

[1] Jan. 27.

If the day be Sunday, the above Ninth Lesson is read as one with the Eighth to leave room for the Homily of the Sunday, which will be found under December 30, (p. 170,) and the three Lessons of which are read together as one preceded by the Blessing.

May the Gospel's glorious word
Cleansing to our souls afford.

At Lauds, if the day be Sunday, a Commemoration is made of that day which will be found under December 30, (p. 171,) and then, in any case, a Commemoration of the Octave of Christmas, (and where the Feast of St Thomas of Canterbury is not a Double of the First Class, Commemorations of the Octaves of St Stephen, St John, and the Holy Innocents from their respective Lauds.)

At Prime, the same alteration in the Short Responsory as before.

MARTYROLOGY.

Upon the 30th day of December were born into the better life—

At Spoleto, under the Emperor Maximian, the holy martyrs Sabinus, bishop of that see; the deacons Exuperantius and Marcellus, and the President Venustian along with his wife and children. Marcellus and Exuperantius were first racked then heavily cudgelled, then mangled with hooks, and their sides were afterwards burnt until they died. Venustian and his wife and children were shortly afterward put to the sword; holy Sabinus had his hands cut off, and was long imprisoned, and at length lashed to death. These did not all suffer at the same time, but they are all commemorated upon the same day.

At Alexandria, the holy martyrs Mansuetus, Severus, Appian, Donatus, Honorius and their companions.

At Thessalonica, the holy martyr Anysia [about the year 303]. There likewise holy Anysius, bishop of that city. [He succeeded S. Ascole, and died about the year 404.]

At Milan, the holy confessor Eugenius, bishop of that city.

At Ravenna, holy Liberius, bishop of that city.

At Aquila, in the Abruzzi, holy Rainerius, bishop of that city [in the twelfth century].

At Vespers the service as at the Second Vespers of Christmas until the Chapter exclusive. The rest is of St Thomas (where he is of the First Class), from the Common Office for a Martyr, with the special Prayer. A Commemoration is made of the Sunday within the Octave of Christmas, the Office of which will be found under Dec. 30, or of the Day within the Octave, whichever is the next day. If the former, then a Commemoration of Sunday and then of the Octave of Christmas only; if the latter, a Commemoration of the Octave of Christmas and then of Sunday only. If the day itself be actually Sunday then the Commemoration is taken from the Second Vespers, as follows:

Antiphon. The child Jesus increased in age and wisdom before God and man.

Verse. The Word was made flesh. Alleluia.

Answer. And dwelt among us. Alleluia.

Prayer.

O ALMIGHTY, &c., (as at Lauds. But if this day be any other than Sunday, the Commemoration is taken entirely from Lauds.)

Then a Commemoration of Christmas, (and, where St Thomas of Canterbury is not of the First Class, Commemorations of St Stephen, St John, and the Holy Innocents, from the Second Vespers of each respectively.)

Note. If December 25, 26, 27, 28, or 30 fall on a Sunday, the Office of the Sunday is said upon December 30. But if the Sunday should be the 29*th or the* 31*st, the Sunday is commemorated in the usual manner with the Ninth Lesson, &c., in the Office of St Thomas of Canterbury or of St Silvester.*

If Dec. 29 fall on a Friday, the Office of Saturday is of the Octave of Christmas, as given immediately hereafter, and the Office on Sunday is of St Silvester, with merely a Commemoration of Sunday.

Dec. 30.

Office of the Octave of Christmas.

Semi-double.

All as on Christmas Day, except what is otherwise given here, and that the Antiphons are not doubled.

MATTINS.

FIRST NOCTURN.

First Lesson.

Here beginneth the Epistle of the Blessed Apostle Paul to the Romans (i. 1.)[1]

PAUL, a servant of JESUS Christ, called to be an Apostle, separated unto the Gospel of God, which He had promised afore by His Prophets in the holy Scriptures, concerning His Son, That was born of the seed of David according to the flesh, and determined to be the Son of God with power, according to the Spirit of holiness, by the resurrection of our Lord JESUS Christ from the dead: by Whom we have received grace and apostleship, for obedience to the faith among all nations, for His name, among whom are ye also the called of JESUS Christ: to all that be in Rome, beloved of God, called to be saints. Grace to you, and peace from God our Father, and the Lord JESUS Christ.

First Responsory.

This day is the true peace, &c., (Second Responsory on Christmas Day.)

Second Lesson.

FIRST, I thank my God, through JESUS Christ, for you all, that your faith is spoken of throughout the whole world. For God is my witness, Whom I serve with my spirit, in the [1] Archbishop Kenrick says that "this letter has been placed at the head of the letters of St Paul, on account of the dignity of the Roman Church."—"It is probably sixth in the order of time, having been written in the year 58, from Corinth, or Cenchrea." N. T., p. 459.

---

Gospel of His Son, that without ceasing I make mention of you always in my prayers; making request, if by any means now at length I might have a prosperous journey, by the will of God, to come to you. For I long to see you, that I may impart unto you some spiritual gift, to the end ye may be established: that is, that I may be comforted together with you by the mutual faith both of you and me.

Second Responsory.

O ye shepherds, &c., (Third Responsory on Christmas Day,) omitting the last Verse and Answer.

Third Lesson.

NOW I would not have you ignorant, brethren, that oftentimes I purposed to come unto you (but was hindered hitherto,) that I might have some fruit among you also, even as among other Gentiles. I am debtor both to the Greeks and to the Barbarians, both to the wise and to the unwise: so, as much as in me is, I am ready to preach the Gospel to you that are at Rome also. For I am not ashamed of the Gospel. For it is the power of God unto salvation to every one that believeth, to the Jew first, and also to the Greek. For therein is the righteousness of God revealed from faith to faith, as it is written: [1] The just shall live by faith. For the wrath of God is revealed from heaven against all ungodliness and unrighteousness of men, who hold the truth of God in unrighteousness: because that which may be known of God is manifest in them; for God hath showed it unto them.

Third Responsory.

How great is this mystery, &c., (Fourth Responsory on Christmas Day.)

At the end is added:

Verse. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, and to the Holy Ghost.
Answer. Blessed is that virgin whose womb was made meet to bear the Lord Christ.

SECOND NOCTURN.

Fourth Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Sermons of Pope St Leo [the Great.] (9th on Christmas.)

DEARLY beloved brethren, the greatness of God's work, in its breadth and height, passeth the power of man's utterance; and, therefore, when we must needs not keep silence, we find it hard to know what to say. The words of the Prophet—"Who shall declare His generation?" (Isa. liii. 8)—look not only to the Divine, but also to the human birth of JESUS Christ, the Son of God. Faith believeth, but words cannot explain, how the two natures were joined in one Person,—and therein we find that we shall never lack matter of praise in Him, Whose abundance ever outrunneth the power of our expression.

Fourth Responsory.

Blessed is God's holy mother, &c., (Fifth Responsory on Christmas Day.)

Fifth Lesson.

THEREFORE let us rejoice, that this mystery of mercy is greater than we can ever speak; and let us feel that it is good for us to fail if we try to express the height and depth of redeeming love. He cometh nearest to the knowledge of the truth, who, the farther he advanceth, seeth all the more clearly that he can never overtake that whereafter he searcheth. For he that imagineth therein that he hath ever attained unto the goal, hath not found that which he seeketh, but hath altogether missed.

Fifth Responsory.

O Mary, how holy, &c., (Sixth Responsory on Christmas Day,) down to the Verse, "Glory, &c.," exclusive.

Sixth Lesson.

BUT lest we should be confounded at the weakness of our mortality, we have help in the words of the Prophets and Evangelists; and they are able so to inflame and teach us that we may see the Birth of the Lord, wherein the Word was made Flesh, not so much as a thing past, as a thing present. The proclamation of the angel to the shepherds who watched their flocks by night, ringeth in our ears also; and for this end are we appointed to rule the Lord's flock, that we may ever keep in our heart the word revealed from heaven, and say unto you, as we do this day: "Behold, I bring you good tidings of great joy, which shall be to all people; for unto you is born this day, in the city of David, a Saviour, Which is Christ the Lord!"

Sixth Responsory.

Blessed be the womb, &c., (Seventh Responsory on Christmas Day.)

At the end is added:

Verse. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, and to the Holy Ghost.
Answer. This day hath He been pleased for the salvation of the world to be born of a Virgin.

THIRD NOCTURN.

Seventh Lesson.

(If a week-day.)

The Lesson is taken from the Holy Gospel according to Luke (ii. 15.)

AT that time: The shepherds said one to another: Let us now go even unto Bethlehem, and see this thing which is come to pass, which the Lord hath made known unto us. And they came with haste. And so on.

Homily by St Ambrose, Bishop [of Milan.] (Bk. ii. on Luke ii.)

The shepherds came with haste. This is how every one cometh who is really earnestly seeking Christ. The shepherds believed the angel. Wilt not thou believe Father, Son, and Holy Ghost, Angels, Prophets, and Apostles? Here also remark how carefully every word in the Scripture is chosen. They came with haste to see this "Word," (as the original text hath it.[2]) A Word, indeed; the Word of God. He that saw the Lord's Flesh, saw the Word, that is, God the Son.

---

[1] Hab. ii. 4.

[2] Gr. Rhema.

(If Sunday.)

The Lesson is taken from the Holy Gospel according to Luke (ii. 33.)

AT that time: Joseph and Mary the mother of JESUS, marvelled at those things which were spoken of Him. And so on.

Homily by St Ambrose, Bishop [of Milan.] (Bk. ii. on Luke ii.)

We see that God's abounding grace is poured forth on all by the birth of the Lord, and that the gift of prophecy is not denied to the righteous, but to the unbelieving. Simeon prophesieth that our Lord JESUS Christ is set for the fall and rising again of many in Israël, setting forth that the just and the unjust reap different fruits from the coming of the Saviour; so will it be with us; according to our individual works will the True and Just Judge apportion to us punishment or reward.

Seventh Responsory.

The Word was made Flesh, &c., (Eighth Responsory on Christmas Day,) down to the Verse "Glory, &c." exclusive.

Eighth Lesson.

(If a week-day.)

BECAUSE the office of a shepherd is mean, think not meanly of the example of their faith. Verily, that which is poorest in learning is richest in faith. The Lord seeketh not for schools crowded with wise men, but for a people of a single heart unused to overlay and to disguise what they learn, by vain and superfluous adornments. He will have straightforwardness rather than vain-glory.

(If Sunday.)

"YEA, a sword shall pierce through thine own soul also." We have no record or tradition that Mary left this world by suffering a violent death, and the material sword can pierce the body only, and not the soul. Wherefore here we see the wisdom of Mary in that she was not ignorant of the heavenly mysteries. For, "the word of God is quick, and powerful, and sharper than any two-edged sword, piercing even to the dividing asunder of soul and spirit, and of the joints and marrow, and is a discerner of the thoughts and intents of the heart: for all things are naked and opened unto the eyes"[1] of the Son of God, from Whom also the secret things of our conscience are not hidden.

Eighth Responsory.

How is the King of heaven attended? He that containeth the world is laid in a stable: lying in a manger, reigning in heaven.

Verse. Unto us is born, this day, in the city of David, a Saviour, Which is Christ the Lord.

Answer. Lying in a manger, reigning in heaven.

Verse. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, and to the Holy Ghost.

Answer. Lying in a manger, reigning in heaven.

Ninth Lesson.

(If a week-day.)

THINK not meanly either of the shepherds' words. The shepherds strengthen the faith even of Mary; the shepherds lead God's people to His worship. For, "all they that heard it, wondered at those things which were told them by the shepherds. But Mary kept all these things and pondered them in her heart." Let us learn the modesty of the Holy Virgin, that modesty of speech as of body, whereby she laid up in her heart the evidences of her faith.

(If Sunday.)

THERE had been a triple prophecy; the prophecy of Simeon had followed the prophecy of the virgin, and the prophecy of the wife; those, namely, of Mary and Elizabeth. And now ought the widow also to prophesy, that no sex nor state might be wanting. And Anna is brought before us with such a title from her widowhood and her life, that we may well believe that she received the grace to announce the Advent of the Redeemer. In our exhortation addressed to widows we have already treated of her gifts at length, and, as we have much matter before us, we will not now again enter on the subject.

The Hymn, "We praise Thee, O God, &c.," is said.

LAUDS.

If a week-day, are the same as on Christmas Day, but if a Sunday, they have the following:

Chapter. (Gal. iv. 1.)

BRETHREN: The heir, as long as he is a child, differeth nothing from a servant, though he be lord of all; but is under tutors and governors until the time appointed by the father.

Verse. The Word was made Flesh. Alleluia.

Answer. And dwelt among us. Alleluia.

Antiphon at the Song of Zacharias. While all things were in quiet silence, and that night was in the midst of her swift course, Thine Almighty Word, O Lord, leapt down out of Thy Royal Throne.[2]

Prayer.

O ALMIGHTY and everlasting God, do Thou order all our actions in conformity with Thy good pleasure, that through the name of Thy well-beloved Son, we may worthily abound in all good works. Through the same our Lord JESUS Christ, Thy Son, Who liveth and reigneth with Thee, in the unity of the Holy Ghost, one God, world without end. Amen.

Whether Week-day or Sunday, Commemorations are made of St Thomas, of St Stephen, of St John, and of the Holy Innocents.

PRIME.

MARTYROLOGY.

Upon the 31st day of December were born into the better life—

At Rome, holy Pope Silvester [I.] who [was said by tradition to have] baptized the Emperor Constantine the Great, confirmed the decrees of the Council of Nice, wrought many other holy works, and fell asleep in peace [in the year 335.]

[2] Wisd. xviii. 14, 15.

Likewise at Rome, at the cemetery of Priscilla upon the Salarian Way, the holy martyrs Donata, Paulina, Rustica, Nominanda, Serotina, Hilaria, and their companions.

At Sens, blessed Sabinian [First] bishop of that see, and Potentian, who were sent thither to preach by the Roman Pontiff, and adorned that city by their last testimony. [He was the Apostle of Sens.] There also in the persecution under the Emperor Aurelian the holy virgin and martyr Columba, who conquered fire and was slain with the sword [third century.]

At Rhessara, the holy exorcist Hermes.

At Catania, in Sicily, the holy martyrs Stephen, Pontian, Attalus, Fabian, Cornelius, Sextus, Flos, Quintian, Minervinus and Simplician.

On the same day holy Zoticus, a Roman priest, who went to Constantinople, and busied himself with the care of orphans.

At Ravenna, the holy confessor the priest Barbatian.

On the same day holy Melania, the younger, who left Rome along with her husband Pinian [son of the Prefect of Rome], and went to Jerusalem where she became a nun, and he a monk — and both died holy deaths. [She was born in 383, married 410, and died in 439.]

If the Office be not of the Sunday, it continues as on Christmas Day, but if of the Sunday it is as of Christmas Day, with the following differences.

MATTINS.

FIRST NOCTURN.

First Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Epistle of the Blessed Apostle Paul to the Romans (ii. 1.)

THEREFORE, thou art inexcusable, O man, whosoever thou art that judgest; for wherein thou judgest another, thou condemnest thyself; for thou that judgest, doest the same things. But we are sure that the judgment of God is according to truth against them which commit such things. And thinkest thou this, O man, that judgest them which do such things, and doest the same, that thou shalt escape the judgment of God? Or despisest thou the riches of His goodness, and forbearance, and longsuffering? Knowest thou not that the goodness of God leadeth thee to repentance?

Second Lesson.

BUT, after thy hardness and impenitent heart, treasurest up unto thyself wrath, against the day of wrath and revelation of the righteous judgment of God, Who will render to every man according to his deeds: to them who, by patient continuance in welldoing, seek for glory and honour and immortality, eternal life; but unto them that are contentious and do not obey the truth, but obey unrighteousness, indignation and wrath.

Third Lesson.

TRIBULATION and anguish upon every soul of man that doeth evil, of the Jew first, and also of the Gentile,[1] but glory and honour and peace, to every man that worketh good, to the Jew first, and also to the Gentile.[1] For there is no respect of persons with God. For as many as have sinned without law shall also perish without law; and as many as have sinned under law, shall be judged by law. For not the hearers of the law are just before God, but the doers of the law shall be justified.

SECOND NOCTURN.

Fourth Lesson.

SILVESTER [I.] was a Roman by birth, and his father's name was Rufinus. He was brought up from a very early age under a Priest named Cyrinus, of whose teaching and example he was a diligent learner. In his thirtieth year he was ordained Priest of the Holy Roman Church by Pope Marcellinus. In the discharge of his duties he became a model for all the clergy, and, after the death of Melchiades, he succeeded him on the Papal throne, [in the year of our Lord 314,] during the reign of Constantine, who had already by public decree proclaimed peace to the Church of Christ. Hardly had he undertaken the government of the Church when he betook himself to stir up the Emperor to protect and propagate the religion of Christ. Constantine was fresh from his victory over his enemy Maxentius, on the Eve whereof the sign of the Cross had been revealed to him limned in light upon the sky; and there was an old story in the Church of Rome that it was Silvester who caused him to recognise the images of the Apostles, administered to him holy Baptism, and cleansed him from the leprosy of misbelief.

---

[1] Græci.

Fifth Lesson.

THE godly Emperor had already granted to Christ's faithful people permission to build public churches, and by the advice of Silvester he himself set them the example. He built many Basilicas, and magnificently adorned them with holy images, and gifted them with gifts and endowments. Among these there were, besides others, the Church of Christ the Saviour, hard by the Lateran Palace; that of St Peter, upon the Vatican Mount; that of St Paul, upon the road to Ostia; that of St Lawrence, in Verus' field; that of the Holy Cross at the Sessorian hall; that of St Peter and St Marcellinus, upon the Lavican Way; and that of St Agnes, upon the road to Mentana. Under this Pope was held the first Council of Nice, presided over by the Papal Legates, and in the Presence of Constantine, and three hundred and eighteen Bishops, where the holy and Catholic Faith was declared, and Arius and his followers condemned; which Council was finally confirmed by the Pope, at the request of all the assembled Fathers, in a synod held at Rome, where Arius was again condemned. This Pope issued many useful ordinances for the Church of God. He reserved to Bishops the right of consecrating the Holy Chrism; ordered Priests to anoint with Chrism the heads of the newly baptised; settled the officiating dress of Deacons as a dalmatic and a linen maniple; and forbade the consecration of the Sacrament of the Altar on anything but a linen corporal.

Sixth Lesson.

THIS Silvester is likewise said to have ordained that all persons taking Holy Orders should remain awhile in each grade before being promoted to a higher; that laymen should not go to law against the clergy; and that the clergy themselves were not to plead before civil tribunals. He decreed that the first and seventh days of the week should be called respectively the Lord's Day and the Sabbath, and the others, Second Day, Third Day, and so on. In this he confirmed the use of the word "Feria" for the weekdays, the which use had already begun in the Church. This word signifieth an "holiday," and pointeth to the duty of the clergy ever to lay aside all worldly labour, and leave themselves free to do continually the work of the Lord. The heavenly wisdom with which he ruled the Church of God, was joined in him to a singular holiness of life, and an inexhaustible tenderness towards the poor; in which matter he ordained that the wealthy clergy should each relieve a certain number of needy persons; and he also made arrangements for supplying the consecrated virgins with the necessaries of life. He lived as Pope twenty-one years, ten months and one day, and was buried in the cemetery of Priscilla on the Salarian Way, [in the year 335.] He held seven Advent ordinations, and made forty-two Priests, twenty-five Deacons, and sixty-five Bishops of various sees.

THIRD NOCTURN.

Lessons from Luke xii. 35, with the Homily of St Gregory, as in the Common Office for a Confessor not a Bishop. If it be Sunday, the last Lesson is omitted, or read as one with the Eighth, and the Ninth Lesson is the whole or the first part of the Homily of the Sunday, already given in the preceding Office—preceded by the Blessing:—

May the Gospel's glorious word
Cleansing to our souls afford.

At Lauds, if Sunday, Christmas is commemorated from the Lauds of that day after the Commemoration of the Sunday. Then Commemorations of St Thomas of Canterbury, St Stephen, St John, and the Holy Innocents, as at the Lauds of each.

At Prime the same alteration as before in the Short Responsory.

MARTYROLOGY.

The morrow is the Octave of the Birth of our Lord Jesus Christ, upon the which day is commemorated His Circumcision.

Upon the same 1st day of January, were born into the better life—

At Rome, the holy martyr Almachius, who was slain by gladiators [about the year 404] at the command of Alpius, prefect of the city, because he said: "This is the Octave of the Lord's Birth, cease from your idolatrous superstitions, and your unclean sacrifices."

Likewise at Rome, upon the Appian Way, thirty holy soldiers who were crowned with martyrdom, under the Emperor Diocletian.

Likewise at Rome, the holy virgin Martina, who was put to divers torments, under the Emperor Alexander, and at length gained the crown of martyrdom by the sword, whose feast we keep upon the 30th day of the month of January.

At Spoleto, in the time of the Emperor Antonine, the holy martyr, the priest Concordius. He was first cudgelled, then racked, and afterwards suffered imprisonment—wherein he was comforted by a visit of angels, and at length was delivered from this life by the sword.

On the same day, the holy martyr Magnus.

At Cæsarea, in Cappadocia, the burial of the holy Basil, bishop of Cæsarea [in the year 379], whose feast we keep upon the 14th day of June. Which is the day whereon he was ordained a bishop.

In Africa, blessed Fulgentius, bishop of the Church of Ruspa [in the year 508], who at the time of the persecution under the Vandals, suffered much at the hands of the Arians because of his Catholic faith, and his eminent teaching. He was exiled to Sardinia [in the year 510]; but was at length [in the year 523] allowed to return to his own church, where [in the year 533] he died a holy death, famous for his life and his words.

At Chieti, in Abruzzo Citeriore, holy Justin, bishop of that city, famous for the holiness of his life, and for the miracles worked through him [in the year 543].

At the monastery of St Claude, upon the Jura Mountains, in the country of Lyons, holy [4th] Eugendus, Abbat [of Condat], whose life was illustrious for his graces and miracles [in the year 510].

At Senlis [in the year 1049], holy Odilo, [6th] Abbat of Cluni [elected in the year 994], who first commanded that in his monasteries a commemoration of all the faithful departed should be made upon the first day after the festival of All Saints, the which custom the Universal Church hath since approved by adopting it.

At Monte Senario, in Tuscany, the blessed confessor Bonfiglio, one of the seven founders of the order of servants of the Blessed Virgin Mary, to whom he was devoted—and by whom he was suddenly called away to heaven [in the year 1262].

At Alexandria [in the year 470], the burial of the holy virgin Euphrosyne, who shone in her nunnery as a great light by the power of her self-denial and her miracles.

The Vespers are of the Circumcision, without any Commemorations.

FIRST NOCTURN.

First Antiphon. The Lord hath said unto Me: Thou art My Son, * this day have I begotten Thee.

Psalm II.

Why do the heathen rage, &c., (p. 3.)

Second Antiphon. In the sun hath He set His tabernacle: * and He is as a bridegroom coming out of his chamber.

Psalm XVIII.

The heavens declare, &c., (p. 10.)

Third Antiphon. Be ye lift up, ye everlasting doors, * and the King of glory shall come in.

Psalm XXIII.

The earth is the LORD'S, &c., (p. 26.)

Verse. The Lord is as a bridegroom.

Answer. Coming out of His chamber.

First Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Epistle of the Blessed Apostle Paul to the Romans, (iii. 1.)

WHAT advantage then hath the Jew? or what profit is there of circumcision? Much every way. Chiefly, because that unto them were committed the oracles of God. For what if some did not believe? Shall their unbelief make the faith of God of none effect? God forbid. Yea, God is true: but every man a liar, as it is written:—"That Thou mightest be justified in Thy sayings, and mightest overcome when Thou art judged." [2] But if our unrighteousness commend the righteousness of God, what shall we say? Is God unrighteous, Who taketh vengeance? (I speak as a man.) God forbid: for then how shall God judge this world?

First Responsory.

[3] Behold the Lamb of God, behold Him Which taketh away the sins of the world; behold Him of Whom I said unto you: He That cometh after me is preferred before me; Whose shoe's latchet I am not worthy to unloose.

Verse. [4] He that is of the earth speaketh of the earth; He That cometh from heaven is above all.

Answer. Whose shoe's latchet I am not worthy to unloose.

Second Lesson. (iii. 29.)

IS He the God of the Jews only? Is He not also of the Gentiles? Yea, of the Gentiles also. Seeing it is one God Which justifieth the circumcision by faith, and uncircumcision through faith. Do we then make void the law through faith? God forbid: yea, we establish the law. (iv. 1.) What shall we then say that Abraham, our father, hath found, according to the flesh? For if Abraham were justified by works, he hath whereof to glory, but not before God. For what saith the Scripture? [5] "Abraham believed God, and it was counted unto him for righteousness." Now to him that worketh is the reward not reckoned of grace, but of debt. But to him that worketh not, but believeth on Him That justifieth the ungodly, his faith is counted for righteousness, according to the gracious purpose of God. Even as David also describeth the happiness of the man, unto whom God imputeth righteousness without works: [6] "Blessed are they whose iniquities are forgiven, and whose sins are covered."

Second Responsory.

This day which is breaking is holy: O come, ye Gentiles, and worship the Lord. For this day is much light come down unto us from heaven.

Verse. [7] This is the day which the LORD hath made, let us rejoice and be glad in it.

Answer. For this day is much light come down unto us from heaven.

Third Lesson.

COMETH this blessedness then upon the circumcision only, or upon the uncircumcision also? For we say that faith was reckoned to Abraham for righteousness. How then was it reckoned? When he was in circumcision or in uncircumcision? Not in circumcision, but in uncircumcision. And he received the sign of circumcision, a seal of the righteousness of the faith which he had, yet being in uncircumcision; that he might be the father of all them that believe, though they be not in circumcision, that it might be imputed to them also for righteousness; and the father of circumcision to them who are not of the circumcision only, but who also walk in the steps of that faith of our father Abraham, which he had, being yet in uncircumcision.

Verse. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, and to the Holy Ghost.

Second Antiphon. This man was born in her, * and the Highest Himself hath established her.

Verse. Thou art fairer than the children of men.

Answer. Grace is poured into thy lips.

Fourth Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Sermons of Pope St Leo [the Great.] (7th for Christmas.)

DEARLY beloved brethren, whosoever will keep truly and honour piously this day's festival, it is necessary for him neither to think falsely of the Lord's Incarnation, nor meanly of the Lord's Godhead. For as there is danger, on the one hand, of denying the truth of Christ's participation of our nature, so is there no less danger, on the other, of doing despite to the equality of His glory with the glory of the Father. Wherefore, when we draw near to understand the mystery of Christ's Birth, wherein He was born of the Virgin Mary, we must leave the clouds of earthly imagination behind and pierce the fog of human wisdom with the eye of enlightened faith.

Fourth Responsory.

Rejoice with me, all ye that love the Lord. For while I was yet little I pleased the Most High, and from my womb have I brought forth God and man.

Verse. All generations shall call me blessed, for God hath regarded the lowliness of His hand-maiden.

Answer. For while I was yet little I pleased the Most High, and from my womb have I brought forth God and man.

Fifth Lesson.

THE authority on which we believe is the authority of God Himself; the teaching which we follow is the teaching of God Himself. Wherefore whether we lend the ear of our mind to the testimony of the Law, or to the revelations of the Prophets, or to the full pealing of the Gospel trumpet, that is true, which John the Son of Thunder, uttered, when he was filled with the Holy Ghost, and said: "In the beginning was the Word, and the Word was with God, and the Word was God. The Same was in the beginning with God. All things were made by Him, and without Him was not anything made." True also is his witness when he saith: "The Word was made Flesh, and dwelt among us, and we beheld His glory, the glory as of the Only-begotten of the Father." (John i. 1-3, 14.)

Fifth Responsory.

The heart of the Virgin was fixed, when the Angel declared unto her the mystery of God and she conceived: then did she receive in her pure womb Him That is fairer than the children of men. And, she that is blessed for ever, brought forth for us God and man.

Verse.

Soon rises, in that modest shrine,
The Temple of the Lord Divine:
The stainless and unwedded one,
Within her womb conceived the Son.

Answer. And, she that is blessed for ever, brought forth for us God and man.

Sixth Lesson.

THE Person of the Son of God therefore remaineth unchanged and one, though He have two natures, keeping His own, and taking ours. He appeareth as man to be the restorer of men, but abideth all the while in His immutable Godhead. That Godhead which He shareth with the Father was not a whit the less Almighty, nor did the form of a servant touch the form of God to derogate from it. The Most High and Everlasting Being, bending down for man's salvation, took the Manhood into His glory; He ceased not to be That which He is from everlasting. Hence we see the Only-begotten Son of God in one place confessing that the Father is greater than He, (John xiv. 28,) and in another declaring that He and the Father are One, (x. 30.) This is an evident proof of the distinction of His two natures, and the unity of His Person; for He is inferior to the Father as touching His Manhood, and yet equal to the Father as touching His Godhead, and yet, though He be God and Man, He is not two, but One Christ.

Sixth Responsory.

Blessed and worshipful art thou, O Virgin Mary; from thee, still maiden undefiled, the Saviour came a little Child. He Whose glory filled the heavens lay in a manger.

---

[1] Ps. cxvii. 26, 27.

Verse. [1] O LORD, I have heard Thy speech and was afraid; I considered Thy works and trembled. O Thou [That dwellest] between the two living creatures!

Answer. He Whose glory filled the heavens lay in a manger.

Verse. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, and to the Holy Ghost.

Answer. He Whose glory filled the heavens lay in a manger.

THIRD NOCTURN.

First Antiphon. In the beginning, and before the worlds, the Word was God, * and this day is He born the Saviour of the world.

Psalm XCVI.

The LORD reigneth, &c., (p. 85.)

Second Antiphon. The Lord our Saviour, * begotten before the day-star, and before the worlds, hath this day vouchsafed to be born.

Psalm XCVII.

O sing unto the LORD, &c., (p. 89.)

Third Antiphon. When the Lord was born the Angels sang together, * saying: [2] Salvation to our God, Which sitteth upon the throne, and unto the Lamb.

Psalm XCVIII.

The LORD reigneth, &c., (p. 89.)

Verse. The LORD hath made known. Alleluia.

Answer. His salvation. Alleluia.

Seventh Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Holy Gospel according to Luke (ii. 21.)

AT that time: When eight days were accomplished for the circumcision of the Child, His name was called JESUS. And so on.

Homily by St Ambrose, Bishop [of Milan.] (Book ii. on Luke ii.)

So the Child is circumcised. This is the Child of Whom it is said: "Unto us a Child is born, unto us a Son is given," (Isa. ix. 6.) "Made under the law to redeem them that were under the law." (Gal. iv. 4.)

"To present Him to the Lord," (22.) In my Commentary on Isaiah I have already explained what is meant by being presented to the Lord in Jerusalem, and therefore I will not enter into the subject again. He that is circumcised in heart gaineth the protection of God, for "the eyes of the LORD are upon the righteous." (Ps. xxxiii. 16.) Ye will see that as all the ceremonies of the old law were types of realities in the new, so the circumcision of the body signified the cleansing of the heart from the guilt of sin.

Seventh Responsory.

O Mary, how holy and how spotless is thy virginity! I am too dull to praise thee: for thou hast borne in thy breast Him Whom the heavens cannot contain.

Verse. Blessed art thou among women, and blessed is the fruit of thy womb.

Answer. For thou hast borne in thy breast Him Whom the heavens cannot contain.

Eighth Lesson.

BUT since the body and mind of man remain yet infected with a proneness to sin, the circumcision of the eighth day is also a type of that complete cleansing from sin which we shall have at the resurrection. This ceremony was also performed in obedience to the commandment of God: [3] "Every male that openeth the womb shall be called holy unto the Lord." These words were written with especial reference to the delivery of the Blessed Virgin. Truly He That opened her womb was holy, for He was altogether without spot, and we may gather that the law was written specially for Him from the words of the Angel: "That Holy Thing Which shall be born of thee, shall be called the Son of God."

Eighth Responsory.

The Virgin-Mother that knew not a man, bore, but travailed not.

She fed the Saviour of the world,
The King of Angel hosts above,
JESUS, our Redeemer blest,
From the fountain of her breast.

Verse.

Soon rises in that modest shrine,
The Temple of the Lord Divine;
The stainless and unwedded one,
Within her womb conceived the Son.

Answer.

She fed the Saviour of the world,
The King of Angel hosts above,
JESUS, our Redeemer blest,
From the fountain of her breast.

Verse. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, and to the Holy Ghost.

Answer.

She fed the Saviour of the world,
The King of Angel hosts above,
JESUS, our Redeemer blest,
From the fountain of her breast.

Ninth Lesson.

AMONG all that are born of women the Lord JESUS Christ stood alone in holiness. Fresh from His immaculate Birth, He felt no contagion from human corruption, and His heavenly Majesty drove it away. If we are to follow the letter and say that every male that openeth the womb is holy, how shall we explain that so many have been unrighteous? Was Ahab holy? Were the false prophets holy? Were they holy on whom Elijah justly called down fire from heaven? But He to Whom the sacred commandment of the law of God is mystically directed is the Holy One of Israël; Who also alone hath opened the secret womb of His holy Virgin-bride the Church, filling her with a sinless fruitfulness to give birth to Christian souls.

The Hymn, "We praise Thee, O God," &c., is said.

Third Antiphon. Mother of God, when Moses * saw the bush unconsumed, we own that it was a figure of the preservation of thy most wonderful virginity: pray for us.

Fourth Antiphon. The Root of Jesse hath blossomed: * the star is arisen out of Jacob, the Virgin hath given birth to the Saviour: we praise Thee, O our God!

Fifth Antiphon. Behold, Mary hath borne * for us a Saviour; John beheld Him and cried, saying: Behold, the Lamb of God, behold Him that taketh away the sins of the world. Alleluia.

Chapter. (Tit. ii. 11.)

Answer. And dwelt among us. Alleluia.

Antiphon at the Song of Zacharias. This day is set forth a wonderful mystery, * a new thing hath been created in the earth—God is made man. That which He was He remaineth, and that which He was not He taketh, suffering therein neither confusion nor division.

Prayer throughout the Office.

O GOD, Who, by the fruitful virginity of the Blessed Mary, hast given unto mankind the rewards of everlasting life; grant, we beseech Thee, that we may continually feel the might of her intercession, through whom we have worthily received the Author of our life, our Lord JESUS Christ, Thy Son, Who liveth and reigneth with Thee, in the unity of the Holy Ghost, one God, world without end. Amen.

Antiphon. How wonderful, &c., (First Antiphon at Lauds.)

MARTYROLOGY.

The morrow is the Octave of holy Stephen the Proto-Martyr.

At Rome are commemorated upon the same day many holy martyrs who defied the edict of the Emperor Diocletian whereby it was commanded to give up the holy books, they being willing rather to give over their own bodies to the executioners than to give unto dogs that which was holy.

Upon the same 2nd day of January, were born into the better life—

At Antioch, blessed Isidore, Bishop [in the year 420].

At Tomi, in Pontus, under Emperor Licinius, the three holy brethren, Argeus, Narcissus, and Marcellinus. Argeus and Narcissus were slain with the sword. Marcellinus was a boy, he was taken among the recruits, and for as much as he would not be a soldier he was grievously flogged, and after suffering long in prison was drowned in the sea [in the year 320].

At Milan [after the year 431], holy Martinian [17th] bishop of that see.

At Nitria, in Egypt, the blessed confessor Isidore [Bishop of Hermopolis in the fourth century].

Upon the same day the holy Bishop Siridion.

In the Thebaid the holy Abbat Macarius of Alexandria [about the year 395].

Chapter at the end. (Heb. ii. 11.)

THEY shall perish, but Thou remainest; and they all shall wax old as doth a garment, and as a vesture shalt Thou change them, and they shall be changed; but Thou art the Same, and Thy years shall not fail.

Commemoration of ST STEPHEN.

Antiphon. Stephen, full of grace and power, did great wonders among the people.

Verse. Stephen saw the heavens opened.

Answer. He saw and entered in: blessed is he unto whom the heavens were opened.

Let us pray.

O ALMIGHTY and everlasting God, Who hast dedicated the first-fruits of Thy Martyrs with the blood of the Blessed Stephen; grant, we beseech Thee, that the same may pray for us also, who prayed even for his murderers to our Lord JESUS Christ Thy Son; Who liveth and reigneth with Thee, in the unity of the Holy Ghost, one God, world without end. Amen.

No other Commemoration.

Jan. 2.

Octave of St Stephen.

Double.

All as on the Feast-day, (p. 158), except the following.

MATTINS.

FIRST NOCTURN.

First Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Acts of the Apostles (vii. 51.)

[1] "YE stiff-necked, and uncircumcised in heart and ears, ye do always resist the Holy Ghost; as your fathers did, so do ye. Which of the Prophets have not your fathers persecuted? And they have slain them which showed before of the coming of the Just One; of Whom ye have been now the betrayers and murderers: who have received the law by the disposition of Angels, and have not kept it." When they heard these things they were cut to the heart, and they gnashed on him with their teeth.

Second Lesson.

BUT he, being full of the Holy Ghost, looked up steadfastly into heaven, and saw the glory of God, and JESUS standing on the right hand of God. And said: "Behold, I see the heavens opened, and the Son of man standing on the right hand of God." Then they cried out with a loud voice, and stopped their ears, and ran upon him with one accord. And they cast him out of the city and stoned him: and the witnesses laid down their clothes at a young man's feet, whose name was Saul. And they stoned Stephen, calling upon God, and saying: "Lord JESUS, receive my spirit."

Third Lesson.

AND he kneeled down and cried with a loud voice, saying: "Lord, lay not this sin to their charge." And when he had said this, he fell asleep in the Lord. (viii. 1.) And Saul was consenting unto his death. And at that time there was a great persecution against the Church which was at Jerusalem: and they were all scattered abroad throughout the regions of Judea and Samaria except the Apostles. And devout men carried Stephen to his burial and made great lamentation over him.

SECOND NOCTURN.

Fourth Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Sermons of [2] St Austin, Bishop [of Hippo.] (2nd on St Stephen.)

EVEN after the glory of yesterday, bright with the splendour of Christ our Saviour's Birth, this day findeth itself an illumination of its own from the crown of the blessed Martyr Stephen. The whole earth knoweth how manfully he fought and conquered: for he suffered at the very fountain-head of the Church, that is to say, in Jerusalem. It was in the Church there that he ministered as a Deacon: and in the youthful springtime of life dyed with his blood the lily of his purity. His Passion is very glorious, and many ways wonderful, and when we read it in the Acts of the Apostles, we seem rather to see than to hear.

Fifth Lesson.

CHRIST, the Captain of the Martyrs, hath first suffered for us, leaving us an example that we should follow His steps, (1 Pet. ii. 21.) And truly, Blessed Stephen followed them, when, having confessed Christ, he was stoned to death by the Jews, and obtained the crown which his name had foreshown. For the meaning of the Greek name "Stephanos" is "a crown." Already he had a crown for his name, a foreshadowing of the martyr's palm which he beareth in heaven.

Sixth Lesson.

WHEN they stoned him he did not rejoice at the thought that God would take vengeance on his persecutors. On the contrary, he prayed that they might be forgiven. For he remembered the word of the Lord, that saith: "Vengeance belongeth unto Me, I will recompense, saith the Lord," (Heb. x. 30,) and again: "Say not thou; I will recompense evil [to mine enemies], but wait on the LORD, and He shall save thee." (Prov. xx. 22.) The Lord God biddeth us also be patient, knowing that in the great day of retribution, we, as well as His holy martyrs, shall be righted.

THIRD NOCTURN.

Seventh Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Holy Gospel according to Matthew (xxiii. 34.)

AT that time: JESUS said unto the Scribes and Pharisees: Behold, I send unto you Prophets, and wise men, and scribes: and some of them ye shall kill and crucify. And so on.

Homily by St Jerome, Priest [at Bethlehem.] (Bk. iv. Comment. on Matth. xxiii.)

"O Jerusalem, Jerusalem, thou that killest the Prophets." The Jerusalem that killed the Prophets was not the material stone and houses, but they that dwelt therein. He wept over her with a father's love, as also it is written in another place that, when He saw the city, He wept over it. (Luke xix. 41.) "How often would I have gathered thy children together." Here observe that Christ avoweth that He had been the Sender of all the former Prophets. "Even as an hen gathereth her chickens under her wings." A similar figure is found in the Song of Moses in Deuteronomy, xxxii. 11, "As an eagle stirreth up her nest, fluttereth over her young, spreadeth abroad her wings, taketh them, and beareth them on her wings." [1]

---

[1] The end of the speech of the Saint before the Council.

[2] Some parts are certainly by St Austin; others are probably not.

Eighth Lesson.

"BEHOLD, your house is left unto you desolate." God had already spoken these things once before, by the mouth of Jeremiah, where He saith: "I have forsaken Mine house, I have left Mine heritage; Mine inheritance is become unto Me like an hyæna's den." [2] (xii. 7.) The house of the Jews, which was to be left unto them desolate, is that Temple, whose splendour they loved only too well, when they slew the Owner of it for the sake of it, and said of Christ, "This is the heir; come, let us kill Him, and the inheritance shall be ours." (Matth. xxi. 38.)

Ninth Lesson.

"FOR I say unto you, Ye shall not see Me henceforth, till ye shall say: Blessed is he that cometh in the name of the Lord." Here He speaketh to Jerusalem and to the Jewish people. The words, "Blessed is He That cometh in the name of the Lord," were indeed spoken by babes and sucklings when the Saviour entered Jerusalem in triumph, "and they that went before and they that followed, cried, saying, 'Blessed is He That cometh in the name of the Lord; Hosanna in the highest,'" (Mark xi. 9,) but they are originally taken from Psalm cxvii. 26.—Which Psalm is all evidently written in honour of the coming of our Lord.

LAUDS.

MARTYROLOGY.

The morrow is the Octave of the holy Apostle and Evangelist John.

Upon the same 3rd day of January, were born into the better life—

Upon the same day, holy Peter, who suffered the death of the cross at the city of Aulone. [In the year 311 or 291.]

On the Hellespont, the holy martyrs Cyrinus, Primus, and Theogenes [about the year 320.]

At Cæsarea, in Cappadocia, the holy centurion Gordius [about the year 320], in whose praise Basil the Great delivered a noble discourse upon his feast day.

In Cilicia, the holy martyrs Zozimus and Athanasius the Notary, also the holy martyrs Theopemptus and Theona, who suffered an illustrious martyrdom in the persecution under Diocletian.

At Padua, the holy martyr Daniel [in the year 168.]

At Vienne, in Gaul, holy Florence, [8th] bishop of that see [successor to S. Paracodius], who was exiled in the time of the Emperor Gallienus, and there finished his testimony [in the year 252.]

At Paris [in the year 512], the holy virgin [and Patron of Paris] Genevieve, who was dedicated to Christ by blessed Germanus, Bishop of Auxerre, and was famous for her wondrous graces and miracles.

MATTINS.

FIRST NOCTURN.

First Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the [3]Apocalypse of the Blessed Apostle John, (iv. 1.)

AFTER this I looked; and, behold, a door was opened in heaven; and the first voice which I heard, was as it were of a trumpet talking with me, which said: Come up hither, and I will show thee things which must be hereafter. And immediately I was in the Spirit; and, behold, a throne was set in heaven, and One sat on the throne. And He That sat was to look upon like a jasper and a sardine stone; and there was a rainbow round about the throne, in sight like unto an emerald; and round about the throne were four-and-twenty seats; and upon the seats I saw four-and-twenty [4] elders sitting, clothed in white raiment; and they had on their heads crowns of gold.

---

[1] In the original this quotation is made from a different version to that in the Psalter (p. 98).

[2] This passage in Jeremiah is somewhat obscure. See it, on Wednesday in Holy Week, where the translation in the text is altogether different.

[3] i.e., "Unveiling" or "Revelation."

[4] "Seniores." But the Greek is "Presbyteroi," generally translated, or, rather, contracted, "Priests." It may be suggested, with great reverence, that the arrangement described is similar to that in the most ancient Churches, some of which still exist. In these the East end has a large arch, here represented by the rainbow, opening into a semicircular apse, which is here represented by the hollow vault of heaven. At the end of the apse is a "throne" for the Bishop, and the Presbyters sit round the apse on either side of him. On the chord of the apse stands the Altar, and the Celebrant occupies the place "in the midst of the throne and the elders," assigned by St John to the True High Priest, looking at the people over the Altar. The "sea of glass" is described as in the place where there is a paved enclosure for the Choir, viz. just westward of the Altar. Under the Altar are placed the reliques of the Saints, (in primitive times always martyrs—Rev. vi. 9,) and lighted lamps hang before it.

Second Lesson.

AND out of the throne proceeded lightnings, and voices and thunderings; and there were seven lamps of fire burning before the throne, which are the seven spirits of God. And before the throne there was a sea of glass like unto crystal; and in the midst of the throne, and round about the throne, were four living creatures full of eyes before and behind. And the first living creature was like a lion, and the second living creature like a calf, and the third living creature had the face as a man, and the fourth living creature was like a flying eagle. And the four living creatures had each of them six wings about him; and they are full of eyes about and within.

Third Lesson.

AND they rest not day and night, saying: Holy, Holy, Holy, Lord God Almighty, Which was, and is, and is to come. And when those living creatures gave glory and honour and blessing to Him That sat upon the throne, Who liveth for ever and ever, the four-and-twenty elders fell down, and worshipped Him That liveth for ever and ever, and cast their crowns before the throne, saying: Thou art worthy, O Lord our God, to receive glory, and honour, and power; for Thou hast created all things, and for Thy pleasure they are and were created.

SECOND NOCTURN.

Fourth Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from a treatise of St Austin, Bishop [of Hippo,] on John. (36.)

OF the Four Evangelists, or, rather, the Four Writers of the one Evangel, the holy Apostle John hath not unworthily been compared by spiritual writers to an eagle, because of the lofty and glorious flight of his teaching, soaring above the other three; a flight that raiseth not himself alone, but also the hearts of all, whosoever will hear him. The other three writers walk with the Lord upon earth, as with a man, and enlarge little upon His Godhead; but John, as though it had wearied him to walk upon earth, in the very first words of his writing, riseth not above the earth only, or above the firmament, and the heavens, but above every angel, and above every power of things unseen, and flieth directly to Him by Whom all things were made, saying: "In the beginning was the Word, and the Word was with God, and the Word was God."

Fifth Lesson.

THEN he goeth on worthily of such a beginning, and speaketh of the Lord's Godhead as none hath ever spoken, uttering freely the things which he had heard. It is not without cause that it is told of him in that Gospel how he lay on JESUS' Breast at supper. Truly he drank secretly from that Breast, and what he drank secretly he hath uttered openly, that all men may know not only how the Son of God became man, suffered, and rose again for us, but likewise how He was with the Father before He took flesh, the Only-begotten Son, the Word of the Father, co-eternal with Him that begat Him, equal to Him That sent Him.

Sixth Lesson.

JOHN is an eagle that soareth up to the things that are not made, and fixeth his eye unquailing upon the secret and eternal Light. It is said that the father-eagle taketh his young in his talons and flieth with them, that they may look at the sun. Them that look at it boldly, he acknowledgeth for his own offspring, but them whose eyes shrink, he letteth fall from his claws as bastards. Let us consider, then, how mightily he must speak who is likened to an eagle; and yet we who are reptiles crawling on earth, weak, and of small consideration even among men, dare take in hand these utterances, to treat of them, and to explain them, and think that our intelligence understandeth them, or our speech commendeth them.

THIRD NOCTURN.

Seventh Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Holy Gospel according to John (xxi. 19.)

AT that time: JESUS saith unto Peter: Follow Me. Then Peter, turning about, seeth the disciple whom JESUS loved following. And so on.

Homily by St John Chrysostom, Patriarch [of Constantinople.] (87th Hom. on John.)

Christ had made known great things to Peter, charged him with the care of the whole world, announced to him his future martyrdom, and given him testimony of His especial love. Peter then would have John for a fellow and helper, and he said, "What shall this man do?" as it were, "Shall not he also follow the same path with me?" At the supper, when Peter would ask a question of the Lord, he dared not, but got John for his spokesman; and now Peter asketh that which he thought John fain would know, but dared not ask for himself. Christ "saith unto him: If I will that he tarry till I come, what is that to thee?"

Eighth Lesson.

PETER asked because of his great love for John, hoping not to be parted from him, and Christ answered him, that with whatever affection he loved him, he could not love him as He loved him. "If I will that he tarry till I come, what is that to thee?" Let us learn from these words, by the teaching of Christ, neither to chafe, nor to enquire too curiously, where the will of God is concerned. For when Peter would be still asking, the Lord at length checked him in these words for his continued curiosity.

Ninth Lesson.

"THEN went this saying abroad among the brethren, that that disciple should not die; yet JESUS said not unto him, He shall not die; but, If I will that he tarry till I come, what is that to thee?" That is, He would not have it thought that He had disposed of them both in the same way. He spoke thus that He might check the untimely motion of affection, and the desire to continue the old companionship. The Apostles were about to take in charge the whole earth, and it behoved them no more to continue together, lest the world should suffer. Therefore the Lord saith to Peter: "Thou hast received thy task; bend thyself to it, and do it; work and fight; what is it to thee if I will that he tarry here? Turn thou to thine own appointed labour and finish it."

LAUDS.

Commemoration of St Thomas of Canterbury and of the Holy Innocents from their proper Lauds.

MARTYROLOGY.

The morrow is Octave of the Holy Innocents.

Upon the same 4th day of January, were born into the better life—

In Crete, holy Titus, whom the Apostle Paul ordained Bishop for the Cretans. When he had faithfully brought to an end [about the year 105], his work of preaching, he obtained a blessed death, and was buried in that church whereof the blessed Apostle had appointed him a worthy minister. His feast is kept upon the 6th day of the month of February.

At Rome, the holy martyrs the priest Priscus, the clerk Priscillian, and the devout woman Benedicta, who won martyrdom by the sword in the time of the wicked Emperor Julian [the Apostate].

Likewise at Rome, the blessed martyr Dafrosa, wife of the holy martyr Flavian [mother of St Bibiana]. After the execution of her husband she was first sentenced to exile, and then put to death under the aforesaid Emperor Julian.

At Bologna, the holy martyrs Hermes, Aggaeus, and Caius, who suffered under the Emperor Maximian.

At Adrumetum, in Africa, the holy martyr Mavillus, whom the cruel President Scapula condemned to the wild beasts in the persecution under the Emperor Severus, and who thus received the crown of martyrdom.

Likewise in Africa, the illustrious martyrs Aquilinus, Geminus, Eugenius, Marcian, Quintus, Theodotus, and Tryphon [about end of fifth century].

At Langres, holy Gregory, bishop of that see, famous for miracles [in the year 539].

At Rheims, in Gaul [in the year 743], the holy confessor Rigobert, bishop [in the year 722] of that see.

Commemoration of St Thomas of Canterbury from his Second Vespers, and of the Holy Innocents from their proper Lauds.

Jan 4.

Octave of Childermas.

Octave of the Holy Innocents, Martyrs.

Double.

All as on the Feast-day, except the following.

FIRST NOCTURN.

First Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Epistle of the Blessed Apostle Paul to the Romans (v. 1.)

THEREFORE being justified by faith, let us have peace with God through our Lord JESUS Christ; by Whom also we have access by faith into this grace, wherein we stand, and rejoice in hope of the glory of the sons of God. And not only so, but we glory in tribulations also, knowing that tribulation worketh patience, and patience proof, and proof hope; and hope maketh not ashamed, because the love of God is shed abroad in our hearts by the Holy Ghost, Which is given unto us.

Second Lesson.

FOR wherefore, when we were yet without strength, did Christ in due time die for the ungodly? For scarcely for a righteous man will one die; yet peradventure for a good man some would even dare to die. But God commendeth His love towards us; in that while we were yet sinners Christ died for us; much more then being now justified by His Blood, we shall be saved from wrath through Him.

Third Lesson.

FOR if, when we were enemies, we were reconciled to God by the death of His Son, much more, being reconciled, we shall be saved by His life. And not only so, but we also joy in God, through our Lord JESUS Christ, by Whom we have now received the Atonement. Moreover, as by one man sin entered into the world, and death by sin, so also death passed upon all men, for that all have sinned.

SECOND NOCTURN.

Fourth Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Sermons of [1] St Austin, Bishop [of Hippo.] (1st for Childermas.)

THE Lord is born, and sorrow breaketh out, not in heaven but on earth; to mothers is proclaimed lamentation, to angels joy, to children translation. God is born, and innocence must be offered up to Him Who cometh to condemn the malice of the world. The Lamb that taketh away the sins of the world is come to be crucified, and the tender flock is brought to the sacrifice. But the mothers will lament over them whose inarticulate bleating is silenced for ever. Let us turn a look on this great martyrdom, this heart-rending sorrow. The sword is drawn, though there is no offence to punish, only jealousy shrieking for Him Who is born, and doth no violence. And here are mothers weeping over the lambs of the flock. "In Ramah was there a voice heard, weeping and great mourning." [2] They are pledges [which shall be returned hereafter], but they are pledges taken without being given, impounded without being entrusted.

---

[1] There are good grounds for doubting the ascription of the Sermon to St Austin.

[2] Pignora sunt, non credita sed creata, non deposita sed exposita. The passage is very obscure. The imagery seems to be taken from a pawn-shop.

Fifth Lesson.

NATURE is herself our witness of what the scene must have been when the tyrant dashed the little ones against the stones. The childless mothers tore their hair; those, whose infants had still escaped, strove vainly to hide them, and their very cries betrayed them, too young to have learnt the silence of fear. Sometimes the wretched mother struggled with the executioner, as he dragged the child to which she clung from her arms. The fruit of her body is torn from her breast. Was it for this that her womb bore it, and her paps gave it suck? Had she carried it so tenderly, that the murderer might seize it? It had come of her body only to be dashed against the stones.

Sixth Lesson.

SOMETIMES a broken-hearted woman cried to the ruffian to kill her also; wherefore leave her to her childless widowhood? If fault there were, the fault was hers,—then why not let her suffer and follow her lost one? Some must have cried out that all were being slain for the sake of One, and that One had escaped. And surely some called for the coming of the Messiah to deliver them. "Come, come, O Saviour, how long do we wait for Thee? Thou art Almighty — come, and save our children." And so the cry of the mother and the sacrifice of her offspring went up together to heaven.

THIRD NOCTURN.

Seventh Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Holy Gospel according to Matthew (ii. 13.)

AT that time: The Angel of the Lord appeared to Joseph in a dream, saying: Arise, and take the young Child, and His Mother, and flee into Egypt: and be thou there until I bring thee word. And so on.

Homily by St John Chrysostom, Patriarch [of Constantinople.] (8th on Matthew.)

When Joseph had heard this he was not troubled, neither did he say, "This is doubtful, or at least obscure. Thou saidst not long ago, that He shall save His people, and now apparently Himself He cannot save; but we are to flee, and journey far, and dwell in a strange land. Thy works belie thy words." But Joseph said none of these things, for he was faithful; neither did he curiously ask of the angel the time of his return, which God was not pleased to show him, but only to send him that word, "Be thou there until I bring thee word."

Eighth Lesson.

HE was not slothful, but obeyed cheerfully, and by faith bore all tribulations with joy. God in His mercy mingled some joy with his sorrow, as He doth in all the saints, whom He will have to abide continually neither in sorrow, nor in joy: but weaveth their life ever with a strange diversity. And let us consider how He did it here.

The Eighth Responsory is added to, as when the Feast falls on Sunday.

Ninth Lesson.

WHEN St Joseph knew that the Virgin was with child, he was greatly troubled; but forthwith an Angel came to take away his fears. The Lord was born and he rejoiced with exceeding joy; but straightway came the great danger, when all Jerusalem was troubled, the king in great wrath, and murderers seeking the young Child's life. The star shone over Bethlehem, and the wise men came to worship; but Herod sought to slay the Saviour; and they arose, and fled into a far country.

The Hymn, "We praise Thee, O God, &c.," is always said.

At Lauds a Commemoration is made of St Thomas of Canterbury, from the Lauds of his feast.

MARTYROLOGY.

The morrow is the Eve of the Epiphany of the Lord, the same day is the Octave of the holy martyr Thomas, Archbishop of Canterbury.

Upon the same 5th day of January, were born into the better life—

At Rome, the holy Pope Telesphorus, who toiled much for Christ, and under the Emperor Antoninus Pius obtained by his testimony a glorious martyrdom.

In Egypt are commemorated many holy martyrs who were slain in the Thebaid in divers ways, in the persecution under the Emperor Diocletian.

At Antioch, the holy monk Simeon, who lived for many years standing upon a pillar, whence he is called Stylitis [from the Greek style, which is being interpreted a pillar], whose life and conversation was wonderful [in the year 459].

In England, the holy King Edward, famous for his gift of chastity and of the power of working miracles. By command of Pope Innocent XI. his feast is kept upon the 13th day of October, which is the day of the translation of his sacred body [in the year 1066.]

At Alexandria [in the fourth century], holy Syncletica, whose noble acts holy Athanasius hath set before us in his writing.

At Rome, the holy virgin Æmiliana, father's sister to holy Gregory the Great. Her sister Tharsilla, who had gone to God before her, came and called her, and upon the same day she passed hence to be for ever with the Lord [sixth century].

Upon the same day, the holy virgin Apollinaris [about the year 440].

Double.

All from the Common Office for One Martyr, except the Prayer, which is as on his feast, p. 167, and the following:

MATTINS.

FIRST NOCTURN.

First Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Epistle of the Blessed Apostle Paul to the Romans (vii. 1.)

KNOW ye not, brethren, (for I speak to them that know the law,) how that the law hath dominion over a man, so long as he liveth? For the woman which hath an husband is bound up by the law to her husband so long as he liveth: but if the husband be dead, she is loosed from the law of her husband. So then, if, while her husband liveth, she be married to another man, she shall be called an adulteress; but, if her husband be dead, she is free from the law of her husband; so that she is no adulteress, though she be married to another man.

Second Lesson.

WHEREFORE, my brethren, ye also are become dead to the law by the body of Christ; that ye should be married to another, even to Him Who is raised from the dead; that we should bring forth fruit unto God. For when we were in the flesh, the motions of sin which were by the law, did work in our members, to bring forth fruit unto death. But now we are delivered from the law of death wherein we were held, that we should serve in newness of spirit, and not in the oldness of the letter.

Third Lesson.

WHAT shall we say then? Is the law sin? God forbid. Nay, I had not known sin, but by the law. For I had not known lust, except the law had said: Thou shalt not covet. But sin, taking occasion by the commandment, wrought in me all manner of concupiscence. For without the law sin was dead. For I was alive without the law once: but when the commandment came sin revived.

SECOND NOCTURN.

Fourth Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Exposition of the hundred-and-eighteenth Psalm by St Ambrose, Bishop [of Milan.] (21*st Sermon.*)

"PRINCES have persecuted me without a cause: but my heart standeth in awe of Thy word." These are rightly the words of a martyr, who beareth unjustly the torments of the persecutors, who hath robbed no man, who hath violently oppressed no man, who hath shed the blood of no man, who hath imagined to defile the bed of no man, who is debtor to the laws in nothing, and who is punished more grievously than if he were a robber: who speaketh righteousness, and there is none that will hear: who speaketh salvation, and all men fight against him: who is able to say: "When I spoke unto them, they fought against me without a cause." (Ps. cxix. 7.) They fight against him without a cause, who can lay no sin to his charge: they fight against him as an evil-doer, who is by their own acknowledgment righteous: they fight against him as a warlock, who glorieth in the name of the Lord, and who doeth all things well because he doeth all things for God's sake.

Fifth Lesson.

THEY fight against him in vain who is accused of ungodliness among the ungodly and the unfaithful, because he teacheth Faith. Verily, him that is fought against without a cause it behoveth to be strong and patient. Wherefore then saith he: "My heart standeth in awe of Thy word?" Awe is the mark of the weak, the timid, and the fearful. But there is also a weakness unto salvation, there is a fear which is an holy fear. "O fear the LORD, all ye His Saints." (Ps. xxxiii. 10.) And again: "Blessed is the man that feareth the LORD." (Ps. cxi. 1.) And wherefore is he blessed? because he "delighteth greatly in His commandments."

Sixth Lesson.

THINK, then, how the martyr standeth between two dangers. On the one hand the wild beasts, roaring for his blood, do indeed strike terror; he heareth the hissing of the plates of white-hot metal, and seeth surging up the flames of the fiery furnace; behind him is the clanking of fetters, and beside him the executioner, stained with fresh blood; think of him there, face to face with the apparatus of death—but think again—of what thinketh he? Of the Law of God, of the everlasting fire, of the eternal flames wherein the unbelieving shall burn for ever, of that torture whereof the agony is for ever new.

---

[1] The First Vespers of the Common Office for one Martyr being already in use for the Octave of St Thomas, the Commemoration of St Telesphorus is taken from the Lauds, according to the Pie, ix. 8.

And then indeed his heart faileth for fear, lest by giving way under torment here, he should give himself up to everlasting torment hereafter: then indeed he trembleth, when Faith maketh to glitter before his eyes the awful sword of the judgment to come. And in this, the faithful trembling of the true-hearted, are there not both unshaken hope of the eternal things, and awe of the things of God?

THIRD NOCTURN.

Seventh Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Holy Gospel according to John (x. 11.)

AT that time: JESUS said unto the Pharisees: I am the Good Shepherd. The Good Shepherd giveth His life for His sheep. And so on.

Homily by Pope St Gregory [the Great.] (14*th on the Gospels.*)

Dearly beloved brethren, ye have heard from the Holy Gospel what is at once your instruction, and our danger. Behold, how He Who, not by the varying gifts of nature, but of the very essence of His being, is Goodness, behold how He saith: "I am the Good Shepherd." And then He saith what is the character of His goodness, even of that goodness of His which we must strive to copy: "The Good Shepherd giveth His life for the Sheep." As He had foretold, even so did He; as He had commanded, so gave He ensample. The Good Shepherd gave His life for the sheep, and made His Own Body and His Own Blood to be our Sacramental Food, pasturing upon His Own Flesh the sheep whom He had bought.

Eighth Lesson.

HE, by despising death, hath shown us how to do the like; He hath set before us the mould wherein it behoveth us to be cast. Our first duty is, freely and tenderly to spend our outward things for His sheep, but lastly, if need be, to serve the same by our death also. From the light offering of the first, we go on to the stern offering of the last, and, if we be ready to give our life for the sheep, why should we scruple to give our substance, seeing how much "more is the life than meat?" (Matt. vi. 25.) And some there be which love the things of this world better than they love the sheep; and such as they deserve no longer to be called shepherds. These are they of whom it is written: "But he that is an hireling, and not the shepherd, whose own the sheep are not, seeth the wolf coming, and leaveth the sheep, and fleeth" (12.) He is not a shepherd but an hireling which feedeth the Lord's sheep, not because he loveth their souls, but because he doth gain earthly wealth thereby. He that taketh a shepherd's place, but seeketh not gain of souls, that same is but an hireling; such an one is ever ready for creature-comforts, he loveth his pre-eminence, he groweth sleek upon his income, and he liketh well to see men bow down to him.

Ninth Blessing.

May the Gospel's glorious word
Cleansing to our souls afford.

Ninth Lesson. (For the Eve of the Epiphany.)

The Lesson is taken from the Holy Gospel according to Matthew (ii. 19.)

AT that time: When Herod was dead, behold, an Angel of the Lord appeareth in a dream to Joseph in Egypt, saying: Arise and take the young Child and His Mother, and go into the land of Israel. And so on.

Homily by St Jerome, Priest [at Bethlehem.] (Bk. i., Comm. on Matth. ii.)

From the words, "they are dead," (in the Plural), which are used in this passage of the Gospel, we may understand that there were others beside Herod "which sought the young Child's life"—probably the Priests and Scribes. "And he" (Joseph) "arose, and took the young Child and His Mother." It is not written, "He took his wife and child," but "he took the young Child and His Mother;" whence it is clear that the holy Evangelist willeth to imply that Joseph was not the father, but the Guardian of JESUS, not the husband, but the Betrothed of Mary.

"But when he heard that Archelaus did reign in Judea, in the room of his father Herod, he was afraid to go thither." There are some persons so grossly ignorant of history that they confuse themselves over the two Herods, as if the one mentioned here were the same who afterwards set our Lord at nought during His Passion, and they cannot understand how he should now be said to be dead. The Herod who was made friends with Pilate over Christ's death, was the son of the Herod who massacred the infants of Bethlehem, and the brother of Archelaus.

"He shall be called a Nazarene." The Evangelist, in quoting these words, saith that they were "spoken by the Prophets," (Plural). If he had been citing any one precise passage he would have said "by the Prophet," in the Singular. But he is citing the sense of the Prophets, and not any individual passage in any of their writings. He seemeth to refer to the fact that in Hebrew the word "Nazarene" signifieth "holy," and that Christ is the Holy One of God is the common declaration of all the Scriptures.[1]

The Hymn, "We praise Thee, O God, &c.," is said.

At Lauds a Commemoration is made of the Eve of the Epiphany, from the Lauds of the Sunday within the Octave of Christmas, p. 171.

Then of St Telesphorus, from the First Vespers of One Martyr Prayer as on the preceding evening.

MARTYROLOGY.

The morrow is the Epiphany of the Lord.

Upon the same 6th day of January, were born into the better life—

In the country of Rheims, by command of the President Rictiovarus, in the persecution under the Emperor Diocletian, the holy virgin and martyr Macra—she was first cast into the fire but remained unhurt, whereupon her breasts were cut off, and she was thrust into a prison and rolled upon sharp potsherds and live coals until she passed away in prayer to be ever with the Lord.

---

[1] Judges xiii. 5, however, contains almost the precise phrase, and is very like Luke i. 31, and Matth. 1. 21.

On the same day are commemorated many holy martyrs in Africa, who were burnt at the stake in the persecution under the Emperor Severus.

At Rennes, in Gaul, the holy confessor Melanius [Abbat of Platz] [in the year 511], bishop of that see, who after countless works of power passed gloriously out of this world to that heaven where his heart was already fixed [in the year 530].

At Florence, holy Andrew Corsini of that city, a Carmelite friar, Bishop of Fiesoli, who was famous for miracles [in the year 1373], and whose name was numbered by Urban VIII. among those of the Saints, whose feast we keep upon the 4th day of February.

At Geris, in Egypt, the holy hermit Nilammon, who gave up his soul in prayer to God while he was being haled against his will to make him a bishop [fifth century].

The Feast begins at sunset.

From henceforth till the end of the Octave of Twelfth-Day, the last verse of all the Hymns at Prime, Terce, Sext, None, and Compline, is altered in honour of the Epiphany.

Jan. 6.

Twelfth-Day,

The Epiphany[1] of the Lord.

Double of the First Class, with an Octave.

Everything as on Sundays except what is otherwise given here.

FIRST VESPERS.

Antiphons, Chapter, and Prayer from Lauds.

The Last Psalm,

Psalm CXVI.

O praise the LORD, all ye nations, &c., (p. 105.)

Hymn.[2]

WHAT makes thee, cruel Herod, quake,
Lest Christ thy crown from thee should take?
He will not seize an earthly throne,
Who heavenly kingdoms makes our own.

The Sages coming from afar,
Follow the new appearing star:
With light they seek a better Light;
Their gifts confess the God of might.

The heavenly Lamb in Jordan stood,
To sanctify the crystal flood;
Our sins with that baptismal dew,
Were washed in Him, Who sin ne'er knew.

A strange miraculous power is shown:
The water pots are ruddy grown,
Whose waters by command Divine
Their nature change, and yield pure wine.

To Christ, Who did the Gentiles call,
Be endless glory given by all,
To God the Father we repeat
The same, and to the Paraclete. Amen.

Verse. [3] The kings of Tarshish and of the isles shall bring presents.

Answer. The kings of Arabia and Saba shall offer gifts.

Antiphon at the Song of the Blessed Virgin. When the wise men saw the star, they said one unto another: This is the sign of the Great King; let us go and search diligently for Him, and present unto Him gifts, gold, and frankincense, and myrrh. Alleluia.

COMPLINE.

The last verse of the Hymn is said thus:

JESU, Whom now the Gentiles see,
To Thee all praise be given,
With Father, Spirit, One and Three,
Here as it is in heaven. Amen.

HO, every one that thirsteth, come ye to the waters; and he that hath no money, come ye, buy and eat: yea, come, buy wine and milk without money and without price.

[1] Epiphaneia—a Greek word, meaning Manifestation. By the Greeks themselves the Feast is called most commonly the Theophaneia, or Manifestation of God. It is observed by the Church in honour of the Manifestation of Christ upon three occasions: first, when a star led the wise men to adore Him; secondly, when He was baptized in Jordan, and the Father proclaimed Him His Son; thirdly, when He "manifested forth His glory" by turning water into wine at Cana. Of these occasions the first is principally commemorated on the Feast itself, and the second on the Octave, but mentions of the latter penetrate the whole Office. Throughout the whole East there is a Blessing of the Waters at the First Vespers, in which the people bathe, or from which they are sprinkled, in honour of the Baptism of Christ, and there is a Ritual for the purpose, according to the Roman Rite, which is in use in some Churches at Rome and elsewhere. This ceremony is repeatedly alluded to in the Office, and must be kept in mind if it is to be intelligently followed. The Birth of Christ appears (at least in some places) to have been anciently observed on this day, as is still done by the Monophysite Armenians, and this perhaps accounts in part for the great importance given to it.

[2] Hymn by Coelius Sedulius, unaltered save in the first two lines; translation extracted from the "Hortus Animæ."

[3] Ps. lxxi. 10.

[4] Ps. lxv. 4.

Wherefore do ye spend money for that which is not bread, and your labour for that which satisfieth not? Hearken diligently unto Me, and eat ye that which is good, and let your soul delight itself in fatness. Incline your ear and come unto Me: hear, and your soul shall live: and I will make an everlasting covenant with you, even the sure mercies of David. Behold I have given him for a witness to the people, a leader and commander to the nations.

First Responsory.

This day, [1] when the Lord was baptized in Jordan, the heavens were opened, and the Spirit descended like a dove, and abode upon Him, and, lo, the voice of the Father was heard, [2] like unto thunder, saying: This is My beloved Son, in Whom I am well pleased.

Verse. [3] The Holy Ghost descended in a bodily shape like a dove upon Him, and a voice came from heaven—

Answer. This is My beloved Son, in Whom I am well pleased.

Second Lesson. (lx. 1.)

ARISE, shine, [O Jerusalem,] for thy light is come, and the glory of the LORD is risen upon thee. For, behold, darkness shall cover the earth, and gross darkness the people: but the LORD shall arise upon thee, and His glory shall be seen upon thee. And the Gentiles shall walk in thy light, and kings in the brightness of thy rising. Lift up thine eyes round about and see: all they gather themselves together, they come to thee; thy sons shall come from far, and thy daughters shall be nursed at thy side. Then thou shalt see, and tremble; and thine heart shall rejoice and be enlarged, because the riches of the sea shall be poured in upon thee, the wealth of the Gentiles shall come unto thee; the multitude of camels shall cover thee, the dromedaries of Midian and [4] Ephah: all they from Saba shall come: they shall bring gold and incense, and they shall proclaim the praises of the LORD.

Second Responsory.

The Holy Ghost appeared in a bodily shape like a dove, and the voice of the Father was heard: This is My beloved Son, in Whom I am well pleased.

Verse. The heavens were opened unto him, and, lo, the voice of the Father was heard, like unto thunder, saying:

Answer. This is My beloved Son, in Whom I am well pleased.

Third Lesson. (Isa. lxi. 10.)

I WILL greatly rejoice in the LORD, and my soul shall be joyful in my God: for He hath clothed me with the garments of salvation, and hath covered me with the robe of righteousness, as a bridegroom decketh himself with ornaments, and as a bride adorneth herself with her jewels. For as the earth bringeth forth her bud, and as the garden causeth the things that are sown in it to spring forth, so the Lord [5] GOD will cause righteousness and praise to spring forth before all the nations. (lxii. 1.) For Zion's sake I will not hold my peace, and for Jerusalem's sake I will not rest, until the Righteous One thereof go forth as brightness, and her Saviour as a lamp that burneth.

Third Responsory.

The kings of Tarshish and of the isles shall bring presents. The kings of Arabia and Saba shall offer gifts unto the Lord God.

Verse. All they from Saba shall come, they shall bring gold and incense.

Answer. The kings of Arabia and Saba shall offer gifts unto the Lord God.

Verse. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, and to the Holy Ghost.

Answer. The kings of Arabia and Saba shall offer gifts unto the Lord God.

SECOND NOCTURN.

First Antiphon. Let all the earth worship Thee, and sing unto Thee: * let them sing praises to Thy name, O Lord.

Psalm LXV.

Make a joyful noise, &c., (p. 64.)

Second Antiphon. The kings of Tarshish and the isles shall bring presents * unto the Lord the King.

Psalm LXXI.

Give the king Thy judgment, &c., (p. 72.)

Third Antiphon. All nations whom Thou hast made shall come * and worship before Thee, O Lord.

Psalm LXXXV.

Bow down Thine ear, &c., (p. 82.)

Verse. The kings of Tarshish and of the isles shall bring presents.

Answer. The kings of Arabia and Saba shall offer gifts.

Fourth Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Sermons of Pope St Leo [the Great.] (2nd for Twelfth-Day.)

DEARLY beloved brethren, rejoice in the Lord; again I say, rejoice. But a few days are past since the solemnity of Christ's Birth, and now the glorious light of His Manifestation is breaking upon us. On that day the Virgin brought Him forth, and on this the world knew Him. The Word made Flesh was pleased to reveal Himself by degrees to those for whom He had come. When JESUS was born He was manifested indeed to the believing, but hidden from His enemies. Already indeed the heavens declared the glory of God, and their sound went out into all lands, when the Herald Angels appeared to tell to the shepherds the glad tidings of a Saviour's Birth; and now the guiding star leadeth the wise men to worship Him, that from the rising of the sun to the going down thereof, the Birth of the true King may be known abroad; that through those wise men the kingdoms of the east might learn the great truth, and the Roman empire remain no more in darkness.

[1] Matth. iii. 16, 17.

[2] Ps. xxviii. 3.

[3] Luke iii. 22.

[4] A country and tribe of the Midianites.

[5] The name.

Fourth Responsory.

Shine, shine, O Jerusalem, for thy light is come: and the glory of the LORD is risen upon thee.

Verse. And the Gentiles shall walk in thy light, and kings in the brightness of thy rising.

Answer. And the glory of the LORD is risen upon thee.

Fifth Lesson.

THE very cruelty of Herod, when he strove to crush at His birth this King Whom he alone feared, was made a blind means to carry out this dispensation of mercy. While the tyrant with horrid guilt sought to slay the little Child he did not know, amid an indiscriminate slaughter of innocents, his infamous act served to spread wider abroad the heaven-told news of the Birth of the Lord. Thus were these glad tidings loudly proclaimed, both by the novelty of their story, and the iniquity of their enemies. Then was the Saviour borne into Egypt, that that nation, of a long time hardened in idolatry, might by the mysterious virtue which went out of Him, even when His presence was unknown, be prepared for the saving light so soon to dawn on them, and might receive the Truth as a wanderer even before they had banished falsehood.

Fifth Responsory.

All they from Saba shall come, they shall bring gold and incense, and they shall show forth the praises of the LORD. Alleluia, Alleluia, Alleluia.

Verse. The kings of Tarshish and of the isles shall bring presents, the kings of Arabia and Saba shall offer gifts.

Answer. Alleluia, Alleluia, Alleluia.

Sixth Lesson.

DEARLY beloved brethren, we recognise in the wise men who came to worship Christ, the first-fruits of that dispensation to the Gentiles wherein we also are called and enlightened. Let us then keep this Feast with grateful hearts, in thanksgiving for our blessed hope, whereof it doth commemorate the dawn. From that worship paid to the new-born Christ is to be dated the entry of us Gentiles upon our heirship of God and co-heirship with Christ. Since that joyful day the Scriptures which testify of Christ have lain open for us as well as for the Jews. Yea, their blindness rejected that Truth, Which, since that day, hath shed Its bright beams upon all nations. Let all observance, then, be paid to this most sacred day, whereon the Author of our salvation was made manifest, and as the wise men fell down and worshipped Him in the manger, so let us fall down and worship Him enthroned Almighty in heaven. As they also opened their treasures and presented unto Him mystic and symbolic gifts, so let us strive to open our hearts to Him, and offer Him from thence some worthy offering.

Sixth Responsory.

There came wise men from the east to Jerusalem, asking and saying: Where is He That is born King of the Jews? for we have seen His star in the east, and are come to worship the Lord.

Verse. We have seen His star in the east.

Answer. And are come to worship the Lord.

Verse. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, and to the Holy Ghost.

Answer. And are come to worship the Lord.

THIRD NOCTURN.

Instead of the 1st Psalm the following is said just as given here.

Antiphon. O come, let us worship Him: for He is the Lord our God.

Psalm XCIV.

O COME, let us sing unto the LORD: let us make a joyful noise to the God of our salvation.

Let us come before His presence with thanksgiving, and make a joyful noise unto Him with psalms.

Antiphon. O come, let us worship Him: for He is the Lord our God.

For the LORD is a great God, and a great King above all gods.

In His hand are the inmost depths of the earth: and the heights of the hills are His also.

Antiphon. O come, let us worship Him: for He is the Lord our God.

For the sea is His, and He made it, and His hands formed the dry land.

Antiphon. O come, let us worship Him: for He is the Lord our God.

And we are the people of His pasture, and the sheep of His hand. To-day if ye will hear His voice, harden not your heart.

As in "the Provocation," and as in the day of "Temptation" in the wilderness, when your fathers tempted Me, and proved Me, and saw My works.

Antiphon. O come, let us worship Him: for He is the Lord our God.

Forty years long was I grieved with that generation, and said: It is a people that do alway err in their heart.

And they have not known My ways; unto whom I sware in My wrath that they should not enter into My rest.

Antiphon. O come, let us worship Him: for He is the Lord our God.

Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, and to the Holy Ghost.

As it was in the beginning, is now, and ever shall be, world without end. Amen.

Antiphon. O come, let us worship Him: for He is the Lord our God.

The Service then proceeds as usual.

Second Antiphon. O worship the LORD *—Alleluia—in His holy temple—Alleluia.

Psalm XCV.

O sing unto the LORD, &c., (p. 85.)

Third Antiphon. Worship God *—Alleluia—all ye His Angels—Alleluia.

Psalm XCVI.

The LORD reigneth, &c., (p. 85.)

Verse. O worship the Lord—Alleluia.

Answer. In His holy temple—Alleluia.

Seventh Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Holy Gospel according to Matthew (ii. 1.)

WHEN JESUS was born in Bethlehem of Judah, in the days of Herod the king, behold there came wise men from the East to Jerusalem, saying: Where is He that is born King of the Jews? And so on.

Homily by Pope St Gregory [the Great.] (10*th on the Gospels.*)

Dearly beloved brethren, hear ye from the Gospel lesson how, when the King of heaven was born, the king of earth was troubled? The heights of heaven are opened and the depths of earth are stirred. Let us now consider the question, why, when the Redeemer was born, an angel brought the news to the shepherds of Judea, but a star led the wise men of the East to worship Him. It seemeth as if the Jews as reasonable creatures received a revelation from a reasonable being, that is, an angel, but the Gentiles without, being as brutes, are roused not by a voice, but by a sign, that is, a star. Hence Paul hath it: "a sign, not to them that believe, but to them that believe not: but prophesying serveth not for them that believe not, but for them which believe." (1 Cor. xiv. 22.) So the prophesying, (that is, of the angel) was given to them that believed, and the sign to them that believed not.

Seventh Responsory.

The star which the wise men had seen in the East, went before them, till they came where the young Child was. And when they saw the star, they rejoiced with exceeding great joy.

Verse. And when they were come into the house, they found the young Child with Mary His Mother, and fell down and worshipped Him.

Answer. And when they saw the star, they rejoiced with exceeding great joy.

Eighth Lesson.

THUS also we remark that afterwards the Redeemer was preached among the Gentiles not by Himself, but by His Apostles, even as, when a little Child, He is shown to them, not by the voice of angels, but merely by the vision of a star. When He Himself had begun to speak He was made known to us by speakers, but when He lay silent in the manger, by that silent testimony in heaven. But whether we consider the signs which accompanied His birth or His death, this thing is wonderful, namely, the hardness of heart of the Jews, who would not believe in Him either for prophesying or for miracles.

Eighth Responsory.

When the wise men saw the star, they rejoiced with exceeding great joy. And when they were come into the house, they found the young Child with Mary His Mother, and fell down and worshipped Him; and when they had opened their treasures, they presented unto Him gifts; gold, and frankincense, and myrrh.

Verse. The star which the wise men had seen in the East, went before them, till it came and stood over where the young Child was.

Answer. And when they were come into the house, they found the young Child with Mary His Mother, and fell down and worshipped Him.

Verse. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, and to the Holy Ghost.

Answer. And when they had opened their treasures, they presented unto Him gifts; gold, and frankincense, and myrrh.

Ninth Lesson.

ALL things which He had made, bore witness that their Maker was come. Let me reckon them after the manner of men. The heavens knew that He was God, and sent a star to shine over where He lay. The sea knew it, and bore Him up when He walked upon it. The earth knew it, and quaked when He died. The sun knew it, and was darkened. The rocks and walls knew it, and rent at the hour of His death. Hell knew it, and gave up the dead that were in it. And yet up to this very hour the hearts of the unbelieving Jews will not acknowledge that He to Whom all nature testified is their God, and, being more hardened than the rocks, refuse to be rent by repentance.

The Hymn, "We praise Thee, O God," is said.

LAUDS.

First Antiphon. The Lord our Saviour, * begotten before the day-star, and before the ages, is this day made manifest in the world.

Second Antiphon. O Jerusalem, * thy light is come, and the glory of the LORD is risen upon thee, and the Gentiles shall walk in thy light. Alleluia.

Third Antiphon. When the wise men * had opened their treasures, they presented unto the Lord gold, frankincense, and myrrh. Alleluia.

Fourth Antiphon. O ye seas and floods, * bless ye the Lord. O ye wells, bless ye the Lord. Alleluia.

Fifth Antiphon.

[1] Bright as a fiery beacon gleams
The guiding star, * whose mystic beams
Shone o'er the crib where, veiled in clay,
The new-born King of Glory lay.

When to the manger came the three,
They fell in worship on the knee,
Then to the King their gifts unfold,
The myrrh, the frankincense, and gold.

Chapter. (Isa. lx. 1.)

ARISE, shine, O Jerusalem, for thy light is come, and the glory of the LORD is risen upon thee.

Hymn.[2]

BETHLEHEM! of noblest cities,
None can once with thee compare;
Thou alone the Lord of heaven,
Didst for us Incarnate bear.

Fairer than the sun at morning,
Was the star that told His birth;
To the lands their God announcing,
Hid beneath a form of earth.

By its lambent beauty guided,
See, the Eastern Kings appear;
See them bend, their gifts to offer,—
Gifts of incense, gold, and myrrh.

Offerings of mystic meaning!—
Incense doth the God disclose;
Gold a Royal Child proclaimeth;
Myrrh a future tomb foreshows.

Holy JESU, in Thy brightness
To the Gentile world displayed!
With the Father and the Spirit,
Endless praise to Thee be paid.
Amen.

Verse. Worship God—Alleluia.

Answer. All ye His angels. Alleluia.

[2] Hymn by Aurelius Prudentius Clemens practically unchanged; translation by the Rev. E. Caswall.

Prayer throughout the Office.

O GOD, Who by the leading of a star didst, as on this day, manifest Thine Only-begotten Son to the Gentiles, mercifully grant that we, which know Thee now by faith, may after this life have the fruition of Thy glorious Godhead; through the Same our Lord JESUS Christ Thy Son, Who liveth and reigneth with Thee, in the unity of the Holy Ghost, one God, world without end. Amen.

SECOND VESPERS.

Antiphons, Chapter, and Prayer from Lauds.

Hymn and Verse and Answer from First Vespers.

Psalms as on Sunday.

Antiphon at the Song of the Blessed Virgin. This day we keep a holiday in honour of three wonders, * —this day a star led the wise men to the manger; this day at the marriage, water was made wine; this day was Christ, for our salvation, pleased to be baptized of John in Jordan. Alleluia.

If this day should be a Saturday, the following Commemoration is made of the Sunday within the Octave.

Antiphon. The Child JESUS tarried behind in Jerusalem, and His parents knew not of it, supposing Him to have been in the company: and they sought Him among their kinsfolk and acquaintance.

Verse. All they from Saba shall come. Alleluia.

Answer. They shall bring gold and incense. Alleluia.

Let us pray.

O LORD, we beseech Thee, mercifully to receive the prayers of Thy people which call upon Thee, and grant that they may both perceive and know what things they ought to do, and also may have grace and power faithfully to fulfil the same; through our Lord JESUS Christ Thy Son, Who liveth and reigneth with Thee, in the unity of the Holy Ghost, one God, world without end. Amen.

COMPLINE.

Last verse of the Hymn as before.

The following are the rules for the Service during the Octave of the Epiphany.

1. If a Double Minor or Semidouble Feast occur, it is not transferred, but simplified. Only Doubles Major and Feasts of Doctors may be transferred. If Doubles Minor occur on a Double of the first class they are omitted that year. So also Simple Feasts which are otherwise merely commemorated.

2. The Service is precisely the same as on Twelfth-Day itself, except the differences hereafter immediately noted, and those given under the head of every day.

3. Mattins commence as usual with the following:

Invitatory. Christ is made manifest unto us, * O come, let us worship Him.

Hymn. What makes thee, &c., (Hymn at First Vespers.)

4. Except on the Sunday within the Octave, and on the Octave itself, the First Responsory is as follows:

There are three precious gifts which the wise men offered unto the Lord on this day, and they speak a mystery of the things of God,—Gold, to show His kingly power; frankincense, for our Great High Priest; and myrrh, against the Lord's burying.

Verse. The wise men worshipped the Captain of our Salvation, as He lay in the manger, and when they had opened their treasures, they presented unto Him mystic gifts.

Answer. Gold, to show His kingly power; frankincense, for our Great High Priest; and myrrh, against the Lord's burying.

5. The Third Nocturn begins as follows:

First Antiphon. This man was born in her, * and the Highest Himself shall establish her.

Psalm LXXXVI.

Her foundation, &c., (p. 82.)

6. Offices are hereafter given for five days within the Octave, besides the Octave-day itself, and the Sunday. These Offices are recited one after another on the five next week-days after the Feast. For example, if the Feast fell on a Saturday, the Office for the Second Day within the Octave would be said on Monday. The Lessons of the First Nocturns of these days are subject to the change mentioned in the eighth section.

7. The Antiphons are not doubled, except on the Octave-day.

8. On the First Sunday after the Epiphany is begun the First Epistle of St Paul to the Corinthians, which is continued on the following days till the Saturday inclusive. These Lessons are all given together at p. 201. To make room for them the Lessons from the Epistle to the Romans are omitted if need be. Hence, if the Feast fell on a Saturday, all the rest of the Epistle to the Romans would that year be omitted.

9. If the Feast fall on a Sunday, the Octave-day will do so too. Then the first Sunday after the Feast will be observed as the Octave-day, and the Office of the Sunday will be said on Saturday by anticipation, except the beginning of the First Epistle to the Corinthians, which will still be read on Sunday, and its place in the Sunday Office (said by anticipation on Saturday) is supplied with Lessons from the Epistle to the Romans, given on p. 198.

Second Day within the Octave of the Epiphany.

FIRST NOCTURN.

First Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Epistle of the Blessed Apostle Paul to the Romans (ix. 1.)

I SAY the truth in Christ, I lie not, my conscience bearing me witness in the Holy Ghost; that I have great heaviness and continual sorrow in my heart. For I could wish that myself were anathema from Christ for my brethren, my kinsmen according to the flesh; who are Israëlites; to whom pertaineth the adoption, and the glory, and the covenant, and the giving of the law, and the service of God, and the promises; whose are the fathers, and of whom, as concerning the flesh, Christ came, Who is over all — God, blessed for ever. Amen.

Second Lesson.

NOT as though the word of God hath taken none effect. For they are not all Israëlites which are of Israël; neither, because they are the seed of Abraham, are they all children; but, "In Isaac shall thy seed be called;"[1] that is, they which are the children of the flesh, these are not the children of God; but the children of the promise are counted for the seed.—For this is the word of promise: [2] "At this time will I come, and Sarah shall have a son." And not only she, but when Rebecca also had conceived [twins] by the same our father Isaac.

Third Lesson.

FOR the children being not yet born, neither having done any good or evil, (that the purpose of God, according to election, might stand,) not of works, but of Him That calleth, it was said unto her: [3] "The elder shall serve the younger"—as it is written: [4] "Jacob have I loved, but Esau have I hated." What shall we say then? Is there unrighteousness with God? God forbid. For He saith to Moses: [5] "I will have mercy on whom I will have mercy, and I will have compassion on whom I will have compassion." So then, it is not of him that willeth, nor of him that runneth, but of God that showeth mercy."

SECOND NOCTURN.

Fourth Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Sermons of St Austin, Bishop [of Hippo.] (2nd on the Epiphany, 30th on the Season.)

WISE men came from the East to worship the Virgin's Son. This is the event which we this day commemorate, the occasion in honour of which this sermon is preached. On them that day first broke in gladness, which year by year, now cometh round to us for celebration. They were the first-fruits of that Gentile Church whereof we are the in-gathering. To us the voice of Apostles, to them a star, as a voice from heaven, proclaimed the advent of a Saviour; and to us the voice of the Apostolic preachers is also as a voice from heaven, a heaven declaring the glory of God.

Fifth Lesson.

GREAT is the mystery. While He lay in the manger, He drew to Himself wise men from the East; while He was unknown in the stable, He was recognised in the heavens; and, being recognised in the heavens, made Himself known in the stable. So this day is called in the Greek "Epiphaneia," which is, being interpreted, "Manifestation." Wherein is manifested both the greatness and the lowliness of Him, Whose greatness was attested in the stars of heaven, and Who, being sought on earth, is found so lowly that there is no room for Him in the inn. And yet, though to be found in fashion as a little Child wrapped in swaddling-clothes, He is the object of worship to the wise men and of terror to the godless.

Sixth Lesson.

FOR Herod feared when he heard from the wise men of Him Whom they sought, and of Whose birth they knew by the witness of a star. What will be the fearful judgment-seat of Him, Who, even as a Suckling, struck terror into haughty kings? How much wiser is the thought of those kings who seek Christ like the wise men, to worship Him, than of those who seek Him, like Herod, to slay Him! who seek to put Him to that same death, which He came to suffer from His enemies for their own salvation, and which, by His death, He hath trodden down! Kings will do well to fear Him Who now sitteth at the right hand of the Father, and Whom Herod feared when He hung upon His mother's breast.

THIRD NOCTURN.

Seventh Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Holy Gospel according to Matthew (ii. i.)

WHEN JESUS was born in Bethlehem of Judah, in the days of Herod the King, behold, there came wise men from the East to Jerusalem, saying: Where is He That is born King of the Jews? And so on.

Homily by Pope St Gregory [the Great.] (10th on the Gospels.)

When Herod knew of the birth of our King, he betook himself to his cunning wiles, and lest he should be deprived of an earthly kingdom he desired the wise men to search diligently for the young Child, and when they had found Him, to bring him word again. He said, "that he also might come and worship Him," but, in reality, that, when he had found Him, he might put Him to death. But, behold, of how light weight is the malice of man, when it is tried against the counsel of God. It is written: "There is no wisdom, nor understanding, nor counsel, against the LORD," (Prov. xxi. 30.) So the star which the wise men saw in the East, still led them on; they found the new-born King, and presented unto Him gifts; then they were warned in a dream that they should not return to Herod. And as it came to pass that, when Herod sought JESUS, he could not find Him—even so is it with hypocrites, who, while they make pretence to seek the Lord to worship Him, find Him not.

Eighth Lesson.

IT is as well to know that it is one of the opinions of the Priscillianist heretics[6] that every man is born under the influence of a star; and, to confirm this notion, they bring forward the instance of the star of Bethlehem, which appeared when the Lord was born; and which they call His star, that is, the star ruling over His fate or destiny. But if we consider the words of the Gospel concerning this star, they are: "It went before, till it came and stood over where the young Child was." Whence we see that it was not the young Child Who followed the star, but the star which followed the young Child, as if to show that the young Child ruled the star, instead of the star ruling Him.

Ninth Lesson.

BUT I pray that the hearts of the faithful may ever be free from the thought that anything ruleth their destiny. In this world there is but One Who ruleth the destiny of man, even He Who made man; neither was man made for the stars, but the stars for man; and if we say that they rule his destiny, we set them above him for whose service they were made. When Jacob came out of his mother's womb, and his hand took hold on his elder brother Esau's heel, he could not have done so unless this his first movement had been behind his brother, and, nevertheless, such was not in after life the position of those two brethren whom their mother brought forth at one birth.

Antiphon at the Song of Zacharias. There came wise men from the East to Bethlehem to worship the Lord: * and when they had opened their treasures, they presented unto Him precious gifts; gold, as unto the Great King; frankincense as unto the true God; and myrrh for His burying. Alleluia.

Antiphon at the Song of the Blessed Virgin. When the wise men saw the star, * they rejoiced with exceeding great joy; and when they were come into the house, they presented unto the Lord gold, frankincense, and myrrh. Alleluia.

Third Day within the Octave of the Epiphany.

FIRST NOCTURN.

First Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Epistle of the Blessed Apostle Paul to the Romans (xii. 1.)

I BESEECH you, therefore, brethren, by the mercies of God, that ye present your bodies a living sacrifice, holy, acceptable unto God, which is your reasonable service. And be not fashioned according to this world: but be ye transformed by the renewing of your mind: that ye may prove what is that good, and acceptable, and perfect will of God. For I say, through the grace given unto me, to every man that is among you: not to think of himself more highly than he ought to think; but so to think as to think soberly, according as God hath dealt to each man a measure of faith.

Second Lesson.

FOR as we have many members in one body, and all members have not the same office; so we, being many, are one body in Christ, and every one members one of another, and having gifts differing according to the grace that is given to us; whether prophecy, according to the proportion of faith; or ministry, in ministering; or he that teacheth, in teaching; he that exhorteth, in exhortation; he that giveth, in simplicity; he that ruleth, in carefulness; he that showeth mercy, in cheerfulness.

Third Lesson.

LET love be without hypocrisy. Abhor that which is evil, cleave to that which is good; be kindly affectioned one to another, with brotherly love, in honour preferring one another; not slothful in business; fervent in spirit; serving the Lord; rejoicing in hope; patient in tribulation; continuing instant in prayer; distributing to the necessity of the saints; given to hospitality. Bless them which persecute you: bless and curse not. Rejoice with them that do rejoice, and weep with them that weep; be of the same mind one toward another; setting not your heart on high things, but condescending to things that are lowly.

SECOND NOCTURN.

Fourth Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Sermons of St Austin, Bishop [of Hippo.] (2nd on the Epiphany.)

MANY kings of the Jews had been born, and died, but which of them was sought after by wise men to worship him? Not one: for not one had been proclaimed by the voice of heaven. Let us not also pass by the fact that the enlightenment of the wise men standeth in strong contrast to the blindness of the Jews. The first came from far to find Him, Whom, being born in their midst, the second knew not.

Fifth Lesson.

THE wise men found the young Child among those who denied Him. These holy pilgrims came and worshipped the yet silent Christ in the land whose inhabitants, after He grew up and worked miracles, crucified Him. They worshipped in that tiny Body the God Whom, amid great signs and wonders, the Jews would not spare even as a man. They who saw the Star which shone at His birth, put it to more profit than they who saw the sun veiled at His death.

Sixth Lesson.

THE star which led the wise men towards the place where the new-born God dwelt with His Virgin Mother, ceased to shine when it came to the city of Jerusalem, while they were inquiring of the Jews where Christ should be born. The Jews answered them according to the testimony of the Divine Scriptures: "In Bethlehem of Judah: for thus it is written: And thou Bethlehem in the land of Judah, art not the least among the princes of Judah, for out of thee shall come a Governor, that shall rule My people Israël." What else are we to understand that God's Providence would here signify, than that there should remain among the Jews those Divine Writings only, whereby the Gentiles are enlightened, while they themselves remain dark?

THIRD NOCTURN

Seventh Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Holy Gospel according to Matthew (ii. 1.)

WHEN JESUS was born in Bethlehem of Judah, in the days of Herod the King, behold, there came wise men from the East to Jerusalem, saying: Where is He That is born King of the Jews? And so on.

Homily by Pope St Gregory [the Great.] (10th on the Gospels.)

The wise men brought gold, frankincense, and myrrh. Gold is the fitting gift to a King, frankincense is offered in sacrifice to God, and with myrrh are embalmed the bodies of the dead. By the gifts, therefore, which they presented unto Him, the wise men set forth three things concerning Him unto Whom they offered them; by the gold, that He was King; by the frankincense, that He was God; and by the myrrh, that He was to die. There are some heretics who believe Him to be God, but confess not His Kingly dominion over all things; these offer unto Him frankincense, but refuse Him gold. There are some others who admit that He is King, but deny that He is God; these present unto Him gold, but will not give Him frankincense.

Eighth Lesson.

THERE are some other heretics who profess that Christ is both God and King, but not that He took a dying nature; these offer Him gold and frankincense, but not myrrh for the Manhood. Let us, however, present gold unto the new-born Lord, acknowledging His universal Kingship; let us offer unto Him frankincense, confessing that He Who hath been made manifest unto us in time, is God before time was; let us give unto Him myrrh, believing that He Who cannot suffer as touching His Godhead, was made capable of death as touching the manhood which He shareth with us.

Ninth Lesson.

THERE is also another signification in this gold, frankincense, and myrrh. Gold is a type of wisdom; as saith Solomon: [1] "In the mouth of the wise abideth a treasure to be desired." Frankincense, which is burnt in honour of God, is a figure of prayer; witness the words of the Psalmist, (Ps. cxl. 2:) "Let my prayer be set forth as incense before Thee." By myrrh is represented the putting to death of the body; as where the holy Church saith of her labourers who strive for God even unto death: "My hands dropped with myrrh." (Cant. v. 5.)

LAUDS.

Antiphon at the Song of Zacharias. Gold, frankincense, and myrrh, * are the three precious gifts which the wise men offered unto the Lord, as unto the Son of God, the Great King. Alleluia.

VESPERS.

Antiphon at the Song of the Blessed Virgin. O Christ, Thou Light of Light, Thou art made manifest, * and the wise men have presented unto Thee gifts. Alleluia, Alleluia, Alleluia.

Fourth Day within the Octave of the Epiphany.

FIRST NOCTURN.

First Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Epistle of the Blessed Apostle Paul to the Romans (xiii. 1.)

LET every soul be subject unto the higher powers. For there is no power but of God: the powers that be are ordained of God. Whosoever, therefore, resisteth the power, resisteth the ordinance of God. And they that resist earn for themselves damnation: for rulers are not a terror to good works, but to the evil. Wilt thou then not be afraid of the power? Do that which is good, and thou shalt have praise of the same; for he is the minister of God to thee for good.

Second Lesson.

BUT if thou do that which is evil, be afraid; for he beareth not the sword in vain. For he is the minister of God; a revenger to execute wrath upon him that doeth evil. Wherefore ye must needs be subject not only for wrath, but also for conscience' sake. For, for this cause pay ye tribute also: for they are God's ministers, attending continually upon Him for this very thing. Render, therefore, to all their dues; tribute to whom tribute is due; custom to whom custom; fear to whom fear; honour to whom honour.

Third Lesson.

OWE no man anything, but to love one another; for he that loveth his neighbour, hath fulfilled the law. For this, Thou shalt not commit adultery, Thou shalt not kill, Thou shalt not steal, Thou shalt not bear false witness, Thou shalt not covet; and if there be any other commandment, it is briefly comprehended in this saying: "Thou shalt love thy neighbour as thyself." Love worketh no ill to his neighbour. Therefore love is the fulfilling of the law.

SECOND NOCTURN.

Fourth Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Sermons of Pope St Leo [the Great.] (1st for Twelfth-Day.)

DEARLY beloved brethren, we have but lately celebrated that day whereon the inviolate virginity of Blessed Mary gave to man a Saviour. And now the venerable solemnity of the Epiphany giveth us a continuance of joy. So that by the nearness of these two holy Feasts, the freshness of our gladness and the quickening of our faith hath no time wherein to die away. And truly it concerneth the salvation of all men, that the Mediator between God and men is already made manifest before leaving the humble city of His birth.

Fifth Lesson.

IT is true that the Lord chose the nation of Israël, and in that nation one family, whence to take upon Him that nature which He shareth with all mankind, but, at the same time, He would not that the narrow walls of His Mother's house should imprison within them all the brightness of His appearing, and, as He was pleased to be born for all, so willed He to be forthwith made manifest to all. Three wise men in the East, therefore, saw a new and brilliant star, which, by excelling all others in brightness and beauty, attracted the eyes and thoughts of all beholders: and thereby it became at once evident that some new and great event had befallen.

Sixth Lesson.

THEN He Who had given the sign, gave understanding to those that saw it; and having given to them to understand that He was born, He gave them the grace to seek Him; and, being sought by them, was pleased to be found. The three wise men followed the guiding of the heavenly light, and, with their eyes firmly fixed upon the glory that went before them, were so led by the light of grace as to obtain the knowledge of truth. They, knowing that He was born a King, sought Him in the Royal City; but He Who had taken upon Him the form of a servant, and came not to judge but to be judged, had chosen Bethlehem for His birth, and Jerusalem for His Suffering.

---

[1] Prov. xxi. 20. (LXX.)

THIRD NOCTURN.

Seventh Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Holy Gospel according to Matthew (ii. 1.)

WHEN JESUS was born in Bethlehem of Judah, in the days of Herod the King, behold there came wise men from the East to Jerusalem, saying: Where is He That is born King of the Jews? And so on.

Homily by Pope St Gregory [the Great.] (10*th on the Gospels.*)

The wise men teach us a great lesson in that "they departed into their own country another way." That which they did, ("being warned of God in a dream,") we ought to do. Our country is heaven; and, when we have once known JESUS, we can never get there by returning on the way wherein we walked before we knew Him. We have left our country far, by the way of pride, and disobedience, and worldliness, and forbidden indulgence: we must seek that heavenly Fatherland by tears, by subjection, by contempt of the things which are seen, and by curbing the fleshly appetites.

Eighth Lesson.

LET us then depart into our own country another way. They that have by enjoyment put themselves away from it, must seek it again by sorrow. Therefore, my dearly beloved brethren, it behoveth us to be ever fearful and watch, having continually before the eyes of our heart, on the one hand, the guilt of our doings, and, on the other, the judgment at the latter day. It behoveth us to think how that awful Judge will surely come, Whose judgment is hanging over us, and hath not yet fallen: the wrath to come is before sinners, and hath not yet smitten them: and the Judge yet tarrieth in order that, when He cometh, there may haply be less to condemn.

Ninth Lesson.

LET us afflict ourselves for our faults with weeping, and, with the Psalmist, "let us come before His Presence with thanksgiving." Let us take heed that we be not fooled by the appearance of earthly happiness, or seduced by the vanity of earthly pleasure. For the Judge is at hand, even He That saith: "Woe unto you that laugh now, for ye shall mourn and weep," (Luke vi. 25.) Hence also Solomon saith: "Even in laughter the heart is sorrowful; and the end of that mirth is heaviness," (Prov. xiv. 13.) And again: "I said of laughter, It is mad; and of mirth, What doeth it?" (Eccles. ii. 2.) And yet again: "The heart of the wise is in the house of mourning, but the heart of fools is in the house of mirth," (vii. 5.)

LAUDS.

Antiphon at the Song of Zacharias. We have seen His star * in the East, and are come with gifts to worship the Lord.

VESPERS.

Antiphon at the Song of the Blessed Virgin. Herod inquired * of the wise men: What is the sign that ye have seen that a King is born? We have seen the shining of the star, the glory whereof enlighteneth the whole world."

Fifth Day within the Octave of the Epiphany.

MATTINS.

FIRST NOCTURN.

First Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Epistle of the Blessed Apostle Paul to the Romans (xiv. 1.)

HIM that is weak in the faith receive ye, but not to doubtful disputations. For one believeth that he may eat all things: another, who is weak, eateth herbs. Let not him that eateth despise him that eateth not: and let not him which eateth not, judge him that eateth: for God hath received him. Who art thou that judgest another man's servant? To his own Master he standeth or falleth; yea, he shall be holden up: for God is able to make him stand.

Second Lesson.

FOR one man esteemeth one day above another; another esteemeth every day alike; let every man be fully persuaded in his own mind. He that regardeth the day, regardeth it unto the Lord; and he that eateth, eateth to the Lord: for he giveth God thanks. And he that eateth not, to the Lord he eateth not, and giveth God thanks. For none of us liveth to himself, and none dieth to himself. For whether we live, we live unto the Lord; and whether we die, we die unto the Lord. Whether we live, therefore, or die, we are the Lord's.

Third Lesson.

FOR to this end Christ died and rose again, that He might be the Lord both of the dead and living. But why dost thou judge thy brother? Or why dost thou set at nought thy brother? For we shall all stand before the judgment-seat of Christ. For it is written: "As I live, saith the Lord, unto Me every knee shall bow, and every tongue shall confess to God."[1] So then every one of us shall give account of himself to God. Let us not therefore judge one another any more.

SECOND NOCTURN.

Fourth Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Sermons of [2] St Maximus, Bishop [of Turin.] (1*st on the Epiphany.*)

DEARLY beloved brethren, we are instructed by the tradition of the Fathers, that we have to keep holiday on this solemnity in honour of several joyful events. We are taught that on this day, our Lord Christ was, first, manifested to the Gentiles by the leading of a star; secondly, that being bidden to a marriage, He turned water into wine; and, thirdly, that He received baptism from John, whereby He hallowed the waters of the Jordan, and cleansed[1] him that baptised Him.

---

[1] Isa. xlv. 23.

[2] The Martyrology for June 25, says:—"At Turin, the birthday of St Maximus, Bishop and Confessor, very famous for learning and holiness." He was born about the close of the fourth century, was Bishop of Turin at the beginning of the fifth, and died after 465, aged eighty or ninety years. Nothing more accurate is strictly historical.

Fifth Lesson.

WHICH of these events was the greatest, He knoweth by Whose Will they came to pass; for us it is needful to believe and doubt not that whatever was wrought was wrought for us. For to the Gentiles is given a hope of worshipping that Very God of Very God, to adore Whom the Chaldæans were led by the rays of a glorious star. So also He That by His Will changed water into wine, hath given us to drink of the cup of His Blood of the New Testament; and the Lamb of God baptized in the Jordan hath hallowed for us that saving Fountain wherein we are born again.

Sixth Lesson.

THEREFORE, my brethren, as we have lately celebrated with gladness the Festival of our Saviour's birth, so now it behoveth us with all earnestness to keep holy in His honour, this the birth-day of His wonder-working. And, verily, these three anniversaries are rightly on one day preached to us, who acknowledge the unspeakable mystery of the Trinity under the name of one God. By these miracles the Lord Christ our Redeemer willed to manifest to men some of the power of that Godhead, Which in Him lay hidden under the Manhood.

THIRD NOCTURN.

Seventh Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Holy Gospel according to Matthew (ii. 1.)

WHEN JESUS was born in Bethlehem of Judah, in the days of Herod the king, behold, there came wise men from the East to Jerusalem, saying: Where is He That is born King of the Jews? And so on.

Homily by St Jerome, Priest [at Bethlehem.] (Bk. i. Comm. on Matth. ii.)

"We have seen His star in the East." In order that the Jews might be confounded by hearing from the Gentiles of the birth of Christ, the star rose in the East. They knew that it would come, by the prophecy of Balaam, whose successors they were. See the Book of Numbers, (xxiv. 17.) The star led the wise men to Judea, that the Priests, having it demanded of them where Christ should be born, might have no power to plead that they knew not of His coming.

Eighth Lesson.

"AND they said unto him, In Bethlehem of Judea,"—this is a mistake of copyists.[2] In our opinion, what the Evangelist wrote must have been, not "of Judea," but "of Judah." Thus it is in the Hebrew text.[3] Nor is there any town called Bethlehem among any other people, that this should be called "of Judea" to distinguish it. But it is fitly distinguished as "of Judah," because there is in Judea another Bethlehem, namely, the one in Galilee. See the Book of Joshua the son of Nun. (xix. 15.) Finally, the passage cited, which is in the prophet Micah, (v. 2,) hath: "But thou, Bethlehem Ephratah, though thou be little among the thousands of Judah[, yet out of thee shall He come forth unto me that is to be ruler in Israël."]

Ninth Lesson.

"AND when they had opened their treasures they presented unto Him gifts, gold, and frankincense, and myrrh." The mystic meaning of these gifts is thus neatly expressed by Juvencus the Priest,[4]—

"To God made man, born Israel's King, Frankincense, myrrh, and gold they bring."

"And being warned of God in a dream that they should not return to Herod, they departed into their own country another way." They who had presented unto the Lord gifts, were honoured by receiving a warning, not from an Angel, but from God Himself; whereas even Joseph was warned only by an Angel. They departed into their own country another way, that they might not be brought into contact with the unbelief of the Jews.

LAUDS.

Antiphon at the Song of Zacharias. All nations shall come * from afar, bringing their gifts with them. Alleluia.

VESPERS.

Antiphon at the Song of the Blessed Virgin. All they from Saba shall come, * they shall bring gold and incense. Alleluia, Alleluia.

Sixth Day within the Octave of the Epiphany.

MATTINS.

FIRST NOCTURN.

First Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Epistle of the Blessed Apostle Paul to the Romans (xv. 1.)

WE then that are strong ought to bear the infirmities of the weak, and not to please ourselves. Let every one of you please his neighbour in that which is good, to edification. For even Christ pleased not Himself, but, as it is written: [5] "The reproaches of them that reproached Thee fell on Me." For whatsoever things were written aforetime were written for our learning, that we, through patience and comfort of the Scriptures, might have hope.

Second Lesson.

NOW the God of patience and consolation grant you to be likeminded one toward another, according to Christ JESUS, that ye may with one mind and one mouth glorify God, even the Father of our Lord JESUS Christ.

---

[1] Purificâsse.

[2] Which has since been corrected in the Latin Vulgate, which now reads, "In Bethlehem of Judah," but the accepted Greek text still retains the inaccuracy. The Missal agrees with the Vulgate.

[3] I.e., (apparently) the Hebrew Gospel used by the Nazarenes, but now lost.

[4] C. Vettius Aquilinus Juvencus, of the fourth century, priest and poet, composed his Poem on the Gospels during the peace of Constantine.

[5] Ps. lxviii. 10.

Wherefore receive ye one another as Christ also received you, to the glory of God. For I say that JESUS Christ was a minister of the circumcision for the truth of God, to confirm the promises made unto the fathers; but that the Gentiles glorify God for His mercy; as it is written: [1] "Therefore will I give thanks unto Thee, O Lord, among the heathen, and sing praises unto Thy Name." And again He saith: [2] "Rejoice, O ye nations, with His people." And again: [3] "O praise the LORD, all ye nations, and praise Him, all ye people."

Third Lesson.

AND again Isaias saith: [4] "There shall be a root of Jesse, and He That shall arise to reign over the Gentiles, in Him shall the Gentiles trust." Now the God of hope fill you with all joy and peace in believing, that ye may abound in hope, and in the power of the Holy Ghost. And I myself also am persuaded of you, my brethren, that ye also are full of love, filled with all knowledge, so that ye are able to admonish one another. Nevertheless, brethren, I have written the more boldly unto you in some sort, as putting you in mind; because of the grace that is given to me of God, that I should be the minister of JESUS Christ to the Gentiles, sanctifying the Gospel of God, that the offering of the Gentiles may be made acceptable and sanctified in the Holy Ghost.

SECOND NOCTURN.

Fourth Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Sermons of St Fulgentius,[5] Bishop [of Ruspa.] (5th on Twelfth-Day.)

THE same God Who in the Old Testament had commanded the first-fruits to be offered to Himself, being born as a man, Himself consecrated to His own worship the first-fruits of the nations. The Shepherds were the first-fruits of the Jews, and the wise men of the Gentiles. The first came from near at hand, the second from afar. "Where is He," say they, "that is born King of the Jews?" Herod, the king of the Jews, had already had children. Archelaus was born in a palace, Christ at an inn; Archelaus was laid in a silver cradle, Christ in a manger. And yet the wise men sought, not Archelaus, but Christ; they did not even name him that was born in a palace, but when they found Him That lay in a manger, they fell down and worshipped Him.

Fifth Lesson.

WHO is the King of the Jews? The Poor and the Rich, the Lowly and the Exalted One. Who is the King of the Jews? He Who, being carried at the breast, is adored as the Eternal; He Who lieth tiny in the manger, and is He Whom the heavens cannot contain; He Who is meanly wrapped in swaddling clothes, and is more glorious than all the stars. Why art thou troubled, O Herod? He that is born King of the Jews cometh not by carnal warfare to conquer other kings, but by a marvellous working, by dying, to subdue them to Himself. He is not born to be thy successor, but that the world may faithfully believe in Him. He cometh, not that He may fight in the flesh, but that He may conquer through the suffering of death.

Sixth Lesson.

THE little Child, Whom the wise men call the King of the Jews, is the Maker and Lord of Angels. If thou fearest Him at His birth, thou hast more reason to fear Him as the Almighty Judge. Fear Him, not as a pretender to thy kingdom, but fear Him as Him Who will pass a most just sentence of condemnation on thee because thou hast not believed in Him. "Go," said Herod, "and bring me word again, that I may come and worship Him also." We know thy cunning lying, thy godless unbelief, thine iniquitous treachery. The blood of the innocents which thou didst cruelly shed, is witness to us of what thou wouldst have done to Him.

THIRD NOCTURN.

Seventh Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Holy Gospel according to Matthew (ii. 1.)

WHEN JESUS was born in Bethlehem of Judah, in the days of Herod the King, behold there came wise men from the East to Jerusalem, saying: Where is He That is born King of the Jews? And so on.

Homily by St Ambrose, Bishop [of Milan.] (Book ii. on Luke ii.)

What are the gifts of the faithful and true? Gold to our King, frankincense to our God, and myrrh to Him Who died for us. The first is that whereof are made the royal honours of kings, the second is that mystic offering which is used in the worship of the Divine Power, and the third is that wherewith we pay respect to the dead, whose bodies it keepeth from corruption. My brethren, let us who hear and read these things, make offering out of what treasures we have—albeit we have it in earthen vessels. (2 Cor. iv. 7.) If we confess that all that we have, we have, not from ourselves, but from Christ, how much more should we confess that whatever we have is not our own, but Christ's?

Eighth Lesson.

THE wise men out of their treasures presented unto Him gifts. Wilt thou know how pleasing to Him they were? The star appeared to them, but disappeared when it came near Herod. Then it appeareth to them again, leading them on the way that led to Christ. This star then was the way, and we know that Christ calleth Himself "the Way." (John xiv. 6.) And truly also in the mystery of His Incarnation He is called a Star; as it is written: "There shall come forth a Star out of Jacob, and a Man shall rise out of Israël."[6] Where Christ is, there is a Star; yea, He is Himself "the bright and morning Star." (Apoc. xxii. 16.) And the light that leadeth to JESUS is His own.

[6] Numb. xxiv. 17, where in the present text it is not "a man," but "a sceptre." The "man" is LXX.

Ninth Lesson.

REMARK another point. The wise men came by one way and departed by another. They that had seen Christ, knew Christ, and they departed better than they came. There are two ways,—the one which leadeth to destruction, the other which leadeth to the kingdom; the one is the way of sin, which leadeth to Herod; the other is Christ, the true Way, Who leadeth us home to the fatherland, from that journeying here, whereof it is said: "My soul hath long dwelt as an exile." VESPERS.

Saturday within the Octave.

The Sabbath within Eight Days of the Epiphany.

The Vespers from the Chapter are as follows.

Chapter. (Rom. xii. 1.)

BRETHREN, I beseech you, by the mercies of God, that ye present your bodies a living sacrifice, holy, acceptable unto God, which is your reasonable service.

Hymn and Verse and Answer as on the Feast, (p. 186.)

Antiphon at the Song of the Blessed Virgin. The Child JESUS tarried behind in Jerusalem, * and His parents knew not of it, supposing Him to have been in the company; and they sought Him among their kinsfolk and acquaintance.

Prayer.

O LORD, we beseech Thee, mercifully to receive the prayers of Thy people which call upon Thee: and grant that they may both perceive and know what things they ought to do, and also may have grace and power faithfully to fulfil the same, through our Lord JESUS Christ, Thy Son, Who liveth and reigneth with Thee, in the unity of the Holy Ghost, one God, world without end. Amen.

Then is made a Commemoration of the Epiphany. The Antiphon is that proper to that particular day within the Octave.

Answer. They shall bring gold and incense—Alleluia.

Unless it be the Fifth Day within the Octave, in which case are said:

Verse. Worship God—Alleluia.
Answer. All ye His angels—Alleluia.

Prayer as on the Feast.
Should the Feast fall on a Sunday, and therefore the Office for the Sunday within the Octave be anticipated on Saturday, the above, being the First Vespers of the Sunday, are said on Friday evening.

First Sunday after the Twelfth-Day.

The Lord's Day within eight days of the Epiphany.

All is said as on the Feast, according to the rules given on p. 191, (which see) except what is otherwise given here.

MATTINS.

FIRST NOCTURN.

The following Lessons are only used when this Office is said by anticipation on Saturday. Otherwise the First Epistle to the Corinthians is begun. See p. 201.

First Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Epistle of the Blessed Apostle Paul to the Romans (xvi. 1.)

I COMMEND unto you Phœbe our sister, who is a Deaconess of the Church which is at Cenchreæ, that ye receive her in the Lord as becometh Saints, and that ye assist her in whatsoever business she hath need of you: for she hath been a succourer of many, and of myself also. Greet Prisca, and Aquila, my helpers in Christ JESUS, (who have for my life laid down their own necks; unto whom not only I give thanks, but also all the Churches of the Gentiles) and the church that is in their house.

Second Lesson. (17.)

NOW I beseech you, brethren, mark them which cause divisions and offences, contrary to the doctrine which ye have learned; and avoid them. For they that are such serve not Christ our Lord, but their own belly: and by good words and fair speeches deceive the hearts of the simple. For your obedience is known everywhere abroad; I rejoice therefore in you. But I would have you wise unto that which is good, and simple concerning evil.

Third Lesson.

TIMOTHY my work-fellow, and Lucius and Jason, and Sosipater, my kinsmen, salute you. I, Tertius,[2] who wrote this Epistle, salute you in the Lord. Caius, mine host, and the whole Church, salute you. Erastus, the chamberlain of the city, saluteth you, and Quartus a brother. The grace of our Lord JESUS Christ be with you all. Amen.

SECOND NOCTURN.

Fourth Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Sermons of Pope St Leo [the Great.] (5th on the Epiphany.)

IT is meet and right, dearly beloved brethren, yea, it is our bounden duty and godly service, to rejoice with full hearts upon those days which more especially set forth before us the workings of God's mercy; and to have in honourable memory those things that were done for our salvation. Hereto are we called by the seasons of the year which continually return, and notably by this present, which, after but a short time hath passed since that day whereon the Co-eternal Son of God was born of a Virgin, bringeth now the Feast of the Epiphany, hallowed by the Manifestation of the Lord.

---

[1] Cf. Isa. lx. 14; Apoc. iii. 9.

[2] I.e., the secretary of the Apostle.

Fifth Lesson.

IN this said Manifestation the good Providence of God hath appointed a strong bulwark to our faith. For now, while in solemn worship we call to mind how the childhood of the Saviour was adored in its first infancy, we receive from the original Scriptures the doctrine that Christ was born with the very nature of man. For this is that which maketh of sinners saints, even to believe that in one and the same our Lord JESUS Christ there is very Godhead and very Manhood—very Godhead, as touching Which, He, being in the form of God, is equal to the Father from everlasting to everlasting—and very Manhood, wherein He, taking upon Him the form of a servant, hath in these latter days been born Man.

Sixth Lesson.

FOR the strengthening of this our faith, which we profess in the face of every false doctrine, the mercy of God hath made it to come to pass that one of those peoples who dwell in the uttermost parts of the East, and excel in the skill of reading the stars, should see the sign of the birth of that Child Who was to reign over all Israël. There appeared to the eyes of wise men a new star of such passing beauty, as wrought in the minds of all that saw it the persuasion that the event, which is announced, was of an importance not to be neglected.

THIRD NOCTURN.

Seventh Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Holy Gospel according to Luke (ii. 42.)

WHEN JESUS was twelve years old they went up to Jerusalem, after the custom of the Feast, and when they had fulfilled the days, as they returned, the child JESUS tarried behind in Jerusalem. And so on.

Homily by St Ambrose, Bishop [of Milan.] (Bk. ii. on Luke ii.)

We read that when He was twelve years old the Lord began to dispute. The number of His years was the same as the number of the Apostles whom He afterwards sent forth to preach the Faith. He Who, as touching His Manhood, was filled with wisdom and grace from God, was not careless of the parents of the same Manhood, and, after three days, was pleased to be found in the Temple: thereby foreshadowing that, after the three days of His victorious Passion, He That had been reckoned with the dead, would present Himself, living, to our faith, in His heavenly Kingship and Divine Majesty.

Eighth Lesson.

"HOW is it that ye sought Me?" Christ hath two Generations; one from His Father, another from His Mother. That from His Father is His Eternal Generation as God the Son; that from His Mother is that whereby He came to work for us and minister to us. Those acts, therefore, of His, which are above nature, beyond His age, and different to His custom, proceeded not from the strength of His Manhood, but from the power of His Godhead. On another occasion His Mother moveth Him to work a miracle; here He answereth her, because she treateth that which was of the Godhead, as though it had been of the Manhood. On this occasion it is said that He was twelve years old, but on the other He had already disciples. His mother had seen His wonders on the earlier occasion, and had learnt from her Son to call on the mightier nature for a work of power.[1]

Ninth Lesson.

"AND He came to Nazareth, and was subject unto them." No wonder that the great Teacher should practise. And shall we marvel how He Who was subject to His Mother, was about His Father's business? His subjection to His Mother proceeded, not from weakness, but from dutiful affection. Nevertheless, the false serpent lifteth its head from its cruel lair, and spitteth poison from its venomous breast. The heretics say that, as the Son was sent by the Father, therefore the Father is greater than the Son, and, if the Father be greater than the Son, there is that, than which the Son is less; yea, that He Who is sent, hath of necessity, need of some strengthening from outside Himself. He was subject to His Mother? Was He less than she? God forbid!

LAUDS.

Chapter. (Rom. xii. 1.)

BRETHREN, I beseech you by the mercies of God, that ye present your bodies a living sacrifice, holy, acceptable unto God, which is your reasonable service.

Prayer throughout the Office.

O LORD, we beseech Thee mercifully to receive the prayers of Thy people which call upon Thee; and grant that they may both perceive and know what things they ought to do, and also may have grace and power faithfully to fulfil the same, through our Lord JESUS Christ Thy Son, Who liveth and reigneth with Thee, in the unity of the Holy Ghost, one God, world without end. Amen.

A Commemoration is made of the Epiphany. Antiphon and Prayer as on the Feast and the following.

MATINS.

FIRST NOCTURN.

Lessons from Scripture according to the Season, that is, from 1 Cor.

SECOND NOCTURN.

Fourth Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Sermons of [1] St Gregory of Nazianzus, Patriarch [of Constantinople.] (Discourse on the Epiphany.)[2]

I AM not able to restrain the outbursts of my happiness. I feel changed and elated. I forget my own meanness while I undertake and try to discharge the office of the great John. It is true that I am not the Forerunner, but at least I come from the desert.[3] Christ is enlightened,[4] or rather, He enlighteneth us with His own light. Christ is baptized; let us go down with Him into the water, that we may come up with Him.

Fifth Lesson.

JOHN is baptizing. JESUS cometh. He cometh that He may make holy him who baptizeth Him; He cometh to bury the old Adam in the waters; He cometh to hallow the blessed flood of Jordan. He Who is Flesh and Spirit cometh to open for all that should ever be baptized that power of generation whereby new peoples are constantly begotten of water and the Holy Ghost. The Baptist will not receive Him. JESUS striveth with him. "I," saith John, "have need to be baptized of Thee." Thus speaketh the candle to the Sun, the voice to the Word.

Sixth Lesson.

JESUS came up out of the water, having, in a manner, washed the whole world, and brought it up with Him. And He saw the heavens opened (not divided,) even those heavens which Adam had once shut upon himself and us his descendants, —when the cherub's fiery sword barred the gates of Paradise. And the Holy Spirit bare witness, witness unto Him Who is of One Substance with Himself. And witness was given from Heaven, unto Him that came down from heaven.

THIRD NOCTURN.

Seventh Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Holy Gospel according to John (i. 29.)

AT that time: John seeth JESUS coming unto him, and saith: Behold the Lamb of God, behold Him That taketh away the sin of the world. And so on.

Homily by St Austin, Bishop [of Hippo.] (6th Tract on John.)

John knew JESUS even before He came to be baptized of him in Jordan, as we perceive by the words: "I have need to be baptized of Thee, and comest Thou to me?" Behold, how he knew that He was the Lord, how he knew that He was the Son of God! How do we prove that he knew that He it was Who should baptize with the Holy Ghost? Before the Lord came to the river, when many betook themselves to John to be baptized of him, the Baptist said: "I indeed baptize you with water: but One Mightier than I cometh; the latchet of Whose shoes I am not worthy to unloose: He shall baptize you with the Holy Ghost and with fire." (Luke iii. 16.) Behold, John knew this also.

Eighth Lesson.

YET John saith: "I knew Him not." Now, how are we to explain this without calling John a liar?—and God forbid that we should ever even think anything of the kind. Was it not that when the Dove descended on Christ, John then for the first time knew Him to have that peculiar attribute, that, whosoever should baptize with His Baptism, whether they were themselves just or unjust, the virtue of the Sacrament should proceed, not from them, but from Him on Whom abode the Dove; so that He is the real Baptizer in every Christian Baptism until the end of time, and it is in this sense that it is said of Him: "the Same is He Which baptizeth with the Holy Ghost?" Whether it be Peter, or Paul, or Judas, that performeth the ceremony, the real Baptizer and effectual Worker is Christ. For if the holiness of the baptism depended on the holiness of the particular officiator, no two baptisms would be exactly alike, and every one would be supposed to be more or less regenerated according as the minister who baptized him was more or less of a saint.

---

[1] May 9.

[2] In the original called by one of the Greek names: "The Holy Lights."

[3] St Gregory was a comrade of St Basil, and was brought from a solitude at Seleucia to be Bishop of Constantinople.

[4] Enlightenment is an ancient term for Baptism, still used by the Greeks.

Ninth Lesson.

NOW, my brethren, understand me. The saints themselves, those good men who appertain to the Dove, those good men whose portion is in Jerusalem, those good men in the Church, of whom the Apostle saith, "the Lord knoweth them that are His," (2 Tim. ii. 19,) these good men differ one from another by diversities of graces, and are not all of the same worthiness. Some are holier than others, and some are better than others. Supposing then (for the sake of argument) that A is baptized by B, a righteous saint, and C is baptized by D who is less worthy in the sight of God, who hath attained only a lower degree in godliness, who is not so chaste, and whose life is not so good as B's: yet A and C receive just the same thing. And how is this, unless it be that it is Christ Himself Who is the effectual Baptizer?

LAUDS.

Prayer throughout the Office.

O GOD, Whose Only-begotten Son was made manifest in the substance of our flesh, mercifully grant that through Him our inward man may be changed into the likeness of Him Whose outward Man is made like unto us. Even the same our Lord JESUS Christ Thy Son, Who liveth and reigneth with Thee in the unity of the Holy Ghost, One God, world without end. Amen.

THE LESSONS FROM THE FIRST EPISTLE OF ST PAUL TO THE CORINTHIANS,

Commenced on the Sunday within the Octave of the Epiphany, and continued daily till the next Saturday.

Note 1. If a Week-day in this week is observed as such, the Office is as in the Psalter, and what is not given there (for example, the Responsories,) is according to Ch. XXVII. 5, of the Pie.

Note 2. If the next Sunday be Septuagesima, then either on the preceding Saturday, or, failing that, the first day after the Octave which is not occupied by an Office with Nine Lessons, the Week-day Office is said with the following changes,—

(a.) The Lessons are those of the Third Nocturn of the Second Sunday after the Epiphany, namely, from St John ii. 1, with the Homily of St Austin upon the same, given on p. 207.

(b.) The Responsories are those given for the First Nocturn of the Third Sunday after the Epiphany (p. 213), namely:—First, "O LORD, rebuke me not," &c. Second, "O God, Which satest," &c. And Third, "The Lord is at my right hand," &c.

(c.) The Antiphon at the Song of Zacharias is that given in the Commemoration of the Second Sunday after the Epiphany, at Lauds, on the Feast of the Holy Name, p. 208, namely: "There was a marriage in Cana," &c.

(d.) The Prayer is from the same, namely, "Almighty and everlasting God, Who dost govern," &c.

If a Double Feast fall on this Saturday, the Ninth Lesson will be the Homily on St John for the Second Sunday, with a Commemoration at Lauds by the Antiphon for that Sunday given at the Feast of the Holy Name, with Verse and Answer of Ferial Lauds, and the Prayer of the Second Sunday, after which no more notice is taken of it.

First Sunday after the Epiphany.

The First Lord's Day after the Epiphany.

First Lesson.

Here beginneth the First Epistle of the Blessed Apostle Paul to the Corinthians[1] (i. 1.)

PAUL, called to be an Apostle of JESUS Christ, through the will of God, and Sosthenes our brother, unto the Church of God which is at Corinth, to them that are sanctified in Christ JESUS, called to be Saints, with all that in every place, whether their's or our's, call upon the Name of JESUS Christ our Lord. Grace be unto you, and peace from God our Father, and from the Lord JESUS Christ.

Second Lesson.

I THANK my God always on your behalf, for the grace of God which is given you in Christ JESUS: that in everything ye are enriched in Him, in all utterance and in all knowledge; even as the testimony of Christ was confirmed in you; so that ye are wanting in no grace, waiting for the appearing of our Lord JESUS Christ, Who shall also confirm you unto the end, that ye may be blameless in the day of the coming of our Lord JESUS Christ. God is faithful by Whom ye were called unto the fellowship of His Son JESUS Christ our Lord.

Third Lesson.

NOW I beseech you, brethren, by the Name of our Lord JESUS Christ, that ye all speak the same thing, and that there be no divisions among you; but that ye be perfected together in the same mind, and in the same judgment. For it hath been declared to me of you, my brethren, by them which are of the house of Chloë, that there are contentions among you. Now this I mean, that every one of you saith: I am of Paul; and, I of Apollos; and, I of Cephas; and, I of Christ. Is Christ divided? was Paul crucified for you? or were ye baptized in the name of Paul?

---

[1] Archbishop Kenrick says:—"The First Epistle to the Corinthians was written from Ephesus, about the year of our Lord 56: or as Olshausen insists, 59. Corinth, the capital of Achaia, and of all Greece after the fall of Athens, B.C. 86, . . . had received the faith, by the preaching of St Paul, about the year 52."

Monday.

Second Day.

First Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the First Epistle of the Blessed Apostle Paul to the Corinthians (ii. 1.)

AND I, brethren, when I came to you, came not with excellency of speech or of wisdom, declaring unto you the testimony of Christ. For I deemed not myself to know anything among you, save JESUS Christ, and Him crucified. And I was with you in weakness, and in fear, and in much trembling; and my speech and my preaching were not with persuasive words of man's wisdom, but in demonstration of the Spirit and of power; that your faith should not stand in the wisdom of men, but in the power of God.

Second Lesson.

HOWBEIT, we speak wisdom among them that are perfect; yet not the wisdom of this world, nor of the princes of this world, that come to nought; but we speak the wisdom of God in a mystery, even the hidden wisdom which God ordained before the world unto our glory, which none of the princes of this world knew; for had they known it, they would never have crucified the Lord of glory. But as it is written, eye hath not seen, nor ear heard, neither have entered into the heart of man, the things which God hath prepared for them that love Him.[1]

Third Lesson.

BUT God hath revealed them unto us by His Spirit: for the Spirit searcheth out all things, yea, the deep things of God. For what man knoweth the things of a man, save the spirit of the man which is in him? Even so the things of God knoweth no man, but the Spirit of God. Now we have received, not the spirit of the world, but the Spirit Which is of God, that we might know the things that are freely given to us of God: which things also we speak, not in the words which man's wisdom teacheth, but which the Holy Ghost teacheth, comparing spiritual things with spiritual.

Tuesday.

Third Day.

First Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the First Epistle of the Blessed Apostle Paul to the Corinthians (v. 1.)

IT is actually reported that there is fornication among you, and such fornication as is not named even among the Gentiles, that one should have his father's wife. And ye are puffed up; and have not rather mourned, that he that hath done this deed might be taken away from among you. But I, verily, as absent in body, but present in spirit, have judged already, as though I were present, him that hath so done this deed; in the name of our Lord JESUS Christ, when ye are gathered together, my spirit also being with you, with the power of our Lord JESUS Christ, to deliver such an one unto Satan for the destruction of the flesh, that the spirit may be saved in the day of our Lord JESUS Christ.

Second Lesson.

YOUR glorying is not good. Know ye not that a little leaven leaveneth the whole lump? Purge out the old leaven, that ye may be a new lump, as ye are unleavened. For even Christ our Passover also hath been sacrificed: therefore let us keep the feast, not with old leaven, neither with leaven of malice and wickedness, but with the unleavened bread of sincerity and truth.

Third Lesson.

I WROTE unto you in an epistle: Company not with fornicators. Yet not altogether with the fornicators of this world, or with the covetous, or extortioners, or with idolaters: for then must ye needs go out of the world. But now I have written unto you, not to keep company: if any man that is called a brother be a fornicator, or covetous, or an idolater, or a railer, or a drunkard, or an extortioner: with such an one, no, not to eat.

Wednesday.

Fourth Day.

First Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the First Epistle of the Blessed Apostle Paul to the Corinthians (vi. 1.)

DARE any of you, having a matter against another, go to law before the unjust, and not before the saints? Do ye not know that the saints shall judge the world? And if the world shall be judged by you, are ye unworthy to judge the smallest matters? Know ye not that we shall judge Angels? How much more, things that pertain to this life? If, then, ye have judgments of things pertaining to this life, set them to judge who are least esteemed in the Church. I speak to your shame. Is it so that there is not a wise man among you, that shall be able to judge between his brethren? But brother goeth to law with brother, and that before the unbelievers.

Second Lesson.

NOW, therefore, there is utterly a fault among you, because ye go to law one with another. Why do ye not rather take wrong? Why do ye not rather suffer yourselves to be defrauded? Nay, ye do wrong, and defraud, and that your brethren. Know ye not that the unrighteous shall not inherit the kingdom of God? Be not deceived: neither fornicators, nor idolaters, nor adulterers, nor effeminate, nor abusers of themselves with mankind, nor thieves, nor covetous, nor drunkards, nor revilers, nor extortioners shall inherit the kingdom of God. And such were some of you: but ye are washed, but ye are sanctified, but ye are justified in the name of our Lord JESUS Christ, and in the Spirit of our God.

---

[1] Perhaps meant for a quotation from Isa. lxiv. 4, but the late Dr Neale inclined to the belief that it was from some early Christian composition.

Third Lesson.

ALL things are lawful unto me, but all things are not expedient. All things are lawful for me, but I will not be brought under the power of any. Meats for the belly, and the belly for meats: but God shall destroy both it and them. Now, the body is not for fornication, but for the Lord, and the Lord for the body. And God hath both raised up the Lord: and will also raise up us by His Own power. Know ye not that your bodies are the members of Christ? Shall I then take the members of Christ, and make them the members of an harlot? God forbid. What? Know ye not that he which is joined to an harlot is made one body? For "the two," saith He, "shall be one flesh."[1] But he that is joined unto the Lord is one spirit. Flee fornication.

Thursday.

Fifth Day.

First Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the First Epistle of the Blessed Apostle Paul to the Corinthians (vii. 1.)

NOW concerning the things whereof ye wrote unto me: it is good for a man not to touch a woman; nevertheless, to avoid fornication, let every man have his own wife, and let every woman have her own husband. Let the husband render the debt unto the wife; and likewise also the wife unto the husband. The wife hath not power of her own body, but the husband: and likewise also the husband hath not power of his own body, but the wife.

Second Lesson.

DEFRAUD ye not one the other, except perchance it be with consent, for a time, that ye may give yourselves to prayer; and come together again, that Satan tempt you not for your incontinency. But I speak this by permission, not of commandment. For I would that ye all were even as I myself. But every man hath his proper gift of God, one after this manner, and another after that. But I say to the unmarried and widows: it is good for them if they abide even as I. But if they have not continency, let them marry. For it is better to marry than to burn.

Third Lesson.

AND unto the married I command, not I, but the Lord; let not the wife depart from her husband; but if she depart, let her remain unmarried, or be reconciled to her husband. And let not the husband leave his wife. For to the rest speak I, not the Lord: If any brother hath a wife that believeth not, and she be pleased to dwell with him, let him not leave her. And the woman which believeth, and hath an husband which believeth not, and he be pleased to dwell with her, let her not leave her husband; for the unbelieving husband is sanctified by the believing wife, and the unbelieving wife is sanctified by the believing husband; else were your children unclean, but now are they holy.

Friday.

Sixth Day.

First Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the First Epistle of the Blessed Apostle Paul to the Corinthians (xiii. 1.)

THOUGH I speak with the tongues of men and of angels, and have not charity, I am become as sounding brass, or a tinkling cymbal. And though I have the gift of prophecy, and understand all mysteries, and all knowledge; and though I have all faith, so that I could remove mountains, and have not charity, I am nothing. And though I bestow all my goods to feed the poor, and though I give my body to be burned, and have not charity, it profiteth me nothing.

Second Lesson.

CHARITY suffereth long, and is kind: charity envieth not, vaunteth not itself, is not puffed up, doth not behave itself unseemly, seeketh not her own, is not easily provoked, thinketh no evil, rejoiceth not in iniquity, but rejoiceth in the truth; beareth all things, believeth all things, hopeth all things, endureth all things. Charity never faileth; but whether there be prophecies, they shall fail; whether there be tongues, they shall cease; whether there be knowledge, it shall vanish away. For we know in part, and we prophesy in part. But when that which is perfect is come, then that which is in part shall be done away.

Third Lesson.

WHEN I was a child, I spake as a child, I felt as a child, I thought as a child. But now that I am become a man, I put away childish things. Now, we see in a mirror darkly; but then, face to face. Now, I know in part; but then shall I know even as also I have been known. And now abideth faith, hope, love, these three: but the greatest of these is love.

Saturday.

The Sabbath.

If the next day be Septuagesima Sunday, then a peculiar Office is sometimes said on this day, (see Note 2, p. 201,) in which case the following Lessons are simply omitted.

First Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the First Epistle of the Blessed Apostle Paul to the Corinthians (xvi. 1.)

NOW concerning the collection for the Saints, as I have given order to the Churches of Galatia, even so do ye. Upon the first day of the week let every one of you lay by him in store whatsoever pleaseth him, that there be no gatherings when I come. And when I come, whomsoever ye shall approve by your letters, them will I send to bring your liberality unto Jerusalem. And if it be meet that I go also, they shall go with me.

Second Lesson.

NOW I will come unto you, when I shall pass through Macedonia, for I do pass through Macedonia. And it may be that I will abide, yea, and winter with you; that ye may bring me on my journey whithersoever I go. For I would not see you only in passing; but I trust to tarry a while with you, if the Lord permit. But I will tarry at Ephesus until Pentecost. For a great door and evident is opened unto me, and there are many adversaries.

---

[1] Gen. ii. 24.

Third Lesson.

NOW, if Timothy come, see that he be with you without fear: for he worketh the work of the Lord, as I also do. Let no man therefore despise him: but conduct him forth in peace, that he may come unto me: for I look for him with the brethren. As touching our brother Apollos, I tell you that I greatly desired him to come unto you with the brethren: but his will was not at all to come at this time: but he will come when he shall have convenient time. Watch ye; stand fast in the faith; quit you like men, and be strong. Let all your things be done with charity.

Vespers are always the First Vespers of the Feast of the Holy Name, except when the next day is Septuagesima Sunday, in which case the Feast of the Holy Name is transferred to Jan. 28, (which see,) and these Vespers are, from the Chapter, of Septuagesima, with the Farewell to the Alleluia, all the Office between this and that, being that year omitted.

Hymn.[4]

JESUS! the very thought of Thee
With sweetness fills the breast!
Yet sweeter far Thy Face to see
And in Thy Presence rest.

No voice can sing, no heart can frame,
Nor can the memory find
A sweeter sound than JESU'S Name,
The Saviour of mankind!

O hope of every contrite heart!
O joy of all the meek!
To those who fall, how kind Thou art!
How good to those who seek!

But what to those who find? Ah! this
Nor tongue nor pen can show—
The love of JESUS, what it is,
None but His loved-ones know.

JESUS! our only joy be Thou,
As Thou our prize shalt be;
In Thee be all our glory now,
And through eternity! Amen.

Verse. Blessed be the Name of the LORD—Alleluia.

Answer. From this time forth, and for evermore—Alleluia.

Antiphon at the Song of the Blessed Virgin. He That is mighty hath done to me great things, and holy is His Name—Alleluia.

Prayer throughout the Office.

O GOD, Who hast appointed Thine Only-begotten Son to be the Saviour of mankind, and hast commanded that His Name should be called JESUS, mercifully grant that we who here on earth do worship that His most Holy Name may be made glad in heaven by His Presence. Through the Same our Lord JESUS Christ, Thy Son, Who liveth and reigneth with Thee, in the unity of the Holy Ghost, One God, world without end. Amen.

Commemoration of the First Vespers of the SUNDAY.

Antiphon. God hath holpen His servant Israël: as He spake to Abraham and to his seed, to exalt them of low degree for ever and ever.

Verse. Let the evening prayer ascend unto Thee, O Lord.

Answer. And let there descend upon us Thy mercy.

Prayer.

ALMIGHTY and everlasting God, Who dost govern all things in heaven and earth, mercifully hear the supplication of Thy people, and grant us Thy peace all the days of our life. Through our Lord JESUS Christ, Thy Son, Who liveth and reigneth with Thee, in the unity of the Holy Ghost, one God, world without end. Amen.

At Compline the last verse of the Hymn is altered in honour of the Incarnation.

MATINS.

Invitatory. The Name which shall be called Wonderful,[5] the Name of JESUS is the Name which is above every name.[6] * O come, let us worship Him.

[7] Hymn.

O JESU, King most wonderful!
Thou Conqueror renowned!
Thou sweetness most ineffable!
In Whom all joys are found!

When once Thou visitest the heart,
Then truth begins to shine;
Then earthly vanities depart;
Then kindles love divine.

O JESU, Light of all below!
Thou Fount of life and fire!
Surpassing all the joys we know,
All that we can desire.

May every heart confess Thy Name,
And ever Thee adore;
And seeking Thee, itself inflame
To seek Thee more and more.

FIRST NOCTURN.

First Antiphon. O LORD our Ruler, how excellent is Thy Name in all the earth.

Psalm VIII., commencing with the 2nd verse.

Who hast set, &c., (p. 4.)

Second Antiphon. [1] At the Name of JESUS, let every knee bow, of things in heaven, and things in earth, and things under the earth.

Psalm XVIII.

The heavens declare, &c., (p. 10.)

Third Antiphon. [2] Praise the LORD and call upon His Name: remember that His Name is exalted.

Psalm XXIII.

The earth is the LORD'S, &c., (p. 26.)

Verse. [3] For Thy Name's sake, O LORD, pardon mine iniquity.
Answer. For it is great.

First Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Acts of the Apostles (iii. 1.)

NOW Peter and John went up together into the temple at the hour of prayer, being the ninth hour.[4] And a certain man, lame from his mother's womb, was carried; whom they laid daily at the gate of the temple, which is called Beautiful, to ask alms of them that entered into the temple. Who, seeing Peter and John about to go into the temple, asked an alms. And Peter, fastening his eyes upon him, with John, said: Look on us. And he gave heed unto them, expecting to receive something of them. Then Peter said: Silver and gold have I none, but such as I have give I thee; in the Name of JESUS Christ of Nazareth, rise up and walk. And he took him by the right hand, and lifted him up, and immediately his feet and soles received strength. And he, leaping up, stood and walked, and entered with them into the temple, walking, and leaping, and praising God.

First Responsory.

Behold, thou shalt conceive, and bring forth a Son, and shalt call His Name JESUS; for He shall save His people from their sins.
Verse. His Name was called JESUS, which was so named of the Angel, before He was conceived in the womb.
Answer. For He shall save His people from their sins.

Second Lesson.

AND all the people saw him walking, and praising God. And they knew that it was he which sat for alms at the Beautiful Gate of the temple, and they were filled with wonder and amazement at that which had happened unto him. And, as he held Peter and John, all the people ran together unto them in the porch that is called Solomon's, greatly wondering. And when Peter saw it, he answered unto the people: Ye men of Israël, why marvel ye at this? or why look ye so earnestly on us, as though by our own power or strength we had made this man to walk? The God of Abraham, and the God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob, the God of our fathers, hath glorified His Son JESUS, Whom ye delivered up, and denied Him in the presence of Pilate, when he was determined to let Him go. But ye denied the Holy One, and the Just, and desired a murderer to be granted unto you; and killed the Author of life, Whom God hath raised from the dead, whereof we are witnesses. And His Name, through faith in His Name, hath made this man strong, whom ye see and know: yea, the faith which is by Him hath given him this perfect soundness in the presence of you all.

Second Responsory.

[5] Blessed is Thy Name, O God of our fathers, for in wrath Thou wilt remember mercy. And in the time of tribulation Thou forgivest the sins of them that call upon Thee.
Verse. [6] And blessed be Thy glorious Name for ever, O Thou Who only doest wondrous things!
Answer. And in the time of tribulation Thou forgivest the sins of them that call upon Thee.

Third Lesson. (iv. 5.)

AND it came to pass on the morrow, that their rulers, and elders, and scribes of Jerusalem, and Annas the high priest, and Caiaphas, and John, and Alexander, and as many as were of the priests' kindred, were gathered together. And when they had set them in the midst, they asked: By what power, or by what name have ye done this? Then Peter, filled with the Holy Ghost, said unto them: Ye rulers and elders of the people, hearken: If we this day be examined of the good deed done to the impotent man, by what means he is made whole; be it known unto you all, and to all the people of Israël, that by the Name of our Lord JESUS Christ of Nazareth, Whom ye crucified, Whom God raised from the dead, even by Him doth this man stand here before you whole. This[7] is the stone which was set at nought of you builders, which is become the head of the corner; neither is there salvation in any other. For there is no other Name under heaven given among men, whereby ye must be saved.

Third Responsory.

[8] I will praise Thy Name continually; yea, I will praise it with thanksgiving.
Verse. [9] I will be glad and rejoice in Thee: I will sing praise to Thy Name, O Thou Most High.
Answer. Yea, I will praise it with thanksgiving.
Verse. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, and to the Holy Ghost.
Answer. Yea, I will praise it with thanksgiving.

SECOND NOCTURN.

First Antiphon. They shall be mindful of Thy Name, O Lord, unto all generations.

My heart is overflowing, &c., (p. 54.)

Second Antiphon. [1] O magnify the LORD with me, and let us exalt His Name together.

Psalm XLV.

God is our refuge, &c., (p. 55.)

Third Antiphon. [2] All nations whom Thou hast made, shall come and worship before Thee, O Lord, and shall glorify Thy Name.

Psalm LXXXVI.

Her foundation, &c., (p. 82.)

Verse. [3] For the glory of Thy Name, deliver us, O Lord.

Answer. And forgive our sins, for Thy Name's sake.

Fourth Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Sermons of [4] St Bernard, Abbat [of Clairvaux.] (15*th on the Song of Songs.*)

IT is not idly that the Holy Ghost likeneth the Name of the Bridegroom to oil, when He maketh the Bride say to the Bridegroom: "Thy Name is as oil poured forth."[5] Oil indeed giveth light, meat, and unction. It feedeth fire, it nourisheth the flesh, it sootheth pain; it is light, food, and healing. Behold, Thus also is the Name of the Bridegroom. To preach it, is to give light; to think of it, is to feed the soul; to call on it, is to win grace and unction. Let us take it point by point. What, thinkest thou, hath made the light of faith so suddenly and so brightly to shine in the whole world but the preaching of the Name of JESUS? Is it not in the light of this Name that God hath called us into His marvellous light, even that light wherewith we being enlightened, and in His light seeing light,[6] Paul saith truly of us: "Ye were sometimes darkness, but now are ye light in the Lord."[7]

Fourth Responsory.

[8] Let them that know Thy Name put their trust in Thee; for Thou, LORD, hast not forsaken them that seek Thee.

Verse. [9] Arise, O Lord, help us, and redeem us for Thy Name's sake.

Answer. For Thou, LORD, hast not forsaken them that seek Thee.

Fifth Lesson.

THIS is the Name which the Apostle was commanded to bear before Gentiles, and kings, and the children of Israël, the Name which he bore as a light to enlighten his people, crying everywhere: [10] "The night is far spent, the day is at hand; let us therefore cast off the works of darkness, and let us put on the armour of light, let us walk honestly as in the day." He pointed out to all that candle set upon a candlestick, preaching in every place JESUS and Him crucified. How did that Name shine forth and dazzle every eye that beheld it, when it came like lightning out of the mouth of Peter to give bodily strength to the feet of the lame man, and to clear the sight of many a blind soul? Cast he not fire when he said: "In the Name of JESUS Christ of Nazareth, rise up and walk?"

Fifth Responsory.

[11] Let us praise Thy great Name, for it is terrible and holy.

Verse. [12] Some trust in chariots, and some in horses, but we will call upon the Name of the LORD our God.

Answer. For it is terrible and holy.

Sixth Lesson.

THE Name of JESUS is not a Name of light only, but it is meat also. Dost thou ever call it to mind, and remain unstrengthened? Is there anything like it to enrich the soul of him that thinketh of it? What is there like it to restore the fagged senses, to fortify strength, to give birth to good lives and pure affections? The soul is fed on husks if that whereon it feedeth lack seasoning with this salt. If thou writest, thou hast no meaning for me if I read not of JESUS there. If thou preach, or dispute, thou hast no meaning for me if I hear not of JESUS there. The mention of JESUS is honey in the mouth, music in the ear, and gladness in the heart. It is our healing too. Is any sorrowful among us? Let the thought of JESUS come into his heart, and spring to his mouth. Behold, when the day of that Name beginneth to break, every cloud will flee away, and there will be a great calm. Doth any fall into sin? Doth any draw nigh to an hopeless death? And if he but call on the life-giving Name of JESUS, will he not draw the breath of a new life again?

Sixth Responsory.

[13] O LORD, let all those that put their trust in Thee rejoice, let them ever shout for joy because Thou dwellest in them; let them also that love Thy Name be joyful in Thee.

Verse. [14] They shall walk, O LORD, in the light of Thy countenance; and in Thy Name shall they rejoice all the day.

Answer. Let them also that love Thy Name be joyful in Thee.

Verse. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, and to the Holy Ghost.

Answer. Let them also that love Thy Name be joyful in Thee.

THIRD NOCTURN.

First Antiphon. Sing unto the LORD, and bless His Name: show forth His salvation from day to day.

Psalm XCV.

O sing unto the LORD, &c. (p. 85.)

Second Antiphon. [15] According to Thy Name, O God, so is Thy praise unto the ends of the earth; Thy right hand is full of righteousness.

Psalm XCVI.

The LORD reigneth, &c., (p. 85.)

Third Antiphon. [16] Sing unto God, sing praises to His Name; spread a path before Him That rideth upon the heavens: the LORD is His Name.

Verse. [1] Give unto the LORD glory and honour.
Answer. Give unto the LORD the glory due unto His Name.

Seventh Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Holy Gospel according to Luke (ii. 21.)

At that time: When eight days were accomplished for the circumcising of the Child, His Name was called JESUS. And so on.

Homily by St Bernard, Abbat [of Clairvaux.] (1st on the Circumcision.)

Behold a mystery, great and full of wonder! The Child is circumcised, and His Name is called JESUS. Why are these two things thus mentioned together? It would seem that circumcision should rather be for the saved than for the Saviour; that the Saviour ought rather to be Circumciser than circumcised. But behold here the Mediator between God and men, how even from His childhood He joineth the things of the Highest to the things of the lowest, the things of God to the things of men. He is born of a woman, but her womb is made fruitful without the loss of the flower of her virginity. He is wrapped in swaddling-bands, but these swaddling-bands are a theme for the jubilation of angels. He is laid in a manger, but a bright star standeth in heaven over the place. So also in His circumcision, the ceremony gave proof of the reality of the Manhood which He had taken, and that Name which is above every name proclaimed the glory of His Blessed Majesty. As very son of Abraham He underwent circumcision; He assumed the Name of JESUS as very Son of God.

Seventh Responsory.

[2] Sorrow and trouble did I find. Then called I upon the Name of the LORD.
Verse. [3] The Name of the LORD is a strong tower; I trusted in Him and I am helped.
Answer. Then called I upon the Name of the LORD.

Eighth Lesson.

My JESUS beareth not that Name as others have borne it before Him, as a vain and empty title. It is not in Him the shadow of a great Name, but the very meaning of that Name. That His Name was revealed from heaven, is attested by the Evangelist, where it is written, "Which was so named of the Angel before He was conceived in the womb." After JESUS was born, men called Him JESUS, but angels called Him JESUS, before He was conceived in the womb. The One Lord is the Saviour of angels and of men; of men, since His Incarnation; of angels, from the beginning of their creation. "His Name," saith the Evangelist, "was called JESUS, which was so named of the Angel before He was conceived in the womb." In the mouth therefore of two or three witnesses is every word established;[4] and that word whereof the Prophet spoke as cut short,[5] is set forth at length in the Gospel—the Word made Flesh.

Eighth Responsory.

O Lord, [6] I will wait on Thy Name. For it is good before Thy Saints.
Verse. [7] To give thanks unto Thy Holy Name, and to triumph in Thy praise.
Answer. For it is good before Thy Saints.
Verse. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, and to the Holy Ghost.
Answer. For it is good before Thy Saints.

Ninth Blessing.

May the Gospel's glorious word
Cleansing to our souls afford.

Ninth Lesson.

(Of the Second Sunday after the Epiphany.)

The Lesson is taken from the Holy Gospel according to John (ii. 1.)

At that time: There was a marriage in Cana of Galilee, and the mother of JESUS was there. And both JESUS was called, and His disciples, to the marriage. And so on.

Homily by St Austin, Bishop [of Hippo.] (9th Tract on John.)

Even setting aside any mystical interpretation, the fact that the Lord was pleased to be asked, and to go to a marriage, showeth plainly enough that He is the Author and Blesser of marriage. There were yet to be those of whom the Apostle hath warned us as "forbidding to marry;"[8] who say that marriage is a bad thing in itself, and a work of the devil. Yet we read in the [9] Gospel that when the Lord was asked, "Is it lawful for a man to put away his wife for every cause?" He answered that it was not lawful, except it were for fornication. In which answer ye will remember that He used these words: "What God hath joined together, let not man put asunder."[10] (Eighth Lesson of the Sunday.) They who are well instructed in the Catholic religion know that God is the Author and Blesser of marriage; and that, whereas joining together in marriage is of God, divorce is of the devil. But it is lawful for a man to put away his wife in case of fornication,[11] for by not keeping a wife's faith to her husband she herself hath first willed not to be wife. They also who have made a vow of their virginity to God and have thereby attained to an higher degree of honour and holiness in the Church, are not unmarried, for they are a special part of the marriage of the whole Church, which is the Bride of Christ. (Ninth Lesson of the Sunday.) The Lord, being asked, went to the marriage, to strengthen the marriage tie, and to shed light on the hidden meaning of matrimony. In that marriage feast the Bridegroom to whom it was said, "Thou hast kept the good wine until now," was a figure of the Lord Christ, Who hath kept until now the good wine, namely the Gospel.

As the Church teaches that a marriage once validly contracted and consummated is indissoluble, two explanations have been given to Matth. xix. 9. (1) That "porneia" is there used synonymously with "moicheia," and a separation à mensâ et toro is meant; (2) that the case referred to is that given in Deut. xxii. 21.

Ninth Lesson.

IT is no wonder that it should be at His circumcision that the Name of JESUS (which is, being interpreted, "Saviour,") is given to the Child Who is born unto us, for it was then that He for the first time shed that sinless Blood Which is the mean whereby He hath chosen to work out our salvation. It is no matter for the speculation of Christians why the Lord Christ was pleased to be circumcised. He was circumcised for the same reason for which He was born, and for which He suffered. Neither one nor the other was for Himself, but all for the sake of the elect. He was not born in sin; He was not circumcised to separate Him from sin; neither did He die for sins of His own, but for ours. "Which was so named of the Angel before He was conceived in the womb." The Angel indeed gave Him that title of "Saviour," but not for the first time. Saviour is His Name from everlasting; He hath it of His own proper nature to save. This title He hath in Himself, not by the gift of anything that He hath made, be it man or Angel.

Monday.

Second Day.

MATTINS.

First Lesson.

(First Lesson of Sunday.[1])

Here beginneth the [2] Second Epistle of the Blessed Apostle Paul to the Corinthians (i. 1.)

PAUL, an Apostle of JESUS Christ, by the will of God, and Timothy our brother, unto the Church of God which is at Corinth, with all the Saints which are in all Achaia. Grace be to you and peace, from God our Father, and from the Lord JESUS Christ. Blessed be the God and Father of our Lord JESUS Christ, the Father of mercies, and the God of all comfort, Who comforteth us in all our tribulation, that we also may be able to comfort them which are in any trouble, by the comfort wherewith we ourselves are comforted of God. For, as the sufferings of Christ abound in us, so our consolation also aboundeth by Christ. (Second Lesson of Sunday.) And whether we be afflicted, it is for your comfort and salvation, or whether we be comforted it is for your comfort, or whether we be exhorted it is for your exhortation and salvation, which is effectual to the enduring of the same sufferings which we also suffer, that our hope of you may be steadfast, knowing that as ye are partakers of the sufferings, so shall ye be also of the consolation. (Third Lesson of Sunday.) For we would not, brethren, have you ignorant of our trouble, which came to us in Asia, that we were pressed out of measure above strength, insomuch that we were weary even of life. But we had the answer of death [3] in ourselves, that we might not trust in ourselves, but in God, Which raiseth the dead; Who delivered us from so great danger, and doth deliver; in Whom we trust that He will yet deliver us, ye also helping together by prayer for us; that for the gift bestowed upon us, by means of many persons, thanks may be given by many on our behalf.

First Responsory.

[4] O how great is Thy goodness, O Lord,—which Thou hast laid up for them that fear Thee!

Verse. Which Thou, O Lord, hast wrought for them that trust in Thee before the sons of men!

Answer. Which Thou hast laid up for them that fear Thee!

Second Lesson.

(First Lesson of Monday, iii. 1.)

DO we begin again to commend ourselves? Or need we (as some others) epistles of commendation to you, or from you? Ye are our epistle, written in our hearts, known and read of all men; manifestly declared to be the epistle of Christ, ministered by us, and written, not with ink, but with the Spirit of the living God; not in tables of stone, but in fleshly tables of the heart.

Second Responsory.

[5] O God, be Thou my helper. Neither leave me.

Verse. Nor forsake me—O God of my salvation.

Answer. Neither leave me.

[4] Ps. xxx. 20.

[5] Ps. xxvi. 9.

Third Lesson.

(Second Lesson of Monday.)

AND such trust have we through Christ to God-ward; not that we are sufficient of ourselves to think anything, as of ourselves; but our sufficiency is of God, Who also hath made us able ministers of the New Testament, not of the letter, but of the Spirit: for the letter killeth, but the Spirit giveth life. But if the ministration of death, engraven with letters upon stones, was glorious, so that the children of Israël could not steadfastly behold the face of Moses, for the glory of his countenance—which is done away: how shall not rather the ministration of the Spirit be glorious? (Third Lesson of Monday.) For if the ministration of condemnation be glory, much more doth the ministration of righteousness exceed in glory. For even that which was glorious had no glory in this respect, by reason of the glory that excelleth. For if that which is done away is glorious; much more that which remaineth is glorious. Seeing then that we have such an hope, we use great confidence; and, not as Moses, which put a veil over his face, that the children of Israël might not steadfastly look upon the face of that which is done away. But their minds are blinded. For until this day remaineth the same veil untaken away in the reading of the Old Testament, because it is taken away in Christ.

Third Responsory.

[1] I will bless the LORD at all times. His praise shall continually be in my mouth.

Verse. My soul shall make her boast in the LORD; the humble shall hear thereof and be glad.

Answer. His praise shall continually be in my mouth.

Verse. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, and to the Holy Ghost.

Answer. His praise shall continually be in my mouth.

Prayer throughout the week, "Almighty and everlasting God," &c., (p. 204.)

Tuesday.

Third Day.

MATTINS.

First Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Second Epistle of the Blessed Apostle Paul to the Corinthians (v. 1.)

FOR we know that if our earthly house of this tabernacle were dissolved we have a building of God, an house not made with hands, eternal in the heavens. For in this we groan, earnestly desiring to be clothed upon with our house which is from heaven; if so be that, being clothed, we shall not be found naked. For we that are in this tabernacle do groan, being burdened, not for that we would be unclothed, but clothed upon, that mortality might be swallowed up of life.

First Responsory.

[2] O God, give ear unto my tears; hold not Thy peace, but, O, spare me! For I am a stranger with Thee, and a sojourner.

Verse. [3] Be pleased, O LORD, to deliver me; O LORD, look upon me to help me.

Answer. For I am a stranger with Thee, and a sojourner.

Second Lesson.

THEREFORE we are always confident, knowing that whilst we are at home in the body, we are absent from the Lord (for we walk by faith, not by sight): but we are confident and willing rather to be absent from the body, and to be present with the Lord. Wherefore we labour, that, whether present or absent, we may please Him. For we must all appear before the judgment-seat of Christ, that every one may receive the things done in his body, according to that he hath done, whether it be good or bad.

Second Responsory.

[4] The Lord hath set my feet upon a rock, and ordered my goings. And He hath put a new song in my mouth.

Verse. He heard my cry: He brought me up also out of an horrible pit.

Answer. And He hath put a new song in my mouth.

Third Lesson.

KNOWING therefore the terror of the Lord, we persuade men; but we are made manifest unto God. And I trust also are made manifest in your consciences. We commend not ourselves again unto you, but give you occasion to glory on our behalf; that ye may have somewhat to answer them which glory in appearance, and not in heart. For whether we be beside ourselves, it is to God; or whether we be sober, it is for your cause. For the love of Christ constraineth us; because we thus judge, that if one died for all, then were all dead: and CHRIST died for all: that they which live should not henceforth live unto themselves, but unto Him Which died for them, and rose again.

Third Responsory.

[5] I said: LORD, be merciful unto me. Heal my soul, for I have sinned against Thee.

Verse. Deliver me from all mine iniquities, O Lord.

Answer. Heal my soul, for I have sinned against Thee.

Verse. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, and to the Holy Ghost.

Answer. Heal my soul, for I have sinned against Thee.

Wednesday.

Fourth Day.

MATTINS.

First Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Second Epistle of the Blessed Apostle Paul to the Corinthians (vii. 1.)

HAVING therefore these promises, dearly beloved, let us cleanse ourselves from all filthiness of the flesh and spirit, perfecting holiness in the fear of God. Receive us. We have wronged no man, we have corrupted no man, we have defrauded no man. I speak not this to condemn you: for we have said before that ye are in our hearts, to die and live with you.

[2] Ps. xxxviii. 13, 14.

[3] Ps. xxxix. 14.

[4] Ps. xxxix. 3, 4.

[5] Ps. xl. 5.

First Responsory.

Cut me not off in the midst of my sins. Nor keep Thy wrath against me for my latter end.

Verse. [1] Enter not into judgment with Thy servant, O Lord.

Answer. Nor keep Thy wrath against me for my latter end.

Second Lesson.

GREAT is my boldness towards you, great is my glorying of you; I am filled with comfort, I am exceeding joyful in all our tribulation. For when we were come into Macedonia, our flesh had no rest, but we were troubled on every side: without were fightings, within were fears. Nevertheless God, That comforteth those that are cast down, comforted us by the coming of Titus. And not by his coming only, but also by the consolation wherewith he was comforted in you, when he told us your earnest desire, your mourning, your zeal for me: so that I rejoiced the more.

Second Responsory.

[2] My heart is ready, O God, my heart is ready. I will sing and give praise to the Lord.

Verse. Awake up, my glory, awake, psaltery and harp! I will awake early.

Answer. I will sing and give praise to the Lord.

Third Lesson.

FOR though I have made you sorry with a letter, I repent not; and, if I had repented, perceiving that the same epistle made you sorry, (though it were but for a season,) now I rejoice: not that ye were made sorry, but that ye sorrowed to repentance. For ye were made sorry according to God, so that ye receive damage from us in nothing. For the sorrow which is according to God worketh repentance to salvation not to be repented of: but the sorrow of the world worketh death.

Third Responsory.

[3] Unto Thee, O my Strength, will I sing, for God is my defence, the God of my mercy.

Verse. [4] I will be glad and rejoice in Thee, I will sing praise to Thy Name, O Thou Most High.

Answer. The God of my mercy.

Verse. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, and to the Holy Ghost.

Answer. The God of my mercy.

Thursday.

Fifth Day.

MATTINS.

First Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Second Epistle of the Blessed Apostle Paul to the Corinthians (x. 1.)

NOW I, Paul, myself beseech you, by the meekness and gentleness of Christ, who in presence am base among you, but being absent am bold towards you. But I beseech you that I may not be bold when I am present, with that confidence wherewith I am thought to be bold against some, which think of us as if we walked according to the flesh. For though we walk in the flesh we do not war after the flesh.

First Responsory.

[5] In Thee, O God, do I put my trust; let me never be put to confusion, O Lord: deliver me in Thy righteousness, and cause me to escape.

Verse. Incline Thine ear unto me, deliver me speedily.

Answer. And cause me to escape.

Second Lesson.

FOR the weapons of our warfare are not carnal, but mighty through God to the pulling down of strongholds, casting down imaginations, and every high thing that exalteth itself against the knowledge of God, and bringing into captivity every thought to the obedience of Christ, and having in a readiness to revenge all disobedience, when your obedience is fulfilled. Look ye on things after the outward appearance? If any man trust to himself that he is Christ's, let him of himself think this again, that, as he is Christ's, even so we are Christ's.

Second Responsory.

[6] Let my mouth be filled with Thy praise, that I may sing of Thy glory, all the day long of Thy greatness. Cast me not off in the time of old age; forsake me not when my strength faileth.

Verse. My lips shall be fain when I sing unto Thee.

Answer. Forsake me not when my strength faileth.

Third Lesson.

FOR though I should boast somewhat more of our authority, which the Lord hath given us for edification, and not for your destruction, I should not be ashamed. But that I may not seem as if I would terrify you by letters—("for his letters," say they, "are weighty and powerful, but his bodily presence is weak, and his speech contemptible,")—let such an one think this, that such as we are in word by letters when we are absent, such will we be also in deed when we are present. For we dare not make ourselves of the number, or compare ourselves with some that commend themselves, but measuring ourselves by ourselves, and comparing ourselves to ourselves.

Third Responsory.

My lips shall be fain when I sing unto Thee; and my soul, which Thou, O Lord, hast redeemed.

Verse. My tongue shall also talk of Thy righteousness, all the day long of Thy praise.

Answer. And my soul, which Thou, O Lord, hast redeemed.

Verse. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, and to the Holy Ghost.

Answer. And my soul, which Thou, O Lord, hast redeemed.

Sixth Day.

MATTINS.

First Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Second Epistle of the Blessed Apostle Paul to the Corinthians (xii. 1.)

IF it behoveth me to glory (but it is not expedient) yet I will come to visions and revelations of the Lord. I know a man in Christ above fourteen years ago, (whether in the body, I cannot tell, or whether out of the body, I cannot tell; God knoweth;) such an one to have been caught up to the third heaven. And I know such a man, (whether in the body, or out of the body, I cannot tell; God knoweth;) how that he was caught up into paradise, and heard unspeakable words, which it is not lawful for man to utter.

First Responsory.

[1] I will praise Thee, O Lord my God, with all my heart, and I will glorify Thy Name for evermore. For great is Thy mercy toward me.

Verse. [2] Thou art my God, and I will praise Thee: Thou art my God, and I will exalt Thee.

Answer. For great is Thy mercy toward me.

Second Lesson.

OF such an one will I glory: yet of myself I will not glory, but in mine infirmities. For though I would desire to glory, I shall not be a fool: for I will say the truth: but I forbear, lest any man should think of me above that which he seeth me to be, or that he heareth of me. And lest I should be exalted above measure through the abundance of the revelations, there was given to me a thorn in the flesh, the messenger of Satan to buffet me. For this thing I besought the Lord thrice, that it might depart from me, and He said unto me: My grace is sufficient for thee: for My power is made perfect in weakness.

Second Responsory.

Great, O Lord, is Thy mercy toward me. And Thou hast delivered my soul from the lowest hell.

Verse. In the day of my trouble I called upon thee, for Thou hast heard me.

Answer. And Thou hast delivered my soul from the lowest hell.

Third Lesson.

MOST gladly therefore will I rather glory in mine infirmities, that the power of Christ may rest upon me. Therefore I take pleasure in mine infirmities, in reproaches, in necessities, in persecutions, in distresses for Christ's sake. For when I am weak, then am I strong—I am become a fool; ye have compelled me. For I ought to have been commended of you: for in nothing am I behind the very chiefest Apostles, though I be nothing.

Third Responsory.

[3] The LORD is my refuge. And my God is the stay of my trust.

Verse. [4] He delivered me from the strongest of mine enemies, and the LORD was my stay.

Answer. And my God is the stay of my trust.

Verse. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, and to the Holy Ghost.

Answer. And my God is the stay of my trust.

Saturday.

The Sabbath.

MATTINS.

First Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Second Epistle of the Blessed Apostle Paul to the Corinthians (xiii. 1.)

BEHOLD, this is the third time I am coming to you. In the mouth of two or three witnesses shall every word be established. I told you before, and foretell you, as present, and now as absent, to them which heretofore have sinned, and to all other, that, if I come again, I will not spare. Seek ye a proof of Christ speaking in me, Which to you-ward is not weak, but is mighty in you? For though He was crucified through weakness; yet He liveth by the power of God. For we also are weak in Him, but we shall live with Him by the power of God toward you.

First Responsory.

Cut me not off, &c., (p. 211.)

Second Lesson.

EXAMINE yourselves whether ye be in the faith: prove yourselves. Know ye not your own selves, how that JESUS Christ is in you? except ye be reprobates. But I trust ye shall know that we are not reprobates. Now I pray God that ye do no evil; not that we should appear approved, but that ye should do that which is right: though we be as reprobates. For we can do nothing against the truth, but for the truth. For we are glad that we are weak, and ye are strong. This also we pray for, even your perfection.

Second Responsory.

My heart is ready, &c., (p. 211.)

Third Lesson.

THEREFORE I write these things being absent, lest, being present, I should use sharpness, according to the power which the Lord hath given me to edification, and not to destruction. Finally, brethren, farewell. Be perfect; be of good comfort; be of one mind; live in peace, and the God of peace and love shall be with you. Greet one another with an holy kiss. All the saints salute you. The grace of our Lord JESUS Christ, and the love of God, and the communion of the Holy Ghost be with you all. Amen.

Third Responsory.

Unto Thee, O my Strength, &c., (p. 211.)

VESPERS.

The Prayer is taken from the Lauds of the succeeding Sunday.

Third Sunday after the Epiphany.

The Third Lord's Day after the Epiphany.[1]

MATTINS.

FIRST NOCTURN.

First Lesson.

Here beginneth the [2] Epistle of the Blessed Apostle Paul to the Galatians (i. 1.)

PAUL, an Apostle (not of men, neither by man, but by JESUS Christ, and God the Father, Who raised Him from the dead) and all the brethren which are with me, unto the Churches of Galatia. Grace be to you, and peace, from God the Father, and from our Lord JESUS Christ, Who gave Himself for our sins, that He might deliver us from this present evil world, according to the will of our God, and Father, to Whom be glory for ever and ever. Amen.

First Responsory.

[3] O LORD, rebuke me not in Thine anger, neither chasten me in Thine hot displeasure. Have mercy upon me, O LORD, for I am weak.

Verse. [4] Fearfulness and trembling are come upon me, and darkness hath overwhelmed me.

Answer. Have mercy upon me, O LORD, for I am weak.

Second Lesson.

I MARVEL that ye are so soon removed from him that called you into the grace of Christ, unto another Gospel: which is not another; unless there be some that trouble you, and would pervert the Gospel of Christ. But though we, or an angel from heaven, preach any other Gospel unto you than that which we have preached unto you, let him be anathema. As we said before, so say I now again: If any man preach any other Gospel unto you than that ye have received, let him be anathema. For do I now persuade men or God? Or do I seek to please men? If I yet pleased men, I should not be the servant of Christ.

Second Responsory.

[5] O God, Which satest in the throne judging right, be Thou a refuge for the poor, a refuge in times of trouble. For Thou alone beholdest mischief and spite.

Verse. The poor leaveth himself unto Thee; Thou wilt be the helper of the fatherless.

Answer. For Thou alone beholdest mischief and spite.

Third Lesson.

FOR I certify you, brethren, that the Gospel which was preached of me is not after man: for I neither received it of man, neither was I taught it, but by the revelation of JESUS Christ. For ye have heard of my conversation in times past in the Jews' religion, how that beyond measure I persecuted the Church of God, and wasted it, and profited in the Jews' religion above many mine equals in mine own nation, being more exceedingly jealous of the traditions of my fathers.

Third Responsory.

[6] The Lord is at my right hand, I shall never be moved. Therefore my heart is glad, and my tongue rejoiceth.

Verse. The LORD is the portion of mine inheritance, and of my cup.

Answer. Therefore my heart is glad, and my tongue rejoiceth.

Verse. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, and to the Holy Ghost.

Answer. Therefore my heart is glad, and my tongue rejoiceth.

SECOND NOCTURN.

Fourth Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Exposition of the Epistle to the Galatians by St Austin, Bishop [of Hippo.] (Preface, Bk. iv.)

THE reason of the Apostle's writing to the Galatians was this: that they might understand that the grace of God had worked in them that they were no longer under the law. For when the grace of the Gospel was preached to them, there had not been wanting to them some of them of the circumcision, Christians indeed in name, but who had not yet apprehended that great benefit of grace, and desiring still to be bound with burdens of the law—burdens which the Lord God had laid, not upon such as serve righteousness, but upon such as serve sin, laying, that is to say, upon the unrighteous a righteous law, whereby their unrighteousness was made manifest, not taken away. For there is not anything which taketh away sin, save only the grace of faith which worketh by love.

Fourth Responsory.

[7] O Lord, Thou hast shown me the path of life. Thou shalt fill me with joy in Thy presence, at Thy right hand there are pleasures for evermore.

Verse. Thou art He That shalt restore mine inheritance unto me.

Answer. Thou shalt fill me with joy in Thy presence, at Thy right hand there are pleasures for evermore.

Fifth Lesson.

THESE men of the circumcision would have the Galatians, who were under grace, to be under the burdens of the law, persuading them that the Gospel profited them nothing, unless they should be circumcised, and take on them the other outward observances of the Jews' religion. Whence the Galatians began to have doubts of the Apostle Paul, by whom the Gospel had been preached to them, as one that held not the doctrine of the other Apostles, who compelled the Gentiles to come under the law.

Fifth Responsory.

[8] I will love Thee, O LORD, my strength; the LORD is my rock, and my fortress.

Verse. My Deliverer, my God, mine Helper.

Answer. And my fortress.

[6] Ps. xv. 9, 5.

[7] Ps. xv. 10, 5.

[8] Ps. xvii. 2.

Sixth Lesson.

THE same question is discussed in the Epistle to the Romans, but with this difference: in that case the Apostle putteth an end to the discussion, and stilleth the strife which had arisen between the Jewish and the Gentile converts, in consequence of the Jews holding that they had earned the knowledge of the Gospel as a reward for their observance of the law, and grudging the same knowledge to the uncircumcised, as to men who had done nothing to deserve it; and the Gentiles, on the contrary, maintaining that they were superior to the Jews, in that they were not the murderers of the Lord. Now, in this Epistle to the Galatians, the Apostle addresseth himself to those who were troubled by the authority claimed by them who were of the circumcision, and sought to bring into subjection to the law them who were of the uncircumcision.

Sixth Responsory.

[1] The earth is the LORD'S, and the fulness thereof—the world, and they that dwell therein.

Verse. For He hath founded it upon the seas, and established it upon the floods.

Answer. The world, and they that dwell therein.

Verse. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, and to the Holy Ghost.

Answer. The world, and they that dwell therein.

THIRD NOCTURN.

Seventh Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Holy Gospel according to Matthew (viii. 1.)

AT that time: When JESUS was come down from the mountain, great multitudes followed Him: and, behold, there came a leper and worshipped Him. And so on.

Homily by St Jerome, Priest [at Bethlehem.] (Bk. i. Comm. on Matth. viii.)

When the Lord was come down from the mountain, great multitudes followed Him. They were not able to follow Him when He went up. And first there came a leper. This poor creature's disease had prevented him from hearing the Saviour's long sermon on the Mount. Let it be noted that he is the first person specially named as being healed. The second was the Centurion's servant; the third was Peter's wife's mother, who was sick of a fever at Capernaum; the fourth were they who were brought unto Christ as being troubled with evil spirits, from whom He by His word cast out the evil spirits, at the same time that He healed all that were sick.

Seventh Responsory.

[2] Unto Thee, O LORD, do I lift up my soul. O my God, I trust in Thee, let me not be ashamed.

Verse. O keep my soul and deliver me.

Answer. O my God, I trust in Thee, let me not be ashamed.

Eighth Lesson.

"AND, behold, there came a leper, and worshipped Him, saying: —" Properly after preaching and doctrine cometh occasion for a sign, that the power of the miracle might confirm in the hearers the truth of the teaching that had gone before.

"Lord, if Thou wilt, Thou canst make me clean." He that prayeth the Lord to have the will, doubteth not but that He hath the power.

"And JESUS put forth His hand, and touched him, saying: I will; be thou clean." As soon as the Lord put forth His Hand the leprosy departed. Let us remark how lowly and unbragging is the Lord's language. The leper had said, "If Thou wilt;" the Lord answereth, "I will." The leper, "Thou canst make me clean,"—the Lord, "Be thou clean." Most Latin readers, misled by the identity of form in that language between the Present Infinitive Active and the Second Person Singular Present Imperative Passive of the Verb, read Christ's answer as if it were, "I will to make thee clean." This is wrong. The sentences are separate. First cometh the expression of volition, "I will," then the command, "Be thou clean."

Eighth Responsory.

[3] One Seraph cried unto another—Holy, Holy, Holy is the LORD God of hosts: the whole earth is full of His glory.

Verse. [4] There are Three That bear record in heaven, the Father, the Word, and the Holy Ghost: and these Three are One.

Answer. Holy, Holy, Holy is the LORD God of hosts:—

Verse. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, and to the Holy Ghost.

Answer. The whole earth is full of His glory.

Ninth Lesson.

"AND JESUS saith unto him: See thou tell no man." What need was there to tell what his body showed?

"But go thy way, show thyself to the Priest." There were divers reasons why Christ should send him to the Priest. First, for humility's sake, that He might show reverence to God's Priest. Then there was a command in the law that they that were cleansed of leprosy should make an offering to the Priests. Moreover, that, when the Priests saw the leper cleansed they might either believe in the Saviour or refuse to believe; if they believed, that they might be saved, and, if they believed not, that they might have no excuse. Lastly, that He might give no ground for the accusation that was so often brought against Him, that He was unobservant of the law.

The Hymn, "We praise Thee, O God, &c.," is said.

LAUDS.

Antiphon at the Song of Zacharias. When JESUS was come down from the mountain, * behold, there came a leper, and worshipped Him, saying: Lord, if Thou wilt, Thou canst make me clean. And JESUS put forth His Hand, and touched him, saying: I will; be thou clean.

Monday.

Second Day.

MATTINS.

First Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Epistle of the Blessed Apostle Paul to the Galatians (iii. 1.)

O FOOLISH Galatians, who hath bewitched you, that ye should not obey the truth, before whose eyes JESUS Christ hath been evidently set forth, crucified among you? This only would I learn of you: Received ye the Spirit by the works of the law, or by the hearing of faith? Are ye so foolish, that, having begun in the Spirit, ye are now made perfect by the flesh? Have ye suffered so many things in vain? if it be yet in vain. He therefore that ministereth to you the Spirit, and worketh miracles among you, doeth He it by the works of the law, or by the hearing of faith? As it is written: "Abraham believed God, and it was accounted to him for righteousness."[1]

First Responsory.

O how great, &c., (p. 209.)

Second Lesson.

KNOW ye therefore, that they which are of faith, the same are the children of Abraham. And the Scripture, foreseeing that God would justify the heathen through faith, told before unto Abraham: "In thee shall all nations be blessed."[2] So then, they which be of faith shall be blessed with faithful Abraham. For as many as are of the works of the law, are under the curse. For it is written: "Cursed is every one that continueth not in all things which are written in the book of the law, to do them."[3]

Second Responsory.

O God, &c., (p. 209.)

Third Lesson.

BUT that no man is justified by the law in the sight of God is evident, for "the just liveth by faith."[4] And the law is not of faith; but "the man that doeth them shall live in them."[5] Christ hath redeemed us from the curse of the law, being made a curse for us; (for it is written: "Cursed is every one that hangeth on a tree:")[6] that the blessing of Abraham might come upon the Gentiles through JESUS Christ, that we might receive the promise of the Spirit through faith.

Third Responsory.

I will bless, &c., (p. 210.)

Tuesday.

Third Day.

MATTINS.

First Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Epistle of the Blessed Apostle Paul to the Galatians (v. 1.)

STAND fast, and be not entangled again with the yoke of bondage. Behold I, Paul, say unto you, that, if ye be circumcised, Christ shall profit you nothing. For I testify again to every man that circumciseth himself, that he is a debtor to do the whole law. Christ is become of no effect unto you, whosoever of you are justified by the law: ye are fallen from grace. For we in spirit by faith wait for the hope of righteousness.

First Responsory.

O God, give ear, &c., (p. 210.)

Second Lesson.

FOR in Christ JESUS neither circumcision availeth anything, nor uncircumcision; but faith which worketh by love. Ye did run well: who did hinder you, that ye should not obey the truth? This persuasion cometh not of Him That calleth you. A little leaven leaveneth the whole lump. I have confidence in you in the Lord, that ye will be none otherwise minded. But he that troubleth you shall bear his judgment, whosoever he be.

Second Responsory.

The Lord hath set, &c., (p. 210.)

Third Lesson.

AND I, brethren, if I yet preach circumcision, why do I yet suffer persecution? Then is the offence of the Cross ceased. I would they were even cut off which trouble you. For, brethren, ye have been called unto liberty: only use not liberty for an occasion to the flesh, but by love serve one another. For all the law is fulfilled in one word: "Thou shalt love thy neighbour as thyself."[7] But if ye bite and devour one another, take heed that ye be not consumed one of another. I say then: Walk in the Spirit, and ye shall not fulfil the lust of the flesh. For the flesh lusteth against the Spirit, and the Spirit against the flesh: for these are contrary the one to the other, so that ye do not the things that ye would.

Third Responsory.

I said, &c., (p. 210.)

Fourth Day.

MATTINS.

First Lesson.

Here beginneth the [1] Epistle of the Blessed Apostle Paul to the Ephesians (i. 1.)

PAUL, an Apostle of JESUS Christ, by the will of God, to all the Saints which are at Ephesus, and to the faithful in Christ JESUS. Grace be to you, and peace, from God our Father, and from the Lord JESUS Christ. Blessed be the God and Father of our Lord JESUS Christ, Who hath blessed us with all spiritual blessings in heavenly places in Christ, according as He hath chosen us in Him before the foundation of the world, that we should be holy and without blame before Him in love.

First Responsory.

Cut me not off, &c., (p. 211.)

Second Lesson.

WHO hath foreordained us unto the adoption of children by JESUS Christ to Himself, according to the good pleasure of His will, to the praise of the glory of His grace, wherein He hath made us acceptable in His beloved Son. In Whom we have redemption through His Blood, the forgiveness of sins, according to the riches of His grace, wherein He hath abounded toward us in all wisdom and prudence: that He might make known unto us the mystery of His will, according to His good pleasure, which He hath purposed in Himself, to gather together in one all things in Christ, both which are in heaven, and which are on earth, in Him, in the dispensation of the fulness of times.

Second Responsory.

My heart is ready, &c., (p. 211.)

Third Lesson.

IN Whom we also have been called to have part, being predestinated according to the purpose of Him Who worketh all things after the counsel of His own will, that we should be to the praise of His glory, who have first trusted in Christ. In Whom ye also trusted, after that ye heard the word of truth, (the Gospel of your salvation,) in Whom also, after that ye believed, ye were sealed with the Holy Spirit of promise, Which is the earnest of our inheritance, until the redemption of the purchased possession, unto the praise of His glory.

Third Responsory.

Unto Thee, &c., (p. 211.)

Thursday.

Fifth Day.

MATTINS.

First Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Epistle of the Blessed Apostle Paul to the Ephesians (iv. 1.)

I THEREFORE, the prisoner in the Lord, beseech you that ye walk worthy of the calling wherewith ye are called, with all lowliness and meekness, with long-suffering, forbearing one another in love, giving diligence to keep the unity of the Spirit in the bond of peace. There is one body and one Spirit, even as ye are called in one hope of your calling; one Lord, one faith, one baptism, one God and Father of all, Who is above all, and through all, and in us all.

First Responsory.

In Thee, O God, &c., (p. 211.)

Second Lesson.

BUT unto every one of us is given according to the measure of the gift of Christ. Wherefore he saith: "When He ascended up on high, He led captivity captive, and gave gifts unto men." [2] Now that He ascended, what is it but that He also descended first into the lower parts of the earth? He That descended is the Same also That ascended up far above all heavens, that He might fill all things.

Second Responsory.

Let my mouth, &c., (p. 211.)

Third Lesson.

AND He gave some, Apostles; and some, Prophets; and some, Evangelists; and some, Pastors and Teachers, for the perfecting of the Saints, for the work of the ministry, for the building up of the body of Christ: till we all come into the unity of the faith, and of the knowledge of the Son of God, unto a perfect man, unto the measure of the stature of the fulness of Christ: that we henceforth be no more children, tossed to and fro, and carried about with every wind of doctrine, by the sleight of men, and craftiness, after the wiles of error whereby they lie in wait to deceive. But, speaking the truth in love, may we grow up into Him in all things Which is the Head, even Christ.

Third Responsory.

My lips, &c., (p. 211.)

Friday.

Sixth Day.

MATTINS.

First Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Epistle of the Blessed Apostle Paul to the Ephesians (v. 1.)

BE ye therefore followers of God, as dear children, and walk in love; as Christ also hath loved us, and hath given Himself for us, an offering and a sacrifice to God for a sweet-smelling savour. But fornication, and all uncleanness or covetousness, let it not be even named among you, as becometh Saints; neither filthiness, nor foolish talking, or jesting, which are not befitting, but rather, giving of thanks.

First Responsory.

I will praise, &c., (p. 212.)

---

[1] Abp. Kenrick says, "This letter was written about the year 62, when the Apostle was, the first time, a prisoner at Rome."

[2] Ps. lxvii. 19.

Second Lesson.

FOR know ye and understand this; that no whoremonger, nor unclean person, nor covetous man, who is an idolater, hath any inheritance in the kingdom of Christ and of God. Let no man deceive you with empty words: for because of these things cometh the wrath of God upon the children of disobedience. Be not ye therefore partakers with them. For ye were sometime darkness, but now are ye light in the Lord. Walk as children of light.

Second Responsory.

Great, O Lord, &c., (p. 212.)

Third Lesson.

FOR the fruit of light is in all goodness, and righteousness, and truth; proving what is acceptable unto the Lord. And have no fellowship with the unfruitful works of darkness, but rather reprove them. For it is a shame even to speak of those things which are done of them in secret. But all things that are reproved are made manifest by the light: for whatsoever doth make manifest is light. Wherefore he saith: "Awake, thou that sleepest, and arise from the dead, and Christ shall shine upon thee."[1]

Third Responsory.

The LORD is, &c., (p. 212.)

Saturday.

The Sabbath.

MATTINS.

First Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Epistle of the Blessed Apostle Paul to the Ephesians (vi. 1.)

CHILDREN, obey your parents in the Lord; for this is right. "Honour thy father and thy mother," which is the first commandment with promise, "that it may be well with thee, and thou mayest live long on the earth."[2] And, ye fathers, provoke not your children to wrath, but bring them up in the nurture and admonition of the Lord.

First Responsory.

Cut me not off, &c., (p. 211.)

Second Lesson.

SERVANTS, be obedient to them that are your masters according to the flesh, with fear and trembling, in singleness of your heart, as unto Christ; not with eye-service, as men-pleasers, but as the servants of Christ, doing the will of God from the heart, with good will doing service as to the Lord, and not to men: knowing that whatsoever good thing any man doeth, the same shall he receive of the Lord, whether he be bond or free. And, ye masters, do the same things unto them, forbearing threatening; knowing that both their and your Master is in heaven, neither is there respect of persons with Him.

Second Responsory.

My heart is ready, &c., (p. 211.)

Third Lesson.

FINALLY, my brethren, be strong in the Lord, and in the power of His might. Put on the whole armour of God, that ye may be able to stand against the wiles of the devil. For we wrestle not against flesh and blood, but against principalities and powers, against the rulers of the darkness of this world, against spiritual wickedness in high places. Wherefore take unto you the whole armour of God, that ye may be able to withstand in the evil day, and, having done all, to stand.

Third Responsory.

Unto Thee, O my Strength, &c., (p. 211.)

VESPERS.

The Prayer is taken from the Lauds of the succeeding Sunday.

Fourth Sunday after the Epiphany.

The Fourth Lord's Day after the Epiphany.

MATTINS.

FIRST NOCTURN.

First Lesson.

Here beginneth the [3] Epistle of the Blessed Apostle Paul to the Philippians (i. 1.)

PAUL and Timothy, the servants of JESUS Christ, to all the saints in Christ JESUS which are at Philippi, with the Bishops and Deacons. Grace be unto you and peace, from God our Father, and from the Lord JESUS Christ. I thank my God upon every remembrance of you, always in every prayer of mine for you all making request with joy, for your fellowship in the Gospel of Christ, from the first day until now. Being confident of this very thing, that He Which hath begun a good work in you will perform it until the day of JESUS Christ. Even as it is meet for me to think this of you all, because I have you in mine heart, inasmuch as both in my bonds, and in the defence and confirmation of the Gospel, ye all are partakers of my joy.

First Responsory.

O LORD, rebuke me not, &c., (p. 213.)

Second Lesson.

FOR God is my witness, how greatly I long after you all in the bowels of JESUS Christ. And this I pray, that your love may abound yet more and more in knowledge and in all judgment: that ye may approve things that are excellent, that ye may be sincere and without offence till the day of Christ, being filled with the fruits of righteousness which are by JESUS Christ, unto the glory and praise of God. But I would ye should understand, brethren, that the things which happen unto me have fallen out rather unto the furtherance of the Gospel; so that my bonds in Christ are manifest in all the court and in all other places, and many of the brethren in the Lord, waxing confident by my bonds, are much more bold to speak the word of God without fear.

---

[1] The late Dr Neale believed this to be a quotation from an ancient Christian hymn.

[2] Exod. xx. 12; Deuteron. v. 16.

[3] Abp. Kenrick says, "The faithful of Philippi cherished at all times a tender affection for [St Paul], and cheerfully contributed to his wants, especially when he was a prisoner at Rome, whither they sent their offerings by the hands of Epaphroditus, who was probably their Bishop. Paul showed his confidence and tender regard for them by accepting their contributions, which he also gratefully acknowledged in this epistle. . . . The letter was written in the year 62, and forwarded by Epaphroditus. It is believed to have been one of the last written during the first imprisonment of the Apostle at Rome, as it indicates confidence that he would soon be set at liberty."

Second Responsory.

O God, Which satest, &c., (p. 213.)

Third Lesson.

SOME indeed preach Christ even of envy and strife; and some also of goodwill; some of love, knowing that I am set for the defence of the Gospel, and some preach Christ of contention, not sincerely, supposing to add affliction to my bonds. What then? While Christ is preached any way, whether in pretence or in truth, I therein will rejoice, yea, and do rejoice.

Third Responsory.

The Lord is at my right hand, &c., (p. 213.)

SECOND NOCTURN.

Fourth Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Book of Moral [Reflections on Job] written by Pope St Gregory [the Great.] (iv. 30.)

WE refresh the body lest it should grow too weak and fail us; we chasten it by abstinence, lest it should wax gross, and become lord over us; we strengthen it with exercise, lest it perish by the not using; and straightway we give it rest, lest it faint through weariness; we succour it with raiment, lest the cold should blight it; and we strip it of the raiment wherewith we have clothed it, lest the heat should afflict it. In all these so many offices what do we but serve the corruptible? Upon what is all this care spent but upon that wherover hangeth the doom of weakness and change?

Fourth Responsory.

O Lord, Thou hast shown me, &c., (p. 213.)

Fifth Lesson.

WELL therefore saith Paul: "For the creature was made subject to vanity, not willingly, but by reason of Him Who hath subjected the same in hope: because the creature itself also shall be delivered from the bondage of corruption into the glorious liberty of the children of God." (Rom. viii. 20.) "The creature was made subject to vanity, not willingly"—for when man had of his own free will abdicated his state of unchangeable blessedness, the just sentence of death was passed upon him, and whether he willed or not, he became subject to the state of change and corruption. But "the creature itself also shall be delivered from the bondage of corruption" when it shall rise again incorruptible and be made partaker of the glory of the children of God.

Fifth Responsory.

I will love Thee, &c., (p. 213.)

Sixth Lesson.

HERE, then, the elect are still subject to sorrow, being yet bound by the sentence of corruption; but when we shall have put off this corruptible we shall be loosed from that sentence, and shall sorrow no more. For though we earnestly desire to appear before God, we are still hindered by the burden of this dying body. Rightly then are we called prisoners, since we are not free to go whither we will, that is to say, to God; and rightly did the prisoner Paul, yearning after the things which are eternal, and still weighed down with the burden of this corruptible, rightly did he cry out: "I have a desire to depart and to be with Christ." (Phil. i. 23.) He would not have felt this keenness if he had not felt himself bound down.

Sixth Responsory.

The earth, &c., (p. 214.)

THIRD NOCTURN.

Seventh Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Holy Gospel according to Matthew (viii. 23.)

AT that time: When JESUS was entered into a ship, His disciples followed Him; and, behold, there arose a great tempest in the sea, insomuch that the ship was covered by the waves: but He was asleep. And so on.

Homily by St Jerome, Priest [at Bethlehem.] (Bk. i. Comm. on Matth. viii.)

The fifth sign that He did was when He took ship at Capernaum, and commanded the winds and the sea: the sixth, when, in the country of the Gergesenes, He suffered the devils to enter into the swine: the seventh, when, as He came into His own city, He cured the man sick of the palsy lying on a bed. The first man sick of the palsy that He cured was the centurion's servant.

Seventh Responsory.

Unto Thee, O LORD, &c., (p. 214.)

Eighth Lesson.

"BUT He was asleep; and His disciples came to Him, and awoke Him, saying: Lord, save us." There is a type of this in the history of Jonah, who, when the storm arose, was lying fast asleep, and whom the sailors woke to help them; who also saved the sailors by commanding them to throw him into the sea, the said casting of him into the sea, being, as we know, a figure of Christ's Passion.

"Then He arose and rebuked the winds and the sea." From these words we understand that all things, which have been made, are sentient to their Maker. All things which He rebuketh or commandeth, hear His voice. This is not the error of the heretics who will have it that everything is quick, but part of the majesty of the Creator, Who maketh to feel Him things which we cannot make to feel us.

Eighth Responsory.

One Seraph cried, &c., (p. 214.)

Ninth Lesson.

"BUT the men marvelled, saying: What manner of man is this, that even the winds and the sea obey Him?" It was not His disciples that marvelled, but the sailors, and the others that were in the ship. If, however, any one willeth to withstand this our interpretation and to maintain that it was the disciples who marvelled, we are ready to answer them that they who knew not before the power of the Saviour deserve to be stripped of the title of disciples, and to be called simply "the men."

The Hymn, "We praise Thee, O God, &c., is said.

LAUDS.

Antiphon at the Song of Zacharias. When JESUS was entered into a ship, * there arose a great tempest in the sea: and His disciples awoke Him, saying: Lord, Save us: we perish.

Prayer throughout the day and week.

O GOD, Who knowest us to be set in the midst of so many and great dangers, that, by reason of the frailty of our nature, we cannot always stand upright; grant to us such health of mind and body, that by Thy strength and protection we may overcome all evils, whereby for our sins we are justly afflicted. Through our Lord JESUS Christ Thy Son, Who liveth and reigneth with Thee, in the unity of the Holy Ghost, One God, world without end. Amen.

VESPERS.

Antiphon at the Song of the Blessed Virgin. Lord, Save us: * we perish: give the word, O God, and let there be a great calm!

Monday.

Second Day.

MATTINS.

First Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Epistle of the Blessed Apostle Paul to the Philippians (iv. 1.)

THEREFORE, my brethren dearly beloved and longed for, my joy and my crown; so stand fast in the Lord, my dearly beloved. I beseech Euodia and entreat Syntyché, that they be of the same mind in the Lord. And I entreat thee also, true yoke-fellow,[1] help those women which laboured with me in the Gospel, with Clement[2] also, and with other my fellow-labourers, whose names are in the book of life.

First Responsory.

O how great, &c., (p. 209.)

Second Lesson.

REJOICE in the Lord alway: again I say, Rejoice. Let your moderation be known unto all men: for the Lord is at hand. Be careful for nothing; but in everything by prayer and supplication, with thanksgiving, let your requests be made known unto God. And may the peace of God, which passeth all understanding, keep your hearts and minds in Christ JESUS.

Second Responsory.

O God, &c., (p. 209.)

Third Lesson.

FINALLY, brethren, whatsoever things are true, whatsoever things are honest, whatsoever things are just, whatsoever things are holy, whatsoever things are lovely, whatsoever things are of good report, if there be any virtue, and if there be any praise of obedience, think on these things. Those things which ye have both learned, and received, and heard, and seen in me, do, and the God of peace shall be with you. But I rejoiced in the Lord greatly, that now at the last your care of me hath flourished again, wherein ye were also careful: but ye lacked opportunity.

Third Responsory.

I will bless, &c., (p. 210.)

Tuesday.

Third Day.

MATTINS.

First Lesson.

Here beginneth the Epistle of the Blessed Apostle Paul to the [3] Colossians (i. 1.)

PAUL, an Apostle of JESUS Christ, by the will of God, and Timothy our brother, to the saints and faithful brethren in Christ JESUS, which are at Colossæ. Grace be unto you and peace from God our Father, and from the Lord JESUS Christ. We give thanks to God and the Father of our Lord JESUS Christ, praying always for you, since we heard of your faith in Christ JESUS, and of the love which ye have to all the Saints, for the hope which is laid up for you in heaven, whereof ye heard before in the word of the truth of the Gospel, which is come unto you, as it is in all the world, and bringeth forth fruit, and waxeth strong, as it doth also in you, since the day ye heard of it, and knew the grace of God in truth; as ye also heard of Epaphras our dear fellow-servant,[4] who is for you a faithful minister of Christ JESUS; who also declareth unto us your love in the Spirit.

First Responsory.

O God, give ear, &c., (p. 210.)

Second Lesson.

FOR this cause we also, since the day we heard it, do not cease to pray for you, and to desire that ye may be filled with the knowledge of His will, in all wisdom and spiritual understanding; that ye may walk worthy of God, in all pleasing, being fruitful in every good work, and increasing in the knowledge of God; strengthened with all might, according to His glorious power, in all patience and long-suffering, giving thanks with joyfulness unto the Father, Which hath made us meet to be partakers of the inheritance of the Saints in light.

---

[1] A very common opinion is that this is the Bishop, the bearer of the letter.

[2] Afterwards Pope. Nov. 23.

[3] Abp. Kenrick says: "The letter was written during the imprisonment of the Apostle at Rome, about the year 62."

[4] Probably their Bishop, (and first Apostle.)

Second Responsory.

The Lord hath set, &c., (p. 210.)

Third Lesson.

WHO hath delivered us from the power of darkness, and hath translated us into the kingdom of His dear Son, in Whom we have redemption through His Blood, even the forgiveness of sins: Who is the image of the invisible God, the First-born of every creature; for by Him were all things created, that are in heaven, and that are in earth, visible and invisible, whether they be Thrones, or Dominions, or Principalities, or Powers; all things were created by Him, and in Him, and He is before all, and in Him all things consist. And He is the Head of the body of the Church; Who is the Beginning, the First-born from the dead.

Third Responsory.

I said, &c., (p. 210.)

Wednesday.

Fourth Day.

MATINS.

First Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Epistle of the Blessed Apostle Paul to the Colossians (iii. 12.)

PUT on, therefore, as the elect of God, holy and beloved, bowels of mercy, kindness, humbleness, meekness, long-suffering: forbearing one another, and forgiving one another, if any man have a quarrel against any; even as the Lord hath forgiven you, so also do ye. And above all these things put on charity, which is the bond of perfectness; and let the peace of Christ rule in your hearts, to the which also ye are called in one body; and be ye thankful.

First Responsory.

Cut me not off, &c., (p. 211.)

Second Lesson.

LET the word of Christ dwell in you richly, in all wisdom, teaching and admonishing one another in psalms, and hymns, and spiritual songs, singing with grace in your hearts to the Lord. Whatsoever ye do in word or deed, do all in the Name of the Lord JESUS Christ, giving thanks to God and the Father by Him. Wives submit yourselves unto your own husbands, as it is fit in the Lord. Husbands, love your wives, and be not bitter against them. Children, obey your parents in all things: for this is well pleasing unto the Lord. Fathers, provoke not your children to anger, lest they be discouraged.

Second Responsory.

My heart is ready, &c., (p. 211.)

Third Lesson.

SERVANTS, obey in all things your masters according to the flesh, not with eye-service, as men-pleasers, but in singleness of heart, fearing God. Whatsoever ye do, do it heartily, as to the Lord, and not unto men, knowing that of the Lord ye shall receive the reward of the inheritance. Serve the Lord Christ. For he that doeth wrong shall receive for the wrong which he hath done: and there is no respect of persons with God. (iv. 1.) Masters, give unto your servants that which is just and equal, knowing that ye also have a Master in heaven. Continue in prayer, and watch in the same with thanksgiving.

Third Responsory.

Unto Thee, &c., (p. 211.)

Thursday.

Fifth Day.

MATTINS.

First Lesson.

Here beginneth the [1] First Epistle of the Blessed Apostle Paul to the Thessalonians (i. 1.)

PAUL, and Silvanus, and Timothy, unto the Church of the Thessalonians, which is in God the Father, and in the Lord JESUS Christ. Grace be unto you and peace. We give thanks to God always for you all, making mention of you in our prayers without ceasing, remembering the work of your faith, and labour, and love, and patience of hope in our Lord JESUS Christ, in the sight of God and our Father: knowing, brethren beloved of God, your election; for our Gospel came not unto you in word only, but also in power, and in the Holy Ghost, and in much fulness, as ye know what manner of men we were among you for your sake.

First Responsory.

In Thee, O God, &c., (p. 211.)

Second Lesson.

AND ye became followers of us, and of the Lord, receiving the word in much affliction, with joy of the Holy Ghost, so that ye were ensamples to all that believe in Macedonia and Achaia. For from you sounded out the word of the Lord, not only in Macedonia and Achaia, but also in every place your faith to God-ward is spread abroad, so that we need not to speak anything. For they themselves show of us what manner of entering in we had unto you; and how ye turned to God from idols, to serve the living and true God, and to wait for His Son from heaven (Whom He raised from the dead) even JESUS, Who hath delivered us from the wrath to come.

Second Responsory.

Let my mouth, &c., (p. 211.)

Third Lesson.

FOR yourselves, brethren, know our entrance in unto you, that it was not vain; but even after that we had suffered before, and were shamefully entreated, as ye know, at Philippi,[2] we were bold in our God to speak unto you the Gospel of God with much carefulness. For our exhortation was not of deceit, nor of uncleanness, nor in guile: but as we were approved of God to be put in trust with the Gospel, even so we speak, not as pleasing men, but God, Which trieth our hearts. For neither at any time used we flattering words, as ye know, nor made occasion of covetousness—God is witness; nor of men sought we glory, neither of you, nor yet of others.

---

[1] Abp. Kenrick says: "This letter is believed to be the first of [St Paul's] epistles. It is ascribed to the close of the year 51, or the beginning of 52; though some date it as late as the year 54."

[2] Acts xvi. 21 et seq.

Third Responsory.

My lips, &c., (p. 211.)

Friday.

Sixth Day.

MATTINS.

First Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the First Epistle of the Blessed Apostle Paul to the Thessalonians (iv. 1.)

FURTHERMORE, then, we beseech you, brethren, and exhort you by the Lord JESUS, that as ye have received of us how ye ought to walk and to please God, so ye would walk, that ye may abound more and more. For ye know what commandments I gave you by the Lord JESUS. For this is the will of God, even your sanctification; that ye should abstain from fornication, that every one of you should know how to possess his vessel in sanctification and honour; not in the passion of lust, even as the Gentiles, which know not God.

First Responsory.

I will praise, &c., (p. 212.)

Second Lesson.

AND let no man go beyond, nor defraud his brother in any matter, because that the Lord is the avenger of all such, as we have forewarned you, and testified. For God hath not called us unto uncleanness, but unto holiness. He therefore that despiseth [these commands] despiseth not man, but God; Who hath also given us His Holy Spirit.

Second Responsory.

Great, O Lord, &c., (p. 212.)

Third Lesson.

BUT as touching brotherly love, ye need not that I write unto you: for ye yourselves are taught of God to love one another. But indeed ye do it toward all the brethren which are in all Macedonia. But we beseech you, brethren, that ye increase more and more, and that ye study to be quiet, and to do your own business, and to work with your own hands, as we commanded you; and that ye walk honestly toward them that are without, and covet no man's goods.

Third Responsory.

The LORD is, &c., (p. 212.)

Saturday.

The Sabbath.

MATTINS.

First Lesson.

Here beginneth the [1] Second Epistle of the Blessed Apostle Paul to the Thessalonians (i. 1.)

PAUL, and Silvanus, and Timothy, unto the Church of the Thessalonians in God our Father, and in the Lord JESUS Christ. Grace unto you, and peace, from God our Father, and the Lord JESUS Christ. We are bound to thank God always for you, brethren, as it is meet, because that your faith groweth exceedingly, and the charity of every one of you all toward each other aboundeth: so that we ourselves glory in you in the Churches of God, for your patience and faith, in all your persecutions and tribulations that ye endure, as a manifest token of the righteous judgment of God, that ye may be counted worthy in the kingdom of God, for which ye also suffer.

First Responsory.

Cut me not off, &c., (p. 211.)

Second Lesson.

BUT if it is a righteous thing with God to recompense tribulation to them that trouble you; ye who are troubled shall receive rest with us, when the Lord JESUS shall be revealed from heaven with His mighty angels, in flaming fire, taking vengeance on them that know not God, and that obey not the Gospel of our Lord JESUS Christ: who shall be punished with everlasting destruction from the presence of the Lord, and from the glory of His power, when He shall come to be glorified in His Saints, and to be admired in all them that believe; because our testimony among you is committed for proof to that day. Wherefore also we pray always for you, that our God would make you worthy of His calling, and fulfil all the good pleasure of His goodness, and the work of faith with power, that the name of our Lord JESUS Christ may be glorified in you, and ye in Him, according to the grace of our God, and the Lord JESUS Christ.

Second Responsory.

My heart is ready, &c., (p. 211.)

Third Lesson. (ii.)

BUT we beseech you, brethren, by the coming of our Lord JESUS Christ, and our gathering together in Him, that ye be not soon shaken in mind, nor be troubled, either by spirit, or by word, or by letter, as sent by us, as that the day of the Lord is at hand. Let no man deceive you by any means: for that day shall not come except there come falling-away first, and that man of sin be revealed, the son of perdition, who opposeth and exalteth himself above all that is called God, so that he sitteth in the temple of God, showing himself as though he were God.

---

[1] Abp. Kenrick says: "The preceding letter, especially that portion of it which referred to the last judgment, (iv. 13 et seq.) having produced a deep impression on the Thessalonians, some one took occasion to forge another in the name of the Apostle, announcing that the judgment itself was at hand. The report of the terror which this announcement spread soon reached St Paul, who hastened to relieve them from their distressed state of mind, by assuring them that a great apostacy must first take place, and the great enemy of Christ must appear, before the final judgment of mankind. He did not, however, fail to set forth this event in all its terrific character, &c."

Third Responsory.

Unto Thee, O my Strength, &c., (p. 211.)

VESPERS.

The Prayer is taken from the Lauds of the succeeding Sunday.

Fifth Sunday after the Epiphany.

The Fifth Lord's Day after the Epiphany.

MATTINS.

FIRST NOCTURN.

First Lesson.

Here beginneth the First Epistle of the Blessed Apostle Paul to Timothy,[1] (i. 1.)

PAUL, an Apostle of JESUS Christ, by the commandment of God our Saviour, and Christ JESUS our hope — Unto Timothy, my beloved son in the faith—Grace, mercy, and peace from God the Father, and Christ JESUS our Lord. As I besought thee to abide still at Ephesus, when I went into Macedonia, that thou mightest charge some that they teach no other doctrine, neither give heed to fables, and endless genealogies, which minister questions, rather than the edifying which is of God in faith.

First Responsory.

O LORD, rebuke me not, &c. (p. 213.)

Second Lesson.

NOW the end of the commandment is charity, out of a pure heart, and of a good conscience, and of faith unfeigned. From which some having swerved have turned aside unto vain jangling, desiring to be teachers of the law, understanding neither what they say, nor whereof they affirm. But we know that the law is good, if a man use it lawfully; knowing this, that the law is not made for a righteous man, but for the lawless and disobedient, for the ungodly and for sinners, for unholy and profane, for murderers of fathers and murderers of mothers, for manslayers, and whoremongers, for them that defile themselves with mankind, for men-stealers, for liars and perjurers, and if there be any other thing that is contrary to sound doctrine, according to the glorious Gospel of the blessed God, which was committed to my trust.

Second Responsory.

O God, Which satest, &c., (p. 213.)

Third Lesson.

I THANK Him Who hath enabled me, even our Lord the Christ of God, for that He counted me faithful, putting me into the ministry; who was before a blasphemer, and a persecutor, and injurious; but I obtained the mercy of God, because I did it ignorantly in unbelief. And the grace of our Lord was exceeding abundant with faith and love which is in Christ JESUS. This is a faithful saying, and worthy of all acceptation, that Christ JESUS came into this world to save sinners, of whom I am chief. Howbeit, for this cause I obtained mercy, that in me, first, JESUS Christ might show forth all long-suffering, for the teaching of them that should hereafter believe on Him, to life everlasting.

Third Responsory.

The Lord is at my right hand, &c., (p. 213.)

SECOND NOCTURN.

Fourth Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Sermons of St Austin, Bishop [of Hippo.] (On the words of the Apostles, 8.)

"THIS is a saying made for man,[2] and worthy of all acceptation, that Christ JESUS came into this world to save sinners." Listen to the words of the Gospel:[3]—"The Son of man is come to seek, and to save that which was lost." If man had not been lost, the Son of man would not have come. Wherefore, man had been lost; God came made Man, and man was found; man had perished by his own free will: God made Man came by grace which setteth free.

Fourth Responsory.

O Lord, Thou hast shown me, &c., (p. 213.)

Fifth Lesson.

DOST thou ask how free-will availeth to evil? Call to mind a sinner—Dost thou ask what God made Man availeth to help? Consider in Him the grace which setteth free. There is no example which so showeth what availeth the free will of man, when it is taken possession of by pride, to use it without God's help, of evil is there no greater and plainer example, than the first man. The first man fell: and where had he been if the second Man had not come? As the first was man, so was the second Man, and therefore is this saying a saying made for man.

Fifth Responsory.

I will love Thee, O LORD, &c., (p. 213.)

Sixth Lesson.

NEITHER is there any example which so showeth what availeth the tenderness of the grace and the abundance of the All-might of God, as the Man That is the Mediator between God and men, the Man Christ JESUS. For what do we say, my brethren? I speak to them that have been bred up in the Catholic Church, or who have been reconciled to that Church. We know and hold that the Mediator between God and men, the Man Christ JESUS, as touching His Manhood, is of the same nature as we. For our flesh is not of one nature, and His Flesh of another nature, neither our soul of one nature and His Soul of another nature. He took upon Himself the same nature which He had freely ordained to save.

Sixth Responsory.

The earth is the LORD'S, &c. (p. 214.)

---

[1] Jan. 24. "This letter," says Abp. Kenrick, "is assigned by Hug to Pentecost of the year 59, although others more generally date it as late as 64."

[2] This is the reading of the old Latin version.

[3] Matth. xviii. 11.

THIRD NOCTURN.

Seventh Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Holy Gospel according to Matthew (xiii. 24.)

AT that time: JESUS put forth unto the multitudes this parable: The Kingdom of heaven is likened unto a man which sowed good seed in his field. And so on.

Homily by St Austin, Bishop [of Hippo.] (Quæst. Evan. Matth. xi., Bk. 4.)

When the Shepherds of the Church wax careless, and since the Apostles sleep the sleep of death, cometh the devil, and soweth them whom the Lord calleth "a seed of evil-doers." Now, are these "seed of evil-doers" the heretics, or Catholics of bad lives? It is possible to call even the heretics a "seed of evil-doers" because they have sprung up from the seed of the Gospel, and been begotten in the Name of Christ, though afterwards they have turned after crooked ways and lying doctrines.

Seventh Responsory.

Unto Thee, O LORD, &c., (p. 214.)

Eighth Lesson.

BUT whereas it is written that they were sown in the midst of the wheat, we ought haply to understand that they are of one communion with the righteous. Nevertheless, forasmuch as the Lord saith, "The field is the world," (and not, the Church,) we may well understand that the "seed of evil doers" are the heretics, since in this world they are mingled together with the good, not in one common Communion, but only under one common name of Christian. But they which are of one faith with the good seed, and yet are themselves worthless, may more fitly be likened to straw than to tares, since the straw springeth from one soil and one root with the good ear.

Eighth Responsory.

One Seraph cried, &c., (p. 214.)

Ninth Lesson.

HOWEVER, as touching the net cast into the sea, and enclosing a great multitude of fishes, both bad and good, we may well understand that by the bad are meant Catholics of bad lives. For the sea is one thing whereby we may understand to be signified the world; and the net another, which seemeth to signify our faith, or the Communion of one Church. Between heretics and sinful Catholics there is this difference, that heretics believe a lie, and sinful Catholics believe the truth, but live not as they believe.

The Hymn, "We praise Thee, O God," &c., is said.

LAUDS.

Antiphon at the Song of Zacharias. Sir, didst not thou sow good seed in thy field? * From whence then hath it tares? And he saith unto them: An enemy hath done this.

Prayer throughout the day and week.

O LORD, we beseech Thee to keep Thy family continually in godliness, that they who do lean only upon the hope of Thine heavenly grace, may evermore be defended by Thy mighty power. Through our Lord JESUS Christ Thy Son, Who liveth and reigneth with Thee, in the unity of the Holy Ghost, one God, world without end. Amen.

VESPERS.

Antiphon at the Song of the Blessed Virgin. The master saith: Gather ye together first the tares, * and bind them in bundles to burn them; but gather the wheat into my barn.

Monday.

Second Day.

MATTINS.

First Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the First Epistle of the Blessed Apostle Paul to Timothy (iii. 1.)

THIS is a true saying: If a man desire the office of a Bishop, he desireth a good work. A Bishop then must be blameless, the husband of one wife, sober, prudent, of good behaviour, modest, given to hospitality, apt to teach, not given to wine, no striker, but patient; not a brawler, not covetous; one that ruleth well his own house; having his children in subjection with all modesty. For if a man know not how to rule his own house, how shall he take care of the Church of God? Not a novice, lest being lifted up with pride, he fall into the condemnation of the devil. Moreover, he must have a good report of them which are without, lest he fall into reproach, and the snare of the devil.

First Responsory.

O how great, &c., (p. 209.)

Second Lesson.

LIKEWISE must the Deacons be chaste, not double-tongued, not given to much wine, not greedy of filthy lucre, holding the mystery of the faith in a pure conscience. And let these also first be proved; then let them use the office of a Deacon, being found blameless. Even so must the women[1] be grave, not slanderers, sober, faithful in all things. Let the Deacons be the husbands of one wife; ruling their children and their own houses well. For they that have used the office of a Deacon well, purchase to themselves a good degree, and great boldness in the faith, which is in Christ JESUS.

Second Responsory.

O God, &c., (p. 209.)

Third Lesson.

THESE things write I unto thee, hoping to come unto thee shortly; but if I tarry long, that thou mayest know how thou oughtest to behave thyself in the house of God, which is the Church of the living God, the pillar and ground of the truth. And, without controversy, great is the mystery of godliness, which was manifest in the flesh, justified in the Spirit, seen of Angels, preached unto the Gentiles, believed on in the world, received up into glory. (iv. 1.) But the Spirit speaketh expressly that in the latter times some shall depart from the faith, giving heed to seducing spirits, and doctrines of devils.

[1] Probably Deaconesses.

Third Responsory.

I will bless, &c., (p. 210.)

Tuesday.

Third Day.

MATTINS.

First Lesson.

Here beginneth the [1] Second Epistle of the Blessed Apostle Paul to Timothy (i. 1.)

PAUL, an Apostle of JESUS Christ, by the will of God, according to the promise of life which is in Christ JESUS, to Timothy, my dearly beloved son, grace, mercy, and peace from God the Father, and Christ JESUS our Lord. I thank God, Whom I serve from my forefathers with pure conscience, that without ceasing I have remembrance of thee in my prayers, night and day greatly desiring to see thee, being mindful of thy tears, that I may be filled with joy, when I call to remembrance the unfeigned faith that is in thee, which dwelt first in thy grandmother Loïs, and thy mother Eunicé; and I am persuaded that in thee also.

First Responsory.

O God, give ear, &c., (p. 210.)

Second Lesson.

WHEREFORE, I put thee in remembrance that thou stir up the gift of God which is in thee by the putting on of my hands. For God hath not given us the spirit of fear, but of power, and of love, and of soberness. Be not thou therefore ashamed of the testimony of our Lord, nor of me His prisoner: but be thou partaker of the afflictions of the Gospel according to the power of God, Who hath saved us, and called us with His holy calling, not according to our works, but according to His own purpose and grace which was given us in Christ JESUS before the world began.

Second Responsory.

The Lord hath set, &c., (p. 210.)

Third Lessson.

BUT it is now made manifest by the light of our Saviour JESUS Christ. Who hath abolished death, and hath brought life and immortality to light through the Gospel, whereunto I am appointed a preacher, and an Apostle, and a teacher of the Gentiles. For the which cause I also suffer these things; nevertheless I am not ashamed. For I know Whom I have believed, and am persuaded that He is able to keep that which I have committed unto Him against that day. Hold fast the form of sound words which thou hast heard of me, in faith and love which is in Christ JESUS.

Third Responsory.

I said, &c., (p. 210.)

Wednesday.

Fourth Day.

MATTINS.

First Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Second Epistle of the Blessed Apostle Paul to Timothy (iii. 1.)

THIS know also, that in the last days perilous times shall come: for men shall be lovers of their own selves, covetous, boasters, proud, blasphemers, disobedient to parents, unthankful, unholy, without natural affection, contentious, false accusers, incontinent, fierce, discourteous, traitors, heady, high-minded, and lovers of pleasure more than lovers of God; having a form of godliness, but denying the power thereof. And from such turn away.

First Responsory.

Cut me not off, &c., (p. 211.)

Second Lesson.

FOR of this sort are they which creep into houses, and lead captive silly women laden with sins, led away with divers lusts, ever learning and never able to come to the knowledge of the truth. Now, as Jannes and Mambres [2] withstood Moses, so do these also resist the truth, men of corrupt minds, reprobate concerning the faith: but they shall proceed no further; for their folly shall be manifest unto all men, as theirs also was.

Second Responsory.

My heart is ready, &c., (p. 211.)

Third Lesson.

BUT thou hast been a diligent follower of my doctrine, manner of life, purpose of faith, long-suffering, charity, patience, persecutions, afflictions, which came unto me at Antioch,[3] Iconium, and Lystra, what persecutions I endured; but out of them all the Lord delivered me. Yea, and all that will live godly in Christ JESUS shall suffer persecution. But evil men and seducers shall wax worse and worse, deceiving and being deceived.

Third Responsory.

Unto Thee, &c., (p. 211.)

Thursday.

Fifth Day.

MATTINS.

First Lesson.

Here beginneth the Epistle of the Blessed Apostle Paul to [4] Titus (i. 1.)

PAUL, a servant of God, and an Apostle of JESUS Christ, according to the faith of God's elect, and the acknowledging of the truth which is after godliness, in hope of eternal life which God, That cannot lie, promised before the world began, but hath in His own times manifested His word through preaching, which is committed unto me according to the commandment of God our Saviour; to Titus, my beloved son after the common faith; grace unto thee, and peace, from God the Father, and JESUS Christ our Saviour.

[1] Archbishop Kenrick says,—"The mention of the approaching consummation of [St Paul's] ministry in the last chapter, and some facts . . ., have induced the general opinion that this was the last letter from his pen."

[2] According to Jewish tradition, they were warlocks, disciples of Balaam, who were called in by Pharaoh to oppose Moses in Egypt, and who afterwards accompanied Balaam when he went to curse Israël. The form of their names slightly varies. Accepted Greek, and Vatican Codex, "Jannes and Jambres," Midrash Rabbah, "Yuchni and Mamré." Jonathan ben Uzziel, "Yanis and Yambris," or "Yamreh."

[3] Acts xiii. 50—xiv. 19.

[4] A Gentile disciple, and (probably) convert, of St Paul, by whom he was made Bishop in Crete. See Alban Butler. Jan. 4.

First Responsory.

In Thee, O God, &c., (p. 211.)

Second Lesson.

FOR this cause left I thee in Crete, that thou shouldest set in order the things that are wanting, and ordain Priests in every city, as also I have appointed thee. If any be blameless, the husband of one wife, having faithful children, not accused of riot or unruly. For a Bishop must be blameless, as the steward of God, not proud, not soon angry, not given to wine, no striker, not given to filthy lucre; but a lover of hospitality, courteous, sober, just, holy, temperate, holding fast the faithful word as he hath been taught; that he may be able by sound doctrine both to exhort and to convince the gainsayers.

Second Responsory.

Let my mouth, &c., (p. 211.)

Third Lesson.

FOR there are also many unruly, vain talkers and deceivers, specially they of the circumcision; whose mouths must be stopped; who subvert whole houses, teaching things which they ought not, for filthy lucre's sake. One of themselves, even a prophet of their own,[1] said: "The Cretans are always liars, evil beasts, slow bellies." This witness is true. Wherefore rebuke them sharply, that they may be sound in the faith, not giving heed to Jewish fables, and commandments of men, that turn from the truth. Unto the pure all things are pure; but unto them that are defiled and unbelieving is nothing pure.

Third Responsory.

My lips, &c., (p. 211.)

Friday.

Sixth Day.

MATTINS.

First Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Epistle of the Blessed Apostle Paul to Titus (ii. 15.)

THESE things speak, and exhort, and rebuke with all authority. Let no man despise thee. (iii. 1.) Put them in mind to be subject to princes and powers, to obey orders, to be ready to every good work, to speak evil of no man, to be no brawlers, but gentle, showing all meekness unto all men.

First Responsory.

I will praise, &c., (p. 212.)

Second Lesson.

FOR we ourselves also were sometimes foolish, unbelieving, deceived, serving divers lusts and pleasures, living in malice and envy, hateful, and hating one another. But after that the kindness and love of God our Saviour appeared, not by works of righteousness which we have done, but according to His mercy He saved us, by the laver of regeneration, and renewing of the Holy Ghost, Which He shed on us abundantly through JESUS Christ our Saviour: that, being justified by His grace, we should be made heirs, according to the hope of eternal life.

Second Responsory.

Great, O Lord, &c., (p. 212.)

Third Lesson.

THIS is a faithful saying, and these things I will that thou affirm constantly, that they which have believed in God should be careful to maintain good works. These things are good and profitable unto men. But avoid foolish questions, and genealogies, contentions, and strivings about the law; for they are unprofitable and vain. A man that is an heretic after the first and second admonition avoid, knowing that he that is such is subverted, and sinneth, being condemned of his own judgment.

Third Responsory.

The Lord is, &c., (p. 212.)

Saturday.

The Sabbath.

MATTINS.

First Lesson.

Here beginneth the Epistle of the Blessed Apostle Paul to Philemon (1.)

PAUL, a prisoner of JESUS Christ, and Timothy our brother, unto Philemon our dearly beloved and fellow-labourer, and to our beloved sister Appia, and Archippus our fellow-soldier, and to the Church in thine house. Grace to you, and peace, from God our Father and the Lord JESUS Christ. I thank my God, making mention of thee always in my prayers, hearing of thy love, and faith which thou hast toward the Lord JESUS, and toward all saints: that the communication of thy faith may become evident by the acknowledging of every good work which is in you in Christ JESUS.

First Responsory.

Cut me not off, &c., (p. 211.)

Second Lesson.

FOR I have had great joy and consolation in thy love, because the bowels of the saints are refreshed by thee, brother. Wherefore, though I might be much bold in Christ to enjoin thee that which is convenient, yet for love's sake I rather beseech thee, being such an one as Paul the aged, and now also a prisoner of JESUS Christ. I beseech thee for my son Onesimus,[2] whom I have begotten in my bonds, which in time past was to thee unprofitable, but now profitable to thee, and to me, whom I have sent again to thee.

---

[1] Epimenides.

[2] A run-away slave.

Second Responsory.

My heart is ready, &c., (p. 211.)

Third Lesson.

THOU therefore receive him as mine own bowels; whom I would have retained with me, that in thy stead he might have ministered unto me in the bonds of the Gospel: but without thy mind would I do nothing, that thy benefit should not be, as it were, of necessity, but willingly. For perhaps he therefore departed for a season from thee, that thou shouldest receive him for ever; not now as a servant, but, instead of a servant, a brother beloved, specially to me; but how much more unto thee, in the flesh, and in the Lord? If thou count me therefore a partner, receive him as myself. If he hath wronged thee, or oweth thee aught, put that on mine account. I, Paul, have written it with mine own hand.

Third Responsory.

Unto thee, O my Strength, &c., (p. 211.)

VESPERS.

The Prayer is taken from the Laudsof the succeeding Sunday.

Sixth Sunday after the Epiphany.

The Sixth Lord's Day after the Epiphany.

MATTINS.

FIRST NOCTURN.

First Lesson.

Here beginneth the Epistle of the Blessed Apostle Paul to the Hebrews (i. 1.)

GOD, Who at sundry times[1] and in divers manners spake in time past unto the fathers by the Prophets, hath in these last days spoken unto us by His Son, Whom He hath appointed Heir of all things, by Whom also He made the worlds: Who, being the brightness of His glory, and the express image of His Substance, and upholding all things by the word of His power, when He had purged our sins, sat down on the right hand of the Majesty on high: being made so much better than the angels, as He hath by inheritance obtained a more excellent name than they.

First Responsory.

O God, rebuke me not, &c., (p. 213.)

Second Lesson.

FOR unto which of the angels said He at any time: "Thou art My Son, this day have I begotten Thee?"[2] And again: "I will be to Him a Father, and He shall be to Me a Son?"[3] And again, when He bringeth in the First-begotten into the world, He saith: "And let all the angels of God worship Him."[4] And of the angels He saith: "Who maketh His angels spirits, and His ministers a flame of fire."[5] But unto the Son He saith: "Thy throne, O God, is for ever and ever: a sceptre of righteousness is the sceptre of Thy kingdom. Thou hast loved righteousness and hated iniquity: therefore God, even Thy God, hath anointed Thee with the oil of gladness above Thy fellows."[6]

Second Responsory.

O God, Which satest, &c., (p. 213.)

Third Lesson.

AND: "Thou, Lord, in the beginning hast laid the foundation of the earth, and the heavens are the works of Thine hands. They shall perish, but Thou remainest; and they all shall wax old as doth a garment, and as a vesture shalt Thou change them, and they shall be changed; but Thou art the Same, and Thy years shall not fail."[7] But to which of the angels said He at any time: "Sit Thou at My right hand, until I make Thine enemies Thy footstool?"[8] Are they not all ministering spirits, sent forth to minister for them who shall be heirs of salvation?

Third Responsory.

The Lord is at My right hand, &c., (p. 213.)

SECOND NOCTURN.

Fourth Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Sermons of [9] St Athanasius, Pope [of Alexandria.] (2nd against the Arians.)

IF the heretics had but known the person, the matter, and the times of the Apostle who spoke, they would never have spoken of Godhead as if It were human, nor borne themselves so wickedly, and withal so foolishly against Christ. It will be permitted to us to return, and to take again the first words of the Lesson. The Apostle then saith: "God, Who at sundry times and in divers manners, spake in time past unto the fathers by the Prophets, hath in these last days spoken unto us by His Son"—and again, a little farther on: "When the Son had purged our sins, He sat down on the right hand of the Majesty on high: being made so much better than the angels as He hath by inheritance obtained a more excellent name than they." The Apostle here expressly nameth the times wherein God hath spoken unto us by His Son, and wherein the Same His Son hath purged our sins; for when hath He spoken unto us by His Son, when did the Son purge our sins, or when was He born a Man, but since God spake unto the Fathers by the Prophets, namely, in these last days?

Fourth Responsory.

O Lord, Thou hast shown me, &c., (p. 213.)

Fifth Lesson.

THE Apostle, about to enter on the subject of the Word's human dispensation and the last days, naturally mentioneth first that God had not up to those days been silent, but had spoken unto the fathers by the Prophets: and, after the Prophets had discharged their office, and the law had been given by the ministry of angels, that the Son also came down unto us to minister—and then he addeth, "being made so much better than the angels," to show that as the Son differeth from a servant, so is the ministry of the Son better than the duty and office of servants.

Fifth Responsory.

I will love Thee, O LORD, &c., (p. 213.)

Sixth Lesson.

THE Apostle, therefore, seeing the difference between the new ministry and the old, maketh very bold in writing and speaking to the Jews. For this cause, therefore, he doth not compare the details of the two ministries, and then come to the general conclusion that the new was greater or more honourable than the old, (lest any should understand that the two ministries were of the same kind, and that the conclusion that the new is better is arrived at by comparing the degrees in each of things which they had in common,) but he saith that the Son, "was made better," to distinguish at once and completely the nature of the Son from the nature of things created.

Sixth Responsory.

The earth is the LORD'S, &c., (p. 214.)

THIRD NOCTURN.

Seventh Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Holy Gospel according to Matthew (xiii. 31.)

AT that time: JESUS spake this parable unto the multitude: The kingdom of heaven is like to a grain of mustard-seed, which a man took and sowed in his field. And so on.

Homily by St Jerome, Priest [at Bethlehem.] (Book ii. Comment. on Matth. xiii.)

The kingdom of heaven is the proclamation of the Gospel, and that knowledge of the Scriptures, which leadeth unto life, and whereof it is said to the Jews, "The kingdom of God shall be taken from you, and given to a nation bringing forth the fruits thereof." (Matth. xxi. 43.) Therefore is this kingdom like to a grain of mustard-seed, which a man took and sowed in his field. By the man that sowed it in his field, many understand to be meant the Saviour, because He is the Sower That soweth in the souls of believers; others understand every man that soweth good seed in his own field, that is, in himself and in his own heart.

Seventh Responsory.

Unto Thee, O Lord, &c., (p. 214.)

Eighth Lesson.

WHO is he that soweth, but our own mind and soul, which take the grain from preaching, and by nourishing it in the soil, cause it to sprout in the field of our own breast? The preaching of the Gospel is the least of all doctrines. He that preacheth, for his first lesson, God made man, Christ dead, and the stumbling-block of the Cross, receiveth at first but little credit. Compare such teaching as this with the doctrines of the Philosophers, with their books, their magnificent eloquence, and their rounded sentences, and thou shalt see how the grain of the Gospel, when it is sown, is the humblest of all seeds.

Eighth Responsory.

One Seraph cried, &c., (p. 214.)

Ninth Lesson.

BUT when the doctrines of men grow up, there is therein nothing piercing, nothing healthy, nothing life-giving. The plant is drooping, and delicate, and soft. There are herbs and grass whereof it may truly be said that "the grass withereth and the flower fadeth." (Isa. xl. 8.) But the grain of Gospel seed, though, when it was sown, it seemed to be the least of all seeds, when once it is rooted in the soul of man, or in the whole world, groweth not into an herb, but becometh a tree: so that the birds of the air (whereby we may understand, either the souls of believers, or the [angelic] powers bound to the service of God,) come and lodge in the branches thereof. I consider that the branches of the Gospel tree, which groweth from the grain of mustard-seed, are the divers developments of doctrine, on which the birds above mentioned find resting-places.

The Hymn, "We praise Thee, O God," &c., is said.

LAUDS.

Antiphon at the Song of Zacharias. The kingdom of heaven * is like to a grain of mustard-seed, which is the least of all seeds, but, when it is grown, it is the greatest among herbs.

Prayer throughout the day and week.

GRANT us, we beseech Thee, O Almighty God, ever to think such things as be reasonable, and in every word and work of ours, to do always that is well pleasing in Thy sight. Through our Lord JESUS Christ, Thy Son, Who liveth and reigneth with Thee, in the unity of the Holy Ghost, One God, world without end. Amen.

VESPERS.

Antiphon at the Song of the Blessed Virgin. The kingdom of heaven * is like unto leaven, which a woman took and hid in three measures of meal till the whole was leavened.

Monday.

Second Day.

MATTINS.

First Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Epistle to the Hebrews (iii. 1.)

WHEREFORE, holy brethren, partakers of the heavenly calling, consider the Apostle and High Priest of our confession, even JESUS; Who is faithful to Him That hath appointed Him, as also Moses was faithful in all His house. For He was counted worthy of more glory than Moses, inasmuch as He Who hath builded the house hath more honour than the house. For every house is builded by some one; but He That hath made all things, is God.

First Responsory.

O how great, &c., (p. 209.)

Second Lesson.

AND Moses verily was faithful in all His house, as a servant, for a testimony of those things which were to be spoken after: but Christ, as a Son, over His own house; which house we are, if we hold fast the confidence, and the glory of the hope, firm unto the end. Wherefore, as the Holy Ghost saith: "To-day if ye will hear His voice, harden not your hearts; as in 'the Provocation,' and as in the day 'of Temptation' in the wilderness."

Second Responsory.

O God, &c., (p. 209.)

Third Lesson.

TAKE heed, brethren, lest there be in any of you an evil heart of unbelief, in departing from the living God; but exhort one another daily, while it is called "To-day," lest any of you be hardened through the deceitfulness of sin. For we are made partakers of Christ, if we hold the beginning of our confidence[1] steadfast unto the end. While it is said: "To-day, if ye will hear His voice, harden not your hearts, as in 'the Provocation'"—for some, when they had heard, did provoke, howbeit not all that came out of Egypt by Moses.[2]

Third Responsory.

I will bless, &c., (p. 210.)

Tuesday.

Third Day.

MATTINS.

First Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Epistle to the Hebrews (iv. 1.)

LET us therefore fear, lest, a promise being left us of entering into His rest, any of you should seem to come short of it. For unto us was the Gospel preached, as well as unto them. But the word of hearing did not profit them, not being mixed with faith in them that heard it. For we which have believed do enter into rest, as He said:—"Unto whom I sware in My wrath, that they should not enter into My rest"—although the works were finished from the foundation of the world.

First Responsory.

O God, give ear, &c., (p. 210.)

Second Lesson.

FOR He spake in a certain place (Gen. ii. 2) of the seventh day on this wise: "And God did rest the seventh day from all His works." And in this place again: "They should not enter into My rest." Seeing, therefore, it remaineth that some must enter therein, and they to whom it was first preached entered not in, because of unbelief: again He limiteth a certain day, saying in David: "To-day"—(after so long a time, as it is said above)—"To-day if ye will hear His voice, harden not your hearts."

Second Responsory.

The Lord hath set, &c., (p. 210.)

Third Lesson.

FOR if Jesus[3] had given them rest, then would he not afterward have spoken of another day. There remaineth therefore a rest[4] to the people of God. For he that is entered into his rest, he also hath ceased from his own works, as God did from His. Let us labour, therefore, to enter into that rest, lest any man fall after the same example of unbelief. For the word of God is quick and powerful, and sharper than any two-edged sword, piercing even to the dividing asunder of soul and spirit, and of the joints and marrow, and is a discerner of the thoughts and intents of the heart.

Third Responsory.

I said, &c., (p. 210.)

Wednesday.

Fourth Day.

MATTINS.

First Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Epistle to the Hebrews (vi. 1.)

THEREFORE, leaving the principles of the doctrine of Christ, let us go unto things more perfect, not laying again the foundation of repentance from dead works, and of faith toward God, of the doctrine of baptisms, and of laying on of hands, and of resurrection of the dead, and of eternal judgment. And this will we do, if God permit.

First Responsory.

Cut me not off, &c., (p. 211.)

Second Lesson.

FOR it is impossible for those who were once enlightened, and have tasted of the heavenly Gift, and were made partakers of the Holy Ghost, and have tasted the good word of God, and the powers of the world to come, if they shall fall away, to renew them again unto repentance; seeing they crucify to themselves the Son of God afresh, and put Him to an open shame.

Second Responsory.

My heart is ready, &c., (p. 211.)

Third Lesson.

FOR the earth which drinketh in the rain that cometh oft upon it, and bringeth forth herbs meet for them by whom it is dressed, receiveth blessing from God. But that which beareth thorns and briers is rejected, and is nigh unto a curse: whose end is to be burned. But, beloved, we are persuaded better things of you, and things nearer to salvation, though we so speak. For God is not unrighteous, to forget your work, and the love which ye have showed in His name, in that ye have ministered to the saints, and do minister.

[4] Relinquitur sabbatismus; literally "the keeping of a Sabbath;" Rheims has, very elegantly, "a day of rest," but there is nothing about a day in the original, and the words are given in the text in that form in which they have become something like a pious proverb.

Third Responsory.

Unto Thee, &c., (p. 211.)

Thursday.

Fifth Day.

MATTINS.

First Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Epistle to the Hebrews (vii. 1.)

FOR this Melchisedek, King of Salem, Priest of the Most High God, who met Abraham returning from the slaughter of the kings, and blessed him; to whom also Abraham gave a tenth part of all; first, being, by interpretation, King of Righteousness, and, after that, also King of Salem, which is, King of Peace; without father, without mother, without descent, having neither beginning of days nor end of life, but made like unto the Son of God, abideth a Priest continually.

First Responsory.

In Thee, O God, &c., (p. 211.)

Second Lesson.

NOW consider how great this man was, unto whom even the Patriarch Abraham gave the tenth of the choicest spoils. And, verily, they that are of the sons of Levi, who receive the office of the priesthood, have a commandment to take tithes of the people according to the law, that is, of their brethren, though they come out of the loins of Abraham. But he whose descent is not counted from them, received tithes of Abraham, and blessed him that had the promises.

Second Responsory.

Let my mouth, &c., (p. 211.)

Third Lesson.

AND, without all contradiction, the less is blessed of the greater. And here men that die receive tithes: but there, he receiveth them, of whom it is witnessed that he liveth. And (as I may say) Levi also, who receiveth tithes, payed tithes in Abraham; for he was yet in the loins of his father when Melchisedek met him. If therefore perfection were by the Levitical priesthood, (for under it the people received the law,) what further need was there that another Priest should rise after the order of Melchisedek, and not be called after the order of Aaron? For the priesthood being moved there is made of necessity a change also of the law.

Third Responsory.

My lips, &c., (p. 211.)

Friday.

Sixth Day.

MATTINS.

First Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Epistle to the Hebrews (xi. 1.)

NOW faith is the substance of things hoped for, the evidence of things not seen. For by it the elders obtained a good report. Through faith we understand that the worlds were framed by the word of God, so that things which are seen were not made of things which do appear. By faith Abel offered unto God a more excellent sacrifice than Cain: by which he obtained witness that he was righteous, God testifying of his gifts, and by it he, being dead, yet speaketh.

First Responsory.

I will praise, &c., (p. 212.)

Second Lesson.

BY faith Enoch was translated that he should not see death, and was not found, because God had translated him: for, before his translation, he had this testimony, that he pleased God. But without faith it is impossible to please God. For he that cometh to God must believe that He is, and that He is a rewarder of them that diligently seek Him. By faith, Noah, being warned of God of things not seen as yet, moved with fear, prepared an ark to the saving of his house, by the which he condemned the world, and became heir of the righteousness which is by faith.

Second Responsory.

Great, O Lord, &c., (p. 212.)

Third Lesson.

BY faith he whose name is called Abraham, obeyed the command to go out into a place which he should after receive for an inheritance, and he went out, not knowing whither he went. By faith he sojourned in the land of promise, as in a strange country, dwelling in tabernacles with Isaac and Jacob, the heirs with him of the same promise. For he looked for a city which hath foundations, whose Builder and Maker is God.[1]

Third Responsory.

The Lord is, &c., (p. 212.)

Saturday.

The Sabbath.

MATTINS.

First Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Epistle to the Hebrews (xiii. 1.)

LET brotherly love continue among you. Be not forgetful to entertain strangers: for thereby some have entertained angels unawares. Remember them that are in bonds, as bound with them; and them which suffer adversity, as being yourselves also in the body. Let marriage be honourable in all, and the bed undefiled. But whoremongers and adulterers God will judge.

---

[1] The reader is vehemently urged to finish reading this sublime chapter for himself.

First Responsory.

Cut me not off, &c., (p. 211.)

Second Lesson.

LET your conversation be without covetousness, and be content with such things as ye have. For He hath said: I will never leave thee, nor forsake thee:"[1] so that we may boldly say: "The LORD is mine helper, and I will not fear what man shall do unto me."[2] Remember them which have the rule over you, who have spoken unto you the word of God; whose faith follow, considering the end of their conversation, JESUS Christ, the Same yesterday, and today, and for ever.

Second Responsory.

My heart is ready, &c., (p. 211.)

Third Lesson.

BE not carried about with divers and strange doctrines. For it is a good thing that the heart be established with grace, not with meats; which have not profited them that have been occupied therein. We have an Altar, whereof they have no right to eat which serve the tabernacle. For the bodies of those beasts whose blood is brought into the Sanctuary by the High Priest for sin, are burned without the camp. Wherefore JESUS also, that He might sanctify the people with His own Blood, suffered without the gate.

Third Responsory.

Unto Thee, O my Strength, &c., (p. 211.)

Note. If there be less than six weeks between the Epiphany and Septuagesima, as many of the foregoing weeks as may be necessary are omitted, and the Office commences on the evening before Septuagesima Sunday as immediately hereafter given; but the Antiphons, Prayers, and Homilies of the omitted Sundays are afterwards used for the latter Sundays before Advent.

Saturday before Septuagesima Sunday.

The Sabbath before the Lord's Day within Seventy Days of Easter.

VESPERS.

The Chapter and Prayer are taken from the Lauds of the next morning.

Antiphon at the Song of the Blessed Virgin. The Lord said unto Adam: * Of the tree which is in the midst of the garden thou shalt not eat: in the hour that thou eatest thereof, thou shalt surely die.

At the end, the words, "Bless we the Lord, are said thus—

Verse. Bless we the Lord—Alleluia, Alleluia.
Answer. Thanks be to God—Alleluia, Alleluia.

This is the Farewell to the Alleluia, which word is not uttered in the Office again till Easter. At the Compline of this evening and every other Service, after the "Glory be to the Father, &c.," at the beginning, instead of "Alleluia," is said:

Ceaseless praise to Thee be given,
O Eternal King of Heaven.

If the Vespers of this evening be of a Festival, a Commemoration is made of the Saturday, and the Farewell to the Alleluia takes place as above.

If from Septuagesima to Low Sunday, both inclusive, a Feast fall on a Sunday, it is transferred, or simplified, unless it be a Double of the First Class, as the Patronal Feast, or the Anniversary of the Consecration of the Church where the Service takes place, to which occasions yield all the Sundays except the First in Lent, and Passion, Palm, Easter, and Low Sundays.[3]

Septuagesima Sunday.

The Lord's Day within Seventy Days of Easter.

MATTINS.

Invitatory. Let us come before the presence of the Lord: * and make a joyful noise unto Him with Psalms.

The Second half of the First Verse of the XCIVth Psalm, (Let us come, &c.,) is omitted.

FIRST NOCTURN.

First Lesson.

Here beginneth the Book of Genesis (i. 1.)

IN the beginning God created the heavens and the earth. And the earth was without form and void, and darkness was upon the face of the deep: and the Spirit of God moved upon the face of the waters. And God said: Let there be light. And there was light. And God saw the light, that it was good; and God divided the light from the darkness; and God called the light Day, and the darkness He called Night: and the evening and the morning were the first day. And God said: Let there be a firmament in the midst of the waters, and let it divide the waters from the waters. And God made the firmament, and divided the waters which were under the firmament from the waters which were above the firmament. And it was so. And God called the firmament Heaven: and the evening and the morning were the second day.

First Responsory.

In the beginning God created the heavens and the earth, wherein He made man also, after His own image and likeness.
Verse. [4] So God formed man of the dust of the ground, and breathed into his face the breath of life.
Answer. After His own image and likeness.

Second Lesson.

AND God said: Let the waters under the heaven be gathered together unto one place, and let the dry land appear. And it was so. And God called the dry land, Earth; and the gathering together of the waters called He Seas. And God saw that it was good. And God said; Let the earth bring forth the green herb yielding seed, and the fruit-tree yielding fruit after his kind, whose seed is in itself, upon the earth. And it was so. And the earth brought forth the green herb yielding seed after his kind, and the tree yielding fruit, whose seed was in itself, after his kind. And God saw that it was good. And the evening and the morning were the third day. And God said: Let there be lights in the firmament of the heaven, and let them divide the day from the night; and let them be for signs, and for seasons, and for days and years; and let them be for lights in the firmament of heaven; and let them give light upon the earth. And it was so. And God made two great lights, the greater light to rule the day; and the lesser light to rule the night; He made the stars also. And God set them in the firmament of the heaven, to give light upon the earth, and to rule over the day and over the night, and to divide the light from the darkness. And God saw that it was good. And the evening and the morning were the fourth day.

[1] Josh. i. 5.

[2] Ps. cxvii. 6.

[3] [Only Doubles Major and Feasts of Doctors may be transferred.]

[4] Gen. ii. 7.

Second Responsory.

In the beginning God created the heavens and the earth, and the Spirit of God moved upon the face of the waters. [1] And God saw everything that He had made, and it was very good.

Verse. [2] Thus the heavens and the earth were finished, and all the hosts of them.

Answer. And God saw everything that He had made, and it was very good.

Third Lesson.

AND God said: Let the waters bring forth abundantly the moving creature that hath life, and fowl that may fly above the earth in the open firmament of heaven. And God created great whales, and every living creature that moveth, which the waters brought forth abundantly after their kind, and every winged fowl after his kind. And God saw that it was good. And God blessed them, saying: Be fruitful and multiply, and fill the waters in the seas, and let fowl multiply in the earth. And the evening and the morning were the fifth day. And God said: Let the earth bring forth the living creature after his kind, cattle and creeping thing, and beast of the earth after his kind. And it was so. And God made the beast of the earth after his kind, and cattle, and everything that creepeth upon the earth after his kind. And God saw that it was good. And God said: Let Us make man after Our Own image and likeness, and let him have dominion over the fish of the sea, and over the fowl of the air, and over the cattle, and over all the earth, and over every creeping thing that creepeth upon the earth.

Third Responsory.

The LORD formed man of the dust of the ground, and breathed into his face the breath of life, and man became a living soul.

Verse. In the beginning God created the heavens and the earth, wherein He made man also.

Answer. And breathed into his face the breath of life, and man became a living soul.

Verse. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, and to the Holy Ghost.

Answer. And breathed into his face the breath of life, and man became a living soul.

SECOND NOCTURN.

Fourth Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the book intituled "The Handbook," written by St Austin, Bishop [of Hippo.] (Chaps. xxv., xxvi., xxvii., tom. 3.)

THE Lord threatened man with the punishment of death, in case he sinned. Thus did He gift him with free will, while He yet kept His lordship over him, and helped him with the dread of destruction. And so He put him in that happy garden, under the very shadow of the tree of life, in that good place from whence, had he kept his righteousness, he might have passed to a better. But the first man sinned, and was banished from Eden, and infected all his descendants with the disease of sin, poisoning their very root, and bringing upon all that sentence of death and damnation, which he had earned for himself. So that all that descend by fleshly generation from Adam, and from the guilty woman, who was the cause of his sin and the partaker of his punishment, derive from them original sin; whereby they are drawn through a way of divers sins and sorrows, towards that final ruin which they shall share with the rebel angels who are at once their corrupters, their lords, and their comrades.

Fourth Responsory.

God took the man and put him into the garden of Eden, to dress it and to keep it.

Verse. [3] And the LORD God had planted a garden aforetime in Eden, and there He put the man whom He had formed.

Answer. To dress it and to keep it.

Fifth Lesson.

SO "by one man sin entered into the world, and death by sin, (and so death passed upon all men,) in whom all have sinned." (Rom. v. 12.) By the world the Apostle signifieth in this place all mankind. Thus then hath the matter stood. The damned mass of humanity lay in misery, or rather wallowed in it, and fell from bad to worse, till it joined the company of the sinning angels, and both together suffered the deserved punishment of their vile treason.

Fifth Responsory.

The LORD God said: It is not good that the man should be alone. Let Us make an help meet for him.

Verse. But for Adam there was not found an help meet for him; and God said—

Answer. Let Us make an help meet for him.

Sixth Lesson.

TO the wrath of God appertaineth whatever sin man, through the blind and untamed sting of his flesh, willingly committeth, and whatever punishment, declared and open, he unwillingly suffereth. There is, indeed, no pause in that goodness of the Creator whereby He giveth even to the traitor angels life and strength, (which if He gave not, they would be annihilated,) and whereby He formeth the seed of men, though they come of a corrupt and condemned stock, quickeneth them, strengtheneth and fitteth their limbs for the changing seasons of their life, extendeth their knowledge in divers places, and giveth them whereon to live. It hath been His will rather to draw good out of evil, than to suffer that there should be no evil.

[1] Gen. i. 31.

[2] Gen. ii. 1.

[3] i. 8.

Sixth Responsory.

[1] The LORD caused a deep sleep to fall upon Adam, and He took one of his ribs. And the rib which the LORD had taken from Adam, made He a woman, and brought her unto Adam, to see what he would call her. And he called her name Woman, because she was taken out of Man.[2]

Verse. And while he slept He took one of his ribs, and closed up the flesh instead thereof.

Answer. And the rib which the LORD had taken from Adam made He a woman, and brought her unto Adam, to see what he would call her.

Verse. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, and to the Holy Ghost.

Answer. And he called her name Woman, because she was taken out of Man.

THIRD NOCTURN.

Seventh Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Holy Gospel according to Matthew (xx. 1.)

AT that time: JESUS spake this parable unto His Disciples: The kingdom of heaven is like unto a man that is an householder, which went out early in the morning to hire labourers into his vineyard. And so on.

Homily by Pope St Gregory [the Great.] (19th on the Gospels.)

We hear that the kingdom of heaven is like unto a man that is an householder, which went out early in the morning, to hire labourers into his vineyard. Who indeed is more justly to be likened to an householder than our Maker, Who is the Head of the household of faith, bearing rule over them whom He hath made, and being Master of His chosen ones in the world, as a Master over those that are in his house? He it is That hath the Church for a vineyard, a vineyard that ceaseth not to bring forth branches of the True Vine, from righteous Abel to the last of the elect that shall be born in the world.

Seventh Responsory.

And the LORD God had planted a garden aforetime in Eden, and there He put the man whom He had formed.

Verse. And out of the ground made the LORD God to grow every tree that is pleasant to the sight, and good for food, the tree of life also in the midst of the garden.

Answer. And there He put the man whom He had formed.

Eighth Lesson.

THIS householder, then, for the cultivation of his vineyard, goeth out early in the morning, and at the third hour, and the sixth hour, and the ninth hour, and the eleventh hour, to hire labourers into his vineyard. Thus the Lord, from the beginning to the end of the world, ceaseth not to gather together preachers for the instruction of His faithful people. The early morning of the world was from Adam until Noah; the third hour from Noah until Abraham; the sixth hour from Abraham until Moses; the ninth hour from Moses until the coming of the Lord; the eleventh hour from the coming of the Lord until the end of the world. At this eleventh hour are sent forth as preachers the Holy Apostles, who have received full wages, albeit they be come in late.

Eighth Responsory.

[3] Behold, Adam is become as One of Us, to know good and evil. See lest he take of the tree of life and live for ever.

Verse. Unto Adam also did the LORD God make a coat of skins, and clothed him, and said:—

Answer. See lest he take of the tree of life and live for ever.

Ninth Lesson.

FOR the cultivation of His vineyard, (that is, the instruction of His people,) the Lord hath never ceased to send into it labourers. First, by the Fathers, then, by the Prophets and Teachers of the Law, and lastly, by the Apostles He hath dressed and tended the lives of His people, as the owner of a vineyard dresseth and tendeth it by means of workmen. Whoever in whatever degree joined to a right faith the teaching of righteousness, was so far one of God's labourers in God's vineyard. By the labourers at early morning, and at the third hour, the sixth hour, and the ninth hour, may be understood God's ancient people, the Hebrews, who strove to worship Him with a right faith in company with His chosen ones from the very beginning of the world, and thus continually laboured in His vineyard. And now, at the eleventh hour, it is said unto the Gentiles also: "Why stand ye here all the day idle?"

The Hymn, "We praise Thee, O God," &c., is not said on this or any other Sunday before Easter.

Ninth Responsory.

[4] The LORD said unto Cain: Where is Abel thy brother? Lord, I know not: am I my brother's keeper? And He said unto him: What hast thou done? Behold, the voice of thy brother Abel's blood crieth unto Me from the ground.

Verse. Cursed shalt thou be upon the earth, which hath opened her mouth to receive thy brother's blood from thy hand.

Answer. Behold, the voice of thy brother Abel's blood crieth unto Me from the ground.

Verse. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, and to the Holy Ghost.

[1] ii. 21-23.

Monday.

Second Day.

First Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Book of Genesis (i. 27.)

SO God created man in His Own image; in the image of God created He him: male and female created He them. And God blessed them, and said unto them: Be fruitful, and multiply, and replenish the earth, and subdue it; and have dominion over the fish of the sea, and over the fowl of the air, and over every living thing that moveth upon the earth. And God said: Behold, I have given you every herb bearing seed which is upon the face of the earth, and every tree in the which is the fruit of a tree yielding seed, to you it shall be for meat. And to every beast of the earth, and to every fowl of the air, and to every thing that creepeth upon the earth wherein there is life, [I have given it] for meat. And it was so. And God saw everything that He had made, and it was very good. And the evening and the morning were the Sixth Day.

First Responsory.

[3] When the Lord walked in the garden in the cool of the day, He called, and said: Adam, where art thou? Lord, I heard Thy voice, and I hid myself.
Verse. I heard Thy voice in the garden, and I was afraid, because I was naked.
Answer. And I hid myself.

Second Lesson.

THUS the heavens and the earth were finished, and all the host of them. And on the seventh day God ended His work which He had made; and He rested on the seventh day from all His work which He had made.

---

[1] Dan. iii. 56.

[2] Greek, denarion. Its value was nearly a shilling.

[3] iii. 8-10.

And God blessed the seventh day and sanctified it, because that in it He had rested from all His work, which He created and made. These are the generations of the heavens and of the earth, when they were created, in the day that the LORD God made the heavens and the earth, and every plant of the field before it sprung up in the earth, and every herb of the field before it grew: for the LORD God had not caused it to rain upon the earth, and there was not a man to till the ground; but there rose up a spring[1] from the earth and watered the whole face of the ground.

Second Responsory.

[2] The Lord said unto Adam; In the sweat of thy face shalt thou eat bread; when thou tillest the ground it shall not henceforth yield unto thee her fruits. Thorns also and thistles shall it bring forth to thee.

Verse. Because thou hast hearkened unto the voice of thy wife, and hast eaten of the tree which I commanded thee, saying: Thou shalt not eat of it,—cursed is the ground whereon thou shalt labour.

Answer. Thorns also and thistles shall it bring forth to thee.

Third Lesson.

SO the LORD God formed man of the dust of the ground, and breathed into his face the breath of life, and man became a living soul. And the LORD God had planted a garden aforetime in Eden, and there He put the man whom He had formed. And out of the ground made the LORD God to grow every tree that is pleasant to the sight, and good for food: the tree of life also in the midst of the garden, and the tree of knowledge of good and evil. And a river went out of Eden to water the garden, and from thence it was parted, and became into four heads.

Third Responsory.

The LORD formed man, &c., (p. 231.)

VESPERS.

Antiphon at the Song of the Blessed Virgin. These last have wrought but one hour, * and thou hast made them equal unto us, which have borne the burden and heat of the day.

Tuesday.

Third Day.

First Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Book of Genesis (ii. 15.)

SO the LORD God took the man and put him into the garden of Eden, to dress it and to keep it; and He commanded him, saying: Of every tree of the garden thou mayest freely eat; but of the tree of the knowledge of good and evil, thou shalt not eat of it: for in the day that thou eatest thereof thou shalt surely die. And the LORD God said: It is not good that the man should be alone; let Us make him an help meet for him.

First Responsory.

God took the man, &c., (p. 231.)

Second Lesson.

SO out of the ground the LORD God formed every beast of the field, and every fowl of the air, and brought them unto Adam, to see what he would call them. And whatsoever Adam called every living creature, that was the name thereof. And Adam gave names to all cattle, and to every fowl of the air, and to every beast of the field. But for Adam there was not found an help meet for him.

Second Responsory.

The LORD God said, &c., (p. 231.)

Third Lesson.

AND the LORD God caused a deep sleep to fall upon Adam. And while he slept, He took one of his ribs, and closed up the flesh instead thereof. And the rib which the LORD God had taken from Adam made He a woman, and brought her unto Adam. And Adam said: This is now bone of my bones, and flesh of my flesh: she shall be called Woman, because she was taken out of Man. Therefore shall a man leave his father and his mother; and shall cleave unto his wife; and they twain shall be one flesh.

Third Responsory.

The LORD caused, &c., (p. 232.)

VESPERS.

Antiphon at the Song of the Blessed Virgin. And the householder said: * Friend, I do thee no wrong: didst not thou agree with me for a penny? Take that is thine, and go thy way.

Wednesday.

Fourth Day.

First Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Book of Genesis (iii. 1.)

NOW the serpent was more subtle than any beast of the field which the LORD God had made. And he said unto the woman: Why hath God said ye shall not eat of every tree of the garden? And the woman said unto the serpent: We may eat of the fruit of the trees of the garden; but of the fruit of the tree which is in the midst of the garden, God hath said: Ye shall not eat of it, neither shall ye touch it, lest ye die. And the serpent said unto the woman: Ye shall not surely die. For God doth know that in the day ye eat thereof, then your eyes shall be opened, and ye shall be as gods, knowing good and evil. And the woman saw that the tree was good for food, and that it was pleasant to the eyes, and a tree to be desired: and she took of the fruit thereof, and did eat, and gave also unto her husband with her, and he did eat. And the eyes of them both were opened.

First Responsory.

And the LORD God, &c., (p. 232.)

Second Lesson.

AND when they knew that they were naked, they sewed fig-leaves together, and made themselves aprons. And they heard the voice of the Lord God walking in the garden in the cool of the day; and Adam and his wife hid themselves from the presence of the Lord God amidst the trees of the garden. And the Lord God called unto Adam, and said unto him: Where art thou? And he said: I heard Thy voice in the garden, and I was afraid, because I was naked, and I hid myself. And He said: Who told thee that thou wast naked? Hast thou eaten of the tree whereof I commanded thee that thou shouldest not eat? And Adam said: The woman, whom Thou gavest me to be with me, she gave me of the tree, and I did eat. And the Lord God said unto the Woman: Wherefore hast thou done this? And she said: The serpent beguiled me, and I did eat.

---

[1] Hebrew, "a mist."

[2] iii. 19; iv. 12.

Second Responsory.

Behold, Adam is become, &c., (p. 232.)

Third Lesson.

AND the Lord God said unto the serpent: Because thou hast done this, thou art cursed above all cattle, and above every beast of the field; upon thy belly shalt thou go, and dust shalt thou eat all the days of thy life. I will put enmity between thee and the woman, and between thy seed and her seed; she[1] shall bruise thy head, and thou shalt bruise her heel. And unto the woman he said: I will greatly multiply thy sorrows and thy conception: in sorrow shalt thou bring forth children, and thou shalt be in the power of thy husband, and he shall rule over thee. And unto Adam He said: Because thou hast hearkened unto the voice of thy wife, and hast eaten of the tree of which I commanded thee, saying: Thou shalt not eat of it—cursed is the ground whereon thou shalt labour; in sorrow shalt thou eat of it all the days of thy life. Thorns also and thistles shall it bring forth to thee, and thou shalt eat the herb of the field. In the sweat of thy face shalt thou eat bread, till thou return unto the ground; for out of it wast thou taken; for dust thou art, and unto dust thou shalt return. And Adam called his wife's name Eve,[2] because she was the mother of all living.

Third Responsory.

The Lord said unto Cain, &c., (p. 232.)

VESPERS.

Antiphon at the Song of the Blessed Virgin. Take that thine is, * and go thy way; for I am good, saith the Lord.

Thursday.

Fifth Day.

MATTINS.

First Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Book of Genesis (iv. 1.)

AND Adam knew his wife, and she conceived, and bare Cain, and said: I have gotten a man from God.[3] And she again bare his brother Abel —and Abel was a keeper of sheep, but Cain was a tiller of the ground. And in process of time it came to pass that Cain brought of the fruit of the ground an offering unto the Lord. And Abel, he also brought of the firstlings of his flock, and of the fat thereof. And the Lord had respect to Abel, and to his offering. But unto Cain and to his offering He had not respect: and Cain was very wroth, and his countenance fell. And the Lord said unto him: Why art thou wroth? and why is thy countenance fallen? If thou doest well shalt thou not be accepted? and if thou doest not well, doth not sin lie at the door?[4] But the desire thereof is under thee, and thou hast control over it.

First Responsory.

In the beginning, &c., (First Responsory on Sunday, p. 230.)

Second Lesson.

AND Cain said unto Abel his brother; Let us go forth abroad. And when they were in the field, Cain rose up against Abel his brother, and slew him. And the Lord said unto Cain: Where is Abel thy brother? And he said: I know not; am I my brother's keeper? And He said unto him: What hast thou done? The voice of thy brother's blood crieth unto Me from the ground. Now, therefore, cursed shalt thou be upon the earth, which hath opened her mouth to receive thy brother's blood from thy hand. When thou tillest the ground it shall not henceforth yield unto thee her fruits: a fugitive and a vagabond shalt thou be on the earth.

Second Responsory.

In the beginning, &c., (Second Responsory on Sunday, p. 231.)

Third Lesson.

AND Cain said unto the Lord: My sin is too great for me to gain pardon thereof.[5] Behold, Thou hast driven me out this day from the face of the earth, and from Thy face shall I be hid, and I shall be a fugitive and a vagabond in the earth. Every one therefore that findeth me shall slay me. And the Lord said unto him: It shall not be so: but whosoever slayeth Cain, vengeance shall be taken on him sevenfold. And the Lord set a mark upon Cain, lest any finding him should kill him. And Cain went out from the presence of the Lord, and dwelt a vagabond in the land on the East of Eden.

[1] Ipsa. Abp. Kenrick remarks that two MSS. examined by Kennicott read as the Vulgate, and that in the very ancient style of the Pentateuch the gender of the Pronoun (without points) is common. "The verb, however, is masculine, and the text is applied by St Irenæus to Christ as 'the Seed predestined to trample under foot the seed of the serpent.'" See also the Breviary itself, on March 25. (Fourth Lesson.) [Scholars now agree that the "ipsa" of the Vulgate here is a scribal error, and that the passage refers to Christ.]

[2] Chavah=Life.

[3] The name.

[4] Like a beast of prey lying in wait. (Gesenius.) The Targum of Jonathan ben Uzziel on the whole passage is: "If thou doest thy work well, will not thy guilt be forgiven thee? But if thou doest not thy work well in this world, thy sin is retained unto the day of the great judgment, and at the doors of thy heart lieth thy sin. And into thy hand have I delivered the power over evil passion, and unto thee shall be the inclination thereof, that thou mayest have authority over it, to become righteous, or to sin." (Etheridge's translation, I. 170.)

[5] The Jerusalem Targum softens the hopelessness of this exclamation. "My sins are greater than can be borne. Nevertheless there is power before Thee to absolve and forgive me." (Etheridge's translation, I. 172.)

Third Responsory.

The LORD formed man, &c., (p. 231.)

At the beginning of the Martyrology, is said,

On the morrow we commemorate the prayer of our Lord JESUS Christ at the foot of the Mount of Olives.

FIRST VESPERS.

Antiphons, Chapter, and Prayer from Lauds.

Last Psalm.

Ps. cxvi. O praise the LORD, &c., (p. 105.)

Hymn.[1]

SEE the Eternal Word descending
From the throne of bliss supreme,
Love-constrained, His way now wending
Adam's children to redeem.

Pitying the world's disaster,
Yearning to repair its fall,
Prone upon the earth, our Master
Prays for pardon for us all.

O what anguish, what affliction
Hemmed Him round on every side.
Who shall tell His dereliction!
While His suppliant accents cried—

"O My Father! O My Father!
Let this Chalice pass away—
Yet not My will, Thy will rather
Be accomplishèd this day—"

'Neath that load of anguish sinking
Drops of Blood stood on His Brow—
Wondering earth in silence drinking
One by one the Drops that flow.

But an angel swiftly gliding
Comes from heaven to His aid;
And that Form the Godhead hiding
Comfort seeks from those He made.

To the Father praise be given—
Praise the Son, Whose Name is greater
Than all names beneath the heaven,—
Praise the Spirit, every creature. Amen.

Verse. [2] My soul is exceeding sorrowful,
Answer. Even unto death.

Antiphon at the Song of the Blessed Virgin. [3] He kneeled down, and prayed, saying: Father, if Thou be willing, remove this cup from Me; nevertheless, not My will, but Thine, be done.

MATTINS.

Invitatory. Christ JESUS Who prayed at the foot of the Mount of Olives, * Him, O come, let us worship!

Hymn from Vespers.

FIRST NOCTURN.

First Antiphon. [4] Before thou prayest, prepare thy soul, and be not as one that tempteth God.

Ps. xvi. Hear my right, O LORD, &c., (p. 7.)

Second Antiphon. [5] Let nothing hinder thee to pray always, and defer not until death to be justified.

Ps. xxiv. Unto Thee, O LORD, &c., (p. 26.)

Third Antiphon. [6] All things whatsoever ye shall ask in prayer, believing, ye shall receive.

Ps. cxli. I cried unto the LORD, &c., (p. 113.)

Verse. My soul is exceeding sorrowful,
Answer. Even unto death.

First Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Book of Tobias (xii. 8-13.)

PRAYER is good with fasting, and to lay up alms rather than to lay up stores of gold. For alms doth deliver from death, and the same it is which purgeth away sin, and causeth to find mercy and everlasting life. But they that work sin and iniquity are enemies of their own soul. Therefore I show you the truth, and will not keep an hidden matter back from you. When thou didst pray with tears, and bury the dead, and leave thy dinner, and hide the dead in thine house by day, and bury them by night, I did bring up thy prayer before the Lord. And because thou wast accepted with God, it was needs that temptation should try thee.

First Responsory.

[7] In everything give thanks. Pray without ceasing.
Verse. For this is the will of God in Christ JESUS concerning you all.
Answer. Pray without ceasing.

Second Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Epistle of the Blessed Apostle James (v. 16.)

PRAY one for another, that ye may be healed, for the fervent prayer of a righteous man availeth much. Elias was a man subject to like passions as we are, and he prayed earnestly that it might not rain upon the earth, and it rained not by the space of three years and six months. And he prayed again, and the heaven gave rain, and the earth brought forth her fruit. Brethren, if any of you do err from the truth, and one convert him, let him know that he which converteth a sinner from the error of his way shall save his soul from death, and shall hide a multitude of sins.

Second Responsory.

When [8] ye stand praying, forgive, if ye have aught against any.
Verse. That your Father also Who is in heaven may forgive you your trespasses.
Answer. Forgive, if ye have aught against any.

Third Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Epistle of the Blessed Apostle Paul to the Hebrews (v. 5.)

Christ glorified not Himself to be made an High Priest, but He That said unto Him: "Thou art My Son, to-day have I begotten Thee." (Ps. ii. 7.) As He saith also in another place: "Thou art a Priest for ever, after the order of Melchisedek." (Ps. cix. 4.) Who, in the days of His flesh, when He had offered up prayers and supplications, with strong crying and tears, unto Him That was able to save Him from death, was heard, in that He feared.[1] And though He was the Son of God, yet learned He obedience by the things which He suffered; and being made perfect, He is become the Author of Eternal Salvation unto all them that obey Him—called of God an High Priest after the order of Melchisedek.

Verse. [3] I cried with my whole heart; hear me, O LORD!
Answer. The LORD hath received my prayer.
Verse. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, and to the Holy Ghost.
Answer. The LORD hath received my prayer.

SECOND NOCTURN.

First Antiphon. [4] When ye pray ye shall not be as the hypocrites are; for they love to pray standing in the synagogues and in the corners of the streets, that they may be seen of men.

Ps. xlii. Judge me, O God, &c., (p. 59.)

Second Antiphon. [5] But thou, when thou prayest, enter into thy closet, and, when thou hast shut the door, pray to thy Father Who is in secret.

Ps. liv. Give ear to my prayer, &c., (p. 61.)

Third Antiphon. [6] And it came to pass in those days, that JESUS went out into a mountain to pray, and continued all night in prayer to God.

Ps. cxx. I will lift up mine eyes, &c., (p. 105.)

Verse. [7] O My Father, if it be possible,—
Answer. Let this cup pass from Me!

Fourth Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Treatise upon the Lord's Prayer written by the Holy Martyr Cyprian, Bishop [of Carthage.] (On the Lord's Prayer.)

THE Lord hath indeed taught us to pray, not by words only, but also by deeds. He Himself prayed oftentimes, and right earnestly, and showed us by the witness of His Own example what we are behoven to do; as it is written: "And He withdrew Himself into the wilderness, and prayed." (Luke v. 16.) And again: "And it came to pass in those days that JESUS went out into a mountain to pray, and continued all night in prayer to God." (Luke vi. 12.) If He prayed Who was without sin, how much more are sinners beholden to pray? And if He remained sleepless all night in unceasing prayer, how much more ought we to watch by night in common prayer? The Lord prayed and besought, but not for Himself—for what had the Innocent One to ask for for Himself? But it was for us sinners that He prayed, as Himself declareth when He saith unto Peter: "Simon, Simon, behold, Satan hath desired to have you, that he may sift you as wheat; but I have prayed for thee, that thy faith fail not." (Luke xxii. 31, 32.) And a little while after, He prayed to the Father for all, saying: "Neither pray I for these alone, but for them also which shall believe on Me through their word, that they all may be one; as Thou, Father, art in Me, and I in Thee; that they also may be one in Us." (John xvii. 20, 21.)

Fourth Responsory.

Simon, Simon, behold, Satan hath desired to have you, that he may sift you as wheat; but I have prayed for thee, that thy faith fail not.
Verse. And when thou art converted strengthen thy brethren.
Answer. I have prayed for thee, that thy faith fail not.

Fifth Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Commentary upon the Epistle to the Hebrews, written by St Anselm, Archbishop [of Canterbury.] (v.)

HE offered up prayers like a true High Priest. That He prayed we read oftentimes in the Gospel, especially in that according to Luke, who draweth Him in His Priestly character. But even as all things which He did in the Flesh, His prayers and supplications were for men. Through all His life He prayed to the Father touching the Resurrection of His Own Flesh, and our salvation, and at the last moment before He suffered, He offered up supplications, that is, prayers most beseeching and most vehement, with the utmost passion and tenderness of His Heart, when, "being in an agony He prayed more earnestly, and His Sweat was as it were great drops of Blood falling down to the ground." (Luke xxii. 44.) These prayers and supplications He offered up unto the Father, Who met Him half-way by hearing Him. He offered them up unto Him That was able to save Him from death, that is, to raise Him up again—unto Him of Whom He knew that He was able to save Him, that is, to make Him so that He could die no more and suffer no more, by delivering Him from death, so that His Soul was not left in hell, neither did His Flesh see corruption in the grave. (Ps. xv. 10.)

Fifth Responsory.

[8] The prayer of the humble pierceth the clouds, and till it come nigh, he will not be comforted.
Verse. And will not depart till the Most High shall behold.
Answer. And till it come nigh, he will not be comforted.

[1] Or, "on account of His reverent submission."
[2] Ps. vi. 10.
[3] Ps. cxviii. 145.
[4] Matth. vi. 5.
[5] Ibid., 6.
[6] Luke vi. 12.
[7] Matth. xxvi. 39.
[8] Ecclus. xxxv. 21.

Sixth Lesson.

AND these prayers and supplications He offered up with strong crying, that is, with the keenest and liveliest yearning of godly desire, as when, being in an agony, He prayed more earnestly, and even with tears, for in that lengthened prayer we must believe that He shed Tears as well as those drops of Blood which trickled down His Body in the place of sweat. And He was heard, for in rising again, He received that for which He had asked. He was heard, that is, He in especial was heard in a sense of thoroughness in which no other hath ever been heard, since, after the throes of the struggle were over, the Father exalted Him above everything created. Moreover, He was heard on account of reverent submission,[1] which meaneth either that He was heard because as the Son of God reverent submission was due to His wishes, or else that He was heard because of His reverent submission to the Will of God, in that He feared and honoured the Father above all. Or again, we may understand that He was heard, because His reverent submission merited that He should be heard. The out-pouring of His Blood may in itself be called a strong cry, wherein He was heard on account of His reverent submission to such suffering. His reverent submission in that case lay in this, that having never done any evil, He was willing to suffer, simply out of love.

Sixth Responsory.

[2] Let now Thine ears be attentive and Thine eyes open, to hearken unto the prayer of Thy servant.

Verse. Which I pray before Thee this day, night and day.

Answer. To hearken unto the prayer of Thy servant.

Verse. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, and to the Holy Ghost.

Answer. To hearken unto the prayer of Thy servant.

THIRD NOCTURN.

First Antiphon. [3] Trouble and anguish have taken hold on me: Thy commandments are my delight.

Ps. iii. LORD, how are they increased, &c., (p. 3.)

Second Antiphon. [4] I looked for some to take pity on me, and there was none; and for comforters, but I found none.

Ps. xii. How long wilt Thou forget, &c., (p. 5.)

Third Antiphon. [3] My soul cleaveth unto the dust; quicken Thou me according to Thy word.

Ps. lxxxvii. O LORD God of my salvation, &c., (p. 82.)

Verse. [5] Watch and pray,

Answer. That ye enter not into temptation.

Seventh Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Holy Gospel according to Luke (xxii. 39.)

AT that time: JESUS came out, and went, as He was wont, to the Mount of Olives; and His disciples also followed Him. And so on.

Homily by St Ambrose, Bishop [of Milan.] (Bk. x. Comm. on Luke xxii.)

"Remove this cup from Me"—the Man shrank from death, the God remained unshaken in the counsel of His Own Will. We must needs die to this world that we may rise again to God, that in accordance with God's sentence, the law of the curse may work itself out by our return to the dust of the earth from whence we are taken.

"Not My will, but Thine be done." In these words our Lord signifieth by "My will" His human will, and by the Father's will, His Own Divine Will. The wills of men are temporal, but the Will of God is eternal. There is not one Will of the Father, and another Will of the Son. There is but one Will, where there is but one God. Learn, nevertheless, from the ensample of Christ, to be resigned to God's Will, and not to choose that which best pleaseth thyself, but that which thou knowest will best please God.

Seventh Responsory.

[4] I am come into the depth of the sea, and the flood overfloweth me.

Verse. Save me, O God, for the waters are come in unto my soul.

Answer. And the flood overfloweth me.

Eighth Lesson.

THEN, let us consider the special meaning of His different expressions. "My Soul is exceeding sorrowful, even unto death." (Matth. xxvi. 38.) So also elsewhere He saith: "Now is My Soul troubled." (John xii. 27.) It was not He Who had taken the Manhood unto God Who was troubled, but the Manhood Which He had so taken. The soul of man is able to be moved by divers feelings, but not so God. "The Spirit indeed is willing, but the Flesh is weak."[6] (Matth. xxvi. 41.) That which was exceeding sorrowful was not Himself but His Soul. The Eternal Wisdom was not sorrowful, the Divine Being was not sorrowful, but the human Soul of JESUS was sorrowful. He had taken into the Godhead a Soul, but a Soul of the same nature as mine.[7] I am not deceived into thinking that it was one thing, when it seemed another. Sorrowful He seemed to be, and sorrowful He was—not at the thought of His Own sufferings, but of our sins.

Eighth Responsory.

[8] Let my prayer come before Thee: incline Thine ear unto my cry.

Verse. For my soul is full of troubles, and my life draweth nigh unto the grave.

Answer. Incline Thine ear unto my cry.

Verse. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, and to the Holy Ghost.

Answer. Incline Thine ear unto my cry.

Ninth Lesson.

THEN He saith: "I will smite the shepherd, and the sheep of the flock shall be scattered abroad." (Matth. xxvi. 31.) He was sorrowful because He was leaving us orphans. But how resolutely He was giving Himself up to die is sufficiently clear by what followed, when He went to meet those that sought Him, when He calmed the agitated, when He nerved the timid, when He received the traitor himself with the condescension of a kiss. Neither is it other than the truth to say that He was sorrowful for their sakes who were hunting Him down, since He knew what a punishment they were to undergo for that unutterable crime. And because of all these things He said: "Let this cup pass from Me!" It was not that the Divine Son of the Divine Being was afraid to die, but He would not that even wicked men should perish on His account.

Hymn.[2]

FROM high heaven the Mediator,
Whom the Prophets sang of yore,
Comes to heal our fallen nature,
Zion's daughters! weep no more.

For the ill which Eden wrought us,
When our parents went astray,
Olivet to life hath brought us,
Where our Lord doth watch and pray.

The Redeemer of His nation,
Such the love which filled His Breast,
Hastens to make expiation
For the world by sin oppressed.

Now the Father's anger ceases,
And the Hand up-raised to smite,
All those threatening shafts releases,
Destined on our souls to light.

Thus the snares of hell are broken;
Heaven's gates are open wide,
Where eternal joys unspoken
Welcome those for whom He died.

To the Father praise be given!
Praise the Son, Whose Name is greater
Than all names beneath the heaven,
Praise the Spirit, every creature. Amen.

Sexagesima Sunday.

The Lord's Day within Sixty Days of Easter.

MATTINS.

Invitatory and omission in Ps. XCIV. as on last Sunday.

FIRST NOCTURN.

First Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Book of Genesis (v. 31.)

AND when Noah was five hundred years old he begat Shem, Ham, and Japheth. (vi. 1.) And it came to pass, when men began to multiply on the face of the earth, and daughters were born unto them, that the sons of God[3] saw the daughters of men that they were fair, and they took them wives of all which they chose. And God said: [4] My spirit shall not always continue in man, for that he also is flesh: and his days shall be an hundred and twenty years. And there were giants in the earth in those days. For after that the sons of God came in unto the daughters of men, and they bare children to them, the same became mighty men, which were of old, men of renown.

First Responsory.

[5] The Lord said unto Noah: The end of all flesh is come before Me; for the earth is filled with violence through them. And I will destroy them with the earth.
Verse. Make thee an ark of planed timber, rooms shalt thou make in it.
Answer. And I will destroy them with the earth.

[3] Targums—"the sons of the mighty," and Samaritan, "sons of the rulers."

[4] Targum of Onkelos: "This evil generation shall not stand before Me for ever, because they are flesh and their works are evil." Jonathan ben Uzziel: "Have I not imparted My Holy Spirit to them, that they may work good works? And, behold, their works are wicked. Behold, I will give them a prolongment of 120 years, that they may work repentance, and not perish."

[5] vi. 13.

Second Lesson.

AND God saw that the wickedness of man was great in the earth, and that every thought of his heart was only evil continually, and it repented Him that He had made man on the earth. And it grieved Him at the heart; and He said: I will destroy man, whom I have created, from the face of the earth; both man and beast, and the creeping thing, and the fowls of the air: for it repenteth Me that I have made them. But Noah found grace in the eyes of the Lord.

Second Responsory.

Noah was a just man and perfect; he walked with God. According to all that God commanded him, so did he.

Verse. He made him an ark, that a seed of every sort might be saved alive.

Answer. According to all that God commanded him, so did he.

Third Lesson.

THESE are the generations of Noah: Noah was a just man, and perfect in his generations; he walked with God. And he begat three sons, Shem, Ham, and Japhet. The earth also was corrupt before God, and was filled with violence. And when God looked upon the earth and beheld how it was corrupt, (for all flesh had corrupted his way upon the earth,) He said unto Noah: The end of all flesh is come before Me: the earth is filled with violence through them, and I will destroy them with the earth. Make thee an ark of planed timber: rooms shalt thou make in the ark, and shalt pitch it within and without with pitch. And this is the fashion thou shalt make it of: the length of the ark shall be three hundred cubits, the breadth of it fifty cubits, and the height of it thirty cubits.

Third Responsory.

Forty days and forty nights were the heavens opened; and there went into the ark two and two of all flesh wherein is the breath of life. And the LORD shut them in.

Verse. In the self-same day entered Noah into the ark, and his sons, and his wife, and the wives of his sons.

Answer. And the LORD shut them in.

Verse. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, and to the Holy Ghost.

Answer. And the LORD shut them in.

SECOND NOCTURN.

Fourth Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Book upon Noah's Ark by St Ambrose, Bishop [of Milan.] (Chap. iv.)

WE read that the Lord was angry. It is in the thoughts, that is to say, in the knowledge of God, that man being put on earth and weighted with the body cannot [1] be without sin, for earth is the home of temptations, and the flesh is a bait for corruption. Yet man had a reasonable soul, and his soul had power to control his body; and, being so made, he made no struggle to keep himself from falling into that from whence he would not return. God's thoughts are not as man's thoughts; in Him there is no such thing as change of mind, no such thing as to be angry and then cool down again. These things are written that we may know the bitterness of our sins, whereby we have earned the Divine wrath. To such a degree had iniquity grown that God, Who by His nature cannot be moved by anger, or hatred, or any passion whatsoever, is represented as provoked to anger.

Fourth Responsory.

[2] Noah builded an Altar unto the LORD, and offered burnt offerings on the Altar; and the LORD smelled a sweet savour, and blessed Noah, and said: Be fruitful, and multiply, and replenish the earth.

Verse. Behold, I establish My covenant with you, and with your seed after you.

Answer. Be fruitful, and multiply, and replenish the earth.

Fifth Lesson.

AND God threatened that He would destroy man. He said: "I will destroy man, whom I have created, from the face of the earth; both man and beast, and the creeping thing, and the fowls of the air." What harm had the animals done? For man's use had they been created, and, when man was wiped away, they were of use no longer. And there is an higher reason. Man is a living soul, capable of reason, who may be described as a living animal, subject to death, and endowed with reason. When then the highest animal is gone, why should the lower branches remain? Why should anything be saved alive, when righteousness, the basis of salvation, is to be no more?

Fifth Responsory.

The Lord said unto Noah: [3] I do set My bow in the clouds of heaven: and I will remember My covenant which is between Me and you.

Verse. And it shall come to pass, when I bring a cloud over the heaven, that My bow shall be seen in the cloud.

Answer. And I will remember My covenant which is between Me and you.

Sixth Lesson.

BUT more effectually to condemn the rest of men, and to manifest the goodness of God, it is written that Noah found grace in the eyes of the Lord. Here we learn also that the sin of his neighbour casteth no shadow on the righteous, when he is kept as a stock from whence the whole race are to spring. He is praised, not because he was of a noble race, but because he was a just man and perfect. The stock of a just man yieldeth men of just souls; for virtues, like blood, are hereditary. Among men are some families illustrious for honourable pedigrees, and so there are also races of souls whose comeliness is the lustre of virtues.

Sixth Responsory.

By Myself have I sworn, saith the Lord. I will not again bring the waters of the flood upon the earth: I will remember My covenant. And the waters shall become no more a flood to destroy all flesh.

Verse. I do set My bow in the clouds, and it shall be for a token of a covenant between Me and the earth.

---

[1] Esse non possit, i.e., since the Fall.

[2] viii. 20; ix. 1, 9.

[3] ix. 13, 14.

Answer. And the waters shall no more become a flood to destroy all flesh.

Verse. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, and to the Holy Ghost.

Answer. And the waters shall no more become a flood to destroy all flesh.

THIRD NOCTURN.

Seventh Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Holy Gospel according to Luke (viii. 4.)

AT that time: When much people were gathered together, and were come to JESUS out of every city, He spake by a parable: A sower went out to sow his seed. And so on.

Homily by Pope St Gregory [the Great.] (15*th on the Gospels.*)

Dearly beloved brethren, the passage from the Holy Gospel which ye have just heard, needeth not so much that I should explain it, as that I should seek to enforce its lesson. The Truth Himself hath explained it, and, after that, it beseemeth not man's frailty to fritter away His exposition by any further comment. But there is, in that very explanation by the Lord, somewhat, which it behoveth us well to weigh. If it were but we who bade you believe that by the seed is signified the word; by the field, the world; by the birds, the devils; and by the thorns, riches —ye would perchance doubt of the truth of our explanation. Therefore the Lord Himself hath vouchsafed to give this explanation, and that, not for this parable only, but that ye may know in what manner to interpret others, whereof He hath not given the meaning.

Seventh Responsory.

[1] God blessed Noah and his sons, and said unto them: Be fruitful, and multiply, and replenish the earth.

Verse. Behold, I establish My covenant with you, and with your seed after you.

Answer. Be fruitful, and multiply, and replenish the earth.

Eighth Lesson.

BEGINNING His explanation, the Lord saith that He speaketh in parables. Hereby He doth certify us, when our weakness would unveil to you the hidden meaning of His words. If I spake of myself, who would believe me when I say that riches are thorns? Thorns prick, but riches lull to rest. And yet riches are indeed thorns, for the anxiety they bring is a ceaseless pricking to the minds of their owners, and, if they lead into sin, they are thorns which bloodily tear the soul. But we understand from another Evangelist (Matth. xiii. 22) that in this place the Lord speaketh, not of riches themselves, but of the deceitfulness of riches.

Eighth Responsory.

Behold, I establish My covenant with you, and with your seed after you. Neither shall there any more be a flood to destroy the earth.

Verse. I do set My bow in the clouds, and it shall be for a token of a covenant between Me and the earth.

Answer. Neither shall there any more be a flood to destroy the earth.

Ninth Lesson.

THOSE riches are deceitful riches, which can be ours only for a little while; those riches are deceitful riches, which cannot relieve the poverty of our souls. They are the only true riches, which make us rich in virtues. If then, dearly beloved brethren, ye seek to be rich, earnestly desire the true riches. If ye would be truly honourable, strive after the kingdom of heaven. If ye love the bravery of titles, hasten to have your names written down at Court above, where Angels are. Take to heart the Lord's words which your ear heareth. The food of the soul is the word of God: when the stomach is sick it throweth up again the food which is put into it, and so is the soul sick when a man heareth and digesteth not in his memory the Word of God. And if any man cannot keep his food, that man's life is in desperate case.

Ninth Responsory.

When much people were gathered together to JESUS, and were come to Him out of every city, He spake by a parable: A sower went out to sow his seed.

Verse. And, as he sowed, some fell on good ground, and sprang up, and bare fruit an hundred-fold.

Answer. A sower went out to sow his seed.

Verse. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, and to the Holy Ghost.

Answer. A sower went out to sow his seed.

[1] ix. 7, 9.

[2] In the Latin the order of verse 3 is reversed in the Antiphon, ("After Thy great mercy, have mercy," &c.,) and the Psalm consequently begins as usual.

[3] The allusion is perhaps to the ancient custom of hanging a curtain before the chancel, between Septuagesima and Easter. It is still so done, at least in Sicily, but the translator does not think it is anywhere practised in Rome. Formerly it seems to have been nearly co-extensive with Latin Christianity. Cf., however, verse 8.

Chapter. (2 Cor. xi. 19.)

Second Day.

First Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Book of Genesis (vii. 1.)

THE LORD said unto Noah: Come thou and all thy house into the ark; for thee have I seen righteous before Me in this generation. Of every clean beast thou shalt take to thee by sevens, the male and the female; and of beasts that are not clean by two, the male and the female. Of fowls also of the air by sevens, the male and the female, to keep seed alive upon the face of all the earth. For yet seven days and I will cause it to rain upon the earth forty days and forty nights, and every living substance that I have made will I destroy from off the face of the earth.

First Responsory.

In the self-same day entered Noah into the ark, and his sons, and his wife and the wives of his sons.

Verse. Every living substance was destroyed from the earth, and Noah only remained alive, and they that were with him in the ark.

Answer. His wife, and the wives of his sons.

Second Lesson.

AND Noah did according unto all that the LORD had commanded him. (10.) And it came to pass after seven days that the waters of the flood overflowed the earth. In the six-hundredth year of Noah's life, in the second month, the seventeenth day of the month, the same day were all the fountains of the great deep broken up, and the water-spouts of heaven were loosed; and the rain was upon the earth forty days and forty nights.

Second Responsory.

[2] The Lord remembered Noah, and made a wind to pass over the earth, and the waters assuaged, and the rain from heaven was restrained.

Verse. And the waters returned from off the earth continually, and after the end of the hundred and fifty days the waters were abated.

Answer. And the rain from heaven was restrained.

Third Lesson.

IN the self-same day entered Noah, and Shem, and Ham, and Japhet, his sons, his wife, and the three wives of his sons with them, into the ark; they, and every beast after his kind, and all the cattle after their kind, and every creeping thing that creepeth upon the earth after his kind, and every fowl after his kind. [And they went in unto Noah into the ark, two and two of all flesh, wherein was the breath of life. And they went in, male and female, of all flesh, as God had commanded him: and the LORD shut him in.] And the flood was forty days upon the earth, and the waters increased, and bare up the ark, and it was lift up above the earth.

Third Responsory.

Forty days and forty nights were the heavens opened, and there went into the ark of all flesh wherein is the breath of life. And the LORD shut them in.

Verse. In the self-same day entered Noah into the ark, and his sons, and his wife, and the wives of his sons.

Answer. And the LORD shut them in.

Verse. Glory be to the Father,

Answer. And the LORD shut them in.

VESPERS.

Antiphon at the Song of the Blessed Virgin. If ye would be truly honourable, * strive after our Fatherland which is in heaven.

Tuesday.

Third Day.

First Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Book of Genesis (viii. 1.)

AND God remembered Noah, and every living thing, and all the cattle, that was with him in the ark, and He made a wind to pass over the earth, and the waters assuaged. The fountains also of the deep, and the water-spouts of heaven were stopped, and the rain from heaven was restrained. And the waters returned from off the earth continually, and after the end of the hundred and fifty days, the waters were abated. And the ark rested in the seventh month, on the twenty-seventh day of the month, upon the mountains of Armenia.

First Responsory.

Noah builded, &c., (p. 241.)

Second Lesson.

AND the waters decreased continually until the tenth month: in the tenth month, on the first day of the month, were the tops of the mountains seen. And it came to pass at the end of forty days, that Noah opened the window of the ark which he had made, and he sent forth a raven; which went forth, to and fro, until the waters were dried up from off the earth. Also he sent forth a dove after him, to see if the waters were abated from off the face of the ground. But the dove found no rest for the sole of her foot, and she returned unto him into the ark.

Second Responsory.

The Lord said, &c., (p. 241.)

Third Lesson.

AND he stayed yet another seven days, and again he sent forth the dove out of the ark. And she came in to him in the evening, and she bare in her mouth an olive-branch with green leaves. So Noah knew that the waters were abated from off the earth. And he stayed yet another seven days, and sent forth the dove, which returned not again unto him any more. And it came to pass in the six-hundredth-and-first year,[1] in the first month, the first day of the month, the waters were dried up from off the earth.

Third Responsory.

By Myself, &c., (p. 241.)

VESPERS.

Antiphon at the Song of the Blessed Virgin. The seed is the word of God, * and the Sower is Christ; if any man find Him, he shall never be moved.

Wednesday.

Fourth Day.

First Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Book of Genesis (viii. 15.)

AND God spake unto Noah, saying: Go forth of the ark, thou, and thy wife, and thy sons, and thy sons' wives with thee. Bring forth with thee every living thing that is with thee, of all flesh, both of fowl, and of cattle, and of every creeping thing that creepeth upon the earth, and go ye upon the earth; be fruitful and multiply upon it. And Noah went forth, and his sons, and his wife, and his sons' wives with him; every beast and cattle, and whatsoever creepeth upon the earth after their kinds, went forth out of the ark.

First Responsory.

God blessed, &c., (p. 242.)

Second Lesson.

AND Noah builded an altar unto the LORD, and took of every clean beast, and of every clean fowl, and offered burnt-offerings on the altar. And the LORD smelled a sweet savour, and said: I will not again curse the ground any more for man's sake: for the imagination of man's heart and his thoughts are prone to evil from his youth. Neither will I again smite any more every thing living, as I have done. While the earth remaineth, seed-time and harvest, and cold and heat, and summer and winter, and day and night, shall not cease.

Second Responsory.

Behold, I establish, &c., (p. 242.)

Third Lesson. (ix. 1.)

AND God blessed Noah and his sons, and said unto them: Be fruitful, and multiply, and replenish the earth. And the fear of you and the dread of you shall be upon every beast of the earth, and upon every fowl of the air, upon all that moveth upon the earth: all the fishes of the sea, into your hand are they delivered. Every moving thing that liveth shall be meat for you; even as the green herb, have I given you all things; but flesh with the blood thereof shall ye not eat. For your blood of your lives will I require at the hand of every beast, and at the hand of man; at the hand of every man's brother will I require the life of man. Whoso sheddeth man's blood, his blood shall be shed; for in the image of God made He man.

Third Responsory.

In the self-same day, &c., (p. 243) with this addition:

Verse. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, and to the Holy Ghost.

Answer. His wife, and the wives of his sons.

And, it shall come to pass, when I bring a cloud over the heaven, that My bow shall be seen in the cloud; and I will remember My covenant which is between Me and you, and every living soul that quickeneth flesh, and the waters shall no more become a flood to destroy all flesh.

First Responsory.

The Lord said, &c., (p. 240.)

Second Lesson.

AND Noah began to be an husbandman, and he planted a vineyard. And he drank of the wine, and was drunken; and he was uncovered within his tent. And Ham, the father of Canaan, saw the nakedness of his father, and told his two brothers without. Noah was a just man, &c., (p. 241.)

Third Lesson.

AND Noah awoke from his wine, and knew what his younger son had done to him, and he said: Cursed be Canaan, a servant of servants shall he be unto his brethren. And he said: Blessed be the LORD God of Shem; let Canaan be his servant. May God enlarge Japhet, and let him dwell in the tents of Shem, and let Canaan be his servant. And Noah lived after the flood three hundred and fifty years. And all his days were nine hundred and fifty years, and he died.

Chapter from Lauds.

Hymn.[1]

BLOOD is the price of heaven;
All sin that price exceeds;
O come to be forgiven,
He bleeds,
My Saviour bleeds!
Bleeds!

Under the olive boughs,
Falling like ruby beads,
The Blood drops from His Brows,
He bleeds,
My Saviour bleeds!
Bleeds!

While the fierce scourges fall,
The Precious Blood still pleads;
In front of Pilate's hall
He bleeds,
My Saviour bleeds!
Bleeds!

Beneath the thorny crown
The crimson fountain speeds;
See how it trickles down,
He bleeds,
My Saviour bleeds!
Bleeds!

Bearing the fatal wood
His band of Saints He leads,
Marking the way with Blood
He bleeds,
My Saviour bleeds!
Bleeds!

On Calvary His shame
With Blood still intercedes;
His open Wounds proclaim—
He bleeds,
My Saviour bleeds!
Bleeds!

He hangs upon the tree,
Hangs there for my misdeeds;
He sheds His Blood for me;
He bleeds,
My Saviour bleeds!
Bleeds!

Ah me! His Soul is fled;
Yet still for my great needs
He bleeds when He is dead;
He bleeds,
My Saviour bleeds!
Bleeds!

His Blood is flowing still;
My thirsty soul It feeds;
He lets me drink my fill;
He bleeds,
My Saviour bleeds!
Bleeds!

O sweet! O precious Blood!
What love, what love it breeds!
Ransom, Reward, and Food,
He bleeds,
My Saviour bleeds!
Bleeds!

[1] The two beautiful and popular Hymns by the late Dr Faber which are here inserted at Vespers and Mattins are not translations of the Hymns Mærentes oculi and Aspice, infami, but, whether the ideas were suggested by the Latin or whether it be an accidental coincidence, they agree with the sense of the Latin so closely, that they might fairly be called Paraphrases or imitations, and this consideration induces the Translator to insert them. Absolute translations have been executed by the late Rev. E. Caswall and the Rev. Dr Wallace.

Verse. [1] He was offered up because He willed it.
Answer. And with His stripes we are healed.

Antiphon at the Song of the Blessed Virgin. [2] O all ye that pass by! behold, and see if there be any sorrow like unto my sorrow.

Prayer as at the following Lauds.

At Compline the last verse of the Hymn is said thus:

Lord Jesu, slain for us, to Thee
Eternal praise be given,
With Father, Spirit, One and Three,
Here as it is in heaven.

MATTINS.

Invitatory. Christ our King Who was crucified, * Him—O come!—let us worship.

Hymn.[3]

O COME and mourn with me awhile!
See, Mary calls us to her side;
O come, and let us mourn with her;
Jesus, our Love, is crucified!

Have we no tears to shed for Him,
While soldiers scoff and Jews deride?
Ah! look how patiently He hangs;
Jesus, our Love, is crucified!

How fast His Hands, His Feet are nailed;
His blessed Tongue with thirst is tied;
His failing Eyes are dim with Blood;
Jesus, our Love, is crucified!

His Mother cannot reach His Face;
She stands in helplessness beside;
Her heart is martyred with her Son's;
Jesus, our Love, is crucified!

Seven times He spoke, seven words of love,
And all three hours His silence cried
For mercy on the souls of men:
Jesus, our Love, is crucified!

Death came, and Jesus meekly bowed;
His failing Eyes He strove to guide
With mindful love to Mary's face;
Jesus, our Love, is crucified!

O break, O break, hard heart of mine!
Thy weak self-love and guilty pride
His Pilate and His Judas were;
Jesus, our Love, is crucified!

Come, take thy stand beneath the Cross,
And let the Blood from out that Side
Fall gently on thee, drop by drop:
Jesus, our Love, is crucified!

A broken heart, a fount of tears,
Ask, and it will not be denied;
A broken heart love's cradle is;
Jesus, our Love is crucified!

O love of God! O sin of man!
In this dread act your strength is tried;
And victory remains with love;
For He, our Love, is crucified!

Answer. And with His stripes we are healed.

First Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Epistle of the Blessed Apostle Paul to the Romans (v. 8.)

GOD commendeth His love toward us, in that, while we were yet sinners, Christ died for us. Much more then, being now justified by His Blood, we shall be saved from wrath through Him. For if, when we were enemies, we were reconciled to God by the death of His Son, much more, being reconciled, shall we be saved by His life. And not only so, but we also joy in God through our Lord Jesus Christ, by Whom we have now received the atonement. (17.) For if by one man's offence, death reigned by one, much more they which receive abundance of grace, and bounty, and righteousness, shall reign in life through Jesus Christ.

First Responsory.

[4] I had planted thee a noble vine, saith the Lord, and thou hast brought forth unto Me grapes exceeding bitter, for thou hast made ready a Cross for thy Saviour.
Verse. [5] O My people, what have I done unto thee? and wherein have I wearied thee? Testify against Me.
Answer. For thou hast made ready a Cross for thy Saviour.

Second Lesson.

THEREFORE, as by the offence of one judgment came upon all men to condemnation, even so, by the righteousness of One, [the gift] came upon all men unto justification of life. For as by one man's disobedience many were made sinners, so by the obedience of One shall many be made righteous. Then, the law entered that the offence might abound; but where sin abounded grace did much more abound, that, as sin hath reigned unto death even so might grace reign, through righteousness, unto eternal life, by Jesus Christ our Lord.

Second Responsory.

I brought thee forth out of Egypt; behind thee I caused Pharaoh to drown in the Red Sea, and before thee I went in the pillar of the cloud. And thou didst betray Me unto the chief Priests, and lead Me unto the judgment-hall of Pilate.
Verse. O My people, what have I done unto thee? and wherein have I wearied thee? Testify against Me.
Answer. And thou didst betray Me unto the chief Priests, and lead Me unto the judgment-hall of Pilate.

Third Lesson. (vi.)

WHAT shall we say then? Shall we continue in sin, that grace may abound? God forbid; how shall we, that are dead to sin, live any longer therein? Know ye not that so many of us as were baptized into Jesus Christ were baptized into his death? For we are buried with Him by baptism into death, that, like as Christ was raised up from the dead by the glory of the Father, even so we also may walk in newness of life. For if we have been planted together in the likeness of His death, we shall be also in the likeness of His resurrection; knowing this, that our old man is crucified with Him, that the body of sin might be destroyed, that henceforth we should not serve sin. For he that is dead is freed from sin. Now, if we be dead with Christ, we believe that we shall also live with Him.

Answer. And thou, when thou hadst scourged Me, didst deliver Me [to be crucified].

Verse. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, and to the Holy Ghost.

Answer. Me, Who, as a lamb before his shearer, was dumb, and opened not My Mouth.

SECOND NOCTURN.

First Antiphon. Mine enemies speak evil of me: When shall he die, and his name perish?

Ps. xl. Blessed is he that considereth, &c., (p. 53.)

Second Antiphon. Strangers are risen up against me, and oppressors seek after my soul.

Ps. liii. Save me, O God, by Thy Name, &c., (p. 20.)

Third Antiphon. Mine enemies tread me down all the day long; all their thoughts are against me for evil.

Ps. lv. Be merciful unto me, &c., (p. 62.)

Verse. [2] God spared not His Own Son.

Answer. But delivered Him up for us all.

Fourth Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Sermons of St Austin, Bishop [of Hippo.] (41*st on the Passion.*)

DEARLY beloved brethren, the awful solemnity of the Lord's sufferings is proclaimed unto us even by the circumstances of the day itself whereon they took place, that day whereon the dumb elements were dumb no longer. Let the light of faith make the tongues of men tell of that agony, whereon the silence of darkness was eloquent. Our Lord was weighing out upon the transom of the Cross, as upon the transom of a balance, the price of our salvation, and by the payment of one death He Who had made all, bought all, and became the Restorer of all. For let us have no hesitation in believing that He bought the whole world, when He paid more than the whole world was worth, since the inestimable value of the price paid infinitely exceeded the value of the object redeemed. One scale was weighted against the other, but when it was done, they hung not evenly.[3] He Who had no sins of His Own, by His merits took away the sins of others. This victim of goodness alone fell, that He might lift up others, and since He alone owed nothing, He alone was able to spend His superabundance in charity for debtors.

Fourth Responsory.

I smote the kings of Canaan for thy sake, and gave thee a kingly sceptre, and thou didst put on My Head a crown of thorns, and smite Me upon the Head with a reed.

Verse. O My people, what have I done unto thee? and wherein have I wearied thee? Testify against Me.

Answer. And thou didst put on My Head a crown of thorns, and smite Me upon the Head with a reed.

Fifth Lesson.

AND now judge from this, if He hath paid for us so high a price, what interest He will have from us. On this day [on which He suffered] the words of the prophet were fulfilled: "I gave My Back to the smiters, and My Cheeks to them that plucked off the Hair, I hid not My face from shame and spitting." (Isa. l. 6.) He took our evil, that He might give us His good. From the extent to which He loved man after his fall, we may understand how He was pleased to love him before he sinned. When thou seest what was the worth of thy ransom, let it make thee feel some shame for sin. Behold the Holy One scourged for the sake of a sinner, the Eternal Wisdom mocked for the sake of a fool, the Truth murdered for the sake of a liar, the Righteous One condemned for the sake of a criminal, the Merciful One tortured for the sake of the cruel, the Harmless One filled with bitterness for the sake of a wretch, the Gentle One given gall to drink, the Innocent One doomed for the sake of the guilty, Life dying for the sake of the dead.

Fifth Responsory.

I led thee through the wilderness for forty years, and gave thee manna to eat, and thou didst buffet Me and scourge Me.

Verse. O My people, what have I done unto thee? and wherein have I wearied thee? Testify against Me.

Answer. And thou didst buffet Me and scourge Me.

Sixth Lesson.

SENSELESS nature shuddered at the sin of man. The rebel work of His hands would not acknowledge Him, but the quaking earth bore witness that He was Lord of the world, and the shrinking sun confessed that He was the King of heaven. His [natural] Body was clad in a purple robe, for the blood of His martyrs is the stately robe of His [mystical body the] Church. The crown upon His Head was a crown of thorns, for the sharp prickles of our sins, by the remission whereof He claimeth the glorious title of Redeemer, are likened unto thorns and thistles. (Gen. iii. 18.) And now let us try to treat Him otherwise than He was treated then, to treat Him so that the lives of His members may form a crown for Him. Upon the Cross He saith: "I thirst," (John xix. 28,) that thirst was for unbelieving souls to believe in Him; but on the contrary they put to His mouth the astringent vinegar of deadly sin, whereinto they have turned by malice the wine of wisdom given unto them by God. The veil of the Temple was rent in twain, for the Synagogue lost her crown, the old rites were abolished, and the fact of one Church for all humanity stood revealed. The graves were opened, for death rightly lost her rights.

Sixth Responsory.

I lifted thee up with a strong hand, and thou didst lift Me up upon the gibbet of the Cross, and thereon I stretched forth My hands unto an unbelieving and gainsaying people.[1]

Verse. O My people, what have I done unto thee? and wherein have I wearied thee? Testify against Me.

Answer. And thou didst lift Me up upon the gibbet of the Cross.

Verse. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, and to the Holy Ghost.

Answer. And thereon I stretched forth My hands unto an unbelieving and gainsaying people.

THIRD NOCTURN.

First Antiphon. As for the sons of men, their teeth are spears and arrows, and their tongue a sharp sword.

Ps. lvi. Be merciful unto me, &c., (p. 62.)

Second Antiphon. They bend their bow, even bitter words, that they may shoot in secret at the perfect.

Ps. lxiii. Hear my voice, &c., (p. 64.)

Third Antiphon. I am as a man that hath no strength, lying nerveless among the dead.

Ps. lxxxvii. O LORD God of my salvation, &c., (p. 82.)

Verse. He became obedient unto death,

Answer. Even the death of the Cross.

Seventh Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Holy Gospel according to John (xix. 28.)

AT that time: JESUS, knowing that all things were now accomplished, that the Scripture might be fulfilled, said: I thirst. And so on.

Homily by St John Chrysostom, Patriarch of Constantinople. (On John, 84.)

"JESUS, knowing that all things were now accomplished, said: I thirst"—even in this one word[2] making a fulfilment of Scripture. And now see here the spite of those that were there; we, although we had countless enemies, who had grievously assailed us, if we saw them at the point of death, would be touched with some feeling of compassion. But those beings were nowise touched, but rather excited; they cracked their jests upon Him, "and they filled a sponge with vinegar, and put it upon hyssop, and put it to His Mouth"—this was why the hyssop was added, because to give them a draught of hyssop is a way to put to death felons. Seest thou in what a calm of unruffled strength He went through all this? And then "When JESUS therefore had received the vinegar, He said: It is finished. And He bowed His Head and gave up the ghost."

Seventh Responsory.

I gave thee to drink out of the rock the waters of salvation, and thou didst give Me gall and vinegar to drink.

Verse. O My people, what have I done unto thee? and wherein have I wearied thee? Testify against Me.

Answer. And thou didst give Me gall and vinegar to drink.

Eighth Lesson.

IT commonly is after death the head falleth, but here the Head fell before death, whereby the Evangelist showeth that He was [exalted as] Lord above [the nature] of all others. The Jews had now swallowed the camel, and proceeded to strain out the gnat; having accomplished the great murder, they discussed a point about the honouring of a day. "Because it was the Preparation (paraskeue,) that the bodies should not remain upon the Cross on the Sabbath-Day, the Jews besought Pilate that their legs might be broken, and that they might be taken away." Seest thou the force of the truth? What they did fulfilled a prophecy, for thereby was another made clear. "Then came the soldiers, and brake the legs of the first, and of the other which was crucified with Him, but when they came to JESUS, and saw that He was dead already, they brake not His legs, but one of the soldiers with a spear pierced His Side." Willing, with a vile and iniquitous willingness to do the Jews a pleasure, that man outraged his Redeemer even in death.

Eighth Responsory.

I opened the Red Sea before thee, and thou didst open with a spear the Side of thy Saviour, Who redeemed the world by His Blood.

Verse. O My people! what have I done unto thee? and wherein have I wearied thee? Testify against Me.

Answer. And thou didst open with a spear the Side of thy Saviour.

Verse. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, and to the Holy Ghost.

Answer. Who redeemed the world by His Blood.

Ninth Lesson.

BUT rest Thou still, O Thou Whom my soul loveth! they thought to do it wickedly, but they did service to the truth. "For these things were done, that the Scripture should be fulfilled: 'Not a Bone of Him shall be broken,' and, again, another Scripture saith: 'They shall look on Him Whom they pierced.'" Nor was it done for this alone, but it was afterward a mean to faith for Thomas and them that were with him. And, yet again, another great mystery was here established, for "forthwith came thereout Blood and Water." Not idly nor perchance sprang forth that twofold Fountain, for the Church, like her great Head, "came by Water and Blood; not by Water only, but by Water and Blood." (1 John v. 6.) What this meaneth the baptized do know, for they have been born again of water, and fed on Flesh and Blood. Hence come the Sacraments, so that as often as thou drinkest of that wondrous Cup, thou dost as good as suck out of the opened Side.

The Hymn, "We praise Thee, O God, &c.," is said.

Second Antiphon. [2] I gat me to the mountain of myrrh, * and to the hill of frankincense; I was brought as a lamb to the slaughter, and I was dumb, and opened not my mouth.

Fourth Antiphon. [4] I looked for comforters and I found none; * they gave me also gall for meat, and in my thirst they gave me vinegar to drink.

Fifth Antiphon. When JESUS had received the vinegar, * He said: It is finished—and He bowed His Head, and gave up the ghost.

Chapter. (Phil. ii. 5.)

BRETHREN, let this mind be in you, which was also in Christ JESUS, Who, being in the form of God, thought it not robbery to be equal with God; but emptied Himself, and took upon Him the form of a servant, and was found in the likeness of men. He humbled Himself and became obedient unto death, even the death of the Cross.

Hymn.[5]

O'ERWHELMED in depth of woe,
Upon the tree of scorn
Hangs the Redeemer of mankind
With racking anguish torn.

See how the nails those Hands
And Feet so tender rend;
See down His Face, and Neck, and Breast
His Sacred Blood descend!

Hark! with what awful cry
His Spirit takes Its flight,
That cry, it pierced His Mother's heart
And whelmed her soul in night.

Earth hears, and to its base
Rocks wildly to and fro;
Tombs burst; seas, rivers, mountains quake;
The vail is rent in two.

The sun withdraws his light;
The midday heavens grow pale;
The moon, the stars, the universe
Their Maker's death bewail.

Shall man alone be mute?
Come, youth and hoary hairs,
Come, rich and poor, come, all mankind,
And bathe those Feet in tears.

Come, fall before His Cross,
Who shed for us His Blood!
Who died, the Victim of pure love,
To make us sons of God.

JESU, all praise to Thee,
Our joy and endless rest;
Be Thou our Guide while pilgrims here,
Our Crown amid the blest. Amen.

Verse. He was wounded for our transgressions.

Answer. He was bruised for our iniquities.

First Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Book of Genesis (xi. 10.)

THESE are the generations of Shem. Shem was an hundred years old, and begat Arphaxad, two years after the flood. And Shem lived, after he begat Arphaxad, five hundred years, and begat sons and daughters. And Arphaxad lived five hundred and thirty years, and begat Salah; and Arphaxad lived, after he begat Salah, three hundred and three years,[3] and begat sons and daughters. And Salah lived thirty years, and begat Eber. And Salah lived after he begat Eber four hundred and three years, and begat sons and daughters.

First Responsory.

God blessed, &c., (p. 242.)

Second Lesson.

AND Eber lived four-and-thirty years, and begat Peleg. And Eber lived after he begat Peleg, four hundred and thirty years, and begat sons and daughters. And Peleg lived thirty years, and begat Reü. And Peleg lived, after he begat Reü, two hundred and nine years, and begat sons and daughters. And Reü lived two-and-thirty years, and begat Serug. And Reü lived, after he begat Serug, two hundred and seven years, and begat sons and daughters. And Serug lived thirty years, and begat Nahor. And Serug lived, after he begat Nahor, two hundred years, and begat sons and daughters.

Second Responsory.

Behold, I establish, &c., (p. 242.)

Third Lesson.

AND Nahor lived nine-and-twenty years, and begat Terah. And Nahor lived, after he begat Terah, an hundred and nineteen years, and begat sons and daughters. And Terah lived seventy years, and begat Abram, and Nahor, and Haran. These are the generations of Terah: Terah begat Abram, Nahor, and Haran. And Haran begat Lot. And Haran died before his father Terah in the land of his nativity in Ur of the Chaldees. And Abraham and Nahor took them wives; the name of Abram's wife was Sarai; and the name of Nahor's wife Melcha, the daughter of Haran the father of Melcha and the father of Iscah. But Sarai was barren and had no children.

Third Responsory.

Quinquagesima Sunday.

The Lord's Day within Fifty Days of Easter.

MATTINS.

Invitatory and omission in Psalm XCIV. as on Septuagesima Sunday.

FIRST NOCTURN.

First Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Book of Genesis (xii. 1.)

NOW the LORD said unto Abram: Get thee out of thy country and from thy kindred, and from thy father's house, and go into a land that I will show thee: and I will make of thee a great nation, and I will bless thee and make thy name great, and thou shalt be blessed. I will bless them that bless thee, and curse him that curseth thee; and in thee shall all families of the earth be blessed. So Abram departed, as the Lord had spoken unto him; and Lot went with him. And Abram was seventy and five years old when he departed out of Haran. And he took Sarai his wife, and Lot his brother's son, and all their substance that they had gathered, and the souls that they had gotten in Haran; and they went forth to go into the land of Canaan. And when they were come thither, Abram passed through the land unto the place of Shechem, unto "the noble vale."[1] And the Canaanite was then in the land.

[4] Gen. xxii. 13.

First Responsory.

The Lord spake unto Abram, saying: Get thee out of thy country, and from thy kindred, and go unto the land that I will show thee: and I will make of thee a great nation.

Verse. I will surely bless thee and make thy name great, and thou shalt be blessed.

Answer. And I will make of thee a great nation.

Second Lesson.

AND the Lord appeared unto Abram and said unto him: Unto thy seed will I give this land. And there builded he an altar unto the Lord, Who appeared unto him. And he removed from thence unto a mountain on the east of Bethel,[2] and pitched his tent there, having Bethel on the west, and Hai on the east. And there he builded an altar unto the Lord, and called upon His Name. And Abram journeyed, going on still toward the south. And there was a famine in the land, and Abram went down into Egypt, to sojourn there: for the famine was grievous in the land. And it came to pass when he was come near to enter into Egypt, that he said unto Sarai his wife: I know that thou art a fair woman to look upon, and that when the Egyptians see thee, they will say: This is his wife; and they will kill me, but they will save thee alive. Say, therefore, I pray thee, that thou art my sister: that it may be well with me for thy sake, and my soul shall live because of thee.

Second Responsory.

[3] Abraham stood by the oak of Mamre, and he saw three men coming up by the path. He saw three, and worshipped One.

Verse. Behold, Sarah thy wife shall bear thee a son, and thou shalt call his name Isaac.

Answer. He saw three, and worshipped One.

Third Lesson.

AND it came to pass, that, when Abram was come into Egypt, the Egyptians beheld the woman that she was very fair. The princes also told Pharaoh, and commended her before him; and the woman was taken into Pharaoh's house. And they entreated Abram well for her sake. And he had sheep, and oxen, and he-asses, and men-servants, and maid-servants, and she-asses, and camels. And the Lord plagued Pharaoh and his house with great plagues, because of Sarai, Abram's wife. And Pharaoh called Abram, and said unto him: What is this that thou hast done unto me? Why didst thou not tell me that she was thy wife? Why saidst thou that she was thy sister, so that I might take her to me to wife? Now, therefore, behold thy wife, take her and go thy way.

Third Responsory.

[4] The Lord did tempt Abraham, and said unto him: Take thy son Isaac whom thou lovest, and offer him there for a burnt-offering upon one of the mountains which I will tell thee of.

Verse. And when the Lord called him, he answered: Behold, here I am. And the Lord said unto him:

Answer. Take thy son Isaac whom thou lovest, and offer him there for a burnt-offering upon one of the mountains which I will tell thee of.

Verse. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, and to the Holy Ghost.

Answer. Take thy son Isaac whom thou lovest, and offer him there for a burnt-offering upon one of the mountains which I will tell thee of.

SECOND NOCTURN.

Fourth Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Book upon the Patriarch Abraham written by St Ambrose, Bishop [of Milan.] (Bk. i. 2.)

ABRAHAM was truly a great man, illustrious as an example of many virtues; one the like of whom the day-dreams of Philosophy have not been able to produce. That which she imagineth is less than that which he did; his simple truth and faith were something grander than her lying rounded periods. Let us then consider what this man's loyalty was. For that virtue is first to be taken which was the source of all the others, and thus this was the first which God called for from him, when He said: "Get thee out of thy country, and from thy kindred, and from thy father's house." It would have been enough to have said, "Get thee out of thy country," for there were his kindred, and there his father's house.

Fourth Responsory.

[5] The Angel of the Lord called unto Abraham and said: Lay not thine hand upon the lad; for now I know that thou fearest God.

Verse. And Abraham stretched forth his hand to slay his son; and, behold, the Angel of the Lord called unto him out of heaven, and said:—

Answer. Lay not thy hand upon the lad; for now I know that thou fearest God.

Fifth Lesson.

BUT He gave the details of his sacrifice one by one, that He might see whether he loved Him, lest also he should begin rashly, or should seek to evade the heavenly commandment. But as the whole of the precept was plainly set forth, lest anything should be unconsidered, so also were the rewards set forth, lest the burden should seem hopeless. He was tried as one that is strong, he was roused as one that is true, he was called as one that is righteous; and he departed loyally as the Lord had spoken unto him. And Lot went forth with him. That saying of the Seven Wise Men of Greece is much spoken of—"Follow God." But this did Abraham before the Seven Wise Men were thought of; he followed God, and went out of his own land.

---

[1] The meaning of both words seems uncertain. Abp. Kenrick, "The turpentine tree of Moreh." LXX., "the lofty oak." Onkelos, "the plain of Moreh," (so also the Protestant version.) Jonathan-ben-Uzziel, "the plain which had been showed." Jerusalem Targum, "the plain (or, valley) of vision." And so on.

[2] Afterwards so called by Jacob, xxviii. 19.

[3] xviii. 1, 2; xvii. 19.

[4] xxii. 1, 2.

[5] xxii. 11, 10.

Fifth Responsory.

[1] The Angel of the LORD called unto Abraham out of heaven the second time, and said: I will bless thee, and I will multiply thy seed as the stars of the heaven.

Verse. Thy seed shall possess the gate of his enemies, and in thy seed shall all the nations of the earth be blessed.

Answer. And I will multiply thy seed as the stars of the heaven.

Sixth Lesson.

BUT, forasmuch as Abraham had before had another country, namely, the land of the Chaldees, whence went forth Terah the father of Abraham, and came unto Haran, and forasmuch as he to whom it had been said, "Get thee out from thy kindred," took Lot, his brother's son, with him, let us consider whether this "Get thee out of thy country"[2] signifieth not "get thee out of this earthly dwelling," namely, our body, from which Paul came forth, who said, "Our conversation is in heaven." (Phil. iii. 20.)

Sixth Responsory.

[3] O God of my master Abraham, prosper my way which I go; that I may return again in safety unto the house of my master.

Verse. O Lord, I pray Thee, be merciful unto Thy servant—

Answer. That I may return again in safety unto the house of my master.

Verse. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, and to the Holy Ghost.

Answer. That I may return again in safety unto the house of my master.

THIRD NOCTURN.

Seventh Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Holy Gospel according to Luke (xviii. 31.)

AT that time: JESUS took unto Him the twelve, and said unto them: Behold, we go up to Jerusalem, and all things that are written by the Prophets concerning the Son of man shall be accomplished. And so on.

Homily by Pope St Gregory [the Great.] (2nd on the Gospels.)

Our Redeemer, foreseeing that the minds of His disciples would be troubled by His suffering, told them long before both of the pains of that suffering, and of the glory of His rising again, to the end that, when they should see Him die as He had prophesied, they might not doubt that He was likewise to rise again. But, since His disciples were yet carnal, and could not receive the words telling of this mystery, He wrought a miracle before them. A blind man received his sight before their eyes, that if they could not receive heavenly things by words, they might be persuaded of heavenly things by deeds.

Seventh Responsory.

[4] I came this day unto the well, and I besought the Lord, and said: O LORD God of Abraham, Thou hast prospered my way.

Verse. Therefore the virgin to whom I shall say: Give me water of thy pitcher to drink; and she shall say to me: Drink, my lord, and I will give thy camels drink also; let the same be the woman whom the LORD hath appointed out for my master's son.

Answer. O LORD God of Abraham, Thou hast prospered my way.

Eighth Lesson.

BUT, dearly beloved brethren, we must so take the miracles of our Lord and Saviour, as believing both that they were actually wrought, and that they have some mystic interpretation for our instruction. For in His works, power speaketh one thing and mystery again another. Behold here, for instance. We know not historically who this blind man was, but we do know of what he was mystically the figure. Mankind is blind, driven out from Eden in the persons of his first parents, knowing not the light of heaven, and suffering the darkness of condemnation. But, nevertheless, through the coming of his Redeemer, he is enlightened, so that now he seeth by hope already the gladness of inward light, and walketh by good works in the path of life.

Eighth Responsory.

[5] The word of the LORD came unto Abram, saying: Fear not, Abram: I am thy shield, and thy exceeding great reward.

Verse. For I am the LORD thy God That brought thee out of Ur of the Chaldees.

Answer. Fear not, Abram: I am thy shield, and thy exceeding great reward.

Ninth Lesson.

WE must note that as JESUS drew to Jericho a blind man received his sight. Now, this name Jericho, being interpreted, signifieth "the city of the moon:" and in Holy Scripture the moon is used as a figure of our imperfect flesh, of whose gradual corruption her monthly waning is a type. As, therefore, our Maker draweth nigh to Jericho, a blind man receiveth his sight. While the Godhead taketh into itself our weak manhood, man receiveth again the light which he had lost. By God's suffering in the Manhood, man is raised up toward God. This blind man is also well described as sitting by the wayside begging: for the Truth saith: "I am the Way." (John xiv. 6.)

Ninth Responsory.

AS the Lord passed by, a certain blind man sat by the way-side, and cried unto Him. And the Lord asked him, saying: What wilt thou that I shall do unto thee? Lord, that I may receive my sight.

VESPERS.

Chapter from Lauds.

Antiphon at the Song of the Blessed Virgin. And JESUS stood, * and commanded the blind man to be brought unto Him, and He asked him, saying: What wilt thou that I shall do unto thee? Lord, that I may receive my sight. And JESUS said unto him: Receive thy sight: thy faith hath saved thee. And immediately he received his sight, and followed Him, glorifying God.

Monday.

Second Day

First Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Book of Genesis (xiii. 1.)

AND Abram went up out of Egypt, he, and his wife, and all that he had, and Lot with him, into the South. And he was very rich in gold and in silver. And he went on his journeys from the South even to Bethel, unto the place where his tent had been at the beginning, between Bethel and Hai, unto the place of the Altar which he had made at the first: and there he called on the Name of the LORD. And Lot also, which was with Abram, had flocks, and herds, and tents. And the land was not able to bear them, that they might dwell together: for their substance was great, so that they could not dwell together.

First Responsory.

Abram removed his tent, and came, and dwelt by the vale[1] of Mamre; and built there an altar unto the LORD.

Verse. And the LORD said unto him: Lift up thine eyes, and look; all the land which thou seest, to thee will I give it, and to thy seed for ever.

Answer. And built there an Altar unto the LORD.

---

[1] Some, instead of "vale" or "plain," read "oak" or "terebinth-tree."

Second Lesson.

THEREFORE there was a strife between the herdmen of Abram's cattle, and the herdmen of Lot's cattle. And the Canaanite and the Perizzite dwelled then in the land. Abram therefore said unto Lot: Let there be no strife, I pray thee, between me and thee, and between my herdmen and thy herdmen; for we be brethren. Behold, the whole land is before thee; separate thyself, I pray thee, from me. If thou wilt take the left hand, then I will go to the right: if thou depart to the right hand, then I will go to the left. And Lot lifted up his eyes, and beheld all the plain of Jordan, that it was well watered everywhere, before the LORD destroyed Sodom and Gomorrah, even as the garden of the LORD, and like the land of Egypt, as thou comest unto Zoar. Then Lot chose him all the plain of Jordan, and journeyed eastward.

Second Responsory.

[1] Abraham believed God, and it was counted unto him for righteousness. And therefore he became the friend of God.

Verse. For he was righteous in the sight of the Lord, and walked in His ways.

Answer. And therefore he became the friend of God.

Third Lesson.

AND they separated themselves, brother from brother. Abram dwelled in the land of Canaan, and Lot dwelled in the cities of the plain of Jordan, and abode in Sodom. But the men of Sodom were very wicked, and sinners before the LORD exceedingly. And the LORD said unto Abram, after that Lot was separated from him: Lift up now thine eyes, and look from the place where thou art, Northward and Southward, and Eastward and Westward: all the land which thou seest, to thee will I give it, and to thy seed for ever. And I will make thy seed as the dust of the earth.

Third Responsory.

The Lord did tempt, &c., (p. 251.)

Prayer throughout the day as on Sunday.

VESPERS.

Antiphon at the Song of the Blessed Virgin. And they, &c., (Antiphon at Sext on Sunday, p. 253.)

Shrove Tuesday.

Third Day in the Week within Fifty Days of Easter.

First Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Book of Genesis (xiv. 8.)

AND there went out the king of Sodom, and the king of Gomorrah, and the king of Admah, and the king of Zeboiim, and the king of Belah, (the same is Zoar:) and they joined battle with them in the vale of the woods, with Chedorlaomer, the king of Elam, and with Tidal king of nations, and Amraphel king of Shinar, and Arioch king of Ellasar; four kings with five. And the vale of the woods was full of slime-pits. And the kings of Sodom and Gomorrah fled and fell there: and they that remained fled to the mountain. And they took all the goods of Sodom and Gomorrah, and all their victuals, and went their way; and they took Lot, Abram's brother's son, who dwelt in Sodom, and his goods.

First Responsory.

The Angel of the LORD, (Fourth Responsory on Sunday, p. 251.)

Second Lesson.

AND, behold, there came one that had escaped, and told Abram the Hebrew, for he dwelt in the vale of Mamre the Amorite, brother of Eshcol, and brother of Aner; for these were confederate with Abram. And when Abram heard that his brother Lot was taken captive, he armed his trained servants, born in his house, three hundred and eighteen, and pursued them unto Dan. And he divided his comrades, and warred against them by night, and smote them, and pursued them unto Hobah, which is on the left hand of Damascus. And he brought back all the goods, and his brother Lot, and his goods; and the women also and the people.

Second Responsory.

The Angel of the LORD, &c., (Fifth Responsory on Sunday, p. 252.)

Third Lesson.

AND the king of Sodom went out to meet him, (after his return from the slaughter of Chedorlaomer, and of the kings that were with him,) in the valley of Shaveh, which is the King's Dale. And Melchizedek King of Salem brought forth bread and wine, (for he was the Priest of the Most High God,) and blessed him, and said: Blessed be Abram of the Most High God, Maker of heaven and earth; and blessed be the Most High God, Which hath delivered thine enemies into thy hand. And he gave him tithes of all.

Third Responsory.

O God of my master, &c., (p. 252.)

Prayer throughout the day as on Sunday.

VESPERS.

Antiphon at the Song of the Blessed Virgin. Thou Son of David, * have mercy on me. What wilt thou that I shall do unto thee? Lord, that I may receive my sight.

Lent.

During Lent the following rules are to be observed.

1. On the first Saturday and every Week-day after, Vespers[2] are said before Supper, being the one meal allowed.

---

[1] Gen. xv. 6.

[2] The letter of this rule is, of course, fulfilled by those who eat before sunset, if they say Vespers before supper, which a tolerated custom now allows to be taken at any time after noon. In this country at least, the rich, when fasting, usually adhere to the primitive practice of the Church during the warmth of her first love, and take their meal after dark; but among working-people and religious, who rise very early, the other practice is most usual. The Church now tolerates it, only insisting that at any rate her day of Prayer should have closed. For private recitation some do not hold the rule to apply.

2. When the service is of the Week-day, at every service except Mattins, Preces are said kneeling.

3. If the service is of the Week-day, the following additions are made in Choir, but persons bound to the Divine Office are not bound to them under sin.[1]

a. On Monday the Office of the Dead, viz. the Vespers after the Vespers on Sunday evening, and the Dirge after Lauds the next morning. Out of Choir it may be said any time between Sunday afternoon and Monday midnight. Monday in Holy Week is excepted.

b. On Wednesday the Gradual Psalms. In Choir they are said before Mattins; out of Choir whenever convenient, and Wednesday in Holy Week is excepted.

c. On Friday[2] the Penitential Psalms and the Litany. The whole is said kneeling after Lauds, but out of Choir how and when convenient. Good Friday is excepted. (See the Additional Services at the end of the Breviary.)

4. Simple Feasts are only commemorated. Doubles and Semidoubles are observed, if they fall on Week-days before Palm Sunday. In this case the Ninth Lesson of the Festival is omitted or read as one with the Eighth, and for the Ninth Lesson is read the first part or the whole of the Homily for the Week-day, which is also commemorated at Lauds and Vespers.

Ash Wednesday.

Fourth Day. Of Ashes.

This Day cannot be displaced by a Festival.

Before Mattins are said the Gradual Psalms.

MATTINS.

First Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Holy Gospel according to Matthew (vi. 16.)

AT that time: JESUS said unto His disciples; When ye fast, be not as the hypocrites, of a sad countenance. And so on.

Homily by St Austin, Bishop [of Hippo.] (Bk. ii. on the Lord's Sermon on the Mount, ch. xii., tom. 4.)

It is evident that by these precepts we are bidden to seek for inner gladness, lest, by running after that reward which is without, we should become conformed to the fashion of this world, and should so lose the promise of that blessing which is all the truer and more stable that it is inward, that blessing wherein God hath chosen us to be conformed to the likeness of His Son. In this chapter we will principally consider the fact that vain-glory findeth a ground for its exercise in struggling poverty as much as in worldly distinction and display; and this development is the most dangerous, because it entices under pretence of being the serving of God.

First Responsory.

I came this day, &c., (p. 252.)

Second Lesson.

HE that is characterised by unbridled indulgence in luxury or in dress, or any other display, is by these very things easily shown to be a follower of worldly vanities, and deceiveth no one by putting on an hypocritical mask of godliness. But those professors of Christianity, who turn all eyes on themselves by an eccentric show of grovelling and dirtiness, not suffered by necessity, but by their own choice, of them we must judge by their other works whether their conduct really proceedeth from the desire of mortification by giving up unnecessary comfort, or is only the mean of some ambition: the Lord biddeth us beware of wolves in sheep's clothing, but "by their fruits," saith He, "ye shall know them."

Second Responsory.

The word of the LORD, &c., (p. 252.)

Third Lesson.

THE test is when, by divers trials, such persons lose those things which under the cover of seeming unworldliness they have either gained or sought to gain. Then must it needs appear whether they be wolves in sheep's clothing, or indeed sheep in their own. But that hypocrites do the contrary maketh it no duty of a Christian to shine before the eyes of men with a display of needless luxury—the sheep need not to lay aside their own clothing because wolves sometimes falsely assume it.

Third Responsory.

Abram removed his tent, &c., (p. 253,) with this addition:

Verse. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, and to the Holy Ghost.

Answer. And built there an altar unto the LORD.

LAUDS.

Antiphon at the Song of Zacharias. When ye fast, * be not, as the hypocrites, of a sad countenance.

Prayer.

(On this and all other Week-day Offices in Lent, Preces are said kneeling.)

O LORD, grant unto Thy faithful people to enter with all meet godliness upon the observance of this worshipful and solemn Fast, and in like mind faithfully to fulfil the same. Through our Lord JESUS Christ, Thy Son, Who liveth and reigneth with Thee, in the unity of the Holy Ghost, one God, world without end. Amen.

The same Prayer at Terce, Sext, and None.

After None, ashes are blessed and put upon the heads of clergy and people, after which is celebrated the Liturgy.

VESPERS.

Antiphon at the Song of the Blessed Virgin. Lay up for yourselves treasures in heaven, * where neither moth nor rust doth corrupt.

Prayer.[3]

LOOK mercifully, O Lord, upon all that bow themselves down before Thy Divine Majesty, and, as Thou hast given them to taste of Thine Unspeakable Gift, so strengthen them ever by Thy heavenly succour. Through our Lord Jesus Christ Thy Son, Who liveth and reigneth with Thee, in the unity of the Holy Ghost, one God, world without end. Amen.

---

[1] There are, however, indulgences for reciting them under any circumstances.

[2] But in most if not all dioceses there are Greater Double Offices in honour of the Passion on these Fridays.

[3] These Prayers appointed for the Week-day evenings during Lent, are the same as the "Prayers over the people" read after the Post-Communions of the corresponding masses said after None. The first clause of the Prayer above relates to the Bidding, "Bow down your heads to God," always said before the "Prayer over the people," and the second clause, of course, to the Holy Communion just received.

Thursday.

Fifth Day.

MATTINS.

First Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Holy Gospel according to Matthew (viii. 5.)

At that time: When Jesus was entered into Capernaum, there came unto Him a centurion, beseeching Him, and saying: Lord, my servant lieth at home sick of the palsy, and grievously tormented. And so on.

Homily by St Austin, Bishop [of Hippo.] (Book ii. on the Agreement of the Evangelists, ch. xx., tom. 4.)

Let us consider whether Matthew and Luke are at one as touching this centurion's servant. Matthew saith: "There came unto Him a centurion, beseeching Him, and saying: Lord, my servant lieth at home sick of the palsy." This seemeth to differ from what Luke saith: namely: "And when he heard of Jesus, he sent unto Him the elders of the Jews, beseeching Him that He would come and heal his servant. And when they came to Jesus, they besought him instantly, saying: That he was worthy for whom He should do this; for he loveth our nation, and he hath built us a synagogue. Then Jesus went with them; and when He was now not far from the house, the centurion sent friends to Him, saying unto Him: Lord, trouble not Thyself; for I am not worthy that Thou shouldest enter under my roof." (vii. 6, et seq.)

First Responsory.

Lord, my servant lieth at home sick of the palsy, and grievously tormented. Amen, I say unto Thee, I will come and heal him.

Verse. Lord, I am not worthy that Thou shouldest enter under my roof, but speak the word only, and my servant shall be healed.

Answer. Amen, I say unto thee, I will come and heal him.

Second Lesson.

If it were done thus, how is Matthew truthful, when he saith that the "centurion came unto Him,"—seeing that, in fact, he sent his friends? We must then look well into this, and we shall see that Matthew only made use of a common form of speech. Now, we use to say of a man that he cometh to a place even though he be not already come: whence also we say, "He arrived close," or "He arrived a long way off," that is, to that place to which he would come; yea, we speak of that coming, toward which he tendeth, as though it had already taken place, when he that should be come at, seeth not yet him that cometh, but is come at for him by friends, to obtain his favour, which is needful for him that would come to him. And so much doth this manner of speaking hold, that they are commonly said to "come at" a great man, (who is beyond their personal reach,) who, by means of suitable persons, succeed in laying before him such things as they desire.

Second Responsory.

Abraham stood by the oak, &c., (p. 251.)

Third Lesson.

THEREFORE it is not strange that Matthew should make use of the common short phrase, and say of the centurion, who reached the Lord's sympathies, by mean of friends, that he "came unto Him." Also we must needs not pass by lightly the mystic depth which underlieth the words of this holy Evangelist. It is written in the Psalms (xxxiii. 6): "Draw near unto Him and be lightened." Thus did the centurion in faith draw near unto Jesus, and the Lord so praised him that He said: "I have not found so great faith, no, not in Israël." Of him of whom these words were spoken the Evangelist deemeth it wiser to say that he had found his way to Jesus, that he had got to Christ, than that they came, through whom he sent his message unto Him.

Third Responsory.

The Lord did tempt Abraham, &c., (p. 251.)

LAUDS.

Antiphon at the Song of Zacharias. Lord, my servant lieth at home sick of the palsy * and grievously tormented. Amen, I say unto thee: I will come and heal him.

Prayer.

O GOD, Whom sin doth justly move to anger, and repentance turn again, mercifully to forgive the same, look down now graciously upon the supplications of Thy people praying before Thee, and turn away the scourges of Thy wrath, which for our sins, we do most rightfully deserve. Through our Lord Jesus Christ, Thy Son, Who liveth and reigneth with Thee, in the unity of the Holy Ghost, one God, world without end. Amen.

At the beginning of the Martyrology, say, On the morrow we commemorate the Coronation of our Lord Jesus Christ with Thorns.

The same Prayer at Terce, Sext, and None.

First Friday in Lent.

Office in Memory of the Coronation of our Lord JESUS Christ with Thorns.

Greater Double.

All as on Sundays except the following.

FIRST VESPERS.

Antiphons, Chapter, and Prayer from Lauds.

Last Psalm.

Ps. cxvi. O praise the Lord, &c., (p. 105.)

Hymn.[1]

DAUGHTERS of Zion! Royal Maids!
Come forth to see the Crown
Which Zion's self, with cruel hands,
Hath woven for her Son.

See! how amid His gory Locks
The jagged thorns appear;
See! how His pallid Countenance
Foretells that death is near.

---

[1] Translation by the late Rev. E. Caswall.

Oh, savage was the earth that bore
Those thorns so sharp and long!
Savage the hand that gathered them
To work this deadly wrong!

But now that Christ's redeeming Blood
Hath tinged them with its dye,
Fairer than roses they appear,
Or palms of victory.

JESU! the thorns which pierced Thy Brow
Sprang from the seed of sin;
Pluck ours, we pray Thee, from our hearts,
And plant Thine own therein.

Praise, honour, to the Father be,
And sole begotten Son;
Praise to the Spirit Paraclete
While endless ages run. Amen.

Verse. When they had platted a crown of thorns,
Answer. They put it upon His Head.

Antiphon at the Song of the Blessed Virgin. [1] Go forth, O ye daughters of Zion, and behold King Solomon with the Crown wherewith his mother crowned him whilst she was making ready a Cross for her Saviour.

A Commemoration of the Week-Day.

Antiphon. Lord, I am not worthy Thou shouldst enter under my roof; but speak this word only, and my servant shall be healed.
Verse. Let my prayer, O Lord, be set forth,
Answer. As incense before Thee.

Prayer.

SPARE, O Lord, spare Thy people, that they, being justly chastened because of their iniquities, may, through Thy mercy, find time of relief. Through our Lord JESUS Christ, Thy Son, Who liveth and reigneth with Thee, in the unity of the Holy Ghost, one God, world without end. Amen.

MATTINS.

Invitatory. Christ our King, Who was crowned with thorns, * Him, O come, let us worship!

Hymn from Vespers.

FIRST NOCTURN.

Only three Psalms are said, as follows.

First Antiphon. He shall be like a tree planted by the rivers of water, that bringeth forth its fruit in its season.

Ps. i. Blessed is the man, &c., (p. 2.)

Second Antiphon. They take counsel together against the LORD, and against His Anointed.

Ps. ii. Why do the heathen, &c., (p. 3.)

Third Antiphon. Thou hast enlarged me when I was in distress.

Ps. iv. When I called, &c., (p. 116.)

Verse. [2] Thou hast crowned Him with glory and honour, O Lord—
Answer. And madest Him to have dominion over the works of Thy hands.

First Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Book of the Prophet Isaiah (liii.)

WHO hath believed our report? And to whom is the arm of the LORD revealed? For he shall grow up before Him as a tender plant, and as a root out of a dry ground: he hath no form nor comeliness; and when we shall see him, there is no beauty that we should desire him. He is despised and rejected of men; a man of sorrows and acquainted with grief; and he hid as it were his face from us; he was despised, and we esteemed him not. Surely he hath borne our griefs and carried our sorrows: yet we did esteem him stricken, smitten of God, and afflicted. But he was wounded for our transgressions, he was bruised for our iniquities: the chastisement of our peace was upon him, and with his stripes we are healed.

First Responsory.

[3] Cursed is the ground by man's work. Thorns and thistles shall it bring forth for the Anointed.
Verse. Because Adam hath eaten of the tree of which God commanded him, saying: Thou shalt not eat of it.
Answer. Thorns and thistles shall it bring forth for the Anointed.

Second Lesson.

ALL we, like sheep, have gone astray; we have turned every one to his own way: and the LORD hath laid on him the iniquity of us all. He was offered up because he willed it,[4] and he opened not his mouth. He is brought as a sheep to the slaughter, and as a lamb before his shearers is dumb, so he openeth not his mouth. He was taken from prison and from judgment: and who shall declare his generation? For he was cut off out of the land of the living; for the transgression of my people have I stricken him.

Second Responsory.

The Lord [5] appeared unto Moses in a flame of fire, out of the midst of a bush; and he looked, and, behold, the bush burned with fire, and the bush was not consumed.
Verse. And Moses said: I will now turn aside, and see this great sight.
Answer. And he looked, and, behold, the bush burned with fire, and the bush was not consumed.

Third Lesson.

AND he made his grave with the wicked, and with the rich in his death; because he had done no violence, neither was any deceit in his mouth. Yet it pleased the LORD to bruise him; He hath put him to grief; when he hath made his soul an offering for sin, he shall see his seed, he shall prolong his days, and the pleasure of the LORD shall prosper in his hand. He shall see of the travail of his soul, and shall be satisfied: by his knowledge shall My righteous servant justify many, for he shall bear their iniquities.

Third Responsory.

[6] Behold the fire and the wood. God will provide Himself a lamb for a burnt-offering.

---

[1] Cant. iii. 11.

[2] Ps. viii. 6.

[3] Gen. iii. 17, 18, &c.

[4] Oblatus est quia ipse voluit. The present Hebrew is literally, "He was oppressed and he was afflicted." Jonathan ben Uzziel, "He was required, and he was brought back, and without opening his mouth, he submitted to the mighty of the people."

[5] Exod. iii. 2, 3, but the words are "the Angel of the Eternal appeared, &c."

[6] Gen. xxii. 7, 8, 13.

Verse. And Abraham lifted up his eyes, and looked, and, behold, behind him a ram caught in a thicket by his horns.

Answer. A lamb for a burnt-offering.

Verse. Glory be to the Father, and o the Son, and to the Holy Ghost.

Answer. A lamb for a burnt-offering.

SECOND NOCTURN.

First Antiphon. O LORD, Thou hast compassed me with Thy favour as with a shield.

Ps. v. Give ear to my words, &c., (p. 49.)

Second Antiphon. Thou hast made him a little lower than the angels, Thou hast crowned him with glory and honour.

Ps. viii. O LORD, our Ruler, &c., (p. 4.)

Third Antiphon. The wicked bend their bow, they make ready their arrows in the quiver, that they may shoot at the upright.

Ps. x. In the LORD, &c., (p. 5.)

Verse. [1] Thou hast set a crown, O Lord, of precious stones,

Answer. Upon his head.

Fourth Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Sermons of St Bernard, Abbat [of Clairvaux.] (2nd for Twelfth Day.)

"GO forth, O ye daughters of Zion." You we address as daughters of Zion, O worldly souls, frail, sickly children, daughters and not sons, beings in whom there is no muscle, and no manliness. Go forth from your dream of carnal sensuality to understand something with your mind. Go forth from your bondage to the lusts of the flesh, unto the freedom of spiritual intelligence. Go forth out of your country, and from your kindred, and from your father's house, and behold King Solomon with the crown wherewith his mother crowned him, that crown of want and woe. But albeit his stepmother crowned him with a crown of woeful thorns, he is yet to be crowned by his household with a crown of righteousness, when "the Son of Man shall send forth His Angels, and they shall gather out of His Kingdom all things that offend," (Matth. xiii. 41,) when "the LORD will enter into judgment with the antients of His people," (Isa. iii. 14,) and "the world shall fight with Him against the unwise." (Wisd. v. 21.) The Father also crowneth Him with a crown of glory, as saith the Psalmist: "Thou hast crowned him with glory and honour, O Lord," (Ps. viii. 6.) Daughters of Zion! behold Him with the crown wherewith His mother crowned Him!

Fourth Responsory.

[2] When the chief Shepherd shall appear, (even the Shepherd That was smitten, and the sheep of the flock were scattered abroad,) when He shall appear, ye shall receive a crown of glory that fadeth not away.

Verse. When He maketh a great feast to show the riches of His glorious kingdom.

Answer. Ye shall receive a crown of glory that fadeth not away.

Fifth Lesson. (42nd Sermon on the Song of Songs.)

BRETHREN, from the first moment of my conversion, I took care to gather a bundle of my Lord's troubles and griefs, and put the same to lie between my breasts, to make up for the sheaf of merits which I knew I had not. I will tell how abundantly sweet was the smell of this [bundle of myrrh.] As long as I live, even for ever and ever, I will never forget those mercies whereby I was called to life. I have kept this healthy bundle by me, and no one will ever take it away from me, but it shall lie between my breasts. I have decreed that to think of these troubles and griefs is real wisdom; in them I have determined to find perfect righteousness, full knowledge, plentiful salvation, and abundant merit. From these His troubles and griefs I drink sometimes a draught of healthy bitters, and from the same again I draw the sweet oil of comfort. It is the thought of these troubles and woes of His that cheereth me when I am afflicted, and maketh me grave when it is well with me. As the pilgrim walketh along the King's High-way of this present life, in joy and in sorrow, it is the memory of the woes of JESUS that keeps him moving straight and saveth him from the dangers that threaten him upon the one hand or upon the other. These griefs are what will gain my pardon from the Judge of all the earth; He Who is dreadful to the mighty is shown by these griefs to be meek and lowly, manifesting as the Forgiving One, yea, One That a man may take ensample by, Him Who is exalted above all Princes and dreadful among the kings of the earth.

Fifth Responsory.

[3] He hath received a glorious kingdom and a beautiful crown.

Verse. [4] God hath highly exalted Him, and given Him a Name which is above every name.

Answer. And a beautiful crown.

Sixth Lesson.

THEREFORE are these His griefs oftentimes in my mouth, and God knoweth that they be alway in my heart. My pen useth to write of them, as is manifest. The highest flight of my philosophy is this, to know JESUS, and Him Crucified. I do not ask, like the Bride, where He lieth to rest at noon, (Cant. i. 6,) since I have the joy to embrace Him as He lieth between my breasts. I ask not where He feedeth at noon, since I see Him on the Cross a Saviour. On the Cross He is glorious, at my breast He is sweet; on the Cross, my Bread; at my breast, my milk, milk which filleth the bellies of sucklings, and the paps of mothers, and therefore He shall lie betwixt my breasts. Do ye also, dearly beloved brethren, do ye also gather you a bundle of this beloved myrrh, [even the woe of JESUS,] put it in the core of your heart, put it to guard the door of your breast, that it may lie betwixt your breasts also. If ye have before your eyes Him Whom ye bear about, the sight of the Lord's afflictions will make your own lighter to carry, through the help of Him Who is the Bridegroom of the Church, and Who is above all God, blessed for ever. Amen.

[1] Ps. xx. 4.

[2] 1 Pet. v. 4; Matth. xxvi. 31; Esther i. 3, 4.

[3] Wisd. v. 17.

[4] Phil. ii. 9.

Sixth Responsory.

[1] They shall make an ark of shittim-wood; and thou shalt overlay it with pure gold; within and without shalt thou overlay it, and shalt make upon it a crown of gold round about.

Verse. And thou shalt put into the ark the testimony which I shall give thee.

Answer. And shalt make upon it a crown of gold round about.

Verse. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, and to the Holy Ghost.

Answer. And shalt make upon it a crown of gold round about.

THIRD NOCTURN.

First Antiphon. He that walked uprightly and worked righteousness was crowned upon Thy holy hill.

Ps. xiv. LORD, who shall abide, &c., (p. 6.)

Second Antiphon. Thou hast set a crown of precious stones upon his head, O Lord.

Ps. xx. The king shall joy, &c., (p. 10.)

Third Antiphon. In the presence of mine enemies Thou anointest mine head with oil.

Ps. xxii. The LORD is my Shepherd, &c., (p. 26.)

Verse. [2] A crown of gold upon his head.

Answer. Wherein was engraved "HOLINESS."

Seventh Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Holy Gospel according to John (xix. 1.)

AT that time: Pilate took JESUS and scourged Him. And the soldiers platted a crown of thorns, and put it on His Head. And so on.

Homily by St Bernard, Abbat [of Clairvaux.] (50*th on divers matters.*)

Daughters of Zion, behold King Solomon—not here called "the Preacher," or Y'dydyah.[3] By these three names was that King called, and therein is he a figure of our true Solomon, JESUS Christ, Who was Sh'lomoh, that is, "the Peaceful One" in His exile here, Who will be [Koheleth, that is,] "the Preacher" when He delivereth the last doom, and Who is Y'dydyah, that is, "the delight of the LORD" as the Universal King—gentle in His exile, righteous in His judgment, glorious in His kingdom; lovely in His exile, dreadful in His judgment, worshipful in His kingdom. Behold Him now "with the crown wherewith His Mother crowned Him." This was a crown of mercy, and therein He may be followed. But His step-mother also crowned Him with a crown of sorrow, and therein He was made a reproach. By His step-mother I mean the Synagogue which showed herself not as His mother, but as His step-mother.

Seventh Responsory.

[4] Thou shalt make an Altar to burn incense upon; of shittim-wood shalt thou make it. And thou shalt make unto it a crown of gold round about.

Verse. And thou shalt put the Altar before the veil that is before the mercy-seat.

Answer. And thou shalt make unto it a crown of gold round about.

Eighth Lesson.

HIS household will crown Him with a crown of righteousness, and therein He will be dreadful. His Father crowneth Him with a crown of glory, and therein He is lovely. Let sinners gaze upon Him in His crown of sorrow, the crown of thorns, and let the pricks thereof enter into themselves. Let the daughters of Zion, the souls that love Him, gaze upon Him in His crown of mercy, and follow in His steps. The wicked shall gaze upon Him in His crown of righteousness, and they shall perish. The Saints shall gaze upon Him in His crown of glory, and they shall be blessed for ever. Others also that have followed Him shall be crowned after Him, but that by earnest working by the help of His grace. He alone was crowned by His mother, Who alone, with every emotion duly ordered, came forth out of His mother's womb, like a Bridegroom out of his chamber.

Eighth Responsory.

[5] A man of sorrows and acquainted with grief, Christ was crowned with thorns. The Same is He Who crowneth us with mercy and loving-kindness.

Verse. He was wounded for our transgressions; He was bruised for our iniquities; and with His stripes we are healed.

Answer. The Same is He Who crowneth us with mercy and loving-kindness.

Verse. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, and to the Holy Ghost.

Answer. The Same is He Who crowneth us with mercy and loving-kindness.

Ninth Blessing.

May the Gospel's glorious word
Cleansing to our souls afford.

Ninth Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Holy Gospel according to Matthew (v. 43.)

AT that time: JESUS said unto His disciples: Ye have heard that it hath been said: Thou shalt love thy neighbour and hate thine enemy. And so on.

Homily by St Jerome, Priest [at Bethlehem.] (Bk. i., Comm. on Matth. v. and vi.)

"But I say unto you: Love your enemies, do good to them that hate you." There are many who judge of the commandments of the Lord by their own weakness, and not by the strength of His Saints; and so deem Him to have commanded things impossible. These are they who think that not to hate their enemies is all that they are able to do; and that to command us to love them, is to command more than man's nature can bear. It behoveth them to know, that this which Christ commandeth is not impossible, albeit perfect. This is what

David did in respect of Saul and Absalom; the martyr Stephen also prayed for his enemies, even while they were stoning him; and Paul "could wish that himself were accursed from Christ for his" persecutors. (Rom. ix. 3.) And this, JESUS Himself did, as well as taught, when He said: "Father, forgive them: for they know not what they do." (Luke xxiii. 34.) "That ye may be the children of your Father Which is in heaven." If he that doeth the commandments of God becometh a son of God, then is he not a son by nature, but by his own choice.

"Therefore when thou doest thine alms, do not sound a trumpet before thee, as the hypocrites do in the synagogues, and in the streets, that they may have glory of men." He that soundeth a trumpet before him, when he doeth alms, is an hypocrite. He that disfigureth his face, when he fasteth, to the end that he may show the emptiness of his belly in his looks, he also is an hypocrite. He that prayeth in the synagogues and in the corners of the streets, that he may be seen of men, is an hypocrite. From all which, we gather that an hypocrite is one which doeth anything that he may have glory of men. To me also it seemeth that he which saith unto his brother: "Let me pull out the mote out of thine eye," (vii. 4,) that he also is an hypocrite; for he proposeth to take upon him that office for vain-glory's sake, that he himself may appear righteous. Wherefore the Lord saith unto him: "Thou hypocrite, first cast out the beam out of thine own eye." Thus we see that it is, not the doing good, but the motive which moveth us to do good, which will meet with reward from God; and, if thou stray but a little from the right way, it is of small moment whether thou wander to the right hand or to the left, when once thou hast lost the straight path.

MATTINS.

First Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Holy Gospel according to Mark (vi. 49.)

AT that time: When the even was come, the ship was in the midst of the sea, and JESUS alone on the land. And so on.

Homily by the Venerable Bede, Priest [at Jarrow] and Doctor of the Church.[2] (Bk. ii., cap. 6, on Mark vi. 45.)

The toil of the disciples in rowing, and the wind contrary to them, is a figure of the divers toils of the Holy Church, as, amid the waves of a world that fighteth against her, and the stormy blasts of unclean spirits, she laboureth to reach the rest of her Fatherland above, as a shore safe for her anchor. Here also it is well said that the ship was in the midst of the sea, and He alone on the land; for sometimes it cometh to pass that the Church is, by the great pressure of the Gentiles, not only so afflicted, but also befouled, that it seemeth as though, if it were possible, her Redeemer had for the time forsaken her.

First Responsory.

I came this day, &c., (p. 252.)

Second Lesson.

WHENCE it is that there cometh that cry of hers, when she is taken amid the waves, and the winds of temptations that break upon her, and with piteous entreaty she calleth on Him to protect her—"Why standest Thou afar off, O LORD, why hidest Thou Thyself in times of trouble?" (Ps. ix. 22.) And then, in the verses that follow, she telleth Him what saith the enemy that persecuteth her, saying: For he hath said in his heart: God hath forgotten; He hideth His face: He will never see it." (32.)

Second Responsory.

The word of the LORD, &c., (p. 252.)

---

[1] Matth. xxvii. 29.

[2] The celebrated English historian; born, A.D. 673, near Jarrow on the Tyne; sent to the new Benedictine house at that place, at seven years of age; ordained Deacon in 691; Priest, 702; died, May 26, 735, after the First Vespers of the Ascension, which fell on May 27, on which day, therefore, the Martyrology names him, with the remark that he is very famous for holiness and learning. In England he [had] a Festival on Oct. 29. [On November 13, 1899, he was proclaimed a Doctor of the Church. His Festival is now kept everywhere on May 27.]

Third Lesson.

VERILY, He forgetteth not the prayer of the poor, neither turneth He His face away from any that putteth his trust in Him; yea, rather, to him whosoever is striving with the enemy, He giveth help to conquer, and, whosoever conquereth, to him He giveth an everlasting crown. For the which reason also it is here said plainly: "He saw them toiling in rowing." The Lord seeth them that are toiling in the sea, albeit He be Himself on the land. Although He seem for a moment to tarry in succouring the distressed, nevertheless the look of His love is strengthening them, all the while, lest they should faint: and sometimes He setteth them free, even by an open deliverance, conquering all their adversaries for them, as when He walked upon the swelling of the waves, and stilled them.

Third Responsory.

Abram removed his tent, &c., (p. 253, with addition as on Wednesday, p. 255.)

LAUDS.

Antiphon at the Song of Zacharias. [1] Yet they seek Me * daily, and delight to know My ways.

Prayer.

HEAR our prayers, O Lord, and grant unto us, that we may keep with all earnestness and godliness, this solemn Fast, ordained for the health both of our bodies and of our souls. Through our Lord JESUS Christ, Thy Son, who liveth and reigneth with Thee, in the unity of the Holy Ghost, one God, world without end. Amen.

The same Prayer at Terce, Sext, and None.

VESPERS.

This is the first day on which Vespers must be said before Supper.

Chapter and Prayer from the following Lauds.

Hymn.[2]

O MAKER of the world, give ear,
Accept the prayer and own the tear,
Towards Thy Seat of Mercy sent
In this most holy Fast of Lent.

Each heart is manifest to Thee:
Thou knowest our infirmity:
Forgive Thou then each soul that fain
Would seek to Thee, and turn again.

Our sins are manifold and sore,
But pardon them that sin deplore;
And, for Thy Name's sake, make each soul,
That feels and owns its languor, whole.

So mortify we every sense
By grace of outward abstinence,
That from each stain and spot of sin
The soul may keep her fast within.

Grant, O Thou Blessed Trinity!
Grant, O Essential Unity!
That this our Fast of forty days
May work our profit and Thy praise.
Amen.

Verse. God hath given His Angels charge over thee.

Answer. To keep thee in all thy ways.

Antiphon at the Song of the Blessed Virgin. [3] Then shalt thou call, * and the Lord shall answer: thou shalt cry, and He shall say: Here I am.

First Sunday in Lent.

The First Lord's Day in the Forty Days before Easter.

MATTINS.

Invitatory. Let it not be vain for you to rise up early, before the light[4]: for * the Lord hath promised a crown to them that watch.

Hymn.[5]

NOW, with the slow revolving year,
Again the Fast we greet;
Which in its mystic circle moves
Of forty days complete.

That Fast, by Law and Prophet taught,
By JESUS Christ restored;
JESUS, of seasons and of times
The Maker and the Lord.

Henceforth more sparing let us be
Of food, of words, of sleep;
Henceforth beneath a stricter guard
The roving senses keep:

And let us shun whatever things
Distract the careless heart;
And let us shut our souls against
The tyrant tempter's art;

And weep before the Judge, and strive
His vengeance to appease;
Saying to Him with contrite voice
Upon our bended knees:

Much have we sinned, O Lord! and still
We sin each day we live;
Yet look in pity from on high,
And of Thy grace forgive.

Remember that we still are Thine,
Though of a fallen frame;
And take not from us in Thy wrath
The glory of Thy name.

Undo past evil; grant us, Lord,
More grace to do aright;
So may we now and ever find
Acceptance in Thy sight.

Blest Trinity in Unity!
Vouchsafe us, in Thy love,
To gather from these fasts below
Immortal fruit above.

FIRST NOCTURN.

First Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Second Epistle of the Blessed Apostle Paul to the Corinthians (vi. 1.)

WE then, as workers together with Him, beseech you also that ye receive not the grace of God in vain. (For He saith: "I have heard thee in a time accepted, and in the day of salvation have I succoured thee."[6] Behold, now is the acceptable time; behold, now is the day of salvation.) Giving no offence to any, that our ministry be not blamed; but in all things let us approve ourselves as the ministers of God, in much patience, in afflictions, in necessities, in distresses, in stripes, in imprisonments, in tumults, in labours, in watchings, in fastings, in purity, in knowledge, in long-suffering, in kindness, in the Holy Ghost, in love unfeigned, in the word of truth, in the power of God: by the armour of righteousness on the right hand and on the left, by honour and dishonour, by evil report and good report; as deceivers, and yet true; as unknown, and yet well known; as dying, and behold, we live; as chastened, and not killed; as sorrowful, yet alway rejoicing; as poor, yet making many rich; as having nothing, and yet possessing all things.

First Responsory.

Behold, now is the acceptable time; behold, now is the day of salvation:

let us approve ourselves in much patience, in much fasting; in the power of God, by the armour of righteousness.

Verse. In all things let us approve ourselves as the ministers of God, in much patience, in much fasting.

Answer. In the power of God, by the armour of righteousness.

Second Lesson.

O YE Corinthians, our mouth is open unto you, our heart is enlarged. Ye are not straitened in us, but ye are straitened in your own bowels; but having the same recompense, (I speak as unto sons,) be ye also enlarged. Be ye not unequally yoked together with unbelievers. For what fellowship hath righteousness with unrighteousness? And what communion hath light with darkness? And what concord hath Christ with Belial?[1] or what part hath he that believeth with an infidel? And what agreement hath the temple of God with idols? For ye are the temple of the living God, as God hath said: "I will dwell in them, and walk among them, and I will be their God, and they shall be My people."[2]

Second Responsory.

In all things let us approve ourselves as the ministers of God, in much patience; that our ministry be not blamed.

Verse. Behold, now is the acceptable time; behold, now is the day of salvation: let us approve ourselves in much patience.

Answer. That our ministry be not blamed.

Third Lesson.

Same as the Second Lesson on Wednesday in the Second Week after the Epiphany (p. 211) from the words: "I am filled with comfort"—inclusive, to the end, and the Third Lesson as far as the words: "Ye sorrowed to repentance"—inclusive.

Third Responsory.

[3] The Priests shall pray, with fasting and with weeping, and shall say: Spare, O LORD, spare Thy people; and give not Thine heritage to destruction.

Verse. The Priests shall weep between the porch and the altar, and shall say:

Answer. Spare, O LORD, spare Thy people; and give not Thine heritage to destruction.

Verse. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, and to the Holy Ghost.

Answer. Spare, O LORD, spare Thy people: and give not Thine heritage to destruction.

SECOND NOCTURN.

Fourth Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Sermons of Pope St Leo [the Great.] (4th on Lent.)

DEARLY beloved brethren, I am to preach to you the holiest and the greatest of Fasts; and with what words can I more fitly begin than with those words of the Apostle, in whom Christ spake, which have just been read? "Behold, now is the acceptable time! Behold, now is the day of salvation!" It is true that there are no times which are not rich with God's gifts; His grace doth ever give us an entry unto His mercy; nevertheless, more especially at this time doth it behove that the minds of all men be earnestly stirred up to make progress in things spiritual, and to be nerved by a trust in God stronger than ever; for now the anniversary of that day on which we were redeemed is drawing near, and thereby moving us to work all godliness, to the end that we may be able to celebrate, with clean minds and bodies, that mystery which exceedeth all others, the mystery of the Lord's sufferings.

Fourth Responsory.

Let us amend for the better in that wherein we have sinned unknowingly, or ever the day of death suddenly prevent us, and we seek a place of repentance, and find none. Give heed, O Lord, and have mercy upon us, for we have sinned against Thee.

Verse. [4] Help us, O God of our salvation, and for the glory of Thy Name deliver us, O Lord.

Answer. Give heed, O Lord, and have mercy upon us, for we have sinned against Thee.

Fifth Lesson.

MYSTERIES so great demand sustained earnestness, and continuous worship, if we would ever abide in the sight of God, such as it is meet that He should find us on the Feast of the Passover. But since few have the strength to do thus, and the frailty of the body rebelleth against such hardness, while the divers actions of this life distract us with their cares, it necessarily befalleth that the dust of earth befouleth the hearts even of the godly. To meet this befoulment therefore, and to restore the cleanness of our souls, it is provided by the healthful institution of God, that we should be purged by an exercise of forty days, wherein godly works may redeem the mis-spending of our other time, and purifying fasts rid us of the same.

Fifth Responsory.

[5] Let the wicked forsake his way, and the unrighteous man his thoughts, and let him return unto the LORD, and He will have mercy upon him; [6] for the Lord our God is gracious, and merciful, and repenteth Him of the evil.

Verse. [7] The Lord hath no pleasure in the death of the wicked; but that he turn from his way and live.

Answer. For the Lord our God is gracious, and merciful, and repenteth Him of the evil.

Sixth Lesson.

THEREFORE, dearly beloved brethren, as we are now about to enter upon these mystic days, the end of whose most holy ordinance is the cleansing both of our souls and bodies, let us take heed that we be obedient unto the command of the Apostle, putting far away from us every defilement of flesh and spirit, ordering the strife which there is between the two substances whereof we are compounded; that the soul, which is ordained under the rule of God, and which it beseemeth under His rule to rule the body, may enjoy the fulness of her lordship; giving no offence to any so that we may give no cause to such as revile us. For if our ways during the Fast agree not with the purity of perfect temperance, the reproaches of the unbelievers will be just, and our sins will arm the tongues of the ungodly to the harming of our religion. The sum of our Fast standeth not only in abstaining from meats; neither is it profitable to deny food to the body, if the mind be not bridled from iniquity.

[4] Ps. lxxviii. 9.

Sixth Responsory.

The season of the Fast openeth unto us the gates of heaven; let us enter thereon in prayer and supplication, that on the day when the Lord riseth again we may rejoice with Him.

Verse. In all things let us approve ourselves the ministers of God, in much patience.

Answer. That on the day when the Lord riseth again we may rejoice with Him.

Verse. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, and to the Holy Ghost.

Answer. That on the day when the Lord riseth again we may rejoice with Him.

THIRD NOCTURN.

Seventh Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Holy Gospel according to Matthew (iv. 1.)

AT that time: JESUS was led up of the Spirit into the wilderness, to be tempted of the devil: and when He had fasted forty days and forty nights, He was afterward an-hungred. And so on.

Homily by Pope St Gregory [the Great.] (16*th on the Gospels.*)

Some persons are accustomed to question what Spirit it was of which JESUS was led up into the wilderness, on account of the words a little farther on: "Then the devil taketh Him up into the holy city"—and again: "The devil taketh Him up into an exceeding high mountain." But in truth, and without any searching, we may very fitly take it that we are to believe it was the Holy Ghost Who led Him up into the wilderness; His own Spirit led Him where the evil spirit found Him to tempt Him. When however it is said that He, God and man, was taken up by the devil either into an exceeding high mountain or into the holy city, the mind shrinketh from believing, and the ears of man tingle to hear it. Yet these things we know not to be incredible, when we consider certain other things concerning Him.

Seventh Responsory.

[1] Rend your hearts and not your garments, and turn unto the LORD your God; for He is gracious and merciful.

Verse. Let the wicked forsake his way, and the unrighteous man his thoughts, and let him return unto the LORD, and He will have mercy upon him.

Answer. For He is gracious and merciful.

Eighth Lesson.

IN truth, the devil is the head of all the wicked, and every wicked man is a member of this body, of which the devil is the head. Was not Pilate a limb of Satan? Were not the Jews that persecuted, and the soldiers that crucified Christ, likewise limbs of Satan? Is it then strange that He should allow Himself to be led up into a mountain by the head, Who allowed Himself to be crucified by the members? Therefore it is not unworthy of our Redeemer, Who came to be slain, that He was willing to be tempted. It was meet that He should thus overcome our temptations by His own, even as He came to conquer our death by His own.

Eighth Responsory.

[2] Deal thy bread to the hungry, and bring the poor and the wanderer to thine house. Then shall thy light break forth as the morning, and thy righteousness shall go before thee.

Verse. When thou seest the naked, cover him; and hide not thyself from thine own flesh.

Answer. Then shall thy light break forth as the morning, and thy righteousness shall go before thee.

Ninth Lesson.

WE ought to know that temptation worketh through three forms. There is, first, the suggestion; then the delectation;[3] lastly, the consent. When we are tempted, it often happeneth that we fall into delectation, and even into consent, because in the sinful flesh of which we are begotten, we carry in ourselves matter to favour the attack. But God, when He took Flesh in the womb of the Virgin, and came into the world without sin, did so without having in Himself anything of this lusting of the flesh against the spirit. It was possible therefore for Him to be tempted in the first stage, namely suggestion; but there was nothing in His Mind in which delectation could fix its teeth. And thus all the temptation which He endured from the devil was without, and none within Him.

Ninth Responsory.

[4] God hath given His Angels charge over thee, to keep thee in all thy ways. They shall bear thee up in their hands, lest haply thou dash thy foot against a stone.

Verse. Thou shalt tread upon the adder and the cockatrice, the lion also, and the dragon shalt thou trample under feet.

Answer. They shall bear thee up in their hands, lest haply thou dash thy foot against a stone.

Verse. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, and to the Holy Ghost.

Answer. They shall bear thee up in their hands, lest haply thou dash thy foot against a stone.

JESUS! true Sun of human souls!
Shed in our souls Thy ray!

O GOD, Who dost every year purge Thy Church by the Fast of Forty Days, grant unto this Thy family, that what things soever they strive to obtain at Thy hand by abstaining from meats, they may ever turn to profit by good works. Through our Lord JESUS Christ Thy Son, Who liveth and reigneth with Thee, in the unity of the Holy Ghost, one God, world without end. Amen.

Hymn as on Saturday evening.

Antiphon at the Song of the Blessed Virgin. Behold, now is the accepted time; * behold, now is the day of salvation; in these days therefore let us approve ourselves as the ministers of God, in much patience, in fastings, in watchings, and in love unfeigned.

Monday.

Second Day.

MATTINS.

Hymn as on Sunday.

First Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Holy Gospel according to Matthew (xxv. 31.)

AT that time: JESUS said unto His disciples: When the Son of Man shall come in His glory, and all the Angels with Him, then shall He sit upon the throne of His glory, and before Him shall be gathered all nations. And so on.

Homily by St Austin, Bishop [of Hippo.] (On Faith and Works, xv. 4.)

If, without keeping the commandments, it be possible to attain unto life by faith only, (and "faith, if it hath not works, is dead,"—James ii. 17,) how can it be true that the Lord will say to such as He shall have set on His left hand: "Depart from Me, ye cursed, into everlasting fire, prepared for the devil and his angels?" He rebuketh them, not because they have not believed in Him, but because they have not wrought good works. Yea, lest any man should promise himself life eternal by faith only, (and "faith, if it hath not works, is dead,") the Lord saith that He will gather together all nations, nations who have lived mingled together in the same countries, that we may seem to hear them which have believed indeed in Him, but have not wrought good works, (as though that their dead faith could, "being alone," lead them into life eternal,) that we may seem to hear such crying unto Him,—"Lord, when saw we Thee suffering such and such things, and did not minister unto Thee?"

[4] I.e., Easter.

First Responsory.

Behold, now is the acceptable time, &c., (p. 262.)

Second Lesson.

IF they shall go into everlasting fire who have not done works of mercy, shall not they go who have taken their neighbour's goods? Or shall not they go who have outraged the temple of God in their own selves, and so been merciless to themselves? As if works of mercy could avail anything without love, contrary to the words of the Apostle: "Though I bestow all my goods to feed the poor, and have not charity, it profiteth me nothing." (1 Cor. xiii. 3.) And what manner of love to his neighbour hath he who loveth him as himself and loveth not himself?—remembering that "he that loveth iniquity hateth his own soul." (Ps. x. 6.)

Second Responsory.

In all things, &c., (p. 263.)

Third Lesson.

NEITHER dare we say here that by which some delude themselves, namely, that the fire indeed is everlasting, but that they will not burn therein everlastingly. Such men say that they whose faith is dead, will pass through that everlasting fire, and that they are they to whom it is promised that they themselves "shall be saved, yet so as by fire." (1 Cor. iii. 15.) So that, though the fire itself be everlasting, the burning of the damned therein, that is, the work of the fire upon them, will not be everlasting. As though the Lord were answering this beforehand, the last words of His Sermon are: "And these shall go away into everlasting punishment, but the righteous into life eternal." As the fire, so shall the burning be; and the Truth biddeth us know that they shall burn therein, who have lacked, not faith, but good works.

Third Responsory.

The Priests, &c., (p. 263.)

LAUDS.

Chapter. (Isa. lviii. 1.)

CRY aloud, spare not; lift up thy voice like a trumpet, and show My people their transgressions, and the house of Jacob their sins.

Hymn and Verse and Answer as on Sunday, (p. 265.)

Antiphon at the Song of Zacharias. Come, ye blessed of My Father, * inherit the kingdom prepared for you from the foundation of the world.

Prayer.

TURN us, O God of our salvation, and that the Fast of these Forty Days may profit us, do Thou order all our thoughts according to Thy heavenly teaching. Through our Lord JESUS Christ, Thy Son, Who liveth and reigneth with Thee, in the unity of the Holy Ghost, one God, world without end. Amen.

The same Prayer at Terce, Sext, and None.

After Lauds is said the Dirge.

VESPERS.

Chapter. (Joel ii. 17.)

THE Priests, the ministers of the LORD, shall weep between the porch and the altar, and shall say: Spare, O LORD, spare Thy people, and give not thine heritage to reproach, that the heathen should rule over them.

Hymn and Verse and Answer as on Saturday, (p. 262.)

Prayer.

LOOSE us, O Lord, we beseech Thee, from all bonds of our sins, and in Thy mercy turn away from us all pains which for the same we do justly deserve. Through our Lord JESUS Christ Thy Son, Who liveth and reigneth with Thee, in the unity of the Holy Ghost, one God, world without end. Amen.

Tuesday.

Third Day.

MATTINS.

Hymn as on Sunday.

First Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Holy Gospel according to Matthew (xxi. 10.)

AT that time: When JESUS was come into Jerusalem, all the city was moved, saying: Who is this? And so on.

Homily by the Venerable Bede, Priest [at Jarrow.] (7th for Lent, Tom. vii.)

The same thing which the Lord showed in a figure by cursing the barren fig-tree, He afterwards more plainly put before us by casting the desecrators out of the temple. The tree herself had not sinned by bearing no fruit when the Lord was hungry, for the time of figs was not yet come, but those Priests had sinned who were carrying on worldly business in the Lord's house, and who neglected to bring forth that fruit of godliness which they owed, and which the Lord was hungry to find in them. The Lord made the fig-tree to wither away under His curse, that all men who saw it, and all men who hear of it, might know that they will be condemned by the judgment of God, if they content themselves with the talk of godliness, without the solid fruit of good works, even as that barren fig-tree was clothed only with a rustling garb of green leaves.

First Responsory.

Let us amend, &c., (p. 263.)

Second Lesson.

BUT because the buyers and sellers understood not the parable of the barren fig-tree, the Lord brought upon them the stroke of the punishment that they had deserved, and cast out the traffickers in earthly things, from that house, wherein it had been commanded that nothing should be done save the work of God, sacrifices and prayers offered up to Him, and

His word read, taught, and sung. And yet it may be believed that nothing was being sold or bought in the temple save such things as were needful for the service thereof, as we read in another place, (John ii. 14,) that when JESUS went into the temple "He found those that sold oxen and sheep and doves,"—and all these things were doubtless there for no other end but to be offered to God in that His holy house, and were sold by the natives to those worshippers who came from a distance, to be so used.

Second Responsory.

Let the wicked, &c., (p. 263.)

Third Lesson.

IF, therefore, the Lord would not have to be sold in the temple, even such things as He willed should be offered therein, (on account, that is, of the greed or dishonesty which is often the stain of such transactions,) with what anger, suppose ye, would He visit such as He might find laughing or gossiping there, or yielding to any other sin? If the Lord suffer not to be carried on in His house such worldly business as may be freely done elsewhere, how much more shall such things as ought never to be done anywhere, draw down the anger of God if they be done in His own holy house? Lastly; the Holy Ghost came down upon the Lord in the shape of a dove, and by doves therefore may be signified the gifts of that Holy Spirit. They, then, to this day sell doves in the temple of God, who take money in the Church for the laying on of their hands, whereby the Holy Ghost is given from heaven.

Third Responsory.

The season of the Fast, &c., (p. 264.)

LAUDS.

Chapter from Isa. lviii. 1, as on Monday (p. 266.)

Hymn and Verse and Answer as on Sunday (p. 265.)

Antiphon at the Song of Zacharias. JESUS went into the temple of God, * and cast out all them that sold and bought; and overthrew the tables of the money-changers, and the seats of them that sold doves.

Prayer.

LOOK down, O Lord, on this Thy family, and grant that our minds, which, by the chastening of the body, we seek to purify, may ever more and more shine in Thy sight by strong hungering after Thee. Through our Lord JESUS Christ Thy Son, Who liveth and reigneth with Thee, in the Unity of the Holy Ghost, one God, world without end. Amen.

The same Prayer at Terce, Sext, and None.

VESPERS.

Chapter from Joel ii. 17, as on Monday, (p. 266.)

Hymn and Verse and Answer as on Saturday, (p. 262.)

Antiphon at the Song of the Blessed Virgin. For it is written that My house is the house of prayer * for all nations; but ye have made it a den of thieves; and He was daily teaching in the temple.

Prayer.

O LORD, may our prayers come up before Thy presence, and do Thou mercifully rid Thy Church of all wickedness. Through our Lord JESUS Christ Thy Son, Who liveth and reigneth with Thee, in the unity of the Holy Ghost, one God, world without end. Amen.

Ember Wednesday.

Fourth Day of Quarter-Tense.

Before Mattins are said the Gradual Psalms.

MATTINS.

Hymn as on Sunday.

First Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Holy Gospel according to Matthew (xii. 38.)

AT that time: Certain Scribes and Pharisees answered JESUS, saying: Master, we would see a sign from Thee. And so on.

Homily by St Ambrose, Bishop [of Milan.] (7th Bk. on Luke, ch. xii.)

After the condemnation of the Jewish people, the mystery of the Church is plainly declared in the figures of the repentant Ninevites, and of the Queen of the South. Like that Queen, the Church cometh from the uttermost parts of the earth, to hear the wisdom of the true Solomon, the Prince of Peace.[1] A Queen she is, and a Queen of one indivisible realm, wrought into one body out of all nations, however divers and distant.

First Responsory.

Rend your hearts, &c., (p. 264.)

Second Lesson.

AND thus cometh that great mystery of Christ and the Church, a mystery more excellent now in the fulness of truth, than in the ancient type. For there they had in Solomon only a type of that which Christ is now in His own Person. And the Church is of two classes, whereof the one knoweth not how to sin, and the other sinneth no more. To wash away sin is the work of repentance, to eschew it that of wisdom.

Second Responsory.

Deal thy bread, &c., (p. 264.)

Third Lesson.

LASTLY, the sign of the Prophet Jonas, as it was a figure of the Lord's sufferings, was also a witness to the gravity of those sins which the Jews committed. At the same time, we see in these words of the Lord a declaration at once of His power, and of His love; for, by turning our eyes on the Ninevites, He showeth us a way of escape, while He setteth before us the horror of what will otherwise be our punishment. Even the Jews need not cease to hope for pardon, if only they would repent.

Third Responsory.

[2] Shut up alms in the breast of the poor, and it shall plead for you with the Lord. For, [1] as water will quench fire, so alms maketh an atonement for sins.

Verse. [2] Give alms, and, behold, all things are clean unto you.

Answer. For, as water will quench fire, so alms maketh an atonement for sins.

Verse. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, and to the Holy Ghost.

Answer. For, as water will quench fire, so alms maketh an atonement for sins.

LAUDS.

Chapter from Isa. lviii. 1, as on Monday, (p. 266.)

Hymn and Verse and Answer as on Sunday, (p. 265.)

Antiphon at the Song of Zacharias. This evil and adulterous generation seeketh after a sign; * and there shall no sign be given to it, but the sign of the Prophet Jonas.

Prayer.

O LORD, we beseech Thee, mercifully to hear our prayers, and to stretch forth the right hand of Thy power against all things that fight against us. Through our Lord JESUS Christ Thy Son, Who liveth and reigneth with Thee, in the unity of the Holy Ghost, one God, world without end. Amen.

The same Prayer at Terce, Sext, and None.

VESPERS.

Chapter from Joel ii. 17, as on Monday, (p. 263.)

Hymn and Verse and Answer as on Saturday, (p. 262.)

Antiphon at the Song of the Blessed Virgin. As Jonas was three days and three nights in the whale's belly, * so shall the Son of man be three days and three nights in the heart of the earth.

Prayer.

O LORD, we beseech Thee to cast Thy bright beams of light upon our mind that we may clearly see whatsoever things Thou wouldst have us to do, and have strength to do always that is pleasing in Thy sight. Through our Lord JESUS Christ Thy Son, Who liveth and reigneth with Thee, in the unity of the Holy Ghost, one God, world without end. Amen.

Thursday.

Fifth Day.

MATTINS.

Hymn as on Sunday, (p. 262.)

First Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Holy Gospel according to Matthew (xv. 21.)

AT that time: JESUS went thence, and departed into the coasts of Tyre and Sidon. And so on.

Homily by St Jerome, Priest [at Bethlehem.] (Bk. ii. Comm. on Matth. xv.)

Christ leaveth the Scribes and Pharisees who had spoken falsely against Him, and goeth into the coasts of Tyre and Sidon, that He may heal the Tyrians and Sidonians. But a woman of Canaan cometh to Him out of the land He had left, and crieth to Him to give health to her daughter. Remark that the case of the daughter of this woman of Canaan is the fifteenth case of healing.

"Have mercy on me, O Lord, Thou Son of David!" She knew that He was to be called "Son of David" because she was come out of His own country, and had left the errors of the Tyrians and Sidonians when she changed her home and her faith.[3]

First Responsory.

I had been troubled, but that I knew Thy mercy, O Lord: Thou hast said: [4] I have no pleasure in the death of the wicked, but that he turn from his way and live. O Thou, Who didst call the Canaanitish woman and the Publican unto repentance!

Verse. [5] In the multitude of the sorrows within my heart, Thy comforts delight my soul.

Answer. O Thou Who didst call the Canaanitish woman and the Publican unto repentance!

Second Lesson.

"MY daughter is grievously vexed with a devil." I think that the daughter of this woman of Canaan, [whom the Lord at length delivered,] was a figure of the souls of such as now believe, but were once grievously vexed by the devil, knowing not Him Who made them, and bowing down to stocks and stones.

"But He answered not a word"—not because He was puffed up with the pride of the Pharisees, or shared the high looks of the Scribes, but that He might fulfil His own word that He had spoken, saying: "Go not into the way of the Gentiles, and into any city of the Samaritans enter ye not." (Matth. x. 5.) He would not give an occasion to such as spoke falsely against Him, and He kept back perfect salvation from the Gentiles until such time as He should have suffered and risen again.

Second Responsory.

In all things, &c., (p. 263.)

Third Lesson.

"AND His disciples came and besought Him, saying: Send her away; for she crieth after us." The disciples, knowing not as yet the mysterious things of the Lord, said this, either because they were moved with compassion and so interceded for this Canaanitish woman, whom another Evangelist calleth a Syrophœnician, (Mark vii. 26,) or because she was crying out that the Lord was an hard, instead of a merciful physician, and they desired to be rid of her clamour.

"But He answered and said: I am not sent but unto the lost sheep of the house of Israël,"—not that He was not sent unto the Gentiles, but because it was to Israël in the first instance that He was sent, whom refusing the Gospel, He might justly pass away from, and go to the Gentiles.

Third Responsory.

The Priests, &c., (p. 263.)

[2] Luke xi. 41.

[3] "The woman was a Gentile, a Syrophenician by nation." (Mark vii. 26.)

LAUDS.

Chapter from Isa. lviii. 1, as on Monday, (p. 266.)

Hymn and Verse and Answer as on Sunday, (p. 265.)

Antiphon at the Song of Zacharias. JESUS went thence, * and departed unto the coasts of Tyre and Sidon: and, behold a woman of Canaan came out of those coasts,[1] and cried unto Him, saying: Have mercy on me, Thou Son of David!

Prayer.

O LORD, look down favourably upon the earnestness of Thy people, and grant that they being an-hungred in their bodies, may be spiritually fed by the fruit of good works. Through our Lord JESUS Christ Thy Son, Who liveth and reigneth with Thee, in the unity of the Holy Ghost, one God, world without end. Amen.

At the beginning of the Martyrology is said,

On the morrow we commemorate the piercing of the Lord JESUS Christ with the spear and the nails.

The same Prayer at Terce, Sext, and None.

Ember Friday.

Sixth Day of Quarter-Tense.

Office in Memory of the Piercing of our Lord JESUS Christ with the Spear and Nails.

Greater Double.

All as on Sunday, except the following.

FIRST VESPERS.

Antiphons, Chapter, and Prayer from Lauds.

Last Psalm.

Ps. cxvi. O praise the LORD, &c., (p. 105.)

Hymn.

ON Calvary with what a mystery gleams
The spear that at the ninth hour of the day
Made for the Precious Blood toward the earth
Out of the pulseless Heart its last strange way.

As the first Adam by the tree of life
Lay still and silent in sleep's deep repose,
Mother of all that live, from his cleft side
Eve guileful bride to life and beauty rose.

So when upon the Cross's quickening tree
In death's deep sleep the Second Adam hung,
Mother of all that live by faith, the Church
From His cleft Side in Blood and Water sprung.

There too the nails that pierced Him—they they were
Wherewith the Saviour to the bitter wood
Whereto His Hands and Feet were nailed, nailed too
The dark handwriting that against us stood.

Praise to the Father, and the Holy Ghost,
And Him Who, where earth's feeble vision fails
Amid the glory of the Eternal Throne
Still bears the marking of the spear and nails.

Verse. [2] They pierced My Hands and My Feet.
Answer. They have told all My Bones.

Antiphon at the Song of the Blessed Virgin. [3] Blotting out the handwriting of the ordinance that was against us, He took it out of the way, nailing it to His Cross.

Commemoration of the Week-day.

Antiphon. O woman, great is thy faith: be it unto thee even as thou wilt.
Verse. God hath given His Angels charge over Thee.
Answer. To keep Thee in all Thy ways.

Prayer.

GRANT, O Lord, we beseech Thee, unto all Christian people, that what they now believe they may one day know and may see in love unchecked, that heavenly gift whereof now they are the worshippers and the partakers. Through our Lord JESUS Christ, Thy Son, Who liveth and reigneth with Thee, in the unity of the Holy Ghost, one God, world without end. Amen.

At Compline, last verse of the Hymn,

Lord JESU, slain for us, to Thee
Eternal praise be given,
With Father, Spirit, One and Three,
Here as it is in heaven.

MATTINS.

Invitatory. Christ, Who was pierced with the Spear and Nails, * Him, O come, let us worship!

Hymn.[4]

If the Hymn at Vespers should not have been said, it is said instead of this one, and verses 1, 2, and 3 of this are prefixed to the Hymn at Lauds.

HAIL, Spear and Nails, erewhile despised
As things of little worth;
Now crimson with the Blood of Christ
And famed through heaven and earth.

Chosen by Jewish perfidy
As instruments of sin,
God turned you into ministers
Of love and grace Divine:

For from each several wound ye made
In the Redeemer's Frame,
As from a fount, celestial gifts
And life eternal came.

Thee, JESU, pierced with Nails and Spear,
Let every knee adore;
With Thee, O Father, and with Thee,
O Spirit, evermore. Amen.

FIRST NOCTURN.[5]

Only three Psalms are said.

First Antiphon. But when they came to JESUS, they brake not His Legs, but one of the soldiers with a spear pierced His Side.

Ps. i. Blessed is the man, &c., (p. 2.)

Second Antiphon. And forthwith came thereout Blood and Water; and he that saw it bare record, and his record is true.

[5] Antiphons from John xix. 33-37.

Third Antiphon. Another Scripture saith: They shall look on Him Whom they pierced.

Ps. iii. LORD, how are they increased, &c., (p. 3.)

Verse. [1] They persecute him whom Thou hast smitten.
Answer. And they embitter the pain of my wounds.

First Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Book of the Prophet Zechariah (xii. 10.)

THUS saith the Lord: I will pour upon the house of David and upon the inhabitants of Jerusalem the spirit of grace and of supplications; and they shall look upon Me Whom they have pierced; and they shall mourn for him, as one mourneth for his only son, and shall be in bitterness for him, as one useth to be that is in bitterness for the death of his first-born. In that day there shall be a great mourning in Jerusalem, as the mourning of Hadadrimmon in the field of Megiddon.[2] And the land shall mourn, every family apart; the family of the house of David apart, and their wives apart; the family of the house of Nathan apart, and their wives apart; the family of the house of Levi apart, and their wives apart; the family of Shimei apart, and their wives apart; all the families that remain apart, and their women apart.

First Responsory.

But when they came to JESUS, and saw that He was dead already, they brake not His Legs; but one of the soldiers with a spear pierced His Side.
Verse. And he that saw it bare record, and his record is true.
Answer. One of the soldiers with a spear pierced His Side.

Second Lesson. (xiii.)

IN that day there shall be a fountain opened to the house of David, and to the inhabitants of Jerusalem, for sin and for uncleanness.[3] And it shall come to pass in that day, saith the LORD of hosts, that I will cut off the names of the idols out of the land, and they shall no more be remembered; the false prophets and the unclean spirit will I cause to pass out of the land. And it shall come to pass that, when any shall yet prophesy, then his father and his mother, that begat him, shall say unto him: Thou shalt not live, for thou speakest lies in the name of the LORD. And his father and his mother, that begat him, shall thrust him through, when he prophesieth. And it shall come to pass in that day, that the prophets shall be ashamed every one of his vision, when he had prophesied; neither shall they wear a rough garment to deceive; but he shall say: I am no prophet; I am an husbandman; for Adam hath been mine ensample from my youth.

Second Responsory.

One of the soldiers with a spear pierced His Side, and forthwith came thereout Blood and Water.
Verse. In that day there shall be a fountain opened to the house of David and to the inhabitants of Jerusalem.
Answer. And forthwith came thereout Blood and Water.

Third Lesson.

AND one shall say unto him: What are these wounds in thine hands? Then he shall answer: Those with which I was wounded in the house of my friends.[4] Awake, O sword, against My shepherd, and against the man that is My fellow, saith the LORD of hosts; smite the shepherd, and the sheep shall be scattered; and I will turn Mine hand upon the little ones. And it shall come to pass that in all the land, saith the LORD, two parts therein shall be cut off and die; but the third shall be left therein. And I will bring the third part through the fire, and will refine them as silver is refined, and will try them as gold is tried. He shall call on My Name, and I will hear him. I will say: Thou art My people; and he shall say: The LORD is my God.

Third Responsory.

In that day there shall be a fountain opened to the house of David, and to the inhabitants of Jerusalem, for sin and for uncleanness.
Verse. This is He That came by Water and Blood, even JESUS Christ.
Answer. For sin and for uncleanness.
Verse. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, and to the Holy Ghost.
Answer. For sin and for uncleanness.

SECOND NOCTURN.

First Antiphon. They shall look upon Me Whom they have pierced; and they shall mourn for him as one mourneth for his only son.

Ps. iv. When I called, &c., (p. 116.)

Second Antiphon. What are these wounds in thine hands?

Ps. v. Give ear, &c., (p. 49.)

Third Antiphon. Those with which I was wounded in the house of my friends.

Ps. viii. O LORD, our Lord, &c., (p. 4.)

Verse. He was wounded for our transgressions.
Answer. He was bruised for our iniquities.

Fourth Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from a Sermon by Pope Innocent VI. (Decree concerning the Feast of the Spear and the Nails.)

WE are behoven so to glory in the most holy sufferings of our Lord and Saviour JESUS Christ, as to count out one by one all the mysteries and merits of His Suffering, and even to glory in every one of their soul-saving instruments. Among such mysteries is notable the fact that the Saviour on the Cross, after that He had given up the Ghost, bore that His Side should be pierced with a spear, to the end that in the stream of Blood and Water which forthwith came thereout, there might spring forth, one, and stainless, and virgin, His Bride and our holy mother, the Church. O how blessed is that gap in the Sacred Side, whence have rushed for us so many and so great streams of mercy! Happy for us was the lance whose work was to do us such good, and to add such another glory to such a victory!

[2] This was the national lamentation for the death of Josiah. 2 Par. (Chron.) xxxv. 24, 25.

[4] Abp. Kenrick says: "The occasion of his wounds is not stated, although he received them in the house of his friends. They were probably inflicted by his parents, to punish him for uttering false prophecies"—as he also says before: "The general horror of idolatry is expressed by the readiness of parents to punish their own son for countenancing it by false predictions."

Fourth Responsory.

[1] This is He That came by Water and Blood, even JESUS Christ; not by Water only, but by Water and Blood.
Verse. [2] There are Three that bear witness in earth, the Spirit, and the Water, and the Blood: and these three are One.
Answer. Not by Water only, but by Water and Blood.

Fifth Lesson.

IN opening that Side, the lance opened for us the gates of the kingdom of heaven. In wounding Him Who was dead already, (John xix. 33, 34,) the lance closed our wounds, and gave us life and health. In piercing Him Who was harmless, (Heb. vii. 26,) the lance, by His Blood, purged our sins of their harmfulness; in trickling down with that most holy Water, it flooded away from our eye the beam which had made us blind, and washed us clean in the waves of God's mercy. For us are also sweet the nails wherewith the Saviour was fastened upon the Cross. We must clearly remember that theirs it was not only to be smeared with the sinless Blood, not only to bear up the weight of the Great [Victim of Atonement], but to open for us, in the salvation-bringing Wounds, sweet wells of the goodness of God; [by going through His Hands,] to free our hands from the manacles of sin, and, [by boring His Feet,] to draw our feet out of the snares of death.

Fifth Responsory.

[3] Many dogs have compassed me: the assembly of the wicked have inclosed me. They pierced my hands and my feet: they have told all my bones.
Verse. One shall say unto him, What are these wounds in thine hands?
Answer. They pierced my hands and my feet: they have told all my bones.

Sixth Lesson.

THAN the Cleft in that Side, and the Wounds in those Hands and Feet what is there holier? What is there more life-giving?—out of Them floweth salvation, and in Them the souls of believers may for ever find health. The Lance and Nails heretofore mentioned, and other instruments employed in the life-giving Sufferings of Christ, are everywhere to be held in reverence of all His faithful people, and solemn Offices concerning His Sufferings themselves are held and kept in the Church; but We, nevertheless, hold it meet and convenient that a special Festal Office should be held and kept concerning these things in particular, especially in those places where the instruments themselves are asserted to be still preserved; and We desire by these Offices and Indulgences more particularly to provoke the earnestness in godliness of such of the faithful as please themselves with the belief that they have any such Relique in their possession.

Sixth Responsory.

One shall say unto him: What are these wounds in thine hands? Then he shall answer: Those with which I was wounded in the house of my friends.

Answer. Those with which I was wounded in the house of my friends.
Verse. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, and to the Holy Ghost.
Answer. Those with which I was wounded in the house of my friends.

THIRD NOCTURN.

Ps. xcv. O sing unto the LORD, &c., (p. 85.)

Second Antiphon. Except I shall see in His Hands the print of the nails, and put my finger into the print of the nails, and thrust my hand into His Side, I will not believe.

Ps. xcvi. The LORD reigneth, &c., (p. 85.)

Ps. xcvii. O sing unto the LORD, &c., (p. 89.)

Verse. The chastisement of our peace was upon Him.
Answer. And with His stripes we are healed.

Seventh Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Holy Gospel according to John (xix. 28.)

AT that time: JESUS, knowing that all things were now accomplished, that the Scripture might be fulfilled, saith: I thirst. And so on.

Homily by St Austin, Bishop [of Hippo.] (120th Tract upon John.)

"One of the soldiers with a spear pierced His Side, and forthwith came thereout Blood and Water." The Evangelist speaketh carefully. He saith not that he smote the Side, nor yet that he wounded It, nor yet anything else, but "pierced"—"pierced" It, to fling wide the entrance unto life, whence flow the Sacraments of the Church, those Sacraments without which there is no entrance into the life which is life indeed. That Blood, Which was shed there, was shed for the remission of sins, that Water is the Water that mantleth in the cup of salvation. Therein are we washed, and thereof do we drink. Of this was it a type when it was said unto Noah: "The door of the ark shalt thou set in the side thereof . . . and of every living thing of all flesh shalt thou bring into the ark . . . to keep them alive." (Gen. vi. 16, 19.) A figure this of the Church.

[3] Ps. xxi. 17.

Seventh Responsory.

These things were done that the Scripture should be fulfilled: A bone of Him shall not be broken. And again another Scripture saith: They shall look on Him Whom they pierced.

Verse. I will pour upon the house of David and upon the inhabitants of Jerusalem the spirit of grace and of supplications.

Answer. They shall look on Him Whom they pierced.

Eighth Lesson.

THUS it was that the first woman was made from the side of her husband while he slept, and she was called [Eve, which is, being interpreted,] "Life," "because she was the mother of all living." (Gen. iii. 20.) This name set forth a great good, before it became associated with the bitter fruit of a great evil. And here we have the second Adam bowing His Head, and the deep sleep of death falling upon Him upon the Cross, and He sleepeth that the Lord God may take a thing out of His Side, and make thereof a wife for Him. O what a death was His, which quickeneth the dead! What is cleaner than His Blood? What more health-giving than His wounding? "For these things were done, that the Scripture might be fulfilled: 'Not a Bone of Him shall be broken,'—and again, another Scripture saith: 'They shall look on Him Whom they pierced.'"

Eighth Responsory.

I will pour upon the house of David and upon the inhabitants of Jerusalem the spirit of grace and of supplications; and they shall look upon Me Whom they have pierced.

Verse. And they shall mourn for him as one mourneth for his only son.

Answer. And they shall look upon Me Whom they have pierced.

Verse. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, and to the Holy Ghost.

Answer. And they shall look upon Me Whom they have pierced.

Ninth Blessing.

May the Gospel's glorious word,
Cleansing to our souls afford.

Ninth Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Holy Gospel according to John (v. 1.)

AT that time: There was a feast of the Jews: and JESUS went up to Jerusalem. And so on.

Homily by St Austin, Bishop [of Hippo.] (17th Tract on John.)

Let us see what is mystically signified by that one infirm man whom alone the Lord, keeping to a mysterious unity, chose out of so many sufferers, to be the subject of His healing power. He found in him a certain number of years of sickness. He had had an infirmity thirty and eight years. How this number is proper rather to weakness than to health, will now be the subject of a few careful remarks. I bespeak your attention; the Lord will be present, that I may speak fitly, and you may understand. The number forty is put before us as hallowed, and, in a way, perfect. I think that your love knoweth this: God's Scriptures often and often witness it. Ye well know that a Fast of this number of days is hallowed. Moses fasted forty days. Elias did the same. And our Lord and Saviour JESUS Christ Himself fasted this number of days complete. Moses representeth the Law, Elias the Prophets, and the Lord the Gospel. And therefore these three appeared on the Mount of the Transfiguration. There the Lord showed Himself to His disciples with His Face shining as the sun, and His raiment glistering; and He stood between Moses and Elias; as it were, the Gospel receiving testimony, on the one hand from the Law, and, on the other, from the Prophets. Whether, therefore, it be in the Law, or in the Prophets, or in the Gospel, the number of forty is recommended to us for Fast-days. The great and general Fast is this: to abstain from the iniquity of the world, and her forbidden pleasures. This is the perfect Fast, "that, denying ungodliness, and worldly lusts, we should live soberly, righteously, and godly in this present world." After such a Fast, what is the Feast that followeth? Hear what the Apostle saith in continuation: "Looking for that blessed hope, and the glorious appearing of our great God and Saviour JESUS Christ." (Titus ii. 12, 13.) We, then, make our pilgrimage in this world a Lent, by living good lives, and abstaining from her iniquities and her forbidden pleasures. But at the end of this life-long Lent there will be an Easter indeed. We "look for that blessed hope, and the glorious appearing of our great God and Saviour JESUS Christ." When that hope is realised, when that faith is swallowed up in knowledge, then indeed shall we receive every man a penny. In good sooth, it is true that every labourer in the vineyard will get his wages—witness that Gospel which I believe ye have not forgotten, (Matth. xx. 1—16) and which it is not my business to quote again as if ye were ignorant children. Now, the word used in the original for this penny which the labourers received is "denarion." And the derivation of the word "denarion" is the numeral "decem," ten. There are forty days in Lent, and if we add ten, we get fifty. So do we toil in fasting for the forty days of Lent before Easter, and, then, when we have, as it were, received our reward, we keep holiday for the fifty days of Easter-tide. Remember how I remarked, that the man healed by our Lord at the pool of Bethesda had had an infirmity thirty and eight years. I wish to explain why this number of thirty-eight is proper rather to weakness than to health. "Love is the fulfilling of the law" (Rom. xiii. 10;) to the fulfilling of the law belongeth in every work the number forty. But in love we have given us two precepts: "Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy mind. This is the first and great commandment. And the second is like unto it: Thou shalt love thy neighbour as thyself. On these two commandments hang all the law and the prophets." (Matth. xxii. 37-40.) When the widow gave all she had for an offering to God she gave two mites (Mark xii. 42;) the inn-keeper received two pence wherewith to cure him that had fallen among thieves (Luke x. 35;) JESUS abode for two days among the Samaritans (John iv. 40,) that He might establish them in love. When, then, anything good is spoken of as two, the two great divisions of love are the chief mystic interpretation. If, then, the law is fulfilled in the number forty, and it is not fulfilled if there be lacking the two precepts of love, what wonder is it that he was infirm who lacked two of forty?

First Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Holy Gospel according to Matthew (xvii. 1.)

AT that time: JESUS taketh Peter, and James, and John his brother, and bringeth them up into an high mountain apart, and was transfigured before them. And so on.

Homily by Pope St Leo [the Great.] (On the Transfiguration of the Lord.)

Dearly beloved brethren, the Lesson from the Holy Gospel which, entering in by our bodily ears, hath knocked at the door of our inner mind, calleth us to understand a great mystery. This, by the grace of God, we shall the more readily do, if we return to consider what hath been told us just before. The Saviour of mankind, even JESUS Christ, laying the foundations of that faith whereby the ungodly are called to righteousness and the dead to life, instilled into the minds of His disciples, both by the voice of His teaching and the wonder of His works, that they should believe Him, the one Christ, to be both the Only-begotten Son of God and the Son of man. Had they believed Him one of these and not the other, it had availed them nothing to salvation; and the danger was equally great, of holding the Lord JESUS Christ to be God without the Manhood, or Man only without the Godhead, since we are constrained to acknowledge that He is perfect God and perfect Man, and that as there is in the Godhead perfect Manhood, so there is in the Manhood perfect Godhead.

First Responsory.

Rend your hearts, &c., (p. 264.)

Second Lesson.

TO strengthen, therefore, the saving knowledge of this faith, the Lord had asked His disciples what, among the differing opinions of men, was their own belief and judgment as to Who He was. Then did the Apostle Peter, by the revelation of That Father Who is above all, rising above fleshly things, yea, outstripping the thoughts of men, then did he fix the eyes of his mind upon the Son of the living God, and confess the glory of the Godhead, for he looked not on the substance of the flesh and blood only. And in all the exaltation of this faith so well did he please God, that he was gifted with that joyous blessing, the hallowed establishment of that impregnable rock, whereon the Church being founded, should prevail against the gates of hell and the laws of death; neither, when anything is to be bound or loosed, is any bound or loosed in heaven, otherwise than as the judgment of Peter hath bound or loosed it upon earth.

Second Responsory.

Deal thy bread, &c., (p. 264.)

Third Lesson.

BUT, dearly beloved brethren, it behoved that the height of this understanding, which the Lord praised, should rest upon a foundation, and that foundation, the mystery of the lower nature, lest the faith of the Apostle, carried away by the glorious acknowledgment of the Godhead in Christ, should deem it unworthy and unnatural for the impassible God to take into Himself the frailty of our nature; and should thus believe that in Christ the Manhood had been so glorified as to be no longer able to suffer pain, or be dissolved in death. And therefore it was that, when the Lord said how that He must go up unto Jerusalem, and suffer many things of the elders and chief priests, and scribes, and be killed, and rise again the third day, and the blessed Peter, bright with heavenly illumination, and still glowing from the passionate acknowledgment of the Divine Sonship, by a natural, and, as seemed to him, a godly shrinking, could not bear the mention of mockery and insult and a cruel death, he was corrected by the merciful rebuke of JESUS, and moved rather to desire to be a partaker in the sufferings of his Master.

Third Responsory.

Shut up alms, &c., (p. 267.)

FIRST NOCTURN.

First Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Book of Genesis (xxvii. 1.)

AND it came to pass that when Isaac was old, and his eyes were dim, so that he could not see, he called Esau his eldest son, and said unto him: My son? And he said unto him: Here am I. And his father said: Behold, now I am old, and I know not the day of my death. Take thy weapons, thy quiver and thy bow, and go out to the field; and take me some venison, and make me savoury meat, such as thou knowest that I love, and bring it to me, that I may eat, and my soul may bless thee before I die. And Rebecca heard. And Esau went to the field to do as his father had commanded him. And Rebecca said unto Jacob her son: I heard thy father speak unto Esau thy brother, saying: Bring me venison, and make me savoury meat, that I may eat, and bless thee before the LORD, before my death. Now therefore, my son, obey my voice, and go now to the flock, and fetch me from thence two good kids of the goats, and I will make them savoury meat for thy father, such as he loveth; and thou shalt bring it to thy father, that he may eat, and that he may bless thee before his death.

First Responsory.

Take thy weapons, thy quiver and thy bow, and bring me some of thy venison, that I may eat, and my soul may bless thee.

Verse. And when thou hast taken somewhat, make me thereof savoury meat, that I may eat.

Answer. And my soul may bless thee.

Second Lesson.

AND he answered: Thou knowest that Esau my brother is an hairy man, and I am a smooth man; if my father feel me, and perceive it, I fear lest he think that I go about to deceive him, and I shall bring a curse upon me, and not a blessing. And his mother said unto him: Upon me be the curse, my son; only obey my voice, and go, fetch me them as I have said. And he went, and fetched, and brought them to his mother. And she made savoury meat, such as she knew that his father loved. And she took goodly raiment of Esau, which were with her in the house, and put them upon Jacob: and she put the skins of the kids of the goats upon his hands, and upon the smooth of his neck. And she gave the savoury meat, and the bread which she had prepared, into his hand. And he brought it unto his father, and said: My father? And he said: I hear; who art thou, my son? And Jacob said: I am Esau thy first-born; I have done according as thou badest me. Arise, sit, and eat of my venison, that thy soul may bless me. And Isaac said unto his son again: How is it that thou couldest find it so quickly, my son? And he said: God willed that that which I sought should come to me quickly.

Second Responsory.

See! the smell of my son is as the smell of a field which the LORD hath blessed: may my God multiply thee as the sand of the sea, and give thee a blessing of the dew of heaven!

Verse. And God Almighty bless thee, and multiply thee—

Answer. And give thee a blessing of the dew of heaven.

Third Lesson.

AND Isaac said: Come near, that I may feel thee, my son, whether thou be my very son Esau or not. And he went near unto his father, and Isaac felt him, and said: The voice is Jacob's voice, but the hands are the hands of Esau. And he discerned him not, because his hands were hairy, as his elder brother's hands. Therefore, or ever he blessed him, he said: Art thou my very son Esau? And he answered: I am. And he said: Bring it near to me, my son, and I will eat of thy venison, that my soul may bless thee. And he brought it near to him, and he did eat; and he brought him wine also. And when he had drunk, he said unto him: Come near now, and kiss me, my son. And he came near and kissed him. And as soon as he smelled the smell of his raiment, he blessed him, and said: See! the smell of my son is as the smell of a field which the LORD hath blessed. God give thee of the dew of heaven, and the fatness of the earth, and plenty of corn and wine. Let people serve thee, and nations bow down to thee: be lord over thy brethren and let thy mother's sons bow down to thee. Cursed be he that curseth thee, and blessed be he that blesseth thee!

Third Responsory.

God give thee of the dew of heaven and the fatness of the earth. Let people and nations serve thee. Be lord over thy brethren.

Verse. And let thy mother's sons bow down to thee.

Answer. Be lord over thy brethren.

Verse. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, and to the Holy Ghost.

Answer. Be lord over thy brethren.

SECOND NOCTURN.

Fourth Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Book against Lying written by St Austin, Bishop [of Hippo.] (Ch. ix. tom. 4.)

IF we consider faithfully and carefully what it was that Jacob did by the advice of his mother, and wherein he seemeth to have deceived his father, it will appear that [it hath an aspect in which] it is not a lie, but an allegory. If we denounce this [its mystic sense] as a lie, then must we also give the name of lies to even all parable, and to every figure devised to set forth the nature of anything, which is not to be taken in its literal sense, but in which one thing is to be understood under the name of another. And this be far from us. Whoso should do this, would bring the charge of falsehood against very many figures of speech, including that one called metaphor (in which a word is transferred from that meaning which belongeth to it, to some other) to which would, by such reasoning, be given the name of a lie.

Fourth Responsory.

[1] As Jacob went out from his own land, he saw the glory of God, and said: How dreadful is this place! This is none other but the house of God; and this is the gate of heaven.

Verse. Surely God is in this place, and I knew it not.

Answer. This is none other but the house of God; and this is the gate of heaven.

Fifth Lesson.

THE deep meaning is given; but what is considered is the lie; because men do not understand the way in which that signification, which is a truth, is set forth; but the falsehood is plainly expressed, and believed. That we may understand this more plainly by taking some points in illustration, consider with me what Jacob did. It is certain that he covered his limbs with the skins of goats. If we consider his object in point of fact, we shall find that it was to lie, because he did this that he might be thought to be he who he was not. But if we consider this his deed in that deep typical sense which it undoubtedly possesseth, we find that by the goat-skins are represented sins, and by him who covered himself therewith Him Who bore not His own sins, but the sins of others.

Fifth Responsory.

[2] If the Lord my God will be with me, in this way that I go, and will keep me, and will give me bread to eat, and raiment to put on, and will bring me again safely, the LORD shall be my refuge, and this stone shall be a sign.

Verse. So Jacob rose up early in the morning, and took the stone that he had put for his pillow, and set it up for a pillar, and poured oil upon the top of it, and said:—

Answer. The LORD shall be my refuge, and this shall be a sign.

Sixth Lesson.

IT is impossible to apply the term "lie" to that mystic aspect of this transaction in which it was true; and such an aspect there is, not only in the acts, but in the words. When Isaac said to Jacob: "Who art thou, my son?" and Jacob answered: "I am Esau, thy first-born,"—if we take this in its sense relative to the two brothers, it will be apparent that it was a lie. If, however, we look at it relatively to that for the sake of which these words and deeds were written down, we shall see that Christ is here signified in His mystic body, the Church. Concerning her, [the younger covenant,] He saith [to them of the older covenant]: "Ye shall see Abraham, and Isaac, and Jacob, and all the Prophets in the kingdom of God, and you yourselves thrust out. And they shall come from the east, and from the west, and from the north, and from the south, and shall sit down in the kingdom of God. And, behold, there are last which shall be first, and there are first which shall be last." (Luke xiii. 28-30.) Thus did the younger take away the title and inheritance from the elder, and acquire it to himself.

Sixth Responsory.

The LORD shall be my God, and this stone, which I have set for a pillar, shall be called God's house, and of all that Thou shalt give me, I will offer tithes and peace-offerings to Thee.

Verse. If I come again to my father's house in peace.

Answer. I will offer tithes and peace-offerings unto Thee.

Verse. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, and to the Holy Ghost.

Answer. I will offer tithes and peace-offerings unto Thee.

THIRD NOCTURN.

Seventh Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Holy Gospel according to Matthew (xvii. 1.)

AT that time: JESUS taketh Peter, and James, and John his brother, and bringeth them up into an high mountain apart, and was transfigured before them. And so on.

Continuation of the Homily by Pope St Leo [the Great.]

JESUS took Peter, and James, and John his brother, and brought them up into an exceeding high mountain apart, and manifested forth the brightness of His glory. Hitherto, though they understood that there was in Him the Majesty of God, they knew not the power of that Body which veiled the Godhead. And therefore He had individually and markedly promised to some of the disciples that had stood by Him (Matth. xvi. 28) that they should "not taste of death till they had seen the Son of Man coming in His kingdom,"—that is, in the kingly splendour, which is the right of the Manhood taken into God, and which He willed to make visible to those three men. This it was that they saw, for the unspeakable and unapproachable vision of the Godhead Himself which will be the everlasting life of the pure in heart, (Matth. v. 8,) can no man, who is still burdened with a dying body, see and live.

---

[1] xxviii. 17.

[2] xxviii. 20, 21, 18.

Seventh Responsory.

[1] The Angel said unto Jacob: Let me go, for the day breaketh. And he said: I will not let thee go, except thou bless me. And he blessed him there.

Verse. And when Jacob arose, behold there wrestled a man with him, until the breaking of the day; and, when he saw that he prevailed not, he said unto him:—

Answer. Let me go, for the day breaketh. And he said: I will not let thee go, except thou bless me. And he blessed him there.

Eighth Lesson.

WHEN the Father saith: "This is My beloved Son, in Whom I am well pleased: hear ye Him"—did they not plainly hear Him say—"This is My Son, Whose it is to be of Me and with Me without all time"? For neither is He That begetteth, before Him That is begotten, neither He That is begotten, after Him That begetteth Him. "This is My Son"—between Whom and Me, to be God is not a point of difference; to be Almighty, a point of separation; nor to be Eternal, a point of distinction. "This is My Son"—not by adoption, but My very Own; not created from, or of another substance, or out of nothing, but begotten of Me; not of another nature, and made like unto Me, but of Mine own Being, born of Me, equal unto Me.

Eighth Responsory.

I have seen God face to face—and my life is preserved.

Verse. And he said unto me: Thy name shall be called no more Jacob, but Israël shall be thy name.

Answer. And my life is preserved.

Ninth Lesson.

"THIS is My Son"—by Whom all things were made, and without Whom was not anything made that was made, (John i. 3;) Who maketh likewise all things whatsoever I make: and what things soever I do He doeth likewise, (v. 19), inseparably and indifferently. "This is My Son"—Who thought it not robbery, nor hath taken it by violence, to be equal with Me, but, abiding still in the form of My glory, that He may fulfil Our common decree for the restoration of mankind, hath bowed the unchangeable Godhead even to the form of a servant. (Phil. ii. 6, 7.) Him therefore in Whom I am in all things well pleased, by Whose preaching I am manifested, and by Whose lowliness I am glorified, Him instantly hear ye. For He is the Truth and the Life, (John xiv. 6,) My Power, and My Wisdom. (1 Cor. i. 24.)

Ninth Responsory.

[2] When Jacob heard that Esau came to meet him, he divided his sons and his wives, saying: If Esau smite the one company, then the other shall escape. Deliver me, O Lord, Which saidst unto me: I will multiply thy seed as the stars of heaven, and as the sand of the sea, which cannot be numbered for multitude.

Verse. O LORD, Which saidst unto me: Return unto thy country—[3] O Lord, Which feedest me still from my youth up—

Answer. Deliver me, O Lord.

Second Day.

MATTINS.

Hymn as on the First Sunday, (p. 262.)

First Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Holy Gospel according to John (viii. 21.)

AT that time: JESUS said unto the multitudes of the Jews: I go My way, and ye shall seek Me, and shall die in your sins. And so on.

Homily on this passage by St Austin, Bishop [of Hippo.] (Tract 38 on John.)

The Lord spake unto the Jews, saying: "I go My way"—for, to the Lord Christ, death was a departure to that place whence He had come, and whence He had never departed. "I go My way," saith He, "and ye shall seek Me"—not from love, but from hatred. Yea, after He had withdrawn Himself from the sight of men, two classes sought Him, even they that loved, and they that hated Him; the one because they longed for His presence, the other because they were fain to hunt Him down. In the Psalms the Lord Himself saith by His Prophet:[1] "Refuge failed me, and no man cared for my soul." (Ps. cxli. 5.) And again He said in another Psalm: "Let them be confounded and put to shame that seek after my soul." (Ps. xxxiv. 4.)

First Responsory.

[2] While as Jacob went from Beersheba, and hasted unto Haran, the LORD spake unto him, saying: The land whereon thou sleepest, to thee will I give it, and to thy seed.

Verse. [3] He built an altar of stones unto the Name of the Lord, and poured oil upon the top of it; and God blessed him and said:

Answer. The land whereon thou sleepest, to thee will I give it, and to thy seed.

Second Lesson.

THUS doth He blame them that seek not, and condemn such as seek. Yea, it is a good thing to seek the soul of Christ, as the disciples sought it; and an evil thing to seek it, as the Jews sought it; the first sought it to possess, the second to destroy it. What then doth He bid us know will be the reward of such as seek it evilly in a perverse heart? "Ye shall seek Me, and"—lest ye think that ye shall do well so to seek Me, I tell you that ye—"shall die in your sins." To seek Christ with bad intent, is as much as to die in sin, for it is to hate Him through Whom alone we can be saved.

Second Responsory.

[4] God appeared unto Jacob, and blessed him, and said: I am the God of Bethel, where thou anointedst the pillar, and where thou vowedst a vow unto Me. [5] I will make thee fruitful, and multiply thee.

Verse. [6] Surely the LORD is in this place, and I knew it not.

Answer. I will make thee fruitful, and multiply thee.

Third Lesson.

WHEREAS men whose hope is in God ought to return good even for evil, those men returned evil for good. The Lord therefore told them beforehand, and, because He knew it, He let them know their coming end, how that they should die in their sins. Then He said farther: "Whither I go, ye cannot come." This He said in another place (xiii. 33) to His disciples, but He never said to them: "Ye shall die in your sins." What said He? The same words as to the Jews: "Whither I go, ye cannot come." Yet, to the disciples, these words only deferred, they cut not away hope—for they, though for a little while they could not come whither He was to go, were yet in the end to go there. Not so they to whom He foretold and said: "Ye shall die in your sins."

Third Responsory.

God give thee, &c., (p. 276.)

Through our Lord JESUS Christ Thy Son, Who liveth and reigneth with Thee, in the unity of the Holy Ghost, one God, world without end. Amen.

Tuesday.

Third Day.

MATTINS.

Hymn as on the First Sunday, (p. 262.)

First Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Holy Gospel according to Matthew (xxiii. 1.)

AT that time: Spake JESUS to the multitude, and to His disciples, saying: The Scribes and Pharisees sit in Moses' seat. All therefore whatsoever they bid you observe, that observe and do; but do not ye after their works. And so on.

Homily by St Jerome, Priest [at Bethlehem.] (Bk. iv. Comm. on Matth. xxiii.)

Was there ever man gentler and kinder than the Lord? The Pharisees tempted Him; their craft was confounded, and, in the words of the Psalmist, "The arrows of babes have pierced them," (Ps. lxiii. 8,) and nevertheless, because of the dignity of their priesthood and name, He exhorteth the people to be subject to them, by doing according to their words, though not according to their works. By the words "Moses' seat" we are to understand the teaching of the law. Thus also must we mystically take, "Sitteth in the seat of the scornful," (Ps. i. 1,) and likewise, "overthrew the seats of them that sold doves," (Matth. xxi. 12,) to describe doctrine.

First Responsory.

As Jacob went, &c., (p. 276.)

Second Lesson.

"FOR they bind heavy burdens, and grievous to be borne, and lay them on men's shoulders, but they themselves will not move them with one of their fingers." This is generally directed against all teachers who command things hard, and themselves do not even things easy. But it is to be remarked that the "shoulders," the "fingers," and the "binding" of the burdens, have a spiritual interpretation.

"But all their works they do for to be seen of men." Whosoever therefore doth anything for to be seen of men, the same is, so far, a Scribe and a Pharisee.

Second Responsory.

If the Lord my God, &c., (Fifth Responsory on Sunday, p. 276.)

Third Lesson.

"THEY make broad their phylacteries, and enlarge the borders of their garments. And love the uppermost rooms at feasts, and the chief seats in the synagogues, and greetings in the markets, and to be called of men, Rabbi." Woe to us miserable sinners who have inherited the vices of the Pharisees! When the Lord had given the commandments of the law to Moses He added afterwards: "Thou shalt bind them for a sign upon thine hand, and they shall be as frontlets between thine eyes," (Deut. vi. 8.) The sense of these words is: "My Law shall be in thine hand to order whatsoever thou doest, and ever before thine eyes that thou mayest meditate therein day and night." But the Pharisees, by a bad interpretation, were accustomed to write on pieces of parchment the Decalogue of Moses, that is, the Ten Words of the Law,[1] and to tie these pieces of parchment, plaited in a peculiar manner, on their foreheads, so as to make a sort of crown round their heads, which projected in front of their eyes, and always moved before them.

Third Responsory.

The LORD shall be my God, &c., (p. 276.)

LAUDS.

Chapter from Isa. lviii. 1, as on the First Monday, (p. 266.)

Hymn and Verse and Answer as on the First Sunday, (p. 265.)

Antiphon at the Song of Zacharias. For One is your Master, * Which is in heaven, even Christ the Lord.

Prayer.

ENABLE us, O Lord, we beseech Thee, to carry to a perfect end this holy and helpful observance, that what we know we have to do by Thine ordinance we may be holpen to do by Thy strength. Through our Lord JESUS Christ Thy Son, Who liveth and reigneth with Thee, in the unity of the Holy Ghost, one God, world without end. Amen.

The same Prayer at Terce, Sext, and None.

[1] St Jerome seems to have been misinformed. The passages inscribed in the phylacteries are four, and are (1) Exod. xiii. 1-10, (2) 11-16; (3) Deut. vi. 4-9; (4) xi. 13-21.

Prayer.

Through our Lord JESUS Christ Thy Son, Who liveth and reigneth with Thee, in the unity of the Holy Ghost, one God, world without end. Amen.

Wednesday.

Fourth Day.

Before Mattins are said the Gradual Psalms.

MATTINS.

Hymn as on the First Sunday, (p. 262.)

First Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Holy Gospel according to Matthew (xx. 17.)

AT that time: JESUS, going up to Jerusalem, took the twelve disciples apart, and said unto them: Behold, we go up to Jerusalem; and the Son of man shall be betrayed unto the chief priests and unto the Scribes, and they shall condemn Him to death. And so on.

Homily by St Ambrose, Bishop [of Milan.] (Bk. v. to Gratian, on Faith, c. ii.)

Consider what it was that the mother of Zebedee's children came to Christ desiring, with, and for her sons. She was a mother, who, longing for the honour of her sons, preferred a request immoderate, and yet pardonable. She was a mother who, albeit stricken in years and comfortless, at an age when she had sore need of the strength of her offspring to help and keep her, was yet so earnest in godliness and motherly love, that she had liefer suffer the loss of her sons, that they might gain the reward of following Christ still, as we read they had already done, when, at the first call of the Lord, they left their nets and their father. (iv. 21, 22.)

First Responsory.

The Angel said, &c., (p. 277.)

Second Lesson.

SHE, then, yielding to the intensity of her motherly love, besought the Saviour, saying, "Grant that these my two sons may sit, the one at Thy right hand and the other at Thy left hand, in Thy kingdom." Although it was a mistake, it was a mistake of love. For a mother's love knoweth no moderation. Yet, although it was a greedy prayer, that was a pardonable greed, which hungered, not for riches, but for grace. Neither was that request shameless which sought, not her own good, but her children's. Remember that she was a mother. Think how that she was a mother.

Second Responsory.

I have seen God, &c., (p. 277.)

Third Lesson.

CHRIST took into His consideration that mother's love of hers, which made her sons' reward the comfort of her own old age, and which could bear the loss of her loved ones, broken as she was by a mother's yearnings. Consider also that she was a woman, that is, of the weaker sex, to which the Lord had not yet given strength by His Passion. Consider, I say, that she was an heiress of Eve, and weakened by that transmission of the unbridled covetousness of the first woman, which the Lord had not yet disarmed by His Blood, even that craving for undue dignity, wherewith all our natures are imbued, and which Christ's Blood-shedding had not yet washed away. She erred indeed, but the mistake was an inherited weakness.

Third Responsory.

When Jacob heard, &c., (p. 277.)

LAUDS.

Chapter from Isa. lviii. 1, as on the First Monday, (p. 266.)
Hymn and Verse and Answer as on the First Sunday, (p. 265.)

Antiphon at the Song of Zacharias. Behold, we go up to Jerusalem, * and the Son of man shall be betrayed to be crucified.

Prayer.

LOOK down in mercy upon Thy people, O Lord, we beseech Thee, and grant unto them, whom Thou commandest to abstain from fleshly meats, power to abstain also from the corruption of sin. Through our Lord JESUS Christ Thy Son, Who liveth and reigneth with Thee, in the unity of the Holy Ghost, one God, world without end. Amen.

Prayer.

O GOD, the Renewer and Lover of innocency, turn the hearts of all Thy servants to Thyself, that so they, being enkindled with the fire of Thy Spirit, may be found ever rooted in faith, and fruitful in works. Through our Lord JESUS Christ Thy Son, Who liveth and reigneth with Thee, in the unity of the Same Holy Ghost, one God, world without end. Amen.

Thursday.

Fifth Day.

MATTINS.

Hymn as on the First Sunday, (p. 262.)

First Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Holy Gospel according to Luke (xvi. 19.)

AT that time: JESUS said unto the Pharisees: There was a certain rich man, which was clothed in purple and fine linen, and fared sumptuously every day. And so on.

Homily by Pope St Gregory [the Great.] (40th on the Gospels.)

Whom, dearly beloved brethren, whom are we to understand as signified by that rich man which was clothed in purple and fine linen, and fared sumptuously every day, whom, I ask, are we to understand, but the Jewish people, who had all the outward life of religious ordinances, and who turned the treasure of the law they had received to show and not to use? What but the herd of the Gentiles is figured in Lazarus, full of sores? Whosoever turneth himself to God and is not ashamed to confess his sin, hath his sores on the skin, for in a sore on the skin breaketh out the corruption, which is drawn from within.

First Responsory.

Take thy weapons, &c., (p. 275.)

Second Lesson.

WHAT is, then, the confession of our sins but the breaking out of our sores? The corrupt matter of sin is healthily opened in confession, instead of remaining in the mind to rot it. Open sores on the skin bring the poisonous matter to the surface, and when we confess our sins, what do we but open up the evil that there is lurking in us? But Lazarus desired to be fed with the crumbs which fell from the rich man's table, and no man gave unto him; even so did that proud people scorn to admit a Gentile to the knowledge of their law.[1]

Second Responsory.

See! the smell of my son, &c., (p. 275.)

Third Lesson.

THE teaching of the law moved them to pride, and not to love, as though they swelled with self-importance at the thought of their riches, and the words which some Gentiles caught of their knowledge were as crumbs falling from their sumptuous table. On the other hand, the dogs came and licked the sores of the beggar that was laid at their gate. Sometimes in Holy Writ, under the figure of dogs, preachers are understood. A dog's tongue healeth the sore which it licketh, and so do holy teachers, when we confess our sins, and they speak to us, mollify by their tongues the sores of our souls.

Third Responsory.

God give thee, &c., (p. 276.)

LAUDS.

Chapter from Isa. lviii. 1, as on the First Monday, (p. 266.)

Hymn and Verse and Answer as on the First Sunday, (p. 265.)

Antiphon at the Song of Zacharias. Son, remember * that thou in thy lifetime receivedst thy good things, and likewise Lazarus evil things.

Prayer.

GRANT unto us, O Lord, we beseech Thee, the help of Thy grace, that we, who are now bent on fasting and prayer, may be freed from enemies both of our bodies and of our souls. Through our Lord JESUS Christ, Thy Son, Who liveth and reigneth with Thee, in the unity of the Holy Ghost, one God, world without end. Amen.

The same Prayer at Terce, Sext, and None.

At the beginning of the Martyrology, is said,

On the morrow we commemorate the Enshroudment of our Lord JESUS Christ in His Most Holy Winding-sheet.

FIRST VESPERS.

Last Psalm.

Ps. cxvi. O praise the Lord, &c., (p. 105.)

Hymn.[2]

JESUS! when on Thy fatal day
Thy people turn their awe-struck eyes,
Thy latest vesture's history dread
Distinct before their memory lies.

Thy Suffering o'er, from Hands and Feet
They drew the nails who loved Thee well—
Into the linen's spotless folds
Thy Soul-less Body gently fell.

O Word of God! the conquest won,
Thy trophies still around Thee lay;
Clothed in a vesture dipped in Blood,
Thou restedst Victor from the fray.

With our salvation's awful Price
Still wet upon Thy gaping Side
And mangled Feet, and Hands, and Brow,
The virgin web was redly dyed.

If Blood from Thee, let tears from us
In spirit on Thy grave-clothes fall:
The price was Thine, the debt was ours;
For us, for us, was suffered all.

Thou Who Thine own blest life didst give
A sacrifice for ours to be,
Teach us, O God, in least return
Our Blood-bought lives to give to Thee!

Word of the Self-Existent One,
Word uttered with the Breath Divine,
Word clad in vesture dipped in Blood,
All praise eternally be Thine! Amen.

Verse. We honour Thy Winding-sheet, O Lord.
Answer. We call to mind Thy glorious Sufferings.

Antiphon to the Song of the Blessed Virgin. A man named Joseph, a good man and a just, went to Pilate, and begged the Body of Jesus. [Then Pilate commanded the Body to be delivered.] And when [Joseph] had taken [the Body] he wrapped It in a clean linen cloth.

[1] Gentilium quemque ad cognitionem legis admittere superbus ille populus despiciebat. It is, however, evident, from John xii. 20, Acts ii. 5, and other places, that Gentile converts to Judaism were by no means rare.

Commemoration of the Week-day.

Antiphon. That rich man, who had refused Lazarus bread-crumbs, cried for a drop of water.

Verse. God hath given His Angels charge over Thee.

Answer. To keep Thee in all Thy ways.

Prayer.

BE Thou, O Lord, the help of Thy servants, and grant unto their prayers this abiding effect of Thy mercy: that as they do make their boast in Thee, that it is Thou which hast created and dost govern them, so Thou wilt renew in them the gifts wherewith Thou didst bountifully endow them, and wilt preserve what Thou hast renewed. Through our Lord Jesus Christ, Thy Son, Who liveth and reigneth with Thee, in the unity of the Holy Ghost, one God, world without end. Amen.

MATTINS.

Invitatory. Christ our Lord, Who recalleth the memory of His Sufferings by the thought of the Holy Shroud, *—Him, O come, let us worship!

Hymn.[1]

A WONDROUS mystery this day
Reveals itself before our eyes:
The true Son of the living God
Upon the Cross in torment dies.

To advocate a servant's cause,
He takes that servant's guilty guise;
The Master suffers for the slave,
The just Man for the sinner dies.

The emblems of His cruel death
And triumph redly were impressed
Upon the robe, which with its folds
His mangled Body did invest.

These were the signs of victory won
O'er Death, o'er Hell, and o'er the World;
These were the trophies which our Chief
Displays triumphantly unfurled.

This gratitude at least we owe
To Him Who brought eternal life,
That 'neath this banner we should stand,
And fight and conquer in the strife.

Then let us die to all our sin,
And let us rise to life of grace;
That by the Cross we may deserve
To see the glory of His Face.

Grant this, O Father merciful!
And Thou, His own coequal Son!
Grant this, O Spirit! Who dost bear
The sceptre, while the ages run. Amen.

FIRST NOCTURN.

Only three Psalms are said.

First Antiphon. [2] Thou art red in thine apparel, and thy garment like their's that tread in the wine-press.

Ps. iv. When I called, &c., (p. 116.)

Second Antiphon. [2] Blood hath been sprinkled upon my garments, and I have stained all my raiment.

Ps. xiv. Lord, who shall abide, &c., (p. 6.)

Third Antiphon. [3] They part my garments among them, and cast lots upon my vesture.

Ps. xv. Preserve me, &c., (p. 7.)

Verse. We honour Thy Winding-sheet, O Lord.

Answer. We call to mind Thy sufferings.

First Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Book of the Prophet Isaiah (liii.)

WHO hath believed our report? And to whom is the arm of the Lord revealed? For he shall grow up before Him as a tender plant, and as a root out of a dry ground: he hath no form nor comeliness; and when we shall see him, there is no beauty that we should desire him. He is despised and rejected of men; a man of sorrows and acquainted with grief; and he hid as it were his face from us; he was despised, and we esteemed him not. Surely he hath borne our griefs and carried our sorrows: yet we did esteem him stricken, smitten of God, and afflicted. But he was wounded for our transgressions, he was bruised for our iniquities: the chastisement of our peace was upon him, and with his stripes we are healed.

First Responsory.

Behold, we saw Him as having no form nor comeliness. There is no beauty in Him. He hath borne our sins, and sorroweth for us. He was wounded for our transgressions, and with His stripes we are healed.

Verse. Surely He hath borne our sins, and carried our sorrows.

Answer. And with His stripes we are healed.

Second Lesson.

ALL we, like sheep, have gone astray; we have turned every one to his own way: and the Lord hath laid on him the iniquity of us all. He was offered up because he willed it,[4] and he opened not his mouth. He is brought as a sheep to the slaughter, and as a lamb before his shearers is dumb, so he openeth not his mouth. He was taken from prison and from judgment: and who shall declare his generation? For he was cut off out of the land of the living; for the transgression of my people have I stricken him. And he made his grave with the wicked, and with the rich in his death; because he had done no violence, neither was any deceit in his mouth.

Second Responsory.

[5] What are these wounds in thine hands? Then he shall answer: Those with which I was wounded in the house of my friends.

Verse. Awake, O sword, against My shepherd, and against the man that is My fellow.

Answer. Then he shall answer: Those with which I was wounded in the house of my friends.

[1] Hymn of sixteenth to eighteenth century, taken from the Proprium of the arch-diocœse of Freiburg, translation by the Rev. Dr Wallace.

[2] Isa. lxiii. 2, 3.

[3] Ps. xxi. 19.

[4] Oblatus est quia ipse voluit. The present Hebrew is literally, "He was oppressed and he was afflicted." Jonathan ben Uzziel, "He was required, and he was brought back, and without opening his mouth, he submitted to the mighty of the people."

[5] Zech. xiii. 6, 7.

Third Lesson.

YET it pleased the LORD to bruise him; He hath put him to grief; when he hath made his soul an offering for sin, he shall see his seed, he shall prolong his days, and the pleasure of the LORD shall prosper in his hand. He shall see of the travail of his soul, and shall be satisfied: by his knowledge shall my righteous servant justify many, for he shall bear their iniquities. Therefore will I divide him a portion with the great, and he shall divide the spoil with the strong; because he hath poured out his soul unto death; and he was numbered with the transgressors; and he bare the sin of many, and made intercession for the transgressors.

Third Responsory.

We honour Thy Winding-sheet, O Lord; we call to mind Thy glorious sufferings. Thou that didst suffer for us, have mercy upon us!

Verse. O that every one who is here gathered this day to praise Thee may find that Thou art indeed salvation for him!

Answer. Thou that didst suffer for us, have mercy upon us!

Verse. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, and to the Holy Ghost.

Answer. Thou that didst suffer for us, have mercy upon us!

SECOND NOCTURN.

First Antiphon. He hid as it were His Face from us; He was despised,—and we esteemed Him not.

Ps. xxiii. The earth is the LORD'S, &c., (p. 26.)

Second Antiphon. All they that see Me, laugh Me to scorn; they shoot out the lip, and shake the head.

Ps. xxvi. The LORD is my light, &c., (p. 41.)

Third Antiphon. He hath poured out His soul unto death; [and He was numbered with the transgressors;] and He bare the sin of many.

Ps. cxliv. I will extol Thee, &c., (p. 113.)

Verse. We adore Thee, O Christ, and we bless Thee.

Answer. Because that through Thy Cross Thou hast redeemed the world.

Fourth Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Sermons of St Ambrose, Bishop [of Milan.] (On Luke xxiii.)

WHAT is the meaning of this, that, not His Apostles but Joseph, and as saith John, Nicodemus, performed the burial of Christ? The one was a just and bold man, the other a master in Israël. Such it beseemed Christ to have to lay Him in the grave, even He from whom all justice and all rule proceed. Hereby no ground is left for dispute, and the Jews are confuted by witnesses from their own midst. For had the Apostles buried Him, they might have said that He had been taken away, rather than buried. The just man covereth the Body of Christ with linen, the guileless anointeth it with ointment. These distinctions we find not idle, for the clothing of the Church is the righteousness of her Saints (Apoc. xix. 8), and guilelessness bringeth her grace.

Fourth Responsory.

O wondrous Shroud, wherein was wrapped up our Treasure, the ransom-money of the captives.

Verse. The whole world rejoiceth, redeemed by the Blood of her Lord.

Answer. Our Treasure, the ransom-money of the captives.

Fifth Lesson.

DO thou, if thou also wilt be just, clothe [in thy mind's eye] the Body of the Lord, with that glory which is Its Own. Though thou believest It to have been dead, [in thy faith] cover It with the fulness of the Godhead Which belongeth unto It. Anoint It with myrrh and aloes, that thou mayest be a good savour of Christ. The linen which the just Joseph gave was fine, and perchance the same as the great sheet knit at the four corners, and let down to the earth, wherein were all manner of four-footed beasts of the earth, and wild beasts, and creeping things, and fowls of the air, figures of the Gentiles, which appeared unto Peter. (Acts x. 11, 12.) With Christ was mystically buried in that ointment of spikenard the Church, who bindeth together in her Communion all peoples, how divers soever they be.

Fifth Responsory.

[1] And his brethren took Joseph's coat, and dipped it in the blood of a kid of the goats, which they had slaughtered, and they sent one that brought the coat unto their father, and said: This have we found—see now whether it be thy son's coat or no.

Verse. And he knew it, and said: It is my son's coat; an evil beast hath devoured him.

Answer. This have we found—see now whether it be thy son's coat, or no.

Sixth Lesson.

THIS Joseph is called by Luke just, and by Matthew rich. And well is he called rich which receiveth the Body of Christ. By receiving [the source of all] riches, he bade farewell to lack of faith. He that is just is rich. A just man therefore wrapped the Body in the linen, while an Israëlite "brought a mixture of myrrh and aloes, about an hundred pound weight,"—that is to say, the measure of perfect faith. "Then took they the Body of JESUS, and wound It in linen clothes with the spices, as the manner of the Jews is to bury"—(John xix. 38-42,) wound it, not in the nooses of treachery, but in the bands of loyalty. And they laid It in that garden, whereunto the Church is so oftentimes compared, because of the manifold and divers fruits of good works and flowers of grace which do grow in her.

Sixth Responsory.

[2] Christ suffered for us, leaving you an example, that ye should follow His steps, Who did no sin, neither was guile found in His Mouth.

Verse. Who, when He was reviled, reviled not again; when He suffered, He threatened not.

Answer. Who did no sin, neither was guile found in His Mouth.

Verse. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, and to the Holy Ghost.

---

[1] Gen. xxxvii. 31-33.

[2] 1 Pet. ii. 21-23.

Answer. Who did no sin, neither was guile found in His Mouth.

THIRD NOCTURN.

First Antiphon. My flesh shall rest in hope, for Thou wilt not suffer Thine Holy One to see corruption.

Ps. liii. Save me, O God, &c., (p. 20.)

Second Antiphon. Thou hast turned for me my mourning into rejoicing: Thou hast put off my sackcloth, and girded me with gladness.

Ps. lxxv. In Judah is God known, &c., (p. 73.)

Third Antiphon. I am as a man that hath no strength, lying nerveless among the dead.

Ps. lxxxvii. O LORD God of my salvation, &c., (p. 82.)

Verse. Let all the earth worship Thee and sing unto Thee.
Answer. Let them sing praises to Thy Name, O Lord.

Seventh Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Holy Gospel according to Mark (xv. 42.)

AT that time: When the even was come, because it was the Preparation, that is, the day before the Sabbath, Joseph of Arimathæa, an honourable Counsellor, which also waited for the kingdom of God, came, —And so on.

Homily by the Venerable Bede, Priest [at Jarrow.] (For Tuesday in Holy Week.)

The Greek word "Paraskeué," used by the Evangelist, signifieth "the Preparation," and was the name by which the Greek-speaking Jews were used to call Friday, as being the day whereon those things were got ready which would be needed during the rest of the Sabbath, even as it was antiently commanded concerning the manna: "On the sixth day they shall prepare that which they bring in, and it shall be twice as much as they gather daily." (Exod. xvi. 5.) Even thus is it written that on Friday "God created man." (Gen. i. 27.) And "thus the heavens and the earth were finished, and all the host of them. And on the seventh day God ended His work which He had made; and He rested on the seventh day from all His work which He had made. And God blessed the seventh day and sanctified it, because that in it He had rested from all His work which God created and made." (ii. 1-3.) And He was pleased to call the seventh day the Sabbath, that is to say, the Day of "Rest." (Exod. xx. 10.) In like manner also did the crucified Saviour complete upon Friday the work of the new creation, and "when . . . He had received the vinegar, He said: It is finished"—even as it were "The evening and the morning are about to be numbered as the sixth day, and My work whereby I have re-made the world, I have ended." And on the seventh day, the Sabbath Day, He rested from all His work which He had made, awaiting in the grave till the eighth day should come, for him to rise again.

Seventh Responsory.

Joseph bought a clean linen cloth, to wrap therein the Body of the Lord. He came therefore, and took the Body.
Verse. Joseph of Arimathæa besought Pilate that he might take away the Body of JESUS.
Answer. He came therefore, and took the Body.

Eighth Lesson.

"JOSEPH of Arimathæa, an honourable Counsellor, which also waited for the kingdom of God, came, and went in boldly unto Pilate, and craved the Body of JESUS." Very honourable was this Joseph in the eyes of the world, but his honour now is because of his good work toward God. It was meet that he who laid the Lord in the grave should by his good life have earned such a ministry, and by the power of his honourable position in the world should have been able to obtain it. A person unknown or obscure would not have been able to go unto the President and to obtain from him the Body of the Crucified.

Eighth Responsory.

This is that most honourable Winding-sheet, wherein, when the Author of salvation was taken down from the Cross, He was pleased to be wrapped.
Verse. That we being stripped of the slough of the old Adam and buried together with [the new Adam] might be clothed on with the white linen of His sinlessness.
Answer. Wherein when the Author of salvation was taken down from the Cross, He was pleased to be wrapped.
Verse. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, and to the Holy Ghost.
Answer. Wherein, when the Author of salvation was taken down from the Cross, He was pleased to be wrapped.

Ninth Blessing.

May the Gospel's glorious word
Cleansing to our souls afford.

Ninth Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Holy Gospel according to Matthew (xxi. 33.)

AT that time: JESUS spake unto the multitudes of the Jews and unto the chief priests this parable: There was a certain householder, which planted a vineyard, and hedged it round about. And so on.

Homily by St Ambrose, Bishop [of Milan.] (Bk. ix. on Luke xx.)

Many derive divers spiritual meanings from the term vineyard, but Isaias giveth us to know that "the vineyard of the LORD of Sabaoth is the house of Israël," (v. 7.) Who but God planted that vineyard? He it was that let it out to husbandmen, and went into a far country; not that the Lord, Who is everywhere present, moveth from place to place; but because He is nigh unto them that seek Him, and from such as regard Him not He standeth afar off. For a long time He tarried away, lest He might seem to ask too early for the fruits of His vineyard. For where kindness is greatest, there ingratitude is worst.

Therefore it is well written in Matthew, for our instruction, that He "hedged it round about," that is, He girded it with the fortifications of His own Divine protection, that it might not easily lie open to the ravages of spiritual wild beasts.

"And digged a wine-press in it." What sense are we to put upon the wine-press, unless it be that the Psalms are here described under that title, because in them the mysteries of the Lord's Passion flow over like new wine, working under the power of the Holy Ghost? Whence also, they upon whom the Holy Ghost was outpoured were deemed to be drunken (Acts ii. 13.) God therefore digged a wine-press, whereinto the reasonable grapes of inward fruitfulness poured their spiritual richness.

"And built a tower"—that is, He raised up the goodly structure of the Law. And so this His vineyard, thus fortified, furnished, and garnished, He gave over to the Jews.

"And when the time of the fruit drew near, He sent His servants to the husbandmen." Well doth He call it the time of the fruit, not the time of the in-gathering. For the Jews yielded Him no fruit; the Lord had no in-gathering from that vineyard of which He said: "When I looked that it should bring forth grapes, it brought forth wild grapes."[1] (Isa. v. 4.) Not that wine that maketh glad the heart of man, not with the new wine of the spirit, reeked that wine-press, but with the blood of the Prophets, brutally shed.

The Hymn, "We praise Thee, O God, &c.," is said.

JESUS, as though Thyself wert here,
I draw in trembling sorrow near;
And gazing on Thy Form divine,
Kneel down to kiss those Wounds of Thine.

Ah me, how naked art Thou laid,
Blood-stained, distended, cold, and dead,—
Joy of my soul, my Saviour sweet!—
Upon the sacred Winding-sheet!

Hail, awful Brow! Hail, thorny wreath!
Hail, Countenance, now pale in death,
Whose glance but late so brightly blazed,
That angels trembled as they gazed.

And hail to Thee, my Saviour's Side—
And hail to Thee, Thou Wound so wide,
Thou Wound more ruddy than the rose,
True Antidote of all our woes.

O by those sacred Hands and Feet
For me so mangled, I entreat,
My JESUS, turn me not away,
But let me here for ever stay. Amen.

MATTINS.

Hymn as on the First Sunday.

First Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Holy Gospel according to Luke (xv. 11.)

AT that time: JESUS spake this parable unto the Pharisees and Scribes: A certain man had two sons; and the younger of them said to his father: Father, give me the portion of goods that falleth to me. And so on.

Homily by St Ambrose, Bishop [of Milan.] (Bk. vii. Comment. on Luke xv.)

Thou seest how that the heavenly goods are given to such as seek them. Neither oughtest thou to think the father to blame, because he gave to his younger son. In the kingdom of God there is no age of weakness, neither doth faith wax infirm with years. He, surely, who asked, deemed himself of sufficient age. And would that he had not left his father! then had he been ignorant of the obstacle of his age! But after that he had left his father's house, and had gone into a far country, he began to be in want. Well is he said to have wasted his substance, who hath cut himself off from the Church!

First Responsory.

Father, I have sinned against heaven and before thee, and am no more worthy to be called thy son. Make me as one of thine hired servants.

Verse. How many hired servants of my father's have bread enough and to spare, and I perish with hunger! I will arise and go to my father and will say unto him:

Answer. Make me as one of thine hired servants.

Second Lesson.

HE took his journey into a far country. No man can go farther than to abandon his own better self, to leave, not his country, but his morals, and, as it were, in an hideous fever of lust after the world, to divorce himself from the ties that bind him to holy things. Yea, he that turneth his back on Christ, banisheth himself from his Fatherland, and becometh a citizen of the world. But we "are no more strangers and foreigners, but fellow-citizens with the saints, and of the household of God," since we "who sometimes were afar off, are made nigh by the Blood of Christ." (Eph. ii. 19, 13.) Let us not envy the pleasures of them who remain in the far country. We too have once been there, but, as saith Isaiah, "they that dwelt in the land of the shadow of death, upon them hath the light shined." (ix. 2.) And that far country is the land of the shadow of death.

Second Responsory.

I have seen God, &c., (p. 277.)

Third Lesson.

BUT we to whom the Lord Christ is the breath of life, are alive under the shadow of Christ. And therefore it is that the Church saith: "I sat down under His shadow with great delight." (Cant. ii. 3.) The prodigal son by riotous living wasted all the gifts of nature. Take warning, O thou who art made in the image and likeness of God, lest thou waste the same by brutish wallowing. Thou art the work of God; say not "to a stock: Thou art my father," (Jer. ii. 27,) lest thou grow into the likeness of a stock, as it is written: "They that make them are like unto them." (Ps. cxiii. 16.)

Third Responsory.

When Jacob heard, &c., (p. 277.)

LAUDS.

Prayer.

GRANT, O Lord, we beseech Thee, that our Fasts may bring forth their fruit unto salvation, that so the affliction which we lay upon our bodies may quicken our souls unto spiritual increase. FIRST NOCTURN.

First Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Book of Genesis (xxxvii. 2.)

JOSEPH, being sixteen years old, was feeding the flock with his brethren, for he was yet but a lad; and he was with the sons of Bilhah and Zilpah, his father's wives; and he brought unto his father their evil report. Now Israël loved Joseph more than all his children, because he was the son of his old age, and he made him a coat of many colours. And when his brethren saw that their father loved him more than all his brethren, they hated him, and could not speak peaceably unto him. And it came to pass that he dreamed a dream, and he told it his brethren; and they hated him yet the more. And he said unto them: Hear, I pray you, this dream which I have dreamed: I thought that we were binding sheaves in the field, and my sheaf arose, and stood upright; and your sheaves stood round about, and made obeïsance to my sheaf. And his brethren said unto him: Shalt thou indeed rule over us? or shalt thou indeed have dominion over us? And they hated him yet the more for his dreams and for his words. And he dreamed yet another dream, and told it to his brethren, and said: I beheld in my dream as though the sun, and the moon, and the eleven stars made obeïsance to me. And he told it to his father and to his brethren; and his father rebuked him, and said unto him: What is this dream that thou hast dreamed? Shall I, and thy mother, and thy brethren indeed come to bow down ourselves to thee to the earth?

First Responsory.

And when his brethren saw Joseph afar off, they said one to another: Behold, this dreamer cometh. Come, let us slay him; and we shall see what will become of his dreams.

Verse. And when his brethren saw that their father loved Joseph more than all his brethren, they hated him, and could not speak peaceably unto him; therefore they said:

Answer. Come, let us slay him; and we shall see what will become of his dreams.

Second Lesson.

SO his brethren envied him, but his father observed the saying, and spake nothing. And when his brethren were gone to feed their father's flock in Shechem, Israël said unto him: Thy brethren feed the flock in Shechem: come, and I will send thee unto them. And he said to him: Here am I. And he said to him: Go, I pray thee, and see whether it be well with thy brethren, and with the flocks; and bring me word again what passeth. So he sent him out of the vale of Hebron, and he came to Shechem. And a certain man found him wandering in the field, and asked him what he sought. And he answered: I seek my brethren; tell me, I pray thee, where they feed their flocks. And the man said unto him: They are departed hence; for I heard them say: Let us go to Dothan. And Joseph went after his brethren, and found them in Dothan. And when they saw him afar off, before he came near unto them, they conspired against him, to slay him, and said one to another: Behold, this dreamer cometh; come, let us slay him, and cast him into some old cistern, and we will say: Some evil beast hath devoured him; and we shall see what will become of his dreams.

Second Responsory.

Judah[1] said unto his brethren: Behold, the Ishmaëlites pass by; come, let us sell him, and let not our hands be defiled. For he is our flesh, and our brother.

Verse. What profit is it if we slay our brother, and conceal his blood? It is better to sell him.

Answer. For he is our flesh, and our brother.

---

[1] Judas. Perhaps the passage is chosen for this Responsory with allusion to the selling of Christ by the Iscariote.

Third Lesson.

AND Reuben heard it, and he strove to deliver him out of their hands; and said: Kill him not, nor shed blood, but cast him into this cistern that is in the wilderness, and keep your hands undefiled. This he said, being willing to rid him out of their hands, and deliver him to his father again. And it came to pass straightway, when Joseph was come unto his brethren, that they stripped him out of his coat of many colours that was on him; and they cast him into an old cistern, wherein was no water. And they sat down to eat bread; and, behold, a company of Ishmaëlites came from Gilead, with their camels bearing spicery, and balm, and myrrh, going to carry it down to Egypt. Judah therefore said unto his brethren: What profit is it if we slay our brother, and conceal his blood? It is better to sell him to the Ishmaëlites, and let not our hands be defiled; for he is our brother and our flesh. And his brethren were content. Then there passed by Midianites, merchantmen, and they drew up Joseph out of the cistern, and sold him to the Ishmaëlites for twenty pieces of silver: and they brought him into Egypt.

Third Responsory.

They drew up Joseph out of the pit, and sold him to the Ishmaëlites for twenty pieces of silver.[1] And Reuben returned unto the pit, and when he found not Joseph, he rent his clothes, and wept, and said: The child is not, and I, whither shall I go?

Verse. And they took Joseph's coat, and dipped it in the blood of a kid of the goats, and they sent one that brought the coat unto their father, and said: See now whether this be thy son's coat or no.

Answer. And Reuben returned unto the pit, and when he found not Joseph, he rent his clothes, and wept.

Verse. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, and to the Holy Ghost.

Answer. And Reuben said: The child is not, and I, whither shall I go?

SECOND NOCTURN.

Fourth Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Book upon holy Joseph written by St Ambrose, Bishop [of Milan.] (Ch. 1.)

THE lives of the saints are the models for the lives of others. This is one of the reasons why we have been given the wise tale of the Scriptures, that while, by reading therein, we come to know Abraham, and Isaac, and Jacob, and others of the righteous, we may follow them in that path of innocency which is opened to us for our imitation by the record of their godly conversation. Of them I have often treated, and to-day the story of the holy Joseph cometh before me. In that story there are patterns of many virtues, but chiefly is he glorious on account of his clean living. Right is it then that ye who have learnt in Abraham the devotedness of a faith that nothing could daunt, in Isaac the transparency of an upright soul, in Jacob a wonderful patience of spirit in great travails, should now turn from their worthy deeds, to see the bright example of Joseph's self-control.

Fourth Responsory.

When Jacob saw Joseph's coat he rent his clothes, and mourned; and he said: An evil beast hath devoured my son Joseph.

Verse. And his brethren took his coat, and sent it to his father: and he knew it, and said:

Answer. An evil beast hath devoured my son Joseph.

Fifth Lesson.

THE holy Joseph is put before us as a pattern of chastity. Modesty shineth in his manners and in his deeds, and a certain loveliness, which is found with chastity, shineth there also. Hence his parents loved him more than their other children. But this love caused him to be the object of an envy, which we must needs not pass by, and upon this the whole story turneth. Yet, at the same time, we learn how that just man was not swayed by any desire to avenge his own sufferings, neither repaid evil for evil. Whence also David saith: "If I have rewarded evil—" (Ps. vii. 5.)[2]

Fifth Responsory.

[3] When Joseph came into the land of Egypt, he heard a language that he understood not; his hands were burdened with labour; [4] and his tongue spake wisdom among princes.

Verse. [5] Whose feet they hurt with fetters; the iron entered into his soul, until the time that his word came—

Answer. And his tongue spake wisdom among princes.

Sixth Lesson.

IN what would Joseph have been worthy to be chosen before others, if he had harmed them which harmed him, and loved them which loved him? For this do many do. But it is a wonder if one do that which the Saviour teacheth, and love his enemy. Well, then, may we wonder at him who did this before the Gospel came; who, being injured, spared; being assailed, forgave; being sold, returned no evil; but repaid insult with favour. We, from the Gospel, have been taught to do all this, and we cannot. Let us also, then, learn how that there was envy even among some of the holy [Patriarchs], that we may follow the example of the patience [wherewith others of them bore it;] and let us feel that they were not men of another and higher nature than ours, but only more heedful; that they were not sinless, but that they repented. But if the passion of envy scorched even some of the holy race, how much more need is there for the sinful to take heed lest it set fire to them?

Sixth Responsory.

[6] Think on me when it shall be well with thee, and make mention of me unto Pharaoh, that he may bring me out of this prison. For I was stolen away; and here have I done noth-

Verse. For yet three days, and then Pharaoh shall remember thy service, and restore thee unto thy place; then think of me—

Answer. And make mention of me unto Pharaoh, that he may bring me out of this prison.

Verse. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, and to the Holy Ghost.

Answer. For I was stolen away; and here have I done nothing, that they should put me into the dungeon.

THIRD NOCTURN.

Seventh Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Holy Gospel according to Luke (xi. 14.)

AT that time: JESUS was casting out a devil, and it was dumb. And it came to pass, when the devil was gone out, the dumb spake; and the people wondered. And so on.

Homily by the Venerable Bede, Priest [at Jarrow.] (Bk. iv. c. 48 on Luke xi.)

We read in Matthew (xii. 22) that the devil, by which this poor creature was possessed, was not only dumb, but also blind; and that, when he was healed by the Lord, he saw as well as spake. Three miracles, therefore, were performed on this one man; the blind saw, the dumb spake, and the possessed was delivered. This mighty work was then indeed wrought carnally, but it is still wrought spiritually in the conversion of believers, when the devil is cast out of them, so that their eyes see the light of faith, and the lips, that before were dumb, are opened that their mouth may show forth the praise of God.

"But some of them said: He casteth out devils through Beelzebub, the chief of the devils." These some were not of the multitude, but liars among the Pharisees and Scribes, as we are told by the other Evangelist (24.)

Seventh Responsory.

[1] We are verily guilty concerning our brother, in that we saw the anguish of his soul, when he besought us, and we would not hear. Therefore is this distress come upon us.

Verse. And Reuben answered his brethren, saying: Spake I not unto you, saying: Do not sin against the child; and ye would not hear?

Answer. Therefore is this distress come upon us.

Eighth Lesson.

WHILE the multitude, who were less instructed, wondered ever at the works of the Lord, the Pharisees and Scribes, on the other hand, denied the facts when they could, and when they were not able, twisted them by an evil interpretation, and asserted that the works of God were the works of an unclean spirit.

"And others, tempting Him, sought of Him a sign from heaven." They would have had Christ either to call down fire from heaven like Elias, (4 Kings i. 10,) or, like Samuel, (1 Kings vii. 10,) to have made thunder roll, and lightning flash, and rain fall at midsummer. And yet and if he had so done, they had been still able to explain away these signs also, as being the natural result of some unusual, though, till that moment, unremarked state of the atmosphere. O thou, who stubbornly deniest that which thine eye seeth, thine hand holdeth, and thy sense perceiveth, what wilt thou say to a sign from heaven? In good sooth, thou wilt say that the magicians in Egypt also wrought divers signs from heaven. (Ex. vii., viii.)

Eighth Responsory.

And Reuben answered his brethren, saying: Spake I not unto you, saying: Do not sin against the child; and ye would not hear? Behold, his blood is required.

Verse. We are verily guilty concerning our brother, in that we saw the anguish of his soul, when he besought us, and we would not hear.

Answer. Behold, his blood is required.

Ninth Lesson.

"BUT He, knowing their thoughts, said unto them: Every kingdom divided against itself is brought to desolation, and an house divided against an house falleth." He answered not their words, but their thoughts; as though He would compel them to believe in the power of Him Who seeth the secrets of the heart. But if every kingdom divided against itself is brought to desolation, then have not the Father, the Son, and the Holy Ghost a divided kingdom, since His is a kingdom that, without all contradiction, shall never be brought to desolation by any shock, but abideth unchanged and unchangeable for ever.

"If Satan also be divided against himself, how shall his kingdom stand? Because ye say that I cast out devils by Beelzebub." In saying this, He sought to draw from their own mouth a confession that they had chosen for themselves to be part of that devil's kingdom, which, if it be divided against itself, cannot stand.

Ninth Responsory.

Jacob lamented for his two sons, saying: Woe is me; I am bereaved of Joseph, for he is not; and afflicted because of Benjamin, because he is taken away for bread. I pray the King of heaven in my distress, that He may make me to see them yet again.

Verse. And Jacob cast him down upon his face upon the ground, and wept sore; and he prayed, saying—

Answer. I pray the King of heaven in my distress, that He may make me to see them yet again.

Verse. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, and to the Holy Ghost.

Answer. I pray the King of heaven in my distress, that He may make me to see them yet again.

Monday.

Second Day.

MATTINS.

Hymn as on the First Sunday (p. 262.)

First Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Holy Gospel according to Luke (iv. 23.)

AT that time: JESUS said unto the Pharisees: Ye will surely say unto Me this proverb: Physician, heal Thyself. Whatsoever we have heard done in Capernaum, do also here in Thy country. And so on.

Homily by St Ambose, Bishop [of Milan.] (Bk. iv. on Luke iv.)

Here we have a display of a spite not very common. Their hatred of Christ, and their desire to find grounds for that hatred in what in Him appealed for their love, had made them forget their local friendliness to a fellow-citizen. By this example as well as by God's declaration, thou mayest learn that thou wilt wait in vain to be holpen of His mercy, whilst thou art envious of the spiritual good of thy neighbour. Yea, the Lord turneth Him away from the envious, and will not show the mighty works of His power to such as are bitter against His gifts to others. The example of Himself which God hath been pleased to set before us is that of His doings in the Flesh, and it is by these His doings which He suffered to be seen, that we are taught touching those which are unseen.

First Responsory.

[2] Take hence presents with you, and go unto the lord of the land, and when ye be come into his presence, bow yourselves to him to the earth. And my God give you mercy before the man, that he may send away again this your brother, and him which he keepeth in ward.

Verse. Take of the best fruits of the land in your vessels, and carry down the man a present.

Answer. And my God give you mercy before the man, that he may send away again this your brother, and him which he keepeth in ward.

Second Lesson.

THE Saviour then doth not lightly excuse Himself that He had wrought none of His mighty works in His own country, lest perchance any should thence learn to think lightly of our duty to love our Fatherland. Neither was it possible that He Who loved all, should not love His own countrymen; they it was who failed in that love because of their very envy.

“I tell you of a truth, many widows

---

[1] Cf. Wisdom xvi. 23.

[2] Cf. xliii. 11-14.

were in Israël in the days of Elias." The days of Elias—not that the said days belonged to Elias, but either because those were the days when Elias lived and worked; or, else, this is a mystic phrase, meaning that Elias by his works made many souls to awake spiritually from the night of sin to the day of grace, and turn to the Lord. In this latter sense that holy Prophet was a mean whereby heaven was opened to such as looked to the eternal and mysterious things of God, and again was shut, (and there was a famine,) when there were no means of knowing God through outward ordinances. This subject, however, I have treated before at full length, when I was writing on the subject of widows.

Second Responsory.

[1] Is this your younger brother, of whom ye spake unto me? God be gracious unto thee, my son. And he made haste, and entered into the house, and wept there, for his tears brake forth, and he could not refrain himself.

Verse. And Joseph lifted up his eyes, and saw his brother Benjamin, and his bowels yearned upon his brother.

Answer. And he made haste, and entered into the house, and wept there, for his tears brake forth, and he could not refrain himself.

Third Lesson.

"AND many lepers were in Israël in the days of Eliseus the Prophet, and none of them was cleansed, saving Naaman the Syrian." By these words of the Lord our great Physician, we are plainly taught and urged to put our trust in the Adorable God, since we see that none was healed, or cleansed from bodily plague-spots, save him who took a religious means to regain health. For the blessings of God are not given to them who close their eyes in sleep, but to them that look to Him. We have remarked in our other book, (alluded to above,) that the widow to whom Elias was sent was a type of the Church. And next after [the mention of the type of] the Church cometh meetly the [mention of him who was a type of the Gentile] people, [her converts.][2] Yea, the Gentiles were a people foreigners by birth, leprous, and covered with plague-spots, till they were baptized in the stream [of the] mystic [Jordan;] but from the sacramental waters they rise, lepers no more, but cleansed in body and soul, a glorious virgin Church, not having spot, or wrinkle, or any such thing. (Eph. v. 27.)

Third Responsory.

[3] Joseph said unto his eleven brethren: I am Joseph whom ye sold into Egypt; is our father yet alive, the old man of whom ye spake unto me? Go, bring him down unto me, that he may live.

Verse. For these two years hath the famine been in the land; and yet there are five years, in the which there shall neither be earing nor harvest.

Answer. Go, bring him down unto me, that he may live.

Verse. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, and to the Holy Ghost.

Answer. Go, bring him down unto me, that he may live.

Tuesday.

Third Day.

MATTINS.

Hymn as on the First Sunday, (p. 262.)

First Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Holy Gospel according to Matthew (xviii. 15.)

AT that time: JESUS said unto His disciples: If thy brother shall trespass against thee, go and tell him his fault between thee and him alone. And so on.

Homily by St Austin, Bishop [of Hippo.] (16th Sermon on the Words of the Lord, vol. x.)

Why tell him his fault? Because he hath made thee smart by trespassing against thee? God forbid. If thou tell him his fault because thou lovest thyself, thou dost nothing. But if thou tell it him because thou lovest him, then dost thou do exceeding well. Hear now, in the words of the Gospel itself, for love of whom thou oughtest to do it, of thyself, or of him. The Lord saith: "If he shall hear thee, thou hast gained thy brother." Therefore it behoveth thee to do it for his sake, that thou mayest gain him; since, if thou so do, haply thou mayest gain him; whereas, if thou do it not, he may haply perish. Why then are there so many who reckon lightly of a trespass against their brother, and say: I have done no great offence, for I have trespassed only against my fellow man? Deem it not light; thou hast trespassed, though it be against thy fellow man.

[1] xliii. 29, 30.

[2] Translated directly from the works of the Saint, which give the following:—"Diximus, in viduâ illâ, ad quam Elias directus est, typum ecclesiæ præmissum. Populus ecclesiam congruit ut sequatur, (i.e., congruit ut populus ecclesiam sequatur.) Populus ille ex alienigenis congregatus, populus ille ante leprosus," &c. In the printed text of the Breviary the passage has got corrupted thus:—"Diximus, in viduâ illâ, ad quam Elias directus est, typum ecclesiæ præmissum. Populus ecclesiam congregavit, ut sequatur populus ille ex alienigenis congregatus. Populus ille ante leprosus," &c.

[3] xlv. 4, 6; xliii. 27.

First Responsory.

[1] They told Jacob, saying: Thy son Joseph is yet alive, and he is governor over all the land of Egypt; and, when he heard it, his spirit revived, and he said: It is enough; I will go, and see him before I die.

Verse. And when Jacob heard that his son yet lived, he was as one that awakeneth from a deep sleep, and said—

Answer. It is enough; I will go, and see him before I die.

Second Lesson.

WOULDEST thou know that thy trespass against thy brother hath destroyed thee? If he against whom thou hast trespassed tell thee thy fault between himself and thee alone, and thou hear him, he hath gained thee. Gained thee! And what signify those words, if it be not that thou, if thou be not gained, shalt perish? For if thou shouldest not otherwise perish, in what sense can he be said to gain thee? Therefore let no man deem it a light thing when he trespasseth against his brother. For the Apostle Paul saith in a certain place: "When ye sin so against the brethren, and wound their weak conscience, ye sin against Christ." (1 Cor. viii. 12.) We are all members of Christ. How dost thou not trespass against Christ, which trespassest against one of His members?

Second Responsory.

When Joseph came, &c., (p. 288.)

Third Lesson.

LET no man therefore say: I have not trespassed against God, but only against my brother; that is, I have trespassed against my fellowman; and so the sin is light, if any at all. And perchance thou wilt argue that it is light, because it is quickly mended; thou hast trespassed against thy brother, but thou canst make satisfaction, and be right again; thou hast done the deadly thing quickly, and quickly canst thou find a remedy. O my brethren, which of us can hope for the kingdom of heaven, when we remember that the Gospel saith: "Whosoever shall say to his brother: Thou fool: shall be in danger of hell fire?" (Matth. v. 22.) It is a thought full of dread; but, lo! the remedy—"If thou bring thy gift to the altar, and there rememberest that thy brother hath aught against thee, leave there thy gift before the altar, and go thy way; first be reconciled to thy brother, and then come and offer thy gift." God is not wroth that thou tarry or ever thou offer thy gift; for God seeketh thyself more than thy gift.

Third Responsory.

Think on me, &c., (p. 288.)

LAUDS.

Wednesday.

Fourth Day.

Before Mattins are said the Gradual Psalms.

MATTINS.

Hymn as on the First Sunday, (p. 262.)

First Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Holy Gospel according to Matthew (xv. 1.)

AT that time: There came to JESUS Scribes and Pharisees which were of Jerusalem, saying: Why do Thy disciples transgress the tradition of the elders? And so on.

Homily by St Jerome, Priest [at Bethlehem.] (Bk. ii. Comm. on Matth. xv.)

The stupidity of the Pharisees and Scribes is something extraordinary. They rebuke the Son of God because He doth not observe the traditions and commandments of men: "for they wash not their hands when they eat bread." It behoveth us to cleanse, not the hands of the body, but the hands of the soul, namely, our works, that we may do the commandments of God.

---

[1] xlv. 26-28.

"But He answered and said unto them: Why do ye also transgress the commandment of God by your tradition?" He meeteth here their false accusation by a true. 'How,' saith He, 'do ye, who pass over the commandments of God, in order to keep to the traditions of men, hold that My disciples are to be rebuked, because they deem the tradition of the elders of little moment in comparison with the doing of what they know to be the Laws of God?'

First Responsory.

We are verily guilty, &c., (p. 289.)

Second Lesson.

"FOR God commanded, saying, Honour thy father and mother; and, He that curseth father or mother, let him die the death." But ye say: "Whosoever shall say to his father or his mother: It is a gift, by whatsoever thou mightest be profited by me; and honour not his father or his mother, he shall be free." The word "honour" is used in Scripture, not so much in the sense of paying salutations and services, as in that of giving alms and gifts. "Honour widows," saith the Apostle, "which are widows indeed." (1 Tim. v. 3.) And here honour signifieth support. So again, (17, 18): "Let the Priests that rule well be counted worthy of double honour, especially they who labour in the word and doctrine. For the Scripture saith: 'Thou shalt not muzzle the ox that treadeth out the corn:' and: 'The labourer is worthy of his reward.'"

Second Responsory.

And Reuben answered, &c., (p. 289.)

Third Lesson.

THE Lord being mindful of the helplessness, or age, or poverty of parents, had commanded their children to honour them even by giving them the necessaries of life. The Scribes and Pharisees, scrupling not to make of none effect this most benign law, and bringing in ungodliness under the very form of godliness, taught, for the benefit of unnatural children, that if any one vowed to God, Who is our very Father in heaven, whatsoever he was bound to give to his parents, the duty of discharging his debt to his heavenly Father ought to come before that which he owed to his earthly father; or, at least, that parents in such case incurred the guilt of sacrilege by taking for themselves what they knew had been made a gift to God. And so parents were left unsuccoured, and the offerings of such children, under pretence of being given to God and His temple, became the gain of the Priests.

Third Responsory.

Jacob lamented, &c., (p. 289.)

LAUDS.

Thursday.

Fifth Day.

MATTINS.

Hymn as on the First Sunday, (p. 262.)

First Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Holy Gospel according to Luke (iv. 38.)

AT that time: JESUS arose out of the synagogue, and entered into Simon's house. And Simon's wife's mother was taken with a great fever. And so on.

Homily by St Ambrose, Bishop [of Milan.] (Bk. iv. on Luke iv.)

Behold here how long-suffering is the Lord our Redeemer! Neither moved to anger against them, nor sickened at their guilt, nor outraged by their attacks, did He leave the Jews' country. Nay, forgetting their iniquity, and mindful only of His mercy, He strove to soften their hard and unbelieving hearts, sometimes by His teaching, and sometimes by freeing some of them, and sometimes by healing them. St Luke doth well to tell us first of the man who was delivered from an unclean spirit, and then of the healing of a woman. The Lord indeed came to heal both sexes, but that must be healed first which was created first, and then must not she be passed by whose first sin arose rather from fickleness of heart than from depraved will.

First Responsory.

And when his brethren, &c., (p. 287.)

Second Lesson.

THAT the Lord began to heal on the Sabbath-day showeth in a figure how that the new creation beginneth where the old creation ended. It showeth, moreover, that the Son of God, Who is come not to destroy the law but to fulfil the law, (Matth. v. 17,) is not under the law, but above the law. Neither was it by the law, but by the Word, that the world was created, as it is written: "By the Word of the Lord were the heavens made." (Ps. xxxii. 6.) The law, then, is not destroyed, but fulfilled, in the Redemption of fallen man. Whence also the Apostle saith: "Put off, concerning the former conversation, the old man, which is corrupt according to the deceitful lusts; and be renewed in the spirit of your mind; and put on the new man, which after God is created in righteousness and true holiness." (Eph. iv. 22.)

Second Responsory.

Judah said, &c., (p. 287.)

Third Lesson.

IT was well that He began to heal on the Sabbath, that He might show Himself to be the Creator, weaving in one with another of His works, and continuing that which He had already begun, even as a workman, being to repair an house, beginneth not to take down that which is old from the foundations, but from the roof. Thus doth the Lord begin to lay to His hand again, in that place whence last He hath lifted it; then He beginneth with things lesser, that He may go on to things greater. Even men are able to deliver other men from evil spirits, albeit with the word of God: to command the dead to rise again is for God's power alone.[1] Perchance, also, this woman, the mother-in-law of Simon and Andrew, was a type of our nature, stricken down with the great fever of sin, and burning with unlawful lusts after divers objects. Nor would I say that the passion which rageth in the mind is a lesser fire than that fever which burneth the body. Covetousness, and lust, and uncleanness, and vain desires, and strivings, and anger—these be our fevers.

Third Responsory.

They drew up Joseph, &c., (p. 288.)

LAUDS.

Chapter from Isa. lviii. 1, as on the First Monday, (p. 266.)

Hymn and Verse and Answer as on the First Sunday, (p. 265.)

Antiphon at the Song of Zacharias. And devils also came out of many, * crying out and saying: Thou art Christ the Son of God. And He, rebuking them, suffered them not to speak, for they knew that He was Christ.

Prayer.

Hymn.[3]

SING, my tongue, the glorious battle,
With completed victory rife:
And above the Cross's trophy
Tell the triumph of the strife:
How the world's Redeemer conquered
By surrendering of His life.

God his Maker, sorely grieving
That the first-made Adam fell,
When he ate the fruit of sorrow
Whose reward was death and hell,
Noted then this Tree, the ruin
Of the ancient tree to quell.[4]

For the work of our salvation
Needs would have his order so,
And the multiform deceiver's
Art by art would overthrow,
And from thence[5] would bring the med'cine
Whence the insult of the foe.

Wherefore, when the sacred fulness
Of th' appointed time was come,
This world's Maker left His Father,
Sent the Heavenly Mansion from,
And proceeded, God Incarnate,
Of the Virgin's Holy Womb.

Weeps the Infant in the manger
That in Bethlehem's stable stands;
And His Limbs the Virgin Mother
Doth compose in swaddling bands,
Meetly thus in linen folding
Of her God the Feet and Hands.[6]

To the Trinity be glory
Everlasting, as is meet:
Equal to the Father, equal
To the Son, and Paraclete:
Trinal Unity, Whose praises
All created things repeat. Amen.

[1] Divinæ solius est potestatis—and yet Scripture attributes this miracle to divers saints under both covenants.

[2] On this day the "station" at Rome is in the Church of SS. Cosmas and Damian. It is not, however, the day of their martyrdom, which the Martyrology distinctly declares to be Sept. 27, when their Feast occurs. The "beata solemnitas" here spoken of must therefore be understood of their victory itself. Cf. Cant. iii. 11, "the day of his espousals, the day of the gladness of his heart."

[3] Hymn by Venantius Fortunatus, translated by the late Dr Neale.

[4] The Cross, as the mystic "tree of life," (Gen. ii. 9,) is here set by the poet in antithesis to the tree of the knowledge of good and evil, "whose mortal taste Brought death into the world and all our woe." The present translator has taken the liberty to substitute "tree" for "wood," as a translation of "lignum,"—as more conformable to our common phraseology, and used by Dr Neale himself in the "Royal Banners."

[5] I.e., from trees.

[6] The poem is here abruptly broken off, the rest being sung at Lauds.

First Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Book of the Prophet Isaiah (liii.)

WHO hath believed our report? And to whom is the arm of the LORD revealed? For he shall grow up before him as a tender plant, and as a root out of a dry ground: he hath no form nor comeliness; and when we shall see him, there is no beauty that we should desire him. He is despised and rejected of men; a man of sorrows and acquainted with grief; and he hid as it were his face from us; he was despised, and we esteemed him not. Surely he hath borne our griefs and carried our sorrows: yet we did esteem him stricken, smitten of God, and afflicted. But he was wounded for our transgressions, he was bruised for our iniquities: the chastisement of our peace was upon him, and with his stripes we are healed.

First Responsory.

[4] God hath made us acceptable in His beloved Son, in Whom we have redemption through His Blood, for the remission of sins.
Verse. [5] Behold, the fulness of the time was come wherein God sent forth His Son into the world.
Answer. In Whom we have redemption through His Blood, for the remission of sins.

Second Lesson.

ALL we, like sheep, have gone astray; we have turned every one to his own way: and the LORD hath laid on him the iniquity of us all. He was offered up because he willed it,[6] and he opened not his mouth. He is brought as a sheep to the slaughter, and as a lamb before his shearers is dumb, so he openeth not his mouth. He was taken from prison and from judgment: and who shall declare his generation? For he was cut off out of the land of the living; for the trangression of My people have I stricken him. And he made his grave with the wicked, and with the rich in his death; because he had done no violence, neither was any deceit in his mouth. Yet it pleased the LORD to bruise him; He hath put him to grief.

Second Responsory.

[7] We who sometimes were far off, are made nigh by the Blood of JESUS Christ; for He is our peace, Who hath made both one.
Verse. This is the LORD'S doing, and it is marvellous in our eyes.
Answer. He is our peace, Who hath made both one.

Third Lesson. (lxiii. 1.)

WHO is this that cometh from Edom, with dyed garments from Bozrah? This, that is glorious in his apparel, travelling in the greatness of his strength? I that speak in righteousness, mighty to save. Wherefore art thou red in thine apparel, and thy garments like their's that tread in the wine-fat? I have trodden the wine-press alone, and of the people there was none with me. I trod them in mine anger, and trampled them in my fury; and their blood is sprinkled upon my garments, and I have stained all my raiment. For the day of vengeance is in mine heart, and the year of my redemption is come. I looked, and there was none to help; I sought, and there was none to uphold.

Third Responsory.

[8] It pleased [the Father] that in the first-born from the dead should all the fulness of the Godhead dwell, and by Him to reconcile all things unto Himself, making peace through the Blood of His Cross, whether they be things in heaven or things in earth.

Verse. He is the Head of the Body of the Church, in all things having the preëminence.

Answer. Making peace through the Blood of His Cross, whether they be things in heaven or things in earth.

Verse. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, and to the Holy Ghost.

Answer. Making peace through the Blood of His Cross, whether they be things in heaven or things in earth.

SECOND NOCTURN.

First Antiphon. They pierced My Hands and My Feet; they have told all My Bones.

Ps. xxi. My God, my God, &c., (p. 27.)

Second Antiphon. [1] From the Sole of the Foot even unto the Head there is no soundness in Him.

Ps. lxv. Make a joyful noise, &c., (p. 64.)

Third Antiphon. [1] Wounds, and Bruises, and putrefying Sores—they have not been closed, neither bound up, neither mollified with ointment.

Ps. lxxv. In Judah is God known, &c., (p. 73.)

Verse. Surely He hath borne our griefs.

Answer. And carried our sorrows.

Fourth Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Sermons of St Bernard, Abbat [of Clairvaux.] (Bk. on the Passion, ch. 41.)

AFTER much mocking by Jews and Gentiles, after much Blood-shedding, JESUS is taken, and His Hands and Feet pierced with hard nails, and so our Saviour, the gentle JESUS, is nailed to the tree of the Cross. Look there, and gaze upon the roses of bloody suffering — how they shine—the marks of that love greater than which hath no man. Suffering and love strive together whether the one shall be more excellent for bloodiness or the other for fieriness.

Fourth Responsory.

[2] JESUS through death destroyed him that had the power of death, that He might deliver them who through fear of death were all their life-time subject to bondage.

Verse. Wherefore in all things it behoved Him to be made like unto His brethren, that he might be merciful.

Answer. That He might deliver them who through fear of death were all their life-time subject to bondage.

Fifth Lesson.

LO with what red flowers doth blossom that noble Vine, our ruddy JESUS! Look if anywhere on His Body thou wilt not find those bloody roses. Look into one Hand and then into the Other, and thou wilt find a rose in Either. Look at one Foot and then at the Other—are They not rosy? Look at the Gash in His Side, and That hath Its rose too—but a rose pink rather than red this time, by reason of the Water; as saith the Evangelist: "One of the soldiers with a spear pierced His Side, and forthwith came thereout Blood and Water."

Fifth Responsory.

[3] By man came death; by Man came also the resurrection of the dead. For as in Adam all have sinned, even so in Christ shall all be made alive.

Verse. At last shall be destroyed the enemy death.

Answer. For as in Adam all have sinned, even so in Christ shall all be made alive.

Sixth Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the same. (On the Passion of the Lord.)

LOOK down, O Lord, Holy Father, from Thy Sanctuary, even from heaven Thy dwelling-place, and behold this Most Holy Oblation Which our Great High Priest, Thine Holy Child, the Lord JESUS doth offer unto Thee for the sins of His brethren; and take not vengeance upon us for the multitude of our iniquities. Know now, O Father, whether this be Thy Son Joseph's coat or no. Alas! an evil beast hath devoured Him, and trampled [Him] in his fury [and stained all] His raiment. Behold, in five places It is rent grievously.[4]

Sixth Responsory.

[5] We see JESUS, [Who was made a little lower than the angels,] for the suffering of death, crowned with glory and honour, that He [by the grace of God] should taste death for every man.

Verse. For it became Him [for Whom are all things, and by Whom are all things,] in bringing many sons unto glory, to make the captain of their salvation perfect through sufferings.

Answer. That He [by the grace of God] should taste death for every man.

Verse. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, and to the Holy Ghost.

Answer. That He [by the grace of God] should taste death for every man.

THIRD NOCTURN.

First Antiphon. [6] What are these wounds in Thine Hands?

Ps. xcv. O sing unto the LORD, &c., (p. 85.)

Second Antiphon. [6] Those with which I was wounded in the house of My friends.

Ps. xcvi. The LORD reigneth, &c., (p. 85.)

Third Antiphon. [7] My complaint is bitter, and my stroke is heavier than my groaning.

Ps. xcvii. O sing unto the LORD, &c. (p. 89.)

Verse. He was wounded for our transgressions.

Answer. He was bruised for our iniquities.

Seventh Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Holy Gospel according to John (xix. 28.)

AT that time: JESUS, knowing that all things were now accomplished, that the Scripture might be fulfilled, saith: I thirst. And so on.

[5] Heb. ii. 9, 10.

[6] Zech. xiii. 6.

[7] Job xxiii. 2.

Homily by St Cyril, Pope of Alexandria. (Bk. xii. Comment. on John.)

The brutality of the Jews had already outraged Christ to the full; cruelty had nothing left to desire; and now at the last moment the Most Holy Flesh of Christ suffereth a pain springing naturally from Itself. That Flesh, fevered by many and divers tortures, felt thirst. Great pain hath the property of producing strong thirst, since by some natural law which I cannot explain, it drieth up as by heat the liquids of the body and as it were setteth on fire the inward parts.

Seventh Responsory.

[1] The grace of God is now made manifest by the appearing of our Saviour JESUS Christ, Who hath abolished death, and hath brought life and immortality to light.
Verse. Who hath saved us and called us with His holy calling, according to grace which was given us in Christ JESUS.
Answer. Who hath abolished death, and hath brought life and immortality to light.

Eighth Lesson.

"IT is finished." Jewish outrage against God was finished; the power to inflict torture was finished. What had the Jews left unattempted, or cruelty left undone? Did any pain or insult remain uninflicted? Rightly did He say: "It is finished." But He was come to be the Lord of the dead as well as of the quick, and the hour was now calling Him to go and preach to the imprisoned spirits in the netherworld. He accepted even death for our sakes and bore in His Own Flesh that suffering common to all our nature.[2] When they saw that the Head of JESUS had fallen, and deemed Him to have already given up the Ghost, they held it pains wasted to break His Legs. Howbeit, forasmuch as they were not quite sure that He was dead, they pierced His Side with a spear, and there burst forth Blood mingled with Water, the image and the first-fruits of the mystic Thankoffering and of holy Baptism, for holy Baptism is indeed a thing of Christ and from Christ, and the virtue of the mystic Thankoffering proceedeth unto us from His holy Flesh.

Eighth Responsory.

[3] Thou art worthy, O Lord, to take the book, and to open the seals thereof, for Thou wast slain, and hast redeemed us to God by Thy Blood—
Verse. And hast made us unto our God a kingdom and Priests.
Answer. By Thy Blood.
Verse. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, and to the Holy Ghost.
Answer. By Thy Blood.

Ninth Blessing.

May the Gospel's glorious word
Cleansing to our souls afford.

Ninth Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Holy Gospel according to John (iv. 5.)

AT that time: Cometh JESUS to a city of Samaria which is called Sychar: near to the parcel of ground that Jacob gave to his son Joseph. And so on.

Homily by St Austin, Bishop [of Hippo.] (15*th Tract on John.*)

"JESUS, wearied with His journey," —"JESUS, wearied with His journey," —the mysteries are beginning now. It is not for nothing that JESUS is wearied. It is not for nothing that the Mighty One of God is wearied. It is not for nothing that He is wearied Who Himself giveth Rest to all them that are weary and heavy-laden. It is not for nothing that He is wearied Whose absence prostrateth us, and Whose presence maketh us to be strong.

"JESUS, therefore, being wearied with His journey, sat thus on the well: and it was about the sixth hour." There is a depth in all these details—they all have something to say for us to learn. Upon them we gaze. "Knock," saith the Lord, "and it shall be opened unto you." Let us knock then—and, O, may He open to me and to you, even He Who hath spoken to us those words: "Knock, and it shall be opened unto you." (Matth. vii. 7.) It is for thy sake that JESUS was wearied with His journey. We find the strength of JESUS, and we find JESUS weak; yea, strong and weak. Strong, for "In the beginning was the Word, and the Word was with God, and the Word was God: the Same was in the beginning with God." Wouldest thou know again how that the Son of God is strong? "All things were made by Him, and without Him was not anything made that was made"—made without effort. (John i. 1-3.) What then is stronger than He by Whom all things were made without effort? Wouldest thou know His weakness? "The Word was made Flesh and dwelt among us." (14.) Christ, strong, made thee; Christ, weak, redeemed thee. Christ, strong, made all things out of nothing; Christ, weak, so wrought that that that was made perished not. His strength hath made us, and His weakness saved us. He then, being Himself made weak, is strength to all such as are weak, gathering them together, to use His own figure, even as an hen gathereth her chickens under her wings. "O Jerusalem, Jerusalem! how often would I have gathered thy children together, even as an hen gathereth her chickens under her wings, and ye would not!" (Matth. xxiii. 37.) Consider now, my brethren, in what bondage is an hen to her chickens. There is no other bird in whom motherhood is unmistakeable. We watch the sparrows building their nests under our eyes; we see swallows, and storks, and pigeons building theirs every day. But, unless we actually see them in their nests, we know not if they have little ones, or no. But the hen's motherhood is so much a part of herself, that even if at the minute we see not her children the chickens following after her, nevertheless we see by her ways if she be a mother.

[CHRIST] was wounded for our transgressions, He was bruised for our iniquities, and with His stripes we were healed.

Hymn.[4]

THIRTY years among us dwelling,
His appointed time fulfilled,
Born for this, He meets His Passion,
For that this He freely willed:
On the Cross the Lamb is lifted,
Where His Life-Blood shall be spilled.

He endured the nails, the spitting,
Vinegar, and spear, and reed;
From that Holy Body broken
Blood and water forth proceed:
Earth, and stars, and sky, and ocean,
By that flood from stain are freed.

Faithful Cross! above all other,
One and only noble Tree!
None in foliage, none in blossom,
None in fruit thy peers may be:
Sweetest wood and sweetest iron!
Sweetest weight is hung on thee.

Bend thy boughs, O tree of glory!
Thy relaxing sinews bend;
For a while the ancient rigour,
That thy birth bestowed, suspend;
And the King of heavenly beauty
On thy bosom gently tend.

Thou alone wast counted worthy
This world's ransom to uphold;
For a shipwrecked race preparing
Harbour, like the ark of old:
With the Sacred Blood anointed
From the smitten Lamb that rolled.

To the Trinity be glory
Everlasting, as is meet:
Equal to the Father, equal
To the Son, and Paraclete:
Trinal Unity, Whose praises
All created things repeat. Amen.

Verse. They shall look upon Him Whom they have pierced.

MATTINS.

Hymn as on the First Sunday, (p. 263.)

First Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Holy Gospel according to John (viii. 1.)

AT that time: JESUS went unto the Mount of Olives. And early in the morning He came again into the temple. And so on.

Homily by St Austin, Bishop [of Hippo.] (33rd Tract on John.)

"JESUS went unto the Mount of Olives"—even unto that fruitful Mount, that anointing Mount, that Mount of Chrism. Where else became it Christ to teach if not on the Mount of Olives? For the word "Christ" is derived from "Chrisma," and "Chrisma" is the Greek for "ointment." He hath anointed us that we may be able to wrestle with the devil.[1]

"And, early in the morning, He came again into the temple; and all the people came unto Him; and He sat down, and taught them"—and no man laid hands on Him, because He was not yet pleased to suffer. And now listen how His enemies tried the Lord's meekness.

First Responsory.

We are verily guilty, &c., (p. 289.)

Second Lesson.

"AND the Scribes and Pharisees brought unto Him a woman taken in adultery; and when they had set her in the midst, they say unto Him: Master, this woman was taken in adultery, in the very act. Now, Moses in the law commanded that such should be stoned; but what sayest Thou? This they said, tempting Him, that they might have to accuse Him." Whereof to accuse Him? Had they taken Him in any sin? Or was the woman said to have anything to do with Him?

Second Responsory.

And Reuben answered, &c., (p. 289.)

Third Lesson.

WE must understand, my brethren, that there was a wonderful gentleness in the Lord. They knew that He was most mild and most gentle. Of Him indeed it had been said of old time: "Gird Thy sword upon Thy thigh, O most Mighty! In Thy comeliness and Thy beauty go forward, fare prosperously, and reign, because of truth, and meekness, and righteousness." (Ps. xliv. 4, 5.) And He came bringing truth as one that teacheth, meekness as one that delivereth, and righteousness as one that knoweth. Because of these it was that the Prophet declared, in the Holy Ghost, that He was to reign. Whenever He spake, truth shone forth: whenever He spared His enemies, meekness was made glorious. And His enemies, racked with envy and hatred by His truth and His meekness, laid a stumbling-block for His righteousness.

Third Responsory.

Jacob lamented, &c., (p. 289.)

The Fourth Lord's Day in the Forty Days before Easter.

MATTINS.

Invitatory and Hymn as on the First Sunday, (p. 262.)

FIRST NOCTURN.

First Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Book of Exodus (iii. 1.)

NOW Moses kept the flock of Jethro his father-in-law, the priest of Midian: and he led the flock to the back-side of the desert, and came to the mountain of God, even to Horeb. And the LORD[2] appeared to him in a flame of fire, out of the midst of a bush: and he looked, and, behold, the bush burned with fire, and was not consumed. And Moses said: I will now turn aside, and see this great sight, why the bush is not burned. And when the LORD saw that he turned aside to see, He called unto him out of the midst of the bush, and said: Moses! Moses! And he said: Here am I. And He said: Draw not nigh hither; put off thy shoes from off thy feet; for the place whereon thou standest is holy ground. Moreover He said: I am the God of thy father: the God of Abraham, the God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob. And Moses hid his face; for he was afraid to look upon God.

First Responsory.

The Lord spake unto Moses, saying: Go down now into Egypt, and say unto Pharaoh: Let My people go. And the heart of Pharaoh shall be hardened, that he will not let My people go but by a mighty hand.

Verse. The cry of the children of Israël is come unto Me, and I have seen their affliction: come now, therefore, and I will send thee unto Pharaoh, and thou shalt say unto him—

Answer. Let My people go. And the heart of Pharaoh shall be hardened, that he will not let My people go but by a mighty hand.

Second Lesson.

AND the LORD said: I have surely seen the affliction of My people which are in Egypt, and have heard their cry by reason of their taskmasters; for I know their sorrows; and I am come down to deliver them out of the hand of the Egyptians, and to bring them up out of that land, unto a good land and a large, unto a land flowing with milk and honey, unto the place of the Canaanites, and the Hittites, and the Amorites, and the Perizzites, and the Hivites, and the Jebusites. Now, therefore, the cry of the children of Israël is come unto Me, and I have also seen the oppression wherewith the Egyptians oppress them. Come now therefore, and I will send thee unto Pharaoh, that thou mayest bring forth My people, the children of Israël, out of Egypt.

Second Responsory.

[3] Moses stood before Pharaoh, and said: Thus saith the LORD: Let My people go, that they may hold a feast unto Me in the wilderness.

Verse. The Lord God of the Hebrews hath sent me unto thee, saying:

Answer. Let My people go, that they may hold a feast unto Me in the wilderness.

Third Lesson.

AND Moses said unto God: Who am I that I should go unto Pharaoh, and that I should bring forth the children of Israël out of Egypt? And He said unto him: Certainly I will be with thee; and this shall be a token unto thee that I have sent thee: when thou hast brought forth My people out of Egypt, thou shalt serve God upon this mountain. And Moses said unto God: Behold, when I come unto the children of Israël, and shall say unto them: The God of your fathers hath sent me unto you: and they shall say unto me: What is His Name? what shall I say unto them? And God said unto Moses: I AM THAT I AM.[4] And He said: Thus shalt thou say unto the children of Israël: I AM[5] hath sent me unto you. And God said moreover unto Moses: Thus shalt thou say unto the children of Israël: The LORD God of your fathers, the God of Abraham, the God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob, hath sent me unto you. This is My Name for ever, and this is My memorial unto all generations.

Third Responsory.

[6] Let us sing unto the LORD, for He hath triumphed gloriously; the horse and his rider hath He thrown into the sea. The LORD is my strength and song, and He is become my salvation.

Verse. The LORD is a man of war; ALMIGHTY[7] is His Name.

Answer. The LORD is my strength and song, and He is become my salvation.

Verse. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, and to the Holy Ghost.

Answer. The LORD is my strength, and my song, and He is become my salvation.

SECOND NOCTURN.

Fourth Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Sermons of [8] St Basil the Great, Archbishop [of Cæsarea-in-Pontus.] (1st on Fasting.)

WE know that it was with and by fasting that Moses went up into the Mount,[9] for he had not dared to go up to that smoking summit, nor to have entered that darkness, except he had been made strong by a Fast. It was with fasting that he received the commandments, written by the finger of God upon tables of stone. Upon the mountain, that Fast made interest with Him Whose law was given unto it; but, below, gluttony was leading the people to the worship of idols and polluting them. It is written: "The people sat down to eat and to drink, and rose up to play." (Ex. xxxii. 6.) That one fit of drunken phrenzy, on the part of the people, made void and of none effect all the toil and patience of the forty days, during the which the servant of God had fasted and prayed unceasingly. To the Fast had been given those tables of stone written on with the finger of God; the Feast's work was to break them, by the hand of the most holy prophet, who deemed a nation of drunkards a nation unmeet to receive law from God.

[1] So called because on this day the gladness of the Church at the thought of the consequences to her of the atonement causes her to use, if possible, rose-coloured (viz. reddish brown) vestments, &c., instead of purple, as well as the altar to be decorated with flowers, the dalmatic and tunicle to be worn, and the organ played. The observance is a sort of rest in the middle of Lent, and in some places the Fast undergoes a slight modification for a few days. On this day, at Rome, the Pope blesses the Golden Rose, which afterwards remains on the altar during Mass.

[9] See the facts referred to throughout, in Ex. xxiv. 12-18; xxxi. 18; xxxii. 1-19.

Fourth Responsory.

[1] Thy way is in the sea, and Thy paths in the great waters. Thou leddest Thy people like a flock, by the hand of Moses and Aaron.

Verse. [2] Thou broughtest them through the Red Sea, and leddest them through much water.

Answer. Thou leddest Thy people like a flock by the hand of Moses and Aaron.

Fifth Lesson.

IN a moment of time, that people, who had by great wonders been taught to worship God, were, by gluttony, dropped back into the cesspool of Egyptian idolatry. The which things if thou wilt consider, thou shalt see that the tendency of fasting is to God-ward, and that that of feasting is to hell-ward. What was it that degraded Esau, and made him a slave to his brother? Was it not that one dish of pottage for which he sold his birthright? (Gen. xxv. 29-34.) Was it not prayer when joined to fasting that gave Samuel to his mother? (1 Kings [Sam.] i. 7, 19.) What made the mighty Samson invincible? Was it not the fast during the which he was conceived in his mother's womb? The fast it was which made him to be conceived; the fast, which fed him; the fast, which made a man of him, even as the Angel of the Lord commanded his mother, saying: "She may not eat of anything that cometh of the vine, neither let her drink wine or strong drink." (Judges xiii. 14.) Fasting is the mother of prophets, the strength and stay of mighty men.

Fifth Responsory.

O Lord, Thou hast overwhelmed in the deep of the sea them which persecuted Thy people, even Thy people which Thou leddest in the pillar of the cloud.

Verse. Thou leddest Thy people like a flock, by the hand of Moses and Aaron.

Answer. Even Thy people, which Thou leddest in the pillar of the cloud.

Sixth Lesson.

IT is fasting which giveth wisdom to lawgivers; fasting which is the trustiest keeper of the soul, and the safest companion for the body. It is fasting which is strength and armour to mighty men; fasting which maketh supple them which run and which wrestle. It is fasting which maketh a man strong to strive against temptation, and which is to godliness as a fenced city; even fasting, whose fellow is soberness, and her work temperance. It is fasting which maketh men to wax valiant in fight; fasting which teacheth to rest in time of peace. Fasting maketh a Nazarite to be holy, and a priest perfect. Without a fast it is unlawful to touch the Sacrifice, not only in that mystic and true worship of God which now is, but also according to the law, in those sacrifices which were offered of old time as figures of the true. It was fasting which opened the eyes of Elias to look upon the visions of GOD, even as it is written, that when he had fasted forty days and forty nights he was in the mount of God, even Horeb, and he was made able, so far as man may be made able, to see God. (3 [1] Kings xix. 8 et seq.) Even so also was Moses in that Mount forty days and forty nights, fasting, at what time he again received the Law. (Ex. xxxiv. 28.) Unless the Ninevites had fasted, both man and beast, herd and flock, they had not escaped from the ruin that hung over them. (Jonah iii. 7-10.) In the wilderness fell some—and who were they? Yea, they were such as lusted after flesh meat. (Num. xi. 33.)

Sixth Responsory.

[3] Moses, the servant of God, fasted forty days and forty nights, to make him meet to receive the Law of God.

Verse. [4] Moses gat him up unto the Lord into Mount Sinai, and he was in the Mount forty days and forty nights.

Answer. To make him meet to receive the Law of God.

Verse. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, and to the Holy Ghost.

Answer. To make him meet to receive the Law of God.

THIRD NOCTURN.

Seventh Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Holy Gospel according to John (vi. 1.)

AT that time: JESUS went over the Sea of Galilee, which is the sea of Tiberias. And a great multitude followed Him, because they saw His miracles which He did on them that were diseased. And so on.

Homily by St Austin, Bishop [of Hippo.] (24th Tract on John.)

The miracles which our Lord JESUS Christ did were the very works of God, and they enlighten the mind of man by mean of things which are seen, that he may know more of God. God is Himself of such a Substance as eye cannot see, and the miracles, by the which He ruleth the whole world continually, and satisfieth the need of everything that He hath made, are by use become so common, that scarce any will vouchsafe to see that there are wonderful and amazing works of God in every grain of seed of grass. According to His mercy He kept some works to be done in their due season, but out of the common course and order of nature, that men might see them and be astonished, not because they are greater, but because they are rarer than those which they lightly esteem, since they see them day by day.

[1] Ps. lxxvi. 20.

[2] Wisd. x. 18.

[3] Exod. xxxiv. 28.

[4] Exod. xxiv. 18.

Seventh Responsory.

[1] After that the Lord had looked upon him, the face of Moses shone. And when the elders saw that his face shone, they marvelled and were sore afraid.

Verse. And when he came down from Mount Sinai with the two tables of testimony in his hand, he wist not that his face shone, because that God had spoken with him.

Answer. And when the elders saw that his face shone, they marvelled and were sore afraid.

Eighth Lesson.

FOR it is a greater miracle to govern the whole universe, than to satisfy five thousand men with five loaves of bread; and yet no man marvelleth at it. At the feeding of the five thousand, men marvel, not because it is a greater miracle than the other, but because it is rarer. For Who is He Who now feedeth the whole world, but He Who, from a little grain that is sown, maketh the fulness of the harvest? God worketh in both cases in one and the same manner. He Who of the sowing maketh to come the harvest, is He Who of the five barley loaves in His Hands made bread to feed five thousand men; for Christ's are the Hands which are able to do both the one and the other. He Who multiplieth the grains of corn multiplied the loaves, only not by committing them to the earth whereof He is the Maker.

Eighth Responsory.

[2] Behold, I send My Angel before thee, to keep thee. Beware, and obey My voice; then I will be an enemy unto thine enemies, and an adversary unto thine adversaries; for Mine Angel shall go before thee.

Verse. [3] O Israël, if thou wilt hearken unto Me, there shall no strange god be in thee, neither shalt thou worship any strange god: for I am the LORD.

Answer. Beware, and obey My voice; then I will be an enemy unto thine enemies, and an adversary unto thine adversaries; for Mine Angel shall go before thee.

Ninth Lesson.

THIS miracle, then, is brought to bear upon our bodies, that our souls may thereby be quickened; shown to our eyes, to give food to our understanding; that, through His works which we see, we may marvel at that God Whom we cannot see, and, being roused up to believe, and purified by believing, we may long to see Him, yea, may know by things which are seen Him Who is Unseen. Nor yet sufficeth it for us to see only this meaning in Christ's miracles. Let us ask of the miracles themselves what they have to tell us concerning Christ — for, soothly, they have a tongue of their own, if only we will understand it. For, because Christ is the Word of God, therefore the work of the Word is a Word for us.

Ninth Responsory.

[4] Give ear, O My people, to My law: incline your ears to the words of My mouth.

Verse. I will open My mouth in parables: I will utter dark sayings of old.

Answer. Incline your ears to the words of My mouth.

Verse. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, and to the Holy Ghost.

Answer. Incline your ears to the words of My mouth.

MATTINS.

Hymn as on the First Sunday, (p. 262.)

First Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Holy Gospel according to John (ii. 13.)

AT that time: The Jews' Passover was at hand: and JESUS went up to Jerusalem, and found in the temple those that sold oxen, and sheep, and doves. And so on.

Homily by St Austin, Bishop [of Hippo.] (10th Tract on John.)

What hear we now, my brethren? Behold, that temple was still but a figure, and the Lord drove out therefrom all them that sought their own, even them that were come to deal in merchandise. And what was it that they sold there? Only such things as were needful to men for the sacrifices that then were. For your love knoweth that, because of that people's carnal-mindedness and the stoniness of their heart, there were commanded unto them such sacrifices as these, thereby to hold them back from idolatry: and there, according, they offered up oxen, and sheep, and doves. This ye have read, and know.

First Responsory.

[1] When ye be gone over Jordan, there shall ye build an altar unto the LORD, of whole stones; ye shall not lift up any iron tool upon them; and ye shall offer burnt-offerings thereon, and peace-offerings, unto your God.

Verse. When ye shall pass over [Jordan] unto the land which the LORD giveth you, there shall ye build an altar unto the LORD.

Answer. Of whole stones; ye shall not lift up any iron tool upon them; and ye shall offer burnt-offerings thereon, and peace-offerings, unto your God.

Second Lesson.

IT was no great sin, therefore, if they sold in the temple that which was bought to be offered in the temple—and yet He drove them out. If, then, the Lord drove out of His temple them which sold such things as are lawful and right (for to buy and sell is lawful, if only it be done honestly,) and suffered not the house of prayer to be made an house of merchandise, what would He have done if He had found there men drunken?

Second Responsory.

Hear, O Israël, the law of the Lord, and write it in thine heart as in a book; and I will give unto thee a land flowing with milk and honey.

Verse. Take heed therefore, and hearken unto My voice: and I will be an enemy unto thine enemies.

Answer. And I will give unto thee a land flowing with milk and honey.

Third Lesson.

IF the house of God must not be an house of merchandise, must it be an house to drink in? And yet, when we say this, men gnash upon us with their teeth. But we find consolation in remembering that so far we are even as the Psalmist, who saith: "They gnashed upon me with their teeth."[2] (Ps. xxxiv. 16.) Yea, we have also learnt to listen to words that heal us, though, of a verity, the lashes that are made at His word are really made at Christ. "Lashes," saith He, "were heaped upon Me; and they knew not what they did." (15.)[2] He was lashed by the scourges of the Jews, and He is lashed still by the blasphemies of false Christians; they heap lashes upon the Lord their God; and know not what they do. As for us, we will do that which He hath holpen us to do; "But as for me, when they troubled me, my clothing was sackcloth, and I humbled my soul with fasting" (13).[2]

Third Responsory.

[3] As I was with Moses, so I will be with thee, saith the Lord. Be strong and of a good courage, and thou shalt bring My people into a land flowing with milk and honey.

Verse. Fear not, for I am with thee: whithersoever thou goest I will not fail thee, nor forsake thee.

Answer. Be strong and of a good courage, and thou shalt bring My people into a land flowing with milk and honey.

Tuesday.

Third Day.

MATTINS.

Hymn as on the First Sunday, (p. 262.)

First Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Holy Gospel according to John (vii. 14.)

AT that time: About the midst of the Feast, JESUS went up into the temple, and taught. And the Jews marvelled. And so on.

Homily by St Austin, Bishop [of Hippo.] (29th Tract on John.)

He Who had gone up unto the Feast, "not openly, but as it were in secret," the Same taught, and spake openly, and no man laid hands upon Him. That He had hid Himself, was for example's sake; that He manifested Himself, was to show His power. And when He taught, the Jews marvelled. As seemeth to my mind, they all marvelled, but were not all converted. And wherefore marvelled they? Because many of them knew where He was born, and how He had been brought up. They had never seen Him learn letters; but they heard Him dispute concerning the law, and alledge the testimony of the same, as no man could do who had not read it; and no man can read unless he learn; and therefore they marvelled. But their marvelling was unto the Teacher an occasion for the revealing of higher truth.

First Responsory.

Why go ye about to kill Me, a Man That hath [1] told you the truth? If I have spoken evil, bear witness of the evil; but if well, why smitest thou Me?

Verse. [2] Many good works have I wrought among you; for which of those works go ye about to kill Me?

Answer. If I have spoken evil, bear witness of the evil; but if well, why smitest thou Me?

Second Lesson.

FOR when they marvelled and whispered, the Lord said a certain deep thing, yea, a thing worthy of very careful thought and discussion. And what was this thing which the Lord gave for an answer to such as "marvelled that He knew letters, having never learned?" "JESUS answered them and said: My doctrine is not Mine, but His That sent Me." Here is the first depth, for He seemeth in these few words to enunciate a contradiction. He saith not: This doctrine is not Mine—but: "My doctrine is not Mine." If it be not Thine, O Lord, wherefore dost Thou call it Thine? If it be Thine, wherefore sayest Thou that it is not Thine? For Thou sayest: "My doctrine is not Mine."

Second Responsory.

[3] I, even I, the Lord, have led you forty years in the wilderness, and your clothes are not waxen old upon you. I rained down manna upon you from heaven, and ye have forgotten Me, saith the Lord.

Verse. I led you forth out of the land of Egypt, and delivered you from the house of bondage.

Answer. I rained down manna upon you from heaven, and ye have forgotten Me, saith the Lord.

Third Lesson.

LET us then carefully regard what this same holy Evangelist saith in the beginning of his Gospel, and we shall find there wherewith to loose the knot of this difficulty. There it is written: "In the beginning was the Word, and the Word was with God, and the Word was God." (i. 1.) What is the doctrine of the Father but the Word of the Father? If Christ therefore be the Word of the Father, He is the doctrine of the Father. But a Word cannot be of no one, but must needs, if it be a Word, have some one whose word it is. Christ therefore saith that His doctrine is Himself, and therefore not His, forasmuch as He is the Word of the Father. And what hast thou that is so much thine own as thy self? Or what is there that is so little thine own as thyself, if that which thou art is another's?

Fourth Day.

MATTINS.

Hymn as on the First Sunday, (p. 262.)

First Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Holy Gospel according to John (ix. 1.)

AT that time: As JESUS passed by, He saw a man which was blind from his birth. And His disciples asked Him, saying: Rabbi, who did sin, this man, or his parents, that he was born blind? And so on.

Homily by St Austin, Bishop [of Hippo.] (44*th Tract on John.*)

Dread and wondrous are all the things which our Lord JESUS Christ did, both His works and His words; the works, because He wrought them; the words, because they are deep. If, therefore, we consider the meaning of this work of His, we see that that man which was blind from his birth was a figure of mankind. This spiritual blindness was the consequence of the sin of the first man, from whom we all inherit by birth, not death only, but depravity also. For if blindness be unbelief, and faith, light, whom, when Christ came, did He find faithful? Nay, the Apostle who had himself been born of the race of which the Prophets came, saith: "We also were by nature children of wrath, even as others." (Eph. ii. 3.) And if children of wrath, then children also of vengeance, children of damnation, children of hell. And wherefore so "by nature," unless it were that the sin of the first man had made all his descendants to be born in sin, in that they partook of his nature? If, then, our nature bring sin with it, all men, according to the spirit, are born blind.

First Responsory.

After that the Lord, &c., (p. 302.)

Second Lesson.

THE Lord came; and what did He? He set before us a great mystery. "JESUS spat on the ground, and made clay of the Spittle"—for "the Word was made flesh."

"And He anointed the eyes of the blind man with the clay"—but yet that man saw not. He was anointed, indeed, but yet still he saw not.

"And He said unto him: Go, wash in the Pool of Siloam." Now, it was the duty of the Evangelist to impress upon us the name of this Pool, and therefore he saith: "Siloam, which is, by interpretation, Sent." Ye, my brethren, know Who is signified where it is written: "[The sceptre shall not depart from Judah, nor a law-giver from his loins, until] He that shall be Sent [cometh.]" (Gen. xlix. 10.) Yea, He it is, Who, if He had not been sent, we had never been sent loose out of the prison-house of sin. The blind man went his way therefore, and washed his eyes in that Pool, which is, by interpretation, "Sent"—in other words, he was baptized in Christ. When, therefore, he had figuratively been baptized in Him Whom the Father hath Sent into the world "he came seeing." When he was anointed, he was perchance made a figure of a Catechumen.[1]

Second Responsory.

Behold I send, &c., (p. 302.)

Third Lesson.

YE have heard this great mystery. Ask of a man:[2] "Art thou a Christian?" He answereth thee: "I am not." Then, if thou ask him: "Art thou a pagan then, or a Jew?" And he still saith unto thee: "Nay"—and thou say: "Art thou then a Catechumen, though not yet one of the faithful?" and he saith: "Yea, a Catechumen"—then there thou seest a man anointed, but not yet washed. With what hath he been anointed? Ask of him, and he will tell thee. Ask of him in Whom he believeth, and, being a Catechumen, he will say: "In Christ." But, behold, I speak before both Faithful and Catechumens. What said I touching the Spittle and the clay? I said: "for 'the Word was made flesh.'" This the Catechumens hear, but it is not enough for them to be anointed; they must make haste to the washing, if they would have their eyes opened.[3]

---

[1] Oil (specially blest for that purpose by Bishops on Maundy Thursday, and called from its object the oil of Catechumens) is, of course, still used in so making them, both infants and adults.

[2] The ancient Church, at least in Africa, did not so commonly use infant Baptism as we do. St Augustine himself was made a Catechumen when an infant, and not baptized till his conversion to Catholicism from the heresy which he had embraced as a young man and retained for nine years.

[3] A great deal of doctrine and several formularies as well as privileges were concealed from the Catechumens.

Give ear, O My people, &c., (p. 302.)

Thursday.

Fifth Day.

MATTINS.

Hymn as on the First Sunday, (p. 262.)

First Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Holy Gospel according to Luke (vii. 11.)

AT that time: JESUS went into a city called Naim; and His disciples went with Him, and much people. And so on.

Homily by St Ambrose, Bishop [of Milan.] (Bk. v. Comm. on Luke vii.)

The history which we here read in the Holy Gospel hath for us specially two gracious lessons, the one from the literal, the other from the mystic interpretation thereof. According to the letter then, we see how quickly the compassion of God was aroused by the sorrow of this mother, who was a widow, a widow broken down by nursing her only son, or by the bitterness of her grief for his death. She was a widow also whose worshipful conversation is borne witness to by this, that, "much people of the city was with her." Mystically however, this widow encompassed by the multitude was something more than a poor woman whose tears won from the Lord the resurrection of her young and only son; for she is a type of our holy Mother the Church, who calleth back her young children to life from the pursuit of deathly vanities, and soul-slaying honours, by bidding them look on those tears which she sheddeth for such as they, and which it is unlawful for her to shed for them of whom she knoweth that they will rise again.[1]

First Responsory.

The Lord spake unto Moses, &c., (p. 300.)

Second Lesson.

THIS man, then, being dead, was carried out on a bier to the grave by four bearers,[2] even as the sinner is borne to destruction by the four elements of which he is composed. But there was hope in his latter end, from this, that that whereon he was carried was of wood, and wood, albeit it had profited us little before, is become everything to us now since "JESUS touched it," being a figure of that gibbet, the Cross, which was made thereof, and wherefrom salvation floweth unto all people. When, therefore, the horrid bearers of the corpse heard the commandment of God, they stood still, and carried no farther him who was dead through the fatal course of a material nature. And is not our case even as that of the widow's son, when we lie, as it were, lifeless, in our spiritual coffin, that is, in the last bed of our soul's death, consumed by the fever of unbridled lust, or frozen by cold-heartedness, or with our whole manliness sapped by some degrading habit of this earthly body, or starved by a spiritual lockjaw that shutteth our mouth to the bright food of our soul? These, and such as these, are they which carry us out to burial.

Second Responsory.

Moses stood, &c., (p. 300.)

Third Lesson.

BUT even at the last hour, when the hope of life hath been utterly extinguished, and the bodies of the dead are lying by the side of the grave, by the word of God those carcases live again, yea, arise and speak. Then doth JESUS deliver the son to his mother, for JESUS calleth him out of the grave, and delivereth him from death. O, what is the grave of the soul but a bad life? Sinner! thy grave is unbelief, and thy throat is a sepulchre! Even so is it written: "Their throat is an open sepulchre," (Ps. v. 11,) whereout breathe their pestilential words. Lo! Christ maketh thee free from that grave! If only thou wilt hear the word of God, thou shalt yet arise from that sepulchre! Yea, though thy sin be exceeding weighty, so that the tears of thine own sorrow cannot wash it away, let thy Mother the Church weep for thee, that longing Mother who weepeth for every one of her children as though he were "the only son of his mother, and she was a widow." Believe me, her spiritual anguish is keen like the anguish of nature, when she seeth her children dead in sin, and carried out to be buried for ever.

Chapter and Prayer from Lauds.

Hymn.[2]

FORTH let the long procession stream
And through the streets in order wend;
Let the bright waving line of torches gleam,
The solemn chant ascend.

While we, with tears and sighs profound,
That memorable Blood record,
Which, stretched on His hard Cross, from many a Wound,
The dying JESUS poured.

By the first Adam's fatal sin
Came death upon the human race;
In this new Adam doth new life begin,
And everlasting grace.

For scarce the Father heard from heaven
The cry of His expiring Son,
When in that cry our sins were all forgiven,
And boundless pardon won.

Henceforth, whoso in that dear Blood
Washeth, shall lose his every stain,
And, in immortal roseate beauty robed,
An Angel's likeness gain.

Only, run thou with courage on
Straight to the goal set in the skies;
He Who assists thy course will give thee soon
The everlasting prize.

Father Supreme! vouchsafe that we,
For whom Thine only Son was slain,
And whom Thine Holy Ghost doth sanctify,
May heavenly joys attain. Amen.

Verse. [3] Lord, Thou hast redeemed us by Thy Blood.

Answer. And hast made us unto our God a kingdom.

Antiphon at the Song of the Blessed Virgin. [4] Ye are come unto Mount Sion and unto the city of the living God, the heavenly Jerusalem, and to JESUS the Mediator of the New Covenant, and to the Blood of sprinkling That speaketh better things than that of Abel.

Commemoration of the Week-day.

Antiphon. A great Prophet is risen up among us, and God hath visited His people.

Verse. God hath given His Angels charge over Thee.

Answer. To keep Thee in all Thy ways.

Prayer.

O GOD, the Teacher and Shepherd of all Thy people, free the same from all sins which do assail them, that so they may ever be pleasing in Thy sight and safe under Thy shelter. Through our Lord JESUS Christ Thy Son, Who liveth and reigneth with Thee, in the unity of the Holy Ghost, one God, world without end. Amen.

MATTINS.

Invitatory. Christ the Son of God hath redeemed us by His Own Blood. * O come, let us worship Him.

Hymn.[5]

HE Who once, in righteous vengeance,
Whelmed the world beneath the flood,
Once again in mercy cleansed it
With the stream of His Own Blood,
Coming from His Throne on high
On the painful Cross to die.

[6] Blest with this all-saving shower
Earth her beauty straight resumed;
In the place of thorns and briars,
Myrtles sprang and roses bloomed:
Flowers surprised the desert waste,
Wormwood lost her bitter taste.

Scorpions ceased; the slimy serpent
Laid his deadly poison by;
Savage beasts of cruel instinct
Lost their wild ferocity;
Welcoming the gentle reign
Of the Lamb for sinners slain.

[1] Antiphons from Isa. lxiii. 1-3 except the 3rd, which is Apoc. xix. 13.

[2] Sixteenth to eighteenth century, author unknown, translation by the late Rev. Father Caswall.

[3] Apoc. v. 9, 10.

[4] Heb. xii. 22, 24.

[5] Anonymous hymn of eighteenth century translation by the late Rev. E. Caswall.

[6] These two verses are apparently founded on such passages as Isa. xxxv.; xi. 8; Mark xvi. 18, &c.

O the wisdom of the Eternal!
O its depth and height Divine!
O the sweetness of that mercy
Which in JESUS Christ doth shine!
Slaves we were condemned to die,
Our King pays the penalty.

When before the Judge we tremble,
Conscious of His broken laws,
May this Blood in that dread hour,
Cry aloud and plead our cause—
Bid our guilty terrors cease—
Be our pardon and our peace.

Prince and Author of Salvation!
Lord of Majesty Supreme!
JESU, praise to Thee be given
By the world Thou didst redeem!
Who with the Father and the Spirit
Reignest in eternal merit. Amen.

FIRST NOCTURN.

Only three Psalms are said.

First Antiphon. [1] And when eight days were accomplished, for the circumcising of the child, His Name was called JESUS.

Ps. ii. Why do the heathen, &c., (p. 3.)

Second Antiphon. [2] And being in an agony, He prayed more earnestly, and His Sweat was as it were great drops of Blood falling down to the ground.

Ps. iii. LORD, how are they increased, &c., (p. 3.)

Third Antiphon. [3] Judas, which had betrayed Him, repented himself, and brought again the thirty pieces of silver, saying: I have sinned, in that I have betrayed the innocent Blood.

Ps. xv. Preserve me, O Lord, &c., (p. 7.)

Verse. Lord, Thou hast redeemed us—
Answer. By Thy Blood.

First Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Epistle of the Blessed Apostle Paul to the Hebrews (ix. 11.)

CHRIST being come an High Priest of good things to come, by a greater and more perfect tabernacle, not made with hands, that is to say, not of this building, neither by the blood of goats and calves, but by His own Blood, He entered in once into the Holy Place, having obtained eternal redemption for us. For if the blood of goats or of bulls, and the ashes of an heifer sprinkling the unclean, sanctifieth to the purifying of the flesh, how much more shall the Blood of Christ, Who, through the Holy Spirit, offered Himself without spot to God, purge our conscience from dead works to serve the living God? And for this cause, He is the Mediator of the New Testament, that, by means of death, for the redemption of the transgressions that were under the first Testament, they, which are called, might receive the promise of eternal inheritance.

First Responsory.

[4] JESUS also, that He might sanctify the people with His own Blood, suffered without the gate. Let us go forth therefore unto Him without the camp, bearing His reproach.
Verse. Ye have not yet resisted unto blood, striving against sin.
Answer. Let us go forth therefore unto Him without the gate, bearing His reproach.

Second Lesson.

FOR where a testament is, there must also of necessity be the death of the testator. For a testament is of force after men are dead: otherwise it is of no strength at all while the testator liveth. Wherefore neither the first Testament was dedicated without blood. For when Moses had read every precept of the law to all the people, he took the blood of calves and of goats, with water, and scarlet wool, and hyssop, and sprinkled both the book and all the people, saying: This is the blood of the Testament which God hath enjoined unto you. Moreover, he sprinkled likewise with blood both the Tabernacle and all the vessels of the ministry. And almost all things are by the law purged with blood; and without shedding of blood is no remission.

Second Responsory.

[5] Moses took the blood, and sprinkled all the people, saying: This is the blood of the Testament which God hath enjoined unto you.
Verse. Through faith he kept the Passover, and the sprinkling of blood, lest he that destroyed the first-born should touch them.
Answer. Saying: This is the blood of the Testament which God hath enjoined unto you.

Third Lesson. (x. 19.)

HAVING therefore, brethren, boldness to enter into the holiest by the Blood of Christ, by a new and living way which He hath consecrated for us, through the veil (that is to say, His Flesh,) and having an High Priest over the house of God, let us draw near with a true heart and full assurance of faith, having our hearts sprinkled from an evil conscience, and our bodies washed with pure water; let us hold fast the profession of our faith without wavering; (for He is faithful That promised,) and let us consider one another to provoke unto love and to good works.

Third Responsory.

[6] Ye, who sometimes were far off, are made nigh by the Blood of Christ. For He is our Peace, Who hath made both one.
Verse. [7] It pleased [the Father that in Him should all fulness dwell, and,] having made peace through the Blood of His Cross, by Him to reconcile all things unto Himself, [by Him, I say,] whether they be things in earth or things in heaven.
Answer. For He is our Peace, Who hath made both one.
Verse. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, and to the Holy Ghost.
Answer. For He is our Peace, Who hath made both one.

SECOND NOCTURN.

First Antiphon. [8] Pilate, willing to content the people, delivered JESUS, when He had scourged Him, to be crucified.

[2] Luke xxii. 44.
[3] Matth. xxvii. 3, 4.
[4] Heb. xiii. 12, 13; xii. 4.
[5] Heb. ix. 19, 20; xi. 28.
[6] Eph. ii. 13, 14.
[7] Col. i. 19, 20.
[8] Mark xv. 15.

Ps. xxii. The LORD is my Shepherd, &c., (p. 26.)

Second Antiphon. [1] When Pilate saw that he could prevail nothing, he took water, and washed his hands before the multitude, saying: I am innocent of the Blood of this just Person.

Ps. xxix. I will extol Thee, &c., (p. 42.)

Third Antiphon. Then answered all the people and said: His Blood be on us, and on our children.

Ps. lxiii. Hear my voice, &c., (p. 64.)

Verse. [2] The Blood of JESUS Christ, the Son of God,—
Answer. Cleanseth us from all sin.

Fourth Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Sermons of St John Chrysostom, Archbishop [of Constantinople.]

WOULDEST thou hear the power of the Blood of Christ? Then let us look at the figure thereof, let us call to mind the old type, and tell the story written in the antient Scriptures. The Egyptians would not let God take away Israël His firstborn,[3] "And Moses said: Thus saith the LORD—About midnight will I go out into the midst of Egypt, and all the first-born in the land of Egypt shall die, from the first-born of Pharaoh that sitteth upon his throne unto the first-born of the maid-servant that is behind the mill, and all the first-born of beasts. And there shall be a great cry throughout all the land of Egypt, such as there was none like it, nor shall be like it any more. But against any of the children of Israël shall not a dog move his tongue, against man or beast; that ye may know how that the LORD hath put a difference between the Egyptians and Israël." (Ex. xi. 4-7.) "Then Moses called for all the elders of Israël, and said unto them: Draw out and take you a lamb according to your families and kill the Passover. And ye shall take a bunch of hyssop and dip it in the blood that is in the basin, and strike the lintel and the two side-posts with the blood . . . . and when He seeth the blood upon the lintel and on the two side-posts, the LORD will pass over the door, and will not suffer the destroyer to come in unto your houses to smite you." (xii. 21-23.) And could the blood of a sheep save a man? Yea, in good sooth; not because it was blood, but because it represented in a figure the Blood of the Lord.

Fourth Responsory.

[4] Pass the time of your sojourning here in fear; forasmuch as ye know that ye were not redeemed with corruptible things, as silver and gold—
Verse. But with the Precious Blood of Christ, as of a lamb without spot.
Answer. Ye know that ye were not redeemed with corruptible things, as silver and gold.

Fifth Lesson.

THE statues of monarchs, mindless and speechless images though they be, have sometimes been an helpful refuge to men endowed with soul and reason, not because they are works of the brazier's skill, but because the likeness they bear is a King's. And just so did this unconscious blood deliver the lives of men, not because it was blood, but because it foreshadowed the shedding of the Blood of JESUS. On that night in Egypt, when the destroying Angel saw the blood upon the lintel and on the two side-posts, he passed over the door, and came not in unto the house. Even so now much more will the destroyer of souls flee away when he seeth, not the lintel and the two side-posts sprinkled with the blood of a lamb, but the [5] mouth of the faithful Christian, the living dwelling of the Holy Ghost, shining with the blood of the True Messiah. If the Angel let the type be, how shall not the enemy quail before the Reality? Wouldest thou hear more of the power of that Blood? I am willing. Consider from what source it welleth, from what fountain it springeth. Its fountain is the Heart of the Lord, pierced for us upon the Cross. "Then came the soldiers, and brake the legs of the first, and of the other which was crucified with Him; but when they came to JESUS, and saw that He was dead already, they brake not His Legs, but one of the soldiers with a spear pierced His Side, and forthwith came thereout Blood and Water," (John xix. 32-34,) whereof the One is a figure of Baptism, and the Other of the Sacrament [of the Altar.][6]

Fifth Responsory.

[7] Ye are bought with a great price, therefore glorify God and bear Him in your body.
Verse. Ye are bought with a price—be not ye the servants of men.
Answer. Glorify God and bear Him in your body.

Sixth Lesson.

ONE of the soldiers with a spear pierced His Side—the veil of the Temple of His Body was rent in twain. (John ii. 19-21, Matth. xxvii. 51.) O how glorious is the treasure that is laid open to me therein! How noble the riches that it is my joy there to have found! Thus was it with the Paschal lamb. The Jews slew the typical sheep, but to me also is it given to know the worth of the thing typified. "One of the soldiers with a spear pierced His Side, and forthwith came thereout Blood and Water." I would not, O my hearer, that thou shouldest pass by the depths of such a mystery as this without pausing. I have some mystic and hidden words to say. I have said that that Blood and Water were a figure of Baptism and of the Mysteries [of the Altar.] These are the foundations of the Church, "the washing of regeneration, and renewing of the Holy Ghost." (Tit. iii. 5.) I say [that the Church is founded in these things, whereof the substance came out of the Redeemer's Side, namely,] in Baptism and the Mysteries [of the Altar.] It was therefore out of the Side of Christ that the Church was created, just as it was out of the side of Adam that Eve was raised up to be his bride. (Gen. ii. 21, 22.) This is the reason why Paul saith, no doubt in allusion to the [bride of the Second Adam, even the Holy Church to which we belong, coming, like the bride of the first Adam, out of the] Side [of her Husband]: "We are members of His Body, [of His Flesh,] and of His bones." (Eph. v. 30.) For even as God made the woman Eve out of the rib which He had taken out of the side of Adam, so hath Christ made the Church out of the Blood and Water Which He made to flow for us out of His Own Side.

[6] After this comes a passage which I omit, as it relates to a reading in the Gospel of St John, used by St Chrysostom, but rejected by the present Greek and Latin texts.

Sixth Responsory.

[1] God commendeth His love toward us, in that, while we were yet sinners, in due time Christ died for us.

Verse. Much more then being now justified by His Blood, we shall be saved from wrath through Him.

Answer. In that, while we were yet sinners, in due time Christ died for us.

Verse. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, and to the Holy Ghost.

Answer. In that, while we were yet sinners, in due time Christ died for us.

THIRD NOCTURN.

First Antiphon. [2] Then came JESUS forth, wearing the crown of thorns, and the purple robe. And Pilate saith unto them: Behold the Man!

Ps. lxxiii. O God, why hast Thou, &c., (p. 72.)

Second Antiphon. And He, bearing His Cross, went forth into a place called "the place of a Skull," where they crucified Him.

Ps. lxxxvii. O LORD God, &c., (p. 82.)

Third Antiphon. [But] when they [came to JESUS, and] saw that He was dead already, they brake not His Legs; but one of the soldiers with a spear pierced His Side, and forthwith came thereout Blood and Water.

Ps. xciii. The LORD God to Whom vengeance, &c., (p. 84.)

Verse. [3] Christ loved us—

Answer. And washed us from our sins in His Own Blood.

Seventh Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Holy Gospel according to John (xix. 29.)

AT that time: When JESUS had received the vinegar, He said: It is finished. And He bowed His Head, and gave up the ghost. And so on.

Homily by St Austin, Bishop [of Hippo.] (120th Tract on John.)

"One of the soldiers with a spear pierced His Side, and forthwith came thereout Blood and Water." The Evangelist speaketh carefully. He saith not that he smote the Side, nor yet that he wounded It, nor yet anything else, but "pierced"—"pierced" It, to fling wide the entrance unto life, whence flow the Sacraments of the Church, those Sacraments without which there is no entrance unto the life which is life indeed. That Blood which was shed there was shed for the remission of sins, that Water is the water that mantleth in the cup of salvation. Therein are we washed, and thereof do we drink. Of this was it a type when it was said unto Noah: "The door of the ark shalt thou set in the side thereof . . . and of every living thing of all flesh shalt thou bring into the ark . . . to keep them alive." (Gen. vi. 16, 19.) A figure this of the Church. Thus was it that the first woman was made from the side of her husband while he slept, and she was called [Eve, which is, being interpreted,] "Life," "because she was the mother of all living." (Gen. iii. 20.) This name set forth a great good, before it became associated with the bitter fruit of a great evil. And here we have the Second Adam bowing His Head, and the deep sleep of death falling upon Him upon the Cross, and He sleepeth, that the Lord God may take a thing out of His side, and may make thereof a wife for Him. O what a death was His, which quickeneth the dead! What is cleaner than His Blood? What more health-giving than His wounding?

Seventh Responsory.

[4] This is He That came by Water and Blood, even JESUS Christ; not by Water only, but by Water and Blood.

Verse. [5] In that day there shall be a fountain opened to the house of David and to the inhabitants of Jerusalem, for sin and for uncleanness.

Answer. Not by Water only, but by Water and Blood.

Eighth Lesson.

MEN were being held bondsmen to the devil, slaves to evil spirits. But they have been redeemed from that bondage. They had been able to sell themselves, but they were not able to redeem themselves. A Redeemer came and paid the price for them. He shed His Blood, and at that cost bought the world. Ye ask what He bought? Look what He paid, and ye shall see what He bought. Christ's Blood was the price. What is His Blood worth? What, but the whole world? What but all men? They are very unthankful for His redemption, or very proud, who say that It is only precious enough to buy the Africans, or that they themselves are so precious that It was shed only for them. Let there be an end to such conceit, an end to such vain-glory. What He paid, He paid for all.

Eighth Responsory.

[6] God hath predestinated us unto the adoption of children by JESUS Christ, in Whom we have redemption through His Blood.

Verse. The forgiveness of sins, according to the riches of His grace, wherein He hath abounded toward us.

Answer. In Whom we have redemption through His Blood.

Verse. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, and to the Holy Ghost.

Answer. In Whom we have redemption through His Blood.

Ninth Blessing.

May the Gospel's glorious word
Cleansing to our souls afford.

[3] Apoc. i. 5.

[4] 1 John v. 6. [5] Zech. xiii. 1. [6] Eph. i. 5-7.

Ninth Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Holy Gospel according to John (xi. 1.)

AT that time: A certain man was sick, named Lazarus, of Bethany, the town of Mary, and her sister Martha. And so on.

Homily by St Austin, Bishop [of Hippo.] (49th Tract on John.)

Ye remember that in our last reading we learnt how that the Lord "escaped out of the hands" of them which "took up stones to stone Him," "and went away again beyond Jordan, into the place where John at first baptized." (John x. 31, 39, 40.) While, then, the Lord still tarried there, Lazarus was sick at Bethany, which was a town near to Jerusalem. "It was that Mary which anointed the Lord with ointment, and wiped His Feet with her hair, whose brother Lazarus was sick. Therefore his sisters sent unto Him." We know already whither it was that they sent, for we know where JESUS was: "He was gone away again beyond Jordan." "His sisters sent unto Him, saying: Lord, behold, he whom Thou lovest is sick"—in order that, if He so pleased, He might come and free him from his sickness. But JESUS healed not, that He might afterward quicken. What therefore sent his sisters to say? "Lord, behold, he whom Thou lovest is sick"—and no more. They said not: "Come:"—for JESUS loved him; and to tell Him that he was sick was enough. They dared not to say: "Come, and heal him:"—they dared not to say: "Speak the word where Thou art, and it shall be done here." And wherefore should they not have said this if they had the faith which won the Centurion so much praise? He had said: "Lord, I am not worthy that Thou shouldest come under my roof; but speak the word only, and my servant shall be healed." (Matth. viii. 8.) But they said none of these things, only: "Lord, behold, he whom Thou lovest is sick"—"It is enough that Thou shouldest know it: Thou art not one that lovest and leavest." But some man will say: "How shall Lazarus be a type of the sinner, and yet the Lord so love him?" Let such an one hear the words of the same Lord, which He said: "I am not come to call the righteous, but sinners." (Matth. ix. 13.) For if God had not loved sinners, He had not come down from heaven to earth. "When JESUS heard that, He said: This sickness is not unto death, but for the glory of God, that the Son of God might be glorified thereby." Such a glorification is no increase of majesty for Him, but of profit for us. He therefore meaneth to say: "This sickness is not unto death, but for the working of a miracle, the which being wrought, if men will thereby believe in Christ, they shall escape the real death." Note especially how the Lord doth in this place declare Himself to be God, as it were by implication, for the sake of some which say that He is not the Son of God.

The hymn "We praise Thee, O God, &c.," is said.

Hymn.[2]

HAIL, Holy Wounds of JESUS, hail!
Sweet pledges of the saving Rood!
Whence flow the streams that never fail—
The purple streams of His dear Blood.

Brighter than brightest stars ye show,
Than sweetest rose your scent more rare,
No Indian gem may match your glow,
No honey's taste with yours compare.

Portals are ye to that dear Home,
Wherein our wearied souls may hide.
Whereto no angry foe can come,
The Heart of JESUS Crucified.

What countless stripes our JESUS bore,
All naked left in Pilate's hall,
What copious floods of purple gore
Through rents in His torn garments fall.

His comely brow, O shame and grief,
By the sharp thorny crown is riven,
Through Hands and Feet, without relief
The cruel nails are deeply driven.

But when for our poor sakes He died,
A willing Priest, by love subdued,
The soldier's spear transfixed His Side—
Forth flowed the Water and the Blood.

Beneath the winepress of God's wrath,
To save our souls from endless pains,
Still hour by hour His Blood flows forth
Till not a single drop remains.

Come, bathe you in that healing flood,
All ye who mourn with sin opprest,
Your only hope in JESUS' Blood,
His Sacred Heart your only rest.

All praise to Him, the Eternal Son,
At God's right hand enthroned above,
Whose Blood the world's redemption won,
Whose Spirit seals the gifts of love.
Amen.

Verse. Being justified by the Blood of Christ—

Answer. We shall be saved from wrath through Him.

Antiphon at the Song of Zacharias. The blood shall be to you for a token, saith the Lord, and when I see the Blood I will pass over you, and the plague shall not be upon you to destroy you.[3]

Prayer throughout the Office.

O ALMIGHTY and Everlasting God, Who hast appointed Thine Only-begotten Son to be the Redeemer of the world, and hast been pleased to be reconciled unto us by His Blood, grant us, we beseech Thee, so to use this solemn worship of the price of our salvation, that the Power thereof may here on earth keep us from all things that may hurt us, and the purchase of the same may gladden us for ever hereafter in Heaven. Who liveth and reigneth with Thee, in the unity of the Holy Ghost, one God, world without end. Amen.

Last Psalm.

Ps. cxlvii. Praise the LORD, O Jerusalem, &c., (p. 114.)

Verse. We pray Thee therefore, help Thy servants.

Answer. Whom Thou hast redeemed by Thy Precious Blood.

Antiphon at the Song of the Blessed Virgin. This day shall be unto you for a memorial, and ye shall keep it a Feast to the Lord throughout your generations; ye shall keep it a Feast by an ordinance for ever.

Commemoration of the Week-day.

Antiphon. Lord, if Thou hadst been here, Lazarus had not died; behold, by this time he stinketh, for he hath lain in the grave four days already.

Verse. God hath given His Angels charge over Thee.

Answer. To keep Thee in all Thy ways.

Prayer.

GRANT, we beseech Thee, O Almighty God, unto all us who know that we are weak, and who trust in Thee, because we know that Thou art strong, the gladsome help of Thy loving-kindness, both here in time and hereafter in eternity. Through our Lord JESUS Christ Thy Son, Who liveth and reigneth with Thee, in the unity of the Holy Ghost, one God, world without end. Amen.

Saturday.

The Sabbath.

MATTINS.

Hymn as on the First Sunday, (p. 262.)

First Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Holy Gospel according to John (viii. 12.)

AT that time: JESUS spake unto the multitudes of the Jews, saying; I am the Light of the world: He that followeth Me, walketh not in darkness; but shall have the Light of life. And so on.

Homily on this passage by St Austin, Bishop [of Hippo.] (34*th Tract on John.*)

I take it that these words of the Lord—"I am the Light of the world"—are sufficiently clear to all men who have eyes which see that Light. At the same time, such men as have no eyes except those which are in their bodies, are surprised to find our Lord JESUS Christ saying, "I am the Light of the world." And that we might not want somebody to say, "Is our Lord JESUS Christ, then, the same sun that riseth and setteth every day?" there have actually been heretics who did say it. The Manichæans believed that that sun which we see with our bodily eyes, and to see which is plain and common to beasts as well as men, was the Lord Christ.

First Responsory.

After that the Lord, &c., (p. 302.)

Second Lesson.

BUT the right faith of the Catholic Church damneth such comment, and recogniseth in it a doctrine of devils. And as it is her practice not only to brand errors by the difference of her own Creed, but also to remove them, if possible, by dint of argument, let us take up arms against this falsehood, which hath from the very beginning been the object of the curse of the Holy Church. God forbid that we should believe that our Lord JESUS Christ is this sun whose apparent movement is to rise every day in the East, and set every day in the West; which when we see no more, night cometh over us; and whose rays are sometimes intercepted by clouds: and which hath some law of motion of its own whereby it describeth an orbit.[1] The planet is not the same thing as our Lord JESUS Christ. Our Lord JESUS Christ is not that created sun, but He by Whom that sun was created; for "all things were made by Him, and without Him was not anything made that was made." (John i. 3.)

Second Responsory.

Behold I send, &c., (p. 302.)

Third Lesson.

HE is therefore the Light by Whom the material light was made. Him may we love, Him may we long to know, Him may we thirst after; to Him may His own beams one day lead us, and in Him may we so live that we shall never die! For He, even He, and none other, He is that Light, of Whom the Prophet that was given of old time sang in the Psalms, when he said: "For with Thee is the fountain of life, and in Thy Light shall we see light." (Ps. xxxv. 10.) Remember ye likewise what the word of God's ancient saints saith of such Light: "O LORD, Thou preservest man and beast—How excellent is Thy loving-kindness, O God!" (7, 8.)

Third Responsory.

Give ear, &c., (p. 302.)

LAUDS.

Chapter from Isa. lviii. 1, as on the First Monday, (p. 266.)

Hymn and Verse and Answer as on the First Sunday, (p. 265.)

Antiphon at the Song of Zacharias. Thus saith the Lord: * He that followeth Me walketh not in darkness, but shall have the Light of life.

Prayer.

O LORD, we pray Thee, that Thy grace may make fruitful the toil of this our godly exercise, since it shall nothing avail us to have fasted, if our Fast be not pleasing in Thy most gracious sight. Through our Lord JESUS Christ Thy Son, Who liveth and reigneth with Thee, in the unity of the Holy Ghost, one God, world without end. Amen.

The same Prayer at Terce, Sext, and None.

Before Vespers all Crosses, images, and pictures are covered with purple veils.[2]

VESPERS.

From these Vespers till the Vespers of Low Sunday, both inclusive, the Week-day Commemoration of the Cross is not made, and at and after the Lauds of the Monday in Low Week it is made in the manner peculiar to Easter-tide till the Lauds of the Eve of the Ascension, inclusive, save on Doubles and days within an Octave. Likewise, from these Vespers inclusive, till Lauds of the Monday after Trinity Sunday exclusive, the Common Commemorations of the Blessed Virgin Mary, of St Joseph, of the Holy Apostles Peter and Paul, of the local Patron, and for Peace are omitted.

Chapter and Prayer from the following Lauds.

Hymn.[3]

THE Royal Banners forward go;
The Cross shines forth in mystic glow,
Where Life for sinners death endured,
And life by death for man procured.

[1] Modern astronomers believe the centre of its orbit to be a star (Alcyone) in the constellation Pleiades.

[2] The extremely sorrowful tone of the Church throughout the early part of the month Nisan, (and that Passiontide is to be so translated is evident from the First Responsory on Passion Sunday,) is not explained by any custom of the Synagogue, and is perhaps intended in honour of our Lord's last sojourn in Judæa, during which the plots for His death were in development. He seems, from the Gospel and tradition, to have arrived at Bethany, from the neighbourhood of Jordan, on the Friday, and the Church, in deference to the "Day of Delight," postpones her commemoration of these woeful days till the close of the Sabbath which began on Friday evening, and during which He rested with those He loved, the last Sabbath but one before His death.

[3] Translation by the late Rev. Dr Neale. It was composed by Venantius Fortunatus, Bishop of Poictiers, (whose life extended from A.D. 530 to 609,) on occasion of the reception of certain Reliques by St Gregory of Tours and St Radegund, previously to the consecration of a Church at Poictiers. It is therefore strictly and primarily a processional hymn. (Neale's Mediæval Hymns, 1, 6.)

Where deep for us the spear was dy'd,
Life's torrent rushing from His Side,
To wash us in that precious flood
Where, mingled, Water flowed, and Blood.

Fulfilled is all that David told
In true Prophetic song of old;
"Amidst the nations, God," saith he,
"Hath reigned and triumphed from the Tree."[1]

O Tree of Beauty! Tree of Light!
O Tree with Royal Purple dight!
Elect on whose triumphal breast
Those holy Limbs should find their rest!

On whose dear arms, so widely flung,
The weight of this world's ransom hung:
The price of human kind to pay,
And spoil the spoiler of his prey.

[2] O Cross, our one reliance, hail!
This holy Passiontide, avail
To give fresh merit to the Saint,
And pardon to the penitent.

To Thee, Eternal Three in One,
Let homage meet by all be done;
Whom by the Cross Thou dost restore,
Preserve and govern evermore. Amen.

Verse. Deliver me, O Lord, from the evil man.

Answer. Preserve me from the wicked man.

Antiphon at the Song of the Blessed Virgin. I am One * That bear witness of Myself, and the Father That sent Me beareth witness of Me.

COMPLINE.

Note that the Verse, "Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, and to the Holy Ghost," is omitted in the Short Responsory, and is not said again except on Festivals, till the Saturday evening before Low Sunday. Also that the same change is made in all the other Short Responsories, viz., those at Prime, Terce, Sext, and None, till Low Sunday. The Responsory therefore runs as follows:

Into Thy hands, O Lord, I commend my spirit.

Answer. Into Thy hands, O Lord, I commend my spirit.

Verse. Thou hast redeemed us, O Lord God of truth.

Answer. I commend my spirit. Into Thy hands, O Lord, I commend my spirit.

Verse. Keep us, O Lord, as the apple of the eye.

Answer. Hide us under the shadow of Thy wings.

And it is thus said daily until Maundy-Thursday, exclusive, except on Festivals, when it is said as usual.

Passion Sunday.

The Lord's Day in time of the Passion.

MATTINS.

Invitatory. To-day if ye will hear the voice of the Lord, * harden not your hearts.

In Ps. xciv. the words, "To-day, if ye will hear His voice, harden not your hearts," are omitted, and in place of them, the Invitatory is repeated again by the Choir, (or others who may be answering,) after which the Cantors or Officiant begin, "As in the Provocation, &c."

At the end of the Psalm the clause beginning "Glory be to the Father, &c." is also omitted, nor are the words "Harden not your hearts" said, but the entire Invitatory is simply repeated again.

Hymn.[3]

SING, my tongue, the glorious battle,
With completed victory rife:
And above the Cross's trophy
Tell the triumph of the strife:
How the world's Redeemer conquered
By surrendering of His life.

God his Maker, sorely grieving
That the first-made Adam fell,
When he ate the fruit of sorrow
Whose reward was death and hell,
Noted then this Tree, the ruin
Of the ancient tree to quell.[4]

For the work of our salvation
Needs would have his order so,
And the multiform deceiver's
Art by art would overthrow,
And from thence[5] would bring the med'cine
Whence the insult of the foe.

Wherefore, when the sacred fulness
Of th' appointed time was come,
This world's Maker left His Father,
Sent the Heavenly Mansion from,
And proceeded, God Incarnate,
Of the Virgin's Holy Womb.

Weeps the Infant in the manger
That in Bethlehem's stable stands;
And His Limbs the Virgin Mother
Doth compose in swaddling bands,
Meetly thus in linen folding
Of her God the Feet and Hands.[6]

To the Trinity be glory
Everlasting, as is meet:
Equal to the Father, equal
To the Son, and Paraclete:
Trinal Unity, Whose praises
All created things repeat. Amen.

FIRST NOCTURN.

First Lesson.

Here beginneth the Book of the Prophet[7] Jeremiah (i. 1.)

THE words of Jeremiah the son of Hilkiah, of the Priests that were in Anathoth, in the Land of Benjamin: to whom the word of the Lord came in the days of Josiah the son of Amon king of Judah, in the thirteenth year of his reign.[8] It came also in the days of Jehoiakim the son of Josiah king of Judah, unto the end of the eleventh year of Zedekiah, the son of Josiah, king of Judah, unto the carrying away of Jerusalem captive in the fifth month. Then the word of the LORD came unto me, saying: Before I formed thee in the belly I knew thee; and before thou camest forth out of the womb I sanctified thee; and I ordained thee a prophet unto the nations. Then said I: Ah! Lord GOD![1] behold, I cannot speak, for I am a child![2]

[1] So-called Italic for Ps. xcv. 10.

[2] "These two verses were added when the Hymn was appropriated to Passiontide."

[3] Also by Venantius Fortunatus, and translated by the late Dr Neale.

[4] The Cross, as the mystic "tree of life," (Gen. ii. 9,) is here set by the poet in antithesis to the tree of the knowledge of good and evil, "whose mortal taste Brought death into the world and all our woe." The present translator has taken the liberty to substitute "tree" for "wood," as a translation of "lignum,"—as more conformable to our common phraseology, and used by Dr Neale himself in the "Royal Banners."

[5] I.e., from trees.

[6] The poem is here abruptly broken off, the rest being sung at Lauds.

[7] Abp. Kenrick says: "This Prophet was a son of Hilkiah, a Priest of Anathoth, a village in the tribe of Benjamin, about three miles from Jerusalem. He prophesied in Judea, from the thirteenth year of the reign of Josiah, about 629 years before Christ, until the eleventh year of Zedekiah, during a period of forty years. Subsequently, also, he prophesied both in Judea and in Egypt, where he is believed to have died, although the circumstances of his death are not ascertained. St Epiphanius states that he was stoned by the people of Taphne." (So the Roman Martyrology, on May 1; and it is generally believed that he was martyred for protesting against idolatry.) "The Prophet was, in several respects, a type of our Redeemer, of Whose wonderful Conception, Life, and Sufferings, striking predictions and figures are found in this Divine book. The Church borrows his lamentations to express her anguish and desolation in contemplating the Passion and Death of her Divine Spouse." For some account of the events of his time, see the Eleventh Week after Pentecost.

[8] About the year B.C. 629.

First Responsory.

[3] These are the days to be observed of you in their seasons. In the fourteenth day at even is the LORD'S Passover, and on the fifteenth day ye shall keep a Feast unto the LORD, the Most High.[4]

Verse. The LORD spake unto Moses, saying: Speak unto the children of Israël, and say unto them:

Answer. In the fourteenth day at even is the LORD'S Passover, and on the fifteenth day ye shall keep a Feast unto the LORD, the Most High.

Second Lesson.

BUT the LORD said unto me: Say not, I am a child: for thou shalt go to all that I shall send thee; and whatsoever I command thee, thou shalt speak. Be not afraid of their faces, for I am with thee to deliver thee, saith the LORD. Then the LORD put forth His hand, and touched my mouth; and the LORD said unto me: Behold, I have put My words in thy mouth. See, I have this day set thee over the nations and over the kingdoms, to root out and to pull down, and to destroy and to throw down, and to build and to plant. Moreover the word of the LORD came unto me, saying: Jeremiah, what seest thou? And I said: I see a rod of the watch-early [tree.[5]] Then said the LORD unto me: Thou hast well seen: for I will watch over My word to perform it early. And the word of the LORD came unto me the second time, saying: What seest thou? And I said: I see a seething pot, and the face thereof is from the face of the North.[6]

Second Responsory.

[7] They be increased that trouble me, and that say: There is no help for him in his God. Arise, O LORD! Save me, O my God!

Verse. [8] Lest mine enemy say: I have prevailed against him.

Answer. Arise, O LORD! Save me, O my God!

Third Lesson.

THEN the LORD said unto me: Out of the North an evil shall break forth upon all the inhabitants of the land. For, lo, I will call all the families of the kingdoms of the North, saith the LORD: and they shall come, and they shall set every one his throne at the entering of the gates of Jerusalem, and against all the walls thereof round about, and against all the cities of Judah. And I will utter My judgments with them, touching all their wickedness who have forsaken Me, and have made offerings unto other gods, and worshipped the works of their own hands. Thou, therefore, gird up thy loins, and arise, and speak unto them all that I command thee. Be not dismayed at their faces; for I will not make their countenance fearful unto thee. For, behold, I have made thee this day a fenced city, and an iron pillar, and brazen walls against the whole land, against the kings of Judah, against the princes thereof, and against the priests thereof, and against the people of the land. And they shall fight against thee, and they shall not prevail against thee; for I am with thee, saith the LORD, to deliver thee.

Third Responsory.

[9] How long shall mine enemy be exalted over me? Consider, and hear me, O LORD my God!

Verse. Those that trouble me will rejoice when I am moved: but I have trusted in Thy mercy.

Answer. Consider and hear me, O LORD my God! How long shall mine enemy be exalted over me? Consider and hear me, O LORD my God!

SECOND NOCTURN.

Fourth Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Sermons of Pope St Leo [the Great.] (9th for Lent.)

DEARLY beloved brethren, we know that of all the solemn Feasts which are kept by Christians the Passover is the chief. The ordinances of the whole rest of the year are ordered to the end of preparing us to come to this one in worthy and meet manner. But these days, which now are, are they which ought most especially to stir up a godly mind in us, seeing that they are they which are nearest to that most glorious mystery of God's mercy. In these days the holy Apostles, taught by the Holy Ghost, ordered the chiefest store of Fasting, that we, sharing His Cross with Christ, might, albeit we are what we are, in Him, do some of the same things which He did for our sakes, and so realise the saying of the Apostle: "If we suffer with Him, we shall be also glorified together." (Rom. viii. 17.) He that is "partaker of the sufferings" (2 Cor. i. 7) of the Lord hath a sure and certain hope of that blessedness which He hath promised unto us.

Fourth Responsory.

[10] Thou art my God—be not far from me: for trouble is near; for there is none to help.

Verse. But be not Thy strength far from me; O LORD, haste Thee to help me.

Answer. For trouble is near; for there is none to help.

Fifth Lesson.

DEARLY beloved brethren, there is no man to whom the state of the age in which he liveth denieth a share in this glory of partaking, first the sufferings, and then the triumph and joy, of Christ. It is not as though this time of peace were barren in occasions of valour. The Apostle giveth us this warning: "All that will live godly in Christ JESUS shall suffer persecution." (2 Tim. iii. 12.) And therefore, as long as godliness is watchful, persecution will never be asleep. The Lord Himself saith in one of His own exhortations: "He that taketh not his cross, and followeth after Me, is not worthy of Me." (Matth. x. 38.) And we must not doubt that these words of Christ apply not only to His immediate disciples, to whom He spoke them, but belong to all the faithful and to the whole Church, who, whosoever be the believers of whom she is for the time composed on earth, heareth in these words the way to be saved which her Lord hath appointed for them.

[2] He is thought to have been about fifteen years of age.

[4] The 14th day is Holy Saturday, and at Even (the hour of Even Song) is the joyful ceremony peculiar to that day. The 15th day is Easter Day.

[5] This is the Hebrew name of the almond-tree, "so called because it is the first to arouse and awake from the sleep of winter." (Gesenius.)

[6] "This boiling caldron is used to represent the elements of excitement on the part of the Babylonians and Chaldeans who were about to invade Judah."

[7] Ps. iii. 2, 3, 7. [8] Ps. xii. 5. [9] Ps. xii. 3-6.

[10] Ps. xxi. 11, 12, 20.

Fifth Responsory.

[1] I was cast upon Thee from the womb; Thou art my God from my mother's belly; be not far from me. For trouble is near, and there is none to help.

Verse. Save me from the lion's mouth, and mine affliction from the horns of the unicorns.

Answer. For trouble is near, and there is none to help.

Sixth Lesson.

AS, then, it is the duty of the whole body of the Church to live godly, so is it her right at all times to be a-bearing of her Master's Cross, and that not only in her general body, but individually in the person of each one of her members, who differ every one from another in the way in which they have to carry it, and the shape in which it is laid upon them. The one common name for all their carrying of the Cross is persecution, but the manner of his wrestling is special to each; and there is often more danger in the ambush than in the pitched field of battle. Blessed Job, who had tried both the goods and the ills of this world, said: "Is not the life of man upon earth a warfare?" (vii. 1.) The attack upon the faithful soul arrayeth itself not alone in bodily torture and punishment; yea, when the limbs are sound enough, fearful is the ravage that threateneth us when the lusts of the flesh unman us. But when "the flesh lusteth against the spirit, and the spirit against the flesh" (Gal. iv. 7) the reasonable mind findeth her reinforcement in the helpful Cross of Christ, and though she be lured by foul cravings, yet refuseth to give her consent, for God maketh her pure thoughts to tremble for fear of Him. (Ps. cxviii. 120.)

Sixth Responsory.

[2] O Lord, my trouble is near, and there is none to help me; or ever they pierce my hands and my feet, save me from the lion's mouth!—that I may declare Thy Name unto my brethren.

Verse. O God, deliver my soul from the sword, and my darling from the power of the dog.

Answer. That I may declare Thy Name unto my brethren. O Lord, my trouble is near, and there is none to help me; or ever they pierce my hands and my feet, save me from the lion's mouth! that I may declare Thy Name unto my brethren.

THIRD NOCTURN.

Seventh Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Holy Gospel according to John (viii. 46.)

AT that time: JESUS said unto the multitudes of the Jews: Which of you convinceth Me of sin? And, if I say the truth, why do ye not believe Me? And so on.

Homily by Pope St Gregory [the Great.] (18th on the Gospels.)

Dearly beloved brethren, consider the gentleness of God. He came to take away sins, and He saith: Which of you convinceth Me of sin?" He Who, through the might of His Godhead, was able to justify sinners, was contented to show by argument that He was not Himself a sinner. But exceeding dread is that which followeth. "He that is of God heareth God's words; ye, therefore, hear them not, because ye are not of God." If, then, whosoever is of God heareth God's words, and whosoever is not of Him cannot hear His words, let each one ask himself if he, in the ear of his heart, heareth God's words, and understandeth Whose words they are? The Truth commandeth us to long for a Fatherland in heaven, to bridle the lusts of the flesh, to turn away from the glory of the world, to seek no man's goods, and to give away our own.

Seventh Responsory.

[3] O Lord, I go mourning all the day long, for my soul is filled with a loathsome disease: they also that sought after my life have used violence against me.

Verse. My friends and my neighbours draw near, and stand over against me; and they that are nearest to me stand afar off.

Answer. They also that sought after my life have used violence against me.

Eighth Lesson.

LET each of you, therefore, think within himself if this voice of God is heard in the ear of his heart, and if he knoweth already if he is of God. For some there be, whom it pleaseth not to hear the commandments of God even with their bodily ears. And some there be, who receive the same with their bodily ears, but whose heart is far from them. And some also there be, who hear the words of God with joy, so that they are moved thereby even to tears; but when their fit of weeping is past they turn again to iniquity. They hear not the words of God, who despise to do them. Therefore, dearly beloved brethren, call up your own life before your mind's eye, and then ponder with trembling those awful words which the mouth of the Truth spake: "Ye therefore hear them not, because ye are not of God."

Eighth Responsory.

[4] O Lord, hide not Thy face from Thy servant, for I am in trouble; hear me speedily.

---

[1] Ps. xxi. 11, 12, 22.

[2] Ps. xxi. 12, 17, 22, 23, 21.

[3] Ps. xxxvii. 7, 8, 13, 12.

[4] Ps. lxix. 17.

Verse. Draw nigh unto my soul, and redeem it; deliver me, because of mine enemies.

Answer. For I am in trouble; hear me speedily.

Ninth Lesson.

THE Truth speaketh these words concerning the reprobate; but the reprobate make manifest the same thing concerning themselves, by their evil works. Thus immediately followeth:—"Then answered the Jews, and said unto Him: Say we not well that Thou art a Samaritan, and hast a devil?" But let us hear what the Lord said to this insult. "I have not a devil, but I honour My Father, and ye do dishonour Me." The Lord said: "I have not a devil," but He did not say: "I am not a Samaritan," for in a sense a Samaritan He was indeed,[1] since the word Samaritan, in the Hebrew tongue, signifieth, being interpreted, "a Watcher," and the Lord is that Watcher, of Whom the Psalmist saith (cxxviii. 2) that unless He keep the city, other watchman waketh but in vain. He also is that Watchman unto Whom crieth Isaiah (xxi. 11):—"Watchman, what of the night? Watchman, what of the night?" Therefore the Lord said:—"I have not a devil," but not: "I am not a Samaritan." Of the two things brought against Him He denied one; but by His silence, admitted the other.

Ninth Responsory.

O[2] that my head were waters, and mine eyes a fountain of tears, that I might weep day and night! for my nearest brother hath supplanted me, and my neighbour hath walked with slanders against me.

Verse. [3] Let their way be dark and slippery, and let the Angel of the LORD persecute them.

Answer. And my neighbour hath walked with slanders against me. O that my head were waters, and mine eyes a fountain of tears, that I might weep day and night! for my nearest brother hath supplanted me, and my neighbour hath walked with slanders against me.

BRETHREN, Christ being come an High Priest of good things to come, by a greater and more perfect tabernacle, not made with hands, that is to say, not of this building, neither by the blood of goats and calves, but by His Own Blood, He entered in once into the holy place, having obtained eternal redemption for us.

Hymn.[8]

THIRTY years among us dwelling,
  His appointed time fulfilled,
Born for this, He meets His Passion,
  For that this He freely willed:
On the Cross the Lamb is lifted,
  Where His Life-Blood shall be spilled.

He endured the nails, the spitting,
  Vinegar, and spear, and reed;
From that Holy Body broken
  Blood and water forth proceed:
Earth, and stars, and sky, and ocean,
  By that flood from stain are freed.

Faithful Cross! above all other,
  One and only noble Tree!
None in foliage, none in blossom,
  None in fruit thy peers may be:
Sweetest wood and sweetest iron!
  Sweetest weight is hung on thee.

Bend thy boughs, O tree of glory!
  Thy relaxing sinews bend;
For a while the ancient rigour,
  That thy birth bestowed, suspend;
And the King of heavenly beauty
  On thy bosom gently tend.

Thou alone wast counted worthy
  This world's ransom to uphold;
For a shipwrecked race preparing
  Harbour, like the ark of old;
With the Sacred Blood anointed
  From the smitten Lamb that rolled.

To the Trinity be glory
  Everlasting, as is meet:
Equal to the Father, equal
  To the Son, and Paraclete:
Trinal Unity, Whose praises
  All created things repeat. Amen.

Verse. [9] Deliver me from mine enemies, O my God,—

Answer. And defend me from them that rise up against me.

Antiphon at the Song of Zacharias. JESUS said * unto the multitudes of the Jews and unto the Chief Priests: He that is of God heareth God's words; ye, therefore, hear them not, because ye are not of God.

Prayer throughout the day.

WE beseech Thee, Almighty God, mercifully to look upon this Thy family, that by Thy great goodness they may be governed and preserved evermore, both in body and soul. Through our Lord JESUS Christ, Thy Son, Who liveth and reigneth with Thee, in the unity of the Holy Ghost, one God, world without end. Amen.

Antiphon. Amen, Amen, * I say unto you: If a man keep My saying, he shall never see death.

Chapter. (Heb. ix. 13.)

FOR if the blood of goats and of bulls, and the ashes of an heifer sprinkling the unclean, sanctifieth to the purifying of the flesh, how much more shall the Blood of Christ, Who through the Holy Spirit offered Himself without spot to God, purge our conscience from dead works, to serve the living God?

NONE.

Antiphon. Then took the Jews up stones * to cast at Him: but JESUS hid Himself, and went out of the temple.

Chapter. (Heb. ix. 15.)

AND for this cause He is the Mediator of the New Testament, that, by means of death, for the redemption of the transgressions that were under the first Testament, they which are called might receive the promise of eternal inheritance, in Christ JESUS our Lord.

After Vespers are said the Vespers of the Dead.

Monday in Passion Week.

Second Day.

MATTINS.

Invitatory and alterations in Ps. xciv., and Hymn, as yesterday.

First Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Holy Gospel according to John (vii. 32.)

AT that time: The chief priests and the Pharisees sent officers to take JESUS. And so on.

Homily by St Austin, Bishop [of Hippo.] (31st Tract on John.)

How could they take Him until such time as He willed to be taken? If, then, they could not take Him until He willed to be taken, were they sent to watch His teaching? "Then said JESUS unto them: Yet a little while am I with you"—what ye now seek to do, ye shall do; but not yet, for I will not so yet. And why will I not so yet? Because "yet a little while am I with you, and then I go unto Him that sent Me"—I must fulfil that which I am sent to do, and so go to suffer.

First Responsory.

[1] Deliver me, O my God, out of the hand of the wicked, and out of the hand of the unrighteous and cruel man. For Thou art my hope.

Verse. O my God, be not far from me: O my God, make haste for my help.

Answer. For Thou art my hope.

Second Lesson.

"YE shall seek Me, and shall not find Me, and where I am thither ye cannot come." In these words He foretold already His rising again from the dead. While He was with them they would not know Him; and afterwards they sought Him, when they saw that a multitude already believed in Him. For great signs were wrought also when the Lord rose again, and ascended up into heaven. Then were great signs again wrought through the Disciples, (that is, through them by Him Who worketh the same directly also by Himself,) according as He had said unto them: "Without Me ye can do nothing." (John xv. 5.) When that lame man that was laid daily at the Beautiful Gate of the Temple stood up at the voice of Peter (Acts iii.) and walked, and all the people were filled with wonder, Peter bade them know that it was not by his own power that he had made him to walk, but by the power of Him Whom they had killed. And when they heard this, many were pricked in their heart, and said: What shall we do? (Acts ii. 37.)

Second Responsory.

[2] They that lay wait for my soul take counsel together, saying: God hath forsaken him; persecute and take him, for there is none to deliver him. O my God, be not far from me: O my God, make haste for my help.

Verse. [3] All that hate me whispered together against me; against me did they devise my hurt, saying:

Answer. Persecute and take him, for there is none to deliver him. O my God, be not far from me: O my God, make haste for my help.

Third Lesson.

FOR they saw that they were burdened with the guilt of an exceeding great sin, in that they had killed Him, Whom it was their duty to worship and adore: and for that guilt they knew of no propitiation. Yea, their sin was indeed exceeding great; and the consideration of it made them to despair for whom the Lord, when He hung upon the Cross, had been willing to pray, as it is written: "Then said JESUS: Father, forgive them, for they know not what they do." (Luke xxiii. 34.) At that hour He had seen among many aliens some that were His Own; for them He asked forgiveness, while yet He suffered at their hand, nor considered that they were putting Him to death, but only that He was dying for them.

Third Responsory.

[1] Mine enemies spoke to me peaceably, but in wrath they troubled me. This Thou hast seen, O LORD; keep not silence: be not far from me.

Verse. But as for me, when they troubled me my clothing was sackcloth, and I humbled my soul with fasting.

Answer. This Thou hast seen, O LORD; keep not silence: be not far from me. Mine enemies spoke to me peaceably, but in wrath they troubled me. This Thou hast seen, O Lord; keep not silence: be not far from me.

Tuesday in Passion Week.

Third Day.

MATTINS.

Invitatory, alteration in Ps. xciv., and Hymn as on Sunday, (p. 314.)

First Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Holy Gospel according to John (vii. 1.)

AT that time: JESUS walked in Galilee; for He would not walk in Jewry, because the Jews sought to kill Him. And so on.

Homily by St Austin, Bishop [of Hippo.] (28*th Tract on John.*)

In this chapter of the Gospel, my brethren, our Lord JESUS Christ hath much commended Himself unto our faith, as touching His Manhood. At the same time, His words and works were alway such as to give us to believe that He is both God and Man, yea, that God Who made us, and that Man Who hath sought us, yea, God the Son, Who, as touching His Godhead, is alway with the Father, (John i. 18; iii. 13,) and, as touching His Manhood, hath been with us in time. (Matth. i. 23.) For He had not sought the work of His hands unless He had been made His own work. (John i. 14.) Keep this well in mind, and let your hearts never forget it, namely, that Christ was not made Man so as to cease to be God. He, Who made the Manhood, took It into that Godhead Which is His from everlasting to everlasting.[3]

First Responsory.

[4] Thou art my Helper and my Protector, O Lord, and in Thy word do I hope. Depart from me, ye evil doers, for I will keep the commandments of my God.

Verse. I hate the unrighteous, but Thy law do I love.

Answer. Depart from me, ye evil doers, for I will keep the commandments of my God.

Second Lesson.

WHILE therefore He lay hid in the Manhood, we must not think that He had suffered any lessening of power, but that He was giving ensample to our weakness. When He willed it, He was taken; when He willed it, He was put to death. (John x. 18.) But, since He was to have members, that is, His faithful people, who would not have that power over their lives which He, our God, had over His, He hid Himself, He concealed Himself, as if it were to escape being put to death, to show what should be done by those His members in whom He should dwell.

---

[1] Ps. xxxiv. 20, 22, 13. (Other version than the present.)

[2] The present Hebrew is, literally, "Let us destroy . . . tree in his bread," i.e., "Let us destroy him by putting the juice of some poisonous tree into his food." LXX., "Let us put tree into his bread." Jonathan ben Uzziel, "Let us cast poison of death into his food." For the context regarding this plot to assassinate Jeremiah, see the First Lesson on Tuesday in Holy Week. This passage seems to have been selected with an eye to a mystic allusion to the "fatal tree" of the Cross, as the instrument of death.

[3] The Creed of St Athanasius is as felicitous as usual in the expression of this dogma—"One; not by conversion of the Godhead into Flesh; but by taking of the Manhood into God." See the whole passage beginning, "For the right Faith is, that we believe and confess that our Lord JESUS Christ, the Son of God, is God and Man, &c., &c."

[4] Ps. cxviii. 114, 115, 113.

Second Responsory.

[1] I will teach transgressors Thy ways, and sinners shall be converted unto Thee. Deliver me from blood-guiltiness, O God, Thou God of my salvation.

Verse. O Lord, open Thou my lips, and my mouth shall show forth Thy praise.

Answer. Deliver me from blood-guiltiness, O God, Thou God of my salvation.

Third Lesson.

FOR Christ is not the Head of His Church in such sense that He is not in her Body; but the whole Christ is in the Head, and the whole Christ is in the Body. That, then, which His members are is Himself, (though That Which He is, That are not therefore His members.) For if His members had not been indeed His Own, how had He said unto Saul, (Acts ix. 4): "Why persecutest thou Me?"—since Saul was not persecuting Him in Himself, but in His members, that is, in His faithful ones which were upon earth. He said not, "Why persecutest thou My holy ones," nor, "My servants," no, nor yet called He them by that more honourable name,—"My brethren," but, "Why persecutest thou Me?"—that is, "the members of My Body, whose Head I am."

Third Responsory.

[2] Make not my soul to perish with sinners, O God, nor my life with bloody men. Redeem me, O Lord!

Verse. [3] Deliver me, O LORD, from the evil man, preserve me from the wicked man.

Answer. Redeem me, O Lord! make not my soul to perish with sinners, O God, nor my life with bloody men. Redeem me, O Lord!

Wednesday in Passion Week.

Fourth Day.

Before Mattins are said the Gradual Psalms.

MATTINS.

Invitatory, alteration in Ps. xciv., and Hymn as on Sunday.

First Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Holy Gospel according to John (x. 22.)

AT that time: It was at Jerusalem the Feast of the Dedication, and it was winter. And JESUS walked in the Temple in Solomon's Porch. And so on.

Homily by St Austin, Bishop [of Hippo.] (48th Tract on John.)

The Greek word "Enkainia," used by the Evangelist,[5] signifieth the Feast of the Dedication of the Temple. The derivation thereof is "kainon," which is, being interpreted, "new;" and the Dedication of anything new is thence called Enkainia. The use of this word is still preserved among ourselves;[6] if any man put on his new coat for the first time we say that he enkainiateth.[7] It was the use of the Jews to keep solemn holiday upon the Anniversary of the Dedication of the Temple, and this was the Feast-day which was being observed when the Lord spake the words which have been read.[8]

First Responsory.

O Lord, I go mourning, &c., (p. 316.)

Second Lesson.

"IT was winter. And JESUS walked in the Temple in Solomon's Porch. Then came the Jews round about Him, and said unto Him: How long dost Thou make us to doubt? If Thou be the Christ, tell us plainly." They sought not to know the truth, but to have whereof to accuse Him. It was winter, and they were cold; for they were slow to draw near to God's fire. If to believe is to draw near thereto, then he which believeth draweth near thereto: and he which denieth, goeth away therefrom. The feet of the soul, by which it moveth, are the affections thereof.

Second Responsory.

O Lord, hide not, &c., (p. 316.)

[1] Ps. l. 15-17. [2] Ps. xxv. 9. [3] Ps. cxxxix. 2.

[4] An allusion to those who are to be baptised on the approaching Holy Saturday.

[5] And preserved in the Latin, probably because it was the regular name for the Feast among the Greek-speaking Jews. It was the Feast now commonly called "Chanucah," which is kept on Casleu 25, (about the beginning of December,) with an Octave. See Monday in the Second week of October.

[6] Viz., in Africa in the fifth century.

[7] Encæniare dicitur.

[8] The discourse was perhaps delivered after the Gospel at High Mass.

Third Lesson.

THEY were frozen with want of love, and at the same time on fire with thirst to do injury. They stood afar off, and yet came near; for though they drew not near by faith, they were eager to persecute. They sought to hear the Lord say: "I am the Christ;" and perchance they knew somewhat concerning Christ, as touching His Manhood, for the Prophets had prophesied of Christ. But the Godhead of Christ even some heretics do not see witnessed either in the Prophets or in the Gospel; how much less the Jews, as long as "the veil is upon their heart." (2 Cor. iii. 15.)

Third Responsory.

O that my head, &c., (p. 317.)

Prayer.

O GOD, be mercifully pleased, through the hallowing of this Fast, to shed light upon the hearts of Thy faithful people, and since Thou hast given them the mind to pray, let Thy pitiful ears be opened graciously to hear their supplications. Through our Lord JESUS Christ Thy Son, Who liveth and reigneth with Thee, in the unity of the Holy Ghost, one God, world without end. Amen.

Through our Lord JESUS Christ Thy Son, Who liveth and reigneth with Thee, in the unity of the Holy Ghost, one God, world without end. Amen.

Thursday in Passion Week.

Fifth Day.

MATTINS.

Invitatory, alteration in Ps. xciv., and Hymn as on Sunday.

First Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Holy Gospel according to Luke (vii. 36.)

AT that time: One of the Pharisees desired JESUS that He would eat with him. And He went into the Pharisee's house, and sat down to meat. And so on.

Homily by Pope St Gregory [the Great.] (33*rd on the Gospels.*)

When I think of the repentance of Mary Magdalene I feel nigher to weep than to say ought. Is there indeed any man, however stony his heart, who is not somewhat moved to follow the ensample of her repentance by the tears of that poor sinful woman? She weighed what she did, and would not that what she did should be niggardly. She came unbidden among the guests, and obtruded her tears upon the banquet. Ye may hence gather her sorrow, that she was content to weep at a feast.

First Responsory.

Deliver me, &c., (p. 318.)

Second Lesson.

WE believe that this woman, of whom Luke saith that she was "a woman in the city, which was a sinner," and whom John nameth Mary, (xi. 2,) was the same as she of whom it is written in Mark (xvi. 9) that the Lord had cast out of her seven devils. And what signify seven devils but all manner of sin? For even as seven days do represent all time, so doth the number seven stand for all. Therefore is it said that Mary had seven devils, because she was full of all sin.

Second Responsory.

They be increased, &c., (p. 315.)

Third Lesson.

BUT see how she realized the depth of her own filthiness, and came to be washed to the Well of Mercy, before all them which were bidden to the feast. The bitterness of her inward shame made her esteem it a light thing to be despised outwardly. At what then do we marvel, my brethren? That she came, or that the Lord welcomed her? Or would it be truer for me to say that He drew her to Him and welcomed her when she came? for His mercy inwardly drew her, and, when she came, His gentleness openly welcomed her.

Third Responsory.

How long, &c., (p. 315.)

LAUDS.

Chapter from Jer. xi. 19, as on Monday, (p. 319.)

Hymn and Verse and Answer as on Sunday, (p. 317.)

Antiphon at the Song of Zacharias. The Master saith, My time is at hand; * I will keep the Passover at thy house with My disciples.

Prayer.

GRANT, we beseech Thee, O Almighty God, that the honour of man's nature, which gluttony hath degraded, may be seasonably renewed by strictness in keeping of this healthful Fast. Through our Lord JESUS Christ Thy Son, Who liveth and reigneth with Thee, in the unity of the Holy Ghost, one God, world without end. Amen.

Hymn.[1]

AT the Cross her station keeping,
Stood the mournful Mother weeping,
Close to JESUS to the last:
Through her heart His sorrow sharing,
All His bitter anguish bearing,
Lo! the piercing sword had passed!

O, how sad, and sore distressèd,
Now was she, that Mother Blessèd
Of the Sole-begotten One;
Woe-begone, with heart's prostration,
Mother meek, the bitter Passion
Saw she of her glorious Son.

Who could mark, from tears refraining,
Christ's dear Mother uncomplaining,
In so great a sorrow bowed?
Who, unmoved, behold her languish
Underneath His Cross of anguish,
'Mid the fierce unpitying crowd?

For His people's sins rejected,
She her JESUS unprotected,
Saw with thorns, with scourges rent;
Saw her Son from judgment taken,
Her beloved in death forsaken,
Till His Spirit forth He sent.

Fount of love and holy sorrow,
Mother! may my spirit borrow
Somewhat of thy woe profound;
Unto Christ, with pure emotion,
Raise my contrite heart's devotion,—
Love to read in every Wound. Amen.

Verse. Pray for us, O Virgin most sorrowful.

Answer. That we may be made worthy of the promises of Christ.

Antiphon at the Song of the Blessed Virgin. [2] Simeon said unto Mary: Yea, a sword shall pierce through thine own soul also.

Prayer as at Lauds.

The following Commemoration is made of the Week-day.

Antiphon. [3] With desire I have desired to eat this Passover with you before I suffer.

Verse. Deliver me, O LORD, from the evil man.

Answer. Preserve me from the wicked man.

Let us pray.

O LORD, we beseech Thee deal mercifully with Thy people, and fill plentifully with the rich things of Thy commandments all them who at this time do, to fulfill Thy will, turn away from that which displeaseth Thee. Through our Lord JESUS Christ, Thy Son, Who liveth and reigneth with Thee, in the unity of the Holy Ghost, one God, world without end. Amen.

At Compline the last verse of the Hymn is altered in honour of the Incarnation, and so at Prime, Terce, Sext, None, and the Second Compline.

As the Office is of a Festal form, the Verse, "Glory," &c., is said as usual in the Responsory, and so throughout.

MATTINS.

Invitatory. When we remember the sorrows of the most glorious Virgin, * O come, let us worship the Lord, Who suffered for us!

Hymn.

THOSE five Wounds on JESUS smitten,
Mother! in my heart be written,
Deep as in thine own they be:
Thou, my Saviour's Cross who bearest,
Thou, thy Son's rebuke who sharest,
Let me share them both with thee!

In the Passion of my Maker
Be my sinful soul partaker,
Weep till death, and weep with thee;
Mine with thee be that sad station,
There to watch the great Salvation
Wrought upon the atoning Tree. Amen.

[1] This, with the Hymns at Mattins and Lauds, constitutes the master-piece of Jacopone da Todi, the "Stabat Mater," called by Dr Neale the most pathetic, as the "Dies Iræ" is the most sublime, of Mediæval poems. The translation is extracted from "Hymns for the Year," except verses 8 and 9, which are omitted in that compilation, and which are taken from the "Hymnal Noted." The "People's Hymnal" contains an extract from the same translation, and attributes it to Bp. R. Mant. The readings of these Hymnals differ considerably from one another.

Psalm III.

LORD, how are they increased, &c., (p. 3.)

Third Antiphon. My heart is like melting wax in the midst of my bowels.

Psalm XII.

How long wilt Thou forget me, &c., (p. 5.)

Verse. [1] He hath made me desolate.

Answer. And faint with sorrow all the day.

First Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Book of the Prophet Isaiah (liii.)

WHO hath believed our report? And to whom is the arm of the LORD revealed? For he shall grow up before Him as a tender plant, and as a root out of a dry ground: he hath no form nor comeliness; and when we shall see him, there is no beauty that we should desire him. He is despised and rejected of men; a man of sorrows and acquainted with grief; and he hid as it were his face from us; he was despised, and we esteemed him not. Surely he hath borne our griefs and carried our sorrows: yet we did esteem him stricken, smitten of God, and afflicted. But he was wounded for our transgressions, he was bruised for our iniquities: the chastisement of our peace was upon him, and with his stripes we are healed.

First Responsory.

[2] My Beloved is white and ruddy, yea, He is altogether lovely; for the sight of Him doth altogether breathe of love, and stirreth up to love in return; His Head is bowed down, His Hands are stretched out, and His Side is opened.

Verse. Maiden and Mother, thou didst look upon Him with eyes full of tenderness, and there thou sawest not only that thy Son was smitten, but that the world was saved.

Answer. For the sight of Him doth altogether breathe of love, and stirreth up to love in return; His Head is bowed down, His Hands are stretched out, and His Side is opened.

Second Lesson.

ALL we, like sheep, have gone astray; we have turned every one to his own way: and the LORD hath laid on him the iniquity of us all. He was offered up because he willed it,[3] and he opened not his mouth. He is brought as a sheep to the slaughter, and as a lamb before his shearers is dumb, so he openeth not his mouth. He was taken from prison and from judgment: and who shall declare his generation? For he was cut off out of the land of the living; for the transgression of my people have I stricken him. And he made his grave with the wicked, and with the rich in his death; because he had done no violence, neither was any deceit in his mouth.

Second Responsory.

His hands are like rings,[4] pierced with the points of the nails; set with price of man's salvation, as it were with jacinths.

Verse. [5] He had horns coming out of His hands: there was the hiding of His power: for His Hands are—

Answer. Set with the price of man's salvation, as it were with jacinths.

Third Lesson.

YET it pleased the LORD to bruise him; He hath put him to grief; when he hath made his soul an offering for sin, he shall see his seed, he shall prolong his days, and the pleasure of the LORD shall prosper in his hand. He shall see of the travail of his soul, and shall be satisfied: by his knowledge shall My righteous Servant justify many, for he shall bear their iniquities. Therefore will I divide him a portion with the great, and he shall divide the spoil with the strong; because he hath poured out his soul unto death; and he was numbered with the transgressors; and he bare the sin of many, and made intercession for the transgressors.

Third Responsory.

JESUS loved John because his singular gift, &c., (Fifth Responsory on Dec. 27, p. 162,) with the following addition:

Verse. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, and to the Holy Ghost.

Answer. He chose him for a virgin unto Himself, and he remaineth a virgin for ever.

SECOND NOCTURN.

First Antiphon. Mine enemies speak evil of me: When shall he die, and his name perish?

Psalm XL.

Blessed is he that considereth, &c., (p. 53.)

Second Antiphon. O God, I have declared my life unto Thee, Thou hast put my tears in Thy sight.

Psalm LV.

Be merciful unto me, &c., (p. 62.)

Third Antiphon. As for the sons of men, their teeth are spears and arrows, and their tongue a sharp sword.

[1] Lam. i. 13.

[2] Cant. v. 10.

[3] Oblatus est quia ipse voluit. The present Hebrew is literally, "He was oppressed and he was afflicted." Jonathan ben Uzziel, "He was required, and he was brought back, and without opening his mouth, he submitted to the mighty of the people." St Jerome, whose version this is, takes the words in the sense of "brought before" the several tribunals.

[4] Viz., with the centres removed so as to make the outside of the hand surround a void space, as a ring does, instead of the palms. The words of the original, (Cant. v. 14,) however, are—"His hands are like gold rings, set with gems of Tarshish"—viz., according to Gesenius, "The fingers when bent are like gold rings, the dyed nails are compared to gems,"—the Easterns, as is well known, being accustomed to dye their nails red, or rather orange, with henna. What particular stone is to be understood by "gems of Tarshish" is not certain. Jacinth is the Latin, and it is of a purple colour with reddish flashes, so that it might, by a violent figure, be compared to the appearance of an inflamed wound. The LXX. and others understand the topaz, which is found of a pinkish and yellowish tinge, and thus would answer to the effect (viz., like Homer's "rosy-fingered Dawn") of finger nails died with henna.

[5] Hab. iii. 4, p. 108.

Psalm LVI.

Be merciful unto me, &c., (p. 62.)

Verse. [1] My face is swollen with weeping,
Answer. And on mine eyelids is the shadow [of death.]

Fourth Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Sermons of St Bernard, Abbat [of Clairvaux.] (On the twelve stars.)

THE Martyrdom of the Virgin is set before us, not only in the prophecy of Simeon, but also in the story itself of the Lord's Passion. The holy old man said of the Child JESUS (Luke ii. 34,) "Behold, this Child is set for the fall and the rising again of many in Israël; and for a sign which shall be spoken against; yea," (said he unto Mary,) "a sword shall pierce through thine own soul also"—Even so, O Blessed Mother! The sword did indeed pierce through thy soul! for nought could pierce the Body of thy Son, nor pierce thy soul likewise. Yea, and when this JESUS of thine had given up the ghost, and the bloody spear could torture Him no more, thy soul winced as it pierced His dead Side—His Own Soul might leave Him, but thine could not.

Fourth Responsory.

[2] The Jews crucified JESUS; and there was darkness; and about the ninth hour JESUS cried with a loud voice: My God, why hast Thou forsaken Me? And He bowed His Head, and gave up the Ghost.
Verse. [3] O what a sickening at heart was thine at that moment, O Mother!
Answer. And He bowed His Head, and gave up the Ghost.

Fifth Lesson.

THE sword of sorrow pierced through thy soul, so that we may truly call thee more than martyr, in whom the love, that made thee suffer along with thy Son, wrung thy heart more bitterly than any pang of bodily pain could do. Did not that word of His indeed pierce through thy soul, sharper than any two-edged sword, even to the dividing asunder of soul and spirit, (Heb. iv. 12,)—"Woman, behold thy son!" (John xix. 26.) O what a change to thee! Thou art given John for JESUS, the servant for his Lord, the disciple for his master, the son of Zebedee for the Son of God, a mere man for Very God. O how keenly must the hearing of those words have pierced through thy most loving soul, when even our hearts, stony, iron, as they are, are wrung at the memory thereof only!

Fifth Responsory.

The suffering of the Lord was a sorrow exceeding sorrowful to her, His Mother, crushed by a natural bereavement.
Verse. The iron of the soldier's lance pierced through the Side of the Redeemer, and through the soul of the Virgin Mother.
Answer. A sorrow exceeding sorrowful to her, His Mother, crushed by a natural bereavement.

Sixth Lesson.

MARVEL not, my brethren, that Mary should be called a Martyr in spirit. He indeed may marvel who remembereth not what Paul saith, naming the greater sins of the Gentiles, that they were "without natural affection," (Rom. i. 31.) Far other were the bowels of Mary, and far other may those of her servants be! But some man perchance will say: Did she not know that He was to die? Yea, without doubt, she knew it. Did she not hope that He was soon to rise again? Yea, she most faithfully hoped it. And did she still mourn because He was crucified? Yea, bitterly. But who art thou, my brother, or whence hast thou such wisdom, to marvel less that the Son of Mary suffered than that Mary suffered with Him? He could die in the Body, and could not she die with Him in her heart? His was the deed of that Love, greater than which hath no man (John xv. 13;) her's, of a love, like to which hath no man, save He.

Sixth Responsory.

[4] O that Thou wert my brother, that sucked the breasts of my mother, that I might cleave unto Thy Side, till Thy Blood touched my blood, and cleansed it! O that the Fountain of Water[5] Which floweth from the Well-head of Thy Righteous Heart, (through Thy Veins, Who hast done all things well,[6]) may at the last spring up for us into everlasting blessedness!
Verse. [7] Thy sons shall come from far, and Thy daughters shall be nursed at Thy Side.
Answer. O that the Fountain of Water Which floweth from the Well-head of Thy Righteous Heart, (through Thy Veins, Who hast done all things well,) may at the last spring up for us into everlasting blessedness!
Verse. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, and to the Holy Ghost.
Answer. O that the Fountain of Water Which floweth from the Well-head of Thy Righteous Heart, (through Thy Veins, Who hast done all things well,) may at the last spring up for us into everlasting blessedness!

Seventh Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Holy Gospel according to John (xix. 25.)

At that time: There stood by the Cross of JESUS His Mother, and His Mother's sister Mary the wife of Cleophas, and Mary Magdalene. And so on.

Homily by S. Austin, Bishop [of Hippo.] (119*th Tract on John.*)

This is that hour whereof JESUS, when He was about to turn water into wine, had said unto His Mother: "Woman, what have I to do with thee? Mine hour is not yet come." (John ii. 4.) He had spoken of this hour, which then was not yet come, wherein, being about to die, it should be His duty to acknowledge her of whom He had been born in a dying Body. Then, since He was about to work the works of God, He thrust from Him,[1] as though He knew her not, her who was His Mother, not in that nature as touching which He is equal to the Father, but in that as touching which He is inferior to the Father. But now, since He is suffering the pains of Man, He careth, with a Man's love, for her of whom He hath been made Man. And herein He giveth us a lesson. He doth that which He would have us to do. The Good Master, by His Own example, commandeth that among His disciples, dutiful children should succour their parents, as though even that Tree whereupon His dying Limbs were nailed, even that Tree were to be a pulpit for His teaching.

Seventh Responsory.

[2] I am distressed for Thee, my Son JESUS, very pleasant hast Thou been unto me; Thy love to me was wonderful, passing the love of women; for even as a mother loveth her only Son, so loved I thee.

Verse. [3] My life is spent with grief, and my years with sighing.

Answer. For even as a mother loveth her only Son, so loved I Thee.

Eighth Blessing.

She whose Feast-day we are keeping—
Mary, Blessed Maid of Maidens,
Be our advocate with God.

Eighth Lesson.

And of this teaching by JESUS Crucified cometh that which the Apostle Paul commandeth, where he saith, (1 Tim. v. 8:) "If any provide not for his own, and specially for those of his own house, he hath denied the faith, and is worse than an infidel." But what is so much of a man's own house, as children are of their parents'? and parents of their children's? Of this most healthy law the Master of the Saints was pleased Himself to give an example, when, being God, He treated not as His handmaid her of whom He was the Maker and the Lord, but, being also Man, gave another to be as a son in His stead, to her of whom as Man He had been made,[4] and whom He was leaving.

Eighth Responsory.

Fount of love and holy sorrow,
Mother! may my spirit borrow
Somewhat of thy woe profound;
[5] Unto Christ, with pure emotion,
Raise my contrite heart's devotion,—
Love to read in every Wound.

Verse. That as thy Son JESUS for our sakes died and rose again, so we also who have died with Him[6] may rise again with Him.

Answer. Unto Christ, with pure emotion,
Raise my contrite heart's devotion,—
Love to read in every Wound.

Verse. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, and to the Holy Ghost.

Answer. Unto Christ, with pure emotion,
Raise my contrite heart's devotion,—
Love to read in every Wound.

Ninth Blessing.

May the Gospel's glorious word
Cleansing to our souls afford.

Ninth Lesson. (Of the Week-day.[7])

The Lesson is taken from the Holy Gospel according to John (xi. 47.)

At that time: Gathered the chief Priests and the Pharisees a council against JESUS, and said: What do we? For this Man doeth many miracles. And so on.

Homily by St Austin, Bishop [of Hippo.] (49*th Tract on John.*)

The chief Priests and the Pharisees took counsel together, but "Let us believe in Him" was not one of the suggestions offered. Those lost creatures thought much more how they might hurt and undo Him, than how they might save themselves from perishing. And yet they were afraid, and took counsel together, "and said: What do we? For this Man doeth many miracles. If we let Him thus alone, all men will believe on Him; and the Romans shall come and take away both our place and our nation." They were afraid of losing temporal things, but they gave no thought to eternal life, and so they lost both.[8] (Second Lesson of the Week-day.) For, after that the Lord had suffered and been glorified, first came the Romans, and took away both their place and nation, prevailing against them and leading them away captive, and secondly there followeth them that which is written: "But the children of the kingdom shall be cast out into outer darkness." (Matth. viii. 12.) But their fear was that, if all men should believe on Christ, none would remain to defend the city of God and His Temple against the Romans, since they deemed that Christ's teaching was against the Temple itself, and against the laws of their fathers. (Third Lesson of the Week-day.) "And one of them, named Caïphas, being the High Priest that same year, said unto them: "Ye know nothing at all, nor consider that it is expedient for us that one man should die for the people, and that the whole nation perish not. And this spake he not of himself: but being High Priest that year, he prophesied—" Here we will learn that bad men are enabled by the spirit of prophecy to foretell the future; which, at the same time, the Evangelist attributeth to an ordinance of God, namely, that he was the High Priest.

Hymn.

VIRGIN, thou, of virgins fairest,
May the bitter woe thou bearest
Make on me impression deep;
Thus Christ's dying may I carry,
With Him in His Passion tarry,
And His Wounds in memory keep.

May His Wounds transfix me wholly,
May His Cross and Life-Blood holy
Ebriate my heart and mind:
Thus inflamed with pure affection,
In the Virgin's Son protection
May I at the Judgment find.

When in death my limbs are failing
Let Thy Mother's prayer prevailing
Lift me, JESUS! to Thy throne:
To my parting soul be given
Entrance through the gate of heaven;
There confess me for Thine own!
Amen.

Verse. Pray for us, O Virgin most sorrowful!

Answer. That we may be made worthy of the promises of Christ.

Antiphon at the Song of Zacharias. When JESUS saw His Mother, * and the disciple whom He loved, standing by the Cross, He saith unto His Mother: Woman, behold thy Son! Then saith He to the disciple: Behold thy Mother!

Prayer throughout the Office.

O GOD, at Whose Passion, according to the prophecy of Simeon, a sword of sorrow pierced through the gentle soul of the glorious Maiden and Mother Mary, mercifully grant to as many as do ever remember with awe how that her soul was pierced and Thou didst suffer,—even for all such be Thou entreated, for the sake and by the prayers of all Thy glorious and holy servants who stood so leally by Thy Cross, and grant unto the same, that for them Thy life-giving Death may not have been in vain. Who livest and reignest with God the Father, in the unity of the Holy Ghost, one God, world without end. Amen.

The following Commemoration is made of the Week-day.

Antiphon. Now the Jews' Feast-day was at hand, and the chief Priests sought how they might kill JESUS; but they feared the people.

Answer. And defend me from them that rise up against me.

Let us pray.

WE beseech Thee, O Lord, pour Thy grace into our hearts, that all we who of our own will do check our sins with the curb of mortification, may suffer here, and escape condemnation to eternal punishment hereafter. Through our Lord JESUS Christ Thy Son, Who liveth and reigneth with Thee, in the unity of the Holy Ghost, one God, world without end. Amen.

[1] Cant. iv. 6.

[2] Canalibus, lit., streamlets. Cant. vii. 5. The allusion of the Office is evidently to the Hair of our Lord when on the Cross, darkened with the Precious Blood, and hanging in long masses from under the cincture of His thorny crown. The Latin translator seems to have used a different vocalisation of the Hebrew text to that which we now have, and which makes the sense somewhat thus: "The hair of thine head is like purple"—(alluding perhaps to the appearance of very black hair, especially in sunlight; and the Bride of the Canticles was swarthy, i. 4)—"the King is captivated by thy tresses."

[3] Cant. v. 17.

[4] Cant. i. 12.

Saturday in Passion Week.

The Sabbath.

MATTINS.

Invitatory and alteration in Ps. xciv. and Hymn as on last Sunday, (p. 314.)

First Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Holy Gospel according to John (xii. 10.)

AT that time: The chief Priests consulted that they might put Lazarus also to death; because that by reason of him many of the Jews went away and believed on JESUS. And so on.

Homily by St Austin, Bishop [of Hippo.] (50*th Tract on John.*)

When they saw Lazarus who had been raised from the dead, and knew that the miracle which the Lord had worked was so great, spread about by so many witnesses, and so plain and manifest that it could neither be concealed nor denied, they invented an expedient; and see here what it was—"But the chief Priests consulted that they might put Lazarus also to death." What stupidity of thought, what blindness of cruelty is here! If the Lord Christ had raised up again a man who had died a natural death, could He not also raise up one that had died by violence? Would killing Lazarus paralyse the Lord? But if ye consider that there is a difference between a man dead of disease, and a man killed, behold, the Lord hath raised up both: for He first raised up Lazarus, who had died a natural death, and then Himself, after a violent one.

First Responsory.

O Lord, I go mourning, &c., (p. 316.)

Second Lesson. (51*st Tract.*)

"ON the next day much people that were come to the feast, when they heard that JESUS was coming to Jerusalem, took branches of palm-trees, and went forth to meet Him, and cried: Hosanna! Blessed is the King of Israël That cometh in the Name of the Lord!" Palm-branches are glorious boughs which tell of victory; yea, the Lord was now ready by His Own Death to trample down death, and to carry the victorious banner of His Cross in triumph over the devil, the prince of death. The cry with which He was greeted, namely "Hosanna," hath not, as we are assured by some who are acquainted with the Hebrew language, any meaning in particular, but is a shout after the manner of interjections, as they are called, just as in Latin when we lament we say "Heu," or when we are pleased, "Vah."[1] [1] Supposing the Feast not to be transferred to Saturday.

---

Second Responsory.

O Lord, hide not, &c., (p. 316.)

Third Lesson.

THESE were the shouts of applause with which the crowd greeted Him, "Hosanna! Blessed is the King of Israël That cometh in the Name of the Lord!" What inward torture must the jealousy of the Jewish leaders have caused them, when they heard that great multitude hailing Christ as their King! But, for the Lord, what was it to be King of Israël? To the Eternal[2] King what mattered it to become a King of men? And Christ is not King of Israël in the sense of monarchs who exact tribute, or arm hosts with steel to conquer enemies that are seen. But King of Israël He is, as He Who is Lord of our intellect, a Ruler Whose power shall never wane, and Who openeth a Kingdom in heaven to all such as centre in Him their faith, their hope, and their love.

Third Responsory.

O that my head, &c., (p. 317.)

LAUDS.

Chapter from Jer. xi. 19, as on Monday, (p. 319.)

Hymn and Verse and Answer as on Sunday, (p. 317.)

Antiphon at the Song of Zacharias. O Father, glorify Thou Me * with Thine Own Self, with the glory which I had with Thee before the world was.

Prayer.

O LORD, we beseech Thee that Thy people, since they are hallowed as Thine Own, may grow ever in godly love toward Thee their Father Who art in heaven, and may so be schooled by holy works, that being more and more pleasing in the sight of Thy Divine Majesty, they may ever receive more and more of Thy gifts. Through our Lord JESUS Christ, Thy Son, Who liveth and reigneth with Thee, in the unity of the Holy Ghost, one God, world without end. Amen.

At the beginning of the Martyrology, is said,

The morrow is the Lord's Day of the Palms, on the which day our Lord JESUS Christ entered Jerusalem sitting upon the foal of an ass, as had been foretold in the prophecy of Zacharias, and the multitude came forth to meet Him carrying branches of palm-trees.

The same Prayer at Terce, Sext, and None.

VESPERS.

Chapter and Prayer from the Lauds of the following morning.

Hymn and Verse and Answer as on last Saturday, (p. 313.)

Antiphon at the Song of the Blessed Virgin. O righteous Father, the world hath not known Thee; * but I have known Thee, because Thou hast sent Me.

Palm Sunday.[3]

The Lord's Day among the Palms.

MATTINS.

Invitatory, alteration in Ps. xciv., and Hymn, as on the last Sunday, (p. 314.)

FIRST NOCTURN.

First Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Book of the Prophet Jeremiah (ii. 12.)

BE astonished, O ye heavens, at this, and ye gates thereof, be ye very desolate, saith the LORD. For My people have committed two evils. They have forsaken Me, the Fountain of living waters, and hewed them out cisterns, broken cisterns, that can hold no water. Is Israël a servant? Is he an home-born slave? Why is he spoiled? The young lions roared upon him and yelled,[4] and they made his land waste: his cities are burned, without inhabitant. Also, the children of Memphis[5] and Tahapanes have polluted[6] thee up to the crown of thy head. Hast thou not procured this unto thyself, in that thou hast forsaken the LORD thy God, when He led thee by the way?

First Responsory.

[7] O Lord, in the day that I called upon Thee, Thou saidst: Fear not. Thou hast pleaded my cause, and hast redeemed me, O Lord my God.

Verse. [8] In the day of my trouble I called upon Thee, for Thou hast heard me.

Answer. Thou hast pleaded my cause, and hast redeemed me, O Lord my God.

Second Lesson.

AND now what hast thou to do in the way of Egypt, to drink the waters of the "Miry"?[9] Or what hast thou to do in the way of Assyria, to drink the waters of the river?[10] Thine own wickedness shall correct thee, and thy back-slidings shall reprove thee. Know, therefore, and see, that it is an evil thing and bitter, that thou hast forsaken the LORD thy God, and that My fear is not in thee, saith the LORD God of hosts. Of old time thou hast broken My yoke, and burst My bands; and thou saidst: I will not serve. Yea, upon every high hill, and under every green tree, thou wanderest playing the harlot. Yet I had planted thee a noble vine, wholly a right seed: how then art thou turned into the degenerate plant of a strange vine unto Me? For though thou wash thee with nitre, and take thee much soap, yet thine iniquity is marked before Me, saith the Lord God.[1]

---

[1] So in English "Hurrah," "Ha, ha, ha," and so on. Heu is generally translated "Alas," and Vah, "Aha." "Hosanna," however, means "Save, I pray," or "O save!" i.e., "I pray [God] save [you]." It is said to have been a common Hebrew cry, answering to "Long live—" or more nearly "God save—e.g., the King." The actual phrase occurs in Ps. cxvii. 25, 26, where it possibly hails the King's entrance into the temple. "Save now, O LORD! O LORD, send Thou prosperity! Blessed be he that cometh in the Name of the LORD!"—"Anna, ADONAI, hoshiah na; anna, ADONAI, hatzlichah na."

[10] Euphrates.

Second Responsory.

My brethren stand afar off from me, and they which have known me—make themselves strange unto me, and leave me.

Verse. My neighbours forsake me, and mine acquaintance—

Answer. Make themselves strange unto me, and leave me.

Third Lesson. (29.)

WHEREFORE will ye plead with Me? Ye all have forsaken Me, saith the LORD. In vain have I smitten your children; they received no correction; your own sword hath devoured your Prophets, the generation of you hath been as a lion unto them to destroy them. See ye the word of the LORD: Have I been a wilderness unto Israël? a land of darkness? Wherefore say My people: We have forsaken Thee; we will come no more unto Thee? Can a maid forget her ornaments or a bride her attire?[2] Yet My people have forgotten Me, days without number.

Third Responsory.

[3] Give heed to me, O LORD, and hearken to the voice of them that contend with me. Shall evil be recompensed for good? for they have digged a pit for my soul.

Verse. Remember that I stood before Thee to speak good for them, and to turn away Thy wrath from them.

Answer. Shall evil be recompensed for good? for they have digged a pit for my soul. Give heed to me, O LORD, and hearken to the voice of them that contend with me. Shall evil be recompensed for good? for they have digged a pit for my soul.

[1] The Name.

[2] Fascia pectoralis—breast-knot.

[3] Jer. xviii. 19.

SECOND NOCTURN.

Fourth Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Sermons of Pope St Leo [the Great.] (Second on the Passion of the Lord.)

DEARLY beloved brethren, the jubilant and triumphal day which ushereth in the commemoration of the Lord's Passion is come; even that day for which we have longed so much, and for whose yearly coming the whole world may well look. Shouts of spiritual exultation are ringing, and suffer not that we should be silent. It is indeed hard to preach often on the same Festival, and that always meetly and rightly, but a Priest is not free, when we celebrate so great and mysterious an out-pouring of God's mercy, to leave his faithful people without the service of a discourse. Nay, that his subject-matter is unspeakable should in itself make him eloquent, since where enough can never be said, there must needs ever be somewhat to say. Let man's weakness, then, fall down before the glory of God, and acknowledge herself ever too feeble to unfold all the works of His mercy. We may jade our emotions, break down in our understanding, and fail in our speech: it is good for us, that even what we truly feel in presence of the Divine Majesty is but little, [compared to the vastness of the subject.]

Fourth Responsory.

[4] The enemy hath enclosed my ways: he lay in wait for me as a lion in secret places: he hath filled me and made me drunken with bitterness: they have cut off my life in the dungeon, and cast a stone upon me. O Lord, behold all their iniquity, and plead the cause of my soul, Thou That art the Redeemer of my life!

Verse. I was a derision to all my people, and their song all the day.

Answer. O Lord, behold all their iniquity, and plead the cause of my soul, Thou That art the Redeemer of my life!

---

[4] Lam. iii. 9, 10, 15, 53, 58, 14.

Fifth Lesson.

FOR when the Prophet saith: "Seek the LORD and be strong; seek His face evermore," (Ps. civ. 4,) let no man thence conclude that he will ever have found all that he seeketh, lest he which hath ceased to come near should cease to be near. But among all the works of God which foil and weary the steadfast gaze of man's wonder, what is there that doth at once so ravish and so exceed the power of our mind's eye as do the sufferings of the Saviour? He it was Who, to loose man from the bands wherewith he had bound himself by the first death-dealing transgression, spared to bring against the rage of the devil the power of the Divine Majesty, and met him with the weakness of our lowly nature. For if our proud and cruel enemy had been able to know the counsel of God's mercy, it had been his task rather to have softened the minds of the Jews into gentleness, than to have inflamed them with unrighteous hatred; and so lost the service of all his slaves, by pursuing for his Debtor One That owed him nothing.

Fifth Responsory.

[5] Save me, O God, for the waters are come in unto my soul: hide not Thy face from me; for I am in trouble. Hear me speedily, O Lord my God.

Verse. Draw nigh unto my soul, and redeem it: deliver me because of mine enemies.

Answer. For I am in trouble. Hear me speedily, O Lord my God.

Sixth Lesson.

BUT his own hate dug a pit-fall for him: he brought upon the Son of God that death which is become life to all the sons of men. He shed that innocent Blood, Which hath reconciled the world unto God, and become at once the price of our redemption and the cup of our salvation. The Lord hath received that which according to the purpose of His Own good pleasure He hath chosen. He hath let fall on Him the hands of bloody men: but while they were bent only on their own sin, they were servants ministering to the Redeemer's work. And such was His tenderness even for His murderers that His prayer to His Father from the Cross, as touching them, was, not that He might be avenged upon them, but that they might be forgiven.

[5] Ps. lxviii. 2, 18, 19.

Sixth Responsory.

[1] O Lord, be not Thou far from me: spare me in the day of evil: let them be confounded that persecute me; but let not me be confounded.

Verse. [2] Let all mine enemies which seek after my soul be confounded.

Answer. But let not me be confounded. O Lord, be not Thou far from me: spare me in the evil day: let them be confounded that persecute me, but let not me be confounded.

THIRD NOCTURN.

Seventh Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Holy Gospel according to Matthew (xxi. 1.)

AT that time: When JESUS drew nigh unto Jerusalem, and was come to Bethphagé, unto the Mount of Olives, then He sent two disciples.[3] And so on.

Homily by St Ambrose, Bishop [of Milan.] (9th Book on Luke.)

Beautiful is the type, when the Lord, about to leave the Jews, and to take up His abode in the hearts of the Gentiles, goeth up into the Temple; a figure of His going to the true Temple wherein He is worshipped, not in the deadness of the letter, but in spirit and in truth, even that Temple of God whereof the foundations are laid, not in buildings of stone, but in faith. He leaveth behind Him such as hate Him, and getteth Him to such as will love Him. And therefore cometh He unto the Mount of Olives that He may plant upon the heights of grace those young olive-branches, whose Mother is the Jerusalem which is above. Upon this mountain standeth He, the Heavenly Husbandman, that all they which be planted in the House of the Lord, may be able each one to say: "But I am like a fruitful olive-tree in the House of God." (Ps. li. 10.)

Seventh Responsory.

[4] The LORD is with me as a Mighty Terrible One; therefore have they persecuted me, and have not been able to understand. O LORD, Thou triest the reins and the heart—unto Thee have I opened my cause.

Verse. [5] O LORD, Thou hast seen my wrong that they do me; judge Thou my cause.

Answer. Unto Thee have I opened my cause.

Eighth Lesson.

AND perchance that mountain doth signify Christ Himself. For what other is there that beareth such fruit of olives as He doth, not rich with store of loaded branches, but spiritually fruitful with the fulness of the Gentiles? He also it is on Whom we go up, and unto Whom we go up; He is the Door; He is the Way; He is He Which is opened and Which openeth; He is He upon Whom knocketh whosoever entereth in, and to Whom they that have entered in, do worship.

A figure also was it that the disciples went into a village, and that there they found an ass tied and a colt with her: neither could they be loosed, save at the command of the Lord. It was the hand of His Apostles which loosed them. He whose work and life are like theirs will have such grace as was theirs. Be thou also such as they, if thou wouldest loose them that are bound.

Eighth Responsory.

[6] The ungodly said, reasoning with themselves, but not aright; Let us lie in wait for the righteous, because he is clean contrary to our doings: he professeth to have the knowledge of God, he calleth himself the Son of God, and boasteth that he hath God to his Father. Let us see if his words be true; and, if he be indeed the Son of God, let Him deliver him from our hand; let us condemn him with a shameful death.

Verse. We are esteemed of him as counterfeits, and he abstaineth from our ways as from filthiness, and commendeth the end of the just.

Answer. Let us see if his words be true; and, if he be indeed the Son of God, let Him deliver him from our hand; let us condemn him with a shameful death.

Ninth Lesson.

NOW, let us consider who they were, who, being convicted of transgression, were banished from their home in the Garden of Eden into a village, and in this thou wilt see how Life called back again them whom death had cast out. For this reason, we read in Matthew that there were tied both an ass and her colt; thus, as man was banished from Eden in a member of either sex, so is it in animals of both sexes that his re-call is figured. The she-ass is a type of our sinful Mother Eve, and the colt of the multitude of the Gentiles; and it was upon the colt that Christ took His seat. And thus it is well written of the colt, (Luke xix. 30,) that thereon never yet had man sat, for no man before Christ ever called the Gentiles into the Church — which statement thou hast in Mark also (xi. 2): "Whereon never man sat."

Ninth Responsory.

Liars are come round about, they have fallen upon me with scourges without a cause. But do Thou, O Lord my Redeemer, avenge me!

Verse. For trouble is near, and there is none to help.

Answer. But do Thou, O Lord my Redeemer, avenge me! Liars are come round about me, they have fallen upon me with scourges without a cause. But do Thou, O Lord my Redeemer, avenge me!

ALMIGHTY and everlasting God, Who, of Thy tender love towards mankind, hast sent Thy Son our Saviour JESUS Christ to take upon Him our flesh and to suffer death upon the Cross, that all mankind should follow the example of His great humility; mercifully grant, that we may both follow the example of His patience, and also be made partakers of His resurrection. Monday in Holy Week.[7]

Second Day in the Great Week.

MATTINS.

Invitatory, alteration in Ps. xciv., and Hymn as on Passion Sunday, (p. 314.)

First Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Holy Gospel according to John (xii. 1.)

THEN JESUS, six days before the Passover, came to Bethany, where Lazarus was, which had been dead, whom JESUS raised from the dead. And so on.

---

[1] This is the fifth Antiphon sung during the Procession. It has a sort of cadence like two Hexameter lines, ending with 'Hosanna.'

[5] Lam. iii. 55, 56.

[6] Matth. xxvi. 31, 32; Zech. xiii. 7.

[7] Called also Fig Monday, in certain parts of England, because on this day our Lord desired to eat figs.

Homily by St Austin, Bishop [of Hippo.] (50th Tract on John.)

"There they made Him a supper"—and "Lazarus was one of them that sat at the table"—lest men should deem that it was but by an ocular delusion that they had seen him arise from the dead. He lived therefore, spake, and ate; to the manifestation of the truth, and the confusion of the unbelieving Jews. JESUS, then, sat down to meat with Lazarus and others, and Martha, being one of Lazarus' sisters, served. But Mary, Lazarus' other sister, "took a pound of ointment of spikenard, very costly, and anointed the Feet of JESUS, and wiped His Feet with her hair; and the house was filled with the odour of the ointment." We have now heard that which was done; let us search out the mystic meaning thereof.

First Responsory.

[1] The ungodly said: Let us oppress the righteous man without cause, and swallow him up alive, as the grave: let us make his memorial to perish from the earth, and cast lots among us for his spoils: and those murderers laid by store for themselves, but of evil. Fools and haters loathe wisdom, and are guilty in their thoughts.

Verse. Such things they did imagine, and were deceived, for their own wickedness blinded them.

Answer. Fools and haters loathe wisdom, and are guilty in their thoughts.

Second Lesson.

WHOSOEVER thou art that wilt be a faithful soul, seek with Mary to anoint the Feet of the Lord with costly ointment. This ointment was a figure of justice, and therefore is there said to have been a pound thereof, [a pound being a weight used in scales.] The word "pistikes" used by the Evangelist as the name of this ointment, we must believe to be that of some place, from which this costly perfume was imported.[2] Neither is this name meaningless for us, but agreeth well with our mystic interpretation, since "Pistis" is the Greek word which signifieth "Faith," and whosoever will do justice must know that: "The just shall live by faith." (Rom. i. 17; Hab. ii. 4.) Anoint therefore the Feet of JESUS by thy good life, following in the marks which those Feet of the Lord have traced. Wipe His Feet likewise with thy hair; that is, if thou have aught which is not needful to thee, give it to the poor; and then thou hast wiped the Feet of JESUS with thy hair, that is, with that which thou neediest not, and which is therefore to thee as is hair, being a needless out-growth to the body. Here thou hast what to do with that which thou neediest not. To thee it is needless, but the Lord's Feet have need of it; yea, the Feet which the Lord hath on earth are sorely needy.

Second Responsory.

[3] I became a reproach unto mine enemies: they looked upon me and shaked their heads. Help me, O LORD my God!

Verse. They have spoken against me with a lying tongue: they compassed me about also with words of hatred.

Answer. Help me, O LORD my God!

Third Lesson.

FOR of whom save of His members, will He say at the latter day: "Inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of the least of these My brethren, ye have done it unto Me"—? (Matth. xxv. 40.) That is—"ye have spent nothing save that which ye needed not, but ye have ministered unto My Feet."

"And the house was filled with the odour of the ointment." That is, the fragrance of your good example filleth the world; for this odour is a figure of reputation. They which are called Christians, and yet live bad lives, cast a slur on Christ: and it is even such as they unto whom it is said: "The Name of God is blasphemed among the Gentiles through you." (Rom. ii. 24; Ezek. xxxvi. 20, 23.) But if, through such, the Name of God be blasphemed, through the godly is praise ascribed to the Same His Holy Name, as the Apostle doth likewise say: "In every place we are unto God a sweet savour of Christ, [in them that are saved, and in them that perish."] (2 Cor. ii. 14, 15.)

Third Responsory.

[4] False witnesses are risen up against me, and such as breathe out cruelty: they have gone about to kill me, neither spared they to spit in my face; their spears have wounded me, and all my bones are out of joint. But as for me, I counted myself as one that is dead upon the earth.

Verse. They poured forth their fury upon me, they gnashed upon me with their teeth.

Answer. But as for me, I counted myself as one that is dead upon the earth. False witnesses are risen up against me, and such as breathe out cruelty; they have gone about to kill me, neither spared they to spit in my face; their spears have wounded me, and all my bones are out of joint. But as for me, I counted myself as one that is dead upon the earth.

LAUDS.

First Antiphon. [5] I hid not my face * from shame and spitting.

Second Antiphon. [6] Awake, O sword, * against them that scatter my flock.

Third Antiphon. [7] They took the thirty pieces of silver, * my price, that I was prized at of them.

Fourth Antiphon. [8] Waters flowed over mine head; * I said: I am cut off; I will call upon Thy Name, O LORD God.

Fifth Antiphon. O Lord, behold[9] the lips * of those that rose up against me, and their device.

Hymn and Verse and Answer as on Passion Sunday, (p. 317.)

Antiphon at the Song of Zacharias. And now, O Father, glorify Thou Me * with Thine Own Self, with the glory which I had with Thee before the world was.

Tuesday in Holy Week.

Third Day in the Great Week.

MATTINS.

Invitatory, alteration in Ps. xciv., and Hymn, as on Passion Sunday, (p. 314.)

First Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Book of the Prophet Jeremiah (xi. 15.)

WHY hath My beloved wrought many iniquities in Mine house? Will holy meats [1] make atonement for thy perverseness, whereof thou boastest? The LORD called thy name, A green olive tree, fair, fruitful, goodly: as soon as He had spoken, a great fire was kindled in her, and the boughs thereof are burnt up. And the LORD of hosts, That planted thee, hath pronounced evil against thee, for the evil of the house of Israël, and of the house of Judah, which they have done against themselves, to provoke Me to anger, in making offerings unto Baalim. But Thou, O LORD, hast given me knowledge of it, and I know it: then Thou showedst me their doings. But I was like a gentle lamb, that is brought to the slaughter: and I knew not that they had devised devices against me, saying: Come, let us put [poison of a deadly] tree into his bread, and let us cut him off from the land of the living, that his name may be no more remembered. But, O LORD of Sabaoth, That judgest righteously, and triest the reins and the heart, let me see Thy vengeance on them; for unto Thee have I revealed my cause.

First Responsory.

[2] I have suffered defaming and fear from them that were my familiars: they watched for my halting,[3] saying: Let us entice him, and prevail against him. But Thou, O LORD, art with me, as a Mighty Terrible One. Let them stumble into everlasting confusion, that I may see Thy vengeance upon them, for unto Thee have I opened my cause.

Verse. [4] O LORD, plead Thou the cause of my soul, Thou That art the Redeemer of my life.

Answer. Let them stumble into everlasting confusion, that I may see Thy vengeance upon them, for unto Thee have I opened my cause.

Second Lesson. (xii. 1.)

RIGHTEOUS art Thou, O LORD, and I plead with Thee; yet let me talk with Thee of Thy judgments: wherefore doth the way of the wicked prosper? Wherefore are all they happy that lie and work iniquity? Thou hast planted them; yea, they have taken root: they grow; yea, they bring forth fruit. Thou art near in their mouth, and far from their reins. But Thou, O LORD, knowest me; Thou hast seen me, and tried mine heart toward Thee. Pull them out like sheep for the shambles, and prepare[5] them for the day of slaughter. How long shall the land mourn, and the herbs of every field wither, for the wickedness of them that dwell therein? The beasts are consumed and the birds, because they said: He shall not see our last end.

Second Responsory.

[6] For Thy sake, O God of Israël, I have borne reproach; shame hath covered my face; I am become a stranger unto my brethren, and an alien unto my mother's children. For the zeal of Thine house hath eaten me up.

Verse. Draw nigh unto my soul, and redeem it; deliver me, because of mine enemies.

Answer. For the zeal of Thine house hath eaten me up.

Third Lesson. (7.)

I HAVE forsaken Mine house; I have left Mine heritage, I have given the dearly beloved of My soul[7] into the hand of her enemies. Mine heritage is become unto Me as a lion in the forest; it crieth out against Me, therefore have I hated it. Is not Mine heritage unto Me as an hideous bird [of prey]? Is not the unseemly bird everywhere throughout it?[8] Come ye, assemble yourselves together, all ye beasts of the field, hasten to devour. Many pastors have destroyed My vineyard, they have trodden My portion under foot, they have made My pleasant portion a desolate wilderness. They have made it desolate, and [being desolate] it mourneth unto Me. With desolation is the whole land made desolate, because there is no man that considereth in the heart.

LXX., "Is not Mine heritage an hyæna's den unto Me? or a den [of them] all round it?" Jonathan ben Uzziel: "Like a flock of birds scattered about, thus is Mine heritage scattered about before Me. And like a bird that has been shot at, thus collect themselves upon it those who murder with the sword; all around, the kings of the nations; and their camps come upon it for plunder."

Third Responsory.

[1] The congregation of the people hath compassed me about, but I rewarded no evil unto him that rewarded evil unto me. O Lord, let the wickedness of the wicked come to an end, but establish the just.

Verse. Judge me, O LORD, according to my righteousness, and according to mine integrity that is in me.

Answer. O Lord, let the wickedness of the wicked come to an end, but establish the just. The congregation of the people hath compassed me about, but I rewarded no evil unto him that rewarded evil unto me. O Lord, let the wickedness of the wicked come to an end, but establish the just.

Second Antiphon. [3] Plead my cause, * O Lord: deliver me from the unjust and deceitful man.

Wednesday in Holy Week.

Fourth Day in the Great Week.

MATTINS.

Invitatory, alteration in Ps. xciv., and Hymn as on Passion Sunday, (p. 314.)

First Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Book of the Prophet Jeremiah (xvii. 13.)

O LORD, the Hope of Israël, all that forsake Thee, shall be ashamed: they that depart from Thee, shall be written in the earth; because they have forsaken the LORD, the fountain of living waters. Heal me, O LORD, and I shall be healed; save me, and I shall be saved; for Thou art my praise. Behold, they say unto me: 'Where is the word of the LORD? let it come now.' As for me, I was not turned aside from following after Thee, Which art my Shepherd:[7] neither have I desired the day of man; Thou knowest. That which came out of my lips was right before Thee. Be not a terror unto me: Thou art my hope in the day of evil. Let them be confounded that persecute me, but let not me be confounded: let them be dismayed, but let not me be dismayed: bring upon them the day of evil, and destroy them with double destruction.

First Responsory.

[8] They have spoken against me with a lying tongue; they compassed me about also with words of hatred: in return for my love they were my adversaries: but I gave myself unto prayer; and Thou hast heard me, O Lord my God!

Verse. And they have rewarded me evil for good, and hatred for my love.

Answer. But I gave myself unto prayer; and Thou hast heard me, O Lord my God!

Second Lesson. (xviii. 13.)

WHO hath heard such things as the virgin of Israël hath done most horribly? Will the snow of Lebanon fail from the rock of the field?[9] or can a man root up the source of a fountain of cold flowing waters? Because My people hath forgotten Me, they have offered sacrifices to lies, and stumbled in their ways, their ancient ways, to turn aside therefrom into paths untried; to make their land desolate, and a perpetual hissing.

Every one that passeth thereby shall be astonished, and wag his head. Then[1] said they: Come, and let us devise devices against Jeremiah; for the law shall not perish from the Priest, nor counsel from the wise, nor the word from the Prophet. Come, and let us smite him with the tongue, and let us not give heed to any of his words.

Second Responsory.

The ungodly said, &c., (p. 330.)

Third Lesson.

GIVE heed to me, O LORD, and hearken to the voice of them that contend with me. Shall evil be recompensed for good? For they have digged a pit for my soul. Remember that I stood before Thee to speak good for them, and to turn away Thy wrath from them. Therefore deliver up their children to the famine, and give them over to the edge of the sword: let their wives be bereaved of their children and be widows, and let their men be put to death; let their young men be slain by the sword in battle. Let a cry be heard from their houses; for Thou wilt bring the robbers suddenly upon them; because they have digged a pit to take me, and hid snares for my feet. Yet, LORD, Thou knowest all their counsel against me to slay me; forgive not their iniquity, neither blot out their sin from Thy sight; let them be overthrown before Thee: deal with them in the time of Thine anger.

Third Responsory.

Third Antiphon. [4] But in vain have they sought my soul; * they shall go into the lower parts of the earth.

At the beginning of the Martyrology, is said,

On the morrow is commemorated the Lord's Supper, whereat Christ JESUS, upon the day before He was crucified for our salvation, committed to His disciples the celebration of the mysteries of His Body and Blood.

After the Martyrology on this day, the Martyrology is not read again till Easter Sunday.

The same Prayer at Terce, Sext, and None.

The Antiphons at Prime, Terce, Sext, and None are the First, Second, Third, and Fifth at Lauds, respectively.

After None is celebrated the Liturgy, including the Passion according to Luke (xxii. 1–xxiii. 55.)

VESPERS.

Chapter from Jer. xi. 20, as on Monday in Passion Week, (p. 319.)

Hymn and Verse and Answer as on Saturday before Passion Sunday, (p. 313.)

Antiphon at the Song of the Blessed Virgin. The damsel said unto Peter: * Surely thou art one of them, for thy speech bewrayeth thee.

Prayer.

LORD, we beseech Thee, behold this Thy family, for which our Lord JESUS Christ was contented to be betrayed, and given up into the hands of wicked men, and to suffer death upon the Cross: Who liveth and reigneth with Thee, in the unity of the Holy Ghost, one God, world without end. Amen.

Maundy Thursday.

Fifth Day of the Great Week, whereon was instituted the Lord's Supper.

MATTINS.

On this and the two following nights Mattins and Lauds are always said together, and these Three Services are commonly called the Three Nights of Darkness.[6] In Choir six lights are lighted upon the Altar, and fifteen (seven on each side and one at the top) in a triangle-shaped candlestick before the Epistle corner. As each Antiphon is repeated the second time, one of the fifteen candles is put out.

The Antiphons are all doubled, and the Hymn, "Glory be to the Father," &c., is everywhere omitted.

After the Lord's Prayer, the Angelic Salutation, and the Apostles' Creed have been said inaudibly, all else is omitted, and the First Antiphon begins at once.

FIRST NOCTURN.

First Antiphon. The zeal of Thine house hath eaten me up, and the reproaches of them that reproached Thee are fallen upon me.

Psalm LXVIII.

Save me, O God, &c., (p. 70.)

Second Antiphon. Let them be turned backward and put to confusion, that desire my hurt.

[4] Ps. lxii. 10.

[5] Ps. cxlix. 8.

Psalm LXIX.

Make haste, O God, &c., (p. 71.)

Third Antiphon. Deliver me, O my God, out of the hand of the wicked.

Psalm LXX.

In Thee, O LORD, &c., (p. 71.)

Verse. Let them be turned backward and put to confusion.
Answer. That desire my hurt.

The whole of the Lord's Prayer is then said inaudibly, and the Reader at once begins the First Lesson. Thus is it done on each of the three nights; no Absolution or Blessing is asked or given in any Nocturn or before any Lesson.

First Lesson.

Here beginneth the Lamentation[1] of Jeremiah the Prophet (i. 1.)

ALEPH.[2] How doth the city sit solitary that was full of people! How is she become as a widow, she that was great among the nations! She that was Princess among the provinces, how is she become tributary!

BETH. She weepeth sore in the night, and her tears are upon her cheeks: among all her lovers, she hath none to comfort her; all her friends have dwelt treacherously with her, and are become her enemies.

GHIMEL. Judah is gone into captivity, because of affliction, and because of great servitude: she dwelleth among the heathen, and findeth no rest: all her persecutors overtook her between the straits.

DALETH. The ways of Zion do mourn, because none come to the solemn Feasts; all her gates are desolate, her Priests sigh, her virgins are afflicted, and she weighed down with bitterness.

HE. Her adversaries are the chief, her enemies prosper: for the LORD hath afflicted her for the multitude of her transgressions; her children are gone into captivity before the enemy.

Jerusalem! Jerusalem! Return unto the Lord thy God!

The Reader does not say, "But Thou," &c., nor is "Thanks be to God" answered after this or any other Lesson on these three nights, but the Responsory begins at once.

First Responsory.

[3] At the Mount of Olives He prayed unto the Father: O My Father, if it be possible, let this cup pass from Me! The spirit indeed is willing, but the flesh is weak.

Verse. Watch and pray, that ye enter not into temptation.
Answer. The spirit indeed is willing, but the flesh is weak.

Second Lesson.

VAV. And from the daughter of Zion all her beauty is departed: her princes are become like harts that find no pasture, and they are gone without strength before the pursuer.[4]

ZAIN. Jerusalem remembereth, in the days of her affliction and of her miseries, all her pleasant things that she had in the days of old, when her people fell into the hand of the enemy, and none did help her: the adversaries saw her, and did mock at her Sabbaths.

HETH.[5] Jerusalem hath grievously sinned; therefore she is removed. All that honoured her, despise her, because they have seen her nakedness. Yea, she sigheth and turneth backward.

TETH. Her filthiness is in her skirts; she remembereth not her last end: therefore she came down wonderfully, she had no comforter. O LORD, behold my affliction, for the enemy hath magnified himself.

Jerusalem! Jerusalem! Return unto the Lord thy God.

Second Responsory.

[6] My Soul is exceeding sorrowful, even unto death: tarry ye here and watch with Me; yet a little while, and ye shall see the multitude close Me in. Ye shall flee; and I will go to be offered a sacrifice for you.

Verse. Behold, the hour is at hand, and the Son of man is betrayed into the hands of sinners.
Answer. Ye shall flee; and I will go to be offered a sacrifice for you.

Third Lesson.

IOD.[7] The enemy hath spread out his hand upon all her pleasant things; for she hath seen the heathen enter into her Sanctuary, concerning whom Thou didst command that they should not enter into Thy congregation.

CAPH. All her people sigh, they seek bread: they have given their pleasant things for meat to relieve the soul. See, O LORD, and consider, for I am become vile.

LAMED. Is it nothing to you, all ye that pass by? Behold, and see if there be any sorrow like unto my sorrow, which is done unto me; wherewith the LORD hath afflicted me in the day of His fierce anger.

MEM. From above hath He sent fire into my bones, and it prevaileth against them: He hath spread a net for my feet. He hath turned me back: He hath made me desolate and faint all the day.

NUN. The yoke of my transgressions is bound by His hand; they are wreathed and come up upon my neck. He hath made my strength to fall: the LORD hath delivered me into their hands, from whom I am not able to rise up.

Jerusalem! Jerusalem! Return unto the Lord thy God!

Third Responsory.

[8] Behold, when we shall see Him, He hath no form nor comeliness: there is no beauty in Him: this is He Which hath borne our griefs and carried our sorrows; but He was wounded for our transgressions, and with His stripes we are healed.

Verse. Surely He hath borne our griefs and carried our sorrows.
Answer. And with his stripes we are healed. Behold, when we shall see Him, He hath no form nor comeliness: there is no beauty in Him; this is He Which hath borne our sins and carried our sorrows: but He was wounded for our transgressions, and with His stripes we are healed.

SECOND NOCTURN.

First Antiphon. The Lord shall deliver the needy from the strong: the poor also, that hath no helper.

Psalm LXXI.

Give the king, &c., (p. 72.)

Second Antiphon. The ungodly think and speak wickedness: they speak loftily concerning oppression.

Psalm LXXII.

Truly God is good, &c., (p. 72.)

Third Antiphon. Arise, O Lord, and judge my cause.

Psalm LXXIII.

O God, why hast Thou cast us off? &c., (p. 72.)

Verse. Deliver me, O my God, out of the hand of the wicked.
Answer. Out of the hand of the unrighteous and cruel man.

Fourth Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Treatise of St Austin, Bishop [of Hippo,] upon the Psalms (liv. 1.)

"GIVE ear to my prayer, O God, and despise not my supplication: attend unto me and hear me." These are the words of a man travailing, anxious, and troubled. He prayeth in the midst of much suffering, longing to be rid of his affliction. Our part is to see what that his affliction was, and when he hath told us, to acknowledge that we also suffer therefrom; that so, partaking in his trouble, we may take part also in his prayer. He saith: "I mourn in my exercise, and am troubled." Wherein mourned he? Wherein was he troubled? He saith: "In my exercise." In the next words he giveth us to know that his affliction was the oppression of the wicked,—("Because of the voice of the enemy, and because of the oppression of the wicked,")—and this suffering which came upon him at the hands of wicked men, he hath called his exercise. Think not that wicked men are in this world for nothing, or that God doth no good with them. Every wicked man liveth, either to repent, or to exercise the righteous.

Fourth Responsory.

[1] Mine own friend hath betrayed Me by the sign of a kiss: "Whomsoever I shall kiss, That Same is He—hold Him fast." This was the traitorous sign which he gave, even he who murdered with a kiss. Woe unto that man! He cast down the price of blood, and went, and hanged himself.
Verse. It had been good for that man if he had not been born.
Answer. Woe unto that man! He cast down the price of blood, and went, and hanged himself.

Fifth Lesson.

WOULD to God that they which now exercise us were converted and exercised with us! Yet, while they are as they are, and exercise us, we will not hate them: for we know not of any one of them whether he will endure to the end in his sin. Yea, oftentimes, when thou deemest that thou hatest thine enemy, he whom thou hatest is thy brother, and thou knowest it not. The Holy Scriptures show us that the devil and his angels are already damned unto everlasting fire, and therefore of their repentance it behoveth us to despair; but of theirs only. These are they against whom we wrestle within; to the which wrestling the Apostle stirreth us up where he saith: "We wrestle not against flesh and blood,"—(that is, not against men whom we see,)—"but against principalities, against powers, against the rulers of the darkness of this world." (Eph. vi. 12.) He saith not "the rulers of this world," lest perchance thou shouldest deem that devils are the lords of heaven and earth; what he doth say is, "rulers of the darkness of this world," of that world which they love who love the world, of that world wherein the ungodly and unrighteous do prosper, of that world, in fine, of which the Gospel saith: "And the world knew Him not." (John i. 10.)

Fifth Responsory.

[2] The vile trader Judas came to the Lord to kiss Him, and He, as a guileless Lamb, refused not a kiss to Judas, who, for a certain number of pence, betrayed Christ to the Jews.
Verse. It had been good for that man if he had not been born.
Answer. Who, for a certain number of pence, betrayed Christ to the Jews.

Sixth Lesson.

"I HAVE seen iniquity and strife in the city." (v. 10.) Behold, the glory of the Cross. That Cross which was the object of the insults of God's enemies, is established now above the brows of kings. The end hath shown the measure of its power: it hath conquered the world, not by the sword, but by its wood. The enemies of God thought the Cross a meet object of insult and ridicule, yea, they stood before it, "wagging their heads and saying: If He be the Son of God, let Him come down from the Cross!" (Matth. xxvii. 39, 40.) And He stretched forth His Hands unto a disobedient and gainsaying people. (Rom. x. 21.) If he is just which liveth by faith, (Rom. i. 17; Hab. ii. 4,) he is unjust that hath not faith. Therefore where is written "iniquity" we may understand "unbelief." The Lord therefore saith that He "saw iniquity and strife in the city," and that He "stretched forth His Hands unto that disobedient and gainsaying people,"—and, disobedient and gainsaying as they were, He was hungry for their salvation, and said: "Father, forgive them, for they know not what they do." (Luke xxiii. 34.)

Sixth Responsory.

[3] One of My disciples shall betray Me this night. Woe unto that man by whom I am betrayed! It had been good for that man if he had not been born.
Verse. He that dippeth his hand

Answer. It had been good for that man if he had not been born. One of My disciples shall betray Me this night. Woe unto that man by whom I am betrayed. It had been good for that man if he had not been born.

THIRD NOCTURN.

First Antiphon. I said unto the wicked : Speak not wickedness against God.

Psalm LXXIV.

Unto Thee, O God, &c., (p. 73.)

Second Antiphon. The earth trembled and was still, when God arose to judgment.

Psalm LXXV.

In Judah is God known, &c., (p. 73.)

Third Antiphon. In the day of my trouble I sought God with my hands.[1]

Psalm LXXVI.

I cried unto the Lord, &c., (p. 74.)

Verse. Arise, O Lord.
Answer. Judge Thou my cause.

Seventh Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the First Epistle of the Blessed Apostle Paul to the Corinthians (ii. 17.)

NOW, in this that I command, I praise you not, that ye come together, not for the better, but for the worse. For, first of all, when ye come together in the Church, I hear that there be divisions among you, and I partly believe it. For there must be also heresies, that they which are approved may be made manifest among you. When ye come together, therefore, into one place, this is not to eat the Lord's Supper. For every one taketh before his own supper to eat, and one is hungry, and another is drunken. What! have ye not houses to eat and to drink in? or despise ye the Church of God, and shame them that have not? What shall I say to you? Do I praise you? In this I praise you not.

Seventh Responsory.

[2] I was like a gentle lamb that is brought to the slaughter, and I knew not that mine enemies had devised devices against me, saying : Come, let us put [poison of a deadly] tree into his bread, and let us cut him off from the land of the living.

Verse. [3] All they that hate me devised my hurt against me: they plotted together to do me evil, saying :

Answer. Come, let us put [poison of a deadly] tree into his bread, and let us cut him off from the land of the living.

Eighth Lesson.

FOR I have received of the Lord that which also I delivered unto you, That the Lord JESUS, the same night in which He was betrayed, took bread; and, when He had given thanks, He brake it, and said : Take, eat : This is My Body, Which shall be given for you; this do in remembrance of Me. After the same manner also He took the cup, when He had supped, saying : This Cup is the New Testament in My Blood. This do ye, as oft as ye drink it, in remembrance of Me. For as often as ye eat this Bread and drink this Cup, ye do show the Lord's death till He come.

Eighth Responsory.

[4] Could ye not watch with Me one hour, ye that called one on the other to die for Me? Or see ye not Judas, how that he sleepeth not, but maketh haste to betray Me to the Jews?

Verse. [5] Why sleep ye? Rise, and pray, lest ye enter into temptation.

Answer. Or see ye not Judas, how that he sleepeth not, but maketh haste to betray Me to the Jews?

Ninth Lesson.

WHEREFORE, whosoever shall eat this Bread, or drink the Cup of the Lord, unworthily, shall be guilty of the Body and Blood of the Lord. But let a man examine himself, and so let him eat of that Bread, and drink of that Cup. For he that eateth and drinketh unworthily eateth and drinketh damnation to himself, not discerning the Lord's Body. For this cause many are weak and sickly among you, and many sleep. For if we would judge ourselves, we should not be judged. But when we are judged we are chastened of the Lord, that we should not be condemned with the world. Wherefore, my brethren, when ye come together to eat, tarry one for another. If any man hunger, let him eat at home, that ye come not together unto condemnation. And the rest will I set in order when I come.

Ninth Responsory.

[6] The elders of the people consulted that they might take JESUS by subtilty, and kill Him : they came out, as against a thief, with swords and staves.

Verse. [7] The chief Priests and the Pharisees gathered a council.

Answer. That they might take JESUS by subtilty, and kill Him : they came out, as against a thief, with swords and staves. The elders of the people consulted that they might take JESUS by subtilty, and kill Him : they came out, as against a thief, with swords and staves.

LAUDS.

This part of the Service begins at once with the First Antiphon.

First Antiphon. O Lord, Thou shalt be justified when Thou speakest, and be clear when Thou art judged.

Second Antiphon. [8] The Lord was brought as a lamb to the slaughter, and He opened not His mouth.

Third Antiphon. Mine heart is broken within me; all my bones tremble.

Fourth Antiphon. O Lord, Thou hast spoken unto us in Thy strength, and in Thy Holy Banquet.

Fifth Antiphon. [8] He was offered up because He willed it, and He bore our sins.

---

[1] In its original place the meaning would be, "hands lifted up in prayer;" here it is probably meant to refer to our Lord's, lifted up and stretched out upon the Cross.

[2] Jer. xi. 19.
[3] Ps. xl. 8, 9.
[4] Matth. xxvi. 40.
[5] Luke xxii. 46.

[6] Matth. xxvi. 3, 4, 55.
[7] John xi. 47.
[8] Isa. liii. 7.

No Chapter or Hymn are said either on this or the two following nights.

Verse. [1] Mine Own familiar friend, in whom I trusted,—

Answer. Which did eat of My bread, hath lifted up his heel against Me.

By this time all the candles on the triangular candlestick have been put out, except the one at the top, and, while the Song of Zacharias is being sung, every light throughout the Church is put out, as are also the six on the Altar, one by one, so that the last is put out at the words, "To give light to them that sit in darkness, &c." As the Antiphon, "Now he that betrayed Him, &c.," is repeated the second time, the candle at the top of the triangular candlestick is taken and hidden under the Altar, at the Epistle corner.

Antiphon at the Song of Zacharias. Now he that betrayed Him gave them a sign, saying: Whomsoever I shall kiss, That Same is He: hold Him fast.

Then is said the following sentence, and as it begins, all kneel down:

Christ, for our sakes, became obedient unto death.

Then is said:

1. The Lord's Prayer, inaudibly.
2. Ps. L., "Have mercy upon me, &c.," (p. 49,) in a tone which can just be heard.
3. The Prayer, "Lord, we beseech Thee, behold this Thy family, &c.," (p. 335.) Neither "Let us pray" nor anything else is said before it. It is said in the same tone as Ps. L., except the last clause, "Who liveth and reigneth, &c.," which is said inaudibly. When it is over some noise is made,[2] the hidden light is put back on the triangular candlestick, and all present immediately rise and depart in silence.

PRIME.

After the Lord's Prayer, the Angelic Salutation, and the Apostles' Creed have been said inaudibly, all else is omitted, and the Psalms begin at once.

No Antiphon is said, and the Hymn, "Glory be to the Father, &c.," is everywhere omitted.

The Psalms themselves are as on Feasts, viz. Ps. LIII. "Save me, O God, &c.," and the two first parts of Ps. CXVIII., "Blessed are the undefiled, &c.," and "Deal bountifully, &c."

As soon as the Psalms are over, the Office continues, "Christ, for our sakes, &c.," to the end, as at Lauds. And so terminates the Service.

The Martyrology is not read in Choir, and whether in or out of Choir, what follows it, beginning "Precious in the sight of the LORD," is omitted.

TERCE, SEXT, AND NONE.

After the Lord's Prayer and the Angelic Salutation have been said inaudibly, all else is omitted, and the usual portions of Ps. CXVIII. begin at once.

No Antiphon is said, and the Hymn, "Glory be to the Father, &c.," is everywhere omitted.

As soon as the appointed portions of Ps. CXVIII. are over, the Office continues, "Christ, for our sakes, &c.," to the end, as at Lauds. And so terminates the Service. This ending must be said complete after each Office, whether they be said at one time or not.

After None the Altar is vested in white, and adorned as for a solemn Feast, but without reliques, pictures, or images. The Cross is covered with a white veil over the purple one; six lights are lighted, and the organ plays while the Priest and his ministers proceed to the Sanctuary, dressed in white vestments. The Liturgy is then celebrated, in memory of the First Eucharist, celebrated by our Lord Himself on this evening. After the Liturgy, the Consecrated Host Which is to be consumed on the next day, goes in Procession to the place prepared for It. The Procession over, all return to their places, except the Priest and his ministers, who go to the Sacristy. In their absence Vespers are begun, and they meanwhile take off their white vestments, the celebrant and deacon putting on purple stoles and returning to the Choir towards the end of the Miserere, in time to assist at the latter part of the Service.

VESPERS.

After the Lord's Prayer and the Angelic Salutation have been said inaudibly, all else is omitted, and the First Antiphon begins at once.

The Antiphons are all doubled, and the Hymn, "Glory be to the Father, &c.," is everywhere omitted.

First Antiphon. I will take the cup of salvation, and call upon the Name of the LORD.

Psalm CXV.

I believed, therefore have I spoken, &c., (p. 105.)

Second Antiphon. With them that hate peace, I was peaceable; when I spoke unto them they fought against me without a cause.

Psalm CXIX.

In my distress, &c., (p. 105.)

Third Antiphon. O LORD, preserve me from the wicked man.

Psalm CXXXIX.

Deliver me, O LORD, &c., (p. 112.)

Fourth Antiphon. Keep me from the snare which they have laid for me, and the gins of the workers of iniquity.

Psalm CXL.

LORD, I cry unto Thee, &c., (p. 112.)

Fifth Antiphon. I looked on my right hand, and beheld: but there was no man that would know me.

Psalm CXLI.

I cried unto the LORD with my voice, &c., (p. 113.)

No Chapter, Hymn, nor Verse and Answer are said.

Antiphon at the Song of the Blessed Virgin. And, as they were eating, JESUS took bread, and blessed, and brake, and gave to His disciples.[3]

Then, "Christ, for our sakes, &c.," to the end, as at Lauds.

---

[1] Ps. xl. 10.

[2] That is, the Officiant, to announce that the Prayer is over, gives one or two taps.

[3] Matth. xxvi. 26.

After Vespers, the Priest in his purple stole, and with the help of his ministers, strips the Altar quite bare, in remembrance of the Nakedness of our Lord Jesus Christ during great part of His Passion. During the ceremony is recited Ps. XXI., "My God, My God, &c.," without the Hymn, "Glory be to the Father, &c.," but with this Antiphon, both before and after: "They part My garments among them, and cast lots upon My vesture." There remain only on the Altar the Cross under its purple veil, and the unlighted candles in the candlesticks. This is the end of the Service.

At a later hour in the day is performed the Maundy, that is, the "Mandatum," or "Commandment of the Lord," that is to say, Superiors wash the feet of their inferiors, in obedience to the command and example of our Lord, Who, on this evening, Himself first performed this ceremony for His disciples.

COMPLINE.

The early part of the Service is entirely omitted, except the Confession and Absolution, after which begin the usual Psalms, without any Antiphon, or the Hymn, "Glory be to the Father, &c.," which is everywhere omitted.

Immediately after Ps. CXXXIII., "Behold, bless ye the LORD, &c.," is said the Song of Simeon, without any Antiphon, and immediately after "the glory of Thy people Israël" is said: "Christ, for our sakes, &c.," to the end, as at Lauds.

Thus end Lauds, Prime, Terce, Sext, None, Vespers, and Compline, from the Lauds of Maundy Thursday to the None of Holy Saturday, both inclusive.

Good Friday.

Sixth Day of the Great Week.

The Preparation of the Passover.[1]

MATTINS.

This is the Second Night of Darkness. The ceremonial is the same as before, as are also the omissions in the Service.

The Antiphons are all doubled, and the Hymn, "Glory be to the Father, &c.," is everywhere omitted.

After the Lord's Prayer, the Angelic Salutation, and the Apostles' Creed have been said inaudibly, the First Antiphon begins at once.

FIRST NOCTURN.

First Antiphon. The kings of the earth set themselves, and the rulers take counsel together, against the LORD, and against His Anointed.

Psalm II.

Why do the heathen rage, &c., (p. 3.)

Second Antiphon. They part my garments among them, and cast lots upon my vesture.

Psalm XXI.

My God, My God, &c., (p. 27.)

Third Antiphon. False witnesses are risen up against me, and iniquity hath belied itself.

Psalm XXVI.

The LORD is my light, &c., (p. 41.)

Verse. They part my garments among them.

Answer. And cast lots upon my vesture.

Then, the Lord's Prayer having been said inaudibly, the First Lesson begins at once.

First Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Lamentations of Jeremiah the Prophet (ii. 8.)

HETH.[2] The LORD hath purposed to destroy the wall of the daughter of Zion: He hath stretched out His line, He hath not withdrawn His hand from destroying: the rampart doth lament, and the wall languisheth with it.

TETH. Her gates are sunk into the ground, He hath destroyed and broken her bars; her king and her princes are among the Gentiles. The law is no more; her Prophets also find no vision from the LORD.

IOD. The elders of the daughter of Zion sit upon the ground, and keep silence: they have cast up dust upon their heads; they have girded themselves with sack-cloth: the virgins of Jerusalem hang down their heads to the ground.

CAPH. Mine eyes do fail with tears, my bowels are troubled, my liver is poured upon the earth, for the destruction of the daughter of my people, because the children and the sucklings swoon in the streets of the city.

Jerusalem! Jerusalem! Return unto the Lord thy God.

The First Responsory begins at once.

First Responsory.

All my friends have forsaken me, and mine enemies have prevailed against me; he whom I loved hath betrayed me. Mine enemy sharpeneth his eyes upon me; he breaketh me with breach upon breach: and [in my thirst] they gave me vinegar to drink.[3]

Verse. I am numbered with the transgressors; and my life is not spared.

Answer. Mine enemy sharpeneth his eyes upon me; he breaketh me with breach upon breach; and [in my thirst] they gave me vinegar to drink.

Second Lesson.

LAMED. They say to their mothers: Where is corn and wine? When they swooned as the wounded in the streets of the city, when their soul was poured out into their mother's bosom.

MEM. What thing shall I take to witness for thee? What thing shall I liken to thee, O daughter of Jerusalem? What shall I equal to thee, that I may comfort thee, O virgin daughter of Zion? For thy breach is great like the sea: who can heal thee?

NUN. Thy Prophets have seen vain and foolish things for thee, and they have not discovered thine iniquity, to stir thee up to repent, but have seen for thee false burdens and causes of banishment.

---

[1] In Parasceve, i.e., Paraskeué. This is the Greek word used by all the Evangelists to designate this day; by St John three times. The work is retained in the Latin, probably because it was the common name of the day among Greek-speaking Jews.

[2] This commences in the middle of another A B C Darian composition.

[3] Et terribilibus oculis plaga crudeli percutientes, aceto potabant me. This appears to be a sort of compound of Job xvi. 10, 15, and Ps. lxviii. 22, and the passage in the text is accordingly constructed from those passages, but the quotation is either very inexact or from a very different version to the present.

SAMECH. All that pass by clap their hands at thee: they hiss and wag their head at the daughter of Jerusalem, saying: Is this the city that men call "The Perfection of beauty," "The joy of the whole earth!"

Jerusalem! Jerusalem! Return unto the Lord thy God!

Second Responsory.

[1] The veil of the Temple was rent in twain, [from the top to the bottom,] and all the earth did quake: [2] the thief on the cross cried, saying: Lord, remember me when Thou comest into Thy kingdom!

Verse. [1] The rocks rent, and the graves were opened, and many bodies of the Saints, which slept, arose.

Answer. And all the earth did quake: the thief on the cross cried, saying: Lord, remember me when Thou comest into Thy kingdom.

Third Lesson. (iii. 1.)[3]

ALEPH. I am the man that hath seen affliction by the rod of His wrath.

ALEPH. He hath led me, and brought me into darkness, but not into light.

ALEPH. Surely against me is He turned: He turneth His hand against me all the day.

BETH. My skin and my flesh hath He made old; He hath broken my bones.

BETH. He hath builded round about me, and compassed me with gall and travail.

BETH. He hath set me in dark places, as they that be dead of old.

GHIMEL. He hath hedged me about, that I cannot get out: He hath made my chain heavy.

GHIMEL. Also when I cry and shout, He shutteth out my prayer.

GHIMEL. He hath inclosed my ways with hewn stone: He hath made my paths crooked.

Jerusalem! Jerusalem! Return unto the Lord thy God.

Third Responsory.

[4] I had planted thee a noble vine. How then art thou turned into a degenerate plant, which willest that Barabbas should be released unto thee, and that I should be crucified?

Verse. [5] I fenced thee, and gathered out the stones from thee, and built a tower in [the midst of] thee.

Answer. How then art thou turned into a degenerate plant, which willest that Barabbas should be released unto thee, and that I should be crucified? I had planted thee a noble vine. How then art thou turned into a degenerate plant, which willest that Barabbas should be released unto thee, and that I should be crucified?

SECOND NOCTURN.

First Antiphon. They that sought after my life have used violence against me.

Psalm XXXVII.

O LORD, rebuke me not, &c., (p. 46.)

Second Antiphon. Let them be ashamed and confounded together that seek after my soul, to destroy it.

Psalm XXXIX.

I waited patiently, &c., (p. 52.)

Third Antiphon. Strangers are risen up against me, and oppressors seek after my soul.

Psalm LIII.

Save me, O God, &c., (p. 20.)

Verse. [6] False witnesses are risen up against me.

Answer. And iniquity hath belied itself.

Fourth Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Treatise of St Austin, Bishop [of Hippo,] upon the Psalms (lxiii. 2.)

"THOU hast hidden me from the secret counsel of the wicked, from the insurrection of the workers of iniquity." Now let us fix our eyes upon our Head. Many martyrs have suffered such things as He suffered, but God's hiding of his suffering servants is not so well seen in the Martyrs, as it is in the Captain of the Martyrs. And it is in Him that we best see how it fared with them. He was hidden from the secret counsel of the wicked; hidden by God, being Himself God; hidden, as touching the Manhood, by God the Son, and the very Manhood, Which is taken into God the Son; because He is the Son of man, and He is the Son of God—Son of God, as being in the form of God; Son of man, as having taken upon Him the form of a servant, (Phil. ii. 6, 7,) Whose life no man taketh from Him, but Who layeth it down of Himself. He hath power to lay it down, and He hath power to take it again, (John x. 18.) What then was all that they which hated Him could do? They could kill the Body, but they were not able to kill the Soul.[7] Consider this very earnestly. It had been a small thing for the Lord to preach to the Martyrs by His word, if He had not also nerved them by His example.

Fourth Responsory.

[8] Are ye come out, as against a thief, with swords and staves, for to take Me? I sat daily with you, teaching in the Temple, and ye laid no hold on Me; and, now when ye have scourged Me, ye lead Me away to crucify Me![9]

Verse. [10] And when they had laid hands on JESUS, and taken Him, He said unto them:

Answer. I sat daily with you, teaching in the Temple, and ye laid no hold on Me; and now, when ye have scourged Me, ye lead Me away to crucify Me!

Fifth Lesson.

YE know what secret counsel was that of the wicked Jews, and what insurrection was that of the workers of iniquity. Of what iniquity were they the workers? The murder of our Lord JESUS Christ. "Many good works," saith He,[1] "have I showed you—for which of those works go ye about to kill Me?" He had borne with all their weaknesses: He had healed all their diseases: He had preached unto them the kingdom of heaven: He had discovered to them their iniquities, that they might rather hate them, than the Physician That came to cure them. And now at last, without gratitude for all the tenderness of His healing love, like men raging in an high delirium, throwing themselves madly on the Physician, Who had come to cure them, they took counsel together how they might kill Him, as if to see if He were a Man and could die, or Something more than a man, and That would not let Himself die. In the Wisdom of Solomon we recognise their words, (ii. 18, 19, 20,) "Let us condemn Him with a shameful death —Let us examine Him; for, by His own saying, He shall be respected. If He be the Son of God, let Him help Him."

Fifth Responsory.

[2] The Jews crucified JESUS: and there was darkness [over all the land, unto the ninth hour]: and about the ninth hour JESUS cried with a loud voice, [saying]: My God, [My God,] why hast Thou forsaken Me? [3] And He bowed His Head, and gave up the Ghost.

Verse. [4] When JESUS had cried with a loud voice, He said: Father, into Thy hands I commend My Spirit.

Answer. And He bowed His Head, and gave up the Ghost.

Sixth Lesson.

"THEY whet their tongue like a sword." The Jews cannot say: "We did not murder Christ"—albeit they gave Him over to Pilate His judge, that they themselves might seem free of His death. For when Pilate said unto them, "Take ye Him and kill Him,"[5] they answered, "It is not lawful for us to put any man to death." They could throw the blame of their sin upon a human judge: but did they deceive God, the Great Judge? In that which Pilate did, he was their accomplice, but in comparison with them, he had far the lesser sin. (John xix. 11.) Pilate strove as far as he could, to deliver Him out of their hands; for the which reason also he scourged Him, (John xix. 1,) and brought Him forth to them (4). He scourged not the Lord for cruelty's sake, but in the hope that he might so slake their wild thirst for blood: that, perchance, even they might be touched with compassion, and cease to lust for His death, when they saw What He was after the flagellation. Even this effort he made. "But when Pilate saw that he could not prevail, but that rather a tumult was made," (Matth. xxvii. 24,) ye know how that "he took water, and washed his hands before the multitude, saying: I am innocent of the Blood of this Just Person." And yet, "he delivered Him to be crucified!" (26). But if he were guilty who did it against his will, were they innocent who goaded him on to it? No. Pilate gave sentence against Him, and commanded Him to be crucified, but ye, O ye Jews, ye also are His murderers! Wherewith? With your tongue, whetted like a sword. And when? But when ye cried, "Crucify Him! Crucify Him!" (Mark xv. 13, 14; Luke xxiii. 21; John xix. 6.)

Sixth Responsory.

[6] I have given the dearly-beloved of My soul into the hand of her enemies, and Mine heritage is become unto Me as a lion in the forest; the enemy crieth out against Me, saying: Assemble yourselves together, hasten to devour Him: they have made My portion a desolate wilderness, and the whole land mourneth unto Me: because there is none found that will know Me, nor do well.

Verse. There be risen up against me such as breathe out cruelty, and they have not spared my soul.

Answer. Because there is none found that will know Me, nor do well. I have given the dearly-beloved of My soul into the hand of her enemies, and Mine heritage is become unto Me as a lion in the forest: the enemy crieth out against Me, saying: Assemble yourselves together, hasten to devour Him: they have made My portion a desolate wilderness, and the whole land mourneth unto me: because there is none found that will know Me, nor do well.

THIRD NOCTURN.

First Antiphon. O Lord, defend me from them that rise up against me, for they lie in wait for my life.

Psalm LVIII.

Deliver me, &c., (p. 63.)

Second Antiphon. Thou hast put away mine acquaintance far from me; I am shut up, and cannot come forth.

Psalm LXXXVII.

O LORD God of my salvation, &c., (p. 82.)

Third Antiphon. They gather themselves together against the soul of the righteous, and condemn the innocent blood.

Psalm XCIII.

The LORD God, to Whom vengeance, (p. 84.)

Verse. [7] They have spoken against me with a lying tongue.

Answer. They compassed me about also with words of hatred, and fought against me without a cause.

Seventh Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Epistle of the Blessed Apostle Paul to the Hebrews (iv. 11.)

LET us labour to enter into that rest, lest any man fall after the same example of unbelief. For the Word of God is quick and powerful, and sharper than any two-edged sword, piercing even to the dividing asunder of soul and spirit, and of the joints and marrow; and is a discerner of the thoughts and intents of the heart. Neither is there any creature that is not manifest in His sight: but all things are naked and opened unto the eyes of Him with Whom we have to do. Seeing then that we have a great High Priest That is passed into the heavens, JESUS the Son of God, let us hold fast our profession. For we have not an High Priest, Which cannot be touched with the feeling of our infirmities: but was in all points tempted like as we are, yet without sin.

Seventh Responsory.

[1] They have turned me over into the hands of the wicked: they also have numbered me with the trangressors, neither have they spared my life: the mighty are gathered together against me, and stand up against me like giants.

Verse. [2] Strangers are risen up against me, and oppressors seek after my soul.

Answer. And stand up against me like giants.

Eighth Lesson.

LET us therefore come boldly unto the throne of grace, that we may obtain mercy, and find grace to help in time of need. (v.) For every High Priest taken from among men is ordained for men in things pertaining to God, that he may offer both gifts and sacrifices for sins: who can have compassion on the ignorant, and on them that are out of the way; for that he himself also is compassed with infirmity. And by reason hereof he ought, as for the people, so also for himself, to offer for sins.

Eighth Responsory.

[3] That wicked one betrayed JESUS to the chief-priests and elders of the people: but Peter followed Him afar off, to see the end.

Verse. And they led Him away to Caïphas the High Priest, where the Scribes and Pharisees were assembled.

Answer. But Peter followed Him afar off, to see the end.

Ninth Lesson.

AND no man taketh this honour unto himself, but he that is called of God, as was Aaron. So, also, Christ glorified not Himself to be made an High Priest, but He That said unto Him: "Thou art My Son, to-day have I begotten Thee." (Ps. ii. 7.) As He saith also in another place: "Thou art a Priest for ever, after the order of Melchisedeck." (Ps. cix. 4.) Who, in the days of His flesh, when He had offered up prayers and supplications, with strong crying and tears, unto Him That was able to save Him from death, was heard, in that He feared.[4] And though He was the Son of God, yet learnt He obedience by the things which He suffered: and being made perfect, He is become the Author of Eternal Salvation unto all them that obey Him—called of God an High Priest after the order of Melchisedeck.

Ninth Responsory.

[5] Mine eyes do fail with tears, because the Comforter that should relieve me is far from me. Behold, O all ye nations, if there be any sorrow like unto my sorrow.

Verse. O all ye that pass by, behold, and see—

Answer. If there be any sorrow like unto my sorrow. Mine eyes do fail with tears, because the Comforter that should relieve me is far from me. Behold, O all ye nations, if there be any sorrow like unto my sorrow.

LAUDS.

This part of the Service begins at once with the First Antiphon.

First Antiphon. [6] God spared not His Own Son, but delivered Him up for us all.

Second Antiphon. My spirit is overwhelmed within me: my heart within me is troubled.

Third Antiphon. [7] One thief said unto the other: We indeed receive the due reward of our deeds, but what hath this Man done? Lord, remember me, when Thou comest into Thy kingdom.

Fourth Antiphon. Lord, when my soul is troubled, Thou wilt remember mercy.

Fifth Antiphon. Lord, remember me, when Thou comest into Thy kingdom.

No Chapter or Hymn is said.

Verse. [8] He hath set me in dark places.

Answer. As they that be dead of old.

Antiphon at the Song of Zacharias. [9] They set up over His Head His accusation written: JESUS OF NAZARETH THE KING OF THE JEWS.

The Service finishes as yesterday, except that the sentence, "Christ, for our sakes, &c.," is read thus:

Christ, for our sakes, became obedient unto death, even the death of the Cross.

The whole of the other Offices are precisely the same as yesterday, with the exception of the above addition to the sentence, "Christ, for our sakes, &c.," which addition is made throughout the day, and the Antiphon at the Song of the Blessed Virgin at Vespers, which is:

When He had received the vinegar, He said: It is finished! and He bowed His Head, and gave up the Ghost.[10]

The Liturgy is celebrated after None. At its conclusion the Priest and his ministers go to the Sacristy to unvest, and Vespers are begun in their absence, just as yesterday. The Priest and ministers in the same way return to Choir before Vespers are over.

After the Lord's Prayer, the Angelic Salutation, and the Apostles' Creed have been said inaudibly, the First Antiphon begins at once.

FIRST NOCTURN.

First Antiphon. I will both lay me down in peace, and sleep.

Psalm IV.

When I called, &c., (p. 116.)

Second Antiphon. He shall abide in Thy tabernacle: He shall dwell in Thy holy hill.

Psalm XIV.

Lord, who shall abide, &c., (p. 6.)

Third Antiphon. My flesh shall rest in hope.

Psalm XV.

Preserve me, O Lord, &c., (p. 7.)

Verse. I will both lay me down in peace.

Answer. And sleep.

Then, the Lord's Prayer having been said inaudibly, the First Lesson begins at once.

First Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Lamentation of Jeremiah the Prophet (iii. 22.)

HETH.[1] It is of the Lord's mercies that we are not consumed: because His compassions fail not.

Heth. They are new every morning; great is Thy faithfulness.

Heth. The Lord is my portion, saith my soul: therefore will I hope in Him.

Teth. The Lord is good unto them that wait for Him, to the soul that seeketh Him.

Teth. It is good that a man should quietly wait for the salvation of the Lord.

Teth. It is good for a man that he bear the yoke in his youth.

Iod. He sitteth alone and keepeth silence, because he hath borne it upon him.

Iod. He putteth his mouth in the dust, if so be there may be hope.

Iod. He giveth his cheek to him that smiteth him: he is filled full with reproach.

Jerusalem! Jerusalem! Return unto the Lord thy God!

The First Responsory begins at once.

[2] He hath been brought as a lamb to the slaughter, and while he was evil-entreated he opened not his mouth: he was delivered up to death, that he might quicken his people.

Verse. [3] He hath poured out his soul unto death, and he was numbered with the transgressors.

Answer. That he might quicken his people.

Second Lesson. (iv. 1.)

ALEPH.[4] How is the gold become dim! How is the most fine gold changed! The stones of the Sanctuary are poured out in the top of every street!

Beth. The precious sons of Zion, clad in fine gold, how are they esteemed as earthen pitchers, the work of the hands of the potter!

Ghimel. Even the most savage beasts [5] draw out the breast, they give suck to their young ones: the daughter of my people is cruel, like the ostrich in the wilderness!

Daleth. The tongue of the sucking child cleaveth to the roof of his mouth for thirst: the young children ask bread, and no man breaketh it unto them!

He. They that did feed delicately, are dead of famine in the streets: they that were brought up in scarlet embrace dung-hills!

Vav. For the iniquity of the daughter of my people is greater than the sin of Sodom, that was overthrown in a moment, and no hands stayed on her.

Jerusalem! Jerusalem! Return unto the Lord thy God!

Second Responsory.

[6] Arise, O Jerusalem, and put off thy garments of rejoicing: cover thee with sack-cloth and ashes: for the Saviour of Israël hath been slain in the midst of thee.

Verse. [7] Let thy tears run down like a river day and night, and let not the apple of thine eye cease.

Answer. For the Saviour of Israël hath been slain in the midst of thee.

Third Lesson. (Lam. v. 1.)

Here beginneth the Prayer of Jeremiah the Prophet.

REMEMBER, O Lord, what is come upon us: consider and behold our reproach. Our inheritance is turned to strangers, our houses to aliens. We are orphans and fatherless; our mothers are as widows. We have drunken our water for money; our wood is sold unto us. Our necks are in jeopardy; we are weary, and have no rest. We have given the hand to the Egyptians, and to the Assyrians, to be satisfied with bread. Our fathers have sinned, and are not; and we have borne their iniquities. Servants have ruled over us: there is none that doth deliver us out of their hand. We gat our bread with the peril of our lives, because of the sword of the wilderness. Our skin was black like an oven, because of the terrible famine. They ravished the women in Zion, and the maids in the cities of Judah.

Jerusalem! Jerusalem! Return unto the Lord thy God!

Third Responsory.

[8] O my people! lament, like a virgin [girded with sack-cloth for the husband of her youth,] [9] howl, ye shepherds, in sack-cloth and ashes,[8] for the day of the Lord is at hand, and it is great and very terrible.

Verse. Gird yourselves, ye Priests, and howl, ye ministers of the altar: cast up ashes upon you.

SECOND NOCTURN.

First Antiphon. Be ye lift up, ye everlasting doors,[1] and the King of glory shall come in.

Psalm XXIII.

The earth is the LORD'S, &c., (p. 26.)

Second Antiphon. I believe that I shall yet see the goodness of the LORD in the land of the living.

Psalm XXVI.

The LORD is my light, &c., (p. 41.)

Third Antiphon. O Lord, Thou hast brought up my soul from the grave.

Psalm XXIX.

I will extol Thee, &c., (p. 42.)

Verse. [2] But Thou, O LORD, be merciful unto me.

Answer. And raise me up; and I will requite them.

Fourth Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Treatise of St Austin, Bishop [of Hippo,] upon the Psalms (lxiii. 7.)

"MAN shall attain to thoughts that are very deep: but God shall still be exalted." The enemies of our Lord had communed of laying snares privily; they had said, "Who shall see them?" They had searched out iniquities; they had accomplished a diligent search. And Man attained even unto [the realisation of] their counsels, for the Lord, as Man, suffered Himself to be taken. For He had not been taken at all, unless He had been a Man, or seen, unless He had been a Man, or smitten, unless He had been a Man, or crucified, unless He had been a Man, or have died, unless He had been a Man. Man therefore, He attained unto all those sufferings, which had had nothing in Him, unless He had been a Man. But if He had not been Man, man had not been redeemed. And the Lord as Man attained to thoughts that were very deep, yea, secret; showing the Manhood to the eyes of men, and keeping the Godhead within Him; veiling the form of God, as touching Which, He is Equal to the Father, and manifesting the form of a servant, as touching which, He is inferior to the Father.

Fourth Responsory.

Our Shepherd, even the Fountain of living waters, is gone from us; He passed away, and the sun was darkened. For now hath our Saviour bound him captive, which bound the first man captive; this day hath He burst the gates and bars of death.

Verse. The bands of hell He hath utterly abolished, and hath done away the power of the devil.

Answer. For now hath our Saviour bound him captive, which bound the first man captive; this day hath He burst the gates and bars of death.

Fifth Lesson.

HOW far did the accomplishment of their diligent search reach? Even to the setting a watch of soldiers at the sepulchre, to guard the Lord, even after He was dead and buried. For "they said unto Pilate: Sir, we remember that that deceiver —" (Matth. xxvii. 63.) This was the term by which they designated the Lord JESUS Christ, and the remembrance that He was so named is a sweet consolation to us His servants, when we are called impostors. So they said unto Pilate, "that deceiver said, while He was yet alive: After three days I will rise again. Command therefore that the sepulchre be made sure until the third day, lest His disciples come and steal Him away, and say unto the people: He is risen again from the dead: so the last error shall be worse than the first. Pilate said unto them: Ye have a watch; go your way; make it as sure as ye can. So they went and made the sepulchre sure, sealing the stone, and setting a watch."

Fifth Responsory.

O all ye that pass by, behold and see if there be any sorrow like unto my sorrow.

Verse. O all ye nations, behold, and see my sorrow,—

Answer. If there be any sorrow like unto my sorrow.

Sixth Lesson.

"SO they went, and made the sepulchre sure, sealing the stone, and setting a watch"—and anon, "behold, there was a great earthquake," and the Lord arose. So great wonders were wrought about the sepulchre that the very soldiers, which were put to guard it, were witnesses thereto, if only they would have told the truth. But the same love of money which had made a slave of that disciple who was a companion of Christ, made slaves also of the soldiers that were put to watch His sepulchre. "Some of the watch came into the city, and showed unto the chief Priests all the things that were done: and when they were assembled with the elders, and had taken counsel, they gave large money unto the soldiers, saying: Say ye, His disciples came by night and stole Him away while we slept." In good sooth, their diligent search had been accomplished and ended before this. What didst thou say, O stupid cunning? Wast thou indeed so utterly void of the light of godly wisdom, and confounded in the bottomless pit of thine own falsehood as to tell them to say: "His disciples came by night, and stole Him away while we slept?" Part of the testimony of thine eye-witnesses was that they were asleep at the time: thou thyself wast asleep not to be able to see that on their own testimony, their testimony must have been worthless.

Sixth Responsory.

[3] Behold how the righteous dieth, and no man taketh it to heart; and the just are taken away, and none considereth. From the midst of sinners is the righteous translated; and his memory is in peace.

Verse. As a lamb before his shearers is dumb, so He opened not His mouth; He was taken from prison and from judgment.

Answer. And his memory is in peace. Behold how the righteous dieth, and no man taketh it to heart; and the just are taken away, and none considereth. From the midst of sinners is the righteous translated; and his memory is in peace.

THIRD NOCTURN.

First Antiphon. God is my helper, and the Lord upholdeth my soul.

Psalm LIII.

Save me, O God, &c., (p. 20.)

Second Antiphon. His place is in "Peace,"[1] and His dwelling-place in Zion.

Psalm LXXV.

In Judah is God known, &c., (p. 73.)

Third Antiphon. I am as a man that hath no strength, lying nerveless among the dead.

Psalm LXXXVII.

O LORD God of my salvation, &c., (p. 82.)

Verse. His place is in "Peace."[1]

Answer. And His dwelling-place in Zion.

Seventh Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Epistle of the Blessed Apostle Paul to the Hebrews (ix. 11.)

CHRIST being come an High Priest of good things to come, by a greater and more perfect tabernacle, not made with hands, that is to say, not of this building, neither by the blood of goats and calves, but by His own blood, He entered in once [for all] into the Holy Place, having obtained eternal redemption for us. For if the blood of goats or of bulls, and the ashes of an heifer sprinkling the unclean, sanctifieth to the purifying of the flesh, how much more shall the Blood of Christ, Who, through the Holy Spirit, offered Himself without spot to God, purge our conscience from dead works to serve the living God?

Seventh Responsory.

[2] The kings of the earth set themselves, and the rulers take counsel together against the LORD, and against His Anointed.

Verse. Why do the heathen rage? and the people imagine a vain thing,

Answer. Against the LORD, and against His Anointed?

Eighth Lesson.

AND for this cause, He is the Mediator of the New Testament, that, by means of death, for the redemption of the transgressions that were under the first Testament, they, which are called, might receive the promise of eternal inheritance. For where a testament is, there must also of necessity be the death of the testator. For a testament is of force after men are dead: otherwise it is of no strength at all while the testator liveth. Wherefore neither the first Testament was dedicated without blood.

Eighth Responsory.

I am counted with them that go down into the pit. I am as a man that hath no strength, lying nerveless among the dead.

Verse. They have laid me in the lowest pit, in darkness, and in the shadow of death.

Answer. I am as a man that hath no strength, lying nerveless among the dead.

Ninth Lesson.

FOR when Moses had read every precept of the law to all the people, he took the blood of calves and of goats, with water, and scarlet wool, and hyssop, and sprinkled both the book and all the people, saying: This is the blood of the Testament which God hath enjoined unto you. Moreover, he sprinkled likewise with blood both the Tabernacle and all the vessels of the ministry. And almost all things are by the law purged with blood; and without shedding of blood is no remission.

Ninth Responsory.

[3] After that the Lord was buried, they sealed the sepulchre, rolling a stone to the door of the sepulchre; and setting a watch to keep Him.

Verse. The chief priests came together unto Pilate, and made that request unto him.

Answer. Setting a watch to keep Him. After that the Lord was buried, they sealed the sepulchre, rolling a stone to the door of the sepulchre, and setting a watch to keep Him.

LAUDS.

First Antiphon. [4] O death, I will be thy death; O grave, I will be thy destruction.

Antiphon at the Song of Zacharias. There were women sitting over against the sepulchre, weeping, and making lamentation for the Lord:[2]

The Service finishes as on Thursday, except that the sentence, "Christ, for our sakes, &c.," is read thus:

Christ, for our sakes, became obedient unto death, even the death of the Cross, wherefore God also hath highly exalted Him, and given Him a Name which is above every name.

Before Prime the altar is vested, with a purple frontal, and furnished with white wax tapers, but they are not lit till the Liturgy is on the point of commencing.

Prime, Terce, Sext, and None, are precisely the same as on Thursday, with the exception of the above addition to the sentence, "Christ, for our sakes, &c.," which is made at all of them.

After None the Priest and his ministers put on purple vestments, and he blesses some Holy Water; afterwards they go to the Porch of the Church, where they begin the long series of ceremonies peculiar to the day. 1. The New Fire and the Incense is blessed. 2. Light from the new fire is brought into the Church in procession. 3. The Paschal candle is blessed and lighted, as well as all other lights in the Church, except those on the altar. 4. The Twelve Lessons from the Old Testament are read, and the corresponding Prayers and Tracts sung. 5. A Procession is made to the Font. 6. The Font is blessed, and (7) the Baptisms take place. 8. The Procession returns, commencing the Litany, which is continued while all kneel or lie prostrate before the altar. At the words, "We sinners do beseech Thee to hear us" the Priest and his ministers rise and go to the Sacristy, where they put on white vestments. At the same time, and while the Litany is still going on, the altar is vested in white, and the tapers are lighted. After the words "Graciously hear us, O Christ" the "Kyrie eleison" is begun, and while it is in singing the Priest and ministers proceed to the Sanctuary and at once begin the Liturgy. At the Hymn, "Glory be to God on high, &c.," the bells are rung, the organ plays, and the images and pictures are uncovered. The Liturgy goes on, with the observances peculiar to the day, and as soon as the Priest has drunk the wine after the Communion, Vespers are sung in a particular manner, interwoven with the latter part of the Mass. Those who have not the happiness to be present at these services say in the following manner the

First Blessing.

May the Gospel's holy lection
Be our safety and protection.

First Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Holy Gospel according to Mark (xvi. 1.)

AT that time: Mary Magdalene, and Mary the mother of James, and Salome had bought sweet spices, that they might come and anoint JESUS. And so on.

Homily by Pope Gregory [the Great.] (21st on the Gospels.)

Dearly beloved brethren, ye have heard the deed of the holy women which had followed the Lord; how that they brought sweet spices to His sepulchre, and, now that He was dead, having loved Him while He was yet alive, they followed Him with careful tenderness still. But the deed of these holy women doth point to somewhat which must needs be done in the holy Church. And it behoveth us well to give ear to what they did, that we may afterward consider with ourselves what we must do likewise after their ensample. We also, who believe in Him That was dead, do come to His sepulchre bearing sweet spices, when we seek the Lord with the savour of good living, and the fragrant report of good works. Those women, when they brought their spices, saw a vision of Angels, and, in sooth, those souls whose godly desires do move them to seek the Lord with the savour of good lives, do see the countrymen of our Fatherland which is above.

First Responsory.

[3] The Angel of the Lord descended from heaven, and came and rolled back the stone, and sat upon it, and said unto the women: Fear not ye; for I know that ye seek Him That was crucified: He is risen already. Come, see the place where the Lord was laid. Alleluia.

Verse. [4] And entering into the sepulchre, they saw a young man sitting on the right side, clothed in a long white garment, and they were affrighted; and he saith unto them:

Answer. Fear not ye: for I know that ye seek Him That was crucified: He is risen already; come, see the place where the Lord was laid. Alleluia.

Verse. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, and to the Holy Ghost.

Answer. The Angel of the Lord descended from heaven, and came and rolled back the stone and sat upon it, and said unto the women: Fear not ye: for I know that ye seek Him That was crucified: He is risen already: Come, see the place where the Lord was laid. Alleluia.

Second Blessing.

God's most mighty strength alway
Be His people's staff and stay.

[2] Ex. iii. 14. Or I AM BECAUSE I AM, or I WILL BE THAT I WILL BE, R.V.

[3] Matth. xxviii. 2, 5, 6.

[4] Mark xvi. 5, 6.

Second Lesson.

IT behoveth us to mark what this meaneth, that they saw the Angel sitting on the right side. For what signifieth the left, but this life which now is? or the right, but life everlasting? Whence also it is written in the Song of Songs (ii. 6): "His left hand is under my head, and His right hand doth embrace me." Since, therefore, our Redeemer had passed from the corruption of this life which now is, the Angel which told that His undying life was come, sat, as became him, on the right side. They saw him clothed in a white garment, for he was herald of the joy of this our great solemnity, and the glistering whiteness of his raiment told of the brightness of this holy Festival of ours. Of ours, said I? or of his? But if we will speak the truth, we must acknowledge that it is both his and ours. The Again-rising of our Redeemer is a Festival of gladness for us, for us it biddeth know that we shall not die for ever; and for Angels also it is a festival of gladness, for it biddeth them know that we are called to fulfil their number in heaven.

Second Responsory.

[1] When the Sabbath was passed, Mary Magdalene, and Mary the mother of James, and Salome, had bought sweet spices, that they might come and anoint JESUS. Alleluia, Alleluia.

Verse. And very early in the morning, the first day of the week, they came unto the sepulchre, at the rising of the sun.

Answer. That they might come and anoint JESUS. Alleluia, Alleluia.

Verse. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, and to the Holy Ghost.

Answer. That they might come and anoint JESUS. Alleluia, Alleluia.

Third Blessing.

May He That is the Angels' King
To that high realm His people bring.

Third Lesson.

ON this glad Festival then, which is both his and ours, the Angel appeared in white raiment. For as the Lord, rising again from the dead, leadeth us unto the mansions above, He repaireth the breaches of the heavenly Fatherland. But what meaneth this, that the Angel said unto the women which came to the sepulchre: "Fear not?" Is it not as though he had said openly: "Let them fear which love not the coming of the heavenly countrymen; let them be afraid who are so laden by fleshly lusts, that they have lost all hope ever to be joined to their company. But as for you, why fear ye, who, when ye see us, see but your fellow-countrymen?" Hence also Matthew, writing of the guise of the Angel, saith (xxviii. 3): "His countenance was like lightning, and His raiment [white] as snow." The lightning speaketh of fear and great dread, the snow of the soft brilliancy of rejoicing.

The Hymn, "We praise Thee, O God," is said.

LAUDS.

[2] First Antiphon. For the Angel of the Lord descended from heaven, and came and rolled back the stone, and sat upon it, * Alleluia, Alleluia.

Second Antiphon. And, behold, there was a great earthquake: * for the Angel of the Lord descended from heaven. Alleluia.

Third Antiphon. And his countenance * was like lightning, and his raiment [white] as snow. Alleluia, Alleluia.

Fourth Antiphon. And for fear of him * the keepers did shake, and became as dead men. Alleluia.

Fifth Antiphon. And the Angel answered * and said unto the women: Fear not ye: for I know that ye seek JESUS. Alleluia.

No Chapter, Hymn, nor Verse and Answer are said, but this sentence is read:

[3] This is the day which the LORD hath made: let us rejoice and be glad in it.

Antiphon at the Song of Zacharias. [4] And very early in the morning, the first day of the week, they came unto the sepulchre, at the rising of the sun. Alleluia.

Prayer throughout the day.

O GOD, Who, through Thine Only-begotten Son, hast on this day overcome death, and opened unto us the gate of everlasting life, we humbly beseech Thee that, as, by Thy special grace preventing us, Thou dost put into our minds good desires, so by Thy continual help, we may bring the same to good effect. Through the Same our Lord JESUS Christ Thy Son, Who liveth and reigneth with Thee, in the unity of the Holy Ghost, one God, world without end. Amen.

A double "Alleluia" is added to "Bless we the Lord," and to "Thanks be to God."

PRIME.

No Hymn is said, or any Antiphon with the Psalms.

The Psalms are as on Festivals, viz. the LIIIrd, and two parts of the CXVIIIth, and immediately after the Psalms is said, "This is the day, &c.," as at Lauds, and then, (after Verse, "Hear my prayer, O LORD," and Answer, "And let my cry come unto Thee," and "Let us pray,") the Prayer, "O Lord God Almighty, Who hast safely brought us, &c."

Before reading the Martyrology, the reader says,

This is the day which the Lord hath made. This day is the most solemn of all solemnities. This day is our Passover. Upon this day did our Saviour JESUS Christ, according to the flesh, rise again from the dead.

Then is read as usual the Martyrology for the following day, and the service concludes as usual.

TERCE, SEXT, NONE.

No Hymn is said, or any Antiphon with the parts of Ps. CXVIII.

After the sections of the Psalm, is said, "This is the day, &c.," as at Lauds, and then (after the usual Verse and Answer, and "Let us pray,") follows the Collect of the day from Lauds.

A double "Alleluia" is added to "Bless we the Lord" and to "Thanks be to God."

COMPLINE.

The Psalms and Song of Simeon are said without Antiphons.
After the Psalms is said the fourfold "Alleluia."
The Hymn, Chapter, and Short Responsory are omitted.
After the Song of Simeon is said, "This is the day, &c.," then, "Hear my prayer, &c."

Easter Monday.

Second Day within the Octave of the Passover.

Double of the First Class.

All precisely the same as on Easter Sunday, except the following.

First Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Holy Gospel according to Luke (xxiv. 13.)

AT that time: Two of JESUS' disciples went that same day to a village, called Emmaus, which was from Jerusalem about threescore furlongs. And so on.

Homily by Pope St Gregory [the Great,] (23rd on the Gospels.)

Dearly beloved brethren, ye hear how that while two of His disciples walked together in the way, not believing in His Resurrection, but talking together concerning Him, the Lord manifested Himself unto them, but yet held their eyes that they should not know Him. This holding of the eyes of their body, wrought by the Lord, was a figure of the spiritual veil which was yet upon the eyes of their heart. For in their heart they loved and yet doubted: even as the Lord drew near to them outwardly, but showed not Who He was. To them that talked together of Him, He revealed His immediate presence; but hid, from them that doubted, the knowledge of His Person.

First Responsory.

Mary Magdalene and the other Mary went very early to the sepulchre. That JESUS Whom ye seek, is not here: for He is risen, as He said: He goeth before you into Galilee; there shall ye see Him. Alleluia, Alleluia.
Verse. [2] And very early in the morning, the first day of the week, they came unto the sepulchre, at the rising of the sun; and, entering into the sepulchre, they saw a young man sitting upon the right side, who saith unto them:
Answer. That JESUS Whom ye seek is not here: for He is risen, as He said: He goeth before you into Galilee: there shall ye see Him. Alleluia, Alleluia.

Second Lesson.

HE spoke to them; He rebuked the hardness of their heart; "He expounded unto them in all the Scriptures the things concerning Himself:" and, nevertheless, seeing that He was yet a stranger to faith in their hearts, "He made as though He would have gone further." These words — "He made as though" — would here seem to mean "He feigned," but [3] He Who is simple Truth doth nothing with feigning: He only showed Himself to them in bodily manners, as He was towards them spiritually; but they were put to the proof whether, though they loved Him not yet as their God, they could love Him at least as a wayfarer.

Second Responsory.

[4] The Good Shepherd, Who laid down His life for the sheep, yea, Who was contented even to die for His flock, the Good Shepherd is risen again.
Answer. Alleluia, Alleluia, Alleluia.
Verse. [5] For even Christ our Passover is sacrificed for us.
Answer. Alleluia, Alleluia, Alleluia.
Verse. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, and to the Holy Ghost.
Answer. Alleluia, Alleluia, Alleluia.

Third Lesson.

BUT since it was impossible, that they with whom Truth walked, should be loveless, they asked Him as a wayfarer to take of their hospitality. But why say we that they asked Him, when it is written: "And they constrained Him?" From their ensample we learn that we ought not only to bid, but also to urge, wayfarers to our hospitable entertainment. They laid a table therefore, and set before Him bread and meat; and that God Whom they had not known in the expounding of the Holy Scripture, they knew in the breaking of bread. In hearing the commandments of God they were not enlightened, but they were enlightened in the doing of them: as it is written: "Not the hearers of the law are just before God, but the doers of the law shall be justified." (Rom. ii. 13.) Whosoever therefore will understand that which he heareth, let him make haste to practise in his works that which he hath already been able to hear. Behold, the Lord was not known while He spake, but He was contented to be known when He brake bread.

LAUDS.

Antiphon at the Song of Zacharias. [6] While they walked, JESUS drew near, and went with His disciples: but their eyes were holden that they should not know Him: and He rebuked them, saying: O fools, and slow of heart to believe all that the Prophets have spoken! Alleluia.

Prayer throughout the day.

O GOD, Who dost heal the sick world by the solemn gladness of the Passover, continue, we beseech

MATTINS.

Verse. The Lord is risen indeed—Alleluia.
Answer. And hath appeared to Simon—Alleluia.

Absolution. May His loving-kindness, &c.

First Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Holy Gospel according to Luke (xxiv. 36.)

AT that time: JESUS stood in the midst of His disciples, and said unto them: Peace be unto you; it is I; be not afraid. And so on.

Homily by St Ambrose, Bishop [of Milan.] (Bk. x. Comm. on Luke xxiv.)

We see here the marvellous nature of the Lord's glorified Body. It could enter unseen, and then become seen. It could easily be touched, but Its nature is hard to understand. The disciples were affrighted, and supposed that they had seen a spirit. And therefore the Lord, that He might show us the evidence of His Resurrection, said: "Handle Me, and see; for a spirit hath not flesh and bones as ye see Me have." Therefore it was not by being in a disembodied state, but by the peculiar qualities of the risen and glorified Body that He had passed through closed doors. (John xx. 19.) For that which is touched or handled is a body.

First Responsory.

[2] With great power gave the Apostles witness of the Resurrection of our Lord JESUS Christ. Alleluia, Alleluia.
Verse. They were all filled with the Holy Ghost, and they spake the Word of God with boldness.
Answer. Witness of the Resurrection of our Lord JESUS Christ. Alleluia, Alleluia.

Second Lesson.

WE shall all rise again with our bodies. But "it is sown a natural body; it is raised a spiritual body." (1. Cor. xv. 44.) The spiritual body is the finer, and the natural body is the grosser, besodden as yet by the corruption of earth. Was not That a real Body, wherein remained those marks of His Wounds, those holes of the nail-prints, which the Lord bade His disciples to handle? Hereby, also, He hath not only strengthened our faith, but also quickened our love, since we know that it has been His will to carry to heaven those Wounds which He bore for our sake, and wherewith He would not make away; but plainly showeth to His Eternal Father the price of our freedom. It is as marked with these Wounds and embracing the trophy of our salvation that the Father hath said to Him, "Sit Thou at My right Hand:" and it is, like Him, marked with their wounds, that He hath shown us that the Martyrs, whose Crown He is, are, and will be with Him there.

Second Responsory.

From the mouth of the wise doth proceed honey, Alleluia: the sweetness of honey is under his tongue. Alleluia. His lips drop as the honey-comb. Alleluia, Alleluia.[3]
Verse. Wisdom doth abide in his heart, and out of his mouth cometh understanding.
Answer. His lips drop as the honey-comb. Alleluia, Alleluia.
Verse. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, and to the Holy Ghost.
Answer. Thy lips drop as the honey-comb. Alleluia, Alleluia.

Third Lesson.

AND now, since our Lesson from Luke here faileth, let us have recourse to John, and consider how that, according to him, (xx. 20,) "then were the disciples glad when they saw the Lord," and received the grace of faith. According to Luke, "He upbraided them with their unbelief,"[4] but according to John He said also, "Receive ye the Holy Ghost." Luke, not John, hath, "Tarry ye in the city of Jerusalem, until ye be endued with power from on high." Indeed, to me it seemeth as though the one Evangelist had busied himself with the greater and higher matters, and the other with the narrative, and such things as are more human: the one with the course, the other with the essence, of history. For as it is impossible to doubt the word of him "who testifieth of these things," (John xxi. 24,) and "who saw" (xix. 35) these things, and concerning whom "we know that his testimony is true," (xxi. 24,) so is it sinful to think of negligence or falsehood as attaching to the other, even Luke, who earned to himself to be an Evangelist, [albeit he was not an Apostle,] and therefore we hold that both are truthful, neither are they at variance one with the other, either in the difference of the words they use, or in the sacredness of their characters as Evangelists. For though Luke saith that at the first the Apostles believed not, yet he showeth that afterward they believed: and although, if we regard only the first fact, the Evangelists seem divergent one from the other, yet, when we consider what cometh afterward, we see that they are at one.

Verse. [4] Then were the disciples glad—Alleluia.

Absolution. May the Almighty, &c.

First Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Holy Gospel according to John (xxi. 1.)

AT that time: JESUS showed Himself again to the disciples at the Sea of Tiberias. And on this wise showed He Himself: There were together Simon Peter, and Thomas called Didymus.[5] And so on.

Homily by Pope St Gregory [the Great.] (24th on the Gospels.)

Dearly beloved brethren, the portion of the Holy Gospel which hath but now been read in your ears, knocketh loudly at the door of your heart, with a certain question, the answer whereto calleth for thought. This same question is: "Wherefore did Peter, who had before his conversion been a fisher, wherefore did he, after his conversion, again go a-fishing?—since the Truth hath said: "No man, having put his hand to the plough, and looking back, is fit for the kingdom of God?" (Luke ix. 62.) Wherefore did Peter return to that which he had left? But with thought we see the answer to this question. The trade which was harmless before his conversion, did not become harmful because he had been converted.

First Responsory.

[6] Behold, the Lion of the tribe of Judah, the Root of David, hath prevailed to open the Book, and to loose the seven seals thereof. Alleluia, Alleluia, Alleluia.
Verse. Worthy is the Lamb That was slain to receive power, and riches,[7] and wisdom, and strength, and honour, and glory, and blessing.
Answer. Alleluia, Alleluia, Alleluia.

Second Lesson.

WE know that Peter had been a fisherman, and Matthew a publican, and that Peter after his conversion went back to his fishing, but Matthew did not return to the receipt of custom. It is one thing to seek a livelihood by fishing, and another to amass money by farming of taxes. There are many kinds of business in which it is difficult or impossible to be engaged without committing sin, and to such kinds of business as these, he which hath once been converted must not again betake himself.

Second Responsory.

[8] I am the True Vine, and ye are the branches: he that abideth in Me, and I in him, the same bringeth forth much fruit. Alleluia, Alleluia.
Verse. As the Father hath loved Me, so have I loved you.
Answer. He that abideth in Me, and I in him, the same bringeth forth much fruit. Alleluia, Alleluia.
Verse. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, and to the Holy Ghost.
Answer. He that abideth in Me, and I in him, the same bringeth forth much fruit. Alleluia, Alleluia.

Third Lesson.

IT may likewise be asked why, when the disciples were toiling in the sea, the Lord, after His Resurrection, stood on the shore, whereas, before His Resurrection, He had walked on the waves before them all. The reason of this is quickly known if we will think of the end which it then served. The sea is a figure of this present world, tossed to and fro by changing fortune, and continually ebbing and flowing with the divers tides of life. The stableness of the shore is an image of the never-ending rest of the eternal home. The disciples therefore, for that they were yet tossed to and fro upon the waves of a dying life, were toiling in the sea, but He our Redeemer, Who had already laid aside that which in this body is subject to corruption, and had risen again from the dead, He stood upon the shore.

LAUDS.

Antiphon at the Song of Zacharias. [9] Cast the net on the right side of the ship, * and ye shall find. Alleluia.

Prayer throughout the day.

Fifth Day within the Octave of the Passover.

Semidouble.

All precisely the same as on Easter Sunday, except that the Antiphons are not doubled, and what else is given here.

MATTINS.

First Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Holy Gospel according to John (xx. 11.)

AT that time: Mary stood without at the Sepulchre, weeping. And as she wept, she stooped down, and looked into the sepulchre, and saw two Angels in white, sitting. And so on.

Homily by Pope St Gregory [the Great.] (25th on the Gospels.)

Mary Magdalene, "a woman in the city, who was a sinner," through love of the truth washed away by her tears the befoulment of her sin, and the word of the Truth was fulfilled which He spake: "Her sins, which are many, are forgiven: for she loved much." (Luke vii. 47.) She that had remained cold while she sinned, became burning when she loved. For after that she had been to the Sepulchre, and had not found there the Body of the Lord, and had believed that It had been taken away, and had told His disciples, they came and saw, and thought it was even as the woman had said: and it is written—"Then the disciples went away again unto their own home—but Mary stood without at the sepulchre, weeping."

First Responsory.

[2] They have taken away my Lord, and I know not where they have laid Him. The Angels say unto her: Woman, why weepest thou? He is risen, as He said. He goeth before you into Galilee; there shall ye see Him. Alleluia, Alleluia.

Verse. And as she wept, she stooped down and looked into the Sepulchre, and saw two Angels in white, sitting; and they say unto her:

Answer. He goeth before you into Galilee; there shall ye see Him. Alleluia, Alleluia.

Second Lesson.

IN connection with this matter, we ought to ponder what great store of love there was in that woman's heart, who, when even His disciples were gone away, could not tear herself from the grave of the Lord. She sought Him Whom she had not found there, and as she sought, she wept, and the fire of love in her heart yearned after Him, Who she believed had been taken away. And so it came to pass that she, who had lingered to seek Him, was the only one who then saw Him, since the back-bone of a good work is endurance, and the voice of the Truth Himself hath said: "He that endureth to the end shall be saved." (Matth. x. 22; xxiv. 13.)

Second Responsory.

Rejoice with me, all ye that love the Lord: for I sought Him and He hath appeared unto me; and while as I was weeping at the Sepulchre, I saw the Lord. Alleluia, Alleluia.

Verse. When His disciples were gone away, I tarried still; and the fire of love in mine heart glowed for Him.

Answer. And while as I was weeping at the Sepulchre, I saw the Lord. Alleluia, Alleluia.

Verse. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, and to the Holy Ghost.

Answer. And while as I was weeping at the Sepulchre, I saw the Lord. Alleluia, Alleluia.

Third Lesson.

AS Mary wept there, she stooped down and looked into the Sepulchre. It was but a little while and she had seen how the Sepulchre was empty, and had told that the Lord was taken away. Why then should she stoop down and look in again? But she loved Him so well, that one look was not enough; the energy of her affection constrained her to search again and again. She began by searching and not finding; but she endured in her search, and, behold, it came to pass that she found. And this was done that our own longings for Christ's presence might be taught to expand, and know that as they expand they will meet with Him to Whom they aspire.

LAUDS.

Antiphon at the Song of Zacharias. Mary stood without at the Sepulchre weeping, * and saw two Angels in white, sitting, and the napkin that had been about the Head of JESUS. Alleluia.

Prayer throughout the day.

O GOD, Who dost make all nations, how diverse soever they be, to become one family in giving of praise to Thy Name, grant unto all them that are born again in the fountain of baptism to live ever in oneness of faith, and godliness of works. Through our Lord JESUS Christ Thy Son, Who liveth and reigneth with Thee, in the unity of the Holy Ghost, one God, world without end. Amen.

VESPERS.

Antiphon at the Song of the Blessed Virgin. They have taken away my Lord, * and I know not where they have laid Him: if thou have borne Him hence, tell me,—Alleluia,—and I will take Him away—Alleluia.

MATTINS.

Verse. The Lord is risen indeed—Alleluia.

Answer. And hath appeared to Simon—Alleluia.

Absolution. May His loving-kindness, &c.

First Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Holy Gospel according to Matthew (xxviii. 16.)

AT that time: The eleven disciples went away into Galilee, into a mountain where JESUS had appointed them. And so on.

Homily by St Jerome, Priest [at Bethlehem.] (Bk. iv. Comm. on the end of Matth.)

After His Resurrection JESUS was seen on a mountain in Galilee, and there He was worshipped; and, albeit some doubted, their doubts have led to a further establishing of our faith. Then He showed Himself more openly unto Thomas, and made him handle the Side That was pierced with the spear, and the Hands wherein were the holes of the nails.

"And JESUS came and spake unto them, saying: All power is given unto Me in heaven and in earth." Yea, all power is given unto Him Who but a little while before had been crucified, and buried in the grave, and had lain among the dead, but Who also had risen again. Power is given unto Him in heaven and in earth, that He Who of everlasting had been King of heaven, might have a Monarchy on earth also, through the faith of them which believe in Him.

First Responsory.

[1] After that our Lord JESUS was risen again, He came and stood in the midst of His disciples, and said unto them: Peace be unto you. Alleluia. Then were the disciples glad, when they saw the Lord. Alleluia.

Verse. The first day of the week, when the doors were shut where the disciples were assembled, came JESUS, and stood in the midst, and said unto them:

Answer. Peace be unto you. Alleluia. Then were the disciples glad, when they saw the Lord. Alleluia.

Second Lesson.

"GO ye therefore and teach all nations, baptizing them in the Name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost." First, they teach all nations; then, they wash with water them whom they have taught. For it is impossible for the body to receive the Sacrament of Baptism, unless the mind first receive the truth of the faith. And they are baptized "In the Name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost"—for, even as the Godhead of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost, is all One, so is the one grace of Baptism the gift of all the Three Divine Persons: and the Name of the Trinity is the Name of One God.

Second Responsory.

[2] Purge out the old leaven, that ye may be new dough: for even Christ our Passover is sacrificed for us: therefore let us keep the Feast, in the Lord. Alleluia.

Verse. [3] He died for our offences, and rose again for our justification.

Answer. Therefore let us keep the Feast, in the Lord. Alleluia.

Verse. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, and to the Holy Ghost.

Answer. Therefore let us keep the Feast, in the Lord. Alleluia.

Third Lesson.

"TEACHING them to observe all things whatsoever I have commanded you."

The order of the Lord's commands to the Apostles is markedly this. First, to teach all nations; secondly, to make them partake in the Sacrament of the faith; thirdly, when they had believed and been baptized, to teach them what to observe. And lest we should think that He commanded things light and few, He hath said: "All things whatsoever I have commanded you,"—so that all, who have believed and been baptized in the Name of the Trinity, are bound to observe all things whatsoever He hath commanded.

"And, lo, I am with you alway, even unto the end of the world."

He Who promiseth that He will be with His disciples even unto the end of the world, doth give them thereby to know that they will be alway conquerors, and that He will never fail any which believe in Him.

LAUDS.

Antiphon at the Song of Zacharias. When the eleven disciples * saw the Lord in Galilee, they worshipped Him. Alleluia.

Prayer throughout the day.

O ALMIGHTY and everlasting God, Who hast made the Mystery of the Passover the seal of the Covenant of man's Redemption, grant unto our souls that we may not only outwardly observe the same, but may effectually bring forth the fruits thereof. Through our Lord JESUS Christ Thy Son, Who liveth and reigneth with Thee, in the unity of the Holy Ghost, one God, world without end. Amen.

VESPERS.

Antiphon at the Song of the Blessed Virgin. All power is given unto Me * in heaven and in earth. Alleluia.

MATTINS.

Verse. The disciples were glad—Alleluia.
Answer. When they saw the Lord—Alleluia.

Absolution. May the Almighty, &c.

First Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Holy Gospel according to John (xx. 1.)

AT that time: On the first day of the week cometh Mary Magdalene early, when it was yet dark, unto the Sepulchre. And so on.

Homily by Pope St Gregory [the Great.] (22nd on the Gospels.)

Dearly beloved brethren, the portion of the Holy Gospel which hath just now been read in your ears, is exceeding simple on the face of it, which is its historical sense; but the mystic sense, which underlieth that other, requireth from us a little searching. Mary Magdalene came unto the Sepulchre when it was yet dark. The historic sense telleth us what was the hour of day; the mystic sense, the state of her understanding who sought. Mary Magdalene sought for Him, by Whom all things were made, and Whom she had seen die, as concerning the flesh; she sought for Him, I say, in the grave, and finding Him not, she believed that He had been stolen away. Yea, it was yet dark, when she came unto the sepulchre. Then she ran and told the disciples, but they who had loved Him most, namely Peter and John, did outrun the others.

First Responsory.

[2] Christ, being raised from the dead, dieth no more; death hath no more dominion over Him: for in that He died, He died unto sin once; but in that He liveth, He liveth unto God. Alleluia, Alleluia.
Verse. He died once for our offences, and rose again for our justification.
Answer. But in that He liveth, He liveth unto God. Alleluia, Alleluia.

Second Lesson.

"SO they ran both together, but John did outrun Peter, and came first to the Sepulchre," but yet took he not upon himself to go in first. "Then cometh Peter following him, and went in." What, my brethren, what did the racing of these Apostles signify? Can we believe that the description given by the deepest of the Evangelists is without a mystic interpretation? By no means. John had never told how that he did outrun Peter, and yet went not into the Sepulchre, if he had not believed that his hesitation veiled some mystery. What signifieth John but the Synagogue? or Peter, but the Church?

Second Responsory.

[3] These are the new lambs, who have proclaimed — Alleluia: they came but just now to the well: they are all filled with light. Alleluia, Alleluia.
Verse. [4] In the presence of the Lamb they are clothed with white robes, and hold palms in their hands.
Answer. They are all filled with light. Alleluia, Alleluia.
Verse. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, and to the Holy Ghost.
Answer. They are all filled with light. Alleluia, Alleluia.

Third Lesson.

NEITHER must ye take it as strange that the elder Apostle should represent the Church, and the younger the Synagogue: for although the Synagogue was first to worship God, yet the herd of Gentiles is in the world older than the Synagogue, as witnesseth Paul where he saith: "That was not first which is spiritual, but that which is natural." (1 Cor. xv. 46.) By Peter, then, who was the elder, is signified the Church of the Gentiles; and by John, who was the younger, the Synagogue of the Jews. They run both of them together, for from the time of her birth until now, (and so will it be until the end,) the Church of the Gentiles hath run in a parallel road and [manywise] a common road with the Synagogue, albeit not with equal understandings. The Synagogue came first to the Sepulchre, but she hath not yet entered in; for, though she hath received the commandments of the law, and hath heard the Prophets tell of the Incarnation and Passion of the Lord, she will not believe in Him Who died for her.

LAUDS.

Antiphon at the Song of Zacharias. They ran * both together, and that other disciple did outrun Peter, and came first to the Sepulchre. Alleluia.

Prayer.

GRANT, we beseech Thee, O Almighty God, that we who have kept worshipfully the Passover holidays, may at last worthily pass from keeping Feasts unto Thee here to the everlasting jubilation hereafter. Through our Lord JESUS Christ Thy Son, Who liveth and reigneth with Thee, in the unity of the Holy Ghost, one God, world without end. Amen.

The same Prayer at Terce, Sext, and None.

Chapter and Prayer from the following Lauds.

Hymn.[1]

THE Lamb's high banquet we await,
In snow-white robes of royal state,
And now, the Red Sea's channel past,
To Christ our Prince we sing at last.

Upon the Altar of the Cross
His Body hath redeemed our loss:
And tasting of His roseate[2] Blood,
Our life is hid with Him in God.

[3]That Paschal Eve God's arm was bared:
The devastating Angel spared;
By strength of hand our hosts went free
From Pharaoh's ruthless tyranny.

Now Christ our Paschal Lamb is slain,
The Lamb of God That knows no stain,
The true Oblation offered here,
Our own unleavened Bread sincere.

O Thou, from Whom hell's monarch flies,
O Great, O Very Sacrifice,
Thy captive people are set free,
And endless life restored in Thee.

For Christ, arising from the dead,
From conquered hell victorious sped:
And thrust the tyrant down to chains,
And Paradise for man regains.

Author of all, be Thou our Guide
In this our joy of Eastertide;
Whene'er the assaults of death impend,
Thy people strengthen and defend.

To Thee, Who, dead, again dost live,
All glory, Lord, Thy people give;
All glory, as is ever meet,
To Father and to Paraclete. Amen.

Verse. Lord, [4] abide with us—Alleluia.

Answer. For it is toward evening—Alleluia.

Antiphon at the Song of the Blessed Virgin. [5] At evening, being the first day of the week, * when the doors were shut where the disciples were assembled, JESUS stood in the midst, and said unto them: Peace be unto you. Alleluia.

The Commemoration of the Cross is not made.

"Bless we the Lord" and "Thanks be to God" are this evening and henceforward said without "Alleluia."

At Compline, the Preces are omitted.

Note. That at Compline on this night the last Verse of the Hymn is altered in honour of the Resurrection, and the same is the case henceforward with the Hymns at Compline, Prime, Terce, Sext, and None, on all days, Feasts included, until the First Vespers of the Ascension, exclusive. The only exception is where the Hymns may be specially altered in honour of the Incarnation (for instance, those in any Office in honour of the Blessed Virgin.)

Low Sunday.

This day commence the Paschal Antiphons, &c., in the Psalter.

MATTINS.

Invitatory. The Lord is risen indeed. * Alleluia.

Hymn.[6]

ETERNAL King of heaven, Whose Word,
Called forth creation from its rest,
Before the ages Thou art Lord
In Thine Eternal Father's breast.

Thou, when earth's dawning sun began
To chase the chaos-shades away,
In Thine own image madest man,
And didst inspire the senseless clay.

But Satan's craft, and Satan's wile
Could mar that work so very good;
And Eden's wood must man beguile
That God may reign from off the wood.

O born of Mary's virgin womb,
[7]First-fruits of death's dark womb to be,
Thou bidd'st us waken from the tomb,
And rise to light and life with Thee.

[8]Eternal Shepherd of the sheep,
The stone lay heavy on the well;
The clear Baptismal spring lies deep,
But Thou hast helped Thine Israël!

Redeemer of the sons of men,
Thou hungest dying on the Rood
That Thou might'st pay the price again
Of our salvation in Thy Blood.

O JESUS, Saviour, lead us in
With Thee in safety to abide,
And call us from the grave of sin
To rise with Thee this Eastertide.

Now to the Father, and the Son
Who rose from death, be glory given;
With Thee, O holy Comforter!
Henceforth by all in earth and heaven.
Amen.

FIRST NOCTURN.

First Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Epistle of the Blessed Apostle Paul to the Colossians (iii. 1.)

IF ye be risen with Christ, seek those things which are above, where Christ sitteth on the right hand of God. Set your affection on things above, not on things on the earth. For ye are dead, and your life is hid with Christ in God. When Christ, Who is your life, shall appear, then shall ye also appear with Him in glory. Mortify, therefore, your members which are upon the earth, fornication, uncleanness, lust, evil concupiscence, and covetousness, which is idolatry: for which things' sake the wrath of God cometh on the children of disobedience; in the which ye also walked some time, when ye lived in them.

[2] "The poet," says Dr Neale, (Preface to Mediæval Hymns, VII.,) "would tell us that, though one Drop of our Lord's Blood was sufficient to redeem the world, yet out of the greatness of His love to us He would shed all. As every one knows, the last drainings of life-blood are not crimson, but of a far paler hue: strictly speaking, roseate." For the doctrine, he cites the sixth verse of the "Adoro Te devote" of St Thomas Aquinas.

Second Lesson.

BUT do ye also put off all these; anger, wrath, malice, blasphemy, filthy communication out of your mouth. Lie not one to another, seeing that ye have put off the old man with his deeds, and have put on the new man, which is renewed in knowledge after the image of Him That created him: where there is neither Greek nor Jew, circumcision nor uncircumcision, barbarian, Scythian, bond nor free; but Christ is all and in all. Verse. Seek ye JESUS of Nazareth, Which was crucified? He is risen, He is not here.

Third Lesson.

AND above all these things, &c., continuation of the preceding, and the next Lesson as far as "thanks to God and the Father by Him."

Third Responsory.

When the Sabbath was passed, &c., (p. 349.)

SECOND NOCTURN.

Fourth Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Sermons of St Austin, Bishop [of Hippo.] (1*st Sermon for the Octave of the Passover, being the* 157*th for the Seasons.*)

THE Feast of this day is the end of the Paschal solemnity, and therefore it is to-day that the Newly-Baptized put off their white garments: but, though they lay aside the outward mark of washing in their raiment, the mark of that washing in their souls remaineth to eternity. Now are the days of the Pass-over, that is, of God's Passing-over[2] our iniquity by His pardon and remission; and therefore our first duty is so to sanctify the mirth of these holy days, that our bodily recreation may be taken without defilement to our spiritual cleanness. Let us strive that our relaxation may be sober and our freedom holy, holding ourselves carefully aloof from anything like excess, drunkenness or lechery. Let us try so to keep in our souls their Lenten cleansing, that if our Fasting hath left us aught yet unwon, we may still be able to seek it.

Fourth Responsory.

Mary Magdalene, &c., (p. 350.)

Fifth Lesson.

MY discourse concerneth all them which are committed unto my spiritual charge; but, nevertheless, since the first happy week of your Sacramental life draweth this day to a close, I address myself in especial to [3]you who are the new olive-plants of holiness round about the Table of the Lord, (Ps. cxxvii. 4,) to you, who have but a little while been born again of water and the Holy Ghost, (John iii. 5,) to you, O holy generation (1 Pet. ii. 9) to you, O new creation, (Gal. vi. 15,) to you, the excellency of my dignity, (Gen. xlix. 3,) and the fruit of my labour, my brethren dearly beloved and longed for, my joy and my crown, all ye who now stand so fast in the Lord. (Phil. iv. 1.) To you I address the words of the Apostle (Rom. xiii. 12.) "Behold! the night is past! the day is come! Cast off therefore the works of darkness, and put on the armour of light. Let us walk honestly, as in the day; [4]not in rioting and drunkenness, not in chambering and wantonness, not in strife and envying: but put ye on the Lord JESUS Christ."

Fifth Responsory.

The Good Shepherd, &c., (p. 350,) omitting the last Verse and Answer.

Sixth Lesson.

"WE have," saith Peter, (2 Peter i. 19,) "a more sure word of Prophecy, whereunto ye do well that ye take heed, as unto a light that shineth in a dark place, until the day dawn, and the day-star arise in your hearts." "Let your loins therefore be girded about, and your lights burning in your hands, and ye yourselves like unto men that wait for their lord, when he will return from the wedding." (Luke xii. 36.) Behold, the days come, whereof the Lord saith, (John xvi. 16, 17, 19,) "A little while, and ye shall not see Me, and again a little while and ye shall see Me." Now is the hour whereof He said (20), "Ye shall weep and lament, but the world shall rejoice"—that is to say, this present life, wherein we walk as strangers and pilgrims, (1 Pet. ii. 11,) far away from Him Who is our Home, this present life is very full of trials. "BUT," saith JESUS, "but—I will see you again, and your heart shall rejoice, and your joy no man taketh from you." (22.)

Sixth Responsory.

With great power, &c., (p. 351,) with this addition:

Verse. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, and to the Holy Ghost.

Answer. Witness of the Resurrection of our Lord JESUS Christ.

---

[1] Cf. Matth. xxviii. 5, 6.

[2] This is not a pun, but literally correct. God Himself gave this name to this Festival, (Exod. xii. 11-13,) as it is written: "It is the LORD'S Passover (PESACH.) For I will pass through the land of Egypt this night, and will smite all the first-born in the land of Egypt, both man and beast; and against all the gods of Egypt will I execute judgment: I am the LORD. And the blood" (of the Paschal lamb sprinkled on the lintel and door-posts) "shall be unto you for a token upon the houses where ye are; and when I see the blood, I will pass over you (W-PHASACH-TI,) and the plague shall not be upon you to destroy you, when I smite the land of Egypt."

[3] Those baptized on Holy Saturday.

[4] When the Saint uttered these words to the Neophytes he must have keenly remembered the part they had played in his own life. Conf. viii. 12. Alban Butler, Aug. 28. (Vol. viii. p. 417.)

THIRD NOCTURN.

Seventh Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Holy Gospel according to John (xx. 19.)

AT that time, being the same day at evening, the first day of the week, when the doors were shut where the disciples were assembled for fear of the Jews, came JESUS, and stood in the midst, and said unto them: Peace be unto you. And so on.

Homily by Pope St Gregory [the Great.] (26*th on the Gospels.*)

When we hear this passage of the Gospel read, a question straightway knocketh at the door of our mind. How was it that the Body of the Risen Lord was a real Body, if It was able to pass through closed doors into the assembly of His disciples? But we ought to know that the works of God are no more wonderful when they can be understood by man's reason, and faith has lost her worth when her subject-matter is the subject-matter of human demonstration. Nevertheless, those very works of our Redeemer which are in themselves impossible to be understood, must be thought over in connection with other of His works, that we may be led to believe in things wonderful, by mean of things more wonderful still. That Body of the Lord, Which came into the assembly of the disciples through closed doors, was the Same, Which at Its birth, had become manifest to the eyes of men by passing out of the cloister of the Virgin's womb without breaking the seal thereof. What wonder is it if that Body Which had come out of the Virgin's womb, without opening the matrix, albeit It was then on Its way to die, now that It was risen again from the dead and instinct for ever with undying life, what wonder is it, I say, if that Body passed through closed doors?

Seventh Responsory.

From the mouth, &c., (p. 351,) omitting the last Verse and Answer.

Eighth Lesson.

BUT since the beholders doubted of the reality of that Body Which they saw, "He showed unto them His Hands and His Side," and allowed them to handle that Same Flesh Which had just passed through the closed doors. (Luke xxiv. 39.) In this there were two strange things manifested, yea, things which according to our understanding are contrary the one to the other. His Risen Body was incorruptible and yet palpable. For whatever can be touched, must needs be subject to corruption; and whatever is not subject to corruption, cannot be touched. But, in a way altogether wonderful and incomprehensible, our Redeemer after His Resurrection revealed Himself in a Body at once palpable and incorruptible: revealed Himself in an incorruptible Body, that we might learn to seek a like glorification; and in a palpable Body, for the strengthening of our faith. He revealed Himself in a Body at once incorruptible and palpable, that He might thereby make manifest the fact that His Risen Body was unaltered in nature, albeit transfigured in glory.

Eighth Responsory.

After that our Lord, &c., (p. 354,) with this addition:

Verse. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, and to the Holy Ghost.

Answer. Peace be unto you. Alleluia. Then were the disciples glad, when they saw the Lord. Alleluia.

Ninth Lesson.

"THEN said JESUS to them again: Peace be unto you. As My Father hath sent Me, even so send I you"—that is, as My Father, Who is God, hath sent Me, Who am God, even so do I, Who am Man, send you, who are men. The Father sent the Son, Whom He appointed to be made Man for the redemption of man. Him He willed to send into the world to suffer, albeit He Whom He sent to suffer was the Son of His love. The Lord sendeth His chosen Apostles into the world, not to be happy in the world, but, as He had been Himself sent, to suffer. As the Father loveth the Son and yet sendeth Him to suffer, even so doth the Lord love His disciples, albeit He sendeth them into the world, to suffer therein; and therefore it is well said: "As My Father hath sent Me, even so send I you"—that is, while I send you into the wild storm of persecution, I love you all the same, I love you, yea, I love you with a love like that wherewith the Father loveth Me, Who sent Me into the world to bear agony therein.

The Hymn, "We praise Thee, O God, &c.," is said.

Chapter. (1 John v. 4.)

DEARLY beloved brethren, whatsoever is born of God overcometh the world; and this is the victory that overcometh the world, even our faith.

Hymn.[1]

THE dawn was redd'ning in the sky,
With "Alleluias" rang the air;
Earth held a glorious jubilee,
Hell gnashed its teeth in fierce despair:

When our most valiant mighty King
From death's abyss in dread array
Led the long-prisoned Fathers forth
Into the beam of light and day:

When He Whom stone, and seal, and guard,
Had safely to the tomb consigned
Triumphant rose and buried death
Deep in the grave He left behind:

"Calm all your grief and still your tears,"—
Hark, the descending angel cries,—
"For Christ is risen from the dead,
And death is slain, no more to rise."

O JESUS, from the death of sin
Keep us, we pray; so shalt Thou be
The everlasting Paschal joy
Of all the souls new-born in Thee.

Now to the Father, and the Son
Who rose from death, be glory given;
With Thee, O Holy Comforter!
Henceforth by all in earth and heaven.
Amen.

Verse. Let the heavens and the earth be glad. Alleluia.

Answer. For Thou art risen again, O Christ! Alleluia.

Antiphon at the Song of Zacharias. Then the same day at evening, being the first day of the week, when the doors were shut where the disciples were assembled, for fear of the Jews, JESUS stood in the midst, and said unto them: Peace be unto you. Alleluia.

FOR who is he that overcometh the world, but he that believeth that JESUS is the son of God? This is He That came by Water and Blood, even JESUS Christ; not by Water only, but by Water and Blood.

Chapter at None. (1 John v. 9.)

IF we receive the witness of men, the witness of God is greater, since this is the witness of God that is greater, that He hath testified of His Son. He that believeth on the Son of God, hath the witness of God in himself.

First Lesson.

Here beginneth the [1] Book of the Acts of the Apostles (i. 1.)

THE former Treatise [2] have I made, O Theophilus,[3] of all that JESUS began both to do and to teach, until the day in which He was taken up, after that He through the Holy Ghost had given commandments unto the Apostles whom He had chosen: to whom also He showed Himself alive after His Passion, by many infallible proofs, being seen of them forty days, and speaking of the things pertaining to the kingdom of God, and, eating together with them, He commanded that they should not depart from Jerusalem, but wait for the Promise of the Father, "Which," saith He, "ye have heard by My Mouth: for John truly baptized with water, but ye shall be baptized with the Holy Ghost not many days hence." They therefore that were come together, asked of Him, saying: Lord, wilt Thou at this time restore again the kingdom to Israël? And He said unto them: It is not for you to know the times or the seasons, which the Father hath put in His Own power; but ye shall receive the power of the Holy Ghost coming upon you, and ye shall be witnesses unto Me, both in Jerusalem and in all Judea, and in Samaria, and unto the uttermost part of the earth.

First Responsory.

With great power, &c., (p. 351.)

Second Lesson.

AND when He had spoken these things, while they beheld, He was taken up, and a cloud received Him out of their sight. And while they looked up steadfastly toward heaven, as He went up, behold two men stood by them in white apparel, which also said: Ye men of Galilee, why stand ye gazing up into heaven? This same JESUS, Which is taken up from you into heaven, shall so come in like manner as ye have seen Him go into heaven. Then returned they unto Jerusalem from the Mount called Olivet, which is nigh unto Jerusalem, about a Sabbath-day's journey. And when they were come into the Supper-room, they went up where abode Peter and John, James and Andrew, Philip and Thomas, Bartholomew and Matthew, James the son of Alphæus, and Judas the brother of James. These all were continuing with one accord in prayer with the women, and Mary the Mother of JESUS, and with His brethren.

Second Responsory.

From the mouth, &c., (p. 351.)

Third Lesson.

IN these days Peter stood up in the midst of the brethren, and said, (the number of the names together were about an hundred and twenty): Men and brethren, this Scripture must needs be fulfilled, which the Holy Ghost by the mouth of David spake before concerning Judas, which was guide to them that took JESUS: for he was numbered with us, and had obtained part of this ministry. Now this man purchased a field with the reward of iniquity; and he hanged himself,[4] and burst asunder in the midst, and all his bowels gushed out. And it was known unto all the dwellers at Jerusalem, insomuch as that field is called in their proper tongue, "Aceldama," that is to say, The field of blood. For it is written in the Book of Psalms: "Let their habitation be desolate, and let none dwell therein," (lxviii. 26,) and: "Let another take his office," (cviii. 8.) Wherefore, of these men which have companied with us all the time that the Lord JESUS went in and out among us, beginning from the Baptism of John, unto that same day that

And they prayed and said: Thou, Lord, Which knowest the hearts of all men, show whether of these two Thou hast chosen, that he may take part of this ministry and Apostleship; from which Judas by transgression fell, that he might go to his own place. And they gave forth their lots, and the lot fell upon Matthias, and he was numbered with the eleven Apostles.

Third Day.

MATTINS.

First Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Acts of the Apostles (ii. 1.)

AND when the day of Pentecost was fully come, they were all with one accord in one place: and suddenly there came a sound from heaven, as of a rushing mighty wind, and it filled all the house where they were sitting. And there appeared unto them cloven tongues, as it were of fire, and it sat upon each of them; and they were all filled with the Holy Ghost, and began to speak with other tongues, as the Holy Spirit gave them utterance. And there were dwelling at Jerusalem Jews, devout men, of every nation under heaven. Now when this was noised abroad, the multitude came together, and were confounded, because that every man heard them speak in his own language. And they were all amazed and marvelled, saying: Behold, are not all these which speak Galileans? And how hear we every man in our own tongue wherein we were born?

First Responsory.

Behold, the Lion, &c., (p. 352.)

Second Lesson.

BUT Peter, standing up with the eleven, lifted up his voice, and said unto them: Ye men of Judæa, and all ye that dwell at Jerusalem, be this known unto you, and hearken unto my words: For these are not drunken, as ye suppose, seeing it is but the third hour of the day, but this is that which was spoken by the Prophet Joel (ii. 28-32): "And it shall come to pass in the last days,"[4] saith the Lord, "I will pour out My Spirit upon all flesh, and your sons and your daughters shall prophesy,[5] and your young men shall see visions, and your old men shall dream dreams. And also upon My servants and upon My handmaids in those days will I pour out My Spirit, and they shall prophesy:[6] and I will show wonders in the heaven above, and in the earth beneath, blood, and fire, and vapour of smoke. The sun shall be turned into darkness, and the moon into blood, before the great and terrible day of the LORD come. And it shall come to pass that, whosoever shall call on the Name of the LORD shall be delivered."

Second Responsory.

I am the True Vine, &c., (p. 352.)

Third Lesson.

YE men of Israël, hear these words: JESUS of Nazareth, a Man approved of God among you, by miracles, and wonders, and signs, which God did by Him, in the midst of you, as ye yourselves also know; Him, being delivered by the predeterminate counsel and foreknowledge of God, ye have taken, and by wicked hands have tormented and slain: Whom God hath raised up, having loosed the pains of death, because it was not possible that He should be holden of it. For David speaketh concerning Him (Ps. xv. 8-10): "I have set the LORD always before Me; because He is at My right hand, I shall not be moved. Therefore My Heart is glad and My Tongue rejoiceth: My Flesh also shall rest in hope. For Thou wilt not leave My Soul in hell: neither wilt Thou suffer Thine Holy One to see corruption."

MATTINS.

First Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Acts of the Apostles (v. 1.)

BUT a certain man named Ananias, with Sapphira his wife, sold a possession, and kept back part of the price, his wife also being privy to it: and he brought a certain part and laid it at the Apostles' feet. But Peter said: Ananias, why hath Satan tempted thine heart to lie to the Holy Ghost, and to keep back part of the price of the land? Whiles it remained, was it not thine own? and after it was sold, was it not in thine own power? Why hast thou conceived this thing in thine heart? Thou hast not lied unto men, but unto God. And Ananias, hearing these words, fell down and gave up the ghost. And great fear came on all them that heard these things. And the young men arose, took him up, and carried him out, and buried him.

First Responsory.

Christ being raised, &c., (p. 355.)

Second Lesson.

AND it was about the space of three hours after, when his wife, not knowing what was done, came in. Then Peter said unto her: Woman, tell me whether ye sold the land for so much? And she said: Yea, for so much. And Peter said unto her: How is it that ye have agreed together to tempt the Spirit of the Lord? Behold, the feet of them which have buried thine husband are at the door, and shall carry thee out. She fell down straightway at his feet, and yielded up the ghost. And the young men came in and found her dead, and, carrying her forth, buried her by her husband. And great fear came upon all the Church, and upon as many as heard these things.

Second Responsory.

The Good Shepherd, &c., (p. 350.)

Third Lesson.

AND by the hands of the Apostles were many signs and wonders wrought among the people. And they were all with one accord in Solomon's Porch. And of the rest durst no man join himself unto them; but the people magnified them. And believers were the more added to the Lord, multitudes both of men and women, insomuch that they brought forth the sick into the streets, and laid them on beds and couches, that at the least the shadow of Peter passing by might overshadow some of them, and they might be delivered from their infirmities. There came also a multitude out of the cities round about Jerusalem, bringing sick folks, and them which were vexed with unclean spirits: and they were healed every one.

MATTINS.

First Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Acts of the Apostles (viii. 9.)

BUT there was a certain man called Simon, which before-time in the same city [7] used sorcery, and bewitched the people of Samaria, giving out that himself was some great one :[1] to whom they all gave heed, from the least to the greatest, saying : This man is the great power of God. And to him they had regard, because that of long time he had bewitched them with sorceries. But when they believed Philip preaching the things concerning the kingdom of God, they were baptised in the Name of JESUS Christ,[2] both men and women. Then Simon himself believed also : and when he was baptized, he continued with Philip, and wondered, beholding the miracles and signs which were done.

First Responsory.

With great power, &c., (p. 351.)

Second Lesson.

NOW when the Apostles which were at Jerusalem heard that Samaria had received the Word of God, they sent unto them Peter and John : who, when they were come down, prayed for them, that they might receive the Holy Ghost ; for as yet He was fallen upon none of them, but they were only baptized in the Name of the Lord JESUS. Then laid they their hands on them, and they received the Holy Ghost. And when Simon saw that through laying on of the Apostles' hands the Holy Ghost was given, he offered them money, saying : Give me also this power, that on whomsoever I lay hands, he may receive the Holy Ghost.

Second Responsory.

From the mouth, &c., (p. 351.)

Third Lesson.

BUT Peter said unto him : Thy money perish with thee, because thou hast thought that the gift of God may be purchased with money. Thou hast neither part nor lot in this matter : for thy heart is not right in the sight of God. Repent therefore of this thy wickedness, and pray God, if perhaps the thought of thine heart may be forgiven thee. For I perceive that thou art in the gall of bitterness, and in the bond of iniquity. Then answered Simon and said : Pray ye to the Lord for me, that none of these things which ye have spoken come upon me.[3]

MATTINS.

First Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Acts of the Apostles (x. 1.)

NOW there was a certain man in Cæsarea, called Cornelius, a centurion of the band called the Italian band, a devout man, and one that feared God with all his house, which gave much alms to the people, and prayed to God alway. He saw in a vision evidently, about the ninth hour of the day, an Angel of God coming in to him, and saying unto him : Cornelius. And when he looked on him he was afraid, and said : What is it, Lord ? And he said unto him : Thy prayers and thine alms are come up for a memorial before God. And now send men to Joppa, and call for one Simon, whose surname is Peter ; he lodgeth with one Simon a tanner, whose house is by the sea side ; he shall tell thee what thou oughtest to do. And when the Angel which spake unto Cornelius was departed, he called two of his household servants, and a soldier which feared the Lord, of those whom he commanded, and when he had declared all these things to them, he sent them to Joppa.

Second Lesson.

ON the morrow, as they went on their journey, and drew nigh unto the city, Peter went up upon the house-top to pray, about the sixth hour. And he became very hungry, and would have eaten. But while they made ready, he fell into a trance ; and saw heaven opened, and a certain vessel descending unto him, as it had been a great sheet, knit at the four corners, and let down from heaven to the earth, wherein were all manner of four-footed beasts, and fowls of the air, and creeping things of the earth. And there came a voice to him : Rise, Peter, kill and eat. But Peter said : Not so, Lord : for I have never eaten anything that is common or unclean. And the voice spake unto him again the second time : What God hath cleansed, that call not thou common. This was done thrice ; and the vessel was received up again into heaven. Now while Peter doubted in himself what this vision which he had seen should mean, behold the men which were sent from Cornelius had made enquiry for Simon's house, and stood before the gate.

Third Lesson. (34.)

THEN Peter opened his mouth, and said : Of a truth I perceive that God is no respecter of persons, but in every nation he that feareth Him, and worketh righteousness is accepted with Him. The Word which God sent unto the children of Israël, preaching peace by JESUS Christ : (He is Lord of all.) Ye know that word which was published throughout all Judea : and began from Galilee, after the baptism which John preached, even JESUS of Nazareth ; how God anointed Him with the Holy Ghost and with power ; Who went about doing good, and healing all that were oppressed of the devil, for God was with Him. And we are witnesses of all things which He did, both in the land of the Jews and in Jerusalem. Whom they hanged on a tree and slew. Him God raised up the third day, and showed Him openly, not to all the people, but unto witnesses chosen before of God, even to us who did eat and drink with Him after He rose from the dead.

Good Shepherd Sunday.

The Second Lord's Day after the Passover.

MATTINS.

Invitatory and Hymn as on Low Sunday, (p. 356.)

FIRST NOCTURN.

First Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Acts of the Apostles (xiii. 13.)

NOW when Paul and his company loosed from Paphos, they came to Perga in Pamphylia: and John departing from them, returned to Jerusalem. But when they departed from Perga, they came to Antioch in Pisidia, and went into the synagogue on the Sabbath day, and sat down. And after the reading of the Law and the Prophets, the rulers of the Synagogue sent unto them, saying: Ye men and brethren, if ye have any word of exhortation for the people, say on. Then Paul stood up, and, beckoning with his hand, said: Men of Israël, and ye that fear God, give audience: the God of the people of Israël chose our fathers, and exalted the people when they dwelt as strangers in the land of Egypt, and with an high arm brought He them out of it: and about the time of forty years suffered He their manners in the wilderness. And when He had destroyed seven nations in the land of Canaan, He divided their land to them by lot, after about four hundred and fifty years; and after that, He gave unto them Judges, until Samuel the Prophet.

First Responsory.

With great power, &c., (p. 351.)

Second Lesson.

AND afterward they desired a king, and God gave unto them Saul the son of Kish, a man of the tribe of Benjamin, by the space of forty years. And when He had removed him, He raised up unto them David to be their king, to whom He gave testimony and said: "I have found David the son of Jesse, a man after Mine Own heart, which shall fulfil all My will."[2] Of this man's seed hath God, according to His promise raised unto Israël a Saviour, JESUS: when John had first preached, before His coming, the baptism of repentance to all the people of Israël. And as John fulfilled his course, he said: "I am not He Who ye think that I am; but, behold, there cometh One after me, Whose shoes of His Feet I am not worthy to loose." (Mark i. 7.)

Second Responsory.

From the mouth, &c., (p. 351,) omitting the last Verse and Answer.

Third Lesson.

MEN and brethren, children of the stock of Abraham, and whosoever among you feareth God, to you is the word of this salvation sent. For they that dwelled at Jerusalem, and their rulers, because they knew Him not, nor yet the voices of the Prophets, which are read every Sabbath day, they have fulfilled them in condemning Him. And though they found no cause of death in Him, yet desired they Pilate that He should be slain. And when they had fulfilled all that was written of Him, they took Him down from the tree, and laid Him in a Sepulchre. But God raised Him from the dead on the third day; and He was seen many days of them which came up with Him from Galilee to Jerusalem, who are His witnesses unto the people. And we declare unto you glad tidings, how that the promise which was made unto our fathers, God hath fulfilled the same unto us their children, in that He hath raised up JESUS again, as it is also written in the Second Psalm (7): "Thou art My Son; this day have I begotten Thee."

Third Responsory.

Behold the Lion, &c., (p. 352,) with this addition:

Verse. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, and to the Holy Ghost.

Answer. Alleluia, Alleluia, Alleluia.

SECOND NOCTURN.

Fourth Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Sermons of Pope St Leo [the Great.] (1st for the Lord's Ascension.)

DEARLY beloved brethren, the days which passed between the Resurrection and the Ascension of the Lord, wore not idly by, but in them were established great Sacraments, and great Mysteries were revealed. In them was abolished the terror of that fearful death, and it was shown that not the soul only, but the body also, will not die eternally. In them the breathing of the Lord on His Apostles shed upon them the Holy Ghost, and the Blessed Apostle Peter, being given the keys of the kingdom of heaven, was chosen out of the rest to receive the chief care of the Lord's fold.

Fourth Responsory.

I am the True Vine, &c., (p. 352,) omitting the last Verse and Answer.

Fifth Lesson.

IT was during those days, that as two of His disciples were walking together, the Lord Himself joined them, and made Himself One of three companions. Then that, to clear away all shadow of doubt from our mind, He rebuked the slowness of such as still feared and trembled. Their hearts enlightened by faith, caught the flame; and, whereas they had afore been cold, they glowed again as the Lord opened to them the Scriptures. In the breaking of bread their eyes were opened, and they knew Him. And, O, how much happier were they with their eyes opened, and gazing upon the glorification of our nature in His Person, than were the first father and mother of our race, upon whom their own transgression had brought shame!

[1] John x. 11, 9, 14; xiv. 6.

[2] Apparently this quotation is a sort of cento of Ps. lxxxviii. 21, and 1 Kings (Sam.) xiii. 14.

Fifth Responsory.

After that our Lord, &c., (p. 354.)

Sixth Lesson.

AMID these and other miracles, while the disciples were still troubled with fearful thoughts, the Lord manifested Himself in the midst of them, and said: "Peace be unto you." And lest their reason should be deceived by the vain imaginations which lurked in their hearts, (for they thought that What they saw was a spirit, and not Flesh,) He rebuked thoughts so inconsistent with the truth; and pointed out to the eyes of the doubters the marks of crucifixion which still remained in His Hands and His Feet, and bade them handle Him more closely. Those open Wounds made by the nails and spear in His Body remain ever open to close the wounds in unbelievers' hearts: that we may hold, not with doubtful faith, but with most firm and absolute knowledge, that the Manhood Which lay in the grave is the Same Which now sitteth at the right hand of God the Father.

Sixth Responsory.

Purge out, &c., (p. 354.)

THIRD NOCTURN.

Seventh Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Holy Gospel according to John (x. 11.)

AT that time: JESUS said unto the Pharisees: I am the Good Shepherd. The Good Shepherd giveth His life for His sheep. And so on.

Homily by Pope St Gregory [the Great.] (14th on the Gospels.)

Dearly beloved brethren, ye have heard from the Holy Gospel what is at once your instruction, and our danger. Behold, how He Who, not by the varying gifts of nature, but of the very essence of His being, is Good, behold how He saith: "I am the Good Shepherd." And then He saith what is the character of His goodness, even of that goodness of His which we must strive to copy: "The Good Shepherd giveth His life for the Sheep." As He had foretold, even so did He; as He had commanded, so gave He ensample. The Good Shepherd gave His life for the sheep, and made His Own Body and His Own Blood to be our Sacramental Food, pasturing upon His Own Flesh the sheep whom He had bought.

Seventh Responsory.

Christ being raised, &c., (p. 355.)

Eighth Lesson.

HE, by despising death, hath shown us how to do the like; He hath set before us the mould wherein it behoveth us to be cast. Our first duty is, freely and tenderly to spend our outward things for His sheep, but lastly, if need be, to serve the same by our death also. From the light offering of the first, we go on to the stern offering of the last, and, if we be ready to give our life for the sheep, why should we scruple to give our substance, seeing how much "more is the life than meat?" (Matth. vi. 25.)

Eighth Responsory.

The Good Shepherd, &c., (p. 350.)

Ninth Lesson.

AND some there be which love the things of this world better than they love the sheep; and such as they deserve no longer to be called shepherds. These are they of whom it is written: "But he that is an hireling, and not the shepherd, whose own the sheep are not, seeth the wolf coming, and leaveth the sheep, and fleeth" (12.) He is not a shepherd but an hireling which feedeth the Lord's sheep, not because he loveth their souls, but because he doth gain earthly wealth thereby. He that taketh a shepherd's place, but seeketh not gain of souls, that same is but an hireling; such an one is ever ready for creature-comforts, he loveth his pre-eminence, he groweth sleek upon his income, and he liketh well to see men bow down to him.

Second Day.

MATTINS.

First Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Acts of the Apostles (xv. 5.)

BUT there rose up certain of the sect of the Pharisees, which believed, saying: That it was needful to circumcise them;[1] and to command them to keep the law of Moses. And the Apostles and elders[2] came together, for to consider of this matter. And when there was much disputing, Peter rose up and said unto them: "Men and brethren, ye know how that a good while ago, God made choice among us, that the Gentiles by my mouth should hear the word of the Gospel and believe. And God Which knoweth the hearts, bare them witness, giving them the Holy Ghost, even as He did unto us; and put no difference between us and them, purifying their hearts by faith. Now, therefore, why tempt ye God, to put a yoke upon the neck of the disciples, which neither our fathers nor we were able to bear? But we believe that through the grace of the Lord JESUS Christ we shall be saved, even as they." Then all the multitude kept silence and gave audience to Barnabas and Paul, declaring what miracles and wonders God had wrought among the Gentiles by them.

First Responsory.

With great power, &c., (p. 351.)

Second Lesson.

AND after they had held their peace, James answered, saying: "Men and brethren, hearken unto me. Simon hath declared how God at the first did visit the Gentiles, to take out of them a people for His Name: and to this agree the words of the Prophets, as it is written: 'Afterward I will return,[3] and I will raise up the tabernacle of David, that is fallen, and close up the breaches thereof, and I will raise[4] it up, that the remnant of men may seek the Lord, even all the nations which are called by My Name, saith the LORD That doeth this.' (Amos ix. 11, 12.) Known unto God from everlasting are all His works. Wherefore, my sentence is, that we trouble not them, which from among the Gentiles are turned to God; but that we write unto them, that they abstain from pollutions of idols, and from fornication, and from things strangled, and from blood. For Moses of old time hath in every city them that preach him, being read in the Synagogues every Sabbath Day."

Second Responsory.

From the mouth, &c., (p. 351.)

Third Lesson.

THEN pleased it the Apostles and Elders,[5] with the whole Church, to send chosen men of their own company to Antioch, with Paul and Barnabas, [to wit,] Judas named Barsabas, and Silas, chief men among the brethren. And they wrote letters by them, [after this manner]: "The Apostles, and Elders,[5] and brethren, [send] greeting unto the brethren which are of the Gentiles, in Antioch, and Syria, and Cilicia. Forasmuch as we have heard, that certain which went out from us have troubled you with words, subverting your souls, (to whom we gave no such commandment;) it seemed good unto us, being assembled with one accord, to send chosen men unto you, with our dearly beloved Barnabas and Paul, men that have hazarded their lives for the Name of our Lord JESUS Christ. We have sent therefore Judas and Silas, who shall also tell you the same things by mouth. For it seemed good to the Holy Ghost, and to us, to lay upon you no greater burden than these necessary things: That ye abstain from meats offered to idols; and from blood; and from things strangled; and from fornication. From which if ye keep yourselves, ye shall do well. Fare ye well."

MATTINS.

First Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Acts of the Apostles (xvii. 22.)

THEN Paul stood in the midst of the Areopagus,[8] and said: "Ye men of Athens, I perceive that in all things ye are exceedingly God-fearing. For as I passed by and beheld your statues, I found also an altar with this inscription—'To the Unknown God.' Whom therefore ye ignorantly worship, Him declare I unto you. God That made the world and all things therein, seeing that He is the Lord of heaven and earth, dwelleth not in temples made with hands, neither is worshipped with men's hands, as though He needed anything, seeing that He giveth to all life, and breath, and all things; and hath made of one blood all nations of men, for to dwell on all the face of the earth, and hath determined the times before appointed, and the bounds of their habitation; that they should seek God, if haply they might feel after Him, and find Him, though He be not far from every one of us."

Second Lesson.

"FOR in Him we live, and move, and have our being: as certain also of your own poets have said: 'For we are also His offspring.'[1] Forasmuch then as we are the offspring of God, we ought not to think that the Godhead is like unto gold, or silver, or stone, graven by art and man's device. And the times of this ignorance God winked at, but now commandeth all men everywhere to repent; because He hath appointed a day in which He will judge the world in righteousness, by that Man Whom he hath ordained; whereof He hath given assurance unto all men, in that He hath raised Him from the dead"—and when they heard of the Resurrection of the dead, some mocked, and others said: "We will hear thee again of this matter." So Paul departed from among them.

Second Responsory.

I am the True Vine, &c., (p. 352.)

Third Lesson.

HOWBEIT, certain men clave to him, and believed: among which was Dionysius the Areopagite, and a woman named Damaris, and others with them (xviii.) After these things Paul departed from Athens, and came to Corinth; and found a certain Jew named Aquila, born in Pontus, lately come from Italy, with his wife Priscilla, (because that Claudius had commanded all Jews to depart from Rome,) and came unto them. And because he was of the same craft, he abode with them and wrought: for by their occupation they were tentmakers. And he reasoned in the Synagogue every Sabbath, preaching the Name of the Lord JESUS, and persuaded the Jews and the Greeks.

Fifth Day.

MATTINS.

First Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Acts of the Apostles (xxiv. 10.)

THEN Paul, (after that the Governor[5] had beckoned unto him to speak,) answered: "Forasmuch as I know that thou hast been of many years a judge unto this nation, I do the more cheerfully answer for myself. Because that thou mayest understand that there are yet but twelve days since I went up to Jerusalem for to worship. And they neither found me in the temple disputing with any man, neither raising up the people,[6] neither in the Synagogues, nor in the city: neither can they prove the things whereof they now accuse me. But this I confess unto thee, that after the way which they call heresy, so worship I my Father and God, believing all things which are written in the Law and in the Prophets: and have hope toward God, (which they themselves also look for,) that there shall be a resurrection of the dead, both of the just and unjust. And herein do I exercise myself, to have always a conscience void of offence toward God, and toward men."

Second Lesson.

"NOW after many years, I came to bring alms to my nation, and offerings, and vows. Whereupon certain Jews from Asia found me purified in the temple, neither with multitude, nor with tumult: who ought to have been here before thee, and object, if they had aught against me: or else let these same here say, if they have found any evil-doing in me, while I stood before the council, except it be for this one voice, that I cried, standing among them: 'Touching the resurrection of the dead I am called in question by you this day.'"

Second Responsory.

The Good Shepherd, &c., (p. 350.)

Third Lesson.

BUT Felix, having more perfect knowledge of that way, deferred them, and said: "When Lysias the Chief Captain shall come down, I will hear you." And he commanded a Centurion to keep Paul, and to let him have rest, and that he should forbid none of his acquaintance to minister unto him. And after certain days, when Felix came, with his wife Drusilla, which was a Jewess, he sent for Paul, and heard from him the faith which is in Christ JESUS. And as he reasoned of justice and chastity, and of judgment to come, Felix trembled; and answered: "Go thy way for this time; when I have a convenient season, I will call for thee." He hoped also that money should have been given him of Paul, that he might loose him: wherefore he sent for him the oftener, and communed with him. But after two years Porcius Festus came into Felix' room. And Felix, willing to show the Jews a pleasure, left Paul bound.

Sixth Day.

MATTINS.

First Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Acts of the Apostles (xxv. 1.)

NOW when Festus was come into the province, after three days he ascended from Cæsarea to Jerusalem. Then the chief priests and the leaders of the Jews informed him against Paul, and besought him, desiring as a favour against him, that he would send for him to Jerusalem, they laying wait in the way to kill him. But Festus answered, that Paul should be kept at Cæsarea, and that he himself would depart shortly thither. "Let them therefore," said he, "which among you are able, go down with me, and accuse this man, if there be any wickedness in him."

First Responsory.

With great power, &c., (p. 351.)

Second Lesson.

AND when he had tarried among them no more than eight or ten days, he went down unto Cæsarea; and the next day, sitting on the judgment-seat, commanded Paul to be brought. And when he was come, the Jews which came down from Jerusalem stood round about, and laid many and grievous complaints against him, which they could not prove, while Paul answered for himself: "Neither against the Law of the Jews, neither against the Temple, nor yet against Cæsar, have I offended anything at all."

Second Responsory.

Out of the mouth, &c., (p. 351.)

Third Lesson.

BUT Festus, willing to do the Jews a pleasure, answered Paul, and said: "Wilt thou go up to Jerusalem, and there be judged of these things before me?" Then said Paul: "I stand at Cæsar's judgment-seat, where I ought to be judged. To the Jews have I done no wrong, as thou very well knowest. For if I be an offender, or have committed anything worthy of death, I refuse not to die: but if there be none of these things whereof these accuse me, no man may deliver me unto them. I appeal unto Cæsar." Then Festus, when he had conferred with the council, answered: "Thou hast appealed unto Cæsar, unto Cæsar thou shalt go."[2]

The Hymn, "We praise Thee, O God, &c.," is said.

LAUDS.

Antiphon at the Song of Zacharias. [3] Ought not Christ to have suffered these things, * and so to enter into His glory? Alleluia.

The Sabbath.

MATTINS.

First Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Acts of the Apostles (xxviii. 16.)

AND when we came to Rome, Paul was suffered to dwell by himself with a soldier that kept him. And after three days he called the chief of the Jews together. And when they were come together, he said unto them: "Men and brethren, though I have committed nothing against the people, or customs of our fathers, yet was I delivered prisoner from Jerusalem into the hands of the Romans: who, when they had examined me, would have let me go, because there was no cause of death in me. But when the Jews spake against it, I was constrained to appeal unto Cæsar; not that I had aught to accuse my nation of. For this cause therefore have I called for you, to see you and to speak with you; because that for the hope of Israel I am bound with this chain."

[2] The reader is strongly recommended to read the appearance of St Paul before Festus and Agrippa, (Acts xxv., xxvi.,) and the journey of the Apostle to Rome, (xxvii., xxviii.)

[3] Luke xxiv. 26.

Second Lesson.

AND they said unto him: "We neither received letters out of Judea, concerning thee, neither any of the brethren, that came, showed or spake any harm of thee. But we desire to hear of thee what thou thinkest: for, as concerning this sect, we know that everywhere it is spoken against." And when they had appointed him a day, there came many to him into his lodging, to whom he expounded and testified the kingdom of God, persuading them concerning JESUS, both out of the Law of Moses, and out of the Prophets, from morning till evening. And some believed the things which were spoken, and some believed not.

Third Lesson.

AND when they agreed not among themselves, they departed, after that Paul had spoken one word: "Well spake the Holy Ghost by Isaias the Prophet unto our fathers, saying: 'Go ye unto this people and say unto them: Ye shall hear with the ear, but understand not; and seeing ye shall see, but perceive not. For the heart of this people is grown fat, and they hear heavily with their ears, and shut their eyes, lest perchance they see with their eyes, and hear with their ears, and understand with their heart, and be converted, and I should heal them.'[1] Be it known therefore unto you that this salvation of God is sent unto the Gentiles, and that they will hear it." And when he had said these words, the Jews departed from him, and had great reasoning among themselves. And he dwelt two whole years in his own hired house, and received all that came in unto him, preaching the kingdom of God, and teaching the things which concern the Lord JESUS Christ, with all confidence, no man forbidding him.

PRIME.

In the beginning of the Martyrology, is said,

The morrow is the Feast of the Patronage of Holy Joseph, the spouse of the Blessed Virgin Mary.

Vespers are of the Feast.

Third Sunday after Easter.

The Third Lord's Day after the Passover.

Feast of the Patronage of St Joseph.[2]

Double of the Second Class.

All from the Common Office for a Feast of a Confessor not a Bishop, except the following.

FIRST VESPERS.

Antiphons, Chapter, and Prayer from Lauds.

Hymn.[3]

JOSEPH! to thee by hosts on high
And choirs of Christians, laud be paid!—
Saintly of life,—by purest tie
Joined unto her, the glorious Maid.

When thou didst doubt thy wife's repute,
And mark her great with Sacred Load,
The angel taught thee that her Fruit
Came from the Holy Ghost of God.

To clasp the Son, thy Lord, was thine,—
To share His flight to Egypt's shore,—
With tears, to seek in Salem's Shrine
Him lost,—with joy, to find once more.

Death brings to other saints their rest;
Through toil they win the victor's place;—
Thou happier, like the angels blest,
Alive, hast seen God Face to face.

Spare us, O Trinity Most High!
Grant that, with Joseph, we may gain
Thy starry realm, and ceaselessly
There raise to Thee our thankful strain.
Amen.

Egyptian, bought him of the hands of the Ishmaelites, which had brought him down thither. And the LORD was with him, and he was a prosperous man; and he was in the house of his master; and [his master] knew well that the LORD was with him, and made all that he did to prosper in his hand. And Joseph found grace in his master's sight, and he served him; and he made him overseer over his house, and all that he had he put into his hand. And the LORD blessed the Egyptian's house for Joseph's sake, and made all his substance to increase, in the house, and in the field, [and he left all that he had in Joseph's hand], and he knew not aught he had, save the bread which he did eat. And Joseph was a goodly person, and well-favoured.

First Responsory.

[1] The people cried to Pharaoh [2] for bread: and he answered them: Go unto Joseph. Alleluia.

Verse. [3] The saving of our lives is in thy hand; only let us find grace in thy sight, and we will gladly be Pharaoh's servants.

Answer. And he answered them: Go unto Joseph. Alleluia.

Second Lesson. (xli. 37.)

THE thing was good in the eyes of Pharaoh, and in the eyes of all his servants, and he said unto them: Can we find such an one as this is, a man in whom the Spirit of God is? Unto Joseph therefore he said: Forasmuch as God hath showed thee all this which thou hast spoken, how shall I find any man more discreet and wise than thou art? Thou shalt be over my house, and according to thy word shall all my people be ruled: only in the throne will I be greater than thou. And Pharaoh said moreover unto Joseph: See, I have set thee over all the land of Egypt. And he took off his ring from his hand, and put it upon his hand; and arrayed him in a vesture of fine linen, and put a gold chain about his neck, and he made him to ride in the second chariot which he had, and an herald cried out that all men should bow the knee before him, and should know that he had been made ruler over all the land of Egypt.

Second Responsory.

[4] God hath made me as a father to Pharaoh, and lord of all his house. He hath made me great, to save much people alive. Alleluia.

Verse. [5] Come unto me, and I will give you all the good of the land of Egypt, and ye shall eat the fat of the land.

Answer. He hath made me great, to save much people alive. Alleluia.

Third Lesson.

AND Pharaoh said moreover unto Joseph: I am Pharaoh: without thee shall no man lift up his hand or foot in all the land of Egypt. And he changed his name, and called him in the Egyptian tongue, "Saviour-of-the-world." [6] And he gave him to wife Asenath daughter of Potiphar, Priest of Heliopolis. So Joseph went out into the land of Egypt, (he was thirty years old when he stood before King Pharaoh) and went throughout all the land of Egypt. And the plenteousness of the seven years came to pass, and the corn was gathered by handfuls, and laid up in the granaries of Egypt. The fruit of the field which was round about every city was laid up in the same. And so plentiful was the wheat that it was like unto the sand of the sea, and exceeded all reckoning.

Third Responsory.

[7] Now shall I die happy, since I have seen thy face, and do leave thee behind me. I am not disappointed of seeing thee. The Lord hath showed me also thy seed. Alleluia.

Verse. [8] He That hath fed me from my youth up, bless the lads, and let my name be named on them.

Answer. The Lord hath showed me also thy seed. Alleluia.

Verse. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, and to the Holy Ghost.

Answer. The Lord hath showed me also thy seed. Alleluia.

SECOND NOCTURN.

Antiphon. [9] An Angel of the Lord appeareth in a dream to Joseph [in Egypt] saying: Arise, and take the young Child and His Mother, and go into the land of Israël: for they are dead which sought the young Child's life. Alleluia.

Psalms IV., V., VIII., (pp. 116, 49, 4.)

Verse. [10] Look down from heaven, and behold, and visit this vine— Alleluia.

Answer. And protect that [Thy right hand hath planted.] Alleluia.

Fourth Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Sermons of [11] St Bernardine of Siena. (1st on St Joseph.)

WHEN any special favours are conferred upon a reasonable being, it is the common rule that whenever the grace of God electeth such and such an one for such and such a grace, or for such and such an high post of duty, the person so elected receiveth all the gifts of grace which be needful for him in that state of life whereunto he is called, and receiveth them abundantly. Of this there is an excellent instance in the case of the holy Joseph, the so-called father of our Lord JESUS Christ, and the real husband of her, who is Queen of the world, and Lady of Angels. He had been elected by the Eternal Father to be the faithful nurse and warder of His two chief treasures, that is, His Son, and Joseph's own Wife. This duty Joseph faithfully discharged, and consequently the Lord hath said to him: "Well done, thou good and faithful servant: enter thou into the joy of thy Lord." (Matth. xxv. 21.)

Verse. [2] I am thy shield and thy exceeding great reward.

Answer. My buckler, and the horn of my salvation, and my refuge. Alleluia.

Fifth Lesson.

THIS man Joseph, if we compare him with the Universal Church of Christ, is he not that elect and chosen one, through whom, and under whom, Christ is orderly and honestly brought into the world? If, then, the Holy Universal Church be under a debt to the Virgin Mother, because it is through her that she hath been made to receive Christ, next to Mary she oweth love and worship to Joseph. Joseph is the key of the [Church of the Saints which were under the] Old Testament, in whose person the noble structure of Patriarchs and Prophets reacheth her completion and realiseth her promises. He is the only one of them who actually enjoyed in full fruition what God had been pleased to promise before to them. It is, therefore, with good reason that we see a type of him in that Patriarch Joseph who stored up corn for the people. But the second Joseph hath a more excellent dignity than the first, seeing that the first only gave to the Egyptians bread for the body, but the second was the watchful guardian for all the elect of that Living Bread Which came down from heaven, of Which whosoever eateth will never die.

Fifth Responsory.

[3] He shall set his children under her[4] shelter, and shall lodge under her branches: by her shall he be covered from heat, and in her glory shall he dwell. Alleluia.

Verse. [5] Trust in Him,[6] ye congregation of the people, pour out your heart before Him.

Answer. And in her glory shall he dwell. Alleluia.

Sixth Lesson.

THERE can be no doubt that Christ still treateth Joseph in heaven with that familiarity, honour,[7] and most high condescension which He paid him, like a Son to a father, while He walked among men; nay, rather, that He hath now crowned and completed those habits. We may very reasonably suspect that it was with a peculiar meaning that Christ said [to him]: "Enter thou into the joy of thy Lord." The joy of being blessed for ever entereth into the heart of man, but when the Lord said [to Joseph], "Enter thou into joy," He probably meant mystically to bid him realise a joy which should not be within him only, but outside him also, above him, and below him, and all round about him, and overflowing him—as it were a great bottomless pit of joy to swallow him up altogether. Therefore, O thou blessed Joseph! remember us! In thy helpful prayers, make intercession for us with Him Who vouchsafed to be supposed thy Son! Likewise, obtain some pity for us from that most blessed Maiden who was thy wife, and the Mother of Him, Who, with the Father and the Holy Ghost, liveth and reigneth, one God, world without end. Amen.

Sixth Responsory.

[8] Though an host should encamp against me, my heart shall not fear. Though war should rise against me, in this will I be confident. Alleluia.

Verse. [9] My praise shall be continually of Thee, for Thou art my strong refuge.

Answer. Though war should rise against me, in this will I be confident. Alleluia.

Verse. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, and to the Holy Ghost.

Answer. Though war should rise against me, in this will I be confident. Alleluia.

THIRD NOCTURN.

Antiphon. [10] Joseph arose, and took the young Child and His Mother, and came into the land of Israël, and dwelt in a city called Nazareth. Alleluia.

Verse. [11] I called upon the Lord, the Father of my Lord—Alleluia.

Answer. That He would not leave me in the days of my trouble. Alleluia.

Seventh Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Holy Gospel according to Luke (iii. 21.)

AND at that time: When all the people were baptized, it came to pass, that JESUS also being baptized and praying, the heaven was opened. And so on.

Homily by St Austin, Bishop [of Hippo.] (Bk. ii., on the Harmony of the Evangelists.)

"And JESUS Himself began to be about thirty years of age, being (as was supposed) the Son of Joseph." These words, "as was supposed," were evidently here written for the correction of such as might think that the Lord was the Son of Joseph, in the same sense as other men are called the children of their fathers. Those who find any trouble in the fact that the ancestors reckoned downward by Matthew from David to Joseph, are other than those reckoned upward by Luke from Joseph to David, such, I say, as are troubled by this, may get over it by supposing that Joseph had two fathers; one, that is, who begat him, and another who adopted him.[12] The custom of adopting children, whereby those who have none of their own surround themselves with a family, is very ancient, even among the people of God. Hence, Luke is understood to have included in his Gospel, under the name of father of Joseph, that, not of the father by whom he was begotten, but of him by whom he was adopted, and it is the ancestors of this adoptive father who are reckoned up as far as David.

Answer. And thou shalt call His Name JESUS. Alleluia.

Eighth Lesson.

BUT since we are behoven to believe that what each of the Evangelists said was true, Matthew as well as Luke; and therefore that one of them nameth the father who begat, and the other, the father who adopted, Joseph; we naturally suppose that the Evangelist, who nameth the adoptive father, was he who abstaineth from using the term "beget." Matthew beginneth (i. 2): "Abraham begat Isaac; and Isaac begat Jacob," and so on, always with the use of this word "begat," till he cometh to: "and Jacob begat Joseph." By the word which he useth he doth sufficiently indicate that the genealogy which he is giving is that of him who begat.[2] Luke saith "Joseph was the son of Heli," not "Joseph was begotten of Heli;" but even if he had said the latter, it would not have troubled this interpretation of ours, that one Evangelist nameth the natural, and the other the adoptive father of Joseph. It is not an outrageous thing to say that one who adopteth another hath begotten him, albeit he hath done it, not carnally, but by love. Even so hath God given to us the power to become His sons, albeit He hath not begotten us of His Own Nature and Substance, as He hath His Only-Begotten Son, but only reckoneth us, in His love, among His children.

Eighth Responsory.

[3] Arise, and take the young Child, and His Mother, and flee into Egypt; and be thou there until I bring thee word. Alleluia.

Verse. That it might be fulfilled which was spoken of the Lord by the Prophets, saying: Out of Egypt have I called My Son.

Answer. And be thou there until I bring thee word. Alleluia.

Verse. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, and to the Holy Ghost.

Answer. And be thou there until I bring thee word. Alleluia.

Ninth Lesson. (Homily for the Third Sunday after Easter.)

The Lesson is taken from the Holy Gospel according to John (xvi. 16.)

AT that time: JESUS said unto His disciples: A little while, and ye shall not see Me; and again a little while, and ye shall see Me, because I go to the Father. And so on.

Homily by St Austin, Bishop [of Hippo.] (101*st Tract on John.*)

This "little while" is the whole duration of this present world. In the same sense this same Evangelist saith in his Epistle (ii. 18), "It is the last time." The words, "because I go to the Father," refer to the first clause of the text, namely, "A little while and ye shall not see Me," and not to the latter clause, that is, "and again a little while, and ye shall see Me." By His going to the Father He was about to bring it to pass that they should see Him no more. And thus it was that He said, not that He was about to die, and that after His death they should not see Him until He rose again, but that He was going to the Father, which He did when, after that He was risen again and had manifested Himself to them for forty days, He ascended up into heaven.[4] (Eighth Lesson of Sunday.) But now, to them which were looking on Him in the Body, He saith, "A little while, and ye shall not see Me,"—a little while, and they who now saw Him clad in a dying nature, should see Him so no more, because He was about to go to the Father. But He saith: "And again a little while, and ye shall see Me," and these words are a promise to the Universal Church, just as are those others: "Lo, I am with you alway, even unto the end of the world" (Matth. xxviii. 20.) Our Lord delayeth not His promised coming. Again a little while, and we shall see Him. We shall see Him. And, O, when we shall see Him, then we shall beg, we shall ask no more; for no desire will be unsatisfied, and no riddle unsolved. (Ninth Lesson of Sunday.) This "little while" seemeth a very long while to us now, while as it is still going on, but when it is over we shall feel indeed how truly it is but "a little while." Therefore, may our rejoicing never be like the rejoicing of that world whereof it is said: "The world shall rejoice."

"A woman when she is in travail hath sorrow," and yet, while hitherto our gladness is still coming to the birth through throes of sorrow, let us not be altogether sorrowful, but, as the Apostle hath it (Rom. xii. 12): "Rejoicing in hope: patient in tribulation." "A woman, when she is in travail hath sorrow, because her hour is come: but as soon as she is delivered of the child, she remembereth no more the anguish, for joy that a man is born into the world." And so will it be with us.

And with that let me end my discourse.

The next passage is one of extreme difficulty; nor is it possible to treat it briefly, if, (with the will of God,) it is to be treated satisfactorily.

The Hymn, "We praise Thee, O God, &c.," is said.

Hymn.[6]

JOY of the Saints! who didst uphold
Our life's sure Hope, the world's one Stay,—
Joseph! as now thy praise is told,
Hearken to us in love to-day.

The great Creator made it thine
To be the spouse of purest Maid,
And father of the Word Divine
In name—salvation's work to aid.

Thou seest with joy in manger lie
The Saviour sung by seers of yore,
And Him, the Son of God Most High,
In lowliness thou didst adore.

The King of kings, the Lord of all,
The God Whom heaven in awe attends,
Whose nod makes trembling demons fall,
To thee in meek submission bends.

To God Most High, the Three in One,
Be praise, Who gave such grace to thee,
He make us win what thou hast won,
The joys of life eternally. Amen.

Second Day.

MATTINS.

First Lesson.[4] (First Lesson of Sunday.)

Here beginneth the Book of the Apocalypse of the Blessed Apostle John[5] (i. 1.)

THE Revelation[6] of JESUS Christ, which God gave unto Him, to show unto His servants things which must shortly come to pass: and He sent and signified it by His Angel unto His servant John: who bare record of the Word of God, and of the testimony of JESUS Christ, of all things that he saw. Blessed is he that readeth and he that heareth the words of this prophecy, and that keepeth those things which are written therein: for the time is at hand.

John to the seven Churches which are in Asia: grace be unto you and peace, from Him Which is, and Which was, and Which is to come, and from the seven spirits which are before His throne; and from JESUS Christ, Who is the Faithful Witness, the First-Begotten of the dead, and the Prince of the kings of the earth; Who loved us, and washed us from our sins in His own Blood, and hath made us a kingdom and Priests unto God and His Father: to Him be glory and dominion for ever and ever. Amen.

First Responsory.

[7] I saw the gate of the city, which looketh toward the East, and [8] written thereon the names of the [Twelve] Apostles and of the Lamb. And upon the walls thereof a guard of Angels. Alleluia.

Verse. [9] I saw a new heaven and a new earth coming down out of heaven.

Answer. And upon the walls thereof a guard of Angels. Alleluia.

Second Lesson. (Second Lesson of Sunday.)

BEHOLD, He cometh with clouds, and every eye shall see him,—they also which pierced Him. And all kindreds of the earth shall wail because of Him. Even so, Amen. I am Alpha and Omega,[10] the Beginning and the Ending, saith the Lord God, Which is, and Which was, and Which is to come, the Almighty. I, John, who am your brother and companion in tribulation, and in the kingdom and patience of JESUS Christ, was in the isle that is called Patmos,[11] for the word of God, and for the testimony of JESUS. I was in the Spirit on the Lord's Day, and heard behind me a great voice, as of a trumpet, saying: What thou seest, write in a book, and send it unto the Seven Churches which are in Asia; unto Ephesus, and unto Smyrna, and unto Pergamos, and unto Thyatira, and unto Sardis, and unto Philadelphia, and unto Laodicea. (Third Lesson of Sunday.) And I turned to see the voice that spake with me, and being turned, I saw seven golden candlesticks, and in the midst of the seven golden candlesticks One like unto the Son of Man, clothed with a garment down to the Foot, and girt about the Paps with a golden girdle. His Head and His Hairs were white, like white wool, yea, like snow; and His Eyes were as a flame of fire; and His Feet like unto fine brass, as if it were burning in a furnace: and His Voice as the sound of many waters. And He had in His Right Hand seven stars, and out of His Mouth went a sharp two-edged sword: and His Countenance was as the sun shineth in his strength. And when I saw Him, I fell at His Feet, as dead. And He laid His Right Hand upon me, saying: Fear not; I am the First and the Last; I am He That liveth, and was dead; and, behold, I am alive for evermore: and I have the keys of death and of hell. Write therefore the things which thou hast seen, and which are, and which shall be hereafter.

Second Responsory.

[1] The Angel showed me the fountain of the water of life: and he said unto me, Alleluia. Here worship God. Alleluia, Alleluia, Alleluia.

Verse. When I had heard and seen, I fell down to worship before the feet of the Angel, which showed me these things, and he said unto me:

Answer. Here worship God, Alleluia, Alleluia, Alleluia.

Verse. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, and to the Holy Ghost.

Answer. Here worship God, Alleluia, Alleluia, Alleluia.

Third Lesson. (ii. 1.) (First Lesson of Monday.)

UNTO the Angel [2] of the Church of Ephesus write: These things saith He That holdeth the seven stars in His Right Hand, Who walketh in the midst of the seven golden Candlesticks: I know thy works, and thy labour, and thy patience, and how thou canst not bear them which are evil, and thou hast tried them which say they are Apostles, and are not: and hast found them liars, and hast patience, and hast borne for My Name's sake, and hast not fainted. Nevertheless I have somewhat against thee, because thou hast left thy first love. Remember therefore from whence thou art fallen; and repent, and do the first works. Or else I will come unto thee, and will remove thy candlestick out of its place, except thou repent. But this thou hast, that thou hatest the deeds of the Nicolaïtans,[3] which I also hate. He that hath an ear, let him hear what the Spirit saith unto the Churches: To him that overcometh will I give to eat of the tree of life, which is in the midst of the Paradise of My God. (Second Lesson of Monday.) And unto the Angel of the Church in Smyrna write: These things saith the First and the Last, Which was dead, and is alive: I know thy tribulation and poverty, (but thou art rich,) and how thou art blasphemed of them which say they are Jews, and are not, but are a synagogue of Satan. Fear none of those things which thou shalt suffer. Behold, the devil shall cast some of you into prison, that ye may be tried, and ye shall have tribulation ten days. Be thou faithful unto death, and I will give thee a crown of life. He that hath an ear, let him hear what the Spirit saith unto the Churches: He that overcometh shall not be hurt of the second death. (Third Lesson of Monday.) And to the Angel of the Church in Pergamos write: These things saith He Which hath the sharp sword with two edges. I know where thou dwellest, even where Satan's seat is: and thou holdest fast My Name, and hast not denied My Faith. And in those days Antipas was My faithful witness, who was slain among you, where Satan dwelleth. But I have a few things against thee, because thou hast there them that hold the doctrine of Balaam, who taught Balac to cast a stumbling-block before the children of Israël, to eat, and to commit fornication:[4] so hast thou also them that hold the doctrine of the Nicolaïtans.[5] Repent thou likewise; or, else, I will come unto thee quickly, and will fight against them with the sword of My Mouth. He that hath an ear, let him hear what the Spirit saith unto the Churches: To him that overcometh will I give of the hidden manna, and will give him a white stone, and in the stone a new name written, which no man knoweth saving he that receiveth it.[6]

The Hymn, "We praise Thee, O God, &c.," is said.

First Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Book of the Apocalypse of the Blessed Apostle John (v. 1.)

And I saw a strong Angel proclaiming with a loud voice: Who is worthy to open the book, and to loose the seals thereof? And no man in heaven, nor in earth, neither under the earth, was able to open the book, neither to look thereon. And I wept much, because no man was found worthy to open the book, neither to look thereon. And one of the elders saith unto me: Weep not; behold, the Lion of the tribe of Judah, the Root of David, hath prevailed to open the book, and to loose the seven seals thereof. And I beheld, and, lo, in the midst of the throne and of the four living creatures, and in the midst of the elders, stood a Lamb, as It had been slain, having seven Horns, and seven Eyes, Which are the seven Spirits of God, sent forth into all the earth. And every creature which is in heaven, and on the earth, and under the earth, and such as are in the sea, and all that are in them—all of them heard I saying: Unto Him That sitteth upon the throne, and unto the Lamb, Blessing, and honour, and glory, and power, for ever and ever. MATTINS.

First Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Book of the Apocalypse of the Blessed Apostle John (xv. 1.)

AND I saw another sign in heaven, great and marvellous, seven angels having the seven last plagues; for in them is filled up the wrath of God. And I saw, as it were, a sea of glass mingled with fire; and them that had gotten the victory over the beast, and over his image, and over the number of his name, stand on the sea of glass, having the harps of God: and they sing the song of Moses the servant of God and the song of the Lamb, saying: Great and marvellous are Thy works, O Lord God Almighty; just and true are Thy ways, O Eternal King! Who shall not fear Thee, O Lord, and glorify Thy Name? for Thou only art holy: for all nations shall come and worship before Thee: for Thy judgments are made manifest.

First Responsory.

[1] Thou art worthy, O Lord, to take the book, and to open the seals thereof—Alleluia—for Thou wast slain, and hast redeemed us to God by Thy Blood—Alleluia.

Verse. For Thou hast made us unto our God a Kingdom and Priesthood—

Answer. By Thy Blood—Alleluia.

Second Lesson.

AND after that I looked, and, behold, the temple of the tabernacle of the testimony in heaven was opened; and the seven Angels came out of the temple, having the seven plagues, clothed in pure and white linen, and having their breasts girded with golden girdles. And one of the four living creatures gave unto the seven Angels seven golden vials, full of the wrath of God, Who liveth for ever and ever. And the temple was filled with smoke from the glory of God, and from His power: and no man was able to enter into the temple, till the seven plagues of the seven Angels were fulfilled.

Second Responsory.

[2] As the vine brought I forth pleasant savour—Alleluia. Come unto me, all ye that be desirous of me, and fill yourselves with my fruits. Alleluia, Alleluia.

Verse. In me is the favour of the way and the truth; in me is the hope of life and strength.

Answer. Come unto me, all ye that be desirous of me, and fill yourselves with my fruits. Alleluia, Alleluia.

Verse. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, and to the Holy Ghost.

Answer. Come unto me, all ye that be desirous of me, and fill yourselves with my fruits. Alleluia, Alleluia.

Third Lesson. (xvi. 1.)

AND I heard a great voice out of the temple saying to the seven Angels: Go your ways, and pour out the seven vials of the wrath of God upon the earth. And the first went and poured out his vial upon the earth; and there fell a noisome and grievous sore upon the men which had the mark of the beast, and upon them which worshipped his image. And the second Angel poured out his vial upon the sea, and it became as the blood of a dead man: and every living soul died in the sea. And the third [Angel] poured out his vial upon the rivers and fountains of waters, and they became blood. And I heard the Angel of the waters say: Thou art righteous, O Lord, Who art, and Who wast Holy, because Thou hast judged thus; for they have shed the blood of Saints and Prophets, and Thou hast given them blood to drink; for they are worthy.

MATTINS.

First Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Apocalypse of the Blessed Apostle John (xix. 1.)

AFTER these things I heard a voice of much people in heaven, saying: Alleluia; Salvation, and glory, and power are our God's; for true and righteous are His judgments, Who hath judged the great whore,[4] which did corrupt the earth with her fornication, and hath avenged the blood of His servants at her hands. And again they said: Alleluia. And her smoke rose up for ever and ever. And the four and twenty elders and the four living creatures fell down and worshipped God That sat on the throne, saying: Amen, Alleluia. And a voice came out of the throne, saying: Praise our God, all ye His servants, and ye that fear Him, both small and great.

First Responsory.

[5] One of the seven Angels talked with me, saying: Come hither, I will show thee the bride, the Lamb's wife. And I saw Jerusalem descending out of heaven, adorned with her jewels. Alleluia, Alleluia, Alleluia.

Verse. And he carried me away in the Spirit to a great and high mountain;

Answer. And I saw Jerusalem

descending out of heaven, adorned with her jewels. Alleluia, Alleluia, Alleluia.

Second Lesson.

AND I heard as it were the voice of a great multitude, and as the voice of many waters, and as the voice of mighty thunderings, saying: Alleluia, for the Lord our God, the Omnipotent, reigneth! Let us be glad and rejoice and give honour to Him, for the marriage of the Lamb is come, and His wife hath made herself ready. And to her was granted that she should be arrayed in fine linen, clean and white. For the fine linen is the righteousness of Saints. And he saith unto me: Write — Blessed are they which are called unto the marriage supper of the Lamb. And he saith unto me: These are the true sayings of God. And I fell at his feet to worship him, and he said unto me: See thou do it not; I am thy fellow-servant, and of thy brethren that have the testimony of JESUS: worship God: for the testimony of JESUS is the spirit of prophecy.

Second Responsory.

[1] I heard in heaven the voice of many Angels, saying: Fear the Lord, and give glory to Him, and worship Him That made heaven and earth, the sea, and the fountains of waters. Alleluia, Alleluia.

Verse. I saw a strong Angel of God fly through the midst of heaven, crying with a loud voice and saying:

Answer. Fear the Lord, and give glory to Him, and worship Him That made heaven and earth, the sea, and the fountains of waters. Alleluia, Alleluia.

Verse. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, and to the Holy Ghost.

Answer. Fear the Lord, and give glory to Him, and worship Him That made heaven and earth, the sea, and the fountains of waters. Alleluia, Alleluia.

Third Lesson.

AND I saw heaven opened, and, behold, a white horse, and He That sat upon him was called Faithful and True, and in righteousness He doth judge and make war. His Eyes were as a flame of fire, and on His Head were many crowns, and He had a Name written, that no man knew but He Himself. And He was clothed with a vesture sprinkled with Blood, and His Name is called, the Word of God. And the armies which are in heaven followed Him upon white horses, clothed in fine linen, white and clean. And out of His Mouth goeth a sharp two-edged sword, that with it He should smite the nations. And He shall rule them with a rod of iron: and He treadeth the winepress of the fierceness and wrath of Almighty God. And He hath on His vesture and on His Thigh written: KING OF KINGS, AND LORD OF LORDS.

The Sabbath.

MATTINS.

First Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Book of the Apocalypse of the Blessed Apostle John (xxii. 1.)

AND he showed me a river of water of life, clear as crystal, proceeding out of the throne of God and of the Lamb. In the midst of the street of it, and on either side of the river, was there the tree of life, which bare twelve manner of fruits, and yielded her fruit every month; and the leaves of the tree were for the healing of the nations. And there shall be no more curse: but the throne of God and of the Lamb shall be in it; and His servants shall serve Him. And they shall see His Face, and His Name shall be in their foreheads. And there shall be no night there; and they shall need no lamp-light, neither light of the sun, for the Lord God shall give them light; and they shall reign for ever and ever. And he said unto me: These sayings are faithful and true. And the Lord God of the spirits of the Prophets sent His Angel to show unto His servants the things which must shortly be done. And, behold, I come quickly. Blessed is he that keepeth the sayings of the prophecy of this book.

Second Lesson.

AND I, John, am he which saw these things and heard them; and when I had heard and seen, I fell down to worship before the feet of the Angel which showed me these things, and he said unto me: See thou do it not; for I am thy fellow-servant, and of thy brethren the Prophets, and of them which keep the sayings of the prophecy of this book. Worship God. And he saith unto me: Seal not the sayings of the prophecy of this book: for the time is at hand. He that is unjust, let him be unjust still; and he which is filthy, let him be filthy still; and he that is righteous, let him be righteous still; and he that is holy, let him be holy still. Behold, I come quickly—and My reward is with Me, to give every man according as his work shall be.

Third Lesson.

I AM Alpha and Omega, the First and the Last, the Beginning and the End. Blessed are they that wash their robes in the Blood of the Lamb: that they may have right to the tree of life, and may enter in through the gates into the city. Without are dogs, and sorcerers, and whoremongers, and murderers, and idolaters, and whosoever loveth and maketh a lie. I JESUS have sent Mine Angel to testify unto you these things in the Churches. I am the Root and the Offspring of David, and the bright and morning Star. And the Spirit and the bride say: Come. And let him that heareth, say: Come. And let him that is athirst, come: and whosoever will, let him take the water of life freely. For I testify unto every man that heareth the words of the prophecy of this book: If any man shall add unto these things, God shall add unto him the plagues that are written in this book; and if any man shall take away from the words of the book of this prophecy, God shall take away his part out of the Book of Life, and out of the holy city, and from the things which are written in this book. He Which testifieth these things saith: Surely I come quickly. Amen. Come, Lord JESUS! The grace of our Lord JESUS Christ be with you all. Amen.

Fourth Sunday after Easter.

Fourth Lord's Day after the Passover.

MATTINS.

Invitatory and Hymn as on Low Sunday, (p. 356.)

FIRST NOCTURN.

If the Saturday should have been the Feast of SS. Philip and James, and the following Lessons consequently read on it, on Sunday Morning are read those of Monday, which day itself will be occupied by the Feast of the Finding of the Cross, with special Lessons.

First Lesson.

Here beginneth the Catholic Epistle of the blessed Apostle[1] James (i. 1.)

JAMES, a servant of our God and Lord JESUS Christ, to the twelve tribes which are scattered abroad, greeting. My brethren, count it all joy when ye fall into divers temptations, knowing that the trying of your faith worketh patience. But patience hath a perfect work: that ye may be perfect and entire, wanting nothing. But if any of you lack wisdom, let him ask of God, That giveth to all men liberally, and upbraideth not, and it shall be given him. But let him ask in faith, nothing wavering.

First Responsory.

[2] If I forget thee, Alleluia, let my right hand forget me. If I do not remember thee, let my tongue cleave to the roof of my mouth. Alleluia, Alleluia.

Verse. By the rivers of Babylon there we sat down and wept, when we remembered thee, O Zion!

Answer. If I do not remember thee, let my tongue cleave to the roof of my mouth. Alleluia, Alleluia.

Second Lesson.

FOR he that wavereth is like a wave of the sea, driven with the wind and tossed. Therefore let not that man think that he shall receive anything of the Lord. A double-minded man is unstable in all his ways. Let the brother of low degree rejoice in that he is exalted: but the rich in that he is made low, because as the flower of the grass he shall pass away. For the sun is no sooner risen with a burning heat but it withereth the grass, and the flower thereof falleth, and the grace of the fashion of it perisheth: so also shall the rich man fade away in his ways.

Second Responsory.

[3] The waters saw Thee, O God, the waters saw Thee; and they were afraid. There was a noise as of many waters; the clouds sent out a sound. Alleluia, Alleluia, Alleluia.

Verse. Thy lightnings lightened the world: the earth saw it and shook.

Answer. There was a noise as of many waters; the clouds sent out a sound. Alleluia, Alleluia, Alleluia.

Third Lesson.

BLESSED is the man that endureth temptation: for when he hath been proved, he shall receive the crown of life, which God hath promised to them that love Him. Let no man say when he is tempted that he is tempted of God; for God cannot be tempted with evil; neither tempteth He any man.[4] But every man is tempted when he is drawn away of his own lust and enticed. Then, when lust hath conceived, it bringeth forth sin; and sin, when it is finished, bringeth forth death. Do not then err, my beloved brethren.

Third Responsory.

[5] I will declare Thy Name unto my brethren—Alleluia. In the midst of the congregation will I praise Thee—Alleluia, Alleluia.

Verse. [6] I will praise Thee, O Lord, among the people, and sing unto Thee among the nations.

Answer. In the midst of the congregation will I praise Thee—Alleluia, Alleluia.

Verse. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, and to the Holy Ghost.

Answer. In the midst of the congregation will I praise Thee—Alleluia, Alleluia.

SECOND NOCTURN.

Fourth Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Treatise of the [7] Holy Martyr Cyprian, Bishop [of Carthage,] upon the great good of patience. (Sermon 3.)

DEARLY beloved brethren, I am about to speak to you touching patience, and to preach to you how useful and convenient a thing it is! and how shall I begin better, than by saying that you will have need of patience to listen to me, yea, your very hearing and learning cannot but be an exercise thereof? It is when a sermon or soul-profiting argument is given ear to patiently that it teacheth profitably. Dearly beloved brethren, there are divers paths of heavenly wisdom, wherein we are invited to walk, if we would reach in the end the reward which God hath prepared to crown hope and faith; but I find no path more useful to life-ward, nor more sure to glory-ward than this, that while we humbly strive, in all fear, and in all godliness, to obey the commandments of the Lord, we should set our chiefest guard in an unceasing watch over our patience. The philosophers also say that they take this path, but their patience is as much a sham as their wisdom is a cheat, for who can be wise or patient who knoweth nothing of God's wisdom or God's patience?

---

[1] May 1. The Epistle is styled Catholic, that is, Universal, because not addressed to any one person or congregation. "It was written at Jerusalem," says Abp. Kenrick, "probably about the year 62, when the wars and seditions among the Jews, which brought on the destruction of the city, had begun."

[2] Ps. cxxxvi. 5, 6, 1.

[3] Ps. lxxvi. 17, 18.

[4] "God," says Abp. Kenrick, "is not tempted to evil, and consequently He does not tempt others. To solicit others to sin implies personal corruption."

[5] Ps. xxi. 23.

[6] Ps. lvi. 10.

[7] Sept. 16.

Fourth Responsory.

[1] Bless ye God in the congregations—Alleluia. Even the Lord, ye that are of the fountains of Israël—Alleluia, Alleluia.

Verse. [2] Sing forth the honour of His Name, make His praise glorious.

Answer. Even the Lord, ye that are of the fountains of Israël—Alleluia, Alleluia.

Fifth Lesson. (ii., iii., viii.)

BUT as for us, dearly beloved brethren, we are the real philosophers, whose wisdom lieth not in words but in deeds, and is manifested not in dresses[3] but in the truth. We are they whose knowledge hath the inward consciousness, not the idle boasting, of strength. We are not speakers of high-sounding words, but our lives are the lives of servers and worshippers of God. Let it be ours, then, to show forth by spiritual watchfulness that patience which is a part of the teaching which we have learnt from heaven. Patience is one of His Own virtues whereof God hath made us partakers with Him: our Great Head is the Captain of the patient, and it is through patience that He hath crowned Himself with glory and honour. Yea, God is Himself the Source, the Fountain, and the Greatness of patience, and it behoveth man to love what is beloved of God. That good thing which he loveth is commended unto him of God's Majesty. If God be our Lord and Father, let us follow after the ensample of our Lord and Father's patience, since it is the duty of servants to be obedient, and of sons to be home-minded.

Fifth Responsory.

[4] With my whole heart—Alleluia—have I sought Thee—Alleluia. O let me not wander from Thy commandments! Alleluia, Alleluia.

Verse. Blessed art Thou, O Lord: teach me Thy statutes.

Answer. O let me not wander from Thy commandments! Alleluia, Alleluia.

Sixth Lesson.

BY our patience God draweth us toward Himself, and keepeth us His Own. Patience doth soothe anger, bridle the tongue, govern the mind, keep peace, set rules of self-control, break the onset of lust, still the swelling of temper, put out the fire begotten of hatred, make the rich meek, and relieve the need of the poor; patience doth guard in virgins their blessed wholeness; in widows, their careful purity; in such as be married, their single-hearted love one toward the other. Patience doth teach such as be successful to be lowly-minded; such as be unfortunate, to be brave; and all to be gentle when they are wronged and insulted. Patience maketh a man soon to forgive them that trespass against him, and if he have trespassed against any, long and humbly to ask his pardon. Patience doth fight down temptations, bear persecution, and endure unto the end in suffering, and in uplifting of our testimony. Patience is the moat that guardeth the stout foundations of the castle of our faith.

Sixth Responsory.

[5] Sing us a song—Alleluia. How shall we sing the LORD'S song in a strange land?—Alleluia, Alleluia.

Verse. There they that carried us away captive required of us a song.

Answer. How shall we sing the LORD'S song in a strange land?—Alleluia, Alleluia.

Verse. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, and to the Holy Ghost.

Answer. How shall we sing the LORD'S song in a strange land?—Alleluia, Alleluia.

THIRD NOCTURN.

Seventh Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Holy Gospel according to John (xvi. 5.)

AT that time: JESUS said unto His disciples: I go My way to Him That sent Me; and none of you asketh Me: Whither goest Thou? And so on.

Homily by St Austin, Bishop [of Hippo.] (94*th Tract on John.*)

The Lord JESUS told His disciples what things they should suffer after that He was gone away from them, and then He said: "These things I said not unto you at the beginning, because I was with you; but now I go My way to Him That sent Me." Let us first see whether it had been that He had not told them before this what they were to suffer in time coming. That He had done so amply before the night of the last Supper, is testified by the three first Evangelists, but it was when that Supper was ended that, according to John, He said: "These things I said not unto you at the beginning, because I was with you."

Seventh Responsory.

[6] I will sing a new song unto Thee, O God—Alleluia. Upon a psaltery of ten strings will I sing praises unto Thee. Alleluia, Alleluia.

Verse. [7] Thou art my God, and I will praise Thee: Thou art my God, and I will exalt Thee.

Answer. Upon a psaltery of ten strings will I sing praises unto Thee. Alleluia, Alleluia.

Eighth Lesson.

ARE we then to try and loose the knot of this difficulty by asserting that, according to these three Evangelists, it was on the eve of the Passion, albeit before the Supper, that He had said these things unto them, and therefore not at the beginning, when [3] The allusion is to the peculiar cloak adopted by those who affected philosophy.

He was with them, but when He was about to leave them, and go His way to the Father? And in this way we might reconcile the truthfulness of what this Evangelist saith here—"These things I said not unto you at the beginning"—with the truthfulness of the other three. But this explanation is rendered impossible by the Gospel according to Matthew, who telleth us how that the Lord spake to His Apostles concerning their sufferings to come, not only when He was on the point of eating the Passover with them, but at the very beginning, when the names of the twelve are first given, and they were sent forth to do the work of God. (Matth. x. 17-42.)

Eighth Responsory.

[1] It is a good thing to give thanks unto the LORD—Alleluia—and to sing praises—Alleluia.

Verse. Upon an instrument of ten strings, upon the harp with a solemn sound.

Answer. And to sing praises—Alleluia.

Verse. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, and to the Holy Ghost.

Answer. And to sing praises—Alleluia.

Ninth Lesson.

IT would seem then that when He said: "These things I said not unto you at the beginning, because I was with you," He meant by "these things," not the sufferings which they were to bear for His sake, but His promise of the Comforter Who should come to them, and testify while they suffered. (xv. 26, 27.) This Comforter then, or Advocate, (for the Greek word "Paraklétos" will bear either interpretation,) would be needful to them when they saw Christ no more, and therefore it was that Christ spoke not of Him "at the beginning" [of the Gospel Dispensation] while He Himself "was with" His disciples, because His visible Presence was then their sufficient Comfort.

Second Day.

MATTINS.

First Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Epistle of the Blessed Apostle James (i. 17.)

EVERY good gift, and every perfect gift is from above, and cometh down from the Father of lights, with Whom is no variableness, neither shadow of turning. For of His Own will begat He us with the word of truth, that we should be a kind of first-fruits of His creatures. This ye know, my well-beloved brethren. But let every man be swift to hear, but slow to speak, and slow to wrath: for the wrath of man worketh not the righteousness of God.

First Responsory.

[2] Let now the redeemed of the LORD—Alleluia—say: Alleluia, Alleluia, Alleluia.

Verse. Let them whom He hath redeemed from the hand of the enemy, and gathered them out of the lands.

Answer. Say: Alleluia, Alleluia, Alleluia.

Second Lesson.

WHEREFORE lay apart all filthiness and superfluity of naughtiness, and receive with meekness the engrafted Word, Which is able to save your souls. But be ye doers of the word, and not hearers only, deceiving your own selves. For if any be an hearer of the word, and not a doer; he is like unto a man beholding his natural face in a glass; for he beholdeth himself, and goeth his way, and straightway forgetteth what manner of man he was.

Second Responsory.

O sing unto the Lord. Alleluia. Sing unto Him. Alleluia.

Verse. [3] Give unto the LORD glory and honour, give unto the LORD the glory due unto His Name.

---

[1] Ps. xci. 2, 4.

[2] Ps. cvi. 2.

[3] Ps. xxviii. 2.

Answer. Sing unto Him. Alleluia.

Verse. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, and to the Holy Ghost.

Answer. Sing unto Him. Alleluia.

Third Lesson.

BUT whoso looketh into the perfect law of liberty, and continueth therein, he being not a forgetful hearer, but a doer of the work, this man shall be blessed in his deed. If any man among you think himself to be religious, and bridleth not his tongue, but deceiveth his own heart, this man's religion is vain. Pure religion and undefiled before God and the Father is this: to visit the fatherless and widows in their affliction, and to keep himself unspotted from the world.

The Hymn, "We praise Thee, O God, &c.," is said.

LAUDS.

Antiphon at the Song of Zacharias. [1] Did not our heart burn within us, at the thought of JESUS, * while he talked with us by the way? Alleluia.

VESPERS.

Antiphon at the Song of the Blessed Virgin. [2] I tell you the truth: * it is expedient for you that I go away: for if I go not away, the Comforter will not come unto you. Alleluia.

Tuesday.

Third Day.

See Rubric, (p. 360.)

MATTINS.

First Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Epistle of the Blessed Apostle James (ii. 1.)

MY brethren, have not the faith of our Lord JESUS Christ [the Lord] of glory, with respect of persons. For if there come unto your assembly a man with a gold ring in goodly[3] apparel; and there come in also a poor man in vile[3] raiment; and ye have respect to him that weareth the gay clothing, and say unto him: Sit thou here in a good place; and say to the poor: Stand thou there, or sit here under my footstool—are ye not then partial in yourselves, and are become judges of evil thoughts?

First Responsory.

Bless ye God, &c., (p. 379.)

Second Lesson.

HEARKEN, my beloved brethren. Hath not God chosen the poor of this world, rich in faith and heirs of the kingdom which He hath promised to them that love Him? But ye have despised the poor. Do not rich men oppress you, and draw you before the judgment-seats? Do not they blaspheme that worthy name by the which ye are called? Nevertheless, if ye fulfil the royal law, according to the Scripture: Thou shalt love thy neighbour as thyself (Lev. xix. 18)—ye do well. But if ye have respect to persons, ye commit sin, and are convinced of the law as transgressors.

Second Responsory.

With my whole heart, &c., (p. 379,) with this addition:

Verse. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, and to the Holy Ghost.

Answer. O let me not wander from Thy commandments! Alleluia, Alleluia.

Third Lesson.

FOR whosoever shall keep the whole law, and yet offend in one point, he is guilty of all. For He That said: Thou shalt not commit adultery: said also: Thou shalt do no murder. Now, if thou commit no adultery, yet, if thou do murder, thou art become a transgressor of the law. So speak ye, and so do, as they that shall be judged by the law of liberty. For he shall have judgment without mercy that hath showed no mercy: for mercy rejoiceth against judgment.

The Hymn, "We praise Thee, O God, &c.," is said.

LAUDS.

Antiphon at the Song of Zacharias. Peace be unto you, * it is I. Alleluia. Fear not. Alleluia.

VESPERS.

Antiphon at the Song of the Blessed Virgin. When the Comforter, the Spirit of truth, is come, * He will reprove the world of sin, and of righteousness, and of judgment. Alleluia.

Wednesday.

Fourth Day.

See Rubric, (p. 360.)

MATTINS.

First Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Epistle of the Blessed Apostle James (ii. 14.)

WHAT doth it profit, my brethren, though a man say he hath faith, and have not works? Can that faith save him? If a brother or sister be naked, and destitute of daily food, and one of you say unto them: Depart in peace, be ye warmed and filled—notwithstanding ye give them not those things which are needful to the body, what doth it profit? Even so, faith, if it hath not works, is dead, being alone.

First Responsory.

I will sing, &c., (p. 379.)

Second Lesson.

YEA, a man may say: Thou hast faith and I have works. Show me thy faith without works, and I will show thee my faith by works. Thou believest that there is one God; thou doest well: the devils also believe, and tremble. But wilt thou know, O vain man, that faith without works is dead? Was not Abraham our father justified by works, when he offered Isaac his son upon the altar? Seest thou how faith wrought with his works, and by works was faith made perfect?

---

[1] Luke xxiv. 32.

[2] John xvi. 7.

[3] Candida — sordida. Perhaps rather "clean" and "dirty."

Second Responsory.

It is a good thing, &c., (p. 380.)

Third Lesson.

AND the Scripture was fulfilled which saith: Abraham believed God, and it was counted to him for righteousness (Gen. xv. 6); and he was called, "the Friend of God." Ye see, then, how that by works a man is justified, and not by faith only. Likewise also was not Rahab the harlot justified by works, when she had received the messengers, and had sent them out another way? For as the body without the spirit is dead, so faith without works is dead also.

The Hymn, "We praise Thee, O God, &c.," is said.

LAUDS.

Antiphon at the Song of Zacharias. A spirit hath not flesh and bones, * as ye see Me have: now believe. Alleluia.

VESPERS.

Antiphon at the Song of the Blessed Virgin. I have yet many things to say unto you, but ye cannot bear them now. * Howbeit, when He, the Spirit of truth, is come, He will guide you into all truth. Alleluia.

Thursday.

Fifth Day.

See Rubric, (p. 360.)

MATTINS.

First Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Epistle of the Blessed Apostle James (iii. 1.)

MY brethren, be not many masters, knowing that ye shall receive the greater condemnation. For in many things we offend all. If any man offend not in word, the same is a perfect man. Such an one is able also to bridle the whole body. Behold, we put bits in the horses' mouths, that they may obey us, and we turn about their whole body.

First Responsory.

If I forget thee, &c., (p. 378.)

Second Lesson.

BEHOLD also the ships, though they be so great, and are driven of fierce winds, yet are they turned about with a very small helm, whithersoever the governor listeth. Even so, the tongue is a little member and boasteth great things. Behold, how little a flame doth set on fire a great forest: and the tongue is a fire, a world of iniquity.

Second Responsory.

The waters saw Thee, &c., (p. 378,) with this addition:

Verse. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, and to the Holy Ghost.

Answer. There was a noise as of many waters; the clouds sent out a sound. Alleluia. Alleluia. Alleluia.

Third Lesson.

SO is the tongue among our members, that it defileth the whole body, and setteth on fire the course of nature; and it is set on fire of hell. For every kind of beasts, and of birds, and of serpents, and the like, is tamed, and hath been tamed of mankind: but the tongue can no man tame: it is an unruly evil, full of deadly poison. Therewith bless we God, even the Father; and therewith curse we men, which are made after the similitude of God. Out of the same mouth proceedeth blessing and cursing.

The Hymn, "We praise Thee, O God, &c.," is said.

LAUDS.

Antiphon at the Song of Zacharias. [1] The disciples gave the Lord a piece * of a broiled fish, and of an honeycomb. Alleluia. Alleluia.

VESPERS.

Antiphon at the Song of the Blessed Virgin. For He shall not speak of Himself; * but whatsoever He shall hear, that shall He speak: and He will show you things to come. Alleluia.

Friday.

Sixth Day.

See Rubric, (p. 360.)

MATTINS.

First Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Epistle of the Blessed Apostle James (iv. 1.)

FROM whence come wars and fightings among you? Come they not hence, even of your lusts which are in your members? Ye lust, and have not: ye kill, and desire to have, and cannot obtain: ye fight and war, yet ye have not, because ye ask not. Ye ask, and receive not, because ye ask amiss, that ye may consume it upon your lusts. Ye adulterers, know ye not that the friendship of the world is enmity with God? Whosoever, therefore, will be a friend of the world, is the enemy of God.

First Responsory.

Bless ye God, &c., (p. 379.)

Second Lesson.

DO ye think that the Scripture saith in vain: [2] The spirit that dwelleth in us lusteth to envy? But He giveth more grace. Wherefore He saith: [3] God resisteth the proud but giveth grace unto the humble. Submit yourselves therefore to God, but resist the devil, and he will flee from you. Draw nigh to God, and He will draw nigh to you. Cleanse your hands, ye sinners; and purify your hearts, ye double-minded. Be afflicted, and mourn, and weep: let your laughter be turned to mourning, and your joy to heaviness. Humble yourselves in the sight of the Lord, and He shall lift you up.

[3] Prov. xxix. 23; Matth. xxiii. 12.

Second Responsory.

With my whole heart, &c., (p. 379,) with this addition:

Verse. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, and to the Holy Ghost.

Answer. O let me not wander from Thy commandments! Alleluia, Alleluia.

Third Lesson.

SPEAK not evil one of another, brethren. He that speaketh evil of his brother, or judgeth his brother, speaketh evil of the law, and judgeth the law. But if thou judge the law, thou art not a doer of the law, but a judge. There is one Law-giver and Judge, Who is able to destroy and to set free. But who art thou that judgest thy neighbour? Behold now, ye that say: To-day or to-morrow we will go into such a city, and continue there a year, and buy and sell, and get gain—ye know not what shall be on the morrow. For what is your life? It is even a vapour, that appeareth for a little while, and then vanisheth away. For that ye ought to say: If the Lord will—and: If we live—we will do this or that.

The Hymn, "We praise Thee, O God, &c.," is said.

LAUDS.

Antiphon at the Song of Zacharias. These are the words * which I spake unto you, while I was with you. Alleluia.

Saturday.

The Sabbath.

MATTINS.

First Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Epistle of the Blessed Apostle James (v. 1.)

GO to now, ye rich men, weep and howl for your miseries that shall come upon you. Your riches are corrupted, and your garments are moth-eaten. Your gold and silver is cankered, and the rust of them shall be a witness against you, and shall eat your flesh, as it were fire. Ye have heaped up wrath for yourselves against the latter days. Behold, the hire of the labourers who have reaped down your fields, which is of you kept back by fraud, crieth: and the cry of them is entered into the ears of the Lord of Sabaoth. Ye have lived in pleasure on the earth, and have nourished your hearts with wantonness for the day of slaughter. Ye have condemned and killed the just, and he hath not withstood you.

Second Lesson.

BE ye patient, therefore, brethren, unto the coming of the Lord. Behold, the husbandman waiteth for the precious fruit of the earth, and hath long patience for it, until he receive the first and second harvest. Therefore be ye also patient, and stablish your hearts; for the coming of the Lord draweth nigh. Grudge not one against another, brethren, lest ye be condemned. Behold, the Judge standeth before the door. Take, my brethren, the Prophets who have spoken in the name of the Lord, for an example of that which cometh of affliction, of labour, and of patience. Behold, we count them happy which endured. Ye have heard of the patience of Job, and have seen the end of the Lord, that the Lord is very pitiful and of tender mercy.

Third Lesson.

BUT above all things, my brethren, swear not, neither by heaven, neither by the earth, neither by any other oath. But let your speech be: Yea, yea; and: Nay, nay; lest ye fall into condemnation. Is any among you afflicted? Let him pray. Is any merry? Let him sing psalms. Is any sick among you? Let him call for the Priests of the Church, and let them pray over him, anointing him with oil in the name of the Lord; and the prayer of faith shall save the sick, and the Lord shall raise him up, and if he be in sins, they shall be forgiven him. Confess your sins therefore, one to another, and pray one for another, that ye may be saved: for the fervent prayer of a righteous man availeth much.

VESPERS.

Chapter and Prayer from the following Lauds, and Antiphon of the Blessed Virgin from that of Zacharias at the same.

Rogation Sunday.

Fifth Lord's Day after the Passover.

MATTINS.

Invitatory and Hymn as on Low Sunday, (p. 356.)

FIRST NOCTURN.

First Lesson.

Here beginneth the First Epistle of the [1] Blessed Apostle Peter (i. 1.)

PETER, an Apostle of JESUS Christ, to the strangers scattered throughout Pontus, Galatia, Cappadocia, Asia, and Bithynia, elect, according to the foreknowledge of God the Father, unto the sanctification of the Spirit, unto obedience, and sprinkling of the Blood of JESUS Christ: Grace unto you, and peace, be multiplied. Blessed be God and the Father of our Lord JESUS Christ, Which, according to His abundant mercy hath begotten us again unto a lively hope by the Resurrection of JESUS Christ from the dead, to an inheritance incorruptible, and undefiled, and that fadeth not away, reserved in heaven for you, who are kept by the power of God through faith unto salvation ready to be revealed in the last time.

First Responsory.

If I forget thee, &c., (p. 378.)

---

[1] Abp. Kenrick says: "The period when this letter was written cannot be fixed with certainty. Hug assigns it to the eleventh year of Nero." (If so, three years before the martyrdom of the Apostle.) "The common opinion is that it was written from Rome, which is understood to have been designated by the name of Babylon (v. 13) as in the Apocalypse; but the critic just mentioned . . . supposes that it was written from Babylon in Asia."

Second Lesson.

WHEREIN ye greatly rejoice, though now for a season, if need be, ye are in heaviness, through manifold temptations; that the trial of your faith, being much more precious than gold (which is tried with fire,) may be found unto praise, and glory and honour at the appearing of JESUS Christ: Whom, having not seen, ye love; in Whom, though now ye see Him not, yet ye believe; and believing, rejoice, with joy unspeakable and full of glory; receiving the end of your faith, even the salvation of your souls. Of which salvation the Prophets have inquired and searched diligently, who prophesied of the grace that should come unto you, searching what or what time the Spirit of Christ Which was in them did signify, when It testified beforehand the sufferings of Christ, and the glory that should follow. Unto whom it was revealed that, not unto themselves, but unto you, they did minister the things which are now reported unto you by them that have preached the Gospel unto you, with the Holy Ghost sent down from heaven, on Whom the angels desire to look.

Second Responsory.

The waters saw Thee, &c., (p. 378.)

Third Lesson.

WHEREFORE gird up the loins of your mind, be sober, and hope to the end, for the grace that is offered unto you, in the revelation of JESUS Christ; as obedient children, not fashioning yourselves according to the former lusts in your ignorance; but as He Which hath called you is Holy, so be ye holy in all manner of conversation; because it is written: Be ye holy, for I am Holy.[1] And if ye call Him Father, Who without respect of persons judgeth according to every man's work, pass the time of your sojourning here in fear: forasmuch as ye know that ye were not redeemed with corruptible things, as silver and gold, from your vain conversation received by tradition from your fathers, but with the Precious Blood of Christ, as of a Lamb without blemish and without spot; Who verily was foreordained before the foundation of the world, but was manifest in these last times for you, who by Him do believe in God That raised Him up from the dead, and gave Him glory; that your faith and hope might be in God.

Third Responsory.

I will declare, &c., (p. 378.)

SECOND NOCTURN.

Fourth Lesson.

The Lesson is taken from the Book written by St Ambrose, Bishop [of Milan], on belief in the Resurrection.
